CHAPTER XXVI.

All the county was in a state of excitement over the "Lynne Court Murder," but Ralph, in his prison cell, was calm enough. How could he be otherwise with Veronica's example before him and with the consciousness of his innocence to uphold him?

Mr. Saintsbury had engaged Mr. Selby, the sharpest lawyer in the district, and he had an interview with Ralph a few minutes before the examination.

"I may as well say at once that I am sure you are not guilty, Mr. Farrington," he said; "but I ought to point out to you that the evidence is very strong. It was most unfortunate that you should have dropped your knife on that particular night, and more unfortunate still that you should have been seen with deceased and been heard quarrelling with him."

"Not quarrelling," said Ralph. "Besides, one does not stab the man one happens to have a few words with; and if I had done so I should scarcely have been such an idiot as to bury him! I could have said that he was poisoning and that I killed him in a fair fight!"

The door opened as he was speaking and Mr. Whetstone and Burchett entered. Ralph turned swiftly to meet the latter and held out his hand, then paused and drew it back. Mr. Burchett seized it and rung it, resigning it to Mr. Whetstone reluctantly. Mr. Selby looked on keenly.

"You two evidently share my belief in his innocence," he said.

"Yes, Mr. Selby," said Whetstone, with quiet confidence; while Burchett did not think it necessary to speak. "I came to see if I could do anything; but you are here, and all that can be done will be, I know."

Mr. Selby nodded.

"Burchett, whom do you suspect?" he said, sharply.

Burchett shook his head.

Rheumatism Goes Quickly its Virus Forever Destroyed.

EVERY CASE IS CURABLE.

Good-bye to Rheumatism! Your aching joints, your stiff, sore muscles, those sleepless nights and suffering days—good-bye forever—your day is gone.

Sufferer, cheer up, and read the good news below.

"A man met me a month ago, and said, 'don't stay crippled, quit complaining, limber up.' My answer was, 'I'm rheumatic, I can't do it.' He looked me over in a pitying sort of way and told me to go to the nearest drug store for Nerviline and Ferronez. The combination had cured him. I was convinced of his sincerity and followed his instructions. I rubbed on Nerviline three times every day—rubbed it right into my aching joints. The pain quickly lessened, and I became more limber and active. To draw the virus of the disease from my blood I took two Ferronez Tablets with every meal. I am well today, not an ache, not a pain and no sign of stiffness at all."

What Nerviline can do in a case like this it can do for you too. For nearly forty years Nerviline has been recommended for Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica and Lame Back. It is the one remedy that never disappoints.

"I don't know, sir; I know nothing of the man."

"He must have had an enemy," said Mr. Selby. "One of his own class, no doubt; and a bitter enemy, too, for we Englishmen don't use the knife readily. We must find out who his associates were. Meanwhile, you friends of Mr. Farrington's must cheer him up!"

He said "Mr." Farrington, for Ralph in the dark serge suit which he had had made—his old clothes had been ruined in the fire—looked "ridiculously like a gentleman," as Mr. Selby remarked afterwards; and it was difficult for him to remember that his client was only a gamekeeper.

"We will do our best, Mr. Selby," said Whetstone. "I was prepossessed in his favor the first time I saw him—"

Mr. Selby nodded and glanced at the handsome face, rendered still more refined and aristocratic by his illness.

"Not only that," said Mr. Whetstone, who understood the glance, "but because of a likeness to—to one who was very dear to me."

He drew a miniature from his breast pocket, looked at it and sighed, and handed it to Mr. Selby.

The lawyer took it and examined it. "A sweet face," he remarked, then passed it to Ralph.

Ralph looked at it, then started the others by a sudden cry.

"It is my mother."

Whetstone's hand went to his heart and he caught his breath.

"I was right!" he murmured, in great agitation.

Burchett went pale.

"Your mother!" exclaimed Mr. Selby, sharply. "Let me see!" He took it from Ralph's reluctant hand and looked from him to the miniature keenly. "Yes! I see the likeness. Who was she? Ah, I remember! Janet Burchett!"

Ralph uttered a cry and stood gazing from one to the other.

Whetstone groaned and went to him, but Ralph put out a hand to keep him off. At such moments the soul craves for solitude, not sympathy.

"Leave him to me. I'll take care of this portrait," whispered Mr. Selby, and Whetstone and Burchett stole out.

"Now, Farrington, be a man!" said the lawyer, gravely. "I remember your mother—she was more sinned against than sinning—"

To his amazement Ralph turned on him with anger and indignation.

"What do you mean?" he said. "Do you dare to cast a doubt—to hint—!" He fought with the passion of resentment and went on more gently. "Mr. Selby, there is some mistake. Burchett—told me the story of my mother's flight—if she was Janet Burchett—but she was married. I am her lawful son."

Mr. Selby looked at him keenly.

"You have proofs—certificates—"

"Now, who is this?" he broke off, irritably.

The turnkey admitted Mr. Saintsbury and Veronica; the governor had given the accused permission to receive any visitors.

"Oh, it's you, Mr. Saintsbury! Good-morning, Miss Gresham," Mr. Selby continued more amiably. "I am glad you have come. We have made a discovery which may be of some importance." He waited until the two young people had exchanged greetings: Veronica, with the love that maketh not ashamed, had gone up to Ralph and kissed him. "Now, Mr. Farrington, time presses; the proofs, the certificate of the marriage and your birth, you have them, of course,"

Ralph shook his head.

"No," he said, quietly. "They were lost."

In a few words he told the story of his mother's death and the absence of the certificates.

Mr. Selby listened intently, but before he could say anything, Mr. Saintsbury, who had been looking at the miniature which Selby had handed him, broke in agitatedly:

"Hahn!—hadn't we better leave them alone?—the time is short—I want a word with you, Mr. Selby."

They went outside, and Mr. Saintsbury, still struggling with his agitation, caught the lawyer by the arm, and, drawing him down the corridor, addressed him in a hurried whisper.

"Great Heaven!" exclaimed Mr. Selby, for once startled out of his professional calm. "It isn't possible!"

"It is! I am not mistaken, I cannot be! I noticed the likeness, though I did not trace it at the time; but this miniature— what is to be done?"

"Go to the earl!" replied Mr. Selby, sharply. "Go at once! There is just time. My dog-cart is just outside. I will wait and go to the court-house with Mr. Farrington! Heaven and earth, if it should be true! I cannot realize it!"

"Give me the portrait!" exclaimed Mr. Saintsbury, and, snatching it from Mr. Selby's hand, he ran down the stairs.

The earl was just starting for the court-house when the dog-cart drove up. He changed color as Mr. Saintsbury was admitted.

"George!" he cried, and held out his hand. "You back in England! But what is the matter?"

"I've— I've terrible news! And yet— sit down, Lynborough, and for God's sake, keep calm!"

"You do not set me a very good example!" retorted the earl. "Now, what is it?"

Mr. Saintsbury sank into a chair and wiped his forehead.

"I can't break it to you—there is no time," he said, painfully. "Lynborough, you remember your marriage?"

"Am I likely to forget it?" was the stern rejoinder.

"Your wife—that sweet girl—why did she leave you?"

"Because I soon grew tired of her, and a little ashamed—and she discovered it," was the calm reply.

"Where—where did she go?"

"To Australia, I believe. It does not matter. She died."

"Died!"

"Yes; I received news of her death three months later. I have suffered remorse every month, every day since. She died because she had found out that I was ashamed of having married her. She was a good woman and—and sacrificed herself for me. She had kept the secret of our marriage—not even to her own people, to Burchett, to Whetstone, did she disclose the fact—that she was—the Countess of Lynborough. Can you wonder at my remorse?"

"She was alive; she did not die!" said Saintsbury.

"I cannot think that is true," said the earl, hoarsely.

"It is. I saw her. Out there in Australia. She thought you dead and had married again. She must have read the announcement of Lynborough of Haven's death and mistaken it for yours."

"You—you saw her? When—how long?" gasped the earl.

"Five years after the marriage. Her husband, the second one, had deserted her, but she was not alone."

"Not alone? Who—what do you mean? A—child?"

Saintsbury's lips moved for a moment inaudibly, then he said, huskily:

"Yes—a boy. Your son!"

The earl sprang to his feet, his face livid.

"My—my son! My son!" he echoed, as if he were choking. "Where—where is he? Ah, I see! You are going to tell me he is dead, Saintsbury!"

"No, he is alive! I have seen him."

The earl strode forward with the step of a young man and caught Saintsbury's arm.

"Take me to him—bring him to me!" he cried, almost fiercely.

"I—I cannot—at present," stammered Saintsbury.

A knock came at the door and the butler entered.

"The carriage, my lord—I beg your lordship's pardon, but I fear your lordship will be late."

The earl passed his hand across his brow with a bewildered gaze. Talbot stood in the doorway, and the earl looked at him with a strange expression.

"I—I would like a glass of wine," said Mr. Saintsbury; but it was of the stricken old man he was thinking, and he poured out a glass for him.

The earl understood and, with a slight inclination of his head, drank the wine.

"We must go now; I cannot wait!" he said, hoarsely. "After the examination—you must tell me all!"

Saintsbury did not know what to do, and could only stand and watch the old man as, leaning on Talbot's arm, he went out to the carriage.

The court was crammed, but the earl got in by the magistrate's entrance and took his place on the bench. As he did so he looked towards the dock, and his and the prisoner's eyes met. The old man started and gazed long and steadily at Ralph's pale but calm face. Then his eyes dropped to Veronica, who sat just beneath the dock. She met the glance sadly, and the tears rose to her eyes, but she turned them to Ralph swiftly and kept them there while Grey gave his evidence. A murmur ran round the Court as he unfolded as much of the case as was necessary. Already it seemed as if the prisoner's guilt were proven. The knife, the quarrel, his unexplained flight that night! They turned to Mr. Selby eagerly, but almost pityingly, for what defense had he?

