Robert Coltman, an American, one of the physicians attending Earl Li, told a correspondent that when he was called to act with Dr. Velde, of the German legation, Nov. 1, he found the patient very weak from a severe hemorrhage, due to ulceration of the stomach. The hemorrhage was readily controlled," said Dr. Coltman, "but owing to the underlying condition of chronic gastritis, with persistent nausea, only the mildest liquid food could be digested. The retailers' arguments have less of sentiment and even more of business about them. 'Let us not lose our best business day," they say, "for on that day we make as much as on all the other days of the week." #### THE SCHLEY TRIAL

Nearing Its Close-Thrilling Effect of Counsel's Eloquent Address.

Washington, Nov. 7.—The climax of the Schley court of inquiry came yesterday, when Mr. Raynor, chief counsel for Admiral Schley, concluded a brilliant argu-ment of over three hours with a perora-tion so eloquent and impassioned that all

This remarkable trial, he said, sought This remarkable trial, he said, sought to condemn the man who had brought to a successful termination as great a naval triumph as was ever won in the war with Spain. In vivid colors he painted the picture of the Brooklyn, with Commodore Schley on the bridge, tighting the entire Spanish fleet until the Oregon appeared out of the smoke. The thunders of the Brooklyn, music for the ears of his countrymen, he said, aroused Admiral Schley's envious foes. He pictured the victorious sailor suffering as few have suffered for three long years, while the victorious sailor suffering as few have suffered for three long years, while the fires of persecution leaped around him, and now awaiting the hour of his vindication in the verdict of the court. "And when it comes," he concluded, "he can, from the high and exalted position that he occupies, look down upon his traducers and maligners, and with excellent pride exclaim." The spell of his oratory was over them, and when he described the admiral's gallant deeds and the long persecution to which he had been subjected, many of them broke down and wept. Admiral Schley himself was plainly moved, and as his counsel said he could afford to await the verdict of posterity, two big tears rolled down his cheeks.

Conditions in the Hudson's Bay Country Described by a Visitor.

Quebec, Nov. 5.-Miles Spencer, agent for the Hudson Bay Company in the ilmost unknown districts of Hudson Bay is here, on his first visit to civilization. Though 56 he has never seen a railway train previous to his present trip, and had never even dreamed of such a means of conveyance as an

His life has been spent among the Indians and Esquimaux who occupy the northern parts of Labrador and the country immediately east of Hudson Bay. Contrary to the general belief arising from the reports of missionary societies and others, Mr. Spencer says that in many respects the different tribes still adhere to their old customs and traditions.

The Esquimaux in particular are, according to Mr. Spencer, a very difficult people to civilize. There has never been such a thing as a marriage ceremony among them, and the nearest they have got to one today in the districts controlled for the company by Mr. Spencer is that the young man generally tries to go to some post to buy a blanket, and that is all the ceremony there is about it. They are not so numerous as formerly, and it is thought that this falling off is principally due to the fact that for the past generation they have been taught to use American and English foods. Formerly they never even cooked their meat, and they seemed to derive more benefit from it raw than in its cooked

Money has not yet come into use among the people with whom Mr. Spencer has business dealings. Both Indians and Esquimaux bring their furs into the company's posts, and in return receive different kinds of merchandise. Counters are used which are known as "made beavers," each of which is worth about 60 cents of our

The chief animals now hunted by these people are, first, the fox, and then the marten, beaver, otter, reindeer and fisher. The silver fox is of course most eagerly sought, yet notwithstanding its extreme value in civilization, the finest specimens sold at the posts yield only thirty made beavers, or $18.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS. President Ellis, in his address, referred to the great events that have transpired since the last annual meeting, and then spoke of the industrial and manufacturing progress of the Dominion. "How often do we hear," he said, "that our exports of manufactured goods amount to only $16,000,-000, a paltry 10 per cent of the export of the country. But I have a new phase of this question to present, when I emphasize the fact that our exports of manufactured goods comprise not merely 10 per cent, but approximately 40 per cent of the total exports of the

Are not, he asked, asbestos, mica and salt manufactured articles? Is not canned fish a manufactured product, and is not lumber sawn into deals an item in the list of manufactured articles? He did not include the output of the mine when shipped in its crude state, nor of the forest, when shipped as logs, etc., nor of the fisheries when exported without further labor than the catching, nor even butter and cheese; but only these articles made in factories and using motive power. Including those articles mentioned, out of a total of $177,241,115 of all classes of goods last year, the exports of manufactured goods amounted to $67,894,928, or 38 per cent. By the census of 1891 it was shown that 370,250 hands were employed to produce $476,258,886 worth of manufactured goods. If this proportion holds today we have 52,874 people in Canadian factories producing manufactured goods for foreign countries. Taking one person in employment as supporting four others and we have 211,496 people supported by our export manufactures alone. Since 1891 our export trade in manufactures has increased 106 per cent. If our home production had only increased half this amount, then our total output would now be $730,000,000. This means an employment of 575,000 and the support of 2,-300,000 people. From these figures it is seen that two-fifths of the people of Canada are supported by our manufacturing industries.

The value of the raw material used by our manufacturers was $256,000,000. the value of the finished product $476,-000,000. This would mean, taking the figures of growth, that the manufacturing industries of Canada have been a net source of wealth to the country

ticular, will sacrifice almost anything the subject of immigration. Canada The president directed attention to has been represented as a purely agricultural country. If we ever expect to direct a steady stream of population to Canada from the crowded industrial centers of Great Britain and the continent of Europe, we must point out that there are wide and varied occupations in which they may find employment, that our industries and our commerce, our mining and fishing, also offer varied inducements to varied Manufacturing may be encouraged by patronizing nome industries and by the aid of public policy, namely, by bonusing industries, or by tariff leg-islation. There is a willingness in every town or city to bonus a good industry, but we cannot too strongly condemn the foolish rivalry of certain towns which prompt them to outbid each other for the establishment of an industry already located in another town. Benefit secured in this way is almost always overbalanced by the injury wrought. The policy of creating local well-being at the expense of one's own neighbors is strongly to be deprecated.

