A MEMORABLE SCENE. Not in years had the House of Commons been so thronged with a brilliant and enthusiastic audience as when the first lord of the treasury, Hon. A. J. Balfour, announced the peace terms concluded with the Boers. Long before the customary prayer the galleries of the house were packed. Joseph H. Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Balfour both received a great ovation as they walked to their seats. The period of waiting finally came to an end, when, amid breathess silence, broken a few seconds later by applause such as the House of Commons seldom hears, Mr. Balfour stood up and announced the terms on which the war in South Africa had been ended.

The Boers in Europe.

The news of the conclusion of peace in South Africa was received with very mixed feeling at The Hague. While there is general satisfaction that the war is ended, unvarying regret is expressed at the loss of Boer independence. The Boer delegates here are in a particularly trying position. The British Government refused to allow the Boers in South Africa to communicate with their leaders, thus the delegates on the continent were entirely shut out of the negotiations, and were ignorant even of the terms of surrender, except as they learned of them through the newspapers. KRUGER HAS NOTHING TO SAY.

Spencer, and his intention was to pass through the Central Station, cross the interpro-vincial bridge, and then run down through Hull and cross the C. P. F. bridge into the Union Station, where he would catch the Imperial Limited for the west. On pulling into the Central Station, however, the C. P. R. president found that the officials of the Canada Atlantic Railway Company, which controls the station, had placed stop blocks on the line at its northern end, cutting off communication with the interprovincial bridge and the Ottawa and Northern Railway. The two latter, it may be explained, were recently purchased by the C. P. R. Sir Thomas got off his car and looked at the obstruction. Then, with the utmost sang froid, he observed that he would not go across the bridge just He remarked to a number of press men, who were watching lopments, that if the C. A. R. officials knew their business they would not have blocked the way, and steps would immediately be taken to have the rights of the C. P. R. with respect to the use of the Central Station de-termined. Then Sir Thomas stepped on board his train, and it backed out and reached the Union Station by an-

In consequence of the Canada Atlantic Company's action there is likely to be a lively time when the railway committee meets. The ground occupied by the Canada Atlantic at the Central Station is government property, and is for the general use of railways, and not for the exclusive occupation of any one line. Hence there is little doubt that when the attention of the railway committee is drawn to the matter it will make an order compelling the Canada Atlantic to grant the C. P. R. a proper and reasonable use of the station premises. In its application the C. P. R. will likely be supported

Chemist's Odd Will.

Dr. Von Jirusch, formerly a professor of chemistry at the University of Prague, died recently, and, as he had no family, he left his entire fortune, amounting to about $15,000, to the Prague Museum. In his will he said that he made this bequest on the following condition:

His furniture, his linen, his silverplate, his paintings, his books, his letters, the manuscripts of his unfinished works, all the instruments in the laboratory, and all the things which he used while making his tollet, such as his comb, brush, tooth brush, etc., were to be carefully packed up, and then placed in several strong iron boxes, which were to be hermetically sealed, and were not to be opened for

The authorities of the museum will comply with this condition, and in the year 2,102 all the property which belonged to Dr. Von Jirusch will be placed on exhibition, so that the scientists and general public of the twentysecond century may obtain an accurate idea of the manner in which an Austrian chemist lived at the opening of the twentieth century.

If Dr. Von Jirusch had been nothing but a chemist he would probably never have made such a will. The reason why he made it was because he has for years spent much of his time in archeological researches.

OURFRIENDS'MISFORTUNES

Cynical Saying That They Give Pleasure Refuted.

A Definition of True Friendship and of Misfortune-Envy Unmixed With Malice.

[British Weekly.] The cynical saying that there is omething pleasant to us in the misfortunes of our friends has been revived lately. Is it true?

In order to arrive at an answer, we must define our terms. In the first place, we must ask the meaning of the word friend. It is a word very loosely used. As a matter of fact, not one of us has many friends, friends in the golden true sense. We have many acquaintances, and some of these acquaintances are on intimate terms with us. We meet them often, we are associated with them in business or in pleasure, but they are not friends. A friend could never take pleasure in our misfortunes. A friend is one who really cares for us, whose interests are in a large way identified with ours, whose happiness rises or falls with our own. It is an exacting definition, and clears the ranks like some fatal missile of war. Nevertheless, it is a true definition. It will leave many people, perhaps, but one or two friends. These friends, I repeat, cannot take pleasure in our misfortunes. Acquaintances touch us in one or two points. There is between us and them some community of thought and feeling and interest. In other points, however, they repel us, and we repel them. That is what prevents the acquaintanceship from passing into a friendship. They may take pleasure in our misfortunes. Whether they will or not depends very much on their character.

