AGRICULTURE

Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY. Get out of the rut. Partial sowing is best. Cultivate home markets. Have your get your site ready! A motherly sow is worth keeping. After dinner, give the sow a rest. Oshands sometimes get turf-bound. Sow fall rye for early spring pasture. Turf is valuable only as a mulch. It is always safe to be accommodating. Good clover hay is never out of season. Give the hens free access to plenty of dust. Provide homes for the wrens and martins. Doing nothing is rating yourself at zero. Aim to excel in whatever you undertake. Don't bait yourself and forget your team. Cheap sugar means more preserved fruits. Feeding in the pasture is nature's method. Birds and beasts show many human traits. Don't waste your time in inventing charms. A pig out of condition is one without price. Protect the team from the torment of the flea. It requires patience and time to peddle milk. Slake is necessary to nitrification of the soil. Who do innocent children become criminals? There is nothing gained by crowding hives. Try to have something to market every month. Don't let the horse's mane get under the collar. Fancy points do not always bring fancy prices. An impotent ram is pretty likely to be a fat one. Cows enjoy the open air at night in hot weather. Always keep the centre of the stack the highest. Don't put your milk and cream into poor butter. Pasteurize to cook, especially new seed. Fold. Thoroughly cook your trichina before eating them. Do not be careless in the use of poisons for spraying. Progress demands a constant infusion of pure blood. A bird in the bush is worth two in the cherry tree. Keep a look ahead in both sowing and harvesting. One of the advantages of clover is its effect as a mulch. A leaky barnyard is one of the worst leaks on the farm. Whisky and tobacco are not promoters of good morals. Do not plan more work than you can do and do well. A glider is apt to be short of fodder—and other things. Remember nothing comes from nothing when feeding. Get and retain the confidence of your dog. Crops need more cultivation in dry than in wet weather. Standard cheese is one thing; whole milk cheese another. Keep everything in order, thus saving friction and wear. Milk is often tainted with the barnyard lark. It is natural for a cow to chew her cud while being milked. Big eggs are not safe to hatch; they may be double-yoked. Moldy and discoloured lenses are objectionable for small frames. Muzzling the seed lessens the nutriment in the rest of the plant. What the farmer wants is cost and full pay for labor and time. Measure is not exhausted until all is decomposed and dissolved. There should always be a green crop to supplement the pasture. The tail of the cow is an index to the rest of the body structure. Care or no care often determines the question of loss and gain. Men who fear only the penalty of the law have little conscience. Nobody who knows what the average acre can be made to produce. Probably millet will be more fashionable in the future than wheat. The first cross may be excellent, but don't depend on a cross for a sire. Some of the best-known milkers and butter makers have short tails. Men are different. It is impossible for all to succeed in the same thing. A thorough watering once a week is better than a sprinkling once a day. Have patience with the uneasy cow; she is in some way hurt or annoyed. No sexual shingle is equal to a hand-made one, properly rived and staved. It is not necessary to plow under clover for manure purposes. First food it.

PARAGRAPHS

On All Subjects of Current Note at Home and Abroad. A marriage is arranged between the Rev. Ernest Barton and Miss Baring, daughter of the late Thomas Baring, formerly M. P. for London, who died early in the present year. The beautiful residential estate of King's Walden, Bury, Hertfordshire, which extend over 3,000 acres, has been sold to Mr. Fenwick Harrison, of Liverpool, for £100,000. King's Walden, which is mentioned in Domesday Book, was Crown property at the time of the Norman Conquest. Prince George of Greece paid a visit to Edison's laboratory at Menlo-park, where he was shown the latest patent of the wizard, some not yet patented. The kinetograph was the machine which the Prince regarded as the most wonderful of all the inventions exhibited for his amusement and instruction. Edison presented his Royal visitor with a beautifully finished phonograph. The Royal plate at Windsor is altogether worth about £1,800,000. There are quaint pieces which were taken from the Spanish Armada; a peacock of precious stones, from Empress Elizabeth, which is valued at £20,000; a tiger's head (also from India) which has a solid ingot of gold for its tongue and crystal teeth; also a wonderful collection of splendidly ornamented gold shiboleth, one of which was made for George IV. of his snuff-boxes, and is worth £10,000. There are four hundred plates, which cost twenty-six guineas each. Mr. Gladstone was not aware of the serious nature of the operation his son was to undergo until it was done and the news came of his hopeless condition. He at once telegraphed to the Emperor of Austria, and heard of his son's death at Liverpool street by seeing the placards in the streets. It was a great shock to him, but the anxiety of his family is not now so much on his account as that of Mrs. Gladstone, who is not strong, and to whom the shock of her husband's death is very great. She was with him during the operation, and when he died.

