Supt. Voorhis said last evening that the defeat of the strikers was complete, and everything in connection with the Central Railroad would soon be in its normal condition.

THE SITUATION UNCHANGED.

New York, Aug. 13.—The strike situation to-day remains practically unchanged excepting that the officials claimit is improved. Freight trains are arriving and going out. The officials say the running of trains has resumed its normal condition. City locals, however, are not being run from the Grand Central depot to Spuyton Duyvil.

The work of double-tracking the G. T. R. line westward from Toronto is progressing favorable, but some delay will be occasioned by the building of the bridge over the Humber. At present the double rails have been laid nearly as far as Mimico, and at the Hamilton end of the line operations are also well on. From Hamilton to Oakville two or three sections of the double rail are down. It is expected that the work will be completed before winter.

DETROIT VIA THE C. P. R.

The Civic Corporations and Board of Trade on Pleasure Bent.

ward Trip-A Well-Co

"One entire day of uninterrupted pleasure" would probably describe in a few words to what extent the members of the City Council, London Board of Trade, Beard of Water Commissioners and their friends enjoyed themselves on the occasion of the complimentary excursion over the C. P. R. to Detroit yesterday, but it would be understood only by those who were present. To the uninitiated, however, it mast have been patent that something unusual was about to happen when the tuneful strains from the something unusual was about to happen when the tuneful strains from the function of the complete of the condon coat of arms. At 8:40 Conductor Samuel Jackson gave the signal and the train moved aloney out of the siding, and the train moved aloney out of the siding, and the train moved aloney out of the siding, and the train moved aloney out of the siding, and the train moved aloney out of the siding, and the train moved aloney out of the siding, and the train moved aloney out of the siding, and the train moved aloney out of the siding, and the train moved aloney out of the siding, and the train moved aloney out of esting, while the gentic oscillation of the cars, coupled with the rattle of the wheels as they sped with great velocity over the steel roadway, was sufficiently enchanting to make the minutes pass rapidly. The track after passing Hyde Park is remarkably level and well ballasted, and one upon which fast time can be expected. A number of the party found diversion in ascertaining the speed of the train over the different sections of the road, which ranged from 30 to 45 miles an hour, until after a lively run of one hour and 21 minutes the train pulled into Chatham at 10 c'olock.

A short stop was made at the Komoki

On arriving at Chatham the band formed on the platform and rendered several selections during the 30 minutes wait, much to the enjoyment of the Chatham delegation and a large number of their fellow citizens. The London excursionists spent the time in looking around the town or in forming the acquaintance of the Chathamites who were to accompany them for the remainder of the distance. Two coaches were added to the train for the latest addition to the party, each of which was decorated in a similar manner to the other coaches. As the train was once more set in motion and sped rapidly over the level and well ballasted road a glimpse was taken into the Chatham delegation's cars where the following were noticed enjoying to the fuliest extent the generously cushioned and confortable equipment for which the C. P. R. company is noted: Aldermen Carpenter, Campbell, Flook, Bogart, Craddock, Atkinson, Messra. J. McCornie, P. C. Dezelia, A. Lamont, S. Glen, R. Cooper, Capt. Boles, R. O'Hara, A. Campbell, M.P., J. Birch, Police Magistrate M. Houston, G. B. Merritt, J. Piggott, J. Waddell, Town Engineer J. A. Comb, K. Campbell, D. Colby, J. R. Reid, J. McGornie, P. C. Dezelia, A. Lamont, S. Glen, R. Cooper, Capt. Boles, R. O'Hara, A. Campbell, M.P., J. Birch, Police Magistrate M. Houston, F. Marx, H. A. Patteson, R. Stephenson, M. J. Bergart, W. Robinson, W. S. Sheldon, J. Exans, H. Nagle, Dr. Hall, H. J. Riddell, J. Taff, A. St. L. McIntosh, Robt. G.