1000-9999.—A GOOD DRESS FOR BUSINESS OR GENERAL WEAR.

This illustrates a charming Blouse style, combined with a good serviceable skirt model, both equally desirable in gown effect, or made for separate wear. As here shown white drill was employed, with a finish of simple stitching. The blouse may be finished with long or short sleeve. The yoke and sleeve is combined. The skirt has a narrow front panel or insert, and is plaited over the front panel and back. The Waist (or Blouse) Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The Skirt in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires 6 yards of 40 inch material for a 36 inch size, for the entire dress. The Skirt measures 1-1/3 yards at the lower edge. This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. for each pattern in silver or stamps.

1017.—A GROUP OF STYLISH COLLARS.

These models are smart and up-to-date. They are suitable for any of the prevailing dress or lingerie materials. No. 1, would be pretty in cool, dotted net or in batiste or lawn. No. 2 is very appropriate for pique or linen. No. 3 could be made of cloth, silk or velvet. No. 4 is also good for such fabrics. The Pattern includes all styles illustrated, and requires for No. 1, 3/4 yard, for No. 2, 3/4 yard, for No. 3, 3/4 yard and for No. 4, 3/4 yard of 24 inch material for a Medium size. It is cut in 3 sizes: Small, Medium and Large.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

NE.—Be sure to cut out the illustration and send with the coupon, carefully filled out. The pattern can not reach you in less than 15 days. Price 10c. each, in cash, postal note, or stamps. Address: Telegram Pattern Department.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, July 29.
 The Chronicle's correspondent at Semlin, telegraphing on Tuesday, says that there have been no active hostilities between Serbia and Austria beyond the frontier river patrol. The last foreign residents at Belgrade, he says, have just crossed the river in a steamer flying the Russian flag. Meanwhile the Serbian army gives no sign of life, and no trace can be found of any such army, searching parties having been unable to locate the elusive Serbs. It seems as if the campaign is to be carried on under revised war rules, of hide and seek. Belgrade is now at the mercy of the enemy.

PARIS, July 29.
 The French Government and people appear to be quietly preparing for war. The Government is simply awaiting the decision of Russia. Troops and trains are ready; representatives and army are on duty; telegraphs, telephones and post offices are active. The average citizen reads of what is transpiring, in his newspaper, the general instructions concerning mobilizing, but he has long had orders instructing him precisely when and where to report for service. Large posters on bulletin boards at the post offices, city halls and other public buildings will apprise him exactly at what hour his instructions are to become effective. The Cabinet met late this afternoon and received reports from the Ministers. If any decisions have been taken they have been kept closely guarded. According to what is believed to be responsible opinion, there remains the possibility that when Austria has occupied some Serbian territory she will in a day or two announce her intention not to proceed further, but to hold what she has taken until Serbia gives competent guarantees that she will observe Austria's wishes. Russia would not then be likely to intervene, it is argued, except diplomatically. Negotiations appear to be going on at the present time between Austria and Russia.

OTTAWA, July 29.
 H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, the Duchess and Princess Patricia, narrowly escaped drowning last Saturday. Two motor boats, on which they were passengers on the Lake of the Woods at Kenora, struck floating logs with such speed that holes were driven through their tin sheeting. The boats began to fill. Other boats dashed to the rescue, and succeeded in taking the Governor-General, his family and suite off the boats, just before they sank.

LONDON, July 29.
 Reports of the massing of armies in strategic positions came from all parts of Europe to-day, but no actual clashes are registered. Diplomats have concentrated their attention on efforts to confine the war to Austria and Serbia. The attitude of the German and Russian Emperors has been closely watched. It is learned that telegrams have been exchanged between them. Attention has been strained to obtain the nature of their contents, but it was the general conviction that the salvation of Europe from a great and calamitous war was in the hands of these two monarchs. Prime Minister Asquith referred to the international situation in the House of Commons, but all the information that he was able to impart was contained in a few words. He said the situation was one of extreme gravity. "I can only say that the British Government is not relaxing its efforts to do everything in its power to circumscribe the area of the conflict." In reply to a question, the Premier said, that the British Government had received no information as to an alleged revolutionary outbreak in Russian Poland. The British Chancellor of the Exchequer made the tranquillizing statement in the Commons, that the Bank of England saw nothing in the present financial situation to make it necessary to call a meeting of bankers to deal with it.

While the Cabinet was in session, it was learned that the Austrian Government had notified the British Foreign Office that no further consideration would be given to the proposal for an ambassadorial conference. This was the sharpest rebuff the British diplomacy has ever received in its relations with other European Powers. It will not lessen England's efforts to divert the catastrophe, however. The conversations will be continued with the purpose of localizing the Balkan conflict.

PORTLAND, July 29.
 The first British fleet sailed to-day, under strict orders from the Admiralty. Its destination is believed to be the North Sea. All patients were removed from the ship's hospitals before the fleet's departure. Admiral Callaghan is in command.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.
 Russian officials believe that their country will be at war within a short time. Prince Trubetzkoy, chief of the near eastern division at the Foreign Office, said to-day, that the situation had reached the most dangerous point. It is known that all the members of the Crown Council have advised the Czar to prepare for war.

LONDON, July 29.
 The seriousness of the European situation was reflected to-day on the London stock exchange, where British Consols dropped at one time to 69½, the lowest point reached since the early years of last century. They opened at 71, or ¾ below yesterday's close. Soon afterward they dropped to 70½, and then lost a full point, bringing them down to 69½.

LONDON, July 29.
 The Times urges the Government to exclude Tyrone and Fermanagh from the Home Rule Bill, on the distinct understanding that such arrangement be devised to meet temporary exigencies, adding: "It is imperative to patch up our domestic differences without delay in order to strengthen Britain in Europe. A general election as a remedy for the Irish difficulty is out of the question when the great Powers are burnishing their armor." With equal candour the Times admits that it prefers Sir Edward Grey to continue at the Foreign Office. "Mere postponement of the Irish Bill will not suffice after Sunday's events," continues the Times. "Whatever is done must be tangible and concrete. If Asquith would take the statesmanlike step of including in the Amending Bill the exclusion of the six counties, he would probably relieve Ireland from the immediate risk of strife, and have the nation at his back, during the troublous time ahead."

 There will be three commands of the Naval Militia, one for the Pacific, one for the Atlantic, and the third for the Great Lakes. It is planned to entrust each to a competent officer from the British service. It is expected that within a year there will be 2,000 men enrolled, to be trained as Navy Militia men.

Kyle Coming South.

The Reid Newfoundland Company received a message from Capt. Parsons of the Kyle yesterday saying that the ship had left Double Island at 8 a.m. coming South. The steamer has a large number of passengers on board for northern Labrador who will be transferred to the Sagana when the ships meet, though it is likely that the latter ship will also be delayed at Double Island, as the blockade still continues.

Picnic at the Poor Asylum.

Yesterday afternoon the inmates of the Poor Asylum were entertained by the George St. Epworth League, under the able direction of the President, Mr. H. Whiteway; and as this is the only event of its kind during the summer months, was thoroughly enjoyed by the poor creatures, who showed as best they could their appreciation and thankfulness to the League for breaking the monotony of their lives. Those too ill to be entertained on the grounds were well cared for in the institution. An excellent tea prepared by the young ladies, was served at 5.30, and after all had been fed they were assembled together for a concert prepared by the Programme Committee. An instrumental solo was well rendered by Miss M. Christian; also instrumental duet by Messrs. Mew and Clariage. The soloists were Mrs. Cockerham, Miss Thompson, Mr. Piggott and Mr. Mew. A comic reading was given by Miss Jean Campbell, recitation by Miss S. Pike, and also a comic sketch by Misses S. Butler, C. Parsons and E. Jolliffe. The singing of the National Anthem and distribution of bags of candy brought the evening to a close; and although this is an annual affair of the League, yesterday's picnic was the best yet.—Com.

Wedding Bells.

MILLER-DUFFETT.
 The marriage of Mr. Frank Miller, Purser of the s.s. Prospero, and Miss Lilian Duffett, a popular young lady of the city, was celebrated at the C. E. Cathedral yesterday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Brinton. The bride, who was handsomely dressed, entered the church leaning on the arm of her brother, who gave her away, and was attended by her sister, Miss Eva Duffett, and Miss Clara Miller, the groom's sister. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Jack Miller. A reception was held after the ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents, after which the bridal party left on the s.s. Prospero, which was dressed with bunting, for the northward to spend their honeymoon. The Telegram unites in extending congratulations and wishes Mr. and Mrs. Miller an unclouded future.

WIRE WOUNDS.

My mare, a very valuable one, was badly bruised and cut by being caught in a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, applied at first, then stronger as the sores began to look better, until after three weeks, the sores have healed, and best of all, the hair is growing well, and is NOT WHITE as is most always the case in horse wounds.

To-Night's Match.

The Collegians and Saints will try conclusions in this evening's football match. The teams will be:—
 Saints—Ross, goal; Dick, Barnes, backs; Irvine, McKinley, Foster, halves; Ferguson, Munn, Bastow, Evans, forwards.
 Collegians—Quick, goal; Ayre, Barrett, backs; E. Barnes, Pike, H. Barnes, halves; Maddock, Noonan, Hutchings, Smallwood, Fenwick, forwards.

