The ministerial session of the St. John district of the Methodist church was continued in the Queen square Methodist church this morning, Rev. C. W. Hamilton presiding. THE STRIKE IN THE MILLS

There was very little change in the situation between the mill owners and the striking employes today. Miss Miller's Pabst mill was closed down last night as the pilots had worked as long as they had agreed to.

QUESTION OF OFFERINGS IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS

The Sunday school conference in Trinity church schoolroom was resumed this morning at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. Canon Harrover spoke on the subject of offerings in the school. He was opposed to their practice of giving children pennies for their contributions, advocating the plan of more responsibility on the little ones by giving more largely. He also favored the idea of having the children's contributions used for general church work instead of for a specific object.

AWFUL EXPLOSION OF BRITISH STEAMER RESULTS IN DEATH OF NINE MEN

Barrel of Naphtha Exploding Kills Nine Men and Injures Forty on International Navigation Company's Steamer Haverford--Firemen on Other Steamers of Same Line Conspire for Higher Wages.

LIVERPOOL, June 14.—Nine men were killed and about forty were wounded as the result of a terrific explosion this morning on board the British steamer Haverford, of the International Navigation Company. The vessel, which is commanded by Captain Neilson, arrived here yesterday from Philadelphia, landed her passengers and proceeded to Huskisson dock early today in order to unload. The stevedores were in the act of unloading the hatches when the explosion occurred. It blew off the hatches, rent the decks and hurled dead and wounded men in all directions. Several bodies were dismembered, and the dock resembled the floor of a charnel house. The explosion, which, according to rumor, was caused by an infernal machine, was followed by an outbreak of fire. The cargo, consisting of several oil casks, in hold No. 2 and hold No. 3, was soon burning fiercely.

A. Rev. David Lang will officiate at the ceremony in the chapel.

THAT MONCTON LAND PURCHASE

Minister of Railways, General Manager Pottinger and G. H. Hewson on the Stand. OTTAWA, June 14.—(Special)—In the committee of public accounts this morning G. H. Hewson, a solicitor of Moncton, N. B., through whom some 19 acres of land required by the I. C. R. for extension of the railway was purchased, was recalled. He stated to Mr. Emmerson that he was a Conservative and for some 12 years had been a member and officer in the party association. For some years he had been endeavoring to sell land to the government railway but the time it was held at $1000 an acre and he had heard of other land being sold at $2000 per acre. That was for land across the street from land which the government had purchased, of the latter question, however, he had no personal knowledge.

The pumping was kept up nearly forty-eight hours, with an output of about one hundred and twenty gallons per minute. The test was watched by Willis Chipman, civil engineer of Toronto, Mayor Montgomery and Alderman Liblouis for the town.

FELL THIRTY FEET FROM KING STREET EAST ROOF

George T. McNutt, a carpenter, employed by Mr. Myles, while working on a two-story house owned by E. F. Greany on King street east, this morning fell from the roof to the sidewalk, sustaining very serious injuries. He was engaged in making some repairs, and in pulling out a board he lost his balance and fell to the sidewalk, a distance of about thirty feet. He was picked up and carried to the hospital of F. I. Tuffin and Dr. T. D. Walker summoned. It was found that an arm was broken, his back severely hurt and serious internal injuries are feared. Dr. Walker made the man as comfortable as possible and, announcing the ambulance, had him conveyed to the hospital. Those on the spot at the accident remarked that it was almost a miracle that the man was not killed, as he struck the asphalt side-walk with great force.

"Twenty pistoles were a fair price for the packet, but monsieur forgets who wear and tear on my conscience have cost for him. I must be reimbursed for that."

"Conscience, qu'on!"

"Certainly, monsieur. I am in my way as honest a man as you in yours. I have never been false to the hand that fed me. If, therefore, I divert to you a certain packet which of rights goes elsewhere, my sin must be made worth my while. My conscience will sting me sorely, but with the aid of a glass and a lens I may contrive to forget the pain."

"Nirrh, my love, and Folly-dee, in baggages, you're welcome here!"

"I fix the injury to my conscientious thirty pistoles, M. le Comte. Fifty in all will bring the packet to your hand."