MISFORTUNE DEFINED. We must also find a definition for he word misfortune. If it is a great calamity, I do not think that even acquaintances take pleasure. It is true that some men have let envy and malice increase within them till they have become mere pole-cats. These some may be left out of account. But a Who, if unnoticed, grew preversely sudden dreadful blow falling on any poor human creature sobers even en-A man is sometimes so horribly mauled that he seeks refuge in suicide, and few indeed are found to break the awed and compassionate silence in

On the other hand, I do not deny that if by misfortune is meant a trifling remedial pain the case may be different. A friend of yours, let us say, suffers badly from self-conceit. Even in private it might be well that he should not. I have no belief in the kind of friendship which enables one friend to abuse another in print. It might be too much to say that a man should stand by his friend even when he is in the wrong, but at any rate he ought to stand by him when he is in the right, and leave it to others to may remain a friend and yet fail to Home's play, "The Fatal Discovery," in the right, and leave it to others to criticise when he wanders from the While resting under scme gigantic bamboos, I was much amused in watching some elphants which are employed in carrying stones for the road, says a writer in the Cornhill Magazine. Their mahouts had dismounted and gone to sleep. The huge beasts, having finished their mid-day meal, began wandering up and down the little village street on a tour of investigation. Very stealthily one sidled up to a hut, and, winding his trunk round the open door, drew out a large bunch of bananas, with which went off much pleased with him-Another, seeing his friend's success, thought he would try the same game, and was rewarded by having a heavy iron pot flung at him, at which he was so alarmed that he stampeded back to his moorings, cannoning against another elephant which was ousily engaged in removing a grass thatch roof. Preserving Ontario's Forest Wealth.

The report of Mr. Thomas Southworth, director of forestry for Ontarlo, For the years 1900-1901, gives an interesting account of the situation in the Province, from which it appears that the forestry problem so far as it relates to the crown lands, is meeting with a satisfactory solution.

The principle is now recognized that lands of a non-agricultural character should be kept perpetually in timber as the only way in which they can be rendered productive. Large areas of such lands have accordingly been set aside as timber reserves. . including Temagami reserve, in Nipissing district, of 1,408,000 acres; Shibley reserve. on the north shore of Lake Superior, of 45,000 acres, and the eastern reserve In Frontenac and Addington counties. about 80,000 acres, in extent. These will be added to from time to time, as circumstances may seem to require. Danger from fire, the imminence of which tended to encourage wasteful and destructive methods of lumbering, has almost disappeared, owing to efficiency of the fire-ranging system, and matters are consequently in a highly satisfactory condition as regards this phase of the question.

The question, however, presents such greater difficulties in older Ontario, as the land being nearly all owned by private individuals the Government cannot adopt any comprehensive scheme of forestry. The tendency to clear the land of every kind of timber having commercial value is fostered by the increasing demand for industrial purposes, so that the progress of deforesting the country is rapid and alarming. Especially is this the case In those parts where the soil is well adapted for cultivation. An investigation was made by the director of forestry as to the proportion of woodland remaining in each county, based upon the municipal returns furnished A comparison of these returns, which give the respective areas of cleared and uncleared land, for the years 1896 and 1901, showed that in the interval the amount of timbered land had greatly and Grenville the woodland area had slightly increased. Whereast in 1896 there were 30 counties having less than 25 per cent of their area under timber, In 1901 there were 37 in this condition. Only six counties, all in the eastern part of the Province, had a percentage of timber in excess of 25 per cent. Of the counties having less than that proportion of woodland, 10 had between 20 and 25 per cent, 16 had between 10 and 20 per cent, and 11 had less than 10 per cent. According to the opinion of forestry authorities. 20 per cent may be regarded as the lowest percentage to which the woodland acreage can be reduced without seriously endangering the interests of agriculture. It is evident, therefore, that in much of the older settled portions of the Province, the proper proportion of timbered and cleared land no longer exists, and evidence is not wanting that the country s beginning seriously to feel the effects of over-clearance. Many individual townships make a still worse showing. A list of 44 townships is given in total acreage is under 5 per cent. In the United States, where the probjem is one of longer standing, there has been a good deal of consideration given to it by legislators. In many States bonuses are given for planting trees and preserving them in good conlition or some exemption from taxation given where land is kept in timber. A summary of this legislation is furnished which is deserving of attention by Ontario law-makers. The report, which Is an instructive and valuable one. should be widely circulated. They were a strong influence in the recent election, and they took no pains to cover up their tracks. Speeches like those on Thursday night, therefore, are neither prudent nor justiflable. The spoils system is the bane of American politics, and the great obstacle to efficiency in the public service. It is not a political doctrine that should be preached in Canada by anyone interested in good government or good citizenship.

