Phone Forty-Four Hundred | Smallman & Ingram, Limited | Store Closes at 6 p.m.

We are nearing the end of our half year. Stock inventory closes on the 31st day of January and July respectively, and many have not yet forgotten the sales of last July through this event. These are the two great months of the year for what might be termed the rummage or final clearing time. With less than three weeks in which to make all sale adjustments throughout the store (as there is scarcely a department which will not be affected at this time). Much will be crowded into every day's business that may not appear in the paper, but of the larger and most important sales we will keep you posted in these columns, which by closely watching and visiting the store daily you may harvest large dividends on every dollar you spend. The sale of Kid Gloves and Leather Goods Saturday was a fair indication of what is in store for you here this month. Be prepared. See window today.

March Comes in Like a Lion.

The train, which had roared through a withering gale of sleet all the way up from New York, came to a standstill, with many an ear-splitting sigh, alongside the little station, and a reluctant porter opened his vestibule door to descend to the snow-swept platform; a solitary passenger had reached the journey's end. The swirl of snow and sleet screaming out of the blackness at the end of the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and the station and cut his ears and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant and the station-building enveloped the ping of the fast express at B—, a noteworthy concession in these days of premeditated haste. Not in the previous career of flying 32 had it even so much as slowed down for the insignificant little station, through which it swooped at milinght the whole year round. Just before pulling out of New York on this eventful night the conductor received a command to stop 33 at B— and let down a single passenger, a circumstance which meant trouble for every dispatcher along the line.

She shook her head. "Thank you, Mr. Drake. It will not be necessary. I came alone by choice. I shall return to New York tonight."

"But you—why, you can't do that." he cried, holding back as they started to cried, holding back as they started to the fact that The Globe and The Morning Advertiser are the only morning Liberal papers between Winnipeg and Halifax.

Congratulations From Sir Wilfrid. An interesting feature of the event was the reading by H. E. Willmot of congratulatory telegrams and letters from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Mr. N. W. Rowell, M. P. P., must see that I am suffering. I must see.

usgage of any description. She was heavily veiled, and warmly clad in furs. At eleven o'clock that night she had entered the compartment in New York. Throughout the thirty miles or more, she had sat out the thirty miles or more, she had sat alone and inert beside the snow-clogged window, peering through veil and frost into the night that whizzed past the pane, seeing nothing yet apparently intent on all that stretched beyond. As still, as immobile as death itself, she had held herself from the moment of departure to the instant that brought the porter with the word that they were whistling for B—.

Without a word she arose and followed him to the vestibule, where she watched him as he unfastened the outer door and lifted the trap. A single word escaped her lips and he held out his hand to receive the crumpled bill she clutched in her gloved fingers. He did not look at it. He knew that it would amply reward him for the brief exposure he endured on the lonely, wind-swept platform of a station, the name of which he did not know.

The took several until he coammand to enter the tonneau, she stood beside the car and waited until he cranked it and took his place at the wheel. Then she took her seat beside him and permitted him to tuck the great buffalo robe about her. No word was spoken. The man was a stranger to her. She forgot his presence in the car.

Into the thick of the storm the motor chugged. Prim and silent, the man at the wheel, ungoggled and tense, sent the whiring thing swiftly over the trackless village street and out upon the open country road. The woman closed her eyes and waited.

You would know the month was March. He said: "It comes in like a lion," but apparently the storm swallowed the words for she made no response to them.

She took several uncertain steps in the direction of the station windows and stopped, as if bewildered. Already the engine was pounding the air with quick, vicious shorts in the effort to get under way; the vestibule trap and door closed with a bang; the wheels were creaking.

A bitter wind smote her in the face; the wet, hurtling sleet crashed against the thin vell, blinding her.

The door of the waiting-room across the platform opened and a man rushed toward her.

