INOPPORTUNE ECONOMY.

The spasm of economy that prompts the Federal Government to decline to pay the cost of equipping and sending out the proposed contingent is most unusual. So marked a departure is it from the past policy of the Administration that one involuntarily casts about for some better explanation of such a course.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has not been parsimonious in other directions. His Government has been generous to the point of prodigality. Why then grow careful at such an inopportune moment?

The aid we give the Mother Country should be given with a large, open-handed generosity, that would increase the value of the gift, and testify to the heartiness of our desire to assist the Empire in her struggle. This is a case in which the citizens who contribute the revenue are more ready to see it expended than the Ministers appointed to do so—a most unusual thing.

KIND WORDS.

The Ridgeway Dominion has the following kind words to say of this great home journal:

"The Chatham Planet showed its enterprise and the extent of its resources by, on Friday, giving a splendid account of the convention and mass meeting. The report of both occupied over twelve columns, and was issued in the shape of a supplement to the regular daily edition, illustrated with cuts of the speakers. The report was the work of Editor Anderson and chief reporter Angus, of The Planet, and was a credit to both gentlemen. The Planet, edited and conducted with ability and sound judgment as it is, promises to be a great factor in the work of redeeming the two Kents."

THE WABASH DISASTER.

Whether justly or not, responsibility for the misinterpretation of a passing order and the resulting railroad collision on the Wabash is laid at the door of Engineer Strong, points out the Detroit News. Wherever investigation attaches the blame, no particular advantage will be gained. If Mr. Strong did misunderstand or confuse his orders, what will prevent another man from doing the same thing next year, next week or even to-morrow?

An engineer is always conscious of his responsibility. That consciousness makes the average man of that trade old before his time. He runs the road for a certain number of years with perfect confidence. Then he finds that he is getting nervous. He sees phantom obstructions ahead of him in the black night and sometimes jerks his reversing lever to avoid a shadow. Sometimes he breaks out in a cold sweat while he is trying to make up time, for the impression comes suddenly upon him that he may have misunderstood his orders. He digs them up with trembling fingers to read them again. Once begun, this nervous feeling is apt to grow upon a man and he is often compelled to quit the road after long years of honorable service.

An engineer is no more anxious to be killed than other folk, but he is bred to a life of sudden dangers, and when on duty is apt to forget himself, so absorbed is he in his duty to the road and to his passengers. Nobody knows as well as he the danger of meeting another train on the track. Engineer Strong, for instance, has been a trusted employee of the Wabash for 30 years. His retention of his place with one company for half a lifetime indicates that he was thoroughly reliable and that he was also lucky, for often men lose their jobs through an accident which was due to no fault of theirs.

If Mr. Strong is responsible for the misinterpretation of orders nothing is gained. No remedy for future employment is suggested. It would mean

Eruptions

Dry, moist, scaly tetter, all forms of eczema or salt rheum, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions proceed from humors, either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation.

To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous. The thing to do is to help the system discharge the humors, and strengthen it against their return.

Hood's Sarsaparilla permanently cured J. G. Hines, Franks, Ill., of eczema, from which he had suffered for some time; and Miss Alvina Walter, Box 215, Algona, Wis., of pimples on her face and back and chafed skin on her body, by which she had been greatly troubled. There are more testimonials in favor of this great medicine than can be published.

that after 30 years of service; after running trains for something like 10,000 days and nights he made a disastrous slip that cost many lives. How many men employed in other walks of life can show as clear a bill of discharged responsibilities? It is an indisputable error. An individual may discipline himself ever so severely; he may make himself into a thinking automaton if he will, but in spite of all care, training and forethought his machinery of hand and brain is not absolutely perfect. Sometimes he makes a mistake, and if he is entrusted with the safety of many human lives this error will have appalling results.

The fallibility of human nature must be recognized, and additional safeguards must be added. It would seem that the agencies at the disposal of a train dispatcher might be increased, and that the additional expense would be compensated for in the prevention of accidents which cost railroads so dearly. If, for instance, a switchman, telegraph operator or some other employee located at Seneca had been instructed to set the switch so as to shunt the east-bound train into the siding, this sad accident would have been avoided. The engineer would have noticed that he was being shunted and would have brought this train up as quickly as possible, had he been going too fast to be stopped quickly and part of the train had been derailed, little damage would have been done. A head-on collision is the most destructive accident which befalls a railroad, for it is usually a double calamity. It would seem that accidents like that at Sen-

WHITE AND RED

Pale blood—pale face—poor health; Scott's Emulsion—red blood—rosy face—good health; that's the order of events.

Our first lines give a condensed history of many cases, chiefly young girls at school. For some reason girls of that age are frequent sufferers from pale blood—a real blood starvation.

Scott's Emulsion, a clean white medicine, makes rich, red blood and rosy faces. It is blood food.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

eca might be avoided by placing switchmen at the various passing points under orders of the dispatchers.

Gentlemen, those of you who intend to come forward as aldermanic candidates, isn't it about time you were declaring your intention?

The Earl of Durham has asserted publicly that Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, is either a fool or a knave, says the Hamilton Herald. Which indicates that the political struggle in the old land is degenerating into guerrilla warfare.

An influential Georgia weekly has stopped the publication of the last story written by Sir Walter Besant because the white heroine is made to marry a colored man. We gather from this fact that the tragedy of Othello would not be considered fit for presentation before a Southern audience.

According to the Woodstock Express that eminent Irishman, Bishop Dumoulin, in a sermon in Christ Church Cathedral, Hamilton, urged the people of Canada to turn out John Redmond and his colleagues should they visit this country, and pack them back to the place from which they came.

An influential doctor in Paris proposes a municipal regulation prohibiting women under thirty years from wearing corsets. It is a subtle proposal. If it is adopted, there would be a general shedding of corsets by fashionable Parisiennes, for few of them would care to admit that they are over 30.

It is stated that the King and Queen have approved of the following verse being added to the National Anthem: In perfect peace serene Keep Thou our Gracious Queen, With her abide; May Heaven's own sunshine fair Rest on her everywhere; Hear Thou thy people's prayer, God Save the Queen.

This is the first time that the Consort of the Sovereign has been mentioned in the prayer for the ruler. But the innovation is appropriate, and it ought to become popular.