Lord Kitchener.

The chief laurels of the South African war go rightfully to Kitchener. Lord Roberts' march to Pretoria was a brilliant feat, and at the time it was supposed to be a dramatic and spectacular climax to the war. But there was nothing dramatic or spectacular in the role assigned to Kitchener. A. more uninviting, uninspiring task was never allotted a British general, and seldom a more formidable one. He had to face conditions entirely new to British military experience. He had to wear down by sheer attrition an enemy unsurpassed in guerilla tactics, fighting in its own territory and familiar with every foot of it. With one hand he had to crush an open foe, and with the other grapple with treason operating on a gigantic scale, and in the most insidious forms.

The methodical, surefooted way in which he went about his work revealed that genius for organization which enabled him to overthrow the hosts of enabled him to overthrow the hosts of the Mahdi and reclaim the Soudan to They will give him orb and scepter, the civilization. Allied with this was an iron resolution, a bull-dog tenacity, characteristically British. No reverses, no disaster seemed to disturb him or check for a moment the steady, machine-like process by which he was grinding down the Boers. With infinite patience he elaborated his plan of campaign and wove a net around the Boers, from which in the end there could have been no escape. It is little wonder the British people are reported as looking upon Kitchener with something akin to awe. It is probable his latest service to the Empire will bring him a dazzling reward, perhaps the succession to Lord Roberts as commander-in-chief. There is a widespread belief that he is the man needed to shake the dry bones of the army system and put a new spirit into the

Isn't the average of stupidity more likely to be represented by the number of spoiled ballots in the elections of 1900 and 1902?

There is no explaining away the figures of 1896 on honest grounds. The simple truth is that scores of ballots were wilfully spoiled, not by voters. but by those that had access to the ballot boxes.

The blow almost killed Kruger.

How did Kitchener manage to do it without Col. Sam Hughes?

A Coronation Ode.

[By Bliss Carman.]

Bliss Carman, perhaps the best known of the present-day Canadian poets, has made a notable contribution to the literature of the Coronation in the following poem, published in the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post, the paper founded by Ben Franklin. Carman is one of that numerous band of talented Canadians who have deemed it necessary to remove to the United States in order to obtain due recognition of their ability. If one is to be guided by the hopeful ring of Canadianism in his latest work, the time is upon us when Canadians may look to their own country for the laurels which Americans have been willing and eager to place upon their heads in the past.

There are joy-bells over England, there are flags on London town;
There is bunting on the Channel, where the fleets go up and down;

There are bonfires alight
In the pageant of the night;
There are bands that blare for splendor and guns that speak for might; For another King in England is coming

Then he will rise from prayer, In the ancient Minster there, And hear the world's four corners proclaim the troth they bear, ery, "God save King Edward," and pledge the liegeman's word.

They will keep the old tradition that fills the world with fame; will hold by use and custom, and

To Kamloops, where the hills are set as at a council grand;

From the waving Northern light
At the edge of Polar night,
Where underneath the burnished stars
the bitter trail is bright,
To the inland seas that sparkle where goodly orchards stand;

By prairie, swale and barren, by jungle and lagoon.
Where endless palm trees rustle and the creamy breakers croon,

By canyon, ford and pass,
By desert and morass,
In snows like stinging lashes, on seas like burning glass.

By every land and water beneath the great lone moon;

Our fathers died for England at the outposts of the world; mothers toiled for England where the settler's smoke upcurled; By portage, trek and trail.
By portage, trek and trail.
They bore a thing called honor in hearts that did not quail.
Till the twelve great winds of heaven saw their scarlet sign unfurled.

And little did they leave us of fame or land or gold;
Yet they gave us great possessions in heritage untold;

heritage untoid; For they said, "Ye shall be clean, Nor ever false nor mean, For God and for your country and the honor of your Queen, Till ye meet the death that waits you with your plighted faith unsold.

"We have fought the long, great battle of the liberty of man.

And only asked a goodly death uncraven in the van:

m the van; We have journeyed travel-worn Through envy and through scorn, But the faith that was within us we have stubbornly upborne.

For we saw the perfect structure behind the rough-hewn plan.

We have toiled by land and river, we we have tolled by land and river, we have labored on the sea;
If our blindness made us blunder, our courage made us free.
We suffered or we throve.
We delved and fought and strove,
But born to the ideals of order, law and love,

To our birthright we were loyal, and loyal shall ye be!" O East they go and West they go, never can they bide,

For the longing that is in them, and the whisper at their side!
They may 'stablish hearth and home, But the sons will forth and roam.
As their fathers did before them, across the hollow foam.
Till strange lands lift to greet them at the edges of the tide.

