A National Policy in Nickel!

The "unanimous" article from the Conservative papers printed in this column yesterday came from the "Made-in-Canada" propaganda of the manufacturers' association, not from the nickel trust! It shows how easy it is to make "unanimous" opinion.

But the manufacturers missed the whole point in their missionary work when they failed to begin at nickel-mined in Canada, smelted in Canada, refined in Canada, and in case of war—destined to be made and directed in Canada! We do not see why even the Mond Company should be allowed to refine outside of Canada. Making the enormous profits they are making from Ontario nickel, why should they not put in all the work in Canada, and buy all the associated material that they possibly can in Canada?

This is the only way to control the export and also to receive a proper royalty! Mr. Hearst is casting about how his government may find new sources of income or what existing ones can be refreshed and improved!

We say to him, measure up in detail what known stores of nickel we have left in the crown, and what would be a fair tax or royalty on it after it has been finished and refined in Canada. Did it ever strike you that if we had such a monopoly as we have we might, under the plea of national policy, enforce not only refining, but the making of all nickel compounds in Canada! But it takes some courage and some devotion to national policy. Nevertheless, Mr. Hearst can get a big revenue from the nickel refined in Canada. Does he say he can't force such a policy? We do not think he will. The federal government will sooner or later find a way to collect what Mr. Hearst seems disposed to let pass by. But Mr. Hearst must be careful who helps him to frame his policy and who writes his statutes! It is surprising how the drafting of our laws here in Canada, federal and provincial, has been manipulated by professed friends who happen in the public seems always to be ignored when this work is going on. The bankers had their lawyers about when the Bank Act was taking shape. We wonder who drafted some of the orders-in-council re nickel now on the records!

The imperial government is bound to accept the assurance of the Dominion Government no matter how discouraging it may be. The imperial government could not come out and say to the Dominion Government that "we are dissatisfied with your nickel policy and we insist on your preventing its export into the United States." For if Great Britain did this, the United States would find it out and might construe it into an act of hostility and certainly an unfriendly act. But they could not so construe it if done by the Dominion of Canada for imperial reasons and national policy reasons following the example of the States' 88, for the Ottawa government to see that the imperial government is satisfied with the assurance of the Dominion combination is overstraining a delicate relation. We have heard a good deal about communications that have passed from the imperial government to individuals very much in favor of a national policy by the province and by the Dominion that would keep the control of the nickel product in Canada. The Stratford Herald is calling on superstitious imperial journals like "The Montreal Star" to say where it is on the nickel business. The point is well taken.

SOME MORE NEWSPAPER OPINION

NICKEL REFINING.

Montreal Evening News, June 5: There can be no valid argument against nickel refining in Canada as a sound economic policy, based upon our control of the largest nickel deposits in the world. The cheapness of handling until shipped out of the country is a factor. Let us admit that a prohibition of export in this respect, so far as has failed in the nickel end; however, it is never too late to mend, and with the nickel trust, the governments in both Ontario and the Dominion, no doubt steps will be taken at the next session of parliament. This is the real solution of the future of Sudbury's industry, and one which is generally practised and can be secured within a year. Surely it is worth trying for and it is a duty of the town council and board of trade to step lively. The government's information with regard to a supply of nickel in Norway, sufficient for German needs during the war, may be placed in the scrap heap, in company with countless other war yarns. Any nickel found in Norway is of such low grade that it is not worthy of consideration.

FOR AN EXPORT DUTY AND HOME REFINING.

Hamilton Spectator, Dec. 27: A fuller statement thereof of the nickel refining industry will be in order whenever the question of an export duty in Canada, after the end of the war, is not so much concerned with the nickel refining of the nickel "at the point of production, the mines," as we are about securing it anywhere within the borders of the country which is the original source of all the wealth. For European trade, what advantages can there be in New Jersey that could not be found, say, here in Hamilton?

SUDBURY IS FOR NATIONAL POLICY.

From The Sudbury Mining Times, Jan. 1: The above statement of President Monell of the International Nickel Co. re the desirability of their product from U.S. should convince the most skeptical that the Dominion Government has taken all necessary precautions to prevent the exportation from the United States of nickel to Germany, and no doubt the understanding between the Canadian Government and the International Nickel Company will be carried out in letter. This, however, has nothing to do with that part of the question pertaining to turning out the finished product in Canada. President Monell speaks about certain "economic conditions" which render it advisable to refine down New Jersey way, which no doubt is quite correct from his outlook, but what of Canada, Ontario and Sudbury? Are their views not worth consideration? Suppose for instance that the situation were reversed. How long Vatican Loth to Believe Report of Cardinal Mercier's Detention.

Rome, Jan. 6.—(11.21 p.m.)—The reported arrest of Cardinal Mercier by the Germans at Brussels, because of a pastoral letter lately issued by him has created a profound impression in Rome, which is especially marked at the Vatican. The Vatican, however, has received no confirmation of this report, and considers it improbable.

ALLIES ARE TRIUMPHING

Turkish Defeat and German Reverse in Poland Highly Important.

Canadian Associated Press Cable.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—Lord Kitchener made a slight but highly interesting reference to the Canadian regiment already in the field in his speech in the house of lords tonight. His lordship read his speech, which summarized operations taking place since last he spoke in the lords.

The following was his reference to Canadians in the field: "Kithy, as I said, there has been a continuous series of trench operations, the only important engagements between the British forces and the Germans was on the 20th of December, when the trenches held by the Indian troops were violently attacked at Givenchy. The Indians were to a certain extent surprised by the enemy and some of their trenches captured, only to be retaken the following day with considerable loss to the enemy by the first army corps, which had been in reserve. The line thus reassumed has since been entirely maintained, and the Indian units have enjoyed a period of rest from the trenches. Sir John French's force has been increased by a number of territorial units and by another division, attached to which is a fine Canadian regiment."

Canadians Cheerful.