"I had been a pleasure to M. le Comte to fling a tankard in the fellow's face. But the steadfast determination to win the papers for Monsieur, and possibly to avenge for Peyrot's weapon, withheld him. Very well, then, in the cabinet of the Bonne Femme at eleven. You may do as you like about exposing; I shall be there with my fifty pistoles."

"What guaranty have I that you will deal fairly with me?"

"The word of a St. Quentin!"

"Sufficient, of course."

"The scamp rose with a bow."

"Well, I have not the word-of-a gentleman to offer you, but I give you my opinion of Jean Peyrot, sometime Father Augustin, that he stole the packet will be there. This has been a delightful call, monsieur, and I am loath to let you go. But it is time I was free to look for that packet."

"M. Etienne's eyes went over to the chest."

"I wish you all success in your quarrels, our search."

"It is like to be, in truth, a long and weary search," Peyrot sighed. "My ignorance of the perpetrators of the outrage makes my task difficult indeed. But rest assured, monsieur, that I shall question every man in Paris, if need be. I shall leave no stone unturned."

"M. Etienne still persistently regarded the chest."

"If you leave no key (unturned), 'will be more to the purpose."

"You appear yet to nurse the belief that I have the packet. But as a matter of fact, monsieur, I have not."

"I studied his grave face, and could not for the life of me make out whether he were lying. M. Etienne said nothing."

"Come, Felix."

"You'll drink a glass before you go?" Peyrot cried hospitably, running to fill a golden middy with his last pouring. But M. Etienne drew back.

"Well, I don't blame you. I wouldn't drink it myself if I were a count," Peyrot said, setting the draught to his own lips. "After this noon I shall drink it no more all summer. I shall live like a king."

"Kiss me, Folly! hug me, Nirrh! Life without you's nothing worth!"

"Monsieur, can I lend you a hat?"

"You have boasted," M. Etienne went on, "that your side was up and mine down. Did you not reflect that some my side may be up and yours down, you would hardly be at such pains to deny that you ever brandished against the Duke of St. Quentin?"

"I have made my declaration in the presence of two witnesses, far too honorable to falsify, that I knew nothing of the attack on the duke," Peyrot repeated with apparent satisfaction. "But of course it is possible that by securing Paris, I might get on the scent of your packet. Twenty pistoles though, that is not much."

M. Etienne stood silent, drumming his toes on the table, not pleased with the turn of the matter, not seeing how to better it. Had we been sure of our suspicions we would have charged him, pistol or no pistol, trusting that our question would prevent his shooting, or that the powder would miss fire, or that the ball would fly wide, or that we should be hit in no vital part; trusting, in short, that God was with us and would in some fashion save us. But we could not be sure that the packet was with Peyrot. What we had heard him lock in the chest might have been these very pistoles that he had afterwards taken out again. Three men had fled from M. de Mirabeau's ally; we had no means of knowing whether this Peyrot, where he who runs as we came up, he whom I had encountered, or he who had engaged M. Etienne. And did we know that would not tell us which of the three attacked and plundered Hugnot. Peyrot might have the packet, or he might know who had it, or he might be in honest ignorance of its existence. If he had it, it were a crying shame to pay out honest money for what we might take by force; to buy our own goods from a thief were a sin. But suppose he did it not? If we could seize upon him, disarm him, bind him, threaten him, rack him, would he—granted he knew—reveal its whereabouts? Plainly the game was in Peyrot's hands. If you will put the packet into my hands, seal unbroken, this day at eleven, I engage to meet you with twenty pistoles," M. Etienne said.

"I had already opened the door and was holding it for my master to pass, when Peyrot picked up from the floor and held out to him a hattered and dirty toque, with its dragged feather hanging forlornly over the side. Chafed as he was, M. Etienne could not deny a laugh to the toque's impudence."

"I cannot rob monsieur," he said.

"M. le Comte need have no scruple. I shall buy me better out of his fifty pistoles."

But M. Etienne was out in the passage, following, banging the door after me. We went down the stairs in time for Peyrot's last carding:

"Nirrh! I'll keep, though riches fly, While Folly's sure to linger by."

"Thank you, you'll get the packet," he said.

"Aye, I think he wants his fifty pistoles. Monsieur! it's calling to let this dog see the terms."

"Monsieur," I cried, "perhaps he'll not stir at once. I'll run home for Vigo and his men, and we'll make the road dangerous."

