LOCAL MATTERS. -Thanksgiving day. -Westcock is yet without a Postmaster. What is the trouble?

-The celebrated medicine man, Dr. Paul, paid Sackville a visit this week.

-A large amount of plank sidewalk has been laid down during the past week.

-The Boston Comedy Co., H. Price Webber, manager, opens at St. John this evening.

-Sackville has not been visited by Irving or Booth, by Anderson or Bernhard, but H. Price Webber is coming.

-Moncton has a population of between seven and eight thousand; in 1871 it was between eleven and twelve hundred.

-Mr. G. J. Trueman has purchased a building lot adjoining Mr. James Rainie's and will erect a cottage for his own use.

-Sackville wants more wharves and a harbor master. She has needed them for years. Will she get them before the Jubilee day?

-The shipment of last season's hay from Amherst to Sackville amounts to about 300 tons. Mr. J. A. McQueen, who shipped this, has this season about 500 tons to press for shipment.

-We congratulate the Moncton cotton factory on its good showing for the past year. While $490 net losses are not heavy, they are a proof of good management and promise of dividends in the future.

-Mr. J. L. Black has just threshed 53 bushels wheat (60 lbs. to the bushel) from an acre and a half of land (measured) from a sowing of one and a half bushels. This is a return of thirty-six for one.

-Such is the progress of Sackville that a lock-up is needed; not a small one either. Councilors Ogden and Lowerson, recently re-elected, should look after this matter at the next session of the County Council.

-Some of the lady passengers on the N. B. & P. E. Railway complain of smoking being allowed in the passenger car. Gentlemen might surely forego their pipes and cigars, when ladies are present, during the time it takes to make the trip.

-The Amherst Gazette proposes to celebrate the completion of the twentieth year of its existence by donning a new dress, enlarging its size and reducing its price. To assist in carrying out these improvements a novel press has been procured. We are glad to notice such evidences of our contemporary's success.

-Rev. C. S. Eby, of Japan, will deliver a lecture in this place on or about the 23rd inst. The subject will be Japan, and the lecture will be profusely illustrated with stereopticon views. More can be learned of a country and its people in this way in one evening than by a long course of reading. The Halifax papers speak very highly of Mr. Eby's lecture.

-Dr. T. W. Carrite, of Amherst, died at Abington, Va., on Monday, aged 54 years. He has been in failing health for a year and a few weeks ago sought medical advice in New York, and from there went South. He was a man of genial and kindly nature and leaves a wide circle of friends who will deeply lament his demise, amongst whom may be counted the Post, for which he has long been a correspondent and to which he contributed a number of letters since he went South, all breathing a gentle humor and reflecting in the pain of illness, the courage and spirit of the man.

SHIP RAILWAY - Mr. H. Matthews, C. E., who has for some time been employed in seeking a deviation to the ship railway line to avoid two hills near Tidnish, has been unsuccessful and returned to Ottawa a week or two ago. John Fowler, the Chief Engineer of the Chignecto Ship Railway has within a few days been knighted by the Queen, for eminent services as an engineer, his leading work being the largest railway bridge in the world, over the River Forth near Edinburgh. This bridge is to be about two miles long and is to have three clear spans of the unprecedented width of 1,700 feet each with piers of 300 feet in height.

PARRIBORO.

Angus McGillivray has appointed a member of the pilotage authorities for this district.

On and after Monday, 16th inst., the regular train will leave Parriboro at 8:45, a. m., and Spring Hill Junction at 2:30 p. m. standard time.

River Hebert. -Schr. "Janette T. Hibbard" is loading piling here, for Boston.

-Schr. "Emma K. Smalley" is loading piling at Simler, for N. Y.

-Mr. McQueen has built a neat building this summer, and has started a grocery and flour store.

-Lumbermen are beginning to go in the woods. B. Young has had a public reading room in the woods for about two months, and some N. B. teams have gone down to Apple River for the winter.

-The abutments and approaches of the new bridge are being built quite deep now, and business is quite brisk around the bridge with men, teams, timber, stone, sand and cement. Travellers are quite bewildered in passing along.

Spring Hill. -The Orangemen of Wellington Lodge celebrated Guy Fawkes' day on Friday evening by a supper in their hall.

-A miner named Wallace had an arm broken and received other injuries, while at work last Thursday, by a fall of coal from the roof.

-A public reading room is soon to be opened. The Company will provide a room and fuel, and the manager, Mr. Leckie, has promised a liberal donation of books and periodicals.

The unsightly stumps which covered the field between the station and the village have been removed and the land has been broken up. The appearance of the place has been greatly improved by the operation.