The speaker then referred to the advantages of a prohibitive eariff as a protection to Canadian industries. He

"We have today what may, I think, be fairly called a moderate tariff, one to which no section of the community with the well-being of the whole at heart can take exception, for all must admit that in a new country capital will not invest itself in manufacturing unless it has some assurance that it will not be swamped by the manufactured goods of older countries who produce for a larger market. The situation of Canada is striking in this respect, on account of the geographical position so contiguous to the great manufacturing republic to the south of us. Under a practically prohibitive tariff the manufacturing establish-ments there have reached a stupendous magnitude. We are so close to them that many of their centers are nearer to consuming points in Canada than our own industrial cities of Montreal and Toronto. Our styles in all lines are identical with theirs, and our market is suitable in every respect for any of their surplus These, and other conditions generally, make me feel positive in the statement that even the most ardent free trader must feel that we have now moved just as far in the direction of free trade as is possible until the growth of our population provides a home market sufficient to develop our in-dustries to a competitive level."

we begin to talk reciprocity with the United States, the United States will reciprocity us out of business."

Touching the preferential tariff, he said it was the duty of the government to legislate first for Canada, and for Great Britain afterwards; in words, that the preference should give the British manufacturer a substantial advantage over his foreign competitor, but not over the Canadian, and when any Canadian industry has suffered attention should be given promptly. A strong feeling prevails in favor of obtaining, if possible, some reciprocal trade arrangement between Canada sult. It takes only a little in and the sister colonies, as well as Great Britain herself. Of the labor question, he says "There are one or two features in was advised to take the foundling to connection with trade unionism, how-the Infants' Home, which he did.

Montreal, Nov. 6.-A very successful is the policy of some international meeting of the Canadian Manufactured unions, which have declared industrial strife in Canada at the incentive of organizations whose headquar ters are situated in the United States, and whose interests are entirely opposed to the furtherance of the industrial progress of Canada. The other is the growing tendency of certain unions to claim privileges relating to the gov-ernment of businesses which practical-ly mean the handing over of management of those who have the responsi bility to those who have not. It will ever be the aid of this association to assist in the promotion of the very best feeling between master and man and to encourage among our members, as much as possible, a policy of liberal treatment of their workpeople, but the labor question is at present no part of our work. Should any occasion arise, however, that might check Canadian industrial development we could not stand aloof."

The transportation question was dealt with in this way:
"There is no matter of more vital interest to our manufacturers today, than the question of transportation, and we commend to the earnest attention of the government the careful consideration of the best means of extending our transportation facilities. As yet only a very slight proportion of the produce of the farm, the forest, the mine and the factory finds its way to consuming markets abroad through ian channels. We commend to the attention of the government encouragement of Canadian shipping from Canadian ports, and with it also the encouragement of Canadian shipbuilding. There is no industry that requires the product of so many different classes as shipbuilding, and any aggressive policy in this direction should commend itself at once to the attention of the whole Canadian peo-

SPECIAL COMMITTEES APPOINT-

Special committees were appointed to draw resolutions regarding the tariff on the following subjects: Woolen goods, oatmeal, lumber, folding boxes, agricultural implements, shirts and collars, spades and shovels, granite monuments, reeds and rattan, finished liquorice, iron and steel, bleaching powder, and also to propose a better system of appraise ment at ports of entry.

The convention proposes that on manufactured woolen goods the tariff should be increased 45 per cent gross or 30 per cent net, allowing for the preferential tariff. On woolen yarns, the increase asked for is 30 per cent gross or 20 per cent net.

In the course of a short discussion upon the report of the parliamentary committee, Mr. Featherstonhaugh, of Toronto, said that many of the suggestions regarding the patent office were already carried out h ister of agriculture, and that in this respect credit was not given where credit was due. Mr. J. O. Thorn pointed out that only a few changes were and these were specified in the report.

REPORT OF TARIFF COMMITTEE. In the report of the tariff committee it was pointed out that a resolution from the executive committee asking that the drawback of duty paid on articles entering into goods for export should be allowed when these articles were manufactured in Canada, was supported. The committee had also asked ncreased protection for woolen manufacturers, which was not granted, but the matter is recommended to the at-tention of the convention. The committee had also recommended that iron tubing and angle iron for spring beds should be admitted free, and it is hoped that the government will yet do this. Lumber manufacturers of British Columbia had requested that the association indorse its request for a duty of $2 per thousand feet on lumber, committee could not go farther than recommend the imposition of the duty on such lumber as is not manufactured in Canada. Manufacturers of babbit metal, which at present carried a duty of 10 per cent, asked that this duty be increased to 25 per cent. The committee had not yet been able to get strong enough support to present it fairly to the government.

A request from a member that the association endeavor to secure a higher duty on paper boxes received no support from manufacturers, so the matter was allowed to rest.

BEET SUGAR MACHINERY. The announcement of the government to allow the entrance of machinery for the manufacture of beet root sugar in Canada free of duty for one year was brought to the attention of the committee by some of the members interested. While they felt that this was not the proper manner for the government to take up the encouragement of an important industry, looking to the beet root sugar manufacture, still they felt that as the concession was granted only for one year with a view of starting the industry in Canada, it should not be strenuously opposed by manufacturers. The question of the tariff oil was raised, that they support the petition presented to the government asking that the duty should be removed. A resolution was passed in which the committee of the associa-

The alien labor bill introduced at the last session of parliament was not opposed but amendments were sought to prevent some of the most serious bardships to prevent some of the most serious bardships to prevent some of the most serious bardships. serious hardships to manufacturers, and there was secured the insertion in the bill of a clause providing that the act should not apply in the case of skilled labor not obtainable in Canada, and required for the development of any of our manufacturing industries. The committee, too, had been successful in its opposition to a bill introduced to amend the trade mark and design act by making the union abel rank as a trade mark. Other matters receiving the attention of the committee were the patent act and the working of the patent office, and in this connection they had to note that during the year a substantial improvement had taken place in working of the patent office; that the number of examiners had been increased, and that other facilities have been provided to expedite the work of the office. Other suggestions, however, covering the printing of patents, etc., have not yet been provided for. Recommendations made by the committee were the incorporation of the association, amendments to the patent law, and working of the patent office; the question of insolvency legislation. and the question of extra-provincial

The convention was closed with a grand banquet at the Windsor Hotel tonight, at which nearly 500 were present. J. D. Rolland, of Montreal, presided, and among those present were Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Lord Strathcona, W. S. Fielding, J. I. Tarte and R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservatives. Interesting speeches were delivered by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Fielding, Lord Strathcona, Mr. Borden and oth-

The premier said he believed in stability of tariff, but did not claim the present tariff was perfect. He also announced that the Canadian Government would send no more delegates to Washington to work for reciprocity, but he believed delegations come from Washington to Canada. He also favored mutual trade relations between different parts of the empire. Lord Strathcona, Mr. Borden and Mr. Fielding also spoke in favor of closer relations between Canada and the other parts of the empire. Fielding thought the tariff should be taken out of politics.

Death of Li Hung Chang.