If West Kent does not elect J. S. Fraser to the Legislature over Ledson Pardo it should go into sack-cloth and ashes. Mr. Fraser is a fine appearing gentleman and a clever speaker with a full grasp of public questions. Both at the convention and at the evening meeting he made a most favorable impression. Mr. Fraser is of the timber of which cabinets are formed, and West Kent will fall in our estimation if it fails to elect him by a good majority.—Ridgeway Dominion.

Right you are! West Kent has no idea of allowing Mr. Fraser to lose. He was nominated to win, and win he will. Mr. Whitney's Government will be all the stronger and better with Mr. Fraser in the cabinet.

INDEPENDENT'S APT QUERY.
Hamilton Herald, Independent.
Now watch those study prohibition journals (for party purposes) the Toronto Mail and Empire, Hamilton Spectator, et al, since the Privy Council has declared the Manitoba prohibition law intra vires of the legislature, tell Premier Ross what he ought to do in this Province.—St. Thomas Journal.

But it would be more to the purpose of the journal and other journals supporting the Ross government would kindly tell Premier Ross what he ought to do. Have they no advice to offer?

CAMPAIGN IN EAST KENT.
Ridgeway Dominion.
"Whitney Will Win" and Davidson with him.

Davidson will certainly slay the Liberal Goliath.

That convention was a hummer and the hum will keep right on.

"Out to Win" is the motto adopted by East Kent Conservatives.

No outside organizer dictated the choice of the candidate last Thursday.

Liberal John had better look out for Conservative John or his name will be Demise.

Judging from appearances the Conservative party is riding is very much alive.

Mr. Findlay Macdonald is a genuine favorite, as was made manifest by the rousing reception tendered him on Thursday. He is a man and a member that West Elgin should be genuinely proud of, and we believe it is Long Life to the man who beat the Machine.

Mr. James Clancy, the able and popular M. P. for Bothwell, is so great a favorite in Ridgeway and surrounding country that our people are beginning to look upon him as their own. No gerrymander of Mr. Clancy's riding that takes in Ridgeway and Howard can injure Mr. Clancy.

LIFE A BURDEN

THE CONDITION OF MR. GARDINER SMITH'S FALLS.

He Spent Miserable Days and Sleepless Nights—Hands, Feet and Limbs Stiff and Swollen.

From the Record, Smith's Falls, Ont.

There is wonderful talk about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, why don't you try them? These words were addressed to Mr. Andrew Gardiner, of Smith's Falls, by a friend when he was in the depths of despondency regarding his physical condition. For three years he had suffered so much that life had become a burden to him and oftentimes he says, he almost wished that he might die. Then he spent miserable days and sleepless nights, now he is enjoying life. Then his feet, hands and limbs were stiff and swollen and he was tormented with a constant stinging, creepy sensation in his body which gave him no rest day or night; now he is as supple as ever he was, with the stiffness, the swelling and the creepy sensation all gone. He attributes it all to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mr. Gardiner is a man of about 65 years, an old and highly respected resident of Smith's Falls. Having heard a good deal of the above improvement effected in his health by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the Record sent a reporter to ascertain the exact truth and what is related above. He said that he tried a number of doctors—as good doctors as there were in the country—but got no relief. He was given to understand that the trouble was caused by bad circulation of the blood, but nothing did him any good. He could not wear boots his feet were so swollen and when he tried to walk, his legs felt like sticks. Finally he was induced to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. He took six boxes, he said, but did not see that he was much better. He determined to quit taking them but was persuaded to continue them for a little while longer. When he had taken ten boxes he was greatly improved and when he had taken twelve boxes he was so well that he did not need any more. It is several months since he has taken them and he has had no return of the trouble. When the reporter saw him he was wearing his ordinary boots and he said he could get into and out of a buggy as well as any man of his age in the country.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the friend of the weak and ailing. They surpass all other medicines in their tonic, strengthening qualities, and make weak and dependent people bright, healthy and wealthy. These pills are sold by dealers in medicine, or can be had, post paid, at 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HIS REPLY

Mr. Walters Answers the Letter of Officer Groves re Sunday Papers and Closes Argument.

Chatham, Nov. 25th, 1901.

Dear Sir,—In regards to the letter of Mr. Thos. Groves, in which he uses my name in connection with the Sunday newspaper topic, I would ask space in your valuable columns to issue the following reply. In Mr. Groves' first letter he holds up old London as an example for the city of Chatham, viz., "if London, the hub of the world, which I admit it is, can do without Sunday papers why can't Chatham?" Now, Sir, in his second letter in answer to a conversation your reporter and myself had one evening and which was issued in The Planet, he asks me to name any paper that was published on Sunday. Sir, I did not go to the printing office to ascertain if they published on Sunday or not, but what I did do was to buy the following papers while in old London on Sunday mornings, Lloyd's Weekly, Daily Express, The Standard, I also had the choice of a number of others, such as The Globe and St. John's Gazette. The above named papers all were published on Sunday. I was in the great city and which I have several copies at the present time. On Saturday, May 11th, I went to a news stand on Strand and asked for Lloyd's Weekly, and was informed by the dealer it would not be issued till Sunday morning. He said there was an edition issued for the Province, but the London dealers do not get theirs till Sunday morning. This paper having a circulation of about 1,000,000 copies it takes some time to print them. Mr. Groves says I made behind no paper or anything else. I tell things as I found them. Mr. Groves says John Bull is the leader of all nations where freedom and equal rights reign. I agree with him on that point. But why should he try to interfere with our rights as Canadians, Canada being the brightest spot in the British possession. In regards to the Jewish quarters when passing through on Sunday morning I found the shops in every line of trade open doing an immense business, but on Saturday they were all closed, that being their belief. They are not interfered with let them on the Seventh Day Adventists come to Chatham and try to carry on any kind of business on Sunday, and Mr. Groves or some others would have them in the lock-up in short order. Now, Sir, it makes little difference to me whether I get a Sunday paper or not, but what I do contend is that if a man wants a Sunday paper he has a perfect right to have as a British subject and no one has any right to interfere with him as long as he does not steal or commit any other offence, and I believe I have as much right and do not com-

When are the candidates for aldermen going to show their hands and begin shaking.

Oil wells are shot, but some men we know are generally half shot. That's the difference between a man and a hole in the ground.

The Hamilton Spectator's version—has put up a con game on the temperance men, and the Cons, are watching him work it.