The railway from Spring Hill to Parriboro has been thoroughly ballasted and is now in excellent condition. What was once called an apparent justice the worst road in the Dominion, will now compare favorably with many larger and more pretentious lines.

A special train with a number of visitors including Senator Dickie, Messrs. C. J. Townshend, M. P., W. D. Main and J. M. Townshend, of Amherst, and Lt.-Col. Stewart, of Halifax, went over the line to Parriboro last Thursday on a tour of inspection. They were accompanied by Messrs. Leckie, Aikman and Hall. The run to Parriboro - a distance of twenty-seven miles - was made in forty-five minutes, including stoppages. At Parriboro the visitors were driven to the point of public auction and hospitably entertained at luncheon by Superintendent Aikman, after which they returned to the Junction in time for the night express.

Bale Verte. -Arrived on Sunday last, barque "Hiawatha," McKay, to owners. Will load deals for U. K.

Cleared on the 6th inst. Norwegian barque "Marie," 423 M. deals and ends, for Liverpool, by G. McKee.

The many friends of Mr. Hedley Shilker will be pleased to learn that he has so recovered from his long illness as to be able to go out frequently and take the air.

The personal effects of Mr. Chas. Prescott, late of Bale Verte, consisting of lots of lumber, brick, &c., were sold at public auction on Tuesday afternoon, immediately after the arrival of the Sackville, by Deputy Sheriff Tait; the amount realized was small. Also his interest in a steam mill, situated at Tidnish, purchased by R. Prescott for $130.

It gives us much pleasure to notice that our friend David, of the "Corner Grocery Store," Port Elgin, since the enlargement of his premises, has extensively added to his stock in the grocery as well as dry goods line, and, judging from view, must be, as he is well deserving of, doing a large and paying business. Give the trial "grocer" a call. You will not regret it.

We have just been informed by Albert Gooden, Esq., of this place, that last spring he sowed five and a half bushels of oats, and the other day, on the happy result, threshed one hundred and eighteen bushels, besides feeding several bushels in the straw. Also sowed two bushels of wheat, which yielded twenty-four bushels of prime grain. Let us hear from his neighbors, if they can beat the record.

Arthur Barratt, a laborer, residing in the Cyrus Outing house, who had been freely drinking for a few days, and while in a delirious state, attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat on the right side with a razor. The cut was about three inches long, superficial, over the jugular vein, but cutting quite deep close to the wind pipe. Mr. Weeks was the first person who found him, and immediately saved up the wound. The doctor says he will be all right. Beware of bad liquor.

We are authorized to state that the party who made the transfer papers for Milton Anderson, previous to his departure to another clime, did so acting in the capacity of conveyance only. That no advice was either asked for by, or given to, Anderson, as to how he should dispose of his property, and that representations made that Anderson transferred his property in the manner in which he did, acting under the legal advice of the party who drew the instruments, are false and in every respect untrue, he being, of no knowledge whatever, at the time, of Anderson's real standing with his creditors.

The monster draught horse "Jumbo," exhibited at the recent horse show in New York, 19½ hands high and weighs 9400 lbs.

Two young Germans, who attempted to cross the Bonanza, between Port Day and Chippewa, last Sunday, in a small row-boat, were carried over the Horse Shoe Falls. Their bodies have not yet been discovered.

Baird's French Ointment is an excellent article for any kind of Humour, such as salt Rheum, Pustules, Rash, and a sure cure for the Itch. It quickly heals obstinate Sores and Ulcers, &c. Sold by dealers.

On Tuesday last, Tadio Goulet's barn, at Cap-Belle, West. Co., was burned. Since then human bones have been found in the ruins. It is believed a young man named Patrick Fogarty, has been buried there.

There is nothing you could present to an invalid or care worn friend, that would more appreciate than a bottle of Baird's French Ointment, which cures the Itch, gives strength and comfort and does permanent good.

It is stated that the leaders of the union party, in Bonanza, have had a meeting with the Russian consul and other Russian representatives at Phillipopolis but without result, the Roumelians refusing to listen to anything affecting the position of Prince Alexander.

A western paper says that "by this time all down easters have got their houses looked up and have laid in a supply of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment." It would be a wise thing for people hereabouts to lay in the Anodyne. It is the most valuable liniment in the world.

THE FOUR CARDINAL POINTS of regulating the system are the stomach, the liver, the bowels and the blood. With a healthy action of these organs sickness cannot occur. Burdock Blood Bitters acts promptly upon these organs, restoring them to a healthy condition.

