IN THE GOLD FIELD

A Former Chatham Lawyer is Coining Money.

William Thornburn Practicing Law and Mining Gold Mines at the Same Time.

James E. Gray, of the Ark, has received a couple of letters from Will Thornburn, an old Chatham lawyer, but now a Dawson legal luminary. Mr. Thornburn is doing exceedingly well in his home of northern adoption. He has a number of good claims in gold mines, one of which is valued at $100,000, and Mr. Thornburn owns three-fourths of the stock. In his legal business he has been more than successful. In one case his client was acquitted of manslaughter and in another he secured the freedom of his client, who was a woman, charged with setting fire to a hotel.

Herbert Robertson, another old Chatham boy, has been Mr. Thornburn's opposing lawyer on several cases.

Will and Frank Powell, formerly of the offices of Drs. Holmes & McKeough, live together in a cabin of their own.

The summer has been delightful, but several times the mercury stood at 90 in the shade and 120 in the sun.

Mr. Horkan, manager of the Standard Circulating Library, of Dawson City, has raised some very fine raspberries in large quantities, and strawberries in small quantities grow on the hillsides. Tompkins can be grown quite successfully. They are fit for table use at the time of writing, July 20, and towards fall some of them grow to be from 8 to 10 inches in diameter.

Mr. Thornburn says in the last letter, "I am sporting a ring worth $1,000. The old lady who lives in the cabin adjoining ours loaned it to me. She seems to think a great deal of Frank and me, and likes to do little motherly acts of kindness for us. I would like to wear this ring down to Chatham, but I guess it would be as well not to do so as the folks would think I was a millionaire undisguised."

THE LEGATIONERS RESCUED.

The Foo, Aug. 16.—(The ministers, women and children, and all other foreigners in Pekin, are safe with the allied army. Information to that effect has been received here. It comes through Chinese sources that are considered absolutely trustworthy. The allied army reached Pekin on Monday. An entrance to the city was obtained on Tuesday, and the besieged foreigners rescued.

think I was a millionaire undisguised."

It costs $500 a month to live in Dawson. Mr. Thornburn pays $125 a month for the two rooms in which his offices are. He has met Charles McDonald, clerk of the court, and one thing that struck him very forcibly was the number of Chatham wagons that appear on the streets of Dawson. The contents of the letters was enclosed the card of W. H. Mendham, a Dawson jeweller. On the reverse side is the following:

"Fac simile of a sketch of Bonanza Creek. Keep it as a souvenir of Klondyke humor for the folks back east."

"I claim one mile up stream for hydraulic purposes. U. Pupp."

"I claim 10,000 feet up in the air for ballooning purposes. F. Snatcher."

"I claim all the mansions in the sky, beyond the 10,000 limit for storage purposes. John Hall."

"I claim three miles in the hole for coaling purposes. A Lunatic."

"I claim that you d— fools are all mad. U. R. Another."

"I claim nothing and I want nothing; go to h— Hot Thing."

On the obverse side is a cut of Wm. H. Mendham, and beneath it this in-

Wm. Galley, of Peterboro, was so badly injured in the Bradford-Galt croquet game at Galt on Saturday that he fell from a train while in a dazed condition and broke his leg in two places. His recovery is doubtful.

From present indications the Canadian League will simmer out its existence in the same manner as the late international organization. Guelph is now on top and some of the other clubs claim that the Maple Leafs are endeavoring to ring in a wind-up while they are in this position.

Andrew Jeffrey, a Stratford auctioneer, who left that city last April with his family for New York, is destitute and friendless in the great metropolis. His son is dead and his wife and daughter have been stricken down with scarlet fever. Jeffrey is suing his landlord for $50,000 damages. He alleges that the man rented him the house knowing that it was impregnated with the germs of disease.

WITH THE BOERS.

A Correspondent Says There are 8,000 Left.

A Bitter and Demoralized Crowd Who are Burning and Looting.

London, Wednesday, Aug. 16.—A despatch to the Daily Telegraph, dated Middleburg, describes a visit to the Boer headquarters, where the correspondent says he shook hands with General Botha and Viljoen. He adds that the main position of the Boers is at Botha'sberg, north of Belfast, where there are probably 8,000 men with a number of cannon. There are about 300 men in Belfast, mainly mounted police and Irishmen, with several guns. They all declare that they will make things lively when General De Wet joins them. Their avowed intention is to make a stand a little to the east of Belfast, again at Machadodorp, and eventually to resist for a considerable time in the Lydenburg hills. The correspondent declares, however, that if they are defeated at Belfast and Machadodorp many will abandon the war. He described the Boers as demoralized and bitter, and says that they are burning and looting by wholesale. Half the ammunition used by them is soft-nosed. This fact was pointed out to Gen. Viljoen, who made no reply.