"Mrs. Wrandali?" he called above the She advanced quickly.

the blackness at the end of the station-building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and neck with stinging force as he turned his back against the gale. A pair of lonely, half-obscured platform lights gleamed fatuously at the top of their icy posts at each end of the station; two or three frost-encrusted windows glowed brightly where the operator sat waiting for the passing of No. 33.

The train itself was dark. Frosty windows, pelted for miles by the furious gale, white outside, but black within, protected the snug travellers who slept the sleep of the hurried and thought not of the storm that beat about their ears nor wondered at the stopping of the fast express at a place where it had never stopped before. Mr. Lyon has just completed twentyfive years' service with The Globe, and the dinner was given in honor of the anniversary. It took place at the Ontario Club, where in the diningroom the tables were arranged in the form of an oblong, with a large illuminated globe in the middle. Behind the guest of honor's chair was a bust of Hon. George Brown on a pedestal. The menu card was novel in design, and contained a fac-simile of Mr. Lyon's first "story" as a Globe re-

"He is the Globe."

The conspicuous part which Mr. Lyon has taken in the making of The Globe was well illustrated in an incident related by H. W. Anderson in moving the toast, "Our Guest." It was told of a young reporter who, when asked what Mr. Lyon's position on the paper was, replied, "He is The Globe." J. F. MacKay, business manager, seconded the toast.

Mr. Lyon's Address.

Mr. Lvon's address was an able review of the policy of The Globe, during the past twenty-five years and the press at a place where it had never stopped before. Far ahead the panting engine shed from its open fire-box an aureole of glaring red as the stoker fed coal into its rapacious maw. The unblinking headlight threw its rays into the thick of the blinding snow storm, fruitlessly searching for the rails through drifts denser than fog and filled with strange, half-visible shapes.

CHAMBERLAIN'S RETIREMENT.

After serving thirty-eight years in the British House of Commons, Joseph Chamberlain announces that he will retire from parliament next year. As, on account of illness, it is three years since he appeared in the House the announcement has not made the impression that it would have made earlier in his career. His connection with parliament has been only nominal for seven or eight years, and for some time it has been taken for granted by the public that he was through with active participation in affairs at Westminster.

Despite this inactivity, however, there will be a genuine feeling of regret from all quarters at the passing into private life definitely of Mr. Chamberlain. However his judgment may have erred at times, as an imperial statesman Chamberlain stands head and shoulders above all but a very few. The Boer war has been largely laid at his door, and his policy of imperial preference appears hopelessly wrecked, yet even his enemies admit that honesty, courage and persistence have always been foremost in his efforts. His South African policy was subjected to the severest criticism but it must be admitted that it resulted in drawing tighter the bonds between the mother country and the dominions through the voluntary service which the latter gave in men and money for the prosecution of the

His plan of an imperial preference, B vast commercial union within the npire, was rejected by the people of United Kingdom, but in some modified form it may yet be used and even his critics will admit that the scheme was a titanic one, one that could be evolved only by a statesman of unusual constructive genius.

But for the solid performances of Joseph Chamberlain's life it is necessary to go back to his Birmingham Birmingham has long held the distinction of being the best governed city in the British Empire, and this fame is largely due to Joseph Cham-As mayor he practically wiped out the slums, replacing them with model tenements, greatly cut the water and lighting, erected many magnificent public buildings, and put into force clean, businesslike municipal government that still pre-

Chamberlain's personality was an attractive one. He possessed a knack of making friends even amongst those who opposed him politically. His desertion of Gladstone over the home rule question brought him many a hard knock and name, and during the stormy period of the Boer war he stirred his political enemies to furious attacks, but it is a matter of record by many of those whose path diverged radically from his, that they warmly the man while hating his

HELEN KELLER.