Divorced Life
 by Helen Hessong Fuesler
 Plain Talk About Popular Fiction

"Have a little drink?" asked Shurtleft, the publisher, when they had been shown to a table in one of Broadway's popular-priced cafes.
 "No, thank you," answered Marian.
 "Nonsense," objected the other. "A little cocktail won't hurt you. Why, I don't think there's a woman in town who writes and who doesn't dally a trifle with the cheering stuff now and then. They're all good scouts, good Bohemians, you know. I want to introduce you to some of the bunch. I'll arrange to have you invited to a little party one of these days. Waiter, bring a couple of Dubonnet cocktails, and hurry them along."

Marian's objections to an appetizer, overridden by the suave-tongued publisher who had expressed his desire to encourage young writers, vanished, and a little later she was shipping the mild, not unpleasant drink. It sent the blood dancing through her body.
 Listening to her companion's rapid sentences, she felt that at last she had broken in, that at last she had begun to find her place in the rushing currents and cross-currents of the city's life.

"I don't know how familiar you are with the sort of stuff we publish in the magazine," continued the publisher.
 "Better run over three or four copies rather carefully and get a line on our policy. We don't care a rap for any of this prudish stuff. We want stories about real life, real people. Some think that the sex story has been done to death, but I can't see it. Bill Reedy, out in St. Louis, says it's still striking sex o'clock, and he's right.
 Magazine readers will always have a sort of curiosity about that sort of thing, and, as long as it goes, have no objection to feeding it to them. Nothing too raw of course; but something a trifle suggestive now and then, if cleverly handled, goes with a bang.
 I'm talking to you frankly, Miss Winthrop, because I want to give you an idea of what the dear public will fall for. A publisher has got to keep his eye on the public and hand 'em what they want."

With a feeling of revulsion Marian shrunk from the other's language.
 She despised the sort of thing he described. She had never been able to see any justification in printing that kind of stories.
 "A new slant on the old triangle plot always gets by, if cleverly done," the publisher continued. "There are enough divorcees and women who expect to be divorcees before long in this country, to make a good divorce story a rattling seller on the news stands. Try your hand at it, why don't you?"

 "I should think you'd hate to poison
 the minds of your readers with stuff like that," she replied.
 "Lord, you're a regular little prude, aren't you?" rejoined the publisher.
 He smiled at her through narrowed eyelids.
 "Not at all," returned Marian, disclaiming the characterization. "But should think you'd prefer to appeal to people's best, instead of worst, instincts."
 "The Cheering Hour could hardly be called a Sunday School publication," said the publisher. "I haven't got the money to try to make Americans a race of angels. I'm leaving that to the philanthropists. My policy is to give people what they want.
 I'll cater to the morbid curiosity as long as it pays. Why not?" he added in a tone that indicated a vague mental search for justification for his policy. "Try your hand at it," he repeated. "If you can turn out the stuff we want, we can do business."

"I'll try," Marian steeled herself to answer, without realizing at the time that scores of American hack-writers write the sort of thing they hate for the sole reason that they can sell it, and because they need the money desperately.

"I don't know how familiar you are with the sort of stuff we publish,"

Dear Sir,

We beg to draw your attention to the advantages offered, both in the way of security and privacy, by our Safety Deposit system which has recently been installed in our vault. The system is the most modern and complete that is known, and is deposited in a vault of exceptional strength and safety. The boxes are individual and can only be opened with the joint aid of the key in the possession of the Company and of that in the custody of the customer. They are of solid metal and are arranged in nests of fifty, so that no box can be removed from the vault separately from the rest.

The boxes are rented at $4.00, $5.00 up to $20.00 a year, according to size.

An inspection of the installation is invited.

A Case For The Jury.

By RUTH CAMERON.

If a merchant should insist upon presenting you with an article which you wanted and then some time later should present you with a bill charging a larger sum than you originally offered him, you would be pretty indignant wouldn't you?

You say you cannot imagine a merchant doing such a thing. No, neither can I. Yet that is practically a description of the trick which friends often play upon each other.

The other day I heard a woman complaining bitterly because a friend of hers was not willing to take her little daughter into her home while she was absent on a two weeks' trip. "Oh, yes, Louise said she would do it," she complained, "but I could see she didn't want to, and I certainly shan't force her to. I wouldn't have Dorothy stay where she wasn't wanted for anything. But I must say I never saw such ingratitude. Why, when she was married, I marked half of her linen for her. I did two tablecloths and two dozen napkins, and I don't know how many towels. I worked half one summer on them. Well, there's no use expecting gratitude in this world."

Now if I had not heard the other side of the case I might have been horrified by the ingratitude displayed, but, as it happened, I had heard the defendant's case, and here it is.

The plaintiff offered to mark the linen in question. The defendant thanked her but said she wished she would let her pay for the work. The plaintiff absolutely refused, and the defendant reluctantly accepted the favor. A few months later, however, the plaintiff demanded as pay that the defendant should take charge of her little girl for two weeks.

Now if the little girl had been an ordinary child, the defendant might have been willing, but Dorothy is an extremely delicate child, always subject to sudden spasms, and the responsibility appalled the defendant who is not used to children. And it was because she could not hide this feeling that the plaintiff haughtily withdrew her request and began to inveigh about the uselessness of expecting gratitude in this world.

Now if we are cold blooded enough to translate the two favors into cold cash, we find that the embroidery could have been hired for six or seven dollars, whereas board and a nursemaid's services for the child for two weeks would certainly have cost fifteen or eighteen dollars.

Moreover, the defendant would rather have paid outright for the work at double its value than have accepted the responsibility of caring for a sickly child.

Should she not have the right to choose how she should repay without receiving the stigma of ingratitude?

And now that both sides of the case have been presented I leave it to you, the jury, to decide, was the plaintiff unjust or the defendant ungrateful?

Ponderous Personages

ROBESPIERRE.

By GEORGE FITCH

Author of "At Good Old Slawsh"
Robespierre was a French lawyer with exemplary habits, a good reputation and a long slanting forehead, who lived in the provinces and got into politics just before the French revolution.

Robespierre was noted as a debater and writer in his native province and was a devoted patriot, having only the good of his country at heart. This teaches us that men with narrow, slanting brows, insufficiently equipped on the inside should not be allowed to monkey with patriotism or other dangerous explosives. For Robespierre made his patriotism more fatal than tyranny had ever been.

Those were very troubled days in France and after the King had been safely fled away in prison and most of the nobility had been chased over the border, the common people began to discuss the best way of ruling themselves. There were a great many varying opinions, supported by different parties and the common people in their ignorance could only follow the example of the educated and ruling class which had just been eradicated. One after another the various contending parties butchered each other and when hand work with the executioner's axe became too slow and tedious the guillotine was invented.

Gradually the contending parties went out of business until only Robespierre and his associates were left. In his younger days Robespierre had resigned from the bench rather than sentence a criminal to death, but now his patriotism persuaded him that the fewer politicians there were in France the better for the state. He therefore increased and improved the Reign of Terror until the only way a Frenchman could prove his loyalty was by denouncing some other citizen, and Paris became boggy with blood.

Robespierre went on executing people from the purest patriotic motives until it became evident to all that if he continued France would become purified but unpopulated. He was therefore denounced in the Convention and executed himself—but not until he had given the French revolution a record of barbarity which will stain it forever.

Robespierre was like many another good but chicken-headed man, who is Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland. ap17.2

induced from motives of purest honor to jump in on the wrong side and do the dirty work for a whole villainous movement. If he had not been so incorruptible he would have been bounced long before and the guillotine would have gone out of business a year sooner.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected. An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

Groom Shot Dead By Girl's Father.

Havrestraw, N.Y., July 24.—In his cell in the county jail at New City, where he was taken after he had shot and killed Eugene B. Newman, his 19-year-old son-in-law, William V. Cleary, prominent in county politics, and for fourteen years Town Clerk, refused to-day to discuss the murder or tell why he shot the young man, son of one of the owners of the Rockland County Messenger, who secretly married Cleary's 13-year-old daughter, Anna Cleary, on last Saturday in Weehawken, N.J. Yesterday the couple confided in their respective mothers, and Newman was advised to tell Cleary and asked his forgiveness. It was while on this mission that Newman was shot. He entered the town clerk's office where Cleary was talking with three friends, Bernard Fox, a brewery agent, patrolman Sheridan and Josiah Gelter, county supervisor.

Newman extended his hand and asked for Cleary's blessing. Cleary, with hardly a word, and before his friends could interfere, fired four bullets into the young man's body. Newman died instantly, and Cleary shortly afterwards surrendered himself to the authorities.

Newman and Anna Cleary had been sweethearts from their first meeting six years ago. It was an established thing in the village that Newman was to marry Anna. His parents did not object, and Cleary, himself, never showed any bitter opposition, although, it is said, he did not look upon it with favor.

Fads and Fashions.

The "petal hem" is one of prettiest features of the present taffeta tunics. The long sash end is extremely popular. It is made of wide soft chiffon velvet, usually black, and is tied in a fussy bow at the back. Used in vivid color on a black and white frock, it is delightful.

The best colors just now are warm browns, deep, strong blues, stone, beige and bright green.

Bows and braces abound on the new gowns.

The flat cockade is a favorite form of decoration on the small high-crowned hats.

"Take care of the tunic and the silhouette will take care of itself," is the new form of an old saying.

Even the most practical blue serge walking costumes show the tunic.

With the collar trottier costume the perfect cloth is of fine muslin, or transparent cambric.

The little pleated frills of muslin that fall down the backs of some blouses are very quaint and attractive.

A severe, or at least, a simple hat should always be chosen to wear with tailor-made costumes.

A great success is the long silk cascade, beautifully gathered with many little stitches and worn loosely over a skirt so narrow as to seem like a trouser leg.

Plaid is always better worn by the young than by people of mature years.

A tiny tricorn of black straw is delightfully finished with a big pink camellia tulle in front.