6000 BOER HORSES.

London, Wednesday, Aug. 16.—The Boer women and children at Johannesburg and elsewhere are being constantly sent by train to the Boer lines. The British in the Fouriesburg district neighborhood found a thousand horses and cattle hidden in a gorge. The British have captured now 6,000 Boer horses, 2,000 of which are in the pink of condition, and are being used against their former owners.

ARCHIE WANTS KENT.

Because His Chances in West York Are no Good.

Toronto World.

A gentleman who knows Kent and West York like a book says that Archie Campbell, M. P., will try to get the Liberal nomination in Kent. There is, however, a dead set against him there because he is a non-resident, and there are several local men anxious for the nomination. Again, Mr. Campbell does not take kindly to the thought of contesting West York for the simple reason that he would not have a ghost of a chance against the sitting member. If he cannot cajole Kent he bids fair to be in the woods after the elections.

FARMERS READ THIS

MCCORMICK CORN HARVESTERS GIVE PERFECT SATISFACTION.

This is to certify that we witnessed the operation of one of your Corn Harvesters on the farm of Mr. James Holmes, and are pleased to say that it is one of the most perfect pieces of machinery that we ever saw for cutting and handling corn, and in point of making an even butt and tyeing. The sheaf carrier works to perfection, there not being any ears knocked off. It is very easy draft, has no side draft, and two horses haul it with ease.

We would recommend the McCormick Corn Harvester to any persons wishing to purchase a corn harvester.

WANT THEIR COSTS.

The law firm of Lewis & Richards, who, on behalf of John Stringer and other ratepayers, issued a writ of injunction against the L. E. & D. R. R. Co. and the City of Chatham, to restrain the company from laying the M. Campbell spur, and the city from allowing them to do so, have stated their intention of proceeding with the case unless the corporations against whom the writ was issued, come forward and pay the costs. If the council does not feel like doing this the case will be proceeded with.

THOSE OFFENSIVE HOG PENS

Chairman of the Property Committee Inspects Them—Thinks They Require a Concrete Floor.

Dr. Fleming, chairman of the property committee drove out to the G. T. R. cattle pens this morning and made an inspection of the yards about which so much is being heard at present. This morning there were between 75 and 100 hogs in the pens, but the odor was not very noticeable until one got within close proximity to them. The floors are constructed of long pieces of square timber nearly a foot in thickness, with gutters placed at intervals to carry off the refuse. When the doctor arrived the floors were in a moderately filthy condition, and when several Chatham shippers who were present were asked the reason, they replied that it was owing to shippers from outside points taking hogs from cars en route, putting them in the pens and feeding them there. After the hogs are fed, the pens are thoroughly cleaned. The permanent nature of the odor seems to arise from the fact that the timbers which compose the floor become impregnated with moisture, and as, although the surface may be clean, the sun's rays cause the offensive smell to continue. From what he saw this morning, the chairman of the property committee is of the opinion that a concrete floor such as is used in the C. P. R. yards would be an important factor in the discontinuance of the odor complained of.

HIS WORK OF MERCY.

The Humane Officer Will Prosecute Senix Bannister—A Foul Smelling Stable.

Humane Officer Henry Dagneau has had Senix Bannister summoned to appear at the police court to-morrow on the charge of hitting his horse with a shovel and cutting its back.

Yesterday Mr. Dagneau removed three horses from a stable near the G. T. R. crossing on Queen street. The animals were standing on ten cords of bones and the stench from the stables was awful. On the orders of the humane officer the horses were put in another barn.

"I wish," said Mr. Dagneau this morning, "that some of the citizens could have been with me yesterday and they could have obtained some idea of the work there is to do. I don't see why the health inspector does not go around to that stable and other such places and compel the proprietors to clean them up. They menace not only the health of the animals but what is worse, breed disease for residents of this city."

"I have received 13 more complaints through the postoffice this week in regard to cases of cruelty to animals in the country and I intend to investigate them all."

Norwich Man Shoots Himself on Her Grave—At One Time Suspected of Causing Her Death.

Norwich, Ont., Aug. 16.—Ulrich Rupprecht, a German employe in the Thomas broom factory, suicided this afternoon at the cemetery here. His wife died recently under peculiar circumstances, and deceased may have thought "that suspicion lingered in the minds of the residents against him, though nothing whatever was proven to that effect."