swing and was whirling into view the broad lowlands of Kent county with a rapidity that was almost bewildering but nevertheless entrancing. The road from Chatham to Windsor is almost a "bee line," with hardly a curve or grade, and the result was that some speedy time was made without the customary accompaniments of jars and jolts. No stop was made on the road and stations were passed with lightninglike rapidity, which, together with the highly decorated cars attracted great attention. Windsor, with its quastit stone station, was reached at 11:30 and all got off and took a look around, the band striking upsome popular air. In a few minutes the engine's whistle sounded and all clambered back into the coaches, which were then run on to the large C. P. R. iron transfer steamer Ontario, which was in waiting to convey the excursionists across to Uncle Sam's domains. When the six cars were on and asfely blocked the steamer's powerful engines were set in motion and in a few minutes the slip was left behind, and all stood on the decks admiring the river, which stretched in either directions as far setheir eyes could see. A number of bats and balls were taken down by the baseball enthusiasts of the London Board of Trade to try conclusions with the members of the Chatham Board, but sufficient men could not be got together and so the match never came off.

Several of the party appeared unusually quiet when leaving Detroit, and the reason was not apparent until Windsor station with the customs officials was passed. When out of the reach of the obnoxious officials the quiet ones drew from under their vests handsome embroidered robes de nuit, and after donning them paraded through the cars.

The Detroit Free Press prints a lengthy account of the visit, and says the leading hotels were "largely given over to the occupation and devices of distinguished appearing Canadians from London and Chatham. It looked very much for a time as though Detroit had again been captured by the British, and no very great fuss was being made about it either."

Toronto, Aug. 13.—In the Court of Appeal officers at Osgoode Hall yesterday a cross petition was filed in the case of the Muskoka Provincial elections. George F. Marter, of Parkdale, the successful Conservative candidate, petitions for the disqualification of his defeated Reform opponent, A. P. Cockburn, of Gravenhurst. It will be remembered that J. L. Haines, a Muskoka yeoman, has already petitioned against the return of the elected Conservative member, Mr. Marter, and the present action is to prevent, if possible, the repetision of Mr. Cockburn's candidature.

F. N. Taylor, electrician, has placed one of his lights in the Frank Street Methodist Church, which was turned on for the first time last Sunday evening, giving excellent satisfaction. The other churches will likely provide the same kind of lights.

The Seventh Band created a very agreeable impression on their American hearers. A purse of $27 was made up for Conductor Jackson and the train hands by the London excursionists.

Water Commissioner Essery sang several songs on the road home with commendable energy, volume of tone and expression.

Billy Brown, the well-known tonsorial artist, was rigged out in a snow white suit, with scarlet trimming, by the London Board of Trade. He went as porter and ball umpire.

Ald. Taylor and City Clerk Abbott kept together all day, and plied each other with words of encouragement, as a bill or other obstacle appeared in their path and impreded their programed.

The Bre Brigade turned out to-night for practice and made a good showing. Many places have not nearly as good a system of fire protection as Strathroy. Miss Carrie Plaxton has just returned from a two-weeks' camping-out holiday at Kettle Point.

A 3-year-old son of Mr. G. T. Huber, Stratford, fell into a cistern Monday night and was drowned. He had been playing with a little girl a few minutes before, but was alone at the time of the accident. When found he was holding a piece of bread in his hand, which he was eating when he made the fatal step.

THE CAPTAIN WAS WITH HIM. He Could Stand It Just as Long as the Funny Man Could.

MONTREAL, TORONTO AND BRANCHES,

The captain stood in front of the pilothouse, telling the man at the wheel what he ought to do from time to time, and the funny man stood by with his overcoat buttoned up and his hands in his pockets.

When the funny man had kept still long enough, he snoke to the captain.

"Cap'n," said he, "why do you tell him to keep her to port, and then ask him to keep her steady? She'd keep steadier if she kept clear of the port, don't you think?"

"Have to keep her to port so she'll keep away from the bar," replied the captain, as he raised his glass and gazed anxiously ahead.

The funny man shrugged his shoulders, walked away a few steps, returned, and asked the captain if they kept the veasel's log down among her beam ends.

"No," said the captain, "we keep it in the log cabin."