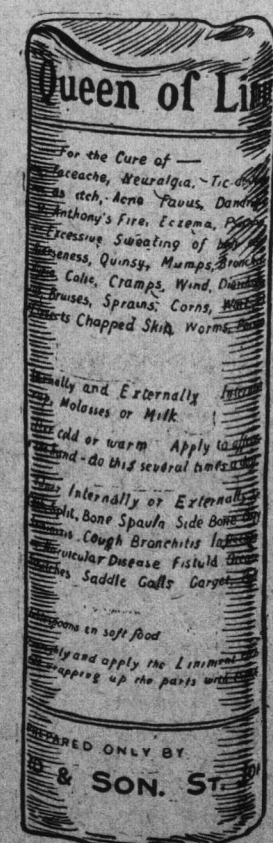

Pretty toilettes of pale mousseline or gauze have large sashes of antique materials.

The little "abbe" capes are exceedingly popular, and the latest have thick tulle ruffles at the back of the neck.

Looseness and more looseness is the dominant note of the new blouses.

The Gladstone collar is a plain stand-up collar of muslin, open at the throat.

DAINTY DESKS

for

"My Lady's Room."

NEVER was furniture of any kind, or at any period, more beautiful, comfortable, thoroughly attractive and well-made, or more eminently adapted to its own special use, than is the furniture of to-day. This is remarkably noticeable in some of the elegant articles that are made for the refined woman's use. We are showing examples in the handsome Writing Desks for Ladies we have on view this week.

These Desks are specially designed for daintiness and comfort, they are of Bird's-eye Maple, Mahogany, Circassian Walnut, Quartered, Fumed and Weathered Oak, also in early English finish; all have chairs en suite.

These Desks are suitable for drawing-room, boudoir, or sitting-room, in fact, used in any room they make writing a pleasure.

Dear Sir Walter—
Just a line before starting for the West to thank you for your very kind letter and enclosures received last night. I am happy to know that my visit was a success and gave pleasure to the people of Newfoundland. To me it was both interesting and agreeable and I will always look back to it with the greatest pleasure.

With many messages to you and Lady Davidson.
Believe me,
Yours very sincerely,

Regatta Notes.

This day week the story of the big event will be told and everybody will know the winning crews.

The scene at the lakeside last evening has created new interest amongst the hundreds who assembled on the green. The keen rivalry amongst the crews made many "has-beens" recall old-time Regattas, whilst the timing of the boats and the erection of tents, swinging stands, etc., aroused much enthusiasm.

These timing their favorite boats allowed a few seconds grace with the result that not a few heated discussions occurred and quite a bit of money exchanged hands. But the cute man with the stop-watch acts like a referee and avoids the scrimmage. He stays to his "lonesome" on the bank and doesn't do any betting until Regatta Day, when he scoops in the scoops in the "dough."

Some of the scrupulous oarsmen have placed an improved buoy at the foot of the pond. The crowd are not in favor of it.

The work of erecting two public conveniences commenced yesterday. They are being put up in very conspicuous places and are a great convenience and an eye-sore to the public. Perhaps, as some one suggested, the space between the committee tent and the band stand could be utilized for the erection of another such convenience.

The Amateur race is being boosted up more than any other. It promises to be the hardest fought and prettiest race on record.

There were four crews of Tradesmen out last evening. There was a strapping crew out in the Shamrock, and Billy O'Rourke, who is the stroke-man, says that he'll make a dandy race of it. You could hear Joe Boone telling George Chislet and his associates to pull for all they were worth. The opinion of the crowd is that the Nellie R. will win the race.

Five factory crews are practising as hard as they can.

It is more than likely that the T. A. Society of Torbay will be represented in the Society race.

There are only a few days left and crews should practice as often as they can.

This evening the new racer will be put on the Lake.

To-morrow evening the Regatta Committee will meet at the T. A. Armoury when all crews are requested to enter.

Personal.

Rev. Dr. Waddy Mors, Professor of Theology at Didsbury College, has been elected President of the British Wesleyan Conference for 1915.

Rev. M. J. Ryan, D.D., of St. Augustine's Seminary, is a passenger on the express due this evening.

Mr. Thomas Cantley, President and Managing Director of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, who has a world-wide reputation as a business man, was a guest at Government House last night.

Rev. N. M. Guy, M.A., the new pastor of George Street Methodist Church, is due by to-day's express from Grand Falls, where he was stationed for several years.

Hon. E. H. Armstrong, Commissioner of Public Works and Mines for Nova Scotia, is now on his maiden visit to the city. He is a representative for Yarmouth in the Assembly and a member of the Murray Cabinet.

Marine Notes.

The s.s. Digby reached Liverpool yesterday afternoon. She leaves there again on Saturday for this port.

The Canadian Government steamer Earl Grey sailed yesterday for Sydney and Montreal.

The R. M. S. Carthaginian is due here Sunday from Liverpool.

The s.s. Morwenna is now due from Montreal and Gulf ports.

Don't allow dirt to become ingrained in hands and nails. If you have rough work to do, wear gloves as much as possible. Rub lemon and glycerine well into the hands before washing them after washing up greasy dishes.

Christy Mathewson.

It's curving and twisty, the pitching of Christy. It bothers the artists who stand at the plate; the idol of fandom never pitches at random, he uses his brains and he keeps them on straight. The outlook is misty for men facing Christy, and teams hunting pennants get goose eggs instead; for Christy, the clinker, is student and thinker; he uses his forepaw and also his head. The blue ribbon's his'n—you see how he's risen—his fame has extended from Rutland to Rome; he is the Old Master, who dodges disaster, because when he's working he uses his dome. "Phenoms" we've plenty; we've eighteen or twenty, each season, dispensing a big line of talk; but Christy the clever, is with us forever, because he's the pitcher who uses his block. We can't all be pitchers, for some must be ditchers, and others be farmers—whatever our jobs; we're sure to be rising to summits surprising, if always, when working, we're using our knobs.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

OUTLOOK WORSE.

The outlook is far worse to-day than it has been before. England suggested an ambassadorial conference to settle the difference between Austria and Serbia. Austria declined the suggestion curtly and her refusal was endorsed by Germany. Russia demanded of Austria that she give an assurance to respect the integrity of Serbia when finalizing matters with the latter, and also expressed the wish that Austria should not occupy Belgrade. Austria has turned down this suggestion also, in bombing and occupying Belgrade yesterday. It was not surprising then that diplomatic relations were broken off between Russia and Austria, as the Times announced this morning. How far Sir Edward Grey may succeed in limiting the combatants is now very doubtful. If Germany attacks Russia, France is bound to stand by her, and Britain cannot afford to permit Germany to smash the French Navy in her own interest. It is not surprising then to find that preparations are being pushed on rapidly to be in readiness for any event.

The seriousness of the outlook is shown by the sharp advance in wheat on the London Corn Exchange, the further drop in stocks on the Stock Exchange, and the advance on eight notes and the refusal to quote rates for time notes.

FRENCH CRUISER FRIANT CLEARING FOR ACTION.

Newfoundland Naval Reserves to Be Ready.

The French cruiser Friant, by orders from the French Admiralty, is now taking on board a full supply of Welsh steaming coal and will be cleared for action this afternoon. The Friant arrived in port this morning and the work of coaling was started immediately. She will move to the Dry Dock pier this afternoon where her masts will be taken down, her boats removed, and all superfluous rigging and other fixtures stored, so that the ship will be ready for action if necessary. She will sail from here as soon as possible and will likely proceed to French waters to await orders.

We also understand that the commanding officers of H. M. S. Calypso has been instructed by the Admiralty to have all the Reservists in readiness and within calling distance if their services are required. The total strength of the Reserve is about 600. This information may come as a surprise to many, but from the tenor of to-day's despatch from London, which contains the announcement made by the Times, that direct diplomatic intercourse between Austria and Russia has been suspended, these orders come as a natural sequence.

Without a doubt the odds are largely in favor of a big European war, in which practically all the Powers will be involved.

SAGONA SAILS.—The s.s. Sagona, Capt. Kennedy, sailed on the Labrador route at 1 p.m. to-day, replacing the Invermore which was lost at Brig. Point.

GIRL RUN OVER.—Yesterday afternoon a girl was run over on Theatre Hill by a passing horse and vehicle and her head was badly crushed. She was attended by Dr. Fraser.

The express that left here on Tuesday afternoon became derailed about 4 miles west of Badger and as a result the Bruce is delayed at Port aux Basques, waiting for her arrival and the incoming express will not reach here until about 10 o'clock to-night. The train ran off at 11 a.m. yesterday and the company's men were employed until 8 a.m. to-day getting her on the track again. Fortunately no person was injured.

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS BROKEN OFF BETWEEN AUSTRIA AND RUSSIA.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day. A Times editorial on the war crisis says: "If France is menaced or the safety of the Belgian frontier which we guaranteed with France and Russia menaced, we shall know how to act. We can no more afford to see France crushed by Germany or the balance of power upset against France, than Germany can afford to see Austria-Hungary crushed by Russia. Upon that issue should it have to be determined by arms, our friends and our enemies will find that we think and act with one accord."

LONDON, To-day. According to the Times, direct diplomatic intercourse between Austria and Russia was suspended yesterday.

LONDON, To-day. A Vienna despatch to the Exchange Telegram Company says, after heavy bombardment by the Danube gunboats, Belgrade was occupied by Austrian troops on Wednesday.

LONDON, To-day. Prince Alexander of Teck, the new Governor-General of Canada, and Princess Alexander will sail on the Empress of Britain on October 16th for Quebec.

VIENNA, To-day. The war spirit in the Austrian capital is hourly increasing. The streets of Vienna last night were crowded with enthusiastic processions, and traffic brought to a standstill. The patriotic demonstrations surpassed in extent and fervor anything witnessed within memory.