"Now, you are more zealous than honest, boy."

"I had not been afraid to try conclusions with him, pistols or not, were I sure there is the chance that, after all, in this one particular he speaks truth. I cannot rob monsieur; I must get those papers for Monsieur."

"Yes, we could not have done otherwise," M. Etienne said. "But, monsieur, will you go to this inn? M. le Comte is a man in jeopardy; he may not keep rendezvous of the enemy's chousing."

"I might not see one of La Roche's chousing. Though," he added, with a smile, "I think I should. But it is not likely the fellow knows of the warrant against me. Paris is a big place; news does not travel all over town as quickly as at St. Quentin. I think I shall have more to gain by playing fair than playing false, and appointing the cabinet of the Bonne Femme has a very open, pleasing sound. Did he mean to keep me he would scarce have set that place."

"It was not Peyrot alone I meant. But monsieur is so well known. In the streets or at the dinner-table, some one may see you who knows M. Etienne is after you."

"Oh, of that I must take my chance," he made answer, no whit troubled by the warning. "I go home now for the ransom and I will be on the spot to doff this gear for something darker."

"Monsieur," I pleaded, "why not stay at home to get your cloak of sleep? Vigo will bring the gold; heard I will put the matter through."

"I ask not your advice," he cried laughingly, then with instant softening: "Nirrh, this is my affair, Felix. I have taken it upon myself to recover Monsieur's papers. I must carry it through myself to the very omens."

I said no more, partly because it would have done no good, partly because, in spite of the strange words, I understood how he felt.

"Perhaps you should go home and sleep the suggested remedy."

"Nirrh," I cried. "I had a cat-nap in the lane; I'm game to see it through."

"Then," he commanded, "you may stay hereabouts and watch that door. For I have some curiosity to know whether he will need to fare forth after the treasure. If he do as I guess, he will spend the next few hours as you counsel me, making up arrears of sleep, and you'll not see him till a quarter of six before eleven. But whenever he comes out, follow him. Keep your safe distance and dog him if you can."

"And if I lose him?"

"Come back home. Station yourself now where he won't notice you. That area there should serve."

We had been standing at the street corner, sheltered by a balcony over our heads from the view of Peyrot's window.

"Monsieur," I said, "do you wish you would bring Vigo back with you?"

"Felix," he laughed, "you are the most courteous, I ever saw."

I crossed the street as he told me, glancing up at the third story of the house of the Gilded Sinner. No watcher was visible. From the archedway, which was an entrance to a court of tall houses, I could well command Peyrot's door, myself in deep shadow. M. Etienne added to me and walked off whistling staring full in the face every one he met.

I would fain have occupied myself as we guessed the leave Peyrot to be doing, and what mine aching eyes in sleep. But I was sternly determined to be faithful to my trust, and though my eye grew comfort-cold enough comfort it was—I sat me down on the paving stone, yet I kept my eyes wide awake and my carcase in Peyrot's door. I was helped in carrying out my virtuous resolve by the fact that the count was peevish and my carcase in deep shadow. M. Etienne added to me and walked off whistling staring full in the face every one he met.

glance at him. A slight shade fell over the reckless scampish face; he was a moment vexed that we scorned him. Merely vexed, I think; ashamed not at all, he knew not the feel of it. Even in the brief space I watched him, as I passed to the door, his visage cleared, and he sat him down contentedly to finish M. Etienne's vest broth.

"My lord paced along rapidly and gladly, on first to be before Monsieur with the packet. But one little cloud, transient as Peyrot's, passed across his lightsome countenance."

"I would that I knew were of my rank," he said. "I had not left him without slipping a glove in his face."

This Peyrot had come off scot-free put me out of patience, too, but I regretted the gold we had given him more than the wounds we had not. The money, on the contrary, troubled M. Etienne no whit; what he had never tolled for he parted with lightly.

We came to our gates and went straightway up the stairs to Monsieur's cabinet. His going to meet us at the door, snatching the packet from his son's eager hand.

"Well done, Etienne, my champion! An you brought me the crown of France I were not so pleased!"

The flush of joy as generous praise of good work kindled on M. Etienne's cheek; it were hard to say which of the two messieurs beamed the more delightedly on the other.

