THE LEGISLATURE.

Fredericton, Feb. 12. On the assembling of the members, after attending in the Council Chamber, Mr. Covert introduced a bill to establish an additional polling place in Sunbury County.

The Speaker informed the House of Assembly in the usual manner, of the vacancies which had occurred in the counties of Albert, King's, Carleton and Kent, during the recess.

On motion of the Attorney General, the sheriffs' returns of election of Messrs. Palmer, Nowlan, Irvine and O'Leary in the above counties, respectively, were laid on the table.

Chief Justice Ritchie came into the Assembly and the four new members were sworn in. After reading of his honor's speech by the Speaker, Mr. Butler moved an Address in reply, which was seconded by Mr. Palmer.

The consideration of the Address is made the order of the day for Saturday, at 12 o'clock. Two hundred copies each of the Address and reply were ordered to be printed for use of the Legislature.

The following committees were on motion appointed:—

Accounts—Messrs. Beckwith, Maher, Montgomery and Lindsay.

Mining—Messrs. Robinson, Butler, Hubbard, Ryan and Irvine.

Agriculture—Messrs. Hanington, Theriault, Montgomery, Laundry, Gillispie, Donald, Nuyler, Gorman, Newlin, Ryan, Williams, Harrison, Lindsay, Beckwith, O'Leary and Tibbotts.

The Attorney General said it was the practice of the House to take up the address on Saturday and members would not therefore be taken at a disadvantage.

Fredericton, Feb. 13. Very little business was done this morning, the members buying themselves writing letters and with other work.

Not a speech of any kind was made, and several ladies who were in the gallery were disappointed.

Bills were introduced as follows: Mr. Crawford, to authorize the appointment of a Subordinate Magistrate and the building of a Lock-up in King's County; Mr. Adams, to increase the capital stock and further amend the South-west Boom Company; Mr. Maher, to establish Leins for Mechanics and others.

In the Legislative Council, the Contingent and Reporting Committees of last Session were re-appointed.

Mr. Young, from Contingent Committee, reported that franking would be entirely discontinued, and that members would be supplied with postage stamps.

Dr. Livingstone and his Labours in Central Africa.

The wild region around which Livingstone has wandered during the past seven years, is situated in the north-east of Africa, at an elevation of from 2,000 to 4,000 feet above the sea level—and is a rugged and mountainous country.

It may be roughly described as a richly forested and wooded territory, swarming with game, and in some places highly populated—having an area of about 12,000 square miles. The Nile—the father of waters—flows northward to the Mediterranean; the Congo flowing eastward to the Indian Ocean, and find their rise in this region.

The geographical and geological problems attached to it are of the most important character, while the questions involved in its exploration are of an equally momentous kind. It was towards the close of 1871 that Mr. Stanley found Dr. Livingstone at Ujiji in the very centre of this region, and gleaned from him just facts enough to set geographers by the ears, without adding anything to the accurate knowledge of the locality. Stanley's want of culture detracted immensely from the success of Livingstone. The American parted from the British explorer at Unyamweye—a kind of half way station on the route to Zanzibar—in the early part of 1872. Dr. Livingstone is said to have died June, 1873.

Regarding the last fifteen months of his wanderings we have but no information whatever, and regard the previous five years only very fragmentary and partially reliable accounts. It is hardly possible that the brave old man, who has at last succumbed to the climate he has braved so long, should not have left materials enough for a great and valuable addition to our knowledge of Central Africa.

Hungry Visitors.

