THE PANGS OF REMORSE

A COMPLICATED TANGLE.

CHAPTER XXII.

She was so stuck to that, let him say or do what he might, and then Clarence promised he would not only refrain from sending her to prison—of which she had great horror, though assuredly no prison or prison discipline could be worse than the bondage and the life she was leading now—but would prevent anyone else from doing so.

She listened and crowded in her dreadful way at that, and thus impressed Clarence left her and returned to the hotel.

At break of dawn Clarence rose again and set off for his lodgings.

Notwithstanding the success of his plans as far as they had gone he felt somewhat low-spirited. For one thing the magnitude of the issue, the certainty of tracing the crime home to the miserable woman he had seen writhing in Melchior's power, depressed him unaccountably. For another, he felt that though he had declared to Lillian holly that he would never leave her they should most surely have so part eventually.

The approaching encounter with Melchior would lead to a full disclosure of his Clarence's, early life, and necessitate an everlasting farewell to Rivershall and its high-born inmates.

Alas! for all that frenzy of love and devotion! He knew that in honor he could not ask so great a boon at Sir Ralph's hands as his daughter.

"No," he thought, "for them and Rivershall and a happy life restored; for me is some foreign land, where I may toil and perhaps earn forgetfulness of the fact that I am a rogue's mystery and a nameless adventurer."

CHAPTER XXIV.

With this gnawing at his heart he found Sir Ralph at breakfast.

Lillian had a headache and would be down directly, the maid said.

Sir Ralph rose to meet him with eager welcome and Clarence, who had breakfasted before he started from the hotel, sat down, and with a cup of coffee before him repeated progress.

All is going well, then, said Sir Ralph, "and you think we shall be able to circumvent and punish the villain—or, rather, villainess?"

"I think—I hope so," said Clarence, with a sigh, his eyes wandering toward the door.

Sir Ralph nodded eagerly.

ford," said Sir Ralph, earnestly. "You are sacrificing yourself for us."

"No, I am not," said Clarence; but I should like one extra pair of hands, or eyes rather, for mine cannot be watching two places at once, and that is almost what I require them to do."

Lillian leaned her chin upon her hand and looked thoughtfully at the table.

"What are you thinking of?" asked Sir Ralph, who, with excusable restlessness, had risen and was pacing to and fro again.

"I was going over all our friends, papa, to find one who could serve us in this case, but I know of none but Claude Ainsley."

"Mr. Ainsley!" repeated Sir Ralph. "What do you know of him?"

Lillian, with a blush and a half glance at Clarence, whom she had told of Claude Ainsley's noble advice and all that it had saved her from, replied:

"I know that he is a friend worth having, and that I would give a thousand guineas for him now."

Poor Sir Ralph, to whom all things seemed gravely mysterious, almost frowned, and shook his head.

"I shall never get any rest again. I don't understand half that's going on round me; indeed, it seems that I don't know half."

Clarence rose.

"I snatched half an hour," he said, "but I must not leave my quarry longer. For the present good-bay. You will hold yourself in readiness?"

"I am ready now this moment," said Sir Ralph, sternly, "and, as he shook hands, 'don't sacrifice yourself to us, remember. I would rather they went unspanned than you should be ill.'"

"No fear of that," said Clarence, quietly. "Good-bay."

Lillian did not go to the door with him, for she felt she had some reason to resent his sudden change of manner; but her loving heart looked through her eyes imploringly as he took her hand, and he went into the street again, murmuring:

"I shall lose her, but I shall never lose her love."

Hastening to the hotel, he found that Melchior had not left his room, and, ordering breakfast in the coffee room that he might have an excuse for sitting there when Melchior entered, he took up the paper and waited.

Attentive to the slightest noise, a commotion in the hall caused him to lay aside his paper and walk to the head of the stairs.

The hall was filled with waiters pressing forward to take the luggage and other belongings of a gentleman who had just alighted from a cab.

He was a thin, distinguished-looking man, with a face bronzed by travel.