In the race for the Caulfield Cup run Oct. 17th, at Melbourne, Australia, there were 41 starters. Fifteen horses fell in the race, and one jockey was killed, while seven others were so severely injured that they had to be conveyed to the hospital. Several of the horses also sustained injuries.

A band of Indians on Saturday sacked and burned the Missouri-Florida cattle company's ranch, near Denning, N. M. The Indians also killed the wife and a eleven-year-old son of John T. Shy, the principal owner of the Missouri-Florida cattle company, and then started away, heading southward, in the direction of the Potomac Lake.

The trial of Mr. Stead, Mrs. Jarrett and others on the charge of indecently assaulting Eliza Armstrong was tried on Tuesday, and a verdict of "guilty" was returned. Mr. Stead was sentenced to three months imprisonment, Rebecca Jarrett and Louise Mowbray, to six months and Sampson Jacques to one month, all without hard labor.

Mr. Dolerin, of Big Harbor Boulevard, made a valuable discovery on his farm recently. While digging a cellar, he noticed a large pile of stones, and on overturning the pile, found a pot of gold. The gold bears an ancient date, and was probably placed there by some of the early French settlers. Mr. Dolerin has sent the gold to the United States to be melted and coined. It is worth between $2,000 and $3,000. -N. S. Herald.

The British expeditionary force in India will cross the frontier with the least possible delay. Four regiments have already started up the Irrawaddy, the most heavily armed vessel in the navy for her draught (52 feet) proceeds in advance and will go up the river as far as Bhamo. She takes up some torpedoes and a large supply of gun cotton and necessary appliances for the removal of obstructions in the bed of the river. She is accompanied by two armed launches.

Canon Farrar, in his lecture on Browning, brings pleasantly home to his hearers that poet's delightful dedication of his "My Men and Women" to his postive, in which Browning calls to mind Raphael's "century of sonnets" and Dante's single picture as examples of how every man desires to achieve success out of his peculiar genius. One is reminded of this by the announcement that in the Christmas issue of HARPER'S Magazine the novelist Black and Blackmore will both have poems, and the artist Boughton and Gibson literary contributions.

Mr. Howell's annual farce has now come to be expected as a regular feature of the year, quite like Thanksgiving and Christmas. It will appear, as usual, in the December Harper's, and introduces again our old friends of "The Sleeping Car," "The Register," and "The Elevator." "The Garreters" is the title, and it actually takes liberties with Boston legends. This awful farce lends confidence to the rumor that Mr. Howell intends to desert Boston for New York. Certainly no one would be allowed to condescend to LeCain, from Rotterdam for New York.

Boston Market Report. (Prepared for this paper by Messrs. Hatheway & Co.) Boston, November 7, 1885.

There has been an easier tendency in Cheese and the best factory cannot be quoted over 100c. per lb. in round lots. Good to choice lots move off at 9 to 9½c. per lb.

Fresh Eggs continue in good demand and move off as fast as they come to hand. The best marks of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and P. I. Island rule at 25c. to 26c. per dozen.

There has been a good demand for Potatoes and prices are a little higher. HAY AND STRAW. For strictly choice May there continues to be a fair demand. For other kinds are slow. The best grades of Eastern and Northern are selling at $17 to $20, and medium grades range from $15 to $17. Rye Straw is in demand at $17 to $18 per ton.

There has been a moderate juggling trade and prices are steady. Eastern cargoes move fairly.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites. For Throat Affections.