They have visions of a country that sorrow never knew;
They have rumors of a region where the heart has naught to rue;
And never will they rest
Till they reach the fabled West.
That is charted, dim but certain, in the Volume of the Breast,
And forever they are dreamers who make the dream come true.

In the North they are far forward, in the South they have begun, English of three continents who take their rule from none, take their rule from none,

But follow on the gleam
Of an ancient, splendid dream,
That has manhood for its fabric, perfection for its theme—
With freedom for its morning-star and knowledge for its sun.

And slowly, very slowly, the gorgeous dream grows bright,
Where rise the four Democracies of Anglo-Saxon might;
The Republic, fair alone; The Commonwealth new-grown;
The proud, reserved Dominion, with a story of her own;
And One that shall emerge at length from travail, war and blight.

It is at such times that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prove themselves prompt to give relief and certain to effect a cure. The evidence to prove this fact is simply overwhelming.
Mr. James Treneman states: "Two years ago I was laid up with kidney isease and urinary troubles. Besides the pain and inconvenience caused by these troubles, I became dropsical, and my legs would swell up so that I ould scarcely go around at all. Hearng of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I procured a box and continued the use of this valuable medicine until now I can say for a certainty that I am entirely cured. I never took any medicine that did me so much good, and am firmly convinced that if it had not been for this medicine I would not be working today." As a family medicine of tested and known worth, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have never been approached. They act directly on the kidneys and liver, regulate the bowels and insure the perfect action of the digestive and filtering systems. One pill a dose; 5 cents a box. THE NEGOTIATIONS. London, June 2.-A parliamentary paper issued this evening gives the correspondence preceding the peace agreement. From this it appears that General Schalkburger (acting president of the Transvaal) informed Lord Kitchener, March 12, that he was prepared to make peace proposals. A month later the Boer delegates submitted propositions.

On April 13 the war secretary, Mr.

Brodrick, refused to entertain any proposition based on the independence of Capt. Arthur Donegal, was the best of the republics. Subsequently President Steyn, of the Orange Free State, and Gens. The British Government expressed surprise at this attitude, but announced its willingness to accept the Boers' surrender on the same terms that Lord Kitchener had previously offered Gen.

Botha, and to give facilities for consultation of the Boer commands. On the 17th Gen. Schalkburger and Mr. Steyn informed Lord Kitchener that the burghers assembled at Vereeniging had empowered a commission to negotiate peace terms, subject to ratification at Vereeniging. THE BOERS' OFFER.

TO BIG AUDIENCE

Peace Agreement Executed in Successful Musical Comedy Seen in This City.

Inconsiderate Theater-Goers Marred Opening Scenes of Presentation by Entering Late.

The long-heralded musical comedy, "Florodora," came to the New Grand last night. Despite the sultriness of the evening, it was greeted by an audience which in point of numbers equal-Lord Milner and Gen. Dewet and ed, if not exceeded, the attendance at others representing the Orange Free any production of the season, thus adding further proof if any were needed. that London is much more partial to musical comedy and comic opera than to any other form of entertainment. As it was, it fails to equal in pleasing quality two, at least, of the season's other offerings-"San Toy" and "Dolly Varden"

"Florodora" is the first of Leslie Stuart's more ambitious compositions to be heard in this city, and it deepened the favorable impression made by such of his songs and lyrics as were already known here. Mr. Stuart's music is delightfully bright and rippling. Owen Hall's book, while not quite up to the standard of "The Geisha," is nevertheless very entertaining. The company was an uneven one in many respects. Like the little girl with the curl on her forehead, some of them were good, were very, very good, and some of them so bad they were horrid. In the matter of voices, the female section of the company had rathe male vocalists, and his duet with Angela, "Galleping," and his song with chorus, "I Want to be a Military Man." were most acceptable. Sidney Deane, as Lord Abercoed, marred his work with a certain stiffness, while his voice lacked the round and robust quality which marked that of Melville Stuart, the original Abercoed, who was seen here in "San Toy." R. Peyton Carter was acceptable as Gilfain. Lloyd F. Hoey showed himself an agile and grac-ful dancer in his duet with Valleda (M.ss Frances Tyson), "We Get Up at 8

As usual, the enlightened and cultured people of London did their best to spoil the first half-hour of the presentation. Although the house was practically sold out, not more than onethird of the orchestra chairs were occupied when the curtain rose. The consequence was that those who went early saw about as little of the opening as those who came late, for it was impossible to follow the proceedings on the stage owing to the noise and hustle made by the late-comers as they crowded to their seats.