Clarence, satisfied, returned to the coffee room, but had the curiosity to ask a waiter the name of the gentleman who had just arrived.

"That's Mr. Ainsley, sir," said the waiter. "A great traveller; always puts up here, sir, when he comes back from Africa or America. A wonderful gentleman, been all over the world."

"Mr. Claude Ainsley?" asked Clarence, with surprise.

"Yes, Mr. Claude Ainsley," said the waiter, and the next moment Claude Ainsley himself entered.

PAINS ACROSS THE BACK
Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken your medicine for a number of years. Do not take it steady all the time, but I am never without it. I always keep it in the house. I took it first for pains in the abdomen and bearing-down pains, headaches and pains across the back. I have my home to look after and many a day I could not get up at all. I saw the advertisement in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Mrs. John Miller told me about it, too. Every time I take it, it makes me feel better and I always recommend it to my friends. I am willing to give a few letters from women asking about this medicine and you may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. P. J. WASSMANN, Mitchell, Ontario.

The merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is told by women to each other. Many women know by experience what this medicine will do and they are anxious for others to know. Such testimony should cause any woman suffering from the troubles so common to her sex to give this well-known medicine a fair trial. Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes." This means 80 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

MODEST WEALTH.

It's good to have a seemingly roll put down in brine securely, so you can pay the doctor's bill when you are feeling poorly; so when you're old you'll sit and rest without the need of tanning, sufficient in your treasure chest to keep the pot a-boiling. I've ample kopecks in my store from fear of want to free me, and all are welcome at my door when they would come to see me. I teeter in, I teeter out, and I am calm and happy, and neighbors call, "Hello, old scout, you're looking pert and snappy." I like to mingle with the crowd on equal terms and pleasant, and laugh as much as is allowed by laws in force at present. I would not be a plutocrat, immersed in gorgeous splendors, a diamond sunburst on my hat, and gems on my suspenders. When one has millions of hawbees he has few simple pleasures; he fears that every man he sees would strip him of his treasures. He has an office sternly barred against manhandling dangers, and cold-eyed men are there on guard to shoo away the strangers. He doesn't mix with Neighbors Jones and Smith and Brown and Skatney; he fears they'll ask for twenty bones if they don't ask for eighty. He thinks the universe conspires to touch him for his money, the beemen with their lures, the beemen with their honey. And further, further he withdraws from human things and doings, and goesip of home brewings. I'd hate to sit in guarded den, more coin and still more earnings, and bar out all the common men who keep the world's wheels turning.

SYMPATHY.
It riches make men kinder, or fame Or pomp or place were fellowship's first need;
If culture all that's gentle must precede,
Then wealth were good and lack of it were shame.
But in true living all men are the same;
The poorest man may do the kindest deed;
A mind unshooled may better live its creed,
Than that which shines with learning's brilliant flame.
True sympathy is not a grace acquired,
Brave hearts and good unuttered may remain,
Though culture is a charm to be desired.
Rough hands, dull minds, undying love may gain,
Wisdom and skill for silver may be pined,
Only great souls can feel another's pain.
The taste of Crisco is delicious at any time, is particularly delightful in the country—aug 4, 1925.

Sloan-Duployan Shorthand Competitions
MANY NEWFOUNDLAND SUCCESSORS.

The results are now announced of the Semi-Annual International Shorthand Competitions of the Sloan-Duployan Shorthand Society, held in June, 1925.

Out of the total of eighteen medals granted, no less than twelve have been won by Newfoundland competitors, although the highest award, the Gold Medal for 100 words per minute, on this occasion goes to India.

The following are the complete results:—
Class I. (Self-Taught Section)—Silver Medal to A. Samuel, c/o S. Ponniah, Sungei Nibong Estate, Teluk Anson, F.M.S.

Class II. (Instructed Section)—Silver Medal to Miss Mary Wall, St. Patrick's Convent, St. John's, Nfld.; Miss W. M. Morris, Presentation Convent, Harbor Grace, Nfld.