"My son, you have brought me back my honor," spoke Monsieur, more quietly, the exuberance of his delight abating, but leaving him none the less happy. "If you had aimed against me—which I do not admit, dear lad—it were more than made up for now."

"Ah, Monsieur, I have often asked myself of late what I was born for. Now I know it was for this morning."

"For this and many more mornings, Etienne," Monsieur made gay answer, laying a hand on his son's shoulder. "Courage, comrade. We'll have our lady yet."

He smiled at him heartily and turned away to his writing-table. For all his company, he was, as was natural, more interested in the papers than in M. de Montaur.

Does Your FOOD Digest Well?

When the food is imperfectly digested the full benefit is not derived from it by the body and the purpose of eating is defeated. It matters how good the food is, how carefully adapted to the wants of the body it may be. Thus the dyspeptic often becomes thin, weak and debilitated, energy is lacking, brightness, snap and vim are lost, and in their place come dullness, loss of appetite, depression and languor. It is of great knowledge to know when one has indigestion, some of the following symptoms generally attend it: flatulency, sour stomach, variable appetite, headache, heartburn, gas in the stomach, etc.

The great point is to cure it, to get back bounding health and vigor.

The Cost

of a flour is always an important item to a careful housekeeper, but the results obtained with it should be considered when estimating the cost. A cheap flour, giving poor results on baking day, is dear at any price, whilst one costing a few cents more per bag and giving better results is cheaper in the end.

"Five Roses" Flour will, pound for pound, make more bread and better bread or pastry than any ordinary brands. Consequently, although its price may be higher, it is more economical in the end, as it saves time and trouble and guarantees good results.

James Kent Manager of the C. P. R. Telegraph Company Talks of Increasing Facilities

"The C. P. R. Telegraph," said James Kent this morning, "has made considerable progress in the work of increasing facilities to be carried on this year, having completed the erection of a new copper wire from Montreal to St. John, N. B., another from Montreal to Toronto, an iron wire from Toronto to Lindsay, and an extra copper wire from Montreal to Winnipeg, making a total of 2,316 miles of copper wire. An idea may be formed as to the large amount of new work being carried on this year from the fact that seventy large freight cars have been required for the carriage of material, in addition to those necessary to transport poles and cross arms, which require about eight hundred flat cars. We have now five hundred tons of iron wires expected to arrive shortly, and which will be strung as soon as possible. This will be used for the construction of new branch lines throughout the North-West."—Montreal Witness.

THE EVENING TIMES, ST. JOHN, N. B., THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 1906.

THE EVENING TIMES. ST. JOHN, N. B., JULY 14, 1906.

The St. John Evening Times is published at 27 and 29 Canterbury Street, every evening (Sunday excepted) by the St. John Times Printing & Publishing Co., Ltd. A corporation incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Act. A. M. BELFORD, Editor. JOHN RUSSELL, JR., President.

THE MILLMEN'S MEETING. Mayor Sears was eminently judicious in his address to the millmen last evening. He expressed sympathy with all working men, but so far as the present dispute is concerned he frankly told them that he did not as yet understand the situation well enough to express an opinion. He expressed the hope, however, that there would be a speedy settlement.

DIRECTOR CUSHING. Director Cushing is to be congratulated on his re-appointment to office, at an increased salary. The city council is hardly to be congratulated on the manner in which it has dealt with this question of the directorship.

SPLIT OVER SOCIALISM. There is trouble in the Western Federation of Miners, over the question of Socialism. One leading member, who is opposed to the socialists, has made the following statement: "The trouble with the federation is that socialism is spreading. The days of rule by force have passed. The laboring man must get his rights by other means than violence. Mobs cannot secure justice. Socialists reason illogically that conditions must be worse before they can be better. This spirit is what the Butte union does not want to see. Its policy is one of peace. Butte is tired of putting up money for agitators."