AGE LIMIT FOR

No. 3 Committee to Discuss Important Reform.

PROPOSED LIMIT IS 55 YEARS COUNCIL IGNORE

Some Suitable Scheme of Superannuation Will in All Probability Be Proposed.

The members of No. 3 committee will have before them at their next meeting, a proposition which will materially affect the local staff of firemen. It is a proposal to place an age limit upon the firemen. The plan is to let any man who reaches the age of 55 years drop out, the idea being that no man who is past that age is sufficiently agile to meet the exacting demands of a fire-fighter's life. The difficulty that confronts such an arrangement lies in providing something for the maintenance of the brave men who have given the best years of their life to the service of the city. At present no plan has been devised except to shunt them out upon a cold world at an age when it is nearly impossible to secure suitable work. It is improbable, however, that this would be allowed. Public gratitude would demand better treat-ment for the men than whom no body of public servants are more faithful. Ald. Winnett, who intimated at the meeting of the city council last night that the age limit is to be applied, realizes that some better plan than that mentioned must be found, and it is likely that when the matter comes before the committee the members will try to evolve some scheme of superannuation, which would recompense the firemen for the loss of their occupation.

have them repaired or rebuilt. H. D. Johnson, school inspector for West Middlesex, submitted the following report:

The total receipts from all sources, including the balance carried over from 1900 was $63,476 51, the total expenditure $52,081 04, showing an increase over the expenditure of 1900 of $662 03. The amount paid for teachers' salaries shows an increase of $1,416 07. The sum paid for new schoolhouses shows a decrease of $3,704 36. The amount paid for libraries, maps, etc., shows a decrease of $675 20. The cost of fuel, janitors, etc., shows an increase of $3.133 74. The total balance carried over was $11,395 47 -considerably more than that of the previous year. The receipts and payments appear somewhat larger than they really are, as no allowance is made for the loans on trustees' notes for the payment of teachers' salaries, whereas the only part that affects the section is the interest paid for the loan. The average male teacher's salary in the rural sections was $367 95-$2 75

$279 78-$3 91 higher than for the previous year. There are 48 male teachers and 62 female teachers. Of these 3 held firsts, 62 seconds and 45 thirds. The total number of pupils enrolled was 4,818, classified as follows: In first class, Part I., 828; Part II., 778; in the second, 831: in the third, 1,005: in the fourth, 1,020, and in the fifth, 256. Council adjourned to meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

CHILDREN'S DAY

Splendid Gathering of Sabbath School Scholars at Derwent.

The annual children's day service in connection with Salem Methodist Church Sunday school at Derwent was held Sunday afternoon and might very appropriately have been called "everybody's day," as the edifice was crowded to the doors, several having to content themselves with seats outside. The instructor, will be glad to know of church was attractively decorated, and his arrival in Toronto from Italy, the choir and school rendered excellent special music. Mr. J. G. Both addresses were listened to with intense appreciation by the audience, young and old, and will tend to promote the good work which the school is carrying on.

LEGAL ADVISER

Mr. T. G. Meredith Says Council Has Power to Grant It. But Latter Think Otherwise

The city council's refusal to recon-Sifton Electric Company to connect with Mr. J. R. Shuttleworth's establishment will not surprise anybody who has observed the attitude of the majority of ed to this city when a child. He had the aldermen towards this new company. The majority on the council took this action, notwithstanding the opinion of the city solicitor that the Sifton request was a proper one, and could be rightfully granted. The refusal to accept Mr. Meredith's opinion is on a par with the mayor's action in connection with the extension of the street railway, when he accepted and allowed himself to be ruled by the opinion of the railway company's solicitors, and thrust aside the opinion of the solicitor whom the city employs to keep it on the straight and narrow path of legal rectitude. Ald. Greenlees' motion last night was for a reconsideration of a decision against the Sifton Company that was reached at a meeting at which the Sifton people were not represented. The council had referred the matter to that committee with power, in order that there might be no unwarranted delay, but instead of using their power to assist the new Inspector Johnson's Report on West | company to secure the privileges that the law gives it, under the council, the committee used it to throw the application out altogether, and this in the face of Mr. Meredith's opinion, which, as sent to the committee, is, that "since the municipal amendment of 1902 came into force on the 1st inst. The most that I can remember about him is that he was tall and thin. His hair was white; he looked sick, and coughed as if he had weak lungs."

"Where did he order the cradle sent?"

"He didn't order it sent anywhere; he came in a carriage, and the minute he paid for the thing he had it clapped inside upon the front seat and took it away with him."