Class III. (100 words per minute)—Gold-Centre Medals to Miss Vera Miller and Miss Josephine Kelley, both of Academy of Our Lady of Mercy, St. John's, Nfld.; Miss Alice Curtin, St. Patrick's Convent, St. John's, Nfld.; Miss Edie Grouchey, St. Edie's Convent, Littledale, Nfld.; Miss Veronica Buckle, Corner Brook, Bay of Islands, Nfld.

Class IV. (200 words per minute)—Gold Medal to S. Venkataraman, B.A., Official Reporter, High Court of Judicature, Madras, India.

The Silver Challenge Shield presented by Lord Foley for the best team work, has been won this year by a team representing St. Benedict's College, Colombo, Ceylon.

Ice cream is only as good as the flavoring used. You can't make pure ice cream from poor flavoring. Use Shirritz's Vanilla-ol. One pint bottle flavors hundreds of gallons of ice cream. Get it from GERALD S. DOYLE, Phone 811—July 20, 1925.

New Zealand Sheep
CORRIEDALES TO BE SEEN AT WEMBLEY.

Farmers and animal lovers generally will be interested to learn that a number of Corriedale sheep from New Zealand will shortly be on view at Wembley.

A year ago New Zealand breeders were anxious to send some of their sheep for display at the first British Empire Exhibition, but owing to the quarantine restrictions the matter was allowed to drop.

At this year's Exhibition, however, Merinos from Australia, three from each of four States, are being exhibited, and it was felt that a supreme effort should be made to send some of New Zealand's sheep, particularly some of the famous Corriedale breed, as this breed is entirely of New Zealand origin, and in addition to its popularity in New Zealand, no breed has done more to advertise abroad the resources of the Dominion as one of the foremost countries in the world for the production of livestock.

Through the close co-operation of the Department of Industries and the Commerce and the originators of the enterprise, Messrs. Abraham and Williams, this has been arranged, and the sheep will soon be released from quarantine. The selection consists of two one-shear stud rams and four ewe hoggets, bred by Mr. H. T. Little, of Hul Hul, Woodgrove, North Canterbury.

Although the sheep are only in half wool, their fleeces are of exceptional quality, and all of them show splendid matton qualities.

The flock from which the sheep were selected was founded twenty-five years ago with sheep from the flock of the late Mr. James Little, the originator of the Corriedale breed.

The Corriedale Breeders' Society has forwarded to Wembley a large supply of pamphlets dealing with the origin and history of the breed, and these will be distributed to farmers and others interested in the sheep.

It is intended to keep the Corriedales on exhibition until September, when they will be sold at public auction.

When making ice cream be sure to use not only the most economical, but the purest flavoring, Shirritz's Vanilla-ol which you can now get by phoning Shirritz's agent, GERALD S. DOYLE, Phone 811—July 20, 1925.

Dodge Brothers
Set New Record

Deliveries and Production Exceeded Best Previous Week in History

Although Dodge Brothers Cars are now being built at the rate of 197 per cent.

Dodge Brothers have been setting new high records continually for several months, as compared with similar periods for previous years. The record of the week ending August 11 is the best in the company's history with retail deliveries aggregating more than 7,000, an average of more than 1,300 each production day, best previous week was surpassed several hundred cars. New retail orders exceeded the corresponding week of 1924 by 1,000, or approximately 1,100 a day, both deliveries and orders are some 200 a day in excess of production.

"Had dealers' stocks permitted, number of deliveries for the week would have been even greater," said John A. Nichol, Vice-President in Charge of Sales. "It is a superb, but a steady, healthful record."

U.S. STEEL ORDERS. NEW YORK, Aug. 10. Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation on July 31, made public to-day, totalled 3,839,467 tons, a decrease of 170,991 tons, compared with the preceding month decrease, which was about 20,000 tons more than Wall Street estimated, and the fifth consecutive one and brought the total of unfilled orders to the lowest level since October, 1924.