He went quietly to his wife's grave this afternoon and shot himself with a revolver through the right temple, dying instantly. Dr. Ellis, coroner, decided not to hold an inquest, the cause of death being clear. Rupprecht left a letter to a friend, saying that he was going to shoot himself; did not feel excited over the idea, and wished to re-join his wife.

GREEN WOODSTOCKERS

Were Cleaned Out of Their Cash by a Gang of Chatham Experts.

According to the Woodstock Daily Express, the proceedings on the Shenango, which ran an excursion to Port Stanley, Monday, were enlivened by the presence of pea-shell gamblers from Chatham, who plied their three shells to great personal advantage.

LEAMINGTON.

Aug. 16.—Mr. Miller, of Dresden, son of the late E. R. Miller, who died at Essex, last winter, spent a few days in town.

Mr. Wright, stenographer, is the Sydneyham Glass Works, Wallaceburg, spent a few of his holidays visiting his brother here, L. J. Wright.

Misses Edna and Mary McSween, of London, are visiting relatives and friends here.

Mr. Webb, druggist, who removed here from Orillia, is fitting up a very handsome store in the Irwin block.

Letters have been received from A. G. Baker and Bert Smith, who left here on the 21st July for England. They had a delightful voyage and are now busy sight seeing.

The town is making a move towards securing a park and may purchase Bell's Point. A vote will be taken on it by the people.

Mr. Gray, the government engineer, arrives to-day to make the necessary survey for the location and places of the government dock the grant for which was voted last session.

The mayor took a party of our citizens to the lake to locate the dock but they could not agree. He also took them to Bell's Point where they were practically unanimous in deciding that the town secure it by fair means or foul.

The Essex baseball team did not put in appearance Tuesday as pre-arranged they should and the result was no game and a disappointed crowd. It is supposed they could not secure the Detroit contingent.

"WHO IS WHO?"

The title, "Who is Who" which has been assigned to the musical farce comedy in which Chas. A. Lober, John A. McMahon and a large company appear under the direction of F. W. Stair, certainly indicates the nature of the vehicle. It is termed a comedy of complications and promises a merry antidote for the blues.

THE RABBITS OF AUSTRALIA.

At First they Were a Pair, Then a Pest, and Now They Bring $1,000,000 in Two Years

About forty years ago a pair of rabbits was brought to Australia and turned loose on a farm about thirty miles from Melbourne. In an incredibly short time they multiplied to such an extent that they became a pest. The rabbits spread in millions over the western and northern areas of Victoria. They invaded New South Wales and pressed on, still increasing, a thousand miles northward into Queensland.

All means of destroying the rabbits proved ineffectual. Shooting, poisoning, and trapping were tried, but the rabbits increased. Poisonous bait was used, but the rabbits refused the doctored grain. Poisoned carrots could not be resisted until wisdom again taught the rabbit that to eat was to die.

Mr. Gray, the government engineer, arrives to-day to make the necessary survey for the location and places of the government dock the grant for which was voted last session.

GREELEY'S MANNERS WERE BAD.

But They Were Forgiven for the Fine Speech He Made Afterwards.

Horace Greeley stories being in order in view of the untiring of his statue, recently, I will tell one that I heard in New Orleans. The genial old philanthropist went there after the South had taken him to her heart in grateful recognition of his action in going on the Jeff Davis ball bond, and the people were anxious to show him every attention in their power.

A dinner seemed to be the proper thing, and the markets of New Orleans, then which there are few better in the world, were ransacked to make the occasion as notable for its viands as for the distinction of the guest and the diners.

The veteran editor of the Plaindealer presided; he was a great gourmand, and, after the manner of gourmards, wished none of the fine points of the dinner to be lost to the guest for lack of commentary.

"Mr. Greeley," said he, "these oysters are the best that come to our market, and we think they vie with those of Norfolk. I observe that you are not eating them."

"Well, no," replied Greeley; "the truth is, I never could abide shell fish," and he passed.

Then came some delicious green turtle soup, which Judge Walker explained was prepared from the finest fat turtle the Florida bays could afford.

"No doubt, no doubt," was the reply in Greeley's peculiar whine, "but cold-blooded animals are an abomination to me."

The pompano, imperial fish that it is, and fresh from the Gulf, was open to the same objection, despite Judge Walker's eulogy, and that, too, was passed.

Mr. Greeley barely tasted the accompanying Parisian dainty, and shook his head ruefully at the idea that anybody would impair his digestion by eating cucumbers.