The final paragraph of Lord Kitchener's speech was as follows: "The training of the Canadian contingent and the new armies has been carried out under the most favorable conditions, but in spite of this a great deal of extremely good work has been done during the past month. Discomforts and hardships, due to the

KAISER'S MIND IMPAIRED BY WAR'S TERRIFIC STRAIN

German Emperor Refuses to Undergo Operation—Clamors to Go to Front.

Special Direct Copyrighted Cable to The Toronto World.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 6.—The Kaiser is mentally impaired by the strain under which he has been suffering since the war began and constant friction exists between him and the German general staff. This statement is made by an American engineer who has just reached this city after a two and a half months residence in Berlin. The Kaiser is now in Berlin, but he is restrained with difficulty from returning to the front. His physicians have advised him that an operation on his throat will be necessary and that he will have to rest and regain his strength before it can be undertaken. This necessity for inaction has so irritated the Kaiser that he has quarreled with his military and medical advisers and has announced his intention of returning to his soldiers without an operation. It is feared that he may carry his intention into effect at any moment, and that a physical restraint will prevent it.

DRIVEN AWAY BY GUNS

Six Aeroplanes Tried in Vain to Bomb French Port.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—2.55 a.m.—A correspondent of The Daily Mail in France reports that a Zeppelin airship skirted the French seacoast near Gravelines, twelve miles southwest of Dunkirk, Wednesday morning and then turned westward towards England and that it is rumored that two other Zeppelins precede it. "Thereafter through the whole day," the correspondent adds, "Dunkirk was subjected to German aeroplane raids and attempts to drop bombs; but owing to the vigorous fire of the town's guns but few bombs fell. At one moment six aeroplanes were hovering over the town, but were compelled to retreat. Apparently no damage was done."

Canadian Press Despatch.

COPENHAGEN, via London, Jan. 6, 5.45 p.m.—A special despatch to The National Tidende from Constantinople says the former German cruiser Goeben, which now flies the Turkish flag, struck two Russian mines in the neighborhood of the Bosphorus, and was seriously damaged. She has two big holes in her water line and it will take two or three months to repair her. This fact, the despatch adds, has been kept secret from the people of Constantinople.

Enemy Well Equipped and Supported by Disaffected Inhabitants.

Canadian Press Despatch.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 6.—The following statement of the general staff of the army in the Caucasus was issued tonight: "At the end of November the bulk of the third Turkish army was sent to the region east of Erzerum, preceded by two army corps besides a reserve corps near Hassan Kalah. "In conformity with the plan of Enver Pasha the third army was to proceed as follows: The ninth and tenth army corps were to advance in the direction of Oti and form the offensive wing, whereas the eleventh corps had orders to hold its powerfully organized position and to attract, thru a strategic demonstration, the weight of our troops. In case the Russian troops took up the offensive energetically the eleventh corps had been ordered to fall back on the fortress of Erzerum, carrying along with it the Russian forces. "The tenth Turkish army corps was then to advance in two columns, the first including one division proceeding towards Id by the Oti-Chal valley. The second, two divisions strong, was Conflict in Upper Alsace One of Most Violent of War.

VICTORIOUS IN ARGONNE

Long Line of German Trenches Blown Up—Steinbach Held.

Special Direct Copyrighted Cable to The Toronto World.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—Successes along nearly the entire western battle front are claimed in today's report of the French war office. In Argonne the French blew up about 800 yards of German trenches, occupying half of them. At another point 300 yards of trenches were recovered from Germans. It is also asserted that gains near Steinbach, Alsace, have been maintained. Altho the Germans recaptured a trench on the height, the French say they still hold the summit. The French trenches in the Argonne were occupied yesterday by German troops, and in upper Alsace the French troops were driven away from a position near Cernay, according to a German official announcement given out in Berlin this afternoon. In Poland, the Germans claim, to have advanced and taken 1400 prisoners. Latest reports from Petrograd are that the defeat of the Turks in the Caucasus is complete and that one Turkish army corps was annihilated. This blow to the Ottoman forces has relieved Egypt of the fear of an invasion. The Germans are handicapped by bad weather in the advance towards Warsaw, but Berlin asserts slow progress is being made. In the Austrian province of Bukovina, Russians, according to Petrograd despatches, are meeting little resistance. The frontier guards of Roumania are friendly, and it is believed in Petrograd that Roumania is likely to enter the war.

HEAVY FIGHTING IN ALSACE.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, Jan. 6, 10.40 p.m.—Apart from the Russian victory over the Turks in trans-Caucasia, interest in the warfare now lies chiefly in the stubborn fight which the French and Germans are carrying on for the roads to Cernay and Mulhausen, in upper Alsace. The battle in that region, which has been raging for a week, is described in a Berlin despatch as the most violent of the war. Along the rest of the western front the tide of battle continues to ebb and flow. On either side of Ypres, and particularly to the east of that harassed city, the French, according to reports, daily push their lines a few yards forward. Another region where the French seemingly keep nibbling away at the German lines is in the Woevre, where the gains reported by them last night indicate, have gone a long way toward rendering the Germans' long occupation of a fortified hill on the Mueze less comfortable.

Turning Colder Tonight.

One thing is very evident—we can't count on mild weather for more than a couple of days at a time this season. Every sensible man should be adequately prepared to resist the severe and treacherous weather that is ahead. In this connection it is extremely interesting to those who have not yet bought a new winter overcoat to find Dinsens—140 Yonge street—selling their stock of smart overcoats below maker's cost and clear. Latest styles in overcoats, worth from $25 to $87.50, are offered as low as $19.25. Such a price inducement is surely strong enough to bring those who have not filled their wardrobes to the attention of Dinsens. Coon coats and fur-lined coats are also selling at prices that can't be duplicated in town.