POST OFFICE EMPLOYEES. Supporting the plea of post office employees for an increase in salary, the Montreal Gazette says: "The service has suffered because of the inability to secure the right class of men for the wages offered. A postal official should be a man of intelligence, able to work quickly and correctly. There is always a demand for men of this description, and they would not enter the postal service when opportunities outside offered better inducements. Their unwillingness to enter the service was strengthened by the treatment received by those who had entered. At the end of the last fiscal year, for instance, there were 67 clerks in the inside service of the Montreal post office who were there in 1896. Of these 67 no less than 29 were drawing the same rate of pay as they drew in 1896. The remaining 38 had had increases. The total of these increases was $1,080, or an average increase per man of $64. In no case had the increase of any one man averaged $50 per year. The general average of increase per man of those who did secure increases was only $16.40 per year, and of the 67 men only $11.40 per year. This sort of thing does not offer any inducement to the right kind of man. The result is that the average of ability has gone down. The post office employees have a good right to an increase in the general scale of salaries paid on account of the increased cost of living, but the strongest argument in favor is the necessity of making the pay good enough to attract the right kind of men."

INTERESTING FIGURES. The Ottawa Journal, discussing the question of church union, is hopeful of the result, and gives some interesting figures. It says: "The successful issue of these negotiations will in all probability result in the consummation of a general union of all Protestant bodies in Canada, for already it has been decided to open negotiations with the Baptists. With the exception of the Lutherans, this would include all denominations of any strength outside the Roman Catholic church, and the Lutherans have much in common with the other churches affected by the movement. According to the last census, the chief religious bodies numbered among their adherents, the following: Roman Catholics 2,228,907, Methodists 916,892, Presbyterians 842,301, Anglicans 680,346, Baptists 340,977, Lutherans 92,384, Congregationalists 28,283.

Some small boys have got into trouble by playing ball on the street. They chose the foot of Canterbury street, one that is very little frequented by teams; but the team came along, and as a result the boys were summoned to the police court. This is an old, old story. It will be told in summers of years to come, as long as the people refuse to provide playgrounds and thus make outlaws of the boys. The person hit by a ball in play is not so much aimed against as the children who are deprived of the right to be children and act as children.

The province of British Columbia is flourishing in all departments, but especially in mining and lumbering. There has been in the last few years a remarkable increase in the number of sawmills in the province. The mineral output for 1905 was valued at $22,461,325, an increase of $3,483,938 over the preceding year. The copper output increased $1,268,185, lead increased $977,184, coal $263,632, silver $825,302, and gold $107,494. The mineral yield this year will doubtless be still greater.

Mr. Copp M. P. appears to be singularly misinformed with reference to the attitude of St. John people toward an improved steamer service to Digby. If there is one thing more than another the St. John Board of Trade stands for, it is better communication in all directions from the port of St. John. The Tourist Association and the citizens generally agree with the views of the board.

After inspiring a doubt whether it would endorse the general idea of a union between Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists, the Presbyterian General Assembly yesterday enlarged the scope of the union discussion to take in Anglicans and Baptists. This union movement is making headway at a more rapid rate than even its warmest advocates anticipated.

The rapidity with which the Western country is filling up, says an exchange, is indicated by the increasing sales of C. P. R. homestead lands, and higher prices which are being given for them. During May sales amounted to 69,290 acres at a total price of $537,733 as compared with 58,095 acres for $280,796 during the same month last year.

By a judicious deal in real estate with the government a Moncton man is said to have cleaned up $8,725 in a few weeks. The same sort of thing is done in private speculation every day, or whenever opportunity occurs, but governments are expected, at least by the opposition, to be sharper than other people in regard to such matters.

A Quebec despatch of Tuesday's date says: "Since the opening of navigation, 39,800 transatlantic passengers arrived at Quebec, being an average of 1,000 per day up to and including Saturday, the 8th inst. the majority of the immigrants being bound for the North-West."

TO MAKE CANNED MEAT FIT TO EAT. WASHINGTON, June 13. — The house committee on agriculture presented tonight a meat inspection provision which, the committee declares, will insure that American meats and meat products shall be wholesome and fit for food. The legislation provides for the inspection before and after killing of all animals slaughtered for food, requires a government label as a passport for all meat and meat products which enter interstate commerce and in addition a certificate of purity to the carrier and to the secretary of agriculture when such products enter foreign commerce. This label can only be secured when the product is handled in accordance with the sanitary regulations prescribed by the secretary of agriculture who is empowered to employ an adequate corps of inspectors, the cost of the inspection to be borne by the government and an annual automatic appropriation of $2,000,000 is made for expenses. The use of deleterious preservatives or chemicals in the preparation of meat foods is prohibited and heavy penalties will be inflicted for violation of any of the provisions. A special penalty is provided against the bribery of inspectors.