A young minister was placed as pastor over a widely extended parish in the west of Scotland. The houses of the parishioners were few and far between. Shortly after he was settled, he intimated from the pulpit that he would, in company with one of the elders, visit a certain district in the parish; and, as he would have a long walk, he hoped some of them would take it with him. He did not stay long in age so, and that none of them would insist on their staying to partake of refreshments. True to his word, he started on his visitation; but he did not know the work he had to do. The people took him at his word, and never offered them anything, and the afternoon found them tired and hungry. At last, they entered the cottage of an old woman, and she was to be like her neighbours; but the elder who was not so "blate" as the minister, asked her "for any sake" to give them something to eat. The woman put some bannocks and a "sprit" of butter on the table, and they began with a will. The minister took the butter off one side of the plate, and the elder took it off the other, while the old woman seeing, she asked them to take it off one side of the plate, so as to leave it respectable for the next comer. The elder remarked that they were very hungry, and he hardly thought they would leave much. And he was right, for they made a clean sweep of bannocks and butter. Next Sunday, the minister lectured on our Saviour feeding the multitudes on the leaves and fish. In the course of his remarks, he said, "the most wonderful part of the miracle was the amount of the fragments that remained. The old woman—who was present, and paying great attention—immediately made answer, loud enough to be heard over the church—'Guid faith, my man, if you had been there with your hungry elder, I'm thinkin' there wadna hae been sae muckle left.'"

The Standard.

SAINT ANDREWS, FEB. 18, 1874.

DECLARATION.

On Friday last, the Sheriff opened his court, for the purpose of summing up the returns and declaring the candidate elected. The Court House was densely packed with people from all parts of the County. The following is the official statement of the vote polled at the various polling places:

	Gillmor	McAdam
St. Andrews	218	121
St. George	298	50
St. John's Falls	86	0
Fredericton	103	23
Levesque	55	6

Milltown	95	188
Dufferin	21	32
St. David	67	39
Scott's Ridge	31	85
Bailie	41	60
St. Patrick	88	45
Campobello	68	78
West Isles	58	55
Dunbarton	46	46
Charleton	27	12
N. Harbor, G. Monan	28	40
St. John's, do	62	15
Majority for Gillmor	1578	296

The Sheriff then congratulated the electors on the quiet and orderly manner in which the election passed off—Charlotte was true to her tradition of a law abiding county; he thanked his presiding officers and poll clerks for the faithful and correct manner in which they had discharged their duties, and hoped that now the contest was over, that those engaged on opposite sides would assume those pleasant relations which existed before the contest. He then declared:

ARTHUR H. GILLMOR
duly elected a member of the House of Commons.

The announcement was received with great cheers. Mr. GILLMOR was the first speaker, and was greeted with rousing cheers. The following is an outline of the addresses:

Mr. Gillmor thanked the electors for the hand some vote and majority they had given him. He was not chargeable with ingratitude, he felt deeply the efforts of his friends who through foul and fair weather, amid snow storms and immense snow drifts, had worked for him. He would be excused in making reference to the shiretown, Saint Andrews, which was the great battle ground; which bore a similar relation to the contest as the Prussians did at Waterloo. It had been said by his opponents that his supporters were not respectable; they were called "trash." Were they not the leading business men, ship owners, ship captains, and the worthy sons of honest toil; he liked to have such influential "trash" as his friends and his supporters. (cheers) The question asked during the canvass was "what is St. Andrews going to do?" The result showed what it had done, and it was very gratifying to him. He never exulted over victory, but felt truly grateful to his friends. He felt the great responsibility which would devolve upon him as a member of parliament, and was a little timid as to his capability to discharge the duties of his representatives. It had been circulated that he was afraid to be present at the Nomination. His friend Mr. McAdam knew he was not afraid of him; he feared no man. (Mr. McAdam said he wanted no man to be afraid of him.) He (Mr. G.) believed his opponents were pleased that the storm prevented him from being in the Court House on 9th inst. They had tried to elect a man not on his own merits, but by running Gillmor down. He had been charged with spelling Macdonald, McDonald, no doubt Mr. McAdam could spell it beautifully (laughter.) It had been industriously circulated that he had signed an affidavit stating that there were not 7 men in the County, would render an impartial verdict in the "Key-Thomson" case. Gentlemen, said he, this is a willful and malicious untruth. I did not know that such a document was in existence until a year ago, and have not seen it. I explained the matter to Mr. Key last year, and he appeared satisfied—and yet the report was revived during the canvass to prejudice my election. No one who knows me would believe that I would be guilty of insulting the constituency.