Canadian Press Despatch.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 6.—Operators of east Ohio coal properties, this afternoon concluded a three-day conference here with the understanding that the mines will be opened despite the strike of the United Mine Workers of America. Orders were sent by the many of the operators to mine bosses and superintendents to start cleaning up the mines for reopening after the nine month shut down.

NO MENACE SEEN IN RUSSIAN MOVE

GREAT STEP FORWARD

Abolition of Vodka Shows Country is Making Progress.

That England sees no menace now in the Russian move to secure an outlet at Constantinople and that she will offer no opposition to the move should the allies be victorious in the present struggle in Europe was the belief expressed yesterday at a meeting of the Russian Club held at the home of Prof. Samuel N. Harper...

He failed to recognize anything dangerous or unnatural in the alliance between Russia, France and England, and expressed a strong belief in the national honor and integrity of the czar's dominions. Russia had been called despotic, despotic and backward, but her studies had not borne out what seems to be this general impression.

It needed, he thought, a very strong motive to cut suddenly an annual revenue of $350,000,000. Yet this was what Russia had done when she prohibited the sale of liquor.

It was originally decided that the prohibitory measure should cover only the czar himself and his family, but the government decided to extend the order to the whole period covered by the war.

A letter has been addressed to the mayor and members of the council by Ald. S. M. Wickett regarding the system of standing committees. Province and Dominion Reach Agreement on Sale of Islands.

AN OLD CONTROVERSY

Moose Deer Point Divides Control and Closes Ancient Contention.

After a history of controversy and bickering extending from the days of confederation a land title dispute between the Ontario and federal governments has finally closed in a manner satisfactory to both. As an immediate outcome the rights of the islands that swarm in Georgian Bay waters are now established and a line of demarcation is drawn between those to the north provincial and federal control. The subject is one which has caused endless dissatisfaction between the two governments because of vague allotments in earlier days, and the Ontario Government are gratified that the situation should be cleared during their tenure of office. In future all islands lying to the south of Moose Deer Point, but within the control of the Ottawa lands department, while those to the north with the exception of the Manitoulin group will be under the control of the Dominion.

As yet there has been no time opportunity to take the matter up officially by the various unions, and while no official protest has yet been received by the secretaries of the local labor organizations, the opinion of the men in responsible labor positions is that the railway employees will not accept the cut in wages without putting up a strenuous fight.

There is plenty of time before April 1 in which to thresh the matter out thoroughly in the various unions, and a number of ways will probably suggest themselves of arranging the matter so that the men will not be put to a vote on the matter until they are in a position to put up a strenuous fight.

MOTORISTS MAP OUT HIGHWAY SCHEME

League Plans Roads to Join Montreal to Windsor and Prescott to Ottawa.

TO FINANCE PROJECT

Capitalists Prepared to Take Up Government Bonds to Cover Expense.

The Ontario Motor League has an impressive program of work mapped out for this year, two of the outstanding things being preparation for a trans-provincial highway from Montreal to Windsor, and the construction of a good road from the St. Lawrence River at Prescott, to Ottawa.

The surveys for the latter road have already been made and it is understood that Ottawa capitalists have expressed willingness to take up government bonds to cover the construction cost and hold them for a five year period. This road is between 55 and 60 miles long and will follow the general route of the present road from the St. Lawrence River at Prescott, to Ottawa.

The completion of a motor road between Toronto and Ottawa is expected, the bonds for this undertaking being taken up by Ottawa men.

Much Labor Available. Lower Car Licenses. The Ontario Motor League stated yesterday that it was possible that even more road work would be started this year, especially if labor conditions continued poor as road construction gives employment to a large number of men.

The membership of the Ontario Motor League was increased during last year from four to five thousand and a similar advance is looked for this year.

NEWS OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO WOMEN

DRESS ACCESSORY MUST BE PERFECT

Shabby Pair of Gloves Ruins Otherwise Faultless Attire.

DARK BLUE FOR SPRING

Girdle Fasteners, Dagger Shaped Exploit Various Stones.

The accessories of dress count so much they must be immaculate and unless something unique is continuously launched Dame Fashion is restless and not pleased. They must ever suit the wearer, as unbecoming accessory "kills" a handsome costume. A shabby pair of gloves for instance, will ruin an otherwise faultless attire, while messy neckwear is unpardonable.

Dark blue for spring is promised unprecedented popularity. The waist line is "up" again today. The mourning garb of the 1915 woman is fascinating. Jet is much worn. The black handbags are fashioned from rich silks, and lovely neckwear is made from fine black and white "footing". A mourning veil is made with a narrow band of black monkey fur.

Glove bracelets are a very attractive innovation of the season. These are made in the old "gait" pattern, or jointed and fastened with a clasp worn over the glove at its upper edge. They hold it in place on the arm, and are very dainty.

The new girdle fasteners are huge dagger-shaped brooches like the shawl pins of our grandmothers. These exploit topazes, amethysts and opals as well as all the precious stones.

LORD'S DAY ADVOCATES SEE PREMIER HEARST

Official Deputation Seeks Co-operation of New Ontario Administration.

The Lord's Day Alliance is expecting good things of the new premier and attorney-general of Ontario. A representative deputation of officials waited upon Hon. Mr. Hearst yesterday and laid before him a general outline of their endeavors. In reply he assured them of the warmest sympathy of the new administration and stated that their work would obtain all the consideration possible. Secretary Rochester explained the aim of the organization as one encouraging all people to take full advantage of the privileges of the Lord's day. Their idea was to encourage, not to coerce. Thomas Patterson stated that whereas one conception of liberty was to allow people to do as they liked, theirs was to encourage them to do as they ought. The Ontario Act was the best in existence and allowed railway conductors alternate months of Sundays, whereas American men worked right thru. "Anything that can be done to preserve the Sabbath is worthy of government consideration and we will be glad to hear specific suggestions at any time," said the premier.

WOMEN'S POSITION IN AREA OF WAR

Last Half Century Has Brought Changes in Social Standing.