JINGLES OF HOME.

A Little Nonsense Gathered for Leisure Reading. The force of habit.—The Editors Wife: John, dear, I'm going to let you see my new dress. I assure you it is a perfect poem. The editor absentmindedly—Put it in the waste basket my love. Fearfully and wonderfully made.—Typewriter copy written by amateur. 'Carpet-layers are naturally an unsteady people,' 'How is that?' 'Every minute they are on a different tack!' 'Brigs a comedian! You surprise me. He never does a funny thing in all his life.' Did you ever hear him sing a pathetic ballad. A philosopher who had married an ignorant girl used to call her brown sugar, because she was so sweet but unrefined. Husband—I'm—just going out to see a man, my dear. Wife (with emphasis) Is he Scotch or Irish, James? 'Do you think Cousin Fred, I'm very fond of dress?' 'No, I don't, 'Why?' 'Because I don't think you wear enough of it.' 'Mand' to her woe! Well, I hope papa didn't give you a cold reception!' 'Bartlett: No, he gave me a "roasting" but it amounted all to the same thing. Goodbye, dear. A good-bird was on wings at all, but he gets there just the same. A woman who bought a carpet ten days ago sent it back yesterday. The pattern was so loud it awakened the baby. 'I'd like to know why you have engaged a young woman as typewriter?' demanded Mrs. Candler of her husband. 'So that I could have some one to dictate to,' replied the unhappy man. A charming woman but not in her first youth had to give evidence in a French court, 'Year ago madame?' To this delicate question she replied that she was thirty. But she said the magistrate, did you not tell me that you were thirty when you appeared before me as a witness two years ago?' 'I think it very likely,' said madame, with a smile; 'I am not one of those women who say one thing to-day and another to-morrow.' Baron Blackstone Chickens ago for dinner 'Brer Ramrod! Dat don't look berry good afah ye only 'jind de chuk' las Sunday. 'Brer Ramrod! Well, palson, I kinde reason you'd be coming roost hash to help me wrastle wit de ole man ob sin so I raised a little contribution las eben' so we could start on de sarvey way seter come! We together.

REMARKABLE OPTICAL ILLUSION.

A remarkable optical illusion was shown by Prof. S. P. Thompson at a late conversation of the London Royal Society. On two rotating discs were spiral patterns in black and white, which seemed to move radially inwards and outwards, respectively. On passing fixely for about one minute at the centre of one disc, and then suddenly transferring his gaze to any object—a face—the observer saw that object apparently enlarging from the middle outward. After getting similarly for a minute at the second disc, and then looking at any object, he saw it apparently diminishing.

AMUSING SCHOOLBOY'S REACTIONS.