He next referred to the side issues which had been introduced, and the frantic efforts of Mr. McAdam's "organ" at St. Stephen to injure him, and divert the attention of the electors from the main question at issue. He could make allowance for heated expressions during election, but none for the deliberate falsehoods published in that sheet. He condemned the Pacific Scandal, pointing out its demoralizing effect upon the Dominion. Why was it that his opponent had not sat out the term for which he was elected? Because a great public wrong had been perpetrated by the Government, in the sale of a large public contract, which had been condemned by the press of England, the United States, the Dominion, and indeed by the civilized world. That was the question upon which the electors had to decide. Mr. McAdam had justified and sustained the Macdonald government on that question, and it was cowardly now to desert them. He defied him to show where he had in a single instance condemned, or expressed his disapproval of their conduct. Sir J. A. Macdonald was a great statesman, he was also generous, and he did not think had pocketed any of the money advanced by Sir Hugh Allan, but it was expended in buying up constituencies which elected men to parliament to keep him in power. Was it not a bad example to the people to see men of high standing and power practice corruption. It was of little consequence whether Mr. McAdam or Mr. Gillmor was elected, but it was of great importance to sustain men who will honestly perform their duty to the country. The principles he had advocated had triumphed; he would faithfully perform his duty as a representative, and do justice to all sections of the County. (cheers.)

Mr. McAdam followed, and made a better address than he ever did before at the hustings. He said if Mr. Gillmor had not been exulting on his election, what had he been doing? His Mr. McAdam's record would show that he had done justice to every part of the county, while a member of the Legislature, and the short time he was in Parliament. He was proud of the vote he had received in St. Andrews, and had worked as hard for the town when it gave him a small vote, as when it had given him a majority. In the present contest the Manager of the Railroad, leading Merchant of St. Andrews, and other influential men had worked against him;—the blind, the lame, the halt, had been brought to vote against him. When Mr. Osburn tried to close the St. Andrews end of the Railway, and deprive the town of its rights, who was it that prevented it being done? It was he, (Mr. McAdam) and he had assisted in promoting the work in its early stages by subscribing from his private means $150 to qualify the late Geo. S. Hill as one of the Directors, and in other ways had aided the building of the Railway. It had been stated that he had received Dominion funds to aid his election in 1872. It was false; he had never used any other than his own money in election expenses. He referred to the Pacific scandal, and hoped that a thorough sifting of the affair would be made by Parliament, and also added to the Royal Commission, and defended Sir John A. Macdonald's course in that proceeding. He said that Mr. Blake for whom he entertained great respect, had made a statement in Parliament last week, which he was compelled to take back next day. Sir John had voted for a committee to investigate the charges, and agreed with Mr. Dorian that the evidence should be taken under oath. He did not believe Sir John had ever used any of Sir Hugh Allan's money to secure his election. The fact was Allan was a man of great wealth, had several steamships, and wanted men elected who would support Sir John's Pacific Railway scheme, and thereby secure employment for them; he had advanced money for that purpose. Sir John and Mr. Abbot had told the whole story. Injurious reports had been circulated to defeat his election, he would not be misled by false statements. Sir John Macdonald had spotted out a new election law. (Mr. Gillmor asked, "why did he not pass it, he had six years to do so.") Mr. McAdam replied he had not time to do so before the Cabinet resigned. Mr. MacAdam concluded by handing the Sheriff a protest against Mr. Gillmor's return, saying it would be prosecuted to the bitter end. (applause from his friends.)

Mr. Gillmor at once informed the Sheriff, that he protested against Mr. McAdam, and would hand him a written protest before the court was closed. He also said it had been circulated that if elected he would remove office holders and place friends in. This was not correct. He would consult the public interest; and felt that those who upheld the honor of the country were entitled to consideration.—(loud cheers.)