Shrimp salad, another New Orleans delicacy, proved no more tempting; the said, looked so much like worms that they always gave him the creeps.

"Ah, here is something you will like—a homely dish in name," said Judge Walker, "but fit for the gods. It is a Gallician ham." And then he went on to tell how the hogs from which these hams were obtained were fed only on chestnuts, making the flesh luscious and delicious.

"Perhaps so; very interesting indeed," observed Greeley; "but do you know, Judge, that there is so much talk of trichinae now—days that I wouldn't dare taste a bit of pork?"

The Judge gave up in despair. The only thing in all of the array of dainties which had been provided which Mr. Greeley would eat were bread, potatoes and cauliflower, and he feared stomach at that. But when it came to the speaking, although he had drunk nothing but cold water, he spoke as one inspired, and with a fervor, eloquence and tenderness that nobody at the table could ever forget—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The Mayor Establishes One in Reference to Plaintiffs Who Fall, Paying Costs.

If Mayor Smith continues to sit in judgment upon will does at the police court for any length of time the police officials will be enabled to take a few holidays owing to non-presure of business.

Yesterday Senex Bannister prosecuted Joseph Kovinsky for using insulting language towards him. From the evidence it was clearly shown that the charge was groundless and in dismissing the case His Worship taxed the plaintiff for all the costs.

"It is not the practice of this court to make the plaintiff pay the entire cost your worship," suggested the chief of police.

"I don't care what the practice of the court is," retorted the acting magistrate. "The preference of this charge was a most outrageous proceeding and Bannister shall pay all the costs."

There have been placed upon the market several cheap reprints of an obsolete edition of Webster's Dictionary. They are being offered under various names at low prices.

By dry goods dealers, grocers, agents, etc., and in a few instances as a premium for subscription lists to papers.

reprints are very misleading; for instance, they are advertised as a premium for subscription lists to papers, when in reality, so far as we know and believe, they are all from A to Z.

phototype copies of a book of over thirty years ago, which in its day was sold for about $5.00, and which was much superior in paper, print, and binding to these imitations, being then a work of some merit instead of one Long Since Obsolete.

The supplement of 1890 so-called "new words" which some of these books are advertised to contain, was compiled by a gentleman who died over forty years ago, and was published before his death. Other minor additions are probably of more or less value.

The Genuine Edition of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, which is the only meritorious one familiar to this generation, contains over 700 pages, with illustrations on nearly every page, and bears our imprint on the title page. It is protected by copyright from cheap imitations.

Valuable as this work is, we have at vast expense published a thoroughly revised edition, the name of which is WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY. Illustrated pamphlet free.

BAMBOOZLING GRANDMA

"There never was a grandma half so good!" He whispered while beside her chair he stood. And laid his rosy cheek, With manner very meek, Against her dear old face in loving mood.

"There never was a nicer grandma born; I know some little boys must be forlorn, Because they're none like you. I wonder what I'd do Without a grandma's kisses night and morn."

"There never was a dearer grandma; there!" He kissed her and he smoothed her snow-white hair; Then fixed her ruffled cap, And nestled in her lap, While grandma, smiling, rocked her old arm chair.

"When I'm a man what things to you I'll bring; A horse and carriage and a watch and ring.

All grandmas are so nice (Just here he kissed her twice), And grandmas give a good boy everything."

Before his dear old grandma could reply This boy looked up, and with a roughish eye Then whispered in her ear That nobody might hear: "Say, grandma, have you any more mince pie?"

ROSA OF TANNENBURG.

In a great stone castle in the midst of the deep pine forests of Germany, there lived, a great many years ago, the knight of Tannenburg, and his daughter, Rosa. It was in the days when the lawless nobles of the country were constantly quarrelling with one another, each burning his neighbor's grain and stealing his cattle while the owner was fighting in distant wars.

The castle of Tannenburg was like all castles of that time, strongly fortified and surrounded by high walls and a deep moat. In an upper room, one warm summer day, Rosa and her father sat together. The knight had just come home from the wars, badly wounded, and Rosa, a fair-haired girl of seventeen, sat by him working over her gayly colored tapestry.

"Father," she said, "Tell me the story of how you got the chain round your neck."

Rosa had heard the story a hundred times before now, but she never tired of hearing it any more than the old knight of telling it.

"When I was a page at court," began the knight, stroking his long, gray beard, "a great tournament was given in honor of a French prince who came to visit our emperor. There I saw your mother for the first time and so lovely was she that she was elected to be the queen of beauty, and was to give the prize, a golden chain, to the victor. I loved her beauty gave me such strength and daring that I came out first in the games, much to the chagrin of the young baron of Odenwald, who opposed me fiercely in the tourney. He was, like myself, a suitor for the hand of the queen of beauty, and when I finally won her for my bride he swore that he would have his revenge on me."