BERLIN, To-day. The public are anxiously awaiting the result of the Cabinet Council, held last evening on the Austro-Serbian situation, but nothing transpired to relieve suspense. Information is also anxiously awaited concerning telegrams exchanged between Emperor William and Emperor Nicholas, but here, too, hopes were blasted. The public nevertheless still sees a glimmer of light in the interchange of telegrams itself. Meanwhile news continues to pour into Berlin regarding Russia's military measure. The French Embassy professes to have assurance from the German Government that Germany would not regard a Russian mobilization on the Austrian frontier as an absolute casus belli, but the situation undoubtedly is bad and the pessimism of bankers and the public justified.

A Civic Matter.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—By the wording of the order given concerning the connection of certain houses with the sewer, the burden is laid on the occupier to have the necessary work done, and in three months. Now it is manifest that if these people could afford to pay rent for houses already possessing this convenience they would not be in the houses they occupy now.

Consequently the finding of eighty or more dollars that this will cost is practically out of the question, and as one man said to me, he "would go down to the Pen first!" Not alone is it unreasonable on that score that the occupier should pay, but in these small houses there is no lease given when they are taken, the tenant remains from month to month and may give notice or be given notice at any time. Obviously then, the owner of the dwelling is the one on whom the burden should rest.

It may be a good time to talk over the question of the very heavy cost to install water, bath, sewage in the houses here. I understand that no work that is not done by a plumber will be passed by the Municipal authorities. If a handy man buys his bath and his basin and connects them up himself the work is disqualified by the Council. Behind this ruse there is undoubtedly a good reason, but the consequent protection it gives to plumbers is very apt to lead them to take advantage of it in "charging" just as high as they possibly can, so that while a man can import a bath basin and closet sufficiently good for an ordinary purpose for about fifty dollars (the additional labor being say $15.00), it is hardly possible to install these conveniences in a house under $120 at the least and in some cases up to $180.

If the Council must make the occupier pay for an improvement to a house which he doesn't own, then they must have some consideration as to where he is to get the money and what it will cost.

But the Council import the basin, baths, etc., employ a plumber on days' pay to fit them in the houses, and give a reasonable time (having regard to a man's circumstances) for payment. It is no more to do this than it is for them to import pipe to conduct the water to the houses. We are all so dreadfully afraid that this sort of thing is socialist—we would rather have the torches at midnight and let the town stink!

Inter-Town Cup.

The following are the conditions governing the competition for the inter-town baseball trophy.

1.—The Cup is presented for competition amongst teams representing any town or settlement in Newfoundland.

2.—All players in games for the cup shall be amateurs, and must be resident of the town or settlement which they represent for the three months immediately preceding the match in which they participate.

3.—All games for the cup shall take place in St. John's.

4.—Challenges for the cup shall be decided by a win of two games, of three to be played within one week. Each team shall have the right of one challenge only in a season, the team holding the cup from a previous year having the privilege of such a challenge in the event of losing the Cup.

5.—The team winning the cup shall hold it until lost in competition, or until forfeited by non-acceptance of a challenge. The trustees for the cup may require such security as they deem fit for the safe custody of the cup before same is handed over to a winning team.

6.—The names of all players shall be furnished the Trustees by the Manager or Secretaries of the competing teams at least one week before the date set down for the first game of the challenge series.

7.—The proceeds of all matches played for this cup shall be placed in a fund for the encouragement of inter-town baseball. This fund shall be under the control and disposal of the Trustees and shall be used by them as they see fit. In the event of a team outside St. John's being obliged to come there to defend the trophy the Trustees for the cup shall allow such percentage of the gate receipts as they deem advisable to the visiting team as a contribution to their expenses. In all other cases the Trustees shall exercise their own option.

8.—All games for the cup shall be played under the rules which for the time being govern competitions in the St. John's Amateur Baseball League.

9.—Messrs. J. O. Hawvermale, W. J. Higgins and Mark Chaplin are hereby appointed trustees for the cup. Said trustees shall have full power and authority to make all such regulations as they consider necessary for the proper conduct of competitions for the cup and for its safe custody, and they alone shall receive challenges for the trophy, and shall fix dates for the deciding of such challenge, or may alter, defer, or postpone any match or matches. The team holding the cup shall deliver it up to the Trustees at any time upon demand by them. The decision of any two of the Trustees shall be binding on the other, and in the event of a Trustee declining or refusing or being unable to act, the remaining Trustees shall have full power herein until the appointment of a successor by the donor of the Cup, or in his absence by the remaining Trustees. BY CABLE

Special to Evening Telegram.
PARIS, To-day.
The Temps says Russia officially informed Austria-Hungary of her expectation that she respect the territorial integrity Serbia, and wishes her even to abstain from occupying the Serbian Capital.

CHICAGO, July 29.
The war funds raised at anti-Austrian meetings here were counted today and held in readiness to be used for the transportation of Servians, Croatsians, Bohemians and other Slavs who wish to go to Europe to fight for Serbia. Currency pledges said to total more than $10,000, were raised at one meeting, for the benefit of the Serbian military hospital service. Intense feeling is shown against Austria. The double headed eagle emblem was torn from the walls and trampled. The Slavic colony here is estimated at more than fifty thousand.

LONDON, July 29.
The day's events brought no relief. The feeling to-night is distinctly more anxious than yesterday. The direct negotiations between Russia and Austria which gave other Governments a hope of compromise, have failed and ended in a Russian mobilization on the Austrian frontiers of four army corps in each of the 4 districts consisting of 1,280,000 men. Russia's resolve to stand by Serbia appears to be fixed. The Russian censor has approved of despatches declaring Russian sentiment is all for taking up arms. A manifesto by the Russian Emperor making his policy clear is expected hourly. Diplomatic representatives do not yet despair. They all say there is still hope. The fact that Germany, France, Britain and Italy, the two last named most of all, do not want war, and do not think the Austro-Serbian quarrel important enough to justify it.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.
In Russian eyes the die is cast. Only a political miracle can avert it. Russia does not swerve from her determination to support Serbia, and a partial mobilization has already been ordered. There is every indication that the whole vast military machinery of Russia soon will be set in motion. The Imperial manifesto is awaited to-night and should Emperor Nicholas become General of his forces an immense wave of enthusiasm will sweep over Russia. Political parties have sunk their differences and the general attitude is not jingoistic but one of resolve and confidence in the justice of the country's cause and readiness to make all sacrifices. The proposal, attributed to Austria, to discuss terms when Belgrade had been occupied is regarded as impossible, and it pointed out before the opening of hostilities Russia proposed to Austria a direct exchange of views which Austria rejected. St. Petersburg despatches pass the censor without reservation, a fact which is considered highly significant.

DUBLIN, July 29.
More than 20,000 persons standing berehheaded and silent in the street to-night witnessed the funeral procession of three persons killed last Sunday, when the King's Own Scottish Borderers fired into the mob during an attempt by the police and the soldiers to seize arms which were being brought into Dublin for the use of Nationalist volunteers. All shops were closed for the occasion. The procession which started from the cathedral, was a mile and a half long.

SHANGHAI, July 29.
The British far Eastern fleet are mobilizing at Waihai, Wai, North Coast Shan Tung Province; German fleet are mobilizing at Tsing Tao, about 200 miles South.

Cochrane St. Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Cochrane St. Sunday School was held at Topsail yesterday. A special train conveying the children and a number of friends numbering 400, left the depot at 10 o'clock. On arrival at the grounds, kindly placed at the disposal of the school by Mr. Thomas Allan, the usual games such as football, cricket, races, swinging, etc., were heartily indulged in until the cornet sounded calling all to the feast of good things provided by the caterer, Mr. F. B. Wood. Amongst the visiting clergymen present we noticed the Revs. G. Paine, J. Nurse, Dr. Fenwick and C. A. Whitemarsh, M.A. The committee wish to thank Judge Knight and Mr. J. W. Grant for candies supplied, the children, and Messrs. H. A. Bishop and G. Parsons for the use of their motor cars, taking the primary children to and from the station at Topsail, and also the Rev. Mr. Co. Return was made to the city at 9 o'clock after a very successful day's outing, which all seemed to have enjoyed. We congratulate the Superintendent of the school, the Hon. H. J. B. Woods, P.M.G., and all his co-workers who so ably assisted in making this picnic one of the best ever held in the history of the school.

The Protection of the Lobster Fishery.

AS VIEWED BY FRANCIS H. HERRICK, Ph.D., PROFESSOR OF BIOLOGY, ADELBERT COLLEGE, CLEVELAND, OHIO.

The period of egg-laying on the coast of the United States extends, as we have seen, over the months of July and August. If fishing in these months is closed the spawners are protected. This can be done, and would result in some good, but at either end the spawning females would be subjected to fire. First, there being no way to detect females which are ready to spawn, these would be killed in great numbers up to the beginning of the period; then, after the close in September, if egg lobsters were captured and the eggs removed and destroyed, the good which has been done would be partially neutralized.

Protection to the immature lobster by regulating the construction of traps, making the distance between the lower slats sufficiently great to let out all the lobsters except those of the legal size—10½ inches—is a measure which, if generally carried out, could not fail to be beneficial. The canning industry is undoubtedly responsible for a large share in the depletion of this fishery. It is operated in the spring, and for years has destroyed large numbers of immature lobsters and of mature females nearly ready to spawn. The canneries have been allowed to use smaller lobsters than those which are sent to market, and we are told that if further restricted they could not exist. Whether this is true or not I do not know, but it is surely folly to protect an animal in one direction and allow it to be destroyed in another.