The death of Li Hung Chang removes not only the acknowledged foremost Chinaman in the world, but has been generally spoken of by high judges as a great statesman. This was the estimate of General Grant, who saw much of him at close range, and it is known that Li Hung Chang equally impressed the giant intellect of Gladstone. The outstanding Chinaman's death may have important consequences to his already unfortunate country. Li Hung Chang's genius was, of course, of the Asiatic type, and of late years he seemed more like the agent of Russia than the friend of Great Britain.

The writer remembers seeing Li Hung Chang, a few years ago, carried on a sedan-chair through the Toronto Industrial Exhibition by stalwart Toronto policemen. A powerfully built man the great "heathen Chinee" was; with a face large, smooth, bronzed, and marked by power, subtlety and

It suited us best of all, because it was the first heliday of the summer. and it came at a time when all were ready to enter into open-air holidaymaking. #### Crime in Two Countries.

That was a striking contrast which der United States law and the laws of Great Britain. He pointed out that in Louisville alone, a city with a population of 200,000, there were more murders than in London, with its 7,000,000 people, and that Kentucky, with its 2,000,000 population, has more murders annually than Great Britain, with its population of 40,000,000. There were in you're entirely too partial to the other Louisville, he said, 145 "regularly registered murders," and but 23 convictions. In no case was the death penalty enforced, the average punishment for the whole number being two years in prison. This statement explains the whole matter. If the taking of human life is less seriously regarded by a people than the theft of a horse, and if a murderer has a far better chance to get clear without any punishment at all than to be convicted of the crime, how can criminal tendencies be effectively combatted? If the same year old last Saturday, and from the lax views with regard to crime and its punishment were entertained in Great ous, eny poor boy! What was the quespunishment were entertained in Great ous, eny poor boy! What was the quespunishment were entertained in Great ous, eny poor boy! What was the quespunishment were entertained in Great ous, eny poor boy! What was the quespunishment were entertained in Great ous, eny poor boy! What was the quespunishment were entertained in Great ous, enveloped the control of the contr Britain as prevail in the neighboring republic, the record of crime would be just as large and discreditable.

It is the pride of British laws such as we live under, that they are invariably enforced by the strongest public sentiment, and that they are made a praise and a protection to those that do well while always a terror to evil-doers. Our neighbors should once in a while profit by our example, in the enforcement of law, for it is a good one.

A leading Gaelic-speaking Scot, Mr. J. S. Stuart Glennie, LL.D., in an address on "The New Celtic Movement," read before the Gaelic Society f London, recently, bewailed the decay of the language in the Scottish Highlands. He said he had just returned from a visit to Braemar, and had found the country very pleasant, though the state of things was most disheartening. He drove up from Blairgowrie, in Perthshire, but not a Highland bonnet nor a plaid shawl were to be seen. He tried to procure a Highland bonnet there, but he failed. Twenty-five years ago, at the crofters' houses in Braemar, all the people spoke Gaelic. That was changed now. If Mr. Glennie asked a question in Gaelic it was answered in English, when the person addressed understood Gaelic. In the families of crofters, where there were a dozen children, not a word of the old language was spoken. No schoolmaster spoke Gaelic, and although the minister did, he had no congregation for a Gaelic service. The people had been Anglicised. There should be a movement against Anglicisation, exclaimed Dr. Glennie. Let the Gaelic language, he said, be taught to the children. Its cultivation might lead to the lessening of the evils of Anglicisation. Dr. Glennie's subject led him into an enthusiastic eulogy of Macpherson of Ossian fame, through whom not only Britain but Europe had been influenced. He attributed the development of Scott's imagination in a large part to Macpherson's influence. Without the appreciation of Celtic spirit and feeling, "Waverley" never could have been written. This appreciation originally came to

One can admire the picturesque Highland garb and the music of the bagpipes-best heard amid the Scottish mountains and glens-without commerce throughout the world. The community, for each center of popula- young Highlander who is not thoroughly versed in it is at a disadvantage when he goes south or abroad to seek his fortune, as seek it he must, for there is little prospect of his making progress in the home land. There is no reason, however, why the Highlander should give up the Gaelic language while becoming a good English scholar. He may well aim to be a master in both languages, as not a few Canadians, of Highland parentage, have become. Indeed, if the English-speaking people have one fault that is reprehensible more than another, it is that they are too easily satisfied with their lingual attainments. While the Germans learn two, three and four languages, with ease, and get advantages in the commercial Dominion. There is no less respect for world, as a consequence, your ordinthe King than for the late Sovereign, any English speaker is contented with ufacturer of the old land, as well as of this continent.

Kingston Whig: The Catholic Register reflects upon the sad demise of Mr. Massey from a disease against which he had taken every precaution. He dreaded typhoid fever, and so lived in the country, on a spot where he was guaranteed pure air and pure water, and where the foods he consumed were calculated to promote his health. Yet he took typhoid fever, suffered from it for weeks, and finally passed away to his reward. The Catholic Register seems to question what it calls "the scientific barrier against microbes." It overlooks the fact that the city of Toronto is not exactly a health resort, that while sanitation is producing its good results, there is still, within its bounds, the cause of disease. Mr. Massey lived in a home that was free from taint of any kind, but he passed through streets where the microbes were at large, and he was not an im-

CANADIAN OYSTERS

Dominion's Bivalves Have Suddenly Jumped Into Popularity.

Quebec, Nov. 5 .- The recent jump of to make this display instructive and Canadian oysters into popularity both in the United States and in Europe where they received the highest award trating the advantages of the use of at the Paris Exposition, has been followed by a visit of inspection here by Dr. F. H. Moore, of the United States

Fishery Commission. The commission intends to make an attempt to breed oysters by artificial means on the Pacific coast. Former attempts in this direction, both Canada and the United States, result-ed in failure. Dr. Moore has been engaged with the Canadian oyster expert, Mr. Kemp, in taking tempera-ture and other observations, and in testing the salinity of the water in various parts of Prince Edward Island. As oysters are supposed to thrive best in cool waters, Dr. Moore expresses astonishment at the average temperature of the Canadian beds, his observations showing that the temperature ranged from 60 to on the Pacific coast the temperature is from seven to eight degrees lower and more favorable than at Prince Ed-ward Island. Canada's favorite oyster is the Malpecque, which, like the Narrows, the Caraquet and several other prime valves, comes from Prince Edward Is-They are the largest of Canadian oysters and the Caraquets the 69 degrees. Experts have reported that

The Malpecques, when in prime condition, are very large, specimens being often met with up to eight or nine inches long. Some are almost circular, but most of the larger ones are about two-thirds as wide as they are

By the majority of Canadians the largest oysters are the most highly esteemed. They are exceedingly fat and meaty, these Malpecques, when it good order, and are always taken insingle mouthful. As smaller ones are preferred in the United States, the dealers who have a Canadian and an American trade are able, by assorting their stock before shipping, to obtain the highest price for both large and small Malpecques.