A wonderful amount of skill and patience has gone to the development of an educational marvel like Helen Keller. For Mrs. Macey, who was Miss Sullivan, or any one else to reach the deaf and silent castle of the little blind girl's spirit was almost more than to leave the ground and voyage to a star. But by patience, faith and courage Child Roland to the dark Tower came, and made it light. Sometimes people are prone to doubt the value of education. We say a poet is born, not made, and we are inclined to think perhaps that it is the same pretty much with many other callings, that an individual finds himself. But, as Mrs. Macey says, education in the proper sense is simply helping a person to know himself, and to make himself count. She succeeded because she adapted herself to her pupil's bent. If so much could be done in so difficult and abnormal a case, what should not be accomplished by real education with the ordinary run of learn-The possibilities must be infi-

Of course, it must be admitted that Miss Keller's very isolation had its adrantages. Compensation, as Emerson argued, is a law in all things. She has had small opportunity of learning evil from others, of acquiring even slang and slovenly speech. Her acthough that is not an unmixed bless-

But the accomplishment seen in the college graduate's systematic knowledge, large interests, literary powers and the self-command required for public speaking to unseen and unheard audiences is a lasting wonder. It is a brave, passionate and positive spirit that Mrs. Macey has evoked from the dark recesses to which it seemed to have been condemned, doing something in the world, and in emphasizing the value of kindness and sacrifice Miss Keller may feel how cirand eager powers.

A VETERAN ACTOR GONE.

Harry Lindley, the oldtime stock actor, who appeared in London on many occasions, died almost unnoticed a short time ago in Virginia. He was 5 years of age, and had played the large towns and small towns of Canada and the United States for more than forty-five years. He was the warm friend of many noted actors long since dead, having been stage manager for Edwin Booth in 1869. He managed Denman Thompson's "Old Homestead," and played in 1869 with James O'Neill. He will be remembered by Londoners as one of the early members of the Holman Opera Company of this city.

Mr. Lindley claimed to have been the pioneer showman of the Canadian west, playing every town from North Bay to Skagway, and every mining camp in the Rockies. Several plays were written and produced by him, including "The Castaway," "The Sky Pilot," and "The Girl From the Klondyke." Though his life was one marked by the vicissitudes of the early showman he prospered in the hearts of his friends, and was esteemed wherever he went. Few men had more friends the country over. His greatest "contribution" to the stage was a fine family of seven children, all of whom are now before the footlights. Londoners who knew him will have kindly thought for dear old Harry Lindley. In his time he played a thousand parts, and warmed the sympathies or brought tears to the eyes of countless numbers. He was in his

Admiral Mahan, of the United States navy, has been writing to the London Mail on Britain's foreign relations, and lays down this very uncomfortable proposition:

"The British navy cannot abandon the Mediterranean without disaster the Empire, but cannot hold the Mediterranean without disaster to

As disaster to Great Britain necessarily involves disaster to the Empire, Mr. Mahan places us up against two alternatives, one of which is as bad as the other. Which reminds one of the ancient problem: If a man has a bull by the tail should he let go or hold on?

Mr. Mahan may not have had much s recognized as an authority on naval history, and an expert on naval theories. But the trouble with many experts is that they are inclined to magnify their specialty. When a soldier begins to ventilate his views in the press or on the platform it is safe to predict that he will advocate a vast arms and fortifications, and probably dreadnoughts. Both profess to be in continual fear of war, and advocate remedies that would render war more probable. Regardless of the fact that the trend of civilization is in the direction of peace which can alone make civilization possible, they would have the people devote all their energies and more than their surplus money to preparation for war. If the main business of a people is to prepare for war, then war must be the natural condition of nations, which is a libel on

Of course, the jingo element throughout the Empire seizes on Mr. Mahan's utterances to uphold its own ideas. The chief advocate of centralized imperialism in Montreal, whose proprietor is said to have financed the antiimperial wing of the opposition in the thee. last election, thinks it can find an argument here for the naval contribution policy of the Borden Government. The Star says: "The overseas Dominions mus help; and must help now. If they continue to shirk their plain duty this disaster will very probably fall upon the British Empire either at one point or the other. The result will be that the Dominions will have no Empire to shelter them, and must scuttle for protection under the lee of the strongest neighbor in sight. case of Canada, the strongest neighbor is obviously the United States. There, then, is the situation on the word of a great American naval expert. We must do our duty; or prepare to be annexed."