"But," interrupted Rosa, "his castle is only fifteen miles from us, and he has done us no harm yet."

"Yes," answered her father, "that was many years ago, and he has now a young wife and two children, but he still hates me bitterly and—"

A loud clamor in the courtyard interrupted the story, and on looking out of the window to their consternation they saw the baron Odenwald, and his soldiers marching up to the castle doors. The knight's soldiers were still at the wars and the few old men left to guard the castle had been easily overpowered by the fierce baron.

Rosa screamed with terror. She heard the tramp of armed feet coming up the stairs. In came the haughty baron of Odenwald and ordered his men to bind and carry off the wounded and helpless knight of Tannenburg. In vain were Rosa's tears and prayers. The unfortunate knight was hurried off, Rosa turned out of the castle, which was looted, and then locked up, and the poor girl left weeping and disconsolate.

All night she wandered through the dark pine forest till she came to a charcoal-burner's hut, where she was taken in and kindly treated. Days passed by and Rosa longed to see her father once more, and perhaps, help him to escape. Accordingly, one day she stained her face with brownberry juice, changed her own pretty dress for a peasant's coarse cotton gown, and with a large basket of mushrooms on her arm, started off for the castle of Odenwald.

The sentinel, seeing only a harmless little peasant girl, let her pass over the drawbridge and through the castle gates. She walked up to the porter's lodge, where the porter's wife stood in the doorway scolding her children. The baron of Odenwald was extremely fond of mushrooms, and the basketful was soon bought and paid for by the porter's wife.

"Will you not stay with me and help me look after the children?" she asked, the food for the prisoners? she asked after a few moments' chat with Rosa. "I need a young, strong girl like you and I will give you a new dress every year if you will stay."

Rosa accepted this offer eagerly, and her duties, none too light, began that very day. She had to light the fire in the morning, dress the children, help the porter's wife cook the most unsavory soup for the prisoners of the castle and do many other things. One day the porter came to his wife and told her that he was obliged to go away with the baron for some days and that she would have to take the prisoners' food to them, besides cooking it.

"No, indeed," replied his wife, promptly, "there are murderers and thieves in those cells and I will not go near them."

"Let me go," begged Rosa. "I will do it for you."

"Very well," said the porter, rather surprised at her request, "come with me and I will show you how to unlock the doors."

Together they went down a winding flight of stone steps opened a door heavily bolted and barred and down a long, dark corridor, dimly lighted by the porter's lantern. On one side were small stone cells behind whose iron grates wild, cruel faces gleamed in the light of the passing lantern. Hideous cats and fearful laughter followed them, and Rosa shrank, frightened, to the porter's side.

"Do you fear them," he said, "they cannot possibly escape. This man, however, is good and gentle, and you can go right into his cell." He stopped in front of one of the grates and held up his lantern. Rosa's heart beat fast and loud. There, on a wretched heap of straw, lay her father, asleep, pale and emaciated. She longed to call to him, but remembered she must be silent before the porter, and she left him sleeping and walked back through the long corridor, bolting the heavy door behind them.

The next day Rosa took into the prison the bowls of unappetizing soup, pushed one under every grate and finally came to her father's cell. Unlocking his door she rushed in and knelt by the sick man's side. "Father! Father!" she cried, recognizing his daughter in spite of the brown stain and rough dress. He took her in his arms and together they wept over their terrible misfortunes. Then Rosa told her father all her adventures since he had been carried off, until the sound of the great bell of the castle coming dim and muffled through the thick dungeon walls warned her that it was time to go back to the porter's wife.

Twice every day Rosa brought food to the prisoners, and thus saw her father. Escape, however, was not possible. The walls were too well guarded, and as the days slipped by the poor knight grew worse and Rosa despaired.

One morning the castle was filled with noise and busy movement. News that the baron was to return that evening with a large company of guests flew from mouth to mouth. So excited were they that the nurse-maid forgot her duties, and the baron's two little sons, who were playing in the courtyard, while she gossiped with the scullerymaid over the coming event.