At the Northern W. C. T. U. meeting held in Central Methodist Church yesterday afternoon, a group of addresses were given on social conditions of women in the countries now at war. Mrs. Lang spoke on "Women in England" handling her subject in an efficient manner. As a student of higher education in social problems and politics, Mrs. Lang was entertaining and enlightened her audience considerably in describing the changes wrought and advances made by women of the last half century, since women were previously barred admittance to colleges, universities and government positions. A paper was read on "The Women of France" by Miss Withrow, who proved that behind the bright, vivacious personality of the French woman there is character, brains and genius. Miss Norton, who spoke on "The Women of Germany," proved that the women of this flaxen-haired race had taken noble characteristics. They are women of excellent physique and faithful to the traditions of their own country and are educating themselves along progressive lines. The German women are fond of outdoor life. They walk and ride a great deal and work in the fields as successfully as men. A tribute was paid to the courageous little people of Belgium, who are great agriculturists and very prosperous.

NEW MARCHING SONG LIKED BY THE BOYS

Toronto Composers Not Behind in Writing Patriotic Selections.

Among the many writers of patriotic songs and poems that have been produced in connection with the present war, it is interesting to note that Canadians, and especially Toronto people, have not been behindhand. A new marching song called "Knitting," which has been written in collaboration by Miss Muriel Bruce and Baron Alotti, both of Toronto, was sung with great success by Miss Ruby Brock, whose fine voice was greatly appreciated, at a concert given for the soldiers at the Exhibition grounds last New Year's night. The composition made a great hit, and the catchy refrain was rapidly picked up and sung with enthusiasm by the audience. The song has been dedicated, by permission, to the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. It is now in the publishers' hands and will appear very shortly.

HOW PAT'S PETS LEFT FOR FRANCE

All Were Happy at Prospect of Seeing Active Service.

IN CAPITAL CONDITION

Crossed Channel in Huge Ocean Liner, Escorted by Cruisers.

By John A. MacLaren, one of the World's Staff Correspondents with the Canadian Expeditionary Force. WINCHESTER, England, Dec. 21.—"We hope to spend New Year's Day in the trenches. It will be a glorious way to celebrate; a splendid beginning of 1915." A stocky little khaki clad private with a "P.C.L.L." red badge on his shoulders was leading us thru the crowded streets of this city to where Canada's crusade was being encamped. He spoke enthusiastically about leaving for France. The city which is the history, a notable castle and college, was a busy place. In the afternoon a typical English mist lay like a heavy cloud over the streets. The dim gas lights were hardly distinguishable. "The private of soldiers in this town" said some one. "Well, I should say so" replied the private. "The burg is full of them. Several regiments of us fellows are camped in the outskirts and nearly all regulars, just back from China, India and other places. They have been relieved by a bunch of Argyles. Ninety per cent of the people in the streets are in khaki." The private was indeed correct. Soldiers owned the city. "Some Fine Outfits." "We're going tomorrow" he continued. "The boys are going to celebrate tonight. They're so happy to quit training in the muck and rain. There are some of our fellows across the street. See they are with a bunch of Argyles. We are brigaded with regulars you know, Argyles, Shropshires and another regiment just back from India. All in our division are of the permanent force except us. But believe me, the Princess Pats are some fine outfits. We can't get with any of them." He led us up a long narrow street which twisted and turned between low, ancient buildings looking as if they had become tired of standing so long and wanted to fall over and have a better view of the world. "This is just a young bridge" said our informant, "built in 1300 A.D. but that is nothing to brag about." Soon we were climbing Magdalene Hill which wound its way up and up until we could see the ancient college and some pile of old water and again we had been the castle and then again may not. In England one runs up hill and down hill, but never knows it—this country is full of hills and valleys. "There is our camp," said the private. "It is located over there in the woods surrounded by water and an English accent. The regulars are all around us." There was preparing to leave. A division was moving out. They were going somewhere. The most likely place was the front. They had then France. Motor transports, one after another, the engines of which sounded like those of aeroplanes, rolled along the roads. The men were in pairs, each drawn by two teams of horses and two men mounted, rumbled by, loaded with the motor transport. Now and then a trooper or an officer followed while his orderly galloped in another direction. One naturally wondered how the columns were avoided. The road was so narrow, the lights so dim and the fog so heavy. "In the lines of the Princess Pats. That is as far as moving is concerned. The men were just in from a hard afternoon's work. They had just been dismissed after maneuvering over the hills and down which surround Winchester. Their clothes were saturated with mud and water. They were muddy and their faces bespattered. But the men were entirely accustomed to it. Besides, it was an old game to most of them. Their faces beamed with pleasure because the day's work was done. And were they going to France tomorrow? Two began to wrestle in the muck and slush and when one was placed on his knees the other was on his feet. "For the love of Mike have a heart," cried he. "I never did like bathing." His chum let him up after he had promised to go and then they walked away to their tent, arm in arm. "Any truth in the story that you're going tomorrow?" an officer was asked. "Well, I don't know." "Oh, we've been going tomorrow for a week" he answered. "We never know when we'll leave tonight or next year. But we're ready. Our supplies are all packed. The men think they're going in the morning and they are as happy as school boys, and believe me, the officers are no different. It would be great if we could be in the fight in a week or so." As we were talking to the officer the noise of transports on the road could be heard—the whir of the engines and the thud of the horses' feet. "Yes, that division moving is ours," said the officer. "Of course the infantry is the last to go. I guess there is every chance of our going very shortly." As we were leaving the camp the men were lining up for their evening meal, the bugle having just sounded the most popular call, "Come to the cookhouse, boys, and get your grub." The mess lines half filled with beef stew they went to their tents to eat where they also slept. "I don't think this is our last night here we should have a feast," one was overheard saying to a brother private. "I'll have a drink with you tonight, properly in Berlin." On the morning following the regiment actually moved. When reveille sounded the men rolled out of their blankets and greeted another wet day. Very soon they were out on their regular before-breakfast march. Half an hour of the "double" and they were ready for nourishment. Off to Southampton. The fall in sounded and the men turned out in heavy marching order. Rifles and kits were inspected and they marched off with the joyful throng. In an hour or less they were at Southampton, marching by a multitude of people. One wondered at the lack of enthusiasm of the spectators. But thousands of thousands of troops had walked along the same streets before the P. E. L. I. were ever heard of in England. The people were accustomed to such a spectacle. They had cheered at first, but now when their own sons and brothers or sweethearts or husbands were at the front or going it was different. War was a grim horrible affair to them. "Pat's Pets" marched to the docks with British rifles slung over their shoulders. The Ross rifle had been discarded because the rest of the division had been made up of British regiments. The Canadians walked with the same brisk stride as the men with whom they will fight in the trenches. They do not look the least unlike Englishmen even tho the khaki was of a slightly different shade. The silent people who watched probably did not know that they were from Canada. The simple leaf cap badge was not in evidence. It has been discarded in favor of another. Somewhere in France. On one of the huge ocean liners