"No," said the captain, "we keep it in the log cabin."
"I've often wondered," said the funny man thoughtfully, "why the wheels of a steamboat don't work together."
"They do."
"Do they? I thought they took turns. How'd you tear your coat, cap'n?"
"Caught it on one of the points of the compass."
Then the funny man walked around a little while. By and by he stood stock still.

Indeed, it might be said that the result at Barrow emphasized the necessity for the services of a dashing leader, who could take the place of Mr. Smith in the Commons and presented to the electors. Indeed, it might be soid that the result at Barrow emphasized the necessity for the services of a dashing leader, who could take the place of Mr. Smith in the Commons and counteract the reactionary policy of Salisbury in the Lords. And so it is not supprising to find Lord Randolph complimented by the chairman of the banquet as the leader by whose courage to a great extent the tide of defeat was turned into a tide of victory in 1885, and by whose efforts a great Conservative triumph was won in 1886, nor to observe the hope expressed that "the next general election would find the noble lord fighting as streunously as ever before for the great party to which he had already done such great personal to the present alignment of the subject. But the speech of the noble lord must have proved a very disappointing one. It was weak in the character of the attack made upon the Liberal or "Radical" party, and weaker still in the character of the defense made for the Government. Whatever real strength the party may possess for a party in office, is to a large degree a consequence of the Beaconsield Franchise Act, for that measure gave the Conservatives a hold on the people outside of the old historic lines. Yet were it not for the division which took place in the Liberal party over the question of Irish Home Rule, it is hardly possible to conceive of a Connervative victory under the leadership of Lord Salisbury. His was at the best a snator victory, gained before me had time to make up their minds on a new and large issue.

But discussion has ripened judgment, and all the signs now point to the acceptance of the Liberal programme by the nation at the first opportunity. The bye-elections leave hardly a doubt of this result, while is principal bills of the precent abandonment of its principal bills of the precent session. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that the Conservative Club should seek to strengthen the party for the fight of the general electrons, which cannot be far off, and in doing honor to Lord Randolph Churchill they evidently desired to recognize the qualities of a plucky and popular leader. There is too much reason to fear that for some time to come Toronto will be disgraced by faction fights between hoodiums who call themselves Catholies and Protestants. The worst blood in the city is stirred to its dregs and human life may be taken any time the champions of religious hatred happen to meet. The authorities have just one course to pursue. Wherever and whenever these self-constituted champions of religion may be found, whoever and whatever they may be, let them be vigorously clubbed by the police and then put into the cells. In every tussle with the law they must be taught that the law is stronger than they. The churches, property-holders and all decent citizens are interested in keeping order in the public streets. An English judge once said that his aim was to make the streets of his city so quiet and orderly that any woman could walk upon them unprotected any hour in the 24. It was a noble aim. More than once lately even a policeman could not walk in some parts of "Toronto the good" without being in danger of having his skull broken. We must have order in the streets of Toronto, cost what it may. Will reopen Sept. 1, 1890 (30th year). McCollom's Rheumatic Repellant

Has won an excellent reputation from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, as a wonderful rheumatic cure, and in numerous instances where it has been thoroughly tested during the past sixteen years it has proved the most reliable remedy known for this distressing complaint. It is neatly put up in §1 bottles, agreeable to take, operates well on the liver.

GRIGG HOUSE Indigestion

Is not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfecibled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.;—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

WINDSOR DEFEATS AYLMER.

The Windsor Cricket Club played the second match of their tour yesterday, defeating Aylmer by two runs after a close and very exciting game. It was a bowlers' contest and scores were small, Anderson's 15 being the highest for Windsor, Dr. Sinclair's 26 the top score for Aylmer. In the second inning Aylmer had only five runs to make and four wickets to go down, but the splendid bowling of Stuart and Marcon saved the game for the visitors, these falling for two runs. Salva preparation of the persistent endeavors of Mr. Booker toget up an eleven the proposed tour of cricketers has fallen through, the other engagements of thosed invited to go preventing their taking part this year, the tour of '91 will, however, be a great success, no doubt. The dates for Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Niagara have therefore been canceled, but Toronto and Hamilton remain open for Aug. 22 and 23. It is hoped that an eleven can be got together to visit these cities. It is objected by many that such an eleven would have little chance of winning, but as in every match one side must loose, and cricketers profess to wish that the best side may win, this objection has no force for those who play cricket for the love of the game and to whom the winning or losing is a secondary matter.