I wouldn't be such a bad thing for Chatham if this city had a few more real citizens like Messrs. Scholfield, Piggott, and Campbell.

Man Transformed into a Bird—Aytoun, in his "Isle of the Scots," says—"No, alone, the river's sweep sweep might make a brave man quail."

There is a song somewhere in the annals of history devoted to telling us that "White wings never grow weary." Wonder if the writer knew the city engineer's white wings.

That horrible accident on the Wabash teaches the various parliaments of the world, one plain duty—that is, to allow, and that is, not to allow any railroad to run trains except on the double track system. The safety of the people of every country demands it. Such awful wholesale slaughter must be stopped.

A Thanksgiving Hunter's Definition—Quail are game birds of which very little is known. They furnish an excuse for going out into the country with a dog and gun. Even when located by means of the dog, the hunter is so fat that it is almost impossible to stop them with a gun of a club. Hence quail, although alleged game birds, flee rather than face their foe.

There must be a good many miles of grand old pavement in this city. It might be described as good, bad, indifferent. Perhaps some day the city engineer will figure up how many miles of this pavement Chatham has. Probably the easiest way to do this would be by means of a cyclometer, and a bicycle or some night when Detective McGregor and the city police are sleeping.

Two sisters, who Christian names were Annie and Ann, live out in Dover. Ann was summoned as a witness in a case in the county court. The constable read the wrong on the summons to meep Annie and she was served. She came to the trial, was of no use as a witness, but drew witness fees. Ann stayed home but because she was the one wanted, she felt that she sister had done her out of the money, and she is trying to get it. On the face of it the girl summoned by mistake is entitled to the money she got.

The unlucky number 13 is a prominent factor in the whole history of the wreck on the Wabash Wednesday night. Engineer Werk, who held the throttle on the front engine of train 13, has been 13 years an engineer on the Wabash. Just beyond the wreckage of his engine, the incongruity of fate piled 13 truck wheels in a pile of knitted steel. The locomotive engine 151 has 13 steam tubes still sticking out at various angles, bent horribly by the shock of the collision. Thirteen car cushions are all that remain from the magnificent coaches of yesterday. Thirteen rails will be either replaced or reset on the track.

What's in the number 13? Was unlucky 13 responsible for the accident or the engineer all to blame? It would be good for him if he could so convince the coroner's jury.

International Bible Lesson for Tomorrow—The Call of Moses—Ex. iii, 1-12.

Golden Text—"Certainly I will be with thee."

At 80 years—40 in Egypt's cultured courts and 40 in the desert—God has trained a deliverer. About 3,000,000 slaves (counting five persons to 603,000 enrolled soldiers) were in the fire of affliction and, like the burning bush, they were not consumed, but God's grace preserved and increased them, as He preserves and increases His children still. Moses, the shepherd of 40 years, is called from his herd of 40 years more. Moses bears his feet as we bear our heads in worship now. He did not know he was on holy ground until God spoke to him. Adam heard, feared and hid; Isaac (6th) cried woe to me, I am a man of unclean lips. When God manifests His holiness, then man becomes aware of his true condition. "The entrance of Thy word giveth light."

MRS. NORMANDEAU

A Lady of Campbellton, N. B. has at Last Effectively Disposed of an Enemy that Persecuted Her for Years.

For years Mrs. Philomena Normandeau, of Campbellton, N. B., suffered with dyspepsia. In addition to the torture consequent on this disease, she also was very much troubled with sick headaches, the result of the derangement of the stomach.

She has found a cure, and is so grateful that she is anxious for the benefit of others who may be suffering as she was, to give the matter the greatest possible publicity. She has therefore written the following open letter:

"It is my duty, and I consider it a great pleasure for me to testify that I have been cured of a very severe case of dyspepsia by the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"For years I suffered with stomach sickness. My head ached almost continually. I could eat very little, and had to be very careful.

"I consulted several physicians, and used the medicines they prescribed, but instead of getting better, I gradually grew worse.

"I read in one of the newspapers an advertisement which told me a lady who had been suffering from dyspepsia in much the same way as I was, had been cured by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"Although I had but little faith, I decided to make a trial, and bought two boxes. I was relieved from the very first, and now can safely say I am cured completely.

"I can therefore highly recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to all who suffer from this most terrible malady as I am satisfied that what cured my case will cure anyone's."

Science-to-day knows but one way to relieve dyspepsia, indigestion, heartburn, sour stomach, and other stomach troubles. That way is Nature's way—Rest.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest all the food and tone up the stomach by giving it a respite from the work of digestion. The small, brown tablets stimulate the liver, and regulate the bowels. All in one box, 50c.

Mr. Kehoe was on his way from Chatham to Chicago and was on train No. 13 in the chair coach, which was the fourth car from the engine. When interviewed by The Planet this afternoon he said:

"There were four or five of us in the smoking department of the car when the accident happened. We were all talking when the shock came. With a sudden jerk we were thrown off our seats to the floor, but none of us were in the least hurt. It was all over in a minute and done before any of us could imagine what had happened."

"When we stepped out of our car our eyes were met with a very ghastly sight, the extent of which has been described in the papers."

"It was a very pitiful thing to see. The air was filled with cries and shrieks from the shocked crowd. Some were shouting and others praying, crying and cursing. One little girl could be heard crying for her mother."

"It was a sight the like of which I had never seen before and I have no desire to witness again."

PASSED AWAY.

Last evening three passed away at the residence of her son-in-law, ex-County-Commissioner Arthur Stewart, Cor. 2, Chatham Township, Rachel, widow of the late Daniel Bedford, of Harwich.

Mrs. Bedford was universally beloved and esteemed and her death will be universally mourned by the community. The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from Mr. Stewart's residence to Maple Leaf Cemetery. Rev. T. T. George will conduct the service.

We have a large list of very eligible properties now on the market, and would be pleased to furnish you with full particulars, if you call, or write Phone 295, Merritt's Banking Office, Fifth St., next to Old Post Office.

URSO'S RECITAL

Galaxy of Artists Contribute a Magnificent Musical Program Last Evening.

The concert recital, given by Camilla Urso in the I. O. O. F. Auditorium last evening, was one of the finest and best musical entertainments ever held in the Maple City. There was not a very large crowd present, but those who were there missed a decidedly high class musical treat, the equal of which may not be presented in Chatham again this season. The affair was under the auspices of R. Victor Carter, of the Krause Conservatory of Music, who as to be highly complimented upon bringing such an excellent concert to our city.