At all events he must have his cradle back again; something must be done immediately to recover it.

But his heart failed him when he thought that perhaps the purchaser might have been only a visitor in Chicago, and had already left the city. And yet, he reasoned, if he had had any vital interest in the heirloom—if he was anxious to discover who had disposed of it, he would be likely to make further inquiries before leaving town.

Max stopped on the corner of the street, took out his notebook and wrote the following advertisement:

HAMILTON JOCKEY CLUB MEETING OPENED TODAY

Races Promise To Be the Most Interesting in Many Years.

The Expected Howl of Derision From Toronto Lacrosse Circles.

The Hamilton Jockey Club's spring meeting opened today, and everything indicates that it will be one of the most successful in the history of the Ambitious City. With Hamilton, Fort Erie, Windsor and Detroit meetings following close upon one another, lovers of racing will surely have enough among the employes of that stylish house.

"The gentleman who occupies that room—Mr. Wellington—is an invalid; but, if you like, I will take your card to him and inform him that you desire an interview," the clerk replied.

"Very well," Max responded, and, after writing a line up his card, mentioning the object of his cail, he passed it to the man, who at once took it upstairs. He returned after short absence and informed Max that the gentleman would see him; and feeling strangely agitated and also singularly depressed, he followed his guide to the elegant room on the second floor occupied by the invalid, whose name was Wellington.

The clerk rapped upon the door, then immediately opened it, saying simply "Mr. Remington, sir." Then he stood aside for Max to pass in, after which he instantly shut it again.

The young man found himself in the presence of an elderly gentleman, of perhaps fifty years of age, though by reason of long-continued ill-health he appeared to be much older. Pittsburg's ball team is not as good a loser as winner, as shown by Friday afternoon, when it was shut out for the first time this year. No ball club is invincible, and even the dubbest tail-ender is liable to defeateven to shut out - the leaders. But Pittsburg is unable to accept an occasional defeat with grace. When this game began to slip away the Pirates fell back on the old umpire-is-beatingus plaint, and both O'Connor and Wagner made low throws to bases that are be much older.
The moment Max looked into the face believed to have been intended to knock the umpire, Browne, over, and at was turned toward him with a that was turned foward him with a glance of eager inquiry, his heart was strangely touched.

It was a noble face, with a massive brow, from which a quantity of silvery hear had been thrown carelessly back, giving the man a stately and venerable look. Genial, impressive dark eyes met that certainly forced him to make quick ducks to escape being maimed. Various writers, not one man alone, tell of these actions, and condemn the Pittsburg players for their babyish work.

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien on Friday evening will make his first appearance was a sorrowful curve that was almost pathetic.

"And you have no idea where he went?"
"No more than you have," the clerk returned; then he added, regretfully: "I am sorry, sir, if there has been a mistake; I was an helrloom, and ill; while, to Max's great deal. It was an helrloom, Max responded, looking deeply troubled. He left the store, his mind in a whirt. Who was this elderly gentleman who had been so strangely excited upon seething his ancient cradle?

Was he someone whose family had once owned the thing; Doubtless it had passed through many hands during the century of its existence. Was he some relative of his own family?

He dared not think that could be possible, and yet he was in an agony of suspense over what he had heard.

At all events he must have his cradle back again; something must be done immediately to recover it.

Was a sorrowful curve that was almost pathetic.

It was a countenance full of intelligence on character—one which once seen could never be forgotten.

The man was sitting, or rather half reclining, in a large easy-chair, and less weightily burdened with British titles, and less weightily burdened with British conjunction with Al Neill, the coast stood close beside him.

He was atfired in a dressing-gown of gary flamel, richly faced with silk, and a pair of handsome slippers encased his feet, which rested upon a hassock.

"Mr. Remington," the old gentleman courteously remarked, as he pointed to a chair, "won't you please be seated.

What was to be the outcome of this interview? What was the mystery connected with that cradle, which appeared to be of so much interest to itself. before a western audience since com-

He concluded by saying that Mrs. Remington had sacredly preserved the queer little ark in which he had floated down stream away in Pennsylvania, believing that it would eventually lead to the discovery of his parentage if anything could.

At length he looked up and resumed, in an appealing tone: The Tecumsehs worked together with their shooting deadly in the extreme. Some Lengthy Games.