Friendship, Kindness, Love Are Magic Powers of Life

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

long enough to remember the old policeman of the Yale campus, James Donnelly.

Officer Donnelly was campus policeman at Yale for 20 years, and he was loved and respected from one end of this country to the other, wherever a man from Yale lived and had his say.

I wish I had known James Donnelly, policeman. He must have been a man of character, of brains, and of heart.

How Did Donnelly Win Them?

I can get on without the acquaintance of the Rich. I live very contentedly without the friendship of the Great. And I have even known what it was to exist in comparative ease of mind without the companionship of the "unco good"—but James Donnelly, policeman. I do wish I could have known. What did you look like, I wonder—your, the well-beloved? Were you a strapping fellow with a pair of broad shoulders and just the touch of the rich bronze your name suggests? Or were you a little man with big courage and a great heart?

What was it you did that made you so beloved? Did you sometimes fail to see things which a strict obedience to rules and regulations would have compelled you to see? Were you once in a while a little deaf, and did you now and then have a foot that troubled you just at the right time?

Did you know them all, the boys—how could I be so careless, I mean the men—who came to Yale to study or to make themselves believe they were studying?

Could you tell a freshman from a sophomore, just by his back and the way he wore his hat? Did you know by the swing of his shoulder whether a man came from the West and would understand a friendly joke, even if he didn't know you? Did you recognize one of the Brahmin cast at a glance, and keep away from him?

Where were you when camp-fires burned and gates flew off their hinges? What were you doing the night of the canoe rush? How many men did you meet and how many did you warn just in time?

Were you so very clever, Policeman Donnelly of Yale, so very, very wise, or so learned and erudite that all the doctors and the potentates should turn out to show you a kind respect?

What a magic fit—the old, old thing that rules the world—friendship, kindness, love!

It's Often Hard to Understand.

For you loved every man in Yale—you know you did, Policeman Donnelly—who he so still under the gathering snow today. You loved them and were proud of them, and so, you understood them. And so they loved you and understood you and were proud of you.

I wonder if you belonged to many "Anti-this" or "Pro-that" clubs. Did you join societies and help persuade others of your own sex and profession that work was a cruel wrong and that honest devotion to an honest employment was somehow or other a foolish kind of treason?

Did you hate the rich because they had more money than you? Did you despise the poor because they had less? Did you call every man who worked for his living a slave, and did you name every human being who owned his own home and had a savings bank account a tyrant?

Did you think the world was all wrong and nobody in it was right but you—and people who had time to talk about it with you? Were you a philanthropist—at public meetings? Were you a reformer—when you could talk about it?

Were you a bewitched speaker of fine sweetness and light, or were you, by any strange chance, in a plain, simple, good-natured man who did the work you were told to do and let your heart talk to your brain, once in a while?

I wish someone would tell us: there are so many people going up and down the earth with torches in their hands these days. Clever people, and people who are just erratic. Good people who really mean what they say, and silly people who only think they mean it.

And, sometimes, it is hard for a plain person of plain mind and simple ideas to understand just exactly what it is all about.

And it is somehow a comfort to find, once in a while, that a man can be kind and simple and understanding and contented and happy, and be loved and respected, for all that.

DIARY OF A WELL-DRESSED GIRL

By SYLVIA GERARD.

THE RAGE FOR WHITE HATS FOR MID-WINTER WEAR.

THIS is the first really cold day we've had this winter—the kind of day when you like to steal away to the library alone and sit before the fire to toast your feet on the fender and dream.

I've had some very wonderful dreams this afternoon and have also reviewed the past and found particular satisfaction in the fact that I've been able to do a few worth-while things in my life, so I'm not altogether the dreamer.

While at school I resolved to take up social work, and when I came home Dad gave me his smallest office and told me to go ahead; that he would back me in my schemes.

At the end of the first year my "dream" became a reality, for we had a settlement house with a library, gymnasium, auditorium, classrooms, etc.

Dad invested the amount that was left and the following year there was enough to build two cottages at the lake, large enough to accommodate 50 children. They are not far from our cottage, so that I can run over and keep an eye on things and help amuse the kiddies.

Last winter I asked the girls to help with a series of theatricals, the proceeds of which were to establish a fund to be loaned to any one who cared to borrow for educational purposes.

Dad and I agreed that to give it outright might appear too much like charity, while people would feel more free to borrow. The plan has proved to be a splendid success, for 11 boys and eight girls entered college this fall.

I'm wearing, He insists that I dress better for business than I do to make calls and I guess he's right. The white hat I wore this morning pleased his fancy. It is a small turban of white fox, with a cockcomb of pleated white velvet trimming the crown.