We have now to speak of the artificial propagation of the lobster as a means of maintaining or increasing the supply. In 1893 I tried to point out some of the fundamental errors which rendered the methods of arti-

Not at all. It rather implies that the crab lays a smaller egg, has a longer larval period and is subject to far greater destruction by the elements of nature. In order to preserve its equilibrium, this expedient of producing a vastly greater number of eggs than can possibly survive has been tried in nature and has met with success. In the tapeworm we have an animal with individualized segments, capable of producing millions or even hundreds of millions of eggs, and yet it is comparatively rare, since the chances for survival of each of those millions of eggs is very light, for in order to live the embryo or larva must find its way by chance to the body of two particular and distinct vertebrates.

"This statement is erroneous in that eggs are laid only every other year."

In the course of the struggle for existence among animals and their evolution this chance of survival has been increased in other ways than by the multiplication of ova, as by a sexual reproduction seen in budding, or by acquisition of special habits or instincts. In the vegetable world we are even more familiar with the great destruction of seed; thus in the common elm, how many of the hundreds of thousands of seeds which annually fall to the ground from a single tree are ever raised to maturity?

Is it possible to determine the number of survivals in an animal like the lobster? We cannot fix a maximum limit beyond which we may be sure, reasoning from known facts, the number of survivals cannot pass. By survivals I mean the number of eggs which develop and grow up to maturity, for death, at whatever point occurring at this period, means evil to the species in exactly the same degree. In order to maintain the species at an equilibrium it is only necessary that each female produce two adults in the course of her life, whether it be long or short. Then there will be neither increase nor diminution, but the species will hold its own. If more than two adults are raised from the eggs of each female in a given period, then the species must increase; if less, it must diminish. Under present conditions it is generally agreed that the lobster is declining, which means that each adult female produces less than two sexually mature individuals to take the place of their parents.

Spawning lobsters may produce as few as 3,000 eggs and as many as 80,000 or 100,000, the number of eggs laid increasing very rapidly in proportion to the increase in size, according to the law given. While a 10-inch lobster produces on the average 10,000 eggs, a 12-inch lobster bears twice as many, and a 14-inch lobster nearly four times as many, or 40,000. Although sexually mature lobsters can produce eggs only once in two years, many live to hatch several broods and give rise to hundreds of thousands of young. Remembering that females become mature when from 8 to 12 inches long, to be on the safe side we may assume that on the average they mature at the length of 10 inches. A 10-inch lobster produces on the average about 10,000 eggs. Considering all the facts, it is erring on the safe side to assume that the average number of eggs produced by all lobsters which have spawned is 10,000. It is probably much greater than this. It cannot certainly be less. Since it is necessary that only two of this number should survive to maintain the species at an equilibrium, we can get some idea of the amount of destruction which is wrought under existing circumstances. A survival of two in 10,000 or one in 5,000 is probably even greater than actually occurs. The remainder of this large number must be destroyed in one of two ways, by nature and by man, who assist nature in this work after the young are able to be caught in his traps. It can make no difference in the result what the agent of this destruction is, whether it is the ocean current, the storm lashing the rock-bound coast, the codfish, or man, except in so far as the evil wrought by man may be under control. If we award to man one-half of the blame, this would imply that instead of a saving of two in 10,000, under nature there might be a survival of four. But such a survival would lead to a greater increase in the species than could probably ever occur.

What, then, is the ratio of the number of eggs laid to the number of young reared? Allowing that man does one-half of the work by destruction—which he certainly does not—and allowing an average total production of 10,000 eggs to each female that has spawned at all—undoubtedly too small a number—the species would be maintained under nature by a survival of two in every 10,000, or one in 5,000, if man did not interfere. A survival of four in every 10,000, or two in 5,000, would keep up the present stock with the added drain which man puts upon it. Considering that the fishery is declining, it can be maintained with a considerable degree of confidence that a survival of one in 5,000 is a very liberal allowance.

These considerations have a direct bearing upon the efficiency of the present methods of artificial propagation. The greatest number of lobsters artificially hatched and liberated in a single year in Newfoundland, Canada, and the United States, according to the official reports for 1894, was 702,288,000. This number of young at the rate of survival of one in 5,000 would yield 140,457 adults, while in a single year (1892) 68,000,000 lobsters have been captured in Canada alone. In order to put an equivalent number of lobsters back to make good this loss, not half or three-quarters of a billion should have been hatched, but 340,000,000,000 or something less than 500 times as many as were actually liberated. In this case man has attempted by working on a small scale to stem the tide of destruction, which nature working on such a vasty greater scale has been unable to do.

The conclusion which we reach is that too much has been expected from the present method of the artificial propagation of the lobster, and that it is totally inadequate to accomplish the task of restocking the depleted waters.

It may properly be asked of one who makes criticisms to suggest remedies, although he is not wholly responsible for the performance of this task. The following suggestions without further discussion seem to me to have a logical basis:

- (1) That the coasts of those States in which the lobster fishery is of sufficient importance be divided, after careful consideration, into a number of well-marked areas, and that fishing for this animal be closed in each alternate section for a period of five years; at the end of this time the open areas to be closed, and so on alternately.
- (2) That the legal limit be fixed at 10½ inches for the purposes and under all conditions.
- (3) That all traps be registered and marked, and that their construction be regulated by law so that the space between the lower two slats be sufficient to allow free passage to all lobsters under 10½ inches in length.
- (4) That the capture of berried lobsters be prohibited at all times. Though a law of this kind is sure to tion, which consist of stripping off the eggs from the berried female, hatching them, and liberating the young larvae into the sea. Nature does not confer any special favors upon the young lobster thus brought into the world. It is not a case of making two blades of grass grow where but one would have grown before. A delicate, helpless organism, one-fifth of an inch long, it must contend alone with the forces of the world into which it is cast, the ocean, on the surface of which it is destroyed by millions through the indiscriminate forces of nature—the tempest, the tide, the ocean current and wave-beaten shore—and we must add to this the destruction wrought by surface-feeding animals.

With the liberal allowance of the survival of two individuals out of every 10,000 hatched, we would have to hatch 1,000,000 eggs to produce 200 adults, 100,000,000 to get 20,000, and 1,000,000,000 to obtain 200,000 adult animals. To raise 1,000,000 lobsters would involve the hatching of 5,000,000,000 eggs. Since hundreds of thousands of adult lobsters are captured every month during the best of the season, it is evident that the annual supply cannot be appreciably affected by this method unless conducted upon an altogether impracticable scale.

The greatest number of lobsters artificially hatched and liberated in a single year in Newfoundland, Canada, and the United States, according to the official reports for 1894, was 702,288,000. This number of young at the rate of survival of one in 5,000 would yield 140,457 adults, while in a single year (1892) 68,000,000 lobsters have been captured in Canada alone. In order to put an equivalent number of lobsters back to make good this loss, not half or three-quarters of a billion should have been hatched, but 340,000,000,000 or something less than 500 times as many as were actually liberated. In this case man has attempted by working on a small scale to stem the tide of destruction, which nature working on such a vasty greater scale has been unable to do.

The conclusion which we reach is that too much has been expected from the present method of the artificial propagation of the lobster, and that it is totally inadequate to accomplish the task of restocking the depleted waters.

- (1) That the coasts of those States in which the lobster fishery is of sufficient importance be divided, after careful consideration, into a number of well-marked areas, and that fishing for this animal be closed in each alternate section for a period of five years; at the end of this time the open areas to be closed, and so on alternately.
- (2) That the legal limit be fixed at 10½ inches for the purposes and under all conditions.
- (3) That all traps be registered and marked, and that their construction be regulated by law so that the space between the lower two slats be sufficient to allow free passage to all lobsters under 10½ inches in length.
- (4) That the capture of berried lobsters be prohibited at all times. Though a law of this kind is sure to be more or less evaded, it is not expedient to encourage the destruction of eggs under any circumstances.

A series of experiments should be tried in raising the young in spacious inclosures, where crowding in vertical and horizontal limits could be avoided, and where a natural supply of food could be provided, the object being to determine whether it is practicable to raise the young up to the fifth and sixth stages, when they go to the bottom and are able to protect themselves. If then set free, the chances of survival would be many hundred times greater than in the first stages. If we could save 100 instead of two out of every 10,000 hatched, every 1,000,000 would give us 100,000 adults, and every 1,000,000,000 would yield 100,000,000 lobsters capable of reproduction. In such attempts to rear the lobster there are serious obstacles to be overcome in isolating the young, and giving them an abundant supply of pure water shall at the same time yield the proper food, but we cannot enter into the discussion of these subjects in this paper.

The close period referred to above should begin about June 20, and extend five years and two months from that time to Aug. 20. To illustrate it, we will say that it begins June 20, 1900, and extends to Aug. 20, 1905. During this period six sets of lobsters would spawn; two of these sets would spawn three times, two sets would spawn twice, and two once. Thus the set spawning in 1900 would lay eggs again in 1902, and again in 1904, and so on. Furthermore, the survivors of the broods of 1900 and 1901 would be mature, or nearly so, at the end of this period in 1905.

Mount Cashel Garden Party.

A SPLENDID SUCCESS.

The annual Garden Party in aid of Mount Cashel Industrial Schools, was held yesterday afternoon under favorable conditions.

The grounds were prettily decorated, and a large gathering attended thus testifying to their appreciation of the good work done by Rev. Bro. Ennis and his staff. Amongst those present were His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson, His Grace the Archbishop, Rt. Hon. Sir Edward and Lady Morris, the visiting members of the Dominions Royal Commission, Hon. E. R. Bowring, Rt. Rev. Mgrs. Roche, V.G., St. John, Reardon and Veitch, Rev. Dr. Greene, Rev. Frs. Doughty, Wilson, Sheehan, Pippy, O'Brien, Rawlins, Conway, Sears, and many of the Christian Brothers.