Camilla Urso, one of America's greatest and most famous violinists, was the main attraction. She was assisted in the program by Mrs. Sheldon Pearce, pianist, and Miss Inez Marston, soprano.

The program, which lasted for about two hours, was varied, pleasing and most entertaining. It was a series of features throughout. It would be an exceedingly difficult matter to judge between any of the selections given by the artists. Each was rendered in a faultless manner and to the most enthusiastic applause. It is often a matter of surprise among the wise ones in musical circles as to how the music of a higher order can be brought to the attention of the masses.

Camilla Urso is without question able to take a stand with the best violin virtuosos. Her playing was delightful from every standpoint. At the first note the silence of the audience was absolute, and the notes came soft and low, with all the inspiration of an artist. There is no clap-trap about her performance but she is the essence of all that is spiritual, artistic and womanly in fact her playing was as exquisite as a lovely dream.

There is something in her music that is not only most grateful to the ear but borrows an additional interest from the association of ideas.

She sways her wonderful skill. Her renditions of The Witches' Dance, by Paganini, Andante, by Guiraud, and selections from Mendelssohn were played in a faultless style. The coloring, the tact and finesse were admirable. The volume of tone in the forte passages was truly remarkable, while in the softer passages the shading was as exquisite as only a woman's hand could make it.

Her rendition of The Last Rose of Summer, the concluding piece on the program, was dainty, tender and expressive and indescribably winning.

Mrs. Sheldon Pearce, the pianist, is a finished artist of the rarest quality, one who must be criticized from the highest point of musical professional criticism. She possesses all the requisites of a great artist; a powerful, penetrating touch, perfect technique, great rhythm and a correct conception. She understood the composer's meaning and feeling, and her playing was full of life and expression.

Her first performance was Rachmaninoff's Prelude in sharp minor, and she had not played twenty bars before she was recognized as a superior musician. Her command of the piano was complete. She played with the slightest manifestation of effort and with a nervous strength that was amazed. The notes came with clearness and refinement, she played also with brain power, controlling and directing her every action. She also acted as accompanist during the evening.

Miss Inez Marston, the soprano soloist, has but to be heard to be appreciated. Her Midsummer Dream, especially, was sung with great sweetness of voice and refinement of style. She is possessed of an exceedingly rich, mellow voice, which she knows well how to use. Her charming personality and winning manner also assist in pronouncing her a decided favorite. She sang last night with confidence, with accuracy of expression, with sweetness and with power, while her rich soprano voice has that sympathy of melody that few artists possess. Her execution attracted repeated encores; she pleased every hearer.

The following is the program as rendered:

Piano, a. Prelude in C sharp, Rachmaninoff; b. Mignon, Schuetz—Mrs. Sheldon Pearce.

Songs, a. By the Waters of Babylon, Howell; b. The Violet, Mendelssohn; c. Midsummer Dreams, Guy d'Hardefort—Miss Inez Marston.

Violin, Concerto in E, first movement, Mendelssohn—Camilla Urso.

Piano, En Route, Morceau de concert, Godard—Mrs. Sheldon Pearce.

Violin, a. Berce, from second violin Sonata; b. Lullaby, from Jocelyn, Godard; c. Love's Garden, De Koven—Miss Inez Marston.

Songs, a. Ophelia with his lute, written by Shakespeare, Arthur Sullivan; b. Lullaby, from Jocelyn, Godard; c. Love's Garden, De Koven—Miss Inez Marston.

Violin, a. Capriccio, Study, unaccompanied; b. The Witches' Dance, Paganini—Camilla Urso.

GLOBE TROTTER IN CHATHAM

dian soldiers, he crossed over to Calais. He lectured one night at the Casino, and made enough money to take him to Paris next day, where he remained for three months, obtaining commissions on the Western Australian exhibit. Emery states he had interviews with the King of Belgium, Prince George of Greece, and Kruger. He left Paris at the end of three months and marched through England to Scotland, where he was received by the Burns Club of Glasgow. He subsequently visited Ayr for the purpose of seeing Burns' cottage and states that he secured a piece of Burns' chair. He then crossed to Londonderry, Ireland, where he lectured three months; thence sailed to Halifax, Canada, on the 4th of last April. He lectured in the various towns and cities from Halifax, N. S., to Hamilton, Ont., then went from Hamilton to Buffalo, where he went into business for three months. In London, Ont. he beheld the first snow he ever saw in his life.

Emery says his manager, Mr. Spruhel, is at present in Chicago, looking over the ground for a lecturing course. Emery's present visit to Chatham is on a similar errand. Emery claims to be somewhat of a poet, and perhaps naturally, his poetic fancy is whetted by the sight of fair Maple City maidens. His sentiments have been immortalized in the following verses he handed to The Planet:

THE CHARMS OF CHATHAM.
What do I think of the Chatham maids?
Well, I've not seen many yet.
But when Cupid comes to make his raids
(I've a dollar bill to bet)
He'll fire on all that I've met.
And where women's concerned, I'm na a—
I care not for the feature;
A clean, healthy, intelligent lass
(By heaven! what can reach her?)
Is a beautiful creature.

Canadian girls I think are like
Our girls of the Southern Cross.
Only yours go spooning on a "bike"
(But it don't matter of course)
An' ours go away on a horse!

And when I write home in a letter
All about your "lovely new"
I'll say there's only some things better.
(To inspire a poet's pen)
That's Canadian women!

Severe Cases Of Indigestion.

Cannot Be Cured By Ordinary Stomach Medicines.—The Kidneys, Liver and Bowels Become Deranged.—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Cure.

By far the most important part of digestion takes place in the intestines, as has been repeatedly shown in cases where the stomach has been removed and the patient has lived and digested food without the aid of the stomach.

It frequently happens that people who continually dose the stomach for indigestion and use pepsin and various kinds of digestive tablets and powders can obtain no relief from such treatment, because the real trouble is in the intestines, the liver, and the kidneys.

There is fullness and pains after meals, coated tongue, headache, loss of appetite, pains in the limbs and in the back and shoulders, flatulence and constipation, frequently alternating with diarrhoea.

In cases of intestinal indigestion the kidneys usually become clogged and sluggish in action, and poisonous impurities are left in the blood, which should be removed by these filtering organs.