But, if Canada sends $35,000,000 to the British Admiralty, that amount will go towards creating a Mediterranean naval unit, according to Mr. quaintance has been with the select, Churchill's latest program. And, according to Mr. Mahan, if Britain uning. Her teacher has not had to con- dertakes to hold the Mediterranean tend with difficulties of environment. Sea she will meet with disaster. It is what our central-imperialistic friend in Montreal says. And we are since God had shut the doorways of not disposed to take him as an authorthat head. It is a spirit that would be ity, either on naval or military, or political matters. They told us before, "Votes down reciprocity or you will be annexed." Now it is, "Send cumscribed even yet are her brilliant tribute to the British navy, or you will be annexed." Really, if Britain is so feeble that it cannot hold the Empire together, and if Canada is so feeble that it cannot stand on its own feet as part of the Empire, the best thing might be for us to annex ourselves to the United States. Or, perhaps, our sturdy neighbor Newfoundland might be willing to take charge of us. What a poor opinion those people seem to have of Canada: "Little Canadians" they surely are.

A UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE.

The diversity of languages, in which the people of civilized countries have to communicate with each other has encouraged some interested parties to try and frame a common language for all. Hence have sprung up Esperanto, Volapuk, and other artificial tongues of which we hear occasional ly. They are usually started with some flourish of trumpets; then drop into obscurity, with occasional revivals. Here, for instance, is Esperanto introduced into the night schools of Richmond, Virginia. But it is probable this is due to some enthusiast on the local board of education, and does not represent any widespread desire on the part of the Virginians to change their mode of The fact is that while these artificial languages may be constructed on a more definite system than those which have been developed by natural growth through many centuries, they are never likely to take the place of the mother speech of any people. They are composite productions which represent no nationality, and require to be studied the same as any formake-up until a few weeks ago when eign language. A more useful result weakness compelled him to leave his would be obtained if people undercompany and quietly pass from life's took to study three or four languages stage into a brighter, grander glory and mix them all up in their converthis: "Avez yous the lady's schoenes band, cara mia?" with the equally luminous response: "Ja, mein Herr 'al. the pretty ribbon de la Senora.'

Or some such hodge-podge We doubt if a comparatively universal language will ever come in any other way than by the general adoption of some natural language. Many be disposed to recommend Latin. Though sometimes called a every civilized country: it is taught of the most widely-spread Christian experience in naval warfare, but he English. It only needs to be taken from the written page and made the medium of common speech. And yet we do not expect to see Latin a universal language, though it would suit the purpose better than Esperanto. But there might be a hope that English would become if not the universal at least the dominant language increase in military expenditures for of all civilized people, and come into general use in proportion to their adcompulsory military service. Even an vance in civilization. It is the language amateur soldier like Col. Sam Hughes of Great Britain and her overseas deminions. It is the language of near expert may be expected to see urgent a hundred million people of the great necessity for big navies, and great and growing republic south of us. A knowledge of it is necessary in commercial circles all over the world. In Europe, French may be the colloquial speech of diplomacy and international And German has its sphere of usefulness outside the Fatherland. But, after all, this is a commercial age, and the language of commerce will of necessity prevail.

The reason why: We have been able, while always insisting on the best of quality and featuring low prices to you, to grow faster and more surely than any other firm in Western Ontario.

In the last few years we have missed no chance of lessening the cost of goods to us, and a consequent lessening of the cost to you, by in every case paying spot cash and taking every possible discount.

Many a business more extensive than ours, far from being able to do this, has to borrow money at a rate of interest, to meet payments on goods, when in the ordinary course of business they come due. There is in this way a difference of from 5 per cent to 15 per cent in the prices we pay, and the prices many a merchant has to pay.

A Great Minor League With Toronto and Erie

"The entry of Erie and Toronto into the Canadian League makes of it one of the best, if not the best, minor league in the country," said "Doc" Relsling "I was in London in 1898 with the Toronto team, of which I was a member. were able to come to terms.