A SUMMER MORNING. Oh, the beauty of the morning! It showers its splendor down From the crimson robes of sunrise, the azure mountain's crown: It smiles amid the waving fields, it dapples in the stream. It breathes its sparkling music through the rapture of our dream. It floats upon the limpid air in rainbow-clouds of mist, It ripples through the glowing skies in pearl and amethyst, It gleams in every burnished pool, it riots through the grass, It splashes waves of glory on the shadows as they pass. It steals among the nodding trees and to the forest crown, In airy soft and gentle voice, "neath waning plumbline; It calls and tolls the wooded brakes, the hills and tangled ferns— A world of life and mystery—swarm with its denture. It trembles in the perfumed breeze, and where its ardor runs, A thousand light-winged choristers pant forth their notes of praise. A thousand echoes clap their hands, and a million scarlet-throated flowers peer forth with startled heads. Oh, the beauty of the morning! It rains upon our lives. The music of the universe, the chiming of the spheres, From cloistered wood and leafy vale, its liquid melody, Till all the earth is drenched in light, and all the world is glad. ELISHA SAFFORD.

IN LIGHTER VEIN. THE DENTIST'S TROUBLES. "You say you had to give the patient chloroform twice?" "Yes," replied the dentist. "I had to give it to him the second time to extract the money."—Detroit Free Press. A GENTLE HINT. "Most actors," remarked the talkative boarder, "seem to think they can't get too far front on the billboard." "Yes," interrupted Mrs. Starvem. "Quite unlike some other people who believe they can't get too far back on the board bill."—Philadelphia Ledger. THE BRUTE. His Wife—"John, dear, the doctor says I need a change of climate." Her Husband—"All right. The weather prophet says it will be colder tomorrow." WITH THE WINDOW OPEN. "I've got to practice on the piano five hours a day," said the disconsolate small girl. "What for?" "Cause mother and father don't like our new neighbors." THE TEST APPLIED. Banquo—"I say, old man, can you keep a secret? Well, Smiggins told me in confidence that—" Elmore—"Hold on! Can you keep a secret?" Banquo—"I? Why, yes, certainly." Elmore—"Then you'd better do so." DID SHE FAINT? The following is a fragment from a love-letter: "How I wish, my darling Adelaide, my engagements would permit me to leave town and come and see you! It would be like visiting some old ruin, hallowed by time and fraught with a thousand recollections." NO GRAFT FOR HIM. "Is the new bookkeeper strictly honest and trustworthy?" asked the silent partner. "You bet he is!" said the business manager. "He saw so much graft and corruption in the last place where he held a job that he acquired a large disgust for all kinds of crookedness. In fact, I consider him almost offensively straight."—Chicago Tribune.

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS. MONCTON, N. B., June 12.—James Flavin, a former Moncton man, who returned last night from the States after a sentence of three or four years, was committed for trial this afternoon by Police Magistrate Kay on a charge of robbing a passenger named Docie Savoy, who was traveling from St. John to Amherst. Flavin was arrested on the arrival of last night's express here. Savoy's purse and a small sum of money and a razor were found on Flavin. Flavin contended he bought the articles from Savoy for 50 cents, but a fellow passenger swore he saw Flavin going through Savoy's pockets while the latter slept.

THE PEOPLE RESPONSIBLE. (Boston Herald). There is a wild swirl of talk and print about corrupt state legislatures all over the Union. But it is not always easy to see why the public should be so painfully shocked by the disclosures. The responsibility begins with the public and will end there. If the public will choose corruptible men the public must take the consequences. And it is gravely doubtful if there is any corruptionist who is not known to be such in the constituency which he "represents." If his failing be not known it is against the public that he is to blame. Public indifference is the public enemy. Enthusiasts claim that public indifference has given place to a general zeal. For proof they point to the elections of the past two years in many centers hitherto known as hotbeds of corruption. But one swallow does not make a summer, and a brace of elections does not constitute a reform. When the public will work as hard and as constantly as the corruptionist they will end corruption, and not before. The buying of a legislature is probably impossible in these days. The buying of individual legislators here and there is unhappily facilitated by the known weakness of human nature. In most large bodies there are men of indifferent moral force. But they do not rule the organizations. And, by the way, some gain will be made if people use the word "corruption" instead of "graft." Call a spade a spade. Use the uglier word for the uglier thing.