The Narrows are beautiful oysters, quite as valuable as the Malpecques in many localities. Both Malpecques and Narrows have a particularly saline Canadians and even Americans who have lived here long enough to become accustomed to them, prefer any other less saline bivalve. The Canadian oyster fishing season begins on Sept. 16. This year a strong attempt was made by the mayor of Quebec and others to induce the Dominion Government to allow the season to open a few days earlier than usual so that Canadian oysters might appear upon the bill of fare for the Duke and Duchess of York when they dined here on Sept. 16, the date of their landing in Canada. The government declined to make the exception, however, and there is a movement afoot to have the opening of the season deferred until Oct. 1.

The minimum limit of oysters allowed to be caught by the law is two inches in diameter of shell for round oysters and three inches of outer shell for long oysters. A change in this limit is now proposed As an illustration of the unpopularity here of the small oysters so much in vogue in the United States, the Canadian oyster expert reports that a "three-inch oyster is really too small for market, but when it comes down to two inches it is out of character altogether. Several complaints have been made of the small size limit that is at present in force, and until a change is made the fishermen will not throw over an oyster which is really of legal size, though utterly unfit for the market,"

WOOL MARKET. Toronto, Nov. 5 .- There is no improvement in the market here, and trade is about as dull as it has been for many weeks. There are two features in the markets across the line, which directly concern helders of Ontario fleece, and they are: First, that the big improvement in the demand has so far brought about only a fractional advance, and that only in certain domestic fine lines; and, second, that the weels being sold are of the finer growth and not the same as our coarse wools. Fleece—The market is dull and generally unchanged; there is no inquiry for export reported, and no sales in the local market; local dealers quote 13c for 1501 clip washed, and 8c for unwashed. Pulled wools—The market is quiet and prices show no change from last week's quotations; we quote supers 15c to 16c, quotations; we quote supers 15c to 16c and extras 16c to 17c.

A Boston report says: The wool market in Boston is very active and without soft spots. Approximately about 18,000,000 lbs of wool were cleaned up last week, making one of the best weeks of the season. Values are about the same, and recent sales have been at ruling quotations. While they may be no prospect of any immediate advance in prices, the dealers are not at all in a hurry to let go of good lines at anything under the ruling market prices.

SIR WILFRID AT BANQUET

Of the Manufacturers' Association in Montreat.

Speaks of the Development and Progress of Canada.

Stability of a Just Tariff One of the Securities of Manufacturing Industries-Necessity for New Markets.

Montreal, Nov. 6. - The banquet of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association this evening was one of the most successful in the history of the association. There were over 400 present, including Sir Wilfrid Laurier and three other members of the government, as well as Mr. Borden, the leader of the opposition.

"Canada and the Empire" was proposed in felicitous terms by Mr. P. W. Ellis, the late president of the associa-

SIR WILFRID LAURIER. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was received with enthusiastic cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs. He said: Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen,-It is not my good fortune to be a manufacturer. (Hear, hear.) But I am a simple and humble consumer. But it has been my good fortune for the last 25 years to see a great deal of the development of the manufacturing industries of Canada. For during 25 years and more it has been my privilege to be a member of the House of Commons of Canada. Twenty-five years is a long period in the life of a man; it is simply a dot in the life of a nation. But 25 years, whether it be in an individual life or in national life, is sure to develop a good many changes. I have seen the development of relations between Canada and the empire. I have seen with still Detroit, Nov. 7.—January beans lost 2c greater interest the development of and December lost 3c. Thee other deals Canadian life. I have seen the ups and December lost 3c. When once they have been debated and crystallized into legislation you will agree with me that legislation should not be lightly disturbed. Tariffs are permanent. In a country like Canada, susceptible of great developments, everything changes, everything progresses, and the tariff, of course, must move with the times. But at the same time I have always felt, and you more than I must have felt also, that stability in the tariff is one of the securities of manufacturing industries. (Applause.) I can only explain their action on the theory that the cleansing and antiseptic properties of the tablets destroy the catarrhal gems wherever found, because I have found the tablets equally valuable in catarrh of the throat and stomach as in nasal catarrh.' Dr. Estabrook says Stuart's Tablets are especially useful in nasal catarrh and catarrh of the throat, clearing

There are spots on the sun, we are told, but the spots on the sun, we are told, but the spots on the sun we are told, but the spots on the sun do not prevent that majestic orb from progressing through the skies in all its beauty and beneficence; and so it is that the tariff which exists at the present time—you have it prevent there I do be know it, perhaps, better than I do, be-cause you have to deal with it more than I have—may have blemishes in it. DEVELOPMENT OF MARKETS. What is wanted by the manufactur-ers, I assume, is the development of markets. The home market was supposed to be the best of all. Unfortunately the home market has not developed as we had reason to expect. The last census had been disappointing to all of us, but even in the face ing to all of us, but even in the face of the last census my heart is full of hope. It has been my privilige during the last few weeks to cross and re-cross the continent from Quebec to Victoria and from Victoria to Halifax, and to see some of that immense wealth we have in the Northwest Territories-to see the plains covered with stacks and stooks of wheat, to see the sulky plow and the threshing machine at work at the same time, and to see the wonderful possibilities that we have in that distant part of our Dominion. There is a new movement which I have seen in that direction. For the last 60 years or so the movement of population on this continent has been from north to south. For a great many years the United States has received the best of our bone and Now a change has taken place, and we are going to receive the best of the bone and sinew of the American States. For a great many years our young men have emigrated to the United States, now the yeomanry of the United States are emigrating by west Territories, and they will be well received; they will not be treated like outlanders and deprived of civil and religious rights. On the contrary, we will be glad to receive them, to share with them what we have, to take possession of our soil, to make them British citizens, and to make them feel that British institutions are infinitely superior to the much-vaunted institutions of the American Republic. (Loud cheers.) RECIPROCITY QUESTIONS.