There has yet to be a remedy discovered that is so prompt and thorough in curing intestinal indigestion as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. And as this is the most common and severe form of indigestion it can well be claimed that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most successful treatment extant for indigestion and dyspepsia.

It is not unusual for persons who have been suffering from biliousness and constipation to be thoroughly cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which have by far the largest sale of any similar remedy. You may be skeptical, as others have been before you, but a single trial of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will convince you of their unusual medicinal value.

Mr. Joseph Blackwell, Holmesville, Ont., says:—"I derived more benefit from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills than from any other medicine I ever took, and can highly recommend them for stomach troubles. I was in a terrible state and could hardly work at my trade. I tried almost every kind of medicine and doctors, until I was tired of doctoring, and before I used one box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I could see that they were helping me, and after taking a box and a half found that I was cured."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmansons, Bates & Co., Toronto.

IONE: A BROKEN LOVE DREAM

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

Author of "A Broken Betrothal," "Parted by Fate," "Parted at the Altar," "Heiress of Cameron Hall," "Miss Middleton's Lover," Etc., Etc.

"Delightful! Charming!" chorused the bevy of young girls, as the last note of the passionate refrain died away. "Won't you favor us with one more song, Mr. Rochester? Only one more," they persisted.

Ione could not have uttered one word to have saved her life. Those thrilling words seemed to have dashed her senses, paralyzed her heart.

Like one in a dream, she stood leaning against the piano, even after he had finished. She dared not raise her eyes, for she felt, intuitively, that he was gazing straight into her face, and she knew, too, that every word had been intended for her.

"Was it meant in deep feeling, or sarcasm?" was the thought that whirled madly through her brain. If he had cared so much about her, and mourned losing her, he could never have consoled himself with another love.

Ah, it was cruel of him to awaken those old, bitter-sweet memories, now that all was over between them. She must fly from the spell while the strength was hers to do it—fly to the protection of the man to whom she was betrothed, and whom she was to wed without love.

Ione took one step forward, turning her white face away as she attempted to pass him with a haughty, careless, indifferent step. Then the room seemed to whirl around her, the chandelier and the floor to meet.

She threw up her little white hands with a gasp, and would have fallen to the floor if Arthur Rochester had not sprang forward just in time to catch her in his arms.

"Oh, she has fainted!" cried one of the young ladies, in alarm. "She did not feel well enough to come in, but I insisted. It's all my fault. I will go for Miss Carriscount and Mr. Lyons at once."

Frank Lyons was near at hand. A few words briefly explained the situation.

"Miss Lawrence has fainted!" he ejaculated, hurrying into the music-room, and up to the startled group.

His face grew dark as night as he saw Arthur Rochester supporting her.

"Thank you for the assistance you have rendered her. I will relieve you of your care now, if you please," he said, ungraciously.

Insensibly Arthur Rochester's arm tightened around the slim figure, lying so still and white against his throbbing breast.

"I will relieve you of your burden," Frank Lyons repeated. "The young lady is my betrothed, and I added, maliciously, advancing a step nearer."

Slowly Arthur unwound his arms from about her, and the pang that it cost him to resign her to another, only Heaven knew. He turned abruptly away, and Frank Lyons, loving her quickly from the room, summoning Miss Carriscount.

They took her into the conservatory adjacent, where the clear, cool water from the splashing fountain, with which they laved her face, soon revived her. They were discussing the advisability of returning home at once, when the lovely dark eyes flashed open wide, with a dazed, startled expression in them.

"Mad fool—that I was!" he muttered to himself. "I believed it was the old memories that overcame her as she listened to my song. I see my folly now; it was but the closeness, the heat of the room, that caused her to faint."

His drive home with Elaine was rather constrained.

"Have you enjoyed the ball, Arthur?" she asked eagerly, laying little white, jeweled hand timidly on his arm.

"No," he answered abruptly. "I wish you had not persuaded me into going. I hope I shall not be in face, and she knew, too, that every word had been intended for her."

"Not if you do not like them," returned Elaine, wistfully.

"I detest society," he declared, bitterly. "It is a sham and a delusion; it would turn the head of the best woman living. I believe, for the most part of it is composed of women as false as they are fair."

"What a sweeping assertion," laughed Elaine, good-naturedly; but in her own heart she was wondering why he spoke so bitterly of what heretofore he had always held up to highest praise.

"You shall go to no more balls with me if you do not care for them," he said, considerably; "but you must not take a dislike to garden parties. I have a plan in my head, Arthur. What do you say to giving a garden party in honor of Miss Lawrence?"

CHAPTER XXIV.

"Was it only her fancy?" she wondered, "or did a startled cry break from Arthur Rochester's lips?"

"It is not to be thought of, Elaine," he said, hurriedly and hoarsely. "I hope you will abandon the idea."

"Do you not like Miss Lawrence?" she asked, wondering. "She is very beautiful, and destined to be very popular."

"That will be nothing to me," he responded, desperately.

"How strange that you should have taken such a dislike to her!" said Elaine. "Most gentlemen admire her."

"We will not talk about her," he said, with a forced calmness.

But Elaine had no intention of giving up the subject so easily.

"I have a faint recollection of having seen her before somewhere," she went on, never deeming of giving slightly familiar. "Do you know, Arthur, I felt just a little bit jealous."

"I thought you were watching her all the evening, and for a time I—yes, I might as well confess it—I felt miserable. You will never give me cause for jealousy, will you, Arthur?" she added, quickly. "I come of a race to whom jealousy is fatal."

"You need have no fear, Elaine. I will never give you cause for one unhappy moment," he answered, gently.

During the fortnight that followed, Arthur did his best to control the unhappy, despondent state into which he was slowly but surely drifting.

He was Elaine's betrothed husband, but he was by no means her lover. He tried his best to be all that was kind and considerate to her, but he never dreamt of giving her one single caress which is so dear to girlish hearts from the one they love. He was quick at reading women's faces, and he knew by the wistful expression of Elaine's that she expected some demonstration of love from him; and he often took her hand, speaking some kindly word of praise that made the girl's heart beat and her cheeks glow—that was in place of the kiss he should have given her and could not.

Yet even with Elaine's happy voice ringing in his ears with her bright, laughing face before him, with all the knowledge of the intensity of happiness his love had brought her, there were times when his heart misgave him, and he did not see how he was to endure it. There were times when he would have freed himself from the engagement he had made on the impulse of the moment. There were times when, in his desperation, he thought it would be easier to die than to call any other girl save Ione his wife; when he would have gone away, never to return. But one thought restrained him, and that thought—was that Elaine's heart would surely break.