BRICKBATS AND BOUQUETS. LONDON, Aug. 10. Within twelve months the mining problem will be an issue in a general election, declared A. J. Cook, General Secretary of the Miners' Federation, in a speech at Durham. The commission to be appointed by the Government to look into mining questions ought to hold an inquest with private ownership as the corpse. Other leaders of the miners, however, devoted the week-end oratory to offering Premier Baldwin bouquets for the manner in which he had conducted the negotiations that prevented the threatened strike.

ST. JOSEPH'S REGATTA MEETING. Crews Entered—Stakes And Buys Drawn.

At last night's meeting of St. Joseph's Regatta Committee, everything was finalized to make the annual event one Wednesday a successful one. In connection with the judges for the buoys, it was decided to depart from the usual custom of the judges going to the foot of the pond in a carriage and they will go in the motor boat which will leave the committee wharf after the boats pass down and follow the boats too and from the buoys. It was felt that this would be a more satisfactory arrangement as with the congestion of traffic on the road it is difficult to get to a position to see the buoys.

LILLIAN HARRISON NARROWLY ESCAPED DROWNING. BOULOGNE, France—Lillian Harrison nearly lost her life, by drowning, in her fourth unsuccessful attempt to swim the English Channel. Only prompt work by Isak Helmy, an Egyptian swimmer, who was in the water pacing her, prevented her from going to the bottom. "Catch me Helmy, I'm going down," Miss Harrison suddenly exclaimed. While apparently swimming strong, she lurched forward, caught the Egyptian by the neck and practically fainted. She was then hauled aboard the accompanying tug and brought back to Boulogne.

Economical Situation in Greece

The economic situation in Greece was profoundly affected during the past two years by the arrangement entered into between the Greek and Turkish governments at the Lausanne Convention in January, 1923, for the mutual interchange of their respective nationals. This condition was brought about as a climax of the unsuccessful war with Turkey and the determination of Turkey as a result of her victory to drive from her territory all people of Greek origin, although these people had resided in Turkey for centuries and were as much indigenous to the soil as any of the other peoples making up the Turkish empire, according to advices received by Bankers Trust Company of New York from its Foreign Information Service.

In the two years which have elapsed since the arrangement at Lausanne, it has been necessary for the Greek Government to find homes for upwards of 1,300,000 refugees from East Thraee and Anatolia. On the other hand, under the terms of the agreement approximately 300,000 Turks have gone from Greece into Turkey. The net increase in the population of Greece brought about by these events has been 18 per cent. The immediate effect of the influx of the refugees on the internal conditions of Greece was very serious, the destitute condition of the greater number of them adding a further burden to the already depleted finances of the country. Imports of food-stuffs and clothing had to be paid for to a great extent out of the national treasury. However, with the aid of the Refugee Settlement Commission and the Refugee Loan which was concluded at the end of 1924 under the auspices of the League of Nations, most of the refugees have been settled on farms and in industries and have been transformed into a productive factor. The commission reports them as having proved to be laborious, intelligent and honest, and their contribution to the prosperity of the country is felt already in the increased industrial activity.

Bankers Trust Co.'s points out that it seems as if the industrial conditions in Greece might be as greatly affected by these refugees from Turkey as industrial conditions in England were affected in the 16th Century by the incoming of the Huguenot refugees from France. One of the most important industries brought to Greece by the Greeks from Turkey is that of carpet weaving and rug making. Besides the rugs and carpets being manufactured in the homes of the people on hand looms, carpet factories which amounted to only seven in 1922 had by the end of 1924 increased to 28. There are now over 2,500 looms in the country employing over 13,000 workers, and the production of the industry is estimated to have an annual value of $3,500,000. Another transplanted industry is the manufacture of attar of roses, which has heretofore been one of the most important industries of Bulgaria. The necessity of providing shelter for the newcomers has brought about a veritable building boom in Greece and the added distribution of materials and supplies has helped the finances of the railways to such an extent that a deficit of 5 1/4 million drachmae in the railways in the fiscal year 1922-23 was turned into a surplus of 38 1/4 million drachmae in the year 1923-24. Another indication of improved conditions in Greece in 1924 was the fact that only 2 per cent. of her shipping tonnage was idle.