shoals to the virgin soil of the North

In connection with this there is another feature which is now taking place. I remember, and you remember also, since the abolition of the reciprocity treaty of 1860 we have sent delegation after delegation to Washington to obtain reciprocity. We are not sending any more delegations to Washington—(prolonged cheers)—but I rather expect, and I would not be surprised if the thing were to take place receive such a delegation, we shall retlemen, the manufacturers, have not ceive them with every possible politeness. (Renewed cheers.) There is engaged our attention and our deliberation. That these questions should be debated, that they should be discussed, something else worthy of mention. You that they should be scanned, is noththe Northwest Territories. In New Ontario is untold wealth-mineral wealth, agricultural wealth, wealth of every kind; there is not only a New Ontario, there is also a New Quebec, north of the Laurentain range; there is a new Province of Quebec, equal, doubtless, to the one which we know and love so well. (Cheers.) There is also, if I might say so, the new Maritime Provinces. There is on the shores of the Atlantic Ocean, at Sydney a development which will some time astonish the world. (Cheers.) Three years ago I was in the city of Washington, and it was my privilege there to meet a great manufacturer and philanthropist, Mr. Andrew Carnegie. Talking of many topics which interestmanufacturers, which interested public men, he went on to say these words: "The trade of Great Britain in iron is a thing of the past. We will capture the trade of England at every point of competition." I caid: Carnegie, you know these things better than I do. It is quite possible that you may capture the trade of England The Tiger is golden-tawny, and sleek is in iron; but let me tell you this, when you have captured the iron trade of England we Canadians will capture the iron trade from you." (Hear, hear.) is my expectation, that at some time, not very distant, the works at Sydney, the iron works, will indeed not only compete with England, not only compete with the United States. but capture the iron trade of the old world, and in so saying I do not think that I am too sanguine at all. IMPERIAL TRADE. There is also the British market, and this is by far the most important to us Canadians. It would not do for me to enter into any political matter, to enter into any controversial matter, but at all events I am sure I am speaking the sentiments of everyone here when I say that in my humble opinion, at all events, the life, the security of the British Empire, rests upon the mutuality of trade between all the component parts thereof. The trade, the life of the British Empire depends upon the exchange of commodities sent from all parts of that great institution. If we can suppose a condition of things-and it is not a hard supposition to make, it is posharbor it-if we can suppose that there will be mutuality and freedom of exchange between the three hundred or four hundred millions which compose the British Empire, we shall have seen the greatest commercial development that the world has ever witnessed. (Cheers.) The British Empire was not so much founded upon conquest as it was founded upon colonization and trade, and it is in following lines of trade that we shall meet its best development. The British Empire was founded upon laws of equity and justice, and though at this time it is rent in some parts thereof by war, let us all hope that this war will soon be concluded, and that henceforth the laws of justice shall prevail throughout the whole length and breadth of the British Empirethese laws of justice, I say, of equity and of equal rights, of which England has been the foremost champion in the modern world. (Loud and prolonged cheers.) MR. JAMES GOLDIE INJURED. # Powley's Liquified Ozone.

All kidney disorders whether they are mild or of a serious nature, are easily and effectively treated by Powley's Liquified Ozone. The Ozone is just the kind of preparation that acts quickly to dissolve kidney impurities. All congestions or diseases of the mucous membrane linings of the kidney and bladder region, are soothed and healed by Ozone. The oxygen it contains rebuilds the tissues, forms new flesh. Read the practical demonstration of the truth of our contentions. They are actual facts we give you.

Gentlemen: I am very glad to testify as to what your great preparation, Ozone, has performed on me. Three years ago I was taken sick with a severe attack of diabetes. I took many remedies, without a cure, when on the advice of friends I commenced to take Ozone. After using three bottles I am perfectly well, and I owe my cure to Ozone. I always keep some in the house, because I think it is a very excel

Ex-Mayor John Campbell Passed Chamberlain Says Struggle Is Away at Noon Today.

Again in 1880-1-His Long and Active Life.

Mr. John Campbell, ex-mayor, died at noon today.

Mr. Campbell was born at Tarbet, Dumbartonshire, Scotland, on March 11, 1823. His father, also John Campbell, was a shoemaker, who, in 1848, brought his family to Canada. Mr. Campbell had been in this country only a short time before he settled in

In Scotland he had learned his trade, that of blacksmith, and soon after coming here he began to work for the late Marcus Holmes, with whom he remained for some years. Subsequently he formed a partnership with a Mr. Lawery, but the connection lasted only a short time. Mr. Campbell then went into business for himself, and continued it successfully. By his business ability he built up a fine trade, and had had to enlarge his premises until they became of their present large proportions.

Mr. Campbell's municipal experience was a long and varied one. Always manifesting a hearty interest in the community in which he lived, he never spared himself any effort likely to benefit it. In 1865 he was elected an alderman, one of his colleagues being Mr. Samuel McBride. He was re-elected in 1866, '67, '68 and '69. About this time an effort was made by Ald. Egan and others to have the proposed new park located north of Great Market street (Central avenue), but failed. Ald. Campbell, however, succeeded in having a committee appointed to negotiate for the present site of Victoria Park. The soundness of his judgment is now apparent.

NON-JURY SITTINGS BROUGHT TO CLOSE.

Last Two Cases on Docket Heard by Mr. Justice Lount.

The case of Purdy, vs. Purdy, which occupied the attention of Mr. Justice Lount at yesterday afternoon's and this morning's session of the non-jury assizes was finished at noon today. The plaintiff was the eldest son of the late Emeline Purdy, and the defendants the executors of the will of the deceased. Plaintiff applied for an injunction, directed to the defendants, Philip Purdy, James William Sutherland and W. F. Brown, and the surrogate court of the county of Oxford, restraining the defendants and the court from granting probate of the last will, the plaintiff declaring that the alleged will was not the last will and testament of the said Emeline Purdy, and that the deceased died intestate, and for the administration of the property and costs of the action. The case was dismissed with costs.

The case of McGrath vs. Procunier, the last on the list, was then taken up. John McGrath, the plaintiff, is a tailor, residing at the village of Belmont, and the defendant, E. A. > London, Nov. 7 .- Presiding yesterday at the presentation of a sword of honor, sent from Australia, to Major-General Baden-Powell, the defender of Mafeking, Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, said now that the long struggle in South Africa is approaching its termination, neither the country nor the government had any right to wish to make any settlement which would render futile the sacrifices which had been made.

MR. KRUGER INTERVIEWED. A member of a Johannesburg financial house has just had a remark able chat with Mr. Kruger about South African prospects. The ex-president's talk was all arbitration, which he declared to be the only satisfactory way of ending the war. Ask ed what he would do if arbitration went against the Boers, he replied that such a thing was impossible, it could not happen, but, assuming for a moment that it might, he added: would take up arms if arbitration went against us. We would never submit to the results of the arbitration if the results were unfavorable to us."