SOME LENGTHY GAMES. Chicago seems to get more than its share of the spectacular extra-inning games. This season the banner overtime contests of both the major leagues were fought in the Windy City, Chicago and Cincinnati having a 12-inning deadlock (0 to 0) on May 1 at the West Side Park and Chicago and St. Louis engaging in a 17-round draw on May 18 at the Wentworth Avenue grounds. The length of this last contest equaled, but did not shatter, the American's record for an extra-inning game, for previously there had been a trio of events that won 17 innings, viz., in 1887, when Milwaukee defeated Oshkosh 4 to 3; in 1899, when St. Paul defeated Milwaukee 5 to 4, and in 1900. when Milwaukee bested Chicago 3 to 2. I don't know whether this last-mentioned contest was pulled off in Comiskeyville; but I do know year, on Sept. 21, certain Windy City fans saw the memorable 17-inning Chicago-Boston duel, which the Remnants gathered in 1 to 0. Tom Hughes facing Dinneen on the rubber, while the sea son previous, on June 19, a 14-round affair, with Chicago and Pittsburg as contestants, Griffith and Waddell pitchers and a score of 1 to 0 in Chicago's favor, was witnessed by certain of the chosen at West Side Park. Going further back, one finds that Chicago was, on June 30, 1892, the scene of the longest battle in league annals, the Ansonites and Comiskey's Cincinnatis fighting for 20 innings and for three hours and 20 minutes before John Gaffney called a halt, with the score at 7 to 7. Mr. White asked the council that the agreement be completed as soon as an electric light at the corne. of Edossible, as he wished to get to work.

He said that the company expected to spend probably $80,000 a year in wages and would employ probably 60 to 75 men in each of two shifts. In reply to questions asked him, he said that a large portion of the mills would be new steel buildings, and that perhaps per cent of the workmen would be skilled laborers

In order to facilitate matters the council agreed to hold a special meeting if necessary to pass the bylaw, and that in the meantime the assessmen of the land purchased by Mr. White for the new industry be fixed at $5,-

Election Expenses.

Returning Officer Dignan submitted the bill of expense for the polling places used in the recent elections. It amounted to $180-$5 each. Mr. R. K. Cowan also submitted a bill for the use of registering booths. The city clerk suggested that these be referred to the city treasurer and city solicitor with power, as there was no doubt of the correctness of the accounts, as they were fixed by statute. Ald. Douglass and Ald. Cooper wanted it first sent to No. 1 committee, and the council decided that it be sent to No. 1 with power, in order that no unnecessary delay be caused. Before this was done, however, Ald. Cooper made a long speech in which he protested against paying these accounts until they were absolutely sure that no mistakes had been made. He switched back to preelection times and protested against the change in the council's list which the returning officer had made. In reply, Ald. Greenlees said that Ald. Cooper wished to throw the duty of settling legal difficulties upon No. 1 which he for one did not come to the

A discussion arose upon a clause in No. 3 committee's report which sugwas money enough in the bill posting business to warrant the imposition of such a license fee. GULF STREAM IS A MYTH

Modern Science Says It Has No Effect on Climate.

Western Europe Not Affected By Its

Proximity-Real Cause Atmospheric Changes.

One after another, like mists before the sun, the teachings of childhood and youth are dissipated in the brighter light of modern scientific investigation. All who are adults today were taught what Harvey Maitland Watts calls "the Gulf Stream Myth," which was fathered by Maury and is still accounted as fact in the physical geographies of the day.

Mr. Watts, in the June number of Scribner's Magazine, says that the belief that the Gulf Stream is the sole lief that the Gulf Stream is the sole lief that the Gulf Stream is the sole cause of the mild oceanic climate of Western Europe is still taught in the public schools of England and America, though it is absolutely without foundation whatever. "Modern meteorology knows that the Gulf Stream as an oceanic current has no more effect on the climate of Western Europe than a oceanic current has no more effect on the climate of Western Europe than a veather vane has on the winds that turn it." That the belief is still held is "a tribute to its attractive statement by one man and the hypnotic influence of one book," exerted in a transition period in the development of an inexact science, faith, overborne by modern scientific for the southwest winds of Europe is due to the moistures in those latitudes.

"Modern meteorology knows that the Gulf Stream as an oceanic current has no more effect on the climate of Western Europe than a weather vane has on the winds that turn it." That the belief is still held is "a tribute to its attractive statement by one man and the hypnotic influence of one book," exerted in a transition period in the development of an inexact science. "The essential facts are," continues Mr. Watts, "that the Gulf Stream as an oceanic current ceases to exist, that is, oceanic current ceases to exist, that is, to differ in act and temperature of the ocean east of the longitude of Cape Race, Newfoundland. It cannot, therefore, Newfoundland. It cannot, therefore, convey, does not convey, warm water to the shores of Western Europe, there to modify the climate and give the British Isles the breezes of the "unvexed Bermudas," and Sweden and Norway the warmth of the Carolinas.

CHANGES.