The total foreign trade of Greece for 1924 amounted to 11,436 million drachmae, 7,966 million drachmae representing the imports and 3,470 million drachmae representing the exports or an increase of imports of 4,496 million drachmae, as compared with a total trade in 1923 of 8,530 million drachmae, of which amount 6,035 million drachmae represented the value of the imports and 2,495 million drachmae the value of the exports with an excess of imports of 3,490 million drachmae. A striking feature is the increase of trade with the United States. According to United States statistics the exports of Greece to the United States during 1924 amounted to $32,553,000 or almost three times the 1923 exports which were valued at $11,720,000. On the other hand Greek imports from America during 1924 were $18,722,000 as compared with $11,900,000 during 1923. In the first quarter of 1925 exports from Greece to the United States were valued at $5,710,000 again more than double the 1924 figure of $2,045,000, while the imports were valued at $7,260,000 or more than three times the imports of $2,086,000 for 1924.

Turning to the government finances Bankers Trust Company notes some improvement in the budget which shows a deficit for the year 1924-25 of 990,590,608 drachmae as compared with a deficit of 2,900,000,000 drachmae in 1923-24 and 3,200,000 drachmae for 1922-23. The ordinary revenue amounted to 4,180,536,948 drachmae and ordinary expenditure to 3,727,626,691 drachmae, leaving a surplus of 452,910,257 drachmae, while the extraordinary revenue amounted to 599,938,750 and 2,043,439,615 respectively, or a deficit of 1,443,500,865 which shows that the deficit is entirely due to extraordinary expenditures.

To further improve the financial situation, the government which has just been overturned, recently drafted a bill imposing additional taxes. It is difficult to determine now whether the new government will carry on this plan or perhaps devise even a better one.

The national debt of Greece as of March 31, 1924, amounted to 9,287,680,181 drachmae as compared with 8,413,975,843 drachmae for 1923. The only important modification from April to December 31, 1924, was brought about by the conclusion of the Refugee Loan which increases the national debt by $12,300,000 of which, however, $1,000,000 had been advanced already and taken into consideration in the figure for March, so that the net increase is $11,300,000 equivalent at par of exchange to 284,986,000 drachmae, thus making the total debt as of December 31, 1924, 9,572,665,181 drachmae.

The note issues which in 1913 amounted to 234,476,000 drachmae increased to 5,292,064,280 at the end of 1924 with a corresponding depreciation in value as shown by the rates of exchange which from a par value of 19.3 cents in 1913 fell to an average of $0.01709 in 1923. During 1924 the government took every possible step to maintain the exchange at a workable level, resorting to artificial measures by means of government purchase or sales of sterling and dollars. The measures adopted proved to a certain extent successful and the exchange rose to $0.0182 at the end of 1924 with a temporary stabilization of the drachma, which, however, has again depreciated this year and is now, at the end of June, quoted at $0.0173.

New Church at Pouch Cove Completed

Through the energy of the pastor and people of Pouch Cove a new and handsome Catholic Church has recently been completed there. The walls and ceiling are pure white, floors, doors and pillars are of hardwood. The altar is adorned with statues of Our Lord, The Blessed Virgin and St. Anthony of Padua. Before the altar hangs a silver lamp. The stations of the Cross, are especially fine being medallions in stone.

Smugglers Convicted

Yesterday the Deputy Minister of Customs, Mr. H. W. LeMessurier was notified from Curlew that Samuel Sable and J. R. Beaver, were before the Court, charged with smuggling and were each fined sixty dollars ($60.00), the goods being confiscated.