The all-white hat is to be the popular one for mid-winter wear and the milliners are showing wide-brimmed models of satin, panne velvet, fallie taffeta or felt ornamented with flowers, fur plumes or metal lace. These are particularly fashionable for afternoon or evening wear.

One stunning hat which I saw at a new shop has a covering of white satin and the extreme edge of the wide brim is bordered with silver lace. The low crown is banded with a narrow strip of the satin tied in a flat bow at the side. Sweeping back from the front is a large bunch of white paradise plumes.

She also has any quantity of small, close-fitting turbans of the Glenary and military types ornamented with braid or quills, ostrich, paradise, flowers or fur.

A chic model is of white panne velvet ornamented with tallies ermine. A narrow band of the fur trims the centre of the brim, while a flat bow of the same trimming ornaments the side.

I think the little balls of white fox or ermine that they use to trim the turbans are extremely smart also the flat but equal intervals about the crowns of the larger hats. The millinery this season is more fascinating than ever. I'd like to have 50 hats.

Turban of White Fox and Velvet.

I spend two mornings of every week at the office and enjoy them more than any others. I go down before Dad, and when he comes, an hour later, he fairly beams at me, as he admits the frock or hat

W E went to Meadowbrook in Hugh Jaynes's motor car. I was keener to see a polo match and felt my excitement rise with the steadily growing line of cars bowling rapidly over the fine Long Island roads. The day was gloriously bright—a restful world of life and color that made one's blood race like wine through the veins.

At the Polo grounds we had difficulty in finding parking space and I laughed at the pretty wonder in Mary's eyes. It was surely a scene of crowds and life. We walked a complete circuit of the grounds before we came to our particular entrance to the grand stand, and when at last we were seated Mary caught her breath with a cry of wonder. It was as if she had seen the sweep of green ahead, and the rainbow flash of the crowded grand stands. For women were holding tiny parasols of every conceivable shade above their heads and the motion made one think of the sweep of a many-colored "fame."

"Peter," said Mary in some excitement, "where did everybody get those wonderful little parasols? I didn't see any. And I must have one, mustn't I, Joan?"

"Assuredly," consented Joan readily. And Hugh and I sighed slightly, for we had made our way to our seats with considerable difficulty, and it was to be no easy matter to make our way out again merely to purchase two ridiculous little parasols.

"Punny," grumbled Hugh as we elbowed our way out and were rewarded profusely with glances and "how lovely a girl" remarks. "I didn't see any. And I must have one, mustn't I, Joan?"

"Most women," I commented wryly, "think mighty little of a man's convenience when the world is looking on. She likes to command prettily and be obeyed. Then, in the courtly fashion of ladies, it is easy and cheap to reward with a smile."

"We're grouchy," said Hugh with a grin. "Come on, Peter, here's a way out."

I stepped on a route upon a man's toe. He informed me of the fact indignantly. Hugh pushed on until he had cleared a space for me and presently we found a man selling parasols. He had just two left—one purple and one a bright cerise.

"Well," said Hugh, "the girls seemed to be quite keen about bright colors, didn't you think so? These ought certainly to do."

Wrong, After All. Feeling insanely foolish, Hugh and I returned with our parasols. We had even more difficulty in getting back than we had in coming out. Now and then we were blocked for minutes at a time out on the field men were leading the stately of nannies about wonderful, sturdy little fellows who knew the same as well as their masters. An Englishman was riding shortly about the field, his horse as superb as his consciousness of it.

"The game will begin before we get back at this rate," I said and pushed on determinedly.

I shall not forget the expression on the faces of Joan and Mary when they caught sight of the parasols in our hands. Joan gave a paroxysm of shrieks at her own and the muffled rattle of her laugh made my face burn.

"Oh, Peter, Peter," wailed Mary indignantly, "what a man! What another woman! Would you have been kinder about 'didn't you remember the color of your own eyes' at all? See, these clash horribly! The purple one doesn't so at all with Joan's gown and the cerise is worse, and they're both equally bad for me."

I felt much as the man feels who brings a girl violet and learns with a shock that she is wearing the color which goes least well with them. But I did feel that Mary might have been a little more gracious about it.

The first part of that polo game became for Mary and me a whispered argument.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am desperately in love with a boy who will not speak to me under any circumstances, and hope you will be able to help me. I went with him about a year, and so many times. While I went with him I thought I didn't care anything for him, and broke date after date. He finally broke a date with me, and being very jealous-hearted, said things to me that were simply terrible. He didn't get mad, but I believe that instant I fell in love with him, and he broke date after date with me. I would apologize but he would not pay any attention to it. Annie Laurie, if he had said to me what I said to him I never would talk to him again. Do you think it possible for him ever to forgive me? BIDDY.

WELL, Biddy, see what your temper did to you and to him. Tell him all about it, Biddy, and see what happens.

If he really cares for you he'll forgive you. If you have killed his love, the best thing you can do is to know it and get over it now, and next time don't be so hasty.

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Does Only a Single Person In 25,000 Really Think?

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

If any particular portion of your anatomy is not used, it loses its power of exertion, not to mention its efficiency. On the other hand, thoughts exercised, muscles used, and tissues put to it to carry on the endeavors of the animal, can change the very shape of nature.

Use is the hoe, the pick, the shovel, the judge, the law, and the creator of the outward make-up of the world. Curiously enough, many actions are performed by mankind which are greatly misinterpreted, so far as utility is concerned.

Men who eat predigested food, make their stomachs die a living death of atrophic uselessness. Mothers who humor a child's every whim and whimper, make the youngster an inefficient adult. Neglect of muscular efficacy spells apathy, fatty formations, nervousness, and the abomination of gods and men, self-attention, in-dribbling, the ballooning out of your own cosmos at the expense of a mental shrinkage of everything and everybody else.

This natural law in the living world has been proved long by a universe of facts.