The assembly last evening, held in Horticultural Hall, Queen's Park, under the auspices of Forest City Division, No. 1, Royal Scarlet Knights, was a very successful affair. About 100 couples enjoyed the dancing, Carroll and Ensign's string band supplying the music, while ice cream and refrealments were served in abundance. The exhibition drill by the Knights was also very interesting, and showed their abilities in that direction. The assembly was managed by the following committee: Thomas Johnston, chairman; G. H. Brett, W. Brodison, W. W. Fallis, J. E. Showler, Hugh Newall, F. A. Richards, Joseph Murray, F. H. Wright, and R. D. A. Hillier, secretary.

WENTWORTH, DIANA

"Yes, yes," said Gertrude hopelessly; "it is not her fault, but she should have told us at the beginning. Diana is the most beautiful girl I ever saw; there is something about her I have never seen about any one else. You would have thought aunty would have been so proud of her. How could she let a girl like that go wandering about the world alone? It is incomprehensible."

"You are meeting trouble half-way. That is not like you, Gertrude."
"What a mistake it has been to bring her and aunty is so much better already. I wish we could send her back to-morrow!"
Guy raised his eyebrows, and only said:
"You are not yourself, dear; you are worn out with anxiety. You must not take is for granted that the very worst will happen.
Rupert is not at home now, and by the time he comes we shall hear more of Dina.

Ruper is not at home now, and by the time he comes we shall hear more of Dina. To do her justice, I must say I believe she has more head than heart."
"We shall see," said Gertrude, trying to took as if nothing had happened, as the door opened and Dora came in again.

CHAPTER XVII.

Mrs. Wentworth's recovery was very low—her strength did not come back; and n spite of all that the doctors and nurses could do she had more than one alarming relapse. There was every prospect of Diana's stay at Garshill being a long one, and she made up her mind to it without any de-monstration of feeling. Her position was rather peculiar. She was on perfectly friendly terms with her consins.

Every one at the Abbey was kind to her, huy's manner being totally different from that it had been during their journey from acewo. Her ancle, too, was very kind. It was a great invalid, almost wholly conned to his own set of rooms, so that she aw very little of him. As a Meredith, rith a most tenecious memory for all things oncerning the family pride and dignity, he ad never forgotten how she had once failed a duty and respect towards him. Yet he was always kind and considerate. With iertrude she was fast friends. Semething in Diana had appealed to Miss Meredith, and she grew very fond of her. Diana returned the feeling. She was powerfully lrawn toward Getrurde, and frequently ielded to her influence. Indeed Diana considered to one although Dera did come

His people did not seem courage a marriage, although they found of Muriel; and the fortune to be was heiress was almost a necessary die for Rupert. This compliser of in some degree to account for apply expression Muriel wore; but a the reason for the complication itsic thought a good deal about her larger. He was mentioned seldom e, and very often by outsiders. He mently considered an unsatisfactory of the family, and as such she felt in sympathy the him.