Ab, and no one must suffer for him, he resolved, what he had suffered for the one whom he had loved and lost. There was a grim satisfaction for him in the knowledge that, seeing him with Elaine, Ione would not think her treachery had broken his heart.

It was quite a puzzle to Elaine why Arthur seemed to take such a determined dislike to beautiful Ione, Colonel Whitney's niece. He had but to hear that she was to be at a place to refuse absolutely to go there.

"How strange that you have taken such an aversion to the girl, and without any reason!" laughed Elaine. "Talk about the prejudice of the prejudice of gentlemen. When they make their minds up against a person they cannot be induced to reconsider their opinion."

An event happened a week later, however, which was a keen blow to Elaine's peace of mind, that aroused all the latent jealousy in her nature, which lay like a smouldering volcano beneath a calm surface.

It came about this way: To some worthy poor man employed in the mill Miss Rochester had promised a supply of cast-off clothing. In searching through Arthur's wardrobe, having called Elaine to assist her, she came across a velvet shooting jacket, which she remembered to have heard Arthur say he should never wear again.

"This will answer quite well," she said, handing it to Elaine, adding: "Please take it down to the man, my dear, he is below in the servants' hall. Say that I shall find more for him in the course of a few days, when I shall have more time."

As Elaine reached the lower corridor a sudden impulse caused her to thrust her hand in the pockets, to make sure they were empty. In the last one she found a scrap of paper. Drawing it forth, she looked at it carelessly enough. Then, in one short instant, the color died from her face, the light from her eyes. She gave a quick gasp, sinking down in the nearest seat.

"Let me read it again," she cried, hoarsely. "To make sure that there is no mistake—that my eyes have not deceived me."

It was but a scrap of a letter written in a fine, pretty, delicate hand, and read as follows:

"I am beginning to believe you a very foolishly exacting lover. You should know very well, dear, that your Ione does love you, even though she fails to write it in each letter. You have only been gone a few hours, yet I count the hours until you return. In the language of the poet I say:

"I never knew how dear you were to me until you went away."

I shall not.

The fragment contained but those few words, but they were a terrible revelation to the girl who read them. Her eyes were flaming, her hands clenched, her heart beating with quick, convulsive sob. She read the words over and over again, and each time they seemed like so many dagger-thrusts in her breast. She forgot her errand. For two long hours she sat there, but they seemed like so many moments.

Who was this girl who dared to write to Arthur in this fashion? They must have been lovers! and a spasm of pain shot through her heart at the very thought. Ione! The name was an unknown one. She repeated it over and over again. Suddenly a thought came to her. She remembered how Arthur appeared to dislike Miss Lawrence, Colonel Whitney's niece. Was it because her name was Ione, too?

She had been so sure that she was Arthur's first and only love. It was a bitter shock to her. Did he love her as well as he loved this Ione? Who was she, and why had they parted? She brooded over the matter until Miss Rochester, who had waited long for her return, came in search of her. She saw her sitting there in the corridor, with the jacket still in her white, nervous hands.

"Elaine," she cried, agitated, "what can you be doing here? Your face is as white as a ghost's; and as I live you have that jacket still in your hands!"

Elaine glanced slowly and sadly before her.

"Have you ever heard of any one—do you know any one by the name of Ione?" she asked, abruptly. The question almost took Miss Rochester's breath away. Her very confusion showed Elaine she knew.

"I am sure, my dear, I do not recollect," she answered, evasively.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Achievements of Brain and Hand During the Past Year.

FULLNESS OF OUR HARVESTS

Rev. Dr. Talmage, in an eloquent discourse, stirred the hearts of his hearers to joyful thanksgiving by recounting the mercies vouchsafed to them by an All-Wise Creator.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1901, by William Baily, of Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Washington, Nov. 24.—This discourse of Dr. Talmage is a national congratulation over the achievements of brain and hand during the past twelve months. The texts are: I Corinthians ix, 10, "He that ploweth should plow in hope"; Isaiah xlii, 7, "He that smothereth with the hammer"; Judges v, 14, "They that handle the pen of the writer."

There is a table being spread across the top of the two great ranges of mountains which ridge this continent, a table which reaches from the Atlantic to the Pacific sea. It is the Thanksgiving table of the nation. They will come from the east and the west and the north and the south and sit at it.

Welcome, Thanksgiving day! Whatever we may think of New England theology, we all like New England Thanksgiving day. What means the steady rush to the depots and the long rail trains during the autumn along the tracks of the Boston and Lowell, the Georgia Central, the Chicago Great Western, the St. Paul and Duluth and the Southern railway? Ask the happy group in the New England farm house; ask the villagers, whose song of praise in the morning will come over the Berkshire hills; ask all the plantations of the south which have adopted the New England custom of setting apart a day of thanksgiving. Oh, it is a great day of national festivity! Clap your hands, ye people, and shout aloud for joy! Through the organ pipes let there come down the thunder of a nation's rejoicing! Blow the cornet! Wave the palm branches! "Oh, that men would praise the Lord for His goodness and for His wonderful works to the children of men!"

Things have marvelously changed. Time was when the stern edict of Governments forbade religious assemblages. Those who dared to be so unloyal to their King as to acknowledge loyalty to the Head of the universe were punished. Churches awfully silent in worship suddenly heard their doors swung open, and down upon a church aisle a score of muskets thumped as the leaders bade them "Ground arms!" This custom of having the fathers, the husbands, the sons and brothers at the entrance of the pew is a custom which came down from olden time, when it was absolutely necessary that the father or brother should sit at the end of the church pew fully armed to defend the helpless portion of the family. But now how changed! Severe penalties are threatened against any one who shall interrupt religious services, and annually, at the command of the highest official in the United States, we gather together for thanksgiving and holy worship. Today I would stir your souls to joyful thanksgiving while I speak of the mercies of God and in unconventional was recount the conquests of the plow, the hammer and the pen.