AN END TO BILIOUS HEADACHE.—
Biliousness, which is caused by excessive bile in the stomach, has a marked effect upon the nerves, and often manifests itself by severe headache. This is the most distressing headache one can have. There are headaches from cold, from fever, and from other causes, but the most excruciating of all is the bilious headache. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will cure itcure it almost immediately. It will disappear as soon as the Pills operate. There is nothing surer in the treatment of bilious headache.

ELSIE.

"Supposed successful escape of the ac-cused! Two hundred pounds reward offered by the government for the arrest of Owen Hammond, heir to the Earldom of Chase, and supposed murderer of his cousin, Lord Hammond!"

These were the dreadful words the boys These were the dreadful words the boys were crying in the streets. Now it seemed to her, as deeper voices took up the cry, that the whole of the huge metropolis rang with the sound of Owen's name. Elsie's brain reeled. What had brought her there? Was she going to a ball? if so, what was the name of her hostess, and what town was this in which stood this great house, with its wide staircase, throngs of arriving guests, and bowing footmen?

She followed in the wake of Rosa Stanly, and was forthwith conducted to a sumptuous guest chamber, where her outer wraps were removed, and she stood in her dress of pure white, with its trim-mings of snowdrops, the great ruby cross burning on her breast. Rosa was agitated; she whispered to

It's most likely not true. My father says these things are catch-pennies, done to sell the papers! I don't believe it's true; and if it were, poor Owen is no more to me now than any other unfor-tunate young man who had been tempted into crime. Don't look so, scared, Elsie! What was Owen to you?"
Rosa asked the question without attaching any meaning to it; but the tell-tale light that shone in Elsie's eyes astounded light that shone in Elsie's eyes astounded her.

"Elsie," she said, "did you—could you possibly have cared for him? Now I think of it, you felt it very, very much, but I thought it was for my sake, and all the time you were the person he fell in love with! Is it the truth?"

Rosa did not look pleasant; her eyes squinted very strongly, as was their wont when she was annoyed or angry.

"What a dolt you must both have thought me!" she said; then she tried to laugh, but failed in the attempt. In a little that miserable laugh would have become a cry.

"Oh, I wish we could go home. I am so stupid. I feel so wild."

"If you are going to be ill and make a scene, Elsie, I think you had better go home," she said.

She thought of the curate whom she loved. Suppose he came to the ball later in the night, as he had promised to do and suppose that he took it into his head to contrast slender, dark-haired, bright eyed Elsie, in her white ball dress, with stout, swarthy Rosa, in her yellow sain and diamonds? Suppose— Rosa could not carry her suppositions any further.

"You had better go home," she said, peremptorily, and speaking in a husky voice, "You don't look fit for a ball. You will be ill or something. Take my gold seent case, and then tell one of the servants to order a cab. Wrap yourself up and go home. Yes, it's not a bit of good for you to stop here."

"Thank you, thank you!" said Elsie.

"I could not dance. I could not behave as a young lady is expected to behave at a ball. I could not chatter, and I could a ball. I could not chatter and I could a ball.

She was still deadly pale, and her lips trembled. Rosa looked at her in astonishment and hi anger—annoyance that was really quite natural to her heart, which was naturally good, kind and generous. "Yes," she said, giving one more glance at her own stout form and now flushed at her own stout form and now flushed face in the full-length mirror, "yes. I cuite think, Elsie, that you will be better at home. Good-bye! Wrap yourself up, for the night is chilly for June. You have plenty of money for the cab, haven't you? I left my purse with you."

"Yes, yes," sald Elsie.

She hurried away. Rosa watched her until she was out of sight, then, after putting a few finishing touches to her own toilet, she followed in the wake of those ladies who were to enter the ball-In a splendid vestibule were waiting those husbands and fathers who had brought their ladies to one of the prettiest balls of the London season.

Rosa found her father, put her hand on his arm, and so was led through the corridor to a wide landing, and after that into the large ball-room. It was a glittering pageant that met her eyes—lovely costumes, sylph-like forms, faces such as one sees sometimes on the outer leaves of fashionable dance-

CHAPTER XXXI.

"Ah! to be beautiful!" sighed Rosa Stanly: "to be slender, and all, and clear-skinned, and bright-eyed! How gladly I would give all my wealth to be as pretty, for instance, as that false girl Elsie Carew-for she must have been false to let Owen fall in love with her when he was engaged to me! I wonder they did not marry when—when—he threw me over! I could love Eldred Barker better than I loved Owen—I could trust him better—he is a better man; but he perhaps will fall in love with Elsie Carew or some other girl! Oh! If he does I will never believe again in men or in love! I will join a sisterhood—I will found a charity—I will devote myself to good works!"

Rosa was not much more fitted to enjoy Rosa was not much more fitted to enjoy

Rosa was not much more fitted to enjoy herself at that gay ball that evening than Elsie herself had been. She sat in a corner fanning herself, for the room soon became warm, and she declined several partners for the round dances which were forming. She watched the sylphs iloat by in the waltz, and her eyes grew dim every new and apon float by in the waitz, and her eyes grew dim every now and anon.

A few of those present Miss Stanly knew by name and sight; but there were numbers of Lady Agathas and Lord Henries present whose names she did not know. A feeling of torpor and a want of aterest in the whole scene was creeping Ner her.

All at once she heard a voice saying lose to her ear:

"My dear Miss Stanly, how well you are looking! How charmingly those white flowers in your dark hair become you! May I sit by you for a moment? I am so tired of waltzing! I have been to nine balls in eight days. I went to two the night before last."

Rosa started, and could scarcely conceal her surprise when she found herself

ceal her surprise when she found herself looking into the face of Pauline Bracegirdle. Pauline was perhaps the most strikinglooking woman at Lady Rosewood's ball that night. Her costume was a triumph of artistic skill, combined with richness of artistic skill, combined with richness of texture and a graceful stateliness. She wore a robe of pale primrose brocaded silk, looped up with bunches of primroses and the rich glowing crimson garden daisies called bachelors' buttons. She wore ornaments of pink coral set in an exquisite gold setting of Indian workmanship; her head was crowned by a diadem of her own flaxen tresses; how blue her eyes were, and how dark her evebrows, and her complexion was like that of a waxen doll! Mr. Worth had doubtless designed her costume, with its that of a waxen doll! Mr. Worth had doubtless designed her costume, with its startling contrasts of color—the crimson and pink, and primrose hues of a spring unset. Miss Bracegirdle took her place by the gide of Rosa Stanly.