Former Meat Inspector and Secretary He Accuses

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 13.—President Roosevelt and James Wilson, his secretary of agriculture, did not need a sensational novel to inform them of the grave and pressing necessity for a reorganization of the meat inspection service of the Bureau of Animal Industry in western packing houses. Not only once, but many times, were the president, Mr. Wilson and the former chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry informed that the service was radically wrong; was conducted by persons who were habitually negligent and managed in such a manner as to injure health. This information was conveyed to them all officially by one of the best known inspectors in the service. He appealed for reformation to the chief of the bureau, to Mr. Wilson and to the president. The Herald presents today voluminous extracts from the correspondence.

The man who gave the government the information which should have led to reformation years ago, instead of now, is Dr. J. C. Milnes, a trained veterinarian, who was in the service from 1898 until 1905, and was stationed at various times at Kansas City, Leavenworth, Wichita, Waterloo and Chicago.

Dr. Milnes seems to have been a conscientious worker for the government. He deemed it to be the duty of an inspector to inspect. He became unpopular with

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Question of Union With Anglicans and Baptists to be Considered --- New Treasurer Appointed.

LONDON, Ont. June 14.—The report on church union was again discussed by the General Assembly yesterday morning. After much discussion it was decided to enlarge the scope of the deliberations to admit Anglicans and Baptists. At the afternoon session the assembly appointed Alex. Warden to the vacant trusteeship at a salary of $200. He is the son of the well known late Dr. R. H. Warden; is only 27 years old and has been all his business life of eight years in the service of the church, and will now stand financial crises equal to the presidency of more than $200,000 of contributions went through his hands, and a total of $3,000,000 handled. There was no other candidate mentioned in the assembly.

They have, however, passed a code of rules to govern the appointment, and of the adjustment of the duties Dr. John Somerville, of Owen Sound, was elected joint clerk and statistician at a salary of $3,000 which appointment was unanimous. There will now be two men who will share the duties performed so well by the late official, yet both will not equal his salary.

DIPHTHERIA AT NEW ZION

BRIMG'S CORNER, June 12.—A virulent form of diphtheria has broken out in New Zion, Sunbury county.

Three members of the family of William Graves have been taken down with the disease, his wife and two children, one of the latter a babe of ten months old has died, and the other two are improving.

Two members of the family of Gideon George were sick with the same disease, but the attending physician, Dr. Nugent, is hopeful of their recovery.

The question of supplying free anti-toxin to these poor families will be laid before the municipal council of Sunbury at the approaching meeting next week, when proper steps will in all probability be taken to lighten the burden of expense on the afflicted families of New Zion.

George Langin, a youth of fifteen summers, engaged at the head of the chute in King's mill, where the lumber is taken from the mill to the wharf, met with a severe accident by being drawn in by a wheel and whirled round until all his clothes were stripped from his body, with the exception of his boots and socks. George was able to walk home, but his bruises were sufficient to confine him to bed.

A tea meeting and fancy sale is announced by posters to be held in the Orange Hall at Brim's Corner on Thursday, the 21st of June, in aid of the new Baptist church. A committee of ladies has charge of the business, and as the fancy sale opens in the morning they intend to have dinner at twelve and tea at four, making a moderate charge for expenses.

THE S. S. CONVENTION

The Sunday school conference resumed at session yesterday afternoon in Trinity church. The following telegram was sent to His Lordship Bishop Kingdon:

To the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Fredericton:

"The Diocesan Sunday School Conference now in session send affectionate greetings and regret your lordship's enforced absence through illness; praying the Great Head of the Church to sustain and bless you."

A valuable address on Sunday school organization was given by Rev. Canon Harrower, of New York.

At the evening session, at which Rev. Canon Harrower took the chair, Rev. Canon Harrower spoke on the great need of men teachers in the Sunday schools.

MONCTON NEWS

MONCTON, June 13.—Although this is the quiet time in freight traffic on the Intercolonial, yet just at present there is considerable coal moving over the road. The coal being hauled is for the I. C. R. and comes from Cape Breton.