"It is not the time for making predictions, but the circumstances are favortions, but the circumstances are favorable for a good season, to say the least. I am convinced that London will support good baseball here, and I think the class of it is about to be improved because of the securing of Erie and Toronto. Quebec, Jan. 11. - In a game which was clean throughout, and often exciting and spectacular, in spite of its one-sided nature, the National Hockey Association champions last night defeated the tailenders of the league by the eloquent score of 6 to 1. And even at that, it hardly seemed as if the Quebec boys were in-curring any danger or heart failure curring any danger or heart failure through over-exertion.

Play had only been started a few minutes when it became apparent that it was not so much a question as to whether Quebec would win, as it was how much they were going to come out ahead. Had it not been for the splendid the company of little Habert the Operation

Time and again the Quebec forwards, who were all playing good combination, pressed round the vistors' goal, and rained in shots, but the defence bunched in so thickly around it that shot after shot was stopped by somebody's body instead of finding its way into the net. All three forwards showed up well and did effective work in front of the goals, though they often had the toughest

Montreal Jan. 11. - Outplayed from start to finish, Wanderers took a drop in the standing of the clubs of National Hockey Association Saturday night, through their defeat by Canadiens, 8 to 2. Everything broke well for the winners, while Wanderers went on the ice greatly weakened through the absence of Odie Cleghorn on the forward line. The match gave promise of being one of the best of the season, but many of the six thousand spectators left the arena before the third session was half over, owing to uninteresting develorments.

The play was marked by more combination than has been seen in Montreal in some seasons. With one exception all the goals were scored through combination. There was little or no rough play, Berlin Fans Regret Departure of Cana dian League Ball, But Will Get in Smaller League.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Berlin, Jan. 11. — The Twin City Athetic Association on Saturday night closed the deal for the disposal of the Cana-dian League baseball franchise. Percy Kerwin, secretary of the Toronto baseball club, being the purchaser.

The price paid was $2,000. This means that Berlin will lose its place in the Canadjan League, which it has held since the inception of the league.

BY CANADIENS 8 TO 2 Deal Pending Between Guelph and London Clubs That May Dispose of Deneau.

MEETING NEXT WEEK

President Fitzgerald States That Toronto Will Certainly Put a Team in Canadian League.

A deal whereby London will get a good third baseman from the Guelph lub is being arranged by Manager Reisling, and he may put it through before leaving London this evening. As Director George H. O'Neil is sole owner of the Guelph club at the present time, all the negotiations are being conducted in this city. The London team needs a third baseman, and if the trade is put through it will likely mean that Rube Deneau will become the property of the Guelph owner and may go to Erie as manager of the club in that city.

Mr. O'Neil Going to Erie. Mr. O'Neil will leave London for Erie Tuesday morning and make arrangements to transfer the Guelph franchise to that city. If the present Erie club does not wish to purchase the Guelph franchise, Mr. O'Neil will likely place the team there himself as the Canadian league has a perfect right to put a team in Erie regardless of the other club there.

League Meets Next Week. President Stevely was in communication with President Fitzgerald over the telephone this morning concerning the league meeting. This meeting will not be held until the first of next week. President Fitzgerald states that there is no doubt the Toronto International league club will enter the Canadian league and that club is already arranging to put a team in the league.

EUGENE GRACE DEAD

Man Mysteriously Shot Two Years Ago Died From Uramic Poisoning. [Canadian Press.] Newman, Ga., Jan. 12.—Eugene Grace died here this morning from the bullet wound he mysteriously received Atlanta nearly two years ago. He had suffered from partial paralysis since shortly after the shooting and had been in a serious condition for several days. Grace was wounded at his Atlanta home in March, 1912. Police summoned by telephone found him in a semi-conscious condition. At the hospital he accused his wife, Mrs. Daisy Opie Grace, of the shooting. Mrs. Grace was found at the home of Grace's mother here and arrested on his accusation.