The court was shortly after closed, and the people dispersed.

A Model Journalist—rather Green.

Some one has taken a great rise out of Mr. Main, the ostensible publisher of the "Courier."

During the late election contest, public meetings were held. At one of them, Mr. Gillmor was present, and a telegram, purporting to give a condensed account of its doings sent to the "Courier," and was commented upon in its imperate language by its "most potent, grave, and revered" editor; which the editor of the "Standard" feels it his duty to notice. His object being to enlighten Mr. Main, upon what he does not apparently understand—"respectable journalism." What has he ever done towards elevating the tone of the Press? Echo answers—"what!"

He takes for granted a false statement, which Mr. McAdam's friends who were present on the occasion deny, that—"A. W. Smith spoke and denounced the 'Courier.'" It is a willful misrepresentation, as well as other misstatements with reference to Mr. Gillmor, and that "a sectional cry was raised against St. Stephen." It is manifestly untrue; no such cry was raised at any meeting, or outside. We did not name the "Courier," or state that "Mr. Gillmor's modesty prevented him from being a member of the House long before this, or that we considered him the cleverest man in the county."

It is sheer folly for the "Courier" to stigmatize any paper as a "servile supporter," it is holding the mirror up to nature. And the "Courier" or its editor ought to have known that the "Standard" did not "change its base when the Macdonald government resigned." Before the meeting of parliament in August, some of the Ministry knew its editor condemned the Pacific Scandal and would not uphold the government. Before the election just passed, the "Standard" pursued the proper course of conceding to the Electors the right to choose for themselves, its leanings however were apparent; it is also admitted that its editor does not attack anyone without cause, and always in such manner that a reply can be made. Mr. Main has on several occasions sneered at St. An-draws, and its people know it, and he never let an opportunity slip of belittling its local paper, as he has recently done Mr. Gillmor. Both however have survived his ungenerous remarks; and as to his "silent contempt,"—"O" was the little gig used to see ourselves as others see us."

The election is over, and now all little bickerings should be forgiven and forgotten.

The Legislature.

The opening of the Legislature, at Fredericton on the 12th inst. was a more brilliant affair, than had taken place for many years.

A guard of honor, a battery of artillery and Band, received His Honor Governor. Tilley, at the Legislative buildings. A large number of ladies were present at the opening. The Speech, is generally accepted as a good one, has been published. The Address in reply was passed on Saturday last excited but little debate. The Government appear to be safe in their seats, as the elements of the Opposition are discordant, they have no leader who could ever make the Government anxious, in any column we have given a synopsis of the business done in the Assembly. It is much to be regretted that the offer of Mr. D. G. Smith was not accepted. The narrow policy of the Fredericton press, is condemned by papers outside Fredericton. The reports of the debates would have been more widely and earlier circulated, and have cost less, had Mr. Smith's offer been accepted.

Since the above was written, we are happy to notice, that Mr. Smith's offer was accepted by a vote of 23 to 8. All the Charlotte members in the majority.

The members are addressing themselves to their duties, and it is believed, the Session will be a short one. The House will be dissolved, and the Elections take place early in the summer,—then will come the tug of war.

NEW ORGAN.—The Wesleyan congregation, have placed a fine Eury Organ in their church. The quality of tone and volume, are equal to the best instrument manufactured. The organ was purchased from Messrs. Lundy & McCarthy, St. John. It was played on Sabbath last for the first time in the church.

LECTURE.—On Thursday evening last, Mr. McFarther, read his lecture on "Shakespeare" in the Episcopal Church, Sunday School room. The audience was small, owing to the bad state of the streets. The lecture was carefully prepared; and the rector, Rev. Dr. Ketchum, thanked Mr. McFarther, for his interesting lecture.