A schoolboy habit of placing upon a question some literal meaning other than intended by the examiner, often leads to answers as curious as unexpected. Thus an inspector asked a lad what were the chief ends of man, and he replied— "His head and feet, whole families." Another youth, questioned as to where Jacob was going when he was ten years old, replied that he "was going on for eleven." One specially unimaginative juvenile, called upon to say for what the Red Sea was famous, replied— "Red herrings!" But perhaps the most startling answer of this kind was that of the boy who, when asked what was meant by an unclean spirit, responded— "A dirty devil, sir." To the type of answers here in view belongs that of the little girl, daughter of a watchmaker, who having repeated that she "renounced the Devil and all his works," and being asked, "What do you understand by all his works?" answered, "His inside." Something akin to this was an answer given by a boy whose father was a strong pistolier, and upon whom it would appear that home influence had made a stronger impression than school lessons. "Do you know the meaning of syntax?" he was asked. "Yes," he answered; "syntax is the dooty upon syntax." An inspector who had been explaining to a class that the land of the world was not continuous, said to the boy who happened to be standing nearest to him: "Could your father walk round the world?" "No sir," was promptly answered. "Why not?" "Because he's dead," was the altogether unlooked for response. As little anticipated, probably, was the answer made to another inspector, who asked— "What is a hovel?" and was met with the reply, "What you live in." Another peculiarity of the schoolboy mind is to put things negatively. As for example, a boy was asked to write a short essay on pins by way of an exercise in composition, and produced the following: "Pins are very useful. They have saved the lives of a great many men, women and children—in fact, whole families." "How so?" asked the puzzled inspector, reading this. "Why, by not swallowing them," was the immediate reply. On the same line was the essay of another schoolboy on the subject of salt, which he described as "The stuff that makes potatoes taste bad when you don't put it on."

ICE WATER—DOCTORS DISAGREE.

A celebrated physician says: "All ice water drinking is bad," also that "a severe blow upon the body just over the solar plexus," (which is good United States language means an important portion of the nervous system located just back of the stomach), "will cause almost instant death," and he further says "the sudden shock caused by a deluge of ice water into the stomach has exactly the same effect upon the solar plexus as the blow, and may cause sudden death by its action upon it and through that on the heart." Another equally celebrated physician says, "Any diet which unqualifiedly say that cold drinks are bad and hot drinks are good must be absurd" and further "cold water stimulates gastric secretion; therefore do not drink a half-glass of ice water before eating or great injury is being done the physical health, and the foundation of some of the worst forms of Kidney disease is being slowly but surely laid. Do not drink ice-cold water, but pure cool water; a little lemon juice will improve its effectiveness. Plain soda-water with a little acid is also excellent in hot weather. If from drinking too much hot water you have stomach cramps, or are water-bogged" as it is called, or attacked with Cholera morbus, or Summer Complaints, diarrhoea or dysentery, do not resort to alcoholic stimulating drinks, which irritate rather than allay the inflammation which has caused the trouble; but adapt the practice of taking daily just before retiring, during July and August, one teaspoonful of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment in a little sweetened water, which will prevent all such attacks and ill effects from ice water. In fact a little pamphlet sent free to any one by I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston Mass., contains a vast amount of information about treating those summer troubles with that good old household remedy.

A fatal poisoning case occurred early this week at the state farm in Bridgewater, Mass., which the officers of the institution have kept very quiet. It seems that a man who had been in the paint shop of the chair manufacturing department and several of the workmen had been drinking it on the sly. As a result it is stated that one man died in terrible agony on Tuesday another on Wednesday and three now lie in the hospital in a critical condition.

A young Miss of North End St. John who is only a shade above "sweet sixteen," left home and started on the last Sunday evening's steamer train, for the land of the free because her parents found fault with her "fellow" and objected to her encouraging his attentions. She was intercepted by telegraph, however, at Frederickton Junction, and was detained there until her brother and sister went on the Flying Yankee Monday morning and induced her to return home. As a result she is a little daughter of Mr. Amos. Tower, of Main street, was severely bitten on the hand Monday afternoon by a monkey, owned by an Italian organ grinder, who was standing with her other children watching the monkey pick up the copper. Some boys began to tease the animal, and it got very savage, making a rush at the children and biting the little girl. The Italian saved himself from prosecution, and his monkey from execution, by setting up with Mr. Tower.