Later in the same year she was tried on a charge of attempted murder and found not guilty. His death, physicians said, was due to uramic poisoning, which set in about the wound in his back. WAS NOTED WOMAN IN LIBERIA REPUBLIC

IOIN LONDON WITH SARNIA A RADIAL

Hydro Engineer Completing Right-of-Way Inspection.

BRANCHES PLANNED

One to Petrolea, Second to Arkona and Forest.

(By Staff Representative.) Sarnia, Jan. 11 .- A hydro radial to run from London to Sarnia, to Thursday. The halls of both Houses cally under way.

Engineer R. L. Burke, of the hydro-Saturday, and, while his movements were being kept secret, it was learned of Western Ontario and the border concerned would be called to discuss

Will Market Bonds. It is understood that the hydroelectric commission will ask the municipalities to contribute a proportionate amount of the cost in bonds and that the bonds will be marketed by the commission in order to faciliate their sale. The commission will undertake the operation of the line by trained officers, and will turn back to the municipalities their share of the profits, according to the amount of their investment. An advisory commission will likely be appointed to represent the different

Many Important Towns.

The road will start from London and will touch Komoka, Strathroy, Wyoming, Watford and other intermediate points. It will follow the main line of the Grand Trunk, and at Wyoming there will be a branch line to Petrolea. Somewhere close to London the branch into the north tariff went into effect. will start, it is understood, opening up for connection with London one of the finest districts in the Province present time, London has inadequate is not enough of it or other live stock railway connection.

Fine Fruit Section. The Forest and Arkona districts are of our dressed meat." among the favored spots of Canada. Fruit grows in profusion, and for miles extends a lake sheltered belt of land, proud of its phenomenal yields of peaches as Niagara, and only kept from complete success in fruit growing by the lack of transportation. Fruit growers in the Arkona district have to own big automobile trucks or send their fruit by stage to Sarnia. Ready to Back Line. The residents, all wealthy farmers, have been ready to back a radial line for years, and when the Stewart line promoted there were hundreds who expressed their willingness to invest. The prospect of another radial line will be pleasing to the people of Arkona locality. It is expected that in time the branch would be extended through to Sarnia.

A Progressive District. The Petrolea branch would serve one of the most important sections of Lambton county. Here, and in Sarnia, the original campaign of publicity by Ontario county developed with genuine result. There is all kinds of 'Stay in Ontario" spirit in the Petrolea locality, and "More radial railways"

Engineer Bucke left Sarnia last night to look over the proposed northern branch. From information left behind with certain prominent Sarnia men, he expects to have the facts and figures in shape to present to the municipalities before spring, and there is a possil lity that work will be commenced within six months.

Mr. James Wilds, Plaster Rock, N.B., writes:—"I was greatly troubled, a few years ago, with boils and carbuncles, and the doctor told me I was in a bad few years ago, with boils and carbuncles, and the doctor told me I was in a bad condition. My appetite failed me, I began to lose strength, and was pretty well run down when one of my friends recommended Burdock Blood Bitters.

After using three bottles I began to feel like another man. My troubles soon left me, and to-day I can certainly give Burdock Blood Bitters a high recommendation to my friends."

He knew nothing of the row to which the mayor referred.

This morning's session seems to be indicative of the attitude of the new council towards Mayor Graham. As one of the aldermen stated, following the meeting. "We refuse to be bamboozled or made fools of by the mayor."