"Is it not a charming room?—the walls:

are so artistic! I like these panels of various-colored polished woods better than pictures, unless pictures are of the very best-one sees such rubbish against some walls. And how is your father. Miss Stanly? Ah! what a blessing a really good father is to one! I have a gem of a father-a perfect treasure. He has come over from Paris now at my urgent request, and we have a house in Montague Place, Russel! Square, not a very grand position they tell me, but I took the house for papa-it was so thoroughly comfortable I fell in love with it. I live at home now. We should be so enchanted if you would pay us a visit."

Rosa felt bewildered; she had scarcely spoken a dozen times to this young woman in her life. She did not like her; she remembered with a pang that Owen, that flirt and defaulter, had received visits from this tall, handsome girl, while he was engaged to Rosa herself.

Pauline was a bold, foreign woman, whose beauty was the rich setting of an imitation gem. Something like this was Miss Stanly's private oninton of Miss.

THE FOOTBALL CASABIANCA. The boy stood on the football field, Whence all but he had fied; The rooters' shouting echoed o'er The dying and the dead.

His hair hung down into his eyes—Such of it as was left—For, sad to state, at one fell swoop, Of it he'd been bereft.

One arm hung limply at his side, And fluttered as he reeled; His teeth, like snowflakes in the wind, Were scattered o'er the field.

His shirt was torn across the chest, His pants ripped at the knees, His shoes clung sadly to his feet, Like mistletoe to trees. Yet beautiful and bright he stood, While all around, alack! Were fragments of the center rush, The half and quarter back.

The tackles on the goal post hung; The guards were borne away In ambulances which were called Quite, early in the fray.

And here and there lay a shoulder blade, And ears on every side, With fingers, feet and locks of hair, All unidentified.

The other side was lining up, With husky boast and scream.

'Come on!" he mumbled, toothlessly,

"I'll buck the entire team."

Baker Case Investigated Berlin Desires Information Re the Without Their Aid.

Committee Would Not Allow an Adjournment.

A Preliminary Meeting at Which Trustee Bayly and Lawyer Judd Say Nasty Things.

Principal Samuel Baker, of St. George's school, with his solicitor, Mr. C. H. Ivey and a corps of witnesses, was at last night's meeting of No. 1 committee of the board of education, ready for the investigation into the charges preferred against him. The complainant, Mr. Prodger, was also at the meeting, accompanied by his solicitor, Mr. J. C. Judd, but he was not ready to go on with the case. Having been out of town during the day, he had only received notice of the investigation at 5 colock, and therefore was tigation at 5 o'clock, and therefore was unable to get his witnesses. For this reason Mr. Judd asked that the case be laid over until Friday, at least, and in making the request, he said that an adjournment about he adjournment should be made until the matter was disposed of by the police magistrate.

Before settling this, however, the committee decided that the lawyer's services would not be required, because, as Trustee Bayly said, the conduct of one of their own servants was being investigated, and the members were competent to do it without outside assistance.

The effect of this was apparent afterwards, when, in spite of the decision, Mr. Judd persisted in speaking.
Trustee Bayly reminded the committee of the motion just passed, but Mr.Judd informed them that he did not care, and he was going to speak unless put out of the room. Trustee Bayly said that it was beneath the dignity of the committee to vacant allow any person to force himself up-"I am not going to allow Mr. Bayly to say that there is an ardent desire on the part of those representing Mr.

on the part of those representing Mr. Prodger to do what is not right," Mr. Judd said, after stating that there had been talk by Mr. Bayly of his (Mr. Judd's) burking the investigation until after the police court hearing.

Subsequently Trustee Teasdall moved that the case be put off until Friday, and said that the absence of Mr. Prodger's witnesses would make the investigation. ger's witnesses would make the investigation appear decidedly one-sided. "That," said Mr. Judd, "is what Mr. Bayly wants to make it."

"We can listen to statements of that

It was decided to go on with the ininstitutions of Ontario than it has yet vestigation tonight.

> Industry and Asks London to Join in the Search.

A letter from Berlin, asking the members of the beet sugar committee to take part in an excursion from Berlin to Cairo and Bay City, Mich., was the cause of the committee meeting at the city hall last night, when the invitation was left in the hands of Mayor Rumball, who is to get as large a delegation as possible to go. The idea is to gain some information respecting the growing of beets and the manufacture of sugar.

Mr. W. I. Spettigue reported the result of the analysis of samples of sugar beets grown on a portion of his farm, and sent to Guelph. samples were indiscriminately selected by Government Expert J. Dr. James Chosen to Succeed Former Provost Watkins.

Dr. C. N. James, M. A., Ph.D., was unanimously chosen, at a meeting of the Western University Senate yesterday afternoon, to fill the office of provost of the university, a position left vacant by the resignation of Rev. Provost Watkins early in the present year. Dr. James, who has been performing the important duties of registrar of the university and professor of modern languages and history, received the degree of M. A. from Toronto University, and after some years as specialist in modern lan-guages, English and Latin, in some of the leading collegiate institutes of the province, he spent two years in Germany, receiving at the end of that time the degree of Ph. D. During his connection with the university, Dr. James has been indefatigable in his efforts to advance its interests and maintain a high standard of educational ideals. He has shown himself wellkind with complaisance," Mr. Bayly fitted for the position to which he has been called, and there is no doubt that

CONDITIONS IN THE FAR PHILIPPINES

Former Londoner Gives Interesting Facts.

Military Rule Being Superceded by Civil Government.

Natives Are Not Trustworthy—Manila a Beautiful City - Many Londoners There.

Since the publication of a story in The Advertiser a few days ago, regarding the return of Mr. Wm. Riley to this city from a three and a half years' sojourn in the Philippine Islands, this paper has been in receipt of numerous inquiries about their friends in the Philippines and for other information, and to satisfy this end the following interview was obtained:

Mr. Riley came to London some nine years ago from Toronto, where his health broke down while studying law, and was employed as traveling agent of The Advertiser. At the time the Spanish-American war broke out he was on the reportorial staff of the World-Herald at Omaha, Nebraska, and when the Nebraska Volunteers were dispatched to the Philippines he accomanied the troops as war correspon-

"It was several months," says Mr. Riley, "before American troops went to Admiral Dewey's assistance after he had vanquished the Spanish fleet at Manila. The Bay of Manila presented a sad appearance, with the wrecks of Spanish war vessels strewn around. Another interesting incident which atwas the sound of musketry, and some eight miles across the bay could be seen the smoke of an engagement between the Filipino insurgents and the Spanish troops. The Filipinos had the Spanish forces hemmed in around the city of Manila, and the Americans landed their troops immediately behind the Filipinos, along the water line of the bay, so as to combine operations with the navy. The struggle was of but short duration. Under the threatening guns of the American fleet 10,000 soldiers entered Manila on Aug. 13, 1898, and the reins of government were assumed by the army of occupation. To run government and city offices with an army of soldiers in a foreign land is no small task.