A bright blue and yellow butterfly flew across the yard, and away went the two children after it. The butterfly settled for a moment on the edge of the bucket hanging over the well. The eldest of the children clambered up, stretched out his little hand to reach the gay plaything, lost his balance and fell in. The baroness at the window saw and faintly at the sight. Men and maids rushed up, and among them Rosa. Down into the dismal depth of the well they peered and saw the little fellow's coat had caught on a sharp stone projecting half-way down the well. Rosa saw that the coat was already beginning to tear; that there was no time to be lost, and jumping into the bucket, told the men to let her down gently till she reached the boy. So the child was safe in her parents' arms, and the bucket, with its occupants, carefully brought up to the mouth of the well.

It was many hours after that the baron of Odenwald, sitting in the great hall of the castle with his guests, heard the story of his son's plucky act, from death and of Rosa's plucky act.

"Bring the girl here!" he commanded, and Rosa was brought in, her rough peasant dress contrasting with the gay costumes of the knights and ladies in the hall.

"Girl," said the baron, "you saved my son's life. Ask what you will of me and I will give it you."

"Baron of Odenwald," answered Rosa, boldly, "there is one favor I will ask of you. Give up your prisoner, the knight of Tannenburg, to me."

"No, no! Not that!" frowned the baron.

"A murmur went around the hall from the guests—"Your word," "your honor"—and the baron turned pale with chagrin and rage. By his order the wounded knight was brought up from the dungeon. Astonished and almost blinded by the bright light he gazed around him, whilst Rosa quietly put her hand in his.

"My daughter, what does this mean?" he said.

"His daughter," murmured the guests once more.

The whole story then came out, a reconciliation was effected between the knight and the baron and the property of the former restored to him.

Some days later Rosa and her father sat together in an upper chamber of the castle, the knight with the glow of returning health on his face, Rosa in a pretty little silk gown and the brownberry stain completely disappeared.

"Father," said Rosa, "this is a happy ending after all to the story of the golden chain."

"Yes, dear," answered her father. "I began the story, but it was my brave little daughter who brought it to this happy termination."—Chicago Record.

LIVING IN JUNEAU.

Some Features of Life in the Principal City of Alaska.

Juneau is not a pious town, notwithstanding it has a Methodist, a Presbyterian, an Episcopal, a Greek, a Catholic, and an Indian church, all of them thrifty. The fact is, Juneau is a good deal Parisian in its style, and is decidedly wide open. Gambling places, saloons, dance halls and dives abound, and they appear to be a necessity of existing conditions. The streets of Juneau, beyond the one at the water front, are mostly uphill, and they are ten in all, but there are platform sleds on low runners that can slide down a street like a toboggan. There are twenty-five horses in town and one buggy. There are twenty bicycles, but just where they can run is not apparent. There is an opera house, and a unique method of having shows in it. Every Friday night it is open to the best people, at $1 a seat, with selected talent from the variety shows of the town where the best people cannot go—except the men.

Socially Juneau is quite gay, and pink in all, but there are no assemblies, balls and other functions take up the night time. On special occasions flowers are ordered from Seattle. There are twenty-five or thirty ladies, who are prominent in society, and entertain. Men are plenty, but there are few unmarried women, and there is an urgent demand for them.

There are two banks, and the stores are very large, with fine window displays. One firm pays its window trimmer $105 a month. What 3,500-size town in the States does as well as that? Extensive stocks are carried, running from $10,000 to $150,000, with annual sales running as high as $350,000 at retail. There is a big business done in Indian curios, the Indians selling as high as $20,000 worth a year from their houses and on the streets. One excursion steamer last season carried out $3,000 worth of Indian baskets.

The press is represented by the Dispatch (daily) and its weekly, the Morning Record, by E. C. Russell, Jr., a hustler, the Alaska Miner and the Truth are weeklies.

There are two or three libraries and free reading rooms maintained by the citizens, and they are all well patronized. Dealers sell large quantities of paper-back novels as well, and all the periodicals of the East are in eager demand.

There is no police in Juneau, the police function being in the hands of deputy United States marshals, and there is little disorder. The fact that a man can find trouble very easily if he is looking for it acts as a deterrent to disorder, and scraps are few and far between. Nobody has been shot within a year. At one year ago a deputy marshal was killed and three wounded. This seems to have cleared the atmosphere morally. Nothing on earth could do it meteorologically, for Juneau has a climate that is all cloud and fog and mist and rain for about 367 days in the year. At from 45 to 50 cents. Best hotels, which have water, electric light and all the modern improvements, charge $2 and $3 a day, and some very fair as low as $1 a day. Juneau, a thousand miles from everywhere, is a cheaper place to live in, comfort for comfort, than New York city is, which is in the midst of everything.

The town is lighted by electricity from a fine plant, and it has waterworks, supplied by mountain streams, so high up that there is force enough to throw water all over town. It is cold water, too, and beautifully clear.