"Climatic causation is not a function of ocean currents, but of aerial currents, and the mild oceanic climate of Western Europe is due to the distribution by the permanent aerial circulation in the whole Atlantic basin of the moderating, mitigating effects of the ocean as a whole. This permanent circulation takes the form of a great cyclone in high latitudes and of an enormous anti-cyclonic eddy in mid-latitudes, and to the mid-Atlantic anti-cyclone the credit that has been held by the Gulf Stream these many years must be transferred. For, were this aerial eddy to continue as it is now, and the general atmospheric drift from west to east in the northern hemisphere to remain the same, the complete disappearance of the Gulf Stream and all the oceanic currents in the Atlantic would be without the slightest effect on the weather and climate of Europe. Any shifting of the anti-cyclone, however, and this means the consequent interaction with the permanent cyclone that determines the circulation in the Atlantic north of the latitude of Cape Race-produces a decided change in the weather and a variation of cilmatic effects. And yet here again the myth obtrudes, and the phenomena are glibly attributed to the shifting of the Guir Stream, which very shifting itself is due on most occasions to the action of the wind currents of the anti-cyclone."

rents of the anti-cyclone."

BEN FRANKLIN'S DISCOVERY.

Mr. Watts thinks it is high time "the warming pan, hot water bottle theory" of Maury should be given its quietus, and tells us that for a clearer view we must for only give up the Guir Stream for the anti-cyclone, but "looking past Maury, hark back to Dr. Benjamin Franklin to get the true perspective of the development of the Guir Stream theory and his domination in the imagination of civilized people." It was Franklin who, returning from a truitless mission to England in behalf of the colones (in April, 1779), interested himself in taking the temperature of the air and of the water of the ocean. These were the historic temperature records which first demonstrated that the thermometer allorded the shipmaster a certain method of determining one's approach to the Guif Stream, and consequently the longitude, which was often more guessed at than accurately known in those days. It was Franklin who, in 1770, had the first chart of the Guif Stream engraved for the benefit of navigators, and one can fancy the joy of the physicist overcoming the chagrin of the statesman when he lound his records sustaining his contention "that navigation could make the Guif Stream its handmadden by sailing with its current going east and avoiding it coming west, and that, this side of Newfoundand, the thermometer could tell him where he was, so that he could govern himself accordingly."

On landing in America Franklin found BEN FRANKLIN'S DISCOVERY.

him where he was, so that he could govern himself accordingly."

On landing in America Franklin found the colonies in revolt, the battle of Lexington having just been fought. He suppressed his navigation charts, that they might not aid the enemy, and did not take up his investigations again until the revolution was a thing accomplished. Not until after his death in 1790 did navigators generally adopt his plans, with the result that voyages were made in half the time they were before shipin half the time they were before ship-masters stupidly struggled against the Gulf Stream.

Mr. Watts tells us that Franklin laid Mr. Watts tells us that Frankin land it down that the permanent winds of the "trades" were the initial cause of the Gulf Stream. "Though wrong in part, he was correct in this, that the permanent aerial circulation of the North Atlantic is an important factor in determining the aqueous surface drift; and if future investigators had followed his mining the aqueous surface drift; and if future investigators had followed his lead, science would not at the beginning of the twentieth century still stand helpless before the almost universal acceptance of an erroneous theory developed half a century later."

MALPY'S THEORY

LIEUT. MAURY'S THEORY. LIEUT. MAURY'S THEORY.

Lieut. M. F. Maury, one of the most glitted sclentific writers America has ever produced, "gave the Gulf Stream its apotheosis" in his "Physical Geography of the Sea," published in 1855. "By the force of his rhetoric and the simplicity of his analogies he drove home and fixed his views to such an extent that popular imagination was fired to actual conviction." Maury set his face against the Franklin idea that the trade winds were in any sense the cause of the Gulf Stream, and referred to it as a "let of warm water more than three thousand times greater in volume than the Mississippi Riyer, sent entirely across the At-warm water more than three thousaid times greater in volume than the Mississippi kiver, sent entirely across the Atlantic Ocean," and ascribed to it the ameliorating influence upon the climate of Western Europe. Other geographers accepted his views and thus "the Gulf Stream myth" was carried into all quarters of the globe.

The real truth, as determined by the modern science of meteorology, is that "the circulation of air in the northeastern part of the Atlantic determines the climate of Western Europe by distributing the moisture and warmth of the ocean as a whole, and not that of the Gulf Stream, since there is no apparent Gulf Stream in those latitudes.

"The warmth of the southwest winds of Europe is due to the moisture they contain, which gives off its latent heat when it becomes cloud and rain. The