The various amusements consisted of billiards, skittles, shooting and other attractions which were much enjoyed. The C.C.C., T.A. and Mount Cashel bands supplied excellent music during the afternoon. One of the particular attractions of the day was the Irish reel by eight of the Mount Cashel boys. The lads went through all the figures of the old time dance with remarkable accuracy, and at the close received prolonged and enthusiastic applause.

The programme of sports was under the direction of Messrs W. J. Higgins and C. J. Ellis, and was splendidly carried out.

THE ROAD RACE.

The first event was the six-mile road race for which five entered, one of the competitors was absent. The finish of this race saw Kavanagh enter the field first with Wall only a few paces behind. Both seemed pretty nearly fagged during the first lap of the field, but towards the finish both spurred, and Kavanagh gave an exhibition of sprinting that was very creditable. He breasted the tape at 33 minutes 55 3-5 seconds, with Wall second at 34 minutes 07 4-5 seconds. The race was practically decided when Hill entered the field but he finished the course and received the third prize. The other runners Pearcy and Ring dropped off at the last mile. The time made by Hill last year was 31 minutes 01 3-5 seconds, but this year the course was somewhat longer.

FOOTBALL FIVES.

The football fives proved very interesting, as most of the games were keenly contested. The following is the order of the games with the results: Preliminary—(1) Saints vs. Casuals; won by Saints by 1 goal to 0. (2) Stars vs. Collegians; won by Stars by 1 goal, 1 corner to 1 goal. (3) B.I.S. vs. Felldians; won by B.I.S. by 1 corner. (4) St. Bon's vs. C.E.I.; won by St. Bon's by 2 goals, 1 corner to 0.

Semi-Finals—(1) B.I.S. vs. St. Bon's; won by B.I.S. by 1 goal. (2) Stars vs. Saints; won by Stars by 1 goal, 2 corners to 1 goal.
Final (B.I.S. vs. Stars)—The final game was a very exciting one and resulted in the B.I.S. defeating the Stars by 1 goal to 1 corner. The winners of the medals were W. Clare, B. Jackman, W. Duggan, T. Duggan, and H. Simms.

THE BASEBALL GAME.

Much enthusiasm was centred on the baseball game between the Wanderers and Red Lions, which was won by the former by 9 runs to 8, after a closely contested game. The fielding was a little slack on both sides, but some good catches were made. Brown and Morris replaced Britt and Winton, respectively as pitchers in the 3rd round. The line up was as follows:—

Wanderers	Red Lions
Catcher	Hiltz
Ford	Pitcher
Brown	1st base
Hartnett	2nd base
Burkhardt	3rd base
Fritchard	short stop
O'Flaherty	right field
Smith	centre field
Johns	left field
Hocken	P. Duff

The score was as follows:—
Wanderers 3 0 5 0 1-9
Red Lions 1 3 4 0 0-8

The Wanderers are now the holders of the H. D. Reid Cup, which must be won three years to become the property of any team. The several prizes were distributed by Rt. Rev. Mons. Veitch, who in doing so, congratulated the winners individually as they came forward to receive their trophies.

The ladies in charge of the different stalls and the many who assisted in carrying out the general arrangements of the day, deserve to be congratulated on the success of their efforts. That the Party was in every respect a financial success is a source of deep gratification to the good Brothers who spare no pains in the mental, moral and manual training of the young lads entrusted to their care.

Several of the distinguished visitors who were present at yesterday's event, inspected the buildings, were favorably impressed with all they saw, and made congratulatory references to the excellent system on which the Institution is conducted.

Women Poor Drummers.

London, July 24.—Women appear to be failures as "drummers" in this country.

The latest census returns give the number of female commercial travelers as 665, while the males numbered 85,850. Small as is the proportion of women, it is even smaller than was previously the case, according to the secretaries of two societies connected with commercial travelers; and the reason given is that "on the road" the women lack "tact and judgment."

One secretary said: "In this particular employment women have not been the success which was originally anticipated. They came into prominence about fifteen years ago, and much was expected of them, but generally speaking, the woman commercial traveler as a financial proposition has proved a failure. I know of only one woman who has made a real success of it; she traveled in hair-curlers."

"On the other hand instances have come to my notice of women who have signally failed as travelers in feminine goods. Their presence on the road has led to friction and annoyance. They resent the non-observance of etiquette towards themselves, but they are not so punctilious when the etiquette of the profession works against them. Then, again, shopkeepers often mistake women 'commercials' for customers and leave other buyers to attend to their supposed wants—with unfortunate effect on the shopkeeper's urbanity."

"The result is that the number of women travelers are slowly decreasing, and my own association has exactly half the number of female members it had a year or two ago. They don't reach double figures now."

WILLIAM PENN died 1718, aged 74. The son of a British Admiral, after leaving Oxford he became a Quaker and wrote some powerful pamphlets supporting his new faith, suffering imprisonment twice because of his opinions. In 1682 he went to America and founded Pennsylvania which under his enlightened rule became a prosperous colony.

THOMAS GRAY died 1771, aged 55. The well known poet whose "Elegy written in a Country Churchyard" is one of the most beautiful in the language. He refused the laureateship.

RELIEF OF LONDONDERRY 1689. In the campaign of James II. in Ireland more than 30,000 Protestants of Ulster fled to this city for refuge and the siege lasted 105 days, the inhabitants being reduced to the last stages of starvation when relieved.

PRINCE BISMARCK died 1898, aged 83. Educated at the University of Gottingen, he there distinguished himself chiefly in physical exercises and in fighting successfully twenty-seven duels. He entered public life in 1846. His anti-democratic spirit had declared itself from the first and he rode rough-shod over the opposition of the deputies and the press, dominating his enemies with unconstitutional severity. His long-nourished policy for the humiliation of Austria was carried out in 1866 and at the end of the Franco-Prussian war (1870) he was raised to the rank of Prince. Though imperious in character and sometimes unscrupulous, he was cast in a large mould, and as the chief creator of modern Germany he will hold a conspicuous place in history.

Miss Alice Clarke

PRIMA DONA COMING TO THE CRESCENT.

Miss Alice Clark, the talented and magnetic prima donna, will commence a limited engagement at the Crescent, beginning next Monday, which announcement should prove a treat to patrons of this popular "movie house," and also be received favorably by lovers of good music and song. The services of Miss Clarke were secured after much correspondence during which the following accounts of her successes were forwarded. Miss Clarke, who possesses an exquisite voice and charming personality, is an actress of merit. She was with Madame Modjeska and Louis James for several seasons and played the prima donna in "The Broken Idol"; B. C. Whitney's production of "Pill, Poff, Puff"; "The Isle of Spite," and "The Isle of Bong Bong." She also sang successfully the prima donna part in "Fortune Teller" and several other musical comedies. Miss Clark is the wife of Herr Spencer, who was formerly musical director and interpreter.

Beri-Beri.

LETTER FROM MR. A. J. BANKS, F.C.S., ON WHITE FLOUR BREAD AND YEAST.

The appended letter was handed to us for publication by Mr. Gosling:—
July 21st, 1914.
Messrs. Harvey & Co., Ltd.,
St. John's, Nfld.

Dear Sirs.—I have read with considerable interest the copy of the letter by your Mr. W. G. Gosling under date of 11th June last, written in confirmation of his discussion with Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, concerning the alleged influence of white or Patent Flour in favoring the propagation of Beri-beri. Dr. Grenfell's letters to the Herald (on the 16th of June) and the Daily News (on the 22nd of June) have been also brought to my notice. His evidence seems to be based mainly upon U.S. publications issued about 1910 and 1911. However, since 1910 quite a lot of matter has been published concerning the etiology or origin of Beri-beri, and the influence of diet on the degree of resistance thereto.

It was in 1911 that Casimir Funk of the Lister Institute published in the Journal of Physiology an article on "The Chemical Nature of the Substance which cures Polyneuritis in Birds induced by a Diet of Polished Rice," in which he shows that the protective substance found in the polishings and absent from polished rice is present only in very minute amount; probably not more than one-hundredth of one per cent. of the rice. The curative dose was found to be extremely small; three-tenths of a grain given by the mouth being sufficient to cure pigeons of Polyneuritis—which is the medical term for Beri-beri; other words it would require fully four and a half pounds of rice to yield a curative dose of the active ingredient, which Funk termed "Vitamin."

In the following year, viz., 1912, Funk contributed to the same Journal more important data on this subject. He had further separated the same substance from yeast, ox-brain, milk, and apparently from lime-juice. He was thus unable to confirm the view that a deficiency of organically combined phosphorus in the food leads to a similar poverty of phosphorus in the body, and thus on to Beri-beri. In the same year another worker H. Wieland arrived at a similar conclusion from his experiments on mice.

Again in 1912, Moore, Edie and others of the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine published in the Bio-Chemical Journal results of their investigations. Following Funk's discovery of the curative principle in yeast they used this material to work with and made a successful separation of the substance. They gave an approximate idea of its chemical composition, and it is well to note that it contained no phosphorus.

In the following year, viz., 1913, a very valuable communication was made by E. A. Cooper who published in the Journal of Hygiene the results of his attempts to gauge the amount of "Vitamin" in various articles of food. He determined this by noting how much of each must be added to a diet of polished rice in order to prevent in birds the occurrence of Beri-beri. The widely different amounts required showed very clearly that the curative body is most irregularly distributed amongst the foodstuffs; thus five-sevenths—or practically three-quarters of an ounce of beef daily were necessary; about half this quantity of sheep's brain proved to be sufficient, and among the animal foods examined egg-yolk was the most efficient, one-ninth of an ounce being the necessary daily dose. Amongst the vegetable foods, the efficiency of lentils and unhusked barley were about equal to egg-yolk, but, of all others, yeast was the most efficient in preventing the disease, only one-fifty-sixth of an ounce being enough. Therefore proving yeast to be possessed of forty times the curative power of beef, and fully six times more effective than egg-yolk, lentils or unhusked barley.