Forty-five merchants and other persons have telephones. A brass band of twelve pieces wakes the echoes now and then, and as long as the echoes do not complain, nobody else ought to or does.—Washington Evening Star.

from a man who used and thoroughly tested one of the Columbia Corn Harvesters last season.

MESSRS. GEO. STEPHENS & CO., Chatham.

DEAR SIRS:—The Columbia Corn Harvester I purchased from you last season gave me splendid satisfaction and I am well pleased with it in every particular. It has number of good features that are not on any other Corn Harvester I have seen (and I think I have seen all that is offered for sale in this locality). One thing that especially commended it to me was the way you can change the sizes of the sheafs and this enables the farmer to make a great saving in time. The draft is not heavy and the machine is easily handled. In fact it pleased me well. Yours, etc.,

WIVES OF PRESIDENTS.

Personal Appearance of the Women Who Have Ruled the White House.

Of mistresses of the White House one of the most popular was Mrs. James K. Folk.

Mrs. George Washington also had dark hazel eyes and brown hair. She was not a beauty, but she had a certain grace.

Mrs. Monroe was considered a beauty. She was tall and gracefully formed.

Mrs. John Quincy Adams was famed for her charming manners, and Mrs. Andrew Jackson for her amiable temper and kind heart.

The first Mrs. Tyler was one of the belles of eastern Virginia, and was most attractive in her striking loveliness of person and character.

A sparkling brunette was Mrs. William Henry Harrison. She was very handsome, with a face full of animation.

Mrs. Thomas Jefferson was remarkable for her beauty. Her complexion was brilliant; her large, expressive eyes of "the richest tinge of auburn."

Mrs. James Madison was a pretty, buxom woman, with a smile and a pleasant word for every one.

Mrs. Zachary Taylor was a quiet woman, but had great strength of character and the true spirit of the American heroine.

Mrs. Millard Fillmore, with a skin of dazzling whiteness and auburn hair, she was quite tall with a fine figure and of commanding presence.

Mrs. Franklin Pierce. She also had many accomplishments. She was very refined and quiet, shining society.

Mrs. Abraham Lincoln as a girl was very attractive, and she had many suitors. When she became the mistress of the White House she was "fair and forty."

Mrs. Andrew Jackson possessed the beauty of face and form which rendered her mother one of the most beautiful of women.

Mrs. Arthur, who died before her husband became President, was known as "the beautiful Miss Herron" with the "marvellous voice" before her marriage.

Mrs. Harrison was fair as a girl and possessed a blonde style of beauty, which also belongs to Mrs. McKinley.

How Congress Spring Was Named. When John Taylor Gilman, a member of Congress, visited the log houses which chiefly constituted Saratoga in its early history, he was accompanied one day on a hunting ramble by a young son of the woodman with whom he boarded.

"You can wish for nothing handsomer and cheaper in fact, including all good qualities that are desired in footwear than the PRINCESS shoe in the market."

"I'm going to be proud of that small boy of mine one of these days," he exclaimed, earnestly.

"No, he's going to be a business man. I told him last week if he'd be a good boy I'd take him to the circus."

Cures Weak Men Free

SOLDIERS STARVE

Through Official Bungling in the Transport Service.

Bitter Denunciation by a Well-known War Correspondent—He Gives Actual Facts.

A. G. Hales, Representative in South Africa of the Daily News, is the latest correspondent to attack the methods and the red tape of the British war office. He says:

"Let me tell you how our army in South Africa is treated by the incompetent people of the good city of London. I pledge my word as a man and a journalist, that every word written in this column is true. I will not detract from, nor set down aught in malice. If my statements are proven false then let me be scourged with the tongue and the sword from every decent Briton's home and hearth forever after, for he who lies about his country at such an hour, as this is of all traitors the vilest. I will deal now particularly with the men who are acting under the command of Lieut. Gen. Sir Leslie Rundle. This good soldier and courteous gentleman has to hold a frontage line from Potberg via Senekal thence to the borders of Basutoland. His whole front, extending nearly a hundred miles, is constantly threatened by an active, dashing and determined enemy, an enemy who knows the country far better than an English fox hunting squire knows the ground he hunts over season after season. To hold this vast line intact, Gen. Rundle has to march from point to point as his scouts warn him of the movements of a tireless foe.