Most of the implements of husbandry have been superseded by modern inventions, but the plow has never lost its reign. It has furrowed its way through all the ages, from the time when it was used by the barley of Palestine, the wheat of Italy. It has turned up the mammoth of Siberia, the mastodon of Egypt and the pine groves of Thessaly. Its iron foot has marched where Moses wrote and Homer sang and Aristotle taught and Alexander mounted his war charger. It has been the plow of the world, the plow of the East, the plow of the West, the plow of the North and the plow of the South. It has been the plow of the American forest, pushing its way through the savannas of the Carolinas and trembling in the grasp of the New Hampshire woodsman. It has been the plow of the East, the plow of the West, the plow of the North and the plow of the South. It has been the plow of the American forest, pushing its way through the savannas of the Carolinas and trembling in the grasp of the New Hampshire woodsman.

I do not wonder that the Japanese and the Chinese and the Hindoos, particularly extolled husbandry or that Cincinnati went from the consulship to the plow or that Noah was a farmer before he became a shipbuilder or that Elisha was in the field plowing with twelve yoke of oxen when the mantle fell on him or that the Egyptians in their paganism worshipped the ox as a tiller of their lands.

Pithous, the King, found some gold mines in his province, so he turned all the population to digging in the mines. Tillage was neglected, and there came a great famine. One day the wife of the King invited him to a great banquet, and he came in and sat down, and there were pieces of gold in the shape of biscuits and pieces of gold in the shape of joints of meat, and the King was disgusted, and he said, "I cannot eat this."

"Neither can the people," said his wife most suggestively, and then they went back to the tillage.

To get and appreciation of what the American plow has accomplished here in the dense forest I find a collection of Indian wigwams. With belts of wampum the men lazily sit on the skins of deer, smoking their feathered calumets, or driven forth by hunger I track their mocassins far away as they make the forest echoes crazy with their wild halloo or fish in the

PLEASE TELL THE PEOPLE

Mr. Codrree Wants Everyone to Know his story He Had a Very Bad Case of Dyspepsia, and, after a Dyspepsia Tablet Cured Him. After Everything else had Failed—His Testimonial Letter.

Everybody in St. Jacques, Quebec, knows Ademar Codrree. He has given for publication the following letter:

"I certify that for over two years I suffered with dyspepsia and inflammation of the stomach. I have taken several medicines but have secured no relief. I was very discouraged."

"One day, I read an account of the cure of a similar case by the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, so I determined to try them. I bought two boxes of them. From the very first, they relieved me, and now I am completely cured."

"I desire to make my case known to the public, so that all who suffer from that malady may find the only remedy that will cure it. Please tell all the people that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cured me."

It is not often that any remedy receives such very high and unqualified commendation as Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. There can be nothing plainer than his straightforward statement of the facts of his case and its cure.

No one in St. Jacques doubts Mr. Codrree's truthfulness, and one who hears him speak of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets can doubt his sincerity.

The earnestness of the statements made by the friends of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, is the distinguishing feature of their testimonials.

Almost everyone refers to the fact that they have tried other treatments without success, and all manifest a desire to impress upon other sufferers, the fact that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are not as other medicines are, but will instantly relieve and permanently cure all stomach trouble.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets is an honest remedy, endorsed heartily by honest people.

They are no experiment, but a tried and proven remedy. Thousands have used them, and everyone tells the same story of restoration to health.

Better not delay longer. Try them. You'll not be disappointed.

waters of the still lake. Now tribes challenge, and council fires blaze, and warwhoops ring, and chiefs lift the tomahawks for battle. After awhile wagons from the Atlantic coast come to these forests. By day trees are felled, and by night bonfires keep off the wolves. Log cabins rise, and the great trees begin to throw their branches in the path of the conquering white man. Farms are cleared. Stumps are piled up in neat rows, and are burned. Villages appear, with smiths at the bellows, masons on the wall, carpenters on the house-top. Churches rise in honor of the Great Spirit whom the red men worship. Steamers on the lake convey merchandise to her wharf and carry east the uncounted bushels that have come to the market. Bring hither wreaths of wheat and corn and rye, and let the mills and the machinery of barn and field unite their voices to celebrate the triumph, for the wilderness hath retreated and the plow hath conquered.

Parts of the country, under industrious tillage, have become an Eden of fruitfulness, in which religion stands as the tree of life, and educational advantages as the tree of knowledge of good and evil, and one of them forbidden. We are ourselves surrounded by well cultured farms. They were worked by your fathers, and perhaps your mothers helped spread the hay in the field. On their headstones, with the names of their sons, as when you were boys, in the sultry noon you sought for the harvest field with refreshments for your fathers and found them taking their noon spell sound asleep under the trees, and let now they sleep in some country churchyard. No more fatigued. Death has plowed for them the deep furrow of a grave.

Although most of us have nothing directly to do with the tillage of the soil, yet in all our occupations we feel the effect of successful or blighted industry. We must, in all our occupations, rejoice over the victories of the plow to-day. The plow was once cursed for man's sake, and occasionally the soil revenges itself on us by refusing a bountiful harvest. I suppose that but for sin the earth would be producing wheat and corn and sweet fruits as naturally as now it produces mullein stalks and Canada thistles. There is hardly a hill-lock between the forests of Maine and the lagoons of Florida, between the peach orchards of New Jersey and the pines of Oregon, that has not sometimes shown its natural and total depravity. The thorn and thistle seem to have usurped the soil, and nothing but the rebellion of the plow can uproot the evil supremacy. But God is good. Now, if one of our seasons partially proves a failure the earth seems to repent of it the next summer in more magnificent supply.

Praise God for the great harvests that have been reaped this last year! Some of them injured by drought or insects or freshets were not as bountiful as usual, others far in excess of what have ever before been gathered, while higher prices will help make up for any decreased supply. Sure sign of agricultural prosperity is the fact that cattle and horses and sheep and swine and all farm animals have during the last two years increased in value. Twenty-million swine slaughtered this last year, and yet so many hogs left. Enormous paying off of farm mortgages has spoiled the old speeches of the calamity howlers. If the ancients in their festivals presented their rejoicings before Ceres, the goddess of corn and tillage, shall we neglect to rejoice in the presence of the great God of the harvest? From Atlantic to Pacific let the American nation celebrate the victories of the plow.

I come next to speak of the conquests of the American hammer. Iron arms have fought its way down the great river of the Cincinnati porters! Enough to eat, and at low prices; enough to wear, and of home manufacture. If some have and some have not, then may God help those who have to hand over to those who have not. Clear the track for the rail trains that rush on bringing the wheat and the cotton and the rice and the barley and the oats and the hops and the lumber and the leather and everything for man and everything for beast!