During the time that Admiral Dewey blockaded Manila, business was suspended in the city, and the inhabitants were almost reduced to starva-The cost of living was very high, and the Spanish were in dreadful fear that Dewey would bombard the city. It was soon learned that the dominant power in the Philippines was the church, and that the state was of secondary importance.

"The inhabitants were given to understand that the Americans were everything that was bad, and that they were there to rob, murder and dese-Those who have remained at Manila have come to form a very different opinion, and now the best of feeling prevails among the Americans and Spanish.

"The outbreak between the Filipinos and Americans seemed to divert much of the bitterness which existed. The trouble with the Filipinos, which followed in February, was greatly regretted. The natives made unreasonable demands, and their discontent became so offensive as to provoke the patience of Uncle Sam. The country had been in a state of insurrection for years, and little attention had been paid to industry or the cultivation of the soil, and those who were inclined to be industrious were robbed of what they produced by their own people. It seemed, therefore, second nature for the Filipino to live in lawlessness, steal and murder.

"In their strife with the Americans they were better organized and better equipped than they had ever been before. From their observations of American maneuvers in the attack on Manila, they gained many pointers in warfare, and learned many practical

"Every inducement was held out to the insurgents, but it was of no use. They continually asked for time, and meantime would perpetrate the most dastardly crimes, and in consequence have been compelled to suffer the bitterest experiences. They are posinumber, are all under garrison by American soldiers. There are now no large organized bands of insurrectos roving around, and all the principal leaders of the insurrection have either been captured or have surrendered. They have been notified and given plenty of time to quit, and those re-maining out will have to suffer the consequences. Those holding out are practically savages and are away off from the large centers, robbing and murdering their own people in the mountainous regions and being chased red last month, but with less loss to Americans. The greatest care is taken to prevent surprises and every effort used to run down any sign of hostility.

"The military government practically relinquished its hold last Fourth of July, and civil government is being organized as rapidly as conditions will permit. Provincial government is being established in all parts of the islands as soon as any guarantee for peaceful conditions can be secured and responsible officials found to conduct and assure good government. This is really the first time in the history of the islands that the natives have been given any voice in the management of their own government. Even fow that they have a chance to govern themselves they are actually suspicious of each other, and the result is, they prefer to elect officials for the most important and trusty places from the military officers who have filled such positions during the time of American occupation. Over 75 per cent of the responsible positions government service are held by men selected from the United States army, all on account of the untrustworthiness of the natives. "The natives never knew what it was to have free education, and the way they are studying and attending American public schools is exceedingly gratifying. They are all, young and old, eager to learn the English language and prefer it to Spanish or their own native idioms. As rapidly as the troops have moved into the interior public schools have been estab-lished, and 1,200 American teachers are now superintending the education of the Filipines. At first the introduction of American schools met with considerable opposition by certain sections of the church, but an agreeable arrangement has been arrived at and the public left to select their own places of instruction, all of which are under the supervision of an American commissioner. Since American occupation, the Protestant religion has been intro-duced by the different denominations, and many of the natives are becoming converts to the new faith. Their own religion (Catholicism), they claim, has been virtually thrust upon them, and many contend that they have been bullied into it under all kinds of threats by the Friar priests. natives are very anxious to rid themselves of this sect of the priesthood and are delighted with the suppression of the power of these white petticoated padres by the American Government.

"Now that the turbulent conditions are becoming quieter, it is very pleasing to note that the natives are gradually settling down to industrial pursuits and business is commencing to assume renewed activity. The ISLANDS ARE EXCEEDINGLY

RICH and the climate one of the best in the tropics. Almost every form of agriculture may be undertaken with the most satisfactory results. principal products are hemp, tobacco, sugar, coffee, cotton, cocoanuts corn, fruits, straw, etc., and these, together with hides form the chief exports. Vast forests of the most valuable hardwoods exist all over the islands, and the country is known to be rich in mineral wealth. Petroleum and coal are already being worked to profitable advantage. During the last year of Spanish rule the imports to the islands were estimated at $10,000,000, and the exports $15,000,000. The first year of American occupation the imports amounted to $20,000,000 and the exports exceeded $19,000,000. Last year the importations were $27,000,000, and the exports $26,000,000.

"Manila is a city of 250,000 population and is about three days' voyage from Hong Kong. Considering the large foreign element in the city the social conditions are very enjoyable. "Frost and cold are unknown, and with the exception of the rainy season the climate is a real paradise. All the white residents have servants or lacqueys, selected from the natives or Chinese, and the pay of this help ranges from $3 50 to $8 per month, and they feed themselves on this. Prior to American occupation only about onehalf of this price was paid for labor. The streets are very narrow and the buildings are one and two stories high. Manila has one of the finest drivewavs in the world, called the 'Luneta.' It is a real blessing to the city. It runs along the ray for nearly a mile, and ends up with a circle about half a mile around, in the center of which are band stands, and there is some musical attraction or other there every evening.

"After the day's toil the people flock to the Luneta in thousands to listen to the music and enjoy the cool breezes which blow off the waters of the bay." Shortly after the capture of Manila Mr. Riley was given a position in the customs department, and he compiled the first statistics of the Philippines for the United States Government. At the present time he holds the position of inspector of customs at Manila, and his vacation expires at the end of the year. He expects to get another leave of absence in 1903, and will visit Canada again and take in the St. Louis Exposition, which is scheduled for that year. Speaking of the Pan-American, Mr. Riley says it was well worth the trip from Manila to see the electrical illuminations alone. He is

PLEASANTLY SURPRISED with the improvement the city of Lonthere was no asphalt paving and no electric cars. The city of Manila was in deep mourning over the news of Queen Victoria's death. All government offices were closed, and the American flag was at half-mast, and in many instances draped with the British flag. Americans, says Mr. thought how soon Britishers would mourn and sympathize with them over the untimely death of President McKinley. The visitor was in this city during the time London was in mourning over the death of the American president, and was pleasingly surprised to see the sympathetic feeling shown. There are quite a lot of Canadians in the Philippines. Besides Mr. Riley, there are a number of Londoners in Manila, among them being Mr. Dar-nell, Wm. Crozier, Thos. West, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson, Mr. Casey and others.