"Gen. Rundle's task is a colossal one and any man who would undertake such gigantic efforts would be made to keep him amply supplied with food for his soldiers. But such is not the case. The men are absolutely starving. Many of the infantrymen are so weak that they can barely stagger along under the weight of their soldierly equipment. They are worn to shadows, and moving slowly and with long intervals of rest. The march is a long and weary one for a long time to come, unless England arouses herself and bites to the bone in regard to the people who are responsible for the situation.

"One pound of raw flour, which the soldiers have to cook, after a hard day's march, is served out to each man every alternate day. The following day he eats one pound of biscuits. In this country there is no fuel excepting a little oil dined dried by the sun. If a soldier is lucky enough to pick up a little he can go the next day without yeast or baking powder, and make some sort of a wretched mouthful. He gets one pound of raw meat, most of which he has to eat raw, and there his supplies end.

"What has become of the rations of rum, of sugar, of tea, of cocoa, of groceries generally? Ask at the snug little railway sidings where the goods are stacked and forgotten. Ask in the big stores in Cape Town and other seaport towns. Ask in your own country, where countless thousands of pounds worth of foodstuff is rotting in the warehouse, bound up and tied down with red tape bandages. Ask—yes, ask; but don't stop at asking—damn somebody high up in authority. Don't let some wretched underling be made the scapegoat of this criminal state of affairs, for the taint of this shameful thing rests upon you, upon every British whose homes, privileges and prospects are being safeguarded by those famishing men, the folk in authority will probably tell you that Gen. Rundle and his splendid fellows are so isolated that food cannot be obtained for them. I say that is false, for recently I, in company with another correspondent, left Gen. Rundle's camp without an escort. We made our way in the saddle, taking our two cape carts with us, to a railway station; leaving our horseflesh there, we took train for East London. Then back to the junction, and down to Cape Town, where we remained for 18 hours, and then made our way back to Winburg, and from Winburg we came without escort to rejoin General Rundle at Hammama. If two war correspondents can traverse the country and get through with winter supplies for themselves, why cannot the transport people manage to do the same? These transport people seem to look upon the war correspondent and his opinions on things military; but if we could not manage transport business better than they do, move of our feet will willingly stand up and be shot.

SOLDIERS FAMILISHING.

"Our men on the fields of war are famishing, whilst millions worth of food lies rotting on our wharves and in our cities, food that ought with ordinary management to be within easy reach of our fighting generals. British asks of Rundle the fulfillment of a task that would task the energies and abilities of the first general in Europe, and with a stout heart he faces the work in front of him, facetious with men whose knees knock under them when they march, with hands that shake when they shoulder their rifles—shake, but not with fear; tremble, but not from wounds; but from weakness, from poverty of blood and muscle, brought about by continual hunger. Are those men fit to storm a kopje? Are they fit to tramp the whole night through a forced march to turn a position and then fight, like their fathers fought, next day? I tell you no. And yours be the shame if the empire's flag be lowered—not theirs, but yours—for you—what do you do? You stand in your music halls and shout a chorus of songs full of sentiments of pride for your soldiers' full of praise for his patience, his pluck and his devotion to duty; and you let him go hungry, so hungry that I have often seen him quarrel with a soldier for a handful of raw mealies on the march."

A GREAT FUN-MAKER.

A very choice offering to the amusement seekers at Chatham is the extremely entertaining musical farce comedy, "Who is Who," which will be presented at the Grand Monday evening. It is said that much that is wholesome in the farce comedy field has been packed into two hours and a half of invigorating fun, centering about the actions of those two comical fellows, Chas. A. Lober and John McMahon, and a company of twenty artists. What is not at all usual in such productions, "Who is Who," contains a plot, and one that keeps a lady's wits on the qui vive from point to point as his scouts warn him of the movements of a tireless foe.

The story is of a young lawyer who forms a partnership with a notorious person whom he calls Nemo. The perplexities and complications then center about Nemo. The action is fast and genuinely funny and is said to be as gingery and effective as wine of ten years' vintage. Interpolated, not obtruding are high class specialties and catchy musical numbers.

LARGE FRUIT GROWER DEAD.

Edward Borrowman, the well-known Amherstburg fruit grower, passed away suddenly Sunday. He had been in ill health for some time, but much improved, Sunday morning he ate a hearty breakfast, and appeared in the best of health, but shortly afterwards he was taken ill and expired before night in awful agony. Mr. Borrowman was a young man, and resided with his father and one sister, Miss E. L. Borrowman. He was well known throughout the county of Essex, and he had one of the finest farms in Western Ontario. Mrs. S. S. Kollage, of this city, and G. S. Smith Borrowman, of Merida, are cousins. The funeral took place on Tuesday.