It is sympathy the him. It is sympathy to him, the felt is sympathy to him, the felt is sympathy to him, the felt is sympathy to him. It is sympathy to him, the felt is sympathy to him, the search is sympathy to him, the felt is sympathy to him, the felt is sympathy to him, the search him to feel at some or friendly with the had no sympathies in common tage as in the satisfactory passages and at of her former home. There was any a charm about this English house appaled to her imagination, and was some the setting of this beautiful house rouls, one would have said she ner stoop to meaner surroundings; had cen practically proved that, in applitively sordid conditions at Jasechum had been irresistible. Inspitchis, spite of the attraction which refers luxurious English country life everying went on well oiled wheels at hit or effort or visible working necessary machinery, had for one side natura—there was another side which inched and starved and dulled, op-dame to desperation, by this common typus will equally enjoy a joit on a cart kack. That our bodies are not ourselves is beyond question, but just what relation the chemical compounds of which we are formed bear to our consciousness, or ego, and in what respect one is dependent upon the other, no one can say. The brain of a Hottentot has, as far as we know, the same chemical compounds as that of a Newton or Faraday but the vital force which governs its actions must be different either in its nature or its mode of action. Nor can we say with certainty that the vital force resides in the brain at all. Portions of the brain may be removed, and life still remains. Only when the nerve-centers which govern important bodily functions—such as the action of the heart or lungs—are destroyed, is the protecting influence withdrawn and the elements of the body permitted to return to their more atable combinations.

We cannot say from direct experimental evidence that the vital force is indestructible. Whether an amoba or a philosopher die, both revert to the same forms of matter, and we know more of the future destiny of the force which has conditioned their lives than we know about its nature. But we know that life has certainly existed from the earliest geological ages; and if we speculate—as we may legitimately do—upon the identity of the force which builds up the inorganic crystal, perhaps from the commencement of the existence of matter every manifestation of its action in living beings tends to bring about its constant reproduction and transmission to successive generations; after a plant or animal has reproduced its kind, or passed beyond the period when such reproduction is possible, the vital principle seems to be toward the production of more complex and highly-organized and differentiated forms of life, each generation on the whole slightly surpassing its predecessors. In this sense, at least, life may certainly he said to be immortal and progressive; and as the vitality which now animates our bodies must have had an existence for an almost infinite number of previous generations, so it is not i drawn toward Gertrude, and frequently yielded to her influence. Indeed Diana complained of no one, although Dora did sometimes show ill feeling. The others received her in a very friendly spirit, and she met them in the same way. With the exception of Gertrude, she had nothing in common with them, and their interceurse got below the surface. She was free to share the family life to any extent she liked. Dora's hope of keeping her in the back ground was shattered the very first time Diana had been present when callers came. Dora took her defeat with an ill grace, but was forced to accept it. Every one wanted to also be a struck with her, whether she pleased or not; and Diana soon found herself in the midst of a totally new life. Among all her new acquaintances there was only one who excited the least degree of curiosity or interest in her. This was a girl called Muriel Hope, Dora's boson friend, and a frequent visitor at the Abbey. She was a handsome girl —"a brown beauty"—with a fine, rather fully developed figure and an unamiable expression. She looked neither good-tempered nor happy, but seemed as if she were constantly brooding over some wrong, and considered every other woman her natural enemy. There was nothing very interesting in her, and Diana took very little notice of her and Di with Imperial Cream Tartar Baking Powder. It is the only reliable.

It is unnecessary to say that the picnic of the Christian Endeavor societies of London and St. Thomas held at the Port yesterday was a success in every sense of the word. The weather was propitions, the pleasure seekers were numerous and the enjoyments, particularly the refreshments part, unlimited. The excursion train left the city at 1:30 p.m., carrying down about 700 young people, chiefly members of the various societies. A baseball match was played between picked teams from London and St. Thomas, the game resulting in a victory for London by a score of 24 to 3. Other attendant festivities were indulged in and the whole party returned to the city about 10 p. m. The London members speak highly of the hospitality of the St. Thomas people.

Liquor Dealers Looked After.

John Oag, proprietor of the Boswell House, appeared at the Police Court this monning, charged with breaches of the Liquor Act on two different occasions. H. Higgins, of Toronto, was put in the box and swore that he had procured liquor in the bar on Sunday, July 27, and also on the following Sabbath, for which he had paid the bartender. Wm. Graham the bartender, testified that Higgins had been at the hotel on the dates mentioned, and had asked for liquor but had been refused. Higgins also swore that on the second occasion he had seen two men drinking in the bar, a statement which Graham also denied. The Magistrate decided to take Graham's oath against that of Higgins, and dismissed the cases.