Harmony to Pick Up Shipwrecked Crew

The Moravian Mission ship Harmony, which recently reached the Labrador Coast, from London, has now gone north to Port Burwell to pick up the crew of the Hudson Bay Company's steamer Bayeskimo, who were landed there after she was lost not long ago, in Unsuva Bay. The Harmony will bring the shipwrecked men to this port en route to their homes as it will be too long for them to wait for the Nascope, which will be engaged the next few months visiting the Hudson Bay Company's various posts in the north. The Harmony is expected about the end of this month. The crew of the Bayeskimo were rescued from the barren coast by the Nascope and landed at Port Burwell.

Congregational Sunday School Picnic will be held at Smithville on to-morrow, Wednesday. Scholars leave the school at 12 noon. A Meat Tea will be provided for friends at a charge of one dollar.—aug11

A Hint for Bodily Comfort

Care in the washing of under garments adds considerably to one's bodily comfort during the day. For washing such garments, Sunlight Soap offers many highly important advantages. "Sunlight" preserves the soft texture of woollens, preventing them from becoming hard and irritating to the skin. It is the most thorough of cleaners, and it imparts a delightfully fresh and pleasing perfume to the clothes.

You will obtain the maximum degree of comfort and save your clothes at one and the same time by using Sunlight Soap. aug11,3,14

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

August 10th.—The weather changed again for the better, but to suffer a great rheum of my head from the many changes we have had this past week, and an little incline for work. Coming over the Topsall Road this morning, do find it in parts better than ever before, but a great annoyance are the mounds of shale that are strewn over the parts now under repair, being that my motor coach suffers much shaking in going over them. Comes Porey this day and shows me a circular offering French premium bonds, which he thinks, are a good investment, being one issue in particular which costs but 49 the pound and do not s'one pay interest at 5 1/2 per cent, but do also give 6 chances a year for winning £12,000. This do attract me mightily albeit do think it will be a hard thing for me to raise the price of a bond. Telling this to Porey, he do find the reason at his first attempt when he quotes "The clothes that make the women are the clothes that break the men." My rheum troubling me greatly all day, I to the country by motor coach and there to baid with a hot water bottle.

REPLY TO "OLD TIMER."
 Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir,—In Saturday's columns of the Telegram I noticed a note from "Old Timer" which stated that the race course at Quidi Vidi was covered in the remarkable time of 8 minutes and 48 seconds, an impossible feat to accomplish in a four-oared race gig. The Terra Nova having been the gig which performed it, as stated by "Old Timer," who wants to know whether it was in '76 or '77. I answer in neither. The race was Linnet, Terra Nova and Gasher rowed for the last time in 1875. The Linnet beat the other two gigs; her time was that year 13 minutes and 25 seconds. The quickest time was made by the St. John's Joiners in the All-Comers' Race in the Mary—Monroe's Mary, namely 11 minutes and 35 seconds. In '76 the quickest time was made by a crew from Outer Cove in the Fishermen's Race in the Mary, time 10 minutes and 40 seconds. In '77 a crew of Placentia fishermen in the Placentia, in the Fishermen's Race, made the quickest time, namely 10 minutes and 28 seconds. It could not be done, the time written of by "Old Timer." With thanks, I remain,
 Yours, etc.,

To-Morrow's Big Dance

"GAIETY" HALL.
 To-morrow night the BIG DANCE in aid of the debt on the C. C. C. Hall takes place, and no doubt the usual large crowd will be present. The Dance on Wednesday last (Pagan's Night), for the same object, proved a wonderful success, over 800 people attending, and it was one of the most enjoyable dances for years. It is therefore expected a larger number will be present on to-morrow night. The Dance will be under the same management, and the Prince's full splendid Orchestra will again render the music. Therefore, if you are anxious to enjoy a really good dance be present on to-morrow night at the "Gaiety" Hall. The prices will be the same: Gentlemen, $1.00; ladies, 75c. Dancing at 9 p.m. sharp.—aug11

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 11.
 Four persons are reported killed and about 100 injured in the village of Borculo, Eastern Holland, near the German border when it was struck by a typhoon which lasted several minutes, last night. The village is a mass of ruins. Both churches were demolished and not a single house escaped damage. Other villages were damaged and many injured.