Prof. Moses White, a former resident and leader of the old Moncton cornet band, is making a name for himself in Boston, to which city he took up from St. John a few years ago. Prof. White is a talented violinist, and recently composed a symphony which is to be rendered next at the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The members of the different railway brotherhoods on Sunday next will attend divine service in a body in the United Baptist church. Rev. E. B. McLatchey will deliver an oration specially for the brotherhood men.

The annual roll call of the United Baptist church will be held tomorrow night. Rev. F. S. Bamford of St. John will be the preacher for the occasion.

O. E. Renne, a well known Toronto traveller, representing J. Harris Co., and uncle and aunt of the late hon. J. C. McLean, were in Moncton, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Dennison.

The staff of the branch Bank of New Brunswick, which opened its doors here on Monday last for business, consists at present of A. E. Williams, manager; B. E. Fielding, accountant; and L. F. Gross and G. S. Graves, junior clerks.

COMEAU-BURNS

Six Months in "2 in 1"

A Consulting Chemist Makes a Novel Experiment. An Unsolicited Letter that Explains Itself.

"I write to state that on account of your '2 in 1' Shoe Polish being criticized, and the charge made that it injured leather, I made this test as follows:

I mixed the contents of a bottle of '2 in 1' Shoe Polish, bought at a retail store from regular stock, with four ounces of water and into this mixture put a kid glove, and left the said glove in the mixture in a bottle from June 16th to December 16th, 1905—a full six months.

I hereby state that these facts are correct and true.

THE RING

SHARKEY GIVES ADVICE.

NEW YORK, June 12.—"If fighters would quit the ring after they get two good knockings there would be better boxing in the athletic asylums, and more room in the ring today," said Tom Sharkey today.

EVERY YANKEE IN LONDON IS CALLED "MILLIONAIRE"

New York World Attempts to Create Idea that British Metropolitan Fawns Upon "Yankee" Visitors—Say Needed Dowerers are Pining to Introduce Them to Exclusive Society for a Consideration.

The New York World publishes the following as a special dispatch: "LONDON, June 9.—Nothing can make London believe that every American here is not a millionaire, unless he is a multimillionaire or a 'king' of this or that."

"The newspapers seem with descriptions of Americans and accounts of what they are doing. The great hotels—Claridge's, the Savoy, the Carlton, the New Ritz—are the centres of this feverish interest in Americans. Believe the newspapers and every American in these hotels is about as wealthy as was Croesus and Midas, as all the Rothschilds. The truth is that the vast majority of these Americans first learn that they are millionaires from the London newspapers.

"Claridge's is the only hotel where an American who really is a millionaire can hope to obtain privacy. When the Vanderbilts, the William Rockefellers and the Waldenfelds were staying at Claridge's last year they summoned the manager and told him that they would leave immediately if anything more about their doings in the hotel appeared in the newspapers.

"Doyle's Ogden Armour will give the same warning at the New Ritz, where he has engaged a suite for next week. But it will severely tax the resources of the management to bar the hosts of newspaper men who are waiting to ask Mr. Armour all about Chicago canned meat.

"So being a millionaire, by repute at least, every American at these hotels is regarded as legitimate prey by all the tradesmen and dealers in London. They lay siege to the hotel and try to ambush him in the halls or in the street. Art dealers rush over from Paris hearing prices; jewellers take jewels worth a king's ransom to them all day long, and younger sons of the aristocracy try to charm, to seduce, to seduce, to seduce.

"Neddy dowerers roll up to the hotels

MONTREAL CHILDREN ARE VICTIMS OF IMPURE MILK

Dr. Dagenais, Physician, Alderman and Chairman of Montreal Board of Health, Says 500 Children are Killed Every Month by Impure and Bad Milk.

(Montreal Standard.) "Impure and bad milk causes the death of 500 children in the city of Montreal every month."

This astounding statement was made on Saturday by Alderman and Chairman of the Board of Health, to the representative of the Standard.

"This statement is borne out by statistics," said the doctor, "and I am sure that the Board of Health should take steps to eradicate the evil, and to protect the children of the city from the consequences arising from the impure milk."

"I have had to my personal attention, the case of a child who died of the disease, and I am sure that the Board of Health should take steps to eradicate the evil, and to protect the children of the city from the consequences arising from the impure milk."