The ostrich has in a fashion compensated the absence of one group of muscles by the development of extraordinary service in another set—the legs. Like a mule or horse he brags his muscles and runs away. The ancestor of the ostrich had the habits of a hussard. As its size and weight increased its wings were used less and less and its legs more and more.

The eyes of moles and other rodents which burrow in the ground are rudimentary in size and power from long-continued disuse. In some crabs the eye stalks remain, but there are no eyes present.

Abandonment by owls and bats of utilizing their vision, because of their nocturnal habits in the light of day, has caused the atrophy of their capacity to see objects in any kind of illumination.

If the human creature in this respect differs from any of his fellow-animals, it is, perhaps, but out-herding Herod. Man is known as a rational animal, but by disuse of his reason—it is estimated by the Philosopher Eucken that only one man in each 25,000 ever truly exercises his reason—he usually becomes a mere habit-forming being, who believes he reasons, yet never does. That is to say, man, besides neglecting to use his muscles, his various structures, his perceptions, and his senses, also fails to use his logic and his higher mental mathematics at work.

All persons who believe that Fritzy the thirteen-year-old is an unlucky day; that the ground has, seeing or not seeing his shadow, foretells the weather; that there are such things as electromagnetic storms or shocks; that medicines will cure cancer, because it happens to make good sense elsewhere; or that he can cure something because everybody has failed to prove the opposite, has allowed himself to be misled by the crowd. He is usually the cause of premature grayness, unless some severe illness has turned the hair white. So, when a young woman notices gray hairs here and there, she should use applications containing nourishing oils. Castor oil or crude oil rubbed into the scalp will produce a healthy growth of the hair. Do not use enough of the oils to make the hair greasy. Dip the tip of your finger in the oil and apply it to the scalp, rubbing it in well, so that none is absorbed by the hair itself. This should be done twice or three times a week. Each night brush the hair for at least 20 minutes and massage the scalp until the circulation is stimulated. Then apply a good hair tonic. If the hair is dry and lustreless the following is an excellent tonic:

Colony of wax ovals..... 3 ounces
Tincture of cantharides..... 1 ounce
Oil of lavender..... 1/2 dram
Tincture of cantharides..... 1/2 dram
Essence of rosemary..... 1/2 dram
Sweet almond oil..... 2 ounces

Apply this with the finger tips or a small brush. If the hair is not dry, but has become faded and lifeless, this tonic may be used.

The right way of massaging the scalp is to place the finger tips of both hands solidly against the scalp and move it around with a firm massage movement. This will cause the blood to circulate freely and bring nourishment to the roots of the hair. The scalp should be massaged for 15 or 20 minutes each day. It is a waste of time simply to move the fingers through the hair and over the surface of the scalp as if you have seen many women do.

If women will give the hair proper attention while they are young, advancing age will not leave its marks so soon. We nourish every other part of the body, but the hair is frequently neglected. It requires food and stimulants and air to keep it in a healthy condition, and if it has plenty of these it will not turn gray until we have reached an age when gray hair crowns the dignity of years.

Hockey Torontos 4 Ontarios 3

ONE GOAL VICTORY FOR BLUE SHIRTS

First Clash Between Local Pro Clubs Provided Dashing Hockey at Arena.

The first clash between the two local pro clubs developed the most interesting game of the season to date. It was strenuous hockey from bell to bell, and Torontos were hard put to stay in front of Ontario in the dying minutes of the tie and emerge winners 4 goals to 3.

Fast, slick and hotly contested many times, and the big crowd of fans had the time of their lives. The N.H.A. respect a stiff enough to suit the most fastidious. Ontario lost the honor of the game for 10 minutes in the second period, and the blue shirts rushed in four goals, which proved enough to win.

Early after relay of fresh men were mustered out by both clubs and the pace was killing through. Only in spots could combination be indicated in the forward checked from end to end and broke up the team play.

It would be a hard job to pick out any stars. Every man played with every ounce that was in him, and this will about give an idea of how good it was. Jack Walker was himself again, and he did some pretty effective work. Skinner Roman carried off the stick-handling honors, and Alf Skinner stood up to the best of them. He bumped the biggest of them and refused to take a back step. Nick Bawf, the former Winnipeg amateur, got his first trial and he made good with a vengeance. He has a barrel of speed and checks from end to end. Torontos unearthed a good defence man in Carpenter. He got himself in bad by laying George McNamara out with his crack over the head. Bawf and Marshall staged a fist fight when the latter used his stick too freely. Skinner and Cameron had a run-in, and it was this feeling all night that kept both teams hammering away for all they were worth.

Cully Wilson played like a man possessed, and Torontos can pretty much count their victory to him. He tore from end to end and broke up many a play that looked good for a goal.

Ontarios did not get any of the best of the breaks in the first period and lost one goal through offside. Cully Wilson, who goal through inches twice. Howard McNamara carried right up to the net only to miss, and Jack Walker shot at the other end high, the puck dropping right in front of the net. Bawf and Marshall were looking it out just as Wilson tore in on top of Lesener. Both goalkeepers put a scolding article, and neither either would have meant a big score.

It was not as rough as some of the fans would think, but it was the most strenuous kind, but it was mostly clean. The first period ended without a score.

Something happened to the Ontarios at the start of the second period, and Torontos were there to rack in the goals they had in the first round and Cully Wilson made them look weak with his brilliant dashes around the net. He hit the first counter after both Walker and Foyston had missed. Wilson shot the puck in from right in front of the net. Wilson came right back again, rushing up to the net, but Lesener turned it aside. Cameron opened up with a rush and carried it close enough to beat the Ontario goalie. Torontos kept right at it and Wilson carried it in close, gave Foyston a pass and the rubber was in the net. Cameron came again with a grand rush and scored all by himself. Denney intercepted Marshall's pass close in and scored Ontario's first counter. He came back before the period was over with another, this time from outside the defence.