This is unparalelled in the history of Parliament, as the first caucus is altown, and that within a short time most always delayed until a week or ten a conference of the municipalities days after the opening. It is believed that the early call of caucus is due to a desire to get the party together on the naval question. The Government has its business well prepared, and will have bills for the relief of Farmers' Bank depositors, for national highways and Intercolonial branch lines, consolidating the railway act, revision of shipping laws and fisheries regulations, for redistribution, for cold storage, for regulation of trust companies, amendments to insurance and peniteniary, act and the estimates. The private legislation is already beginning to come in. Mr. Burnham has already given notice of his bill to amend the election act, and the bill to abolish titles. Robert Bickerdike is introducing a bill to abolish capital punishment. George Bradbery has given notice of bills on cold storage, and to prevent the pollution of streams. Lawrence Mulkern, who for the past two years has had charge of the London district of the C. P. R., and was recently promoted to the Toronto district, leaves for his new duties today. He was particularly popular with the railway fraternity, but more especially was the harmony noticed between the operating and traffic departments of the company in his district. Before leaving, members of his office staff, as well as Superintendent R. King, Travelling Freight Agent W. J Anderson, Local Freight Agent W. C Whitaker, met at his office and presented him with a beautiful mahogany clock as a slight remembrance of the high eseem in which he was held. With a few well-chosen remarks, Mr. King made the presentation. Mr. Mulkern was entirely taken by surprise, but in an appropriate speech, thanked those present for their kindness and co-operation with him in the work. He also expressed regret at having to leave his friends, who have made local conditions so pleasant and the surroundings congenial, and wished for the success of all with whom he had been associated while here.

J. H. Smart, postmaster of Kingsville, Ont., for more than forty years, who was dismissed last week by the Borden Government, was the victim of the most brutal application of the spoils system in this district since the change of power in 1911.

At the request of The Advertiser, Mr. Smart has sent his statement of the case for publication, and as was expected it is plain that the charges against him were of a trumped-up character. After forty years of unwavering service to the department under both parties, he is dismissed. and almost three years after the Borden Government came into power.

Conservatives Resent It. A great many Conservatives in Kingsville and Western Ontario are up in arms against the harsh action, and it is certain that an investigation will be demanded.

Mr. Smart sends the following statement to The Advertiser: "Kingsville, Ont., Jan. 10, 1914. "Editor, The Advertiser, London,

"My dismissal came as a great surprise. I have held office for over forty years, and believe I have a record unexcelled for faithful service. I consider it a great injustice, no reason having been given me for the action; no charges preferred, no notice of any investigation. "The report that I was an active political partisan is entirea few hungry office-seekers, and I last election I took no part in any way. I did not attend any meetings whatever: never looked at a voters' list or mentioned the election to my employees, or tried in any way to influence their votes.

"It has been brought about by a few hungry office seekers, and I venture to say that 90 per cent of the Conservatives in this town condemn the action as most con-temptible. J. H. SMART.

Let us resolve to cast aside forever our old notions about Advertising. Let us refuse further to look upon it as a magic force, at the command only of those who know the secret "open . Sesame." Let us no longer consider it within the reach of the few and beyond the purse and ability of the many.

For Advertising is nothing mysterious-nothing wonderful. It is nothing but business common sense. It is, in the very last analysis, but salesmanship on paper. Just as the courteous, obliging, well-informed salesman behind the counter is an animate selling force in any business, so is the honestly written, informative advertisement a mute selling force in any business -with the added value of reaching a greater part of the buying community than the animate force can hope to reach.

Let us resolve, during thhe opportunity-laden days to come, to read carefully all of the advertising we can find time to read. There is profit to you-mental and material-in the advertisements, even (or perhaps I should say particularly) in the Want Ads. For the advertising columns of the modern newspaper reflect more accurately than do the news columns, the tastes, habits, condition and progress of the people of the age in

There is interest, information, stimulation in the advertisements. The brightest minds of today can be found in the advertising profession. To the man or woman who is the purchaser of necessities or luxuries the advertising columns are at once a friend, a guide and counsellor. So let us help along the cause of more and better advertising by being greater and more persistent readers of advertising in the year that is peeping at us over the horizon of Time.

The usual cup of tea or coffee contains from 11/2 to 3 grains of caffeine, a drug which often produces aches, ails and discomfort, but the habit can be quickly overcome by using well-made POSTUM.

One of the most pleasing features of this change from tea and coffee to Postum is the total absence of a sense of something missed.