TRYING TRICKS. A Halloween Story. "Well this is a pretty fix for a man like me!" and Silas Hammersmith straightened up and glared at the mirror in his bachelor apartment as if he considered it in some way responsible for the present deplorable state of his affairs. "Oh, it's no use talking! This is a good one on me! To think that at my time of life, and he waved his hand in disgust at the mirror, "I should go to bed and sleep it off, and then my calico state of twenty I got through with that sweet little affair of Mary Kelly (bless her bright eyes)! It was a nice little episode, too, but she married another man who had the money to keep her, I thought then that I had got through with the tender passion; but that this was like milk to champagne. It is preposterous, and of course I have no chance beside the young fellow; but I am only thirty-five, I am not an old man, and I can still look well looking. I don't squint nor wear glasses, nor—but I've forgotten what will please the girls, though she doesn't seem like the ordinary run of girls. Ah, my sweet Dora! What a lovely girl! I should like to see your young fresh face and care-free heart? Nothing but the will and the power to keep you care-free and happy throughout all life. But I think Jack Liston has the inside of me, though he is a jekknaps, a dandy and a stylish fellow, and that's what takes with the girls. Yes, I'm almost sure she cares for him most, but I can't wait very long to see! I must do something—this unrest is maddening me for business. I don't want to be in exchange as well shut up shop. But how am I to find out? Oh, there is too much at stake! If I ask her, which is the straight way out, and she says no, even in that gentle voice of hers, I can never longer be in her face again; and if I don't ask her I will see her talk to her—but that is misery, the worst consolation possible, a privilege open to every civil young man of her acquaintance. Dora! Dora! No, I must put an end to it. I must have some news of her, and loud voices announced company, and two young men made a noisy entrance. The foremost one exclaiming: "Hello, Hammersmith! Are you making your own bed for me to lie on? You're a good fellow, but I'm a little bit of a lugubrious." And he exchanged silly winks with his companion. But Hammersmith smiled quietly as he remarked: "What's your name?" "Well, you see, Halloween is coming and that night people always try tricks, to see how their future husband or wife is going to be." "And do you expect me to engage in any such nonsense?" Hammersmith asked good humoredly. "Well, no," said young Liston, who had spoken first, "but I'm a little bit of a lugubrious." "Of course you are," said Hammersmith, "but I'm a little bit of a lugubrious." "What kind of a trick do you mean to do?" "Well, you see, Halloween is coming and that night people always try tricks, to see how their future husband or wife is going to be." "And do you expect me to engage in any such nonsense?" Hammersmith asked good humoredly. "Well, no," said young Liston, who had spoken first, "but I'm a little bit of a lugubrious." "Of course you are," said Hammersmith, "but I'm a little bit of a lugubrious." "What kind of a trick do you mean to do?"

change their plans before that." "Well, I can easily discover it if they do, and we will change ours accordingly." "That will consider it a settled thing," said Carleton, speaking for the first time. "It will only be a little fun. That is all the girls mean by trying their tricks, and that is all we mean by ours." "Well, I have it in me to you fellows," Hammersmith said, "I'll make your arrangements, and I'll help you all I can." "Thank you, old fellow. I know you would. You're a boss old boy. Ta, ta." And the two young fellows passed out, but once out of earshot they laughed heartily. "How easily he fell into the trap!" they said. "It will be the best joke out."

Both these young fellows having fallen in love with Dora Vane, or imagined themselves so, which is the next best thing, had, with the object usually attendant on youth and good looks, also imagined each one that he himself was Miss Dora's favorite. For Silas Hammersmith, who imagined that Dora could not possibly care for him, was plainly perceived by every one to be madly in love with Dora. The sisters of these young men, each with the wish to do what was possible in her power, and prompted by the brothers, had concocted the little scheme to draw Dora out, and if possible to find out where her preference really lay, something of which as yet Miss Dora had given no hint. It was the first time to have a little fun with Hammersmith, for whom either girl would willingly have sacrificed her maiden name.

The night came, clear and cold, as Halloween generally is in Canada. Everything had gone well with the two boys before the wood fire flared high on polished brass and iron in the quiet old fireplace, and burned hazel nut in leaves and named for their true loves and themselves. They had "turned the key," and the first letters of their names, in fact had gone through with the whole routine of tricks laid down by their grandmothers in the days when Halloween was as much of an institution as Christmas or New Year. But the crowning trick of all was to be the last. The turn was to be Hammersmith's, and the other two to a locked door, there to stand alone and call thrice for the future husband, and the one whom they were faced to have would be the one to go. "What is the fare for a pig?" he inquired again. Answer: "Three shillings." Then he took me for a pig."

"What if somebody would really come?" she said. "None! None!" said the other two. "Of course it's all fun." "But what if he should?" "Why, nothing could come except some person, and he would know it to be a joke." "Well, no one is to go first." "No," they insisted. Dora must go first.

"We'll draw lots," said Dora firmly. "If it falls on me I will go first, but not else." To this they were obliged to agree, and a fate was written on the wall. For a few minutes the boys were silent, so it must be confessed with a good deal of trepidation she let them adjust the handkerchief binding her, and she was led to the hitherto locked bedroom door.

"Of course the key is on the other side of the door had heard all the conversation and knew that Dora was coming to try her fate. So, as before agreed upon, Hammersmith was deputed to unlock the door and his waiting beauty. For a few moments he stood under him, and his heart beat so loud and so fast that he thought it would choke him; but remembering all that was at stake, he noiselessly turned the key, and before she was fully aware of it had folded Dora in his arms, and half-frantic with fear, forgot to struggle and lay quite still. While he whispered: "Dora, it is I, Silas Hammersmith, I love you, dear! Will you be my wife?"