The last period was fast and furious and Ontario tried hard to tie it. It took Bawf 15 minutes to get the only tally of the round, and he did it nicely, getting a pass right in front of the net. The players mixed it all the way, and the crowd nearly went wild. Wilson ching-ed their forwards many times in this period in an effort to get the tying goal, but just failed. It was the most exciting game of many moons and the crowd went away satisfied.

CHAMPIONS GOING IN GREAT STYLE

Berlin Swamp Waterloo—What the Out-of-Town Teams Did—Scores.

BERLIN, Ont., Jan. 6.—On a sheet of soft, sticky ice which made fast play necessarily difficult, Berlin whitewashed Waterloo intermediates 10 to 0. It was a complete walkover, and while Waterloo worked hard they were outplayed by the fast Berlin squad at all stages of the game.

The teams:
 Referee—J. Nixon, Toronto.

BEACHES LEAGUE OPENS SEASON

The Beaches Hockey League senior series was opened last night at the Riverside Hockey arena, when two fast games were played. Mayor-elect Church faced the puck. The first game went twenty minutes overtime before St. Pauls finally pulled out winners before Danforth by the score of 5 to 4. The ice was a little sticky, but very good, considering the weather. In the first half the Danforth team had the edge on their opponents and got a terrific pace, and soon ran up a bit lead, making the score at half-time 4 to 2 in their favor. In the second half the Danforth team called twice before the period ended, tying the score. After that it was just a question of endurance, and the first three overtimes periods went scoreless. With about two minutes to play, Collins drove one from well out, and it found the corner of the net, giving the victory to St. Pauls. The teams:

St. Pauls (5)—Goal, E. Collett; defence, Green and Dickson; rover, Lewis; centre, Collins; right wing, Applegate; left wing, Gilmore.
 Referee—L. Brown.

The second game was a battle royal, St. Francis, by netting one in the first half, and the first three overtimes scoreless to the finish. Both teams were fighting right up to the bell, and both goalkeepers were called upon to save frequently. The teams:

St. Francis (1)—Goal, Ryan; defence, J. Finley and Broderick; rover, Royce; centre, A. Lawrence; right wing, L. Lawrence; left wing, C. Finley.
 Referee—J. Labatt.

The Eastern series will open with a double-header on Saturday night.

ORILLIA INTERMEDIATES GOOD

MIDLAND, Ont., Jan. 6.—The first O. H. A. intermediate game, starting the season of 1915 was played here tonight before a good crowd on very sticky ice, before Ontario and Midland. Score: First period, one all; second period, three all, and full time, 6 to 4 in favor of home team. Line:

 Referee—G. Caldwell, Barrie.

WON VAN VLACK CUP SHOOTING PIGEONS

The Toronto Rod and Gun Club's annual live pigeon championship and the Van Vlack Memorial Cup were won by J. A. MacKenzie after a most spirited contest with W. Gooderman, scoring 37 out of 40. Mr. Gooderman was a handi-capped man, and he carried a gold medal, and must be won three times in succession to become the property of the winner. It was donated by the president of the club, Mr. Roy Van Vlack, in remembrance of his father, the late Dr. L. Van Vlack, 29 years ago a famous trap shooter and currier.

Mackie & McCammon, resulted in a win for the latter, 39-28; the second game brought together V. Mackie & McCammon, and while the score was tied at half time the strain of two games was too much for McCammon's team and Mackie had it all his own way in the final half, running up a 44-22 score. Osler have teams in every grade of the Playground Hockey League, and while the boys have been unable to get in any practices yet, when they do get started they can be depended upon to give a good account of themselves.

ATHLETIC RECORDS

Our old friend "Pop" displays his usual energy and accuracy in compiling the official record book of the track, field and flood in Canada. May his shadow never grow less. The little book is practically indispensable to those interested in games and races, especially the newspaper office. The publication is issued by the Canadian Athletic Record Co., Toronto. The athletic record book appeared a day after the hockey guide, but the curling annual is still being eagerly looked for in vain.

FAST PACING AT DUFFERIN PARK

Homer Mack Wins in Straight Heats, the First Close to World's Record.

Ol Sol did not shine out in all his glory for the opening of the ice races yesterday at Dufferin Park, under the auspices of the Dufferin Driving Club. On the other hand, Jupiter Pluvius was there with bells on. Still, the races were of the best, and those in attendance witnessed some of the finest harness contests possible. The fields were not large, but were evenly balanced, and how they did race! The attendance was extra good, considering the day, many from a distance being noticed in the crowd.

The 2:35 pace was the first race. The original entry list was eleven, but only six horses scored for the wood, still being favorite in the pools, selling $50, and the whole field against him about the same money. Maggie C. was split-favorite, under the auspices of Rochester, N.Y., who is starting judge, had the best command of his fields. He gave the driver a nice lead before each race, and asked for their co-operation, and it would cause less scoring and save much time, with very little delay.

Fast Pacing.

The 2:09 pace was the next even carded. Six very classy pacers came to the wire. Homer Mack (2:08 1/2), owned by J. W. McLean, a wealthy western gentleman, who owns a ranch of 6000 acres, and who owns and races his horses for the pure pleasure, was in attendance to see his good horse come within a quarter of a second of the world's record on ice over a half-mile track, in a race, Homer Mack stepped the first heat in 2:13 1/2. Gratian Royal, driven by Ned Raybold, in 1912, over Dufferin track, stepped the first mile in a race in 2:13 1/2, and it still holds good. Homer Mack won in straight heats, Rouse's Point Boy getting second money, Grand Opera third. The three miles were 2:13 1/2, 2:15, 2:15 1/2. The third race carded was for 2:30 trotters. This race also remains unfinished. Sanatol won the first heat, but was set back for continued running. Jean T. won the second heat, and set up one position, giving her the heat, with Dams Dams second and Aloy D. third. Time 2:25 1/2. Aloy won the next two heats in 2:23 1/2 and 2:23. Dams Donnie finishing second and third and Sanatol third and