Lift up your eyes, O nation of God's right hand, at the glorious prospects! Build larger your barns for the harvest; dig deeper the vats for the spoil of the vineyards; enlarge the warehouses for the merchandise; multiply galleries of art for the pictures and statues. Advance, O nation of God's right hand, but remember that national wealth, if unsanctified, is sumptuous waste, is a ruin, is a magnificent woe, is splendid rottenness, is gilded death. Woe to us for the wine vats if drunkenness wallows in them! Woe to us for the harvests if greed sickles them! Woe to us for the ships if avarice swallows them! Woe to us for the cities if misrule walks them! Woe to the land if God defying crime debauches it! Our only safety is in more Bibles, more churches, more free schools, more good men, and more good women, more consecrated printing presses, more of the glorious gospel of the Son of God, which will yet expiate all wrongs and introduce all blessedness.

But the preachers on Thanksgiving morning will not detain with long sermons their hearers from the home group. The housekeepers will be angry if the guests do not arrive until the viands are cold. Set the chairs to the table—the easy chairs for grandfather and grandmother, if they be still alive; the high chair for the youngest but not the least. Then put out your hand to take the full cup of thanksgiving. Lift it and bring it to your lips, your hands trembling with emotion, and if the chalice shall overflow and trickle a few drops on the table do not be disturbed, but let it suggest to you the words of the psalmist: "Lend your ear, O Lord, to my cry, for my cup runneth over!"

As the pen has advanced our colleges and universities and observatories have followed the waving of the peach orchards of New Jersey and the pines of Oregon, that has not sometimes shown its natural and total depravity. The thorn and thistle seem to have usurped the soil, and nothing but the rebellion of the plow can uproot the evil supremacy. But God is good. Now, if one of our seasons partially proves a failure the earth seems to repent of it the next summer in more magnificent supply.

Praise God for the great harvests that have been reaped this last year! Some of them injured by drought or insects or freshets were not as bountiful as usual, others far in excess of what have ever before been gathered, while higher prices will help make up for any decreased supply. Sure sign of agricultural prosperity is the fact that cattle and horses and sheep and swine and all farm animals have during the last two years increased in value. Twenty-million swine slaughtered this last year, and yet so many hogs left. Enormous paying off of farm mortgages has spoiled the old speeches of the calamity howlers. If the ancients in their festivals presented their rejoicings before Ceres, the goddess of corn and tillage, shall we neglect to rejoice in the presence of the great God of the harvest? From Atlantic to Pacific let the American nation celebrate the victories of the plow.

I come next to speak of the conquests of the American hammer. Iron arms have fought its way down the great river of the Cincinnati porters! Enough to eat, and at low prices; enough to wear, and of home manufacture. If some have and some have not, then may God help those who have to hand over to those who have not. Clear the track for the rail trains that rush on bringing the wheat and the cotton and the rice and the barley and the oats and the hops and the lumber and the leather and everything for man and everything for beast!

Lift up your eyes, O nation of God's right hand, at the glorious prospects! Build larger your barns for the harvest; dig deeper the vats for the spoil of the vineyards; enlarge the warehouses for the merchandise; multiply galleries of art for the pictures and statues. Advance, O nation of God's right hand, but remember that national wealth, if unsanctified, is sumptuous waste, is a ruin, is a magnificent woe, is splendid rottenness, is gilded death. Woe to us for the wine vats if drunkenness wallows in them! Woe to us for the harvests if greed sickles them! Woe to us for the ships if avarice swallows them! Woe to us for the cities if misrule walks them! Woe to the land if God defying crime debauches it! Our only safety is in more Bibles, more churches, more free schools, more good men, and more good women, more consecrated printing presses, more of the glorious gospel of the Son of God, which will yet expiate all wrongs and introduce all blessedness.

But the preachers on Thanksgiving morning will not detain with long sermons their hearers from the home group. The housekeepers will be angry if the guests do not arrive until the viands are cold. Set the chairs to the table—the easy chairs for grandfather and grandmother, if they be still alive; the high chair for the youngest but not the least. Then put out your hand to take the full cup of thanksgiving. Lift it and bring it to your lips, your hands trembling with emotion, and if the chalice shall overflow and trickle a few drops on the table do not be disturbed, but let it suggest to you the words of the psalmist: "Lend your ear, O Lord, to my cry, for my cup runneth over!"

"THE PENITENT."

Grand Opera House, Wednesday, December 3.

A company that includes the names of many favorite players, a scenic environment that is marvellously beautiful, and effects that add much in portraying the locale of the story, are among the promises held forth by Manager W. E. Nankerville, when he presents his powerful drama "The Penitent," at the Opera House for the consideration of playgoers Tuesday night. This play was dramatized from Hall Quinn's most thrilling story, and like "The Christian," is both original in its theme and brilliant in its conception. The story is laid in the Cumberland Mountains region of England, and deals with the fortunes of two brothers and their illegitimate half brother. The young-son plots with his half brother to rob the rightful heir of his patrimony and wife, and aided by a wonderful resemblance between them, has his purpose practically accomplished, when his better nature reasserts itself and he makes restitution, only to fall by the bullet of his fellow conspirator. The two half brothers of mystifying resemblance, but totally different natures, are played by Louis Leon Hall. His clear cut separation of these two characters have never been excelled by any impersonation in his career. The one is a polished gentleman, and the other a graceless ruffian and braggart, but both were played with ease and finish. "The Penitent" is enacted by Albert Peters, in a "perfect and earnest manner." Myles McCarthy essays the cynical lawyer who directs the conspiracy with infinite finish. Mr. Cairne deems him most competent for this portrayal. The comedy roles are those of a kindly, grateful Jew and gentle and lovable old person. Will Thompson Davis and David Hanchett will give to those parts just the coloring. Miss Maud Claire Shaw heads the leading female character as Greta Lowther with exquisite taste, and Miss Edith Dombly pathetically appealing as an abandoned plaything of the younger brother, while Bessie Maylow will make the most winsome Irish maid possible. The five scenes which are necessary for the development of this plot all have strong climaxes, and each received full share of approbation. On the whole, the actors are swift, and the comedy and dramatic incidents scintillating with flashes of wit and most thrilling and intense. An evening of real enjoyment may be anticipated.