But more important is that "good allover" feeling of returning health; and it's the finest trade possible to quit tea and coffee and get well.

Postum, made of prime wheat and a small per cent of New Orleans molasses, is a pure food-drink. It is wholesome and nourishing; and has a delicious, snappy flavor, but is entirely free from the drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee.

Anyone can make a stand for the old-fashioned fun that comes with health and the power to "do things." Suppose you try it!

"There's a Reason" for POSTUM

POSTUM now comes in two forms:

REGULAR POSTUM-must be boiled 15 to 20 minutes.

INSTANT POSTUM-is a soluble powder. A scant teaspoonful stirred in a cup of hot water dissolves instantly.

The convenience of Instant Postum is apparent. But, when prepared according to directions, both kinds are exactly the same. The cost per cup is about equal.

-Grocers everywhere sell both kinds.

Many parents think lightly of whooping cough, and treat it as a necessary evil, not giving the child who has it any special attention. Chatham, Jan. 10.—A large number of the business men of Chatham feel that to make the entire province of Ontario one zone is most unfair to many sections.

Some state that they would rather look into the matter further and study it than to express an opinion now. Mayor John McCorvie, grocer, said: 'It certainly does seem to be giving the Toronto merchants that do a large over the merchants in other centres.'

Ex-Mayor Arthur Dunn, insurance man said: "Why, it means hundreds of thousands of dollars to the Toronto mail-order houses to have the province all one zone. There surely should be some plan for making the system more equitable."

MARKET TRADING AT A STANDSTIL

Few Farmers Present and Prices Remained Stationary

Grain, Per Cwt.

Trading was at a complete standstill on the 'ocal market this morning and little change was experienced by noon, Apparently the farmers did not care to face the high wind of early morning. As a result, prices on all lines are firm with those of Saturday.

On Saturday it was announced that the price of live hogs would be $8.50 to $8.60. No shipments were made today, how-ever, and it is not known whether this rice will hold for the week. Other live tock is firm.

The cold snap of Sunday and today may have a tendency of boosting the price of eggs. There was a brisk offering of the hen fruit on Saturday and this may alleviate the raise in price, until a warmer spell sets in.

No hay was offered in the morning and prices are firm for the commodity as on Says Latter Is Wrong In Declar-

Charges Police-With Carelessness In Allowing Escape.

[Canadian Press.]

Winnipeg, Jan. 11.-Six thousand dollars is now offered for Krafschenko dead or alive, according to an announcement of the Attorney-General for Manitoba today. When the city ouncil meets Monday night another thousand dollars will be offered.

Judge Meyers, a member of the po ice commission, in a statement today, charged both the city and provincial police with carelessness. In view of rumors going around town for weeks that Krafschenko would never be sentenced, he says, the police should have taken special precautions.

Chief MacPherson, of the city police, refuses to say a word about the matter. He was before the police commission on Saturday, and that body will make an official statement Monday afternoon.

Have No Clues. The police have not a clue to follow, but believe Krafschenko was in Winnipeg late Saturday night. About 2:40 Sunday morning a man called at a telegraph office and asked for a message for "J. Kraft," a name Krafschenko had previously used. While he was waiting the telegraph company telephoned the police, but before the officers arrived the stranger disappeared, apparently having become suspicious at the long delay.
While a close official silence is still being kept, details of how Krafschenko escaped have leaked out. The desperado had a key for the door of his cell. How he got it is still a mystery.

Defies the Police.
Percy Haget, Krafschenko's counsel interview with his client at 11 had an interview with his client at 11 o'clock Friday night. While the interview was going on the guards were out of the room. They waited in the corridor. Haget, having been apprised that he was under suspicion in police circles, today issued a statement, in which he defles the police to make a definite charge.

Detectives visited Haget's house soon city of Jerusalem when these words after the escape, but he was not at home. He was at his office during the day, but were spoken. Christ had ascended to the place of authority, after comwas not molested by the police.