The Japanese Government has investigated the subject of Beri-beri (the kakke of Japan), and brought to light some very interesting information. During the siege of Port Arthur, at the time of the Russo-Japanese War, the Japanese Army and Navy lived under exactly the same conditions with one exception; in the army the old rice diet was still maintained; but in the navy a reform had been introduced by adding to the rice a certain amount of either meat or barley. The disease still continued to spread among the soldiers, but the sailors escaped almost scot-free. It was afterwards found when white bread was introduced into the ration of the Japanese army with either polished or unpolished rice, Beri-beri was removed from their midst.

I would particularly draw Dr. Grenfell's attention to the issue of the North Western Miller, published in Minneapolis, 3rd Sept., 1913, in which Prof. Harry Snyder deals at considerable length with the alleged connection between Beri-beri and white flour bread. Prof. Snyder rightly emphasizes the fact that "Funk's results show why white bread is such an effective corrective agent, in the dietary with rice, for the control of Beri-beri. The bread made with yeast contains the natural products of the yeast cells which neutralize the rice poison. It is for this reason that bread eating nations do not have Beri-beri." It will be seen from the work of E. A. Cooper, to which I have already referred that in the case of bread from either the finest Patent or the lowest grade of flour made by fermentation with yeast there is always present an ample excess of the curative body "Vitamin," and that in the one article, bread, whilst it is in very few cases indeed that people live on bread alone.

Such are a few of the more important additions to our knowledge of this serious trouble; and I think it will be readily granted that the facts are not in favor of the views expressed by Dr. Grenfell and others who have attributed the disease to the removal of wheat germ, bran and its accompanying dirt from the high grade White or Patent flour of to-day.

If Beri-beri be due to lack of the substance "Vitamin" the cure by its administration in one form or another is only commonsense, but there are innumerable cases in which there is no reason to believe the sufferers have been on a diet free from or even poor in this particular substance; and it is generally admitted that the disease may arise in other ways, as by pressure on a nerve, by inflammation of the sheath of a nerve and so forth.

Mr. Gosling in his letter to Dr. Grenfell remarks "you are apparently inclined to believe that the outbreak of Beri-beri is owing to the people giving up the use of whole wheat flour, or what would be practically the same thing, the use of low grade flours which contained a large proportion of bran and the coarser parts of the wheat. But you will see that there has been practically no change from your point of view, in the flour used here, in twenty years, at least," and further, "All the evidence which I have heard points to the fact that Beri-beri is a contagious disease. I think that you will find that it was an unknown disease here before the outbreak on the Norwegian whaler about the year 1903."

I think it will be granted by all who have given this matter due consideration that Dr. Grenfell strikes a more hopeful chord when he urges not merely the advisability but the necessity of a strong hygienic educational campaign—"A regular campaign against body vermin and bed bugs, as the doctors of this country can speak with authority on the danger and evil results that they have seen from this all too common cause of danger." Plain, simple and emphatic instruction in the combination of food-stuffs, and the principles of personal cleanliness appear to afford the best means of stamping out the dread disease.

It must be borne in mind that any single substance taken morning, noon and night as the one and only food, constitutes a defective diet and will introduce conditions leading to a marked predisposition to disease.

In conclusion, I would suggest that greater relief would be obtained were your people to stock large supplies of dried yeast, which if in the usual half ounce cakes might be taken at the rate of one per day per person and converted into an appetizing broth or soup by scalding with a half pint of boiling water, and seasoning, if desired with a little pepper and salt. Dry Yeast is a product of good keeping quality and very compact in form, and figuring on only half the value estimated by Cooper, a half ounce cake should be about as efficient as ten ounces of beef as a curative

He started at third some years ago till Time stepped in and made him slow—fast kid were at his heel. He gave in to the younger guys an' took to pasture, chasin' flies. Then Pittsburg let him out. The Cubs grabbed off the little yet. He's fightin' off the youngsters yet an' winnin' every bout.

O'Day has made him leadoff man an' when he crouches at the pan he still looks like the class. For gettin' on just back the runt. He lines'er out or dumps a bunt or coaxes out a pass. Some time, of course, he'll have to quit an' pass along his fieldin' mitt to some young newfound star. But if he had to quit to-day, they'd make him captain right away in Baseball's G. A. R.

Complete Change of Vaudeville.

At Rossley's last night, there were a big crowd of delighted patrons who laughed at Scully's impersonation of "The Henpecked Husband." To-night he gives an entirely new act. His impersonation of an English soldier the British Tommy Atkins, is very clever. The pictures are all Rossley claims them to be, for they are the best to be had. "Getting up a Practice" by the Vitagraph Co., with Maurice Costello, Telf Johnson, James Morrison and Clara Kimball Young is one of the best Vitagraphs seen in a long time. Every one is a feature. On Monday Mrs. Rossley and Scully will be seen in a Burlesque on Romeo and Juliet, Past and Present. It is very amusing, showing the courteous old time lover and the sassy Romeo of the present time. This clever burlesque is written and arranged by Mrs. Rossley, and we know it will be all right. ANY thing Mrs. Rossley ever put on was a winner every time.

Canadian Fire Patrol Ship Reaches Port.

Built at a Cost of $12,000—The Best Equipped Boat for Her Size That Ever Crossed the Atlantic.

At 6 o'clock this morning the Canadian fire patrol ship Laval, Capt. Dillon, bound from Middleborough, England, to Quebec, put into this port short of coal. She is a new vessel and was launched only two months ago. She was built at Middleborough, by the Smith Dry Dock Co., to the order of the Quebec Harbour Commissioners at a cost to the Canadian Government of over twelve thousand pounds sterling. She was designed by John Reid & Co., naval architects, of Montreal, and is specially constructed and fitted with all the latest and up-to-date appliances for the work she is intended to do.

Though not the size of a leviathan, the Laval is one of the most modern and best equipped boats that ever crossed the Atlantic. However, she has a most deceptive appearance to look at her from the outside, and the casual observer could scarcely imagine what her installations are like. The ship was berthed at A. J. Harvey & Co's, pier this morning, where crowds of people visited her and were shown through by the courteous and obliging officers on board, and all were agreeably surprised with what they saw.

It is strange to say that although the Laval has a carrying capacity of 123 tons, her interior from stem to stern, including engine room, accommodation, etc., would do credit to the most palatial Atlantic liners. She is constructed of steel, armour plated fore and aft with an ice-breaking bow. Extending all round the ship is a wooden and iron plated guard. The ship is extensively supplied with fire protectors such as hose, pump and water, and can quench a fire effectively, no matter how great and at the shortest notice. The engine room is situated amidships. The engine is of the latest and most improved make and is a thousand horse power. Over the engine room are three huge casks containing fresh water for use on board; nearby is a huge pump which can be used in cases of emergency. The pump operates automatically from the engine room. It is very powerful and can throw water and quench fire two hundred yards distant. To illustrate this, and so great is the water pressure, Chief Officer Lilly of the ship told us that lying at Harvey's pier the pump could control a fire at the Lighthouse. The captain's bridge is situated forward and contains a thirty thousand candle power electric searchlight. The ship is fitted throughout with electricity.

Aft of the bridge is the saloon, which contains a beautifully finished oak extension table and chairs capable of accommodating about 20 persons. Adjoining the saloon is the galley or cook house, which is also conveniently attached to the kitchen. Below the deck are the staterooms and officers' quarters, all of which are elaborately decorated and furnished and fitted with the most modern improvements. A noteworthy feature is the provision made for the stokers and sailors. They have their quarters aft and are splendidly arranged and supplied with tables, hot and cold water baths and clothes closets.

The Laval made 14 knots on her trial spin. On the passage from Middleborough the ship behaved splendidly, notwithstanding the rough weather encountered, and proved herself an excellent seaboat. In other respects she is perfection itself and no doubt will suit the requirements of the Canadian Government.

She took on board 12 tons of coal this morning to last her to Sydney, where she left for to-day to replenish her supply and then proceed to her destination and be delivered to her new owners. The Laval can be utilized as a towing boat, fire boat, ice-breaker, patrol boat or even a yacht. She has a powerful towing winch near the stern and can tow almost anything afloat.

Unquestionably the Laval is the most modern type of vessel that has ever visited this port and it would be a capital idea if our St. John's people could consider the procuring of a same style boat for our harbour, though it need not necessarily be as costly.

Very Modest, Too

The following appeared a few days ago in the agony column of a London newspaper:

"Of Epoch-Making Importance.—To Someone Who is Rich.—I have a development, long desired and sought for, of enormous importance, value, saving, and benefit to the nation and individually. It will enable the country to save probably £100,000,000 annually, whilst it will yield some millions of pounds profit to us. I desire Someone who is Rich to provide about £25,000 for working capital to enable the results to be achieved, for a share of the profits. The advertiser is an able, experienced, business man, forty years of age, and unmarried, and, therefore, can give his whole time to the matter. This is not a speculation, but a clear business proposition, the result of years of work."

$29,500 Waiting for Willie Ritchie.

New York, July 23.—When Willie Ritchie arrives home from England on the Vaterland next Wednesday, he will be met by Billy Gibson, who will hand him a certified cheque for $29,500 which is due him for fighting Freddie Welsh. This amount includes a guarantee of $15,000, $10,000 for his moving picture rights, $1,000 for expenses and his forfeit of $5,000 for weight and appearance.