THE NEW BRUNSWICK ELECTION.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 11.
 The downfall of the Veniot Government was accomplished yesterday by the electors of New Brunswick. This morning finds 36 of the 48 seats in Legislative Assembly in the hands of the Opposition party led by Hon. J. B. Baxter. The present administration will resign and the Government headed by Dr. Baxter, who resigned his seat in the House of Commons to return to New Brunswick, will take office. When the House was dissolved three weeks ago the Government had 29 seats, Opposition 12, and farmers 7. The Farmers as a result of yesterday's voting passed out of the political picture. Premier Veniot won by a large majority in his home constituency, but all the rest of the cabinet with the exception of Hon. A. A. Dyrant, Minister of Lands and Mines, Hon. J. E. Hichaud, Minister without portfolio were defeated. Ninety-eight candidates contested 48 seats.

Successful Salesman

From recent insurance publications to hand we note that during July, Mr. F. R. Clark, of the Sun Life Assurance Co. ranks among the big writers of Insurance for that month with his Company. In competition with the Provincies of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, he ranks 5th in number of applications; 7th in volume of business written and 8th in total of business paid for. Mr. Clark is also a specialist in Group Insurance and has already closed several important Group contracts in Newfoundland and is to be congratulated upon his success.

 Two men convicted of the larceny of fish and vegetables, the property of J. R. Chalke, within the past week, were each sentenced to thirty days imprisonment without the option of a fine. A woman also figured in the same robbery, but the charge laid against her could not be sustained. A few civil cases were disposed of.

Newsboy Falls Into Harbour

A newsboy named Tuff fell over Messrs. James Baird's wharf yesterday afternoon into the waters of the harbour, and narrowly escaped drowning. His predicament was first noticed by a man on board a schooner lying alongside, and with the assistance of Mr. Walsh of Baird's fish store, they managed to reach him in time. The boy was going down for a third time when Mr. Walsh grasped him by the neck and brought him safely to terra firma. The lad though badly frightened fell some the worse for his sudden immersion, and proceeded quickly to his home for a change of clothing.

New Road Rollers

Two four ton road rollers for the Road Commission arrived by S.S. Muneastern, and were yesterday evening moved out to the Topsall Road. Magic of the Love Cure

SALVING WORLD'S WORST CRIMINALS.

A man who, with other Salvationists, claims to have reformed some of the world's worst criminals by the "influence of love," related some of his experiences recently at the Regent Hall, Oxford-street, where scenes depicting Salvation Army work in India were given.

He is Commissioner A. R. Blowers, lately in charge of the Salvation Army's work in Southern India. He has taken a prominent part in the reformation of certain criminal tribes of India, who lived by plundering and marauding their neighbours.

Chained and manacled prisoners were brought to Commissioner Blowers, each in charge of two policemen. Under the influence of love, as the Commissioner expresses it, they changed from sinners to comparative saints.

Settlements were founded in several parts of India, and now some 5,000 of these hereditary criminals are earning an honest living under the care of the Army.

On seeing the transformation an inspecting Government official observed "You must have mesmerized them."

Clever Strategists.

"There was nothing these tribesmen would stop at in order to rob their neighbours," said Commissioner Blowers.

"Human life was held as of no account. They were the cleverest people in the world for baffling the police. While the people of a whole district were out looking for tribesmen whom they suspected of certain crimes these same tribesmen raided the police camp, cut off the tails of the horses, and stole a number of rifles."

The Women Worse.

The women are worse than the men, and more difficult to reform. They are very able strategists, and hatch all the plots and arrange all the plans for raids and robberies, leaving the men folk to carry them out.

Those women who are unreformed value a man according to his prison record, and would not think of marrying a man who had only been once or twice in prison.

When he was helping to lay the foundations of Salvation Army work in India, Commissioner Blowers learned the native languages, wore the dress of the people in order to appeal to them from an Oriental point of view, and begged his bread from door to door.

Ten Men on Murder Charge

POLICE GUARD AT GANG FEUD TRIAL.