The Hon. Mr. Blake has retired from the Cabinet. It is said this large legal business demands his attention. He still remains a member of Parliament.

A false rumor has been set afloat by the enemies of Free Schools, that the Government intend to make the "School" question, the great issue at the next election. It is time enough to state the policy which is to be the guiding star, when the Government make it known.

SUMMARY.

The Ballot Government House on Thursday last, is described as having been a splendid affair.

There were forty-seven vessels at anchor in the harbour on Monday last.

COOP'RING.—Mr. George McLaughlin, has opened a shop in the house adjoining Mr. John Burton's store, where he is making buckets, barrels, tubs &c. Those requiring such articles can give him a call.

The rain on Friday night last, melted the huge snow drifts, and the streets in several places are now bare.

NEW DOMINION MONTHLY.—The February number of this magazine now lies on our table, and is not a whit behind preceding ones in interesting and instructive reading matter. Amongst the many articles worthy of notice those entitled the "P.-degree and Kinship of Words," by John Reade, one of Canada's foremost poets and writers; "Physical Training," by W. A. Withrow, M. A. and a "Review of the Times," by another writer of eminence, stand prominent. The selections are as good as usual, which is no slight praise. The frontispiece is an engraving of Hon. Edward Bako.

BALLOON MAGAZINE FOR MARCH.—The March number of this valuable family magazine is published, and is fully equal to any issue this year. It contains stories of sentiment, of adventure of the sea, and every one should subscribe or buy a copy for the sake of seeing what a nice publication can be produced at a low price. Address Thomas & Talbot, 36 Bromfield Street, Boston. Price $1.50 per year.

Mr. Gough has a new plaything—Independence. He aired it at the dinner to Hon. P. Mitchell the other night. The advantage of it is that it is a fine topic to illustrate with "glittering generalities." Mr. Gough has already prepared many sounding and resounding phrases, eloquent and ringing yet—ages, and lofty and striking metaphors with which to expound and illustrate Independence. We may reasonably hope to be favoured with some of these this winter. Mr. Gough will not, surely, cast all his tropical flowers of rhetoric on the coasts of the frozen North.

The Legislature of Maine is said to be wrestling with an "act to amend section 63, chapter 64, R. S., relating to embezzlement by deceased persons." The ruling passion must be strong in death if people there keep on embezzling after they are dead. But it is none of our funeral.

Vesuvius in Agitation.

According to various reports coming to us from Italy it would appear that tourists visiting Naples this winter will enjoy the superb sight of Vesuvius in a state of eruption. The fiery mountain is certainly greatly agitated.

Professor Palmieri (the recognized authority on this subject), in his latest bulletin, says that although no large mass of smoke yet arise from the crater, great puffs of smoke are continually ascending, some of them enclosing little tongues of flame which are extinguished as they move upward. It is therefore believed that the volcano is in a state of great excitement, which gives rise to the smoke cannot be at any very great depth. The principal animation is observable in the northwest crater, the one which is nearest to the observatory. Dr. Palmieri's bulletin dates some two weeks back, and the cable has not since informed us of any eruption, but we may hear of it any day; and simultaneously with its announcement there will be a bag of English and American tourists from all parts of Europe to the vicinity of the great volcano.

A letter to a gentleman in St. John, reports the "failure" of a Halifax firm, whose liabilities are $130,000.

Petitions, asking the Local Legislature to amend the School Bill, are being signed by Catholics of the City, Portland and Carleton.

A destructive fire took place in Halifax on Friday evening, by which three buildings were gutted. Owing to the imperfect alarm system the flames had made considerable headway before the firemen got to work. The three buildings destroyed.

London, Feb. 13.

Fifteen Conservatives and Eleven Liberals were elected yesterday. So far, 325 Conservatives and 282 Liberals and home Rulers have been elected, 283 Conservatives being returned in England alone. In Scotland the Liberals have a majority of 25. The Liberals and Home Rulers are 26 ahead in Ireland.