"By the time Dora had recovered speech, and in a measure composure. She torn the handkerchief from her eyes, and looked up smiling, saying: "Oh, you are the one, are you? But you did not do right. The trick said you were to kiss me." And she put up her rosebud mouth with apparent nonchalance. Diffident Silas could hardly comply with her request, while the rest of the company were exploding with laughter, which they took no pains to disguise; but the look of entreaty in her eyes decided him, and he laid on her lips, the lightest, tenderest of kisses. Then she disengaged herself, and slipping her hand through his arm, faced the rest of the group who now seemed rather astonished at the added dignity of her manner, as she said in the clearest of voices and without a quiver: "Ladies and gentlemen, to me the look like a made-up plot, to have a joke either on me, or on Mr. Hammersmith, who is my promised husband."

"The four jaws dropped, the four pairs of eyes grew saucer-like with amazement. Dora gave a little squeeze to the arm she held, and continued: "I doubt if you have found the joke to be as good as you intended; but as all tricks try out on Halloween come true, I will give you now to my wedding. Of course, I will issue formal cards of invitation, but I wish you to consider yourselves invited now. Mr. Hammersmith, I will be ready for home in ten minutes. Please to excuse me for that of time." And she quietly left the room, followed by the two girls who were dumb with amazement. The two young fellows came forward and Carleton spoke:—"You have taken us rather by surprise, Hammersmith. How was it that nobody knew anything about your engagements?" "Only a whim of Miss Vane's," smiled Hammersmith, on whom Dora's spirited little explanation had had a most soothing effect. "Well, we must congratulate you at any rate," said Liston, a little shortly. "You have won the best girl in the town."

"I believe you, gentlemen, and thank you," said Hammersmith, shaking the proffered hands warmly. "I am the happiest man alive!" "By this time Dora had returned with her wraps on; and taking his arm they bade their friends good night. Once fairly in the street and alone, Hammersmith turned to his companion:—"My love," he said gravely, "Did you mean it?" "Did you know anything of this affair before?" asked Dora. "Then he told her all the story of the boys' requests, all his own hopes and fears, and ended at last with:—"Tell me, Dora, that you do not blame me."

"But they will never know that it was not all arranged before," he said delightedly. And he detailed the conversation after the girls had left the room. Dora was delighted that the biters had been so cleverly bitten. They reached the Vane residence, and as they stood together for a moment, Dora said softly:—"We will remember this Halloween, Silas?" "And Silas answered, stoutly:—"This one, and every one as long as we both shall live. I like 'try tricks' at Halloween!"—Toronto Globe.

At the Gate. Allow you to kiss me good-night ere you go? I could not permit such a freedom, O, no. Excuse me of course you know best what is right. But I meant no offence, I assure you. Good night. The fool. He must certainly have a thick head. To think for a moment I meant what I said. An Irishman, fresh from the country wanted to cross over from Dublin to Holyhead. "What is the fare?" he inquired. Answer: Seven shillings. "What is the fare for a pig?" he inquired again. Answer: "Three shillings." Then he took me for a pig."

New and Original Departure IN COAL COOKING STOVES. COMBINING Durability, Heat and Economy! THE above Stove I invented and patented in 1876, and at the present time it is constant use for eight years, and the repairs have been very trifling, in many instances none have been required. This valuable experience should be sufficient evidence of their durability, which is accounted for in the following: It has instead of a Land Fire Box, two heavy Curved Cylinders, which obviate the expense connected with all square Cooking Stoves of being compelled to renew Linings and Grates, at least once or twice every year. The heat being radiated from the Cylinders to four, where most needed, overcomes a serious objection to all kinds of ordinary Coal Cooking Stoves. The Cylinders are situated directly under the cover holes, and a fire may be made in one or both, thus adapting it for use either in winter or summer, with equal satisfaction, besides affording a great saving in fuel. I have also attached the Patent Telescope Oven to my Improved Oven Wood Stoves such as the Waterloo, Niagara, Star, &c., raising the thousands used them to excel. My stoves are worth Ten Dollars more than the same kind made by other Foundries. The Trade and Retail purchasers will please bear in mind that not although a great advantage is claimed for my own above all others, they cost no more, and being the sole manufacturer and patentee, no other Foundry can supply. Enquire for Fawcett's Patent Telescope Oven, and if you desire has none on hand send direct to the Sackville Stove Foundry. I am adding several new and handsome patterns this season which with my former large variety of one Hundred Different Patterns and Sizes of Cooking, Parlor, Office and Hall Stoves, also Farmers' Boilers, Hollow-Ware, Ploughs, Stove-Pipes and Tin-Ware, comprise the most complete assortment offered by any manufacturer in the Lower Provinces. Terms and prices will be found as favorable as can be obtained elsewhere.
