HIGHER SALARIES ADVOCATED IN HOUSE.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier intimates that such may be done generally—more amendments proposed to the Grand Trunk Pacific Bill—Ganong wants road to Charlotte County, and Hackett to P. E. Island.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—(Special)—As a preliminary the house took up and adopted a resolution providing for the salaries of the railway commissioners and secretary. These were fixed at $10,000 a year for the chief commissioner, $8,000 a year each for the other two commissioners and an amount to be fixed by the governor-in-council not more than $4,000 for the secretary.

Mr. Laurier explained that these were higher than any salaries now paid in Canada, even to ministers and chief justices. He said that the government would not pass the advantage which judges had of not being removable. The chief justice would require to have a knowledge of the general law and of railway law, as well as of the working of railways.

Mr. Mackenzie said the government was making a mistake in not paying larger salaries. Strong men could not be had for such a sum.

Mr. Mackenzie suggested salaries of $15,000 and $10,000 instead of $10,000 and $8,000 and he added that he would like to see the manager of the government railways paid at least $15,000. Men of the calibre called for could not be found for less. Bank managers whose duties were not nearly so onerous as those of the commissioners were being paid $15,000 and $20,000.

Mr. Maclean declared that settlements should at once revise the railway first and pay men in capacity in all positions something like the salaries they would command in the open market.

Mr. Sprague was of the opinion that the great majority of the people would think the salaries fixed were large enough, indeed unless very good men were obtained people might think they were too high.

MARCONI GRAMS MAY BE INTERCEPTED.

President of French Wireless Company Says That They Have Copies of All the Marconi Messages Sent Along the British Coast—Carnegie Makes Some More Startling Statements.

Montreal, Aug. 6.—(Special)—A special London cable says: "In a long letter to the Times today, Sir Gilbert Parker makes short work of many anti-Marconi arguments. Discussing the danger of food terror, he says: 'The past year 110,000 emigrants went to Canada and more than 3,000,000 acres of land were taken up. If only three-quarters of this one year's settlement were put under wheat, within four years, at sixteen bushels to the acre, there would be poured into the world's markets 30,000,000 bushels of wheat. Would the bread of the English poor man be dearer or cheaper in that case? If cheaper, then wheat would be the smallest preference, which would secure for Britain from Canada the 50,000,000 hundredweight of wheat now obtained from the United States. A preference of 24 to two shillings would be sufficient.'"

SOME PRACTICAL ADVICE ABOUT POULTRY.

Ottawa, July 30.—The following practical poultry advice is given by Mr. E. C. Hare, chief of the poultry division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

It is most probable to dispose of old hens before the moulting period. There is a ready market for pullets on account of the scarcity of chickens.

Pullets for Laying.

The advantages of retaining the early pullets for fall and winter egg production are being repeatedly stated.

Utility-type Fowl.

For poultry farming the utility type of breeding fowl should be selected. This type includes Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes.

Sale of Chickens.

From eleven cents to twelve cents per pound live weight is the current market price for broilers weighing over one and a half pounds each.

Crate-fatted Chickens.

The increased consumption of chickens in Canada is due to the improved quality of the birds and to the fact that the cost of raising them has been reduced.

Fall Fairs.

Fowls that are to be exhibited at the fall fairs should be shaded from the sun during moulting. This will prevent the new feathers from fading or mottling.

programme, has effected a new division of opinion in British politics; that these Unionists who have taken their stand against him now are to be reckoned for the future as cut off from him, and from his side, that the general election will see a complete set of candidates favorable to the new ideas put in the forefront...

Two Elections in 18 Months.

"And the immediate outcome?"

"This, of course, could only mean that Mr. Lee expects to see Mr. Chamberlain beaten at the first election; his without estimating the quality of energy, I thought best not to press the point. The remark, however, concerning what, from another informant, I learned Mr. Chamberlain's calculation to be. It seems he discusses these matters quite frankly with his intimates, and his views get quite a currency. He counted, I am told, in his cold, electioneering fashion, that he would lose 100 Unionists in the house and gain thirty Liberals; that in an election to be brought on quickly he would lose, that a poor sort of Liberal cabinet would be patched up; that between his own aggressiveness and their weakness, the cabinet would not last long, and that then, as Britain's only strong man, he would come back to power. Mr. Lee quite evidently had all this in his mind when he spoke of two elections in eighteen months. So I merely asked:

"Does your estimate of a rather dangerous situation?"

"Oh, mind, I don't say we want two elections in that time. No member of parliament ever wants an election. But from all appearances we must have them."

"You count, therefore, on a weak free trade cabinet becoming quickly unpopular. But have you reckoned all the chances of its being a strong cabinet? What if Hock's bench and some of his friends were in it?"

"I am informed, for example, that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's position at Bristol is badly undermined in this and other ways, and that he may not stand for there. The friends of Mr. Gibson Bowles, at King's Lynn, obligingly send him all the latest Birmingham pamphlets, and the same kindness has evidently been shown Lord Hugh Cecil by his friends at Greenwich. Mr. Balfour meanwhile pretends every day to be cross with some over-inquisitive Liberal member. Nobody really believes that he really is out of temper, but as he simulates so well, and since he has no other resource, people really admire him for the completeness of it."

Who nobody outside the cabinet knows how to explain this unprecedented situation, the theory that obtains most credit is that all members of the cabinet have been induced to suppress their differences until after his majesty's Irish visit is over. The king left London with the land bill, so one member puts it, "in his pocket."

There is always that element of doubt, but I am assured by many correspondents in Canada that it would be done. "Do you understand that such a trade arrangement would be expected to lead, in the end, to a reorganization of the entire system of other matters of imperial defence, say, and imperial federation?" "Undoubtedly."

"And you choose to enter by this door?"

"Because we have been assured by your statement it is the only door that is open. "But after all," went on Mr. Lee, "the colonies part of the matter is not very well suited. There is no great hurry about it. We might make an arrangement with Canada, say, or with South Africa, very soon, and if Austria or New Zealand did not want to come in, they might remain until such time as they saw their way. What really presses, I think, makes the real dividing line in British politics since Mr. Chamberlain spoke at Birmingham is the necessity for safeguarding British industrial interests against unfair competition from outside. That is what we shall have to preach, and are now preaching, in the constituencies."

"Perhaps. Here we prefer to describe it otherwise."

Looks for 50 Per Cent. Preference.

"Certainly. Otherwise we would not get very far. Speaking for myself, what I look for is an increase of the present preference, so as to make it more per cent."

"You are aware, no doubt, that some of our manufacturers think the duties on British goods already too low, and that there might be difficulty about further reducing them."

"There is always that element of doubt, but I am assured by many correspondents in Canada that it would be done."