The dock at the Leeds Assizes was not large enough to hold the ten men who were charged recently with the murder of William Francis Plommer, 33, during a gang disturbance in Sheffield.

Six of the men sat unhandcuffed in the dock, with a warder at each end of the row and two warders behind. These six were stated by the prosecution to have been present at the murder.

In front of the dock, with a warder at each end, sat the four men not alleged to have been present when the crime was committed but charged with murder as accessories.

All pleaded not guilty. Counsel for the prosecution said that Plommer died as the result of two "jabs" in the stomach, either of which would have proved fatal. The weapons used included at least one poker, several razors and a bayonet.

It is claimed, counsel said, that the attack on Plommer was to avenge a wrong which the gang thought had been inflicted upon a man named Wilfred Fowler the night previously, but he contended that the evidence would prove that Plommer had nothing to do with Fowler's injuries.

Special precautions were taken to prevent any disturbance by friends of the accused. All the doors of the Town Hall were guarded by police, who interrogated people seeking admission. The interior of the court was crowded long before Mr. Justice Finlay took his seat.

During the hearing the prisoners frequently smiled at acquaintances in the women's gallery.

There was difficulty several times over identification. Witnesses seemed afraid to point out individual prisoners. One girl hesitated for some time and then said "May I point?"

Samuel Garvin, the prisoner concerned, smilingly came to the girl's aid by rising to his feet.

Virol Limited

RECORD OF 21 YEARS' PROGRESS.

Mr. Bertram S. Straus, J.P. (Chairman), speaking at the Twenty-fifth Annual General Meeting of Virol, Limited, said: As you will have seen in the notice convening the meeting we are to-day celebrating our silver jubilee. The history of the Company during that period has been one of uninterrupted progress, and it is now my pleasant task further to congratulate the shareholders on the record results, both as regards sales and profits during the period under review.

The 25 years since the formation of the Company have witnessed a remarkable extension of our knowledge of food values and the problems of nutrition. As a result of exhaustive investigations scientists are now able to define those factors in diet that are essential for growth, development, and resistance to disease. All previous food values based on "chemical analysis alone are challenged by these now definitely established standards. It is satisfactory therefore to know that the physiological value of Virol—the vitamins content of which has already been established by the investigations of the bio-chemical laboratories of the University of Cambridge—has recently been further confirmed by the results of an important inquiry at the Charing Cross Hospital Institute of Pathology. The ever-increasing use of Virol in hospitals and in public health work, where its results are under continuous medical observation, affords still more striking evidence of its intrinsic merit. The preparations of the Company are now regularly used in between 3,000 to 4,000 of these institutions.

As mentioned in the report, the sales of Virolax, our nutrient laxative preparation, show a satisfactory increase during the year. The blending of Virol with medicinal paraffin in the form of Virolax provides an ideal method of combating those conditions of irregularity which are the cause of so much ill-health. Virolax renders unnecessary the constant resort to aperients, often harmful in themselves and which tend to aggravate the trouble they claim to remedy. It is satisfactory to find that, notwithstanding the continued adverse conditions prevailing in the export trade, the overseas business of the Company has shown steady expansions during the period under review.

Doubtless you will agree that the most important part of the past year's work has been the completion of the arrangements for the development of the Company's new food beverage Virol and Milk in powder form. The Devonshire milk meets a long-felt want by presenting the great nutritive properties of Virol in a form that is particularly acceptable and convenient for adults.

In view of the possibilities indicated by its successful introduction to which I referred at the last meeting, the directors deemed it desirable to make special provision for the extension of the business on a much wider scale without approaching the financial reserves of the Company; they decided also to avail themselves of the opportunity afforded of acquiring a substantial interest in Ambrosia, Limited, by whose special process the preparation is manufactured.

The directors recommended the payment of a dividend of 22½ per cent. on the Ordinary Shares—a distribution that brings the average dividend paid since the formation of the Company to something under 8 per cent.—the placing of £15,000 to reserve, bringing that fund up to £130,000, and the carrying forward subject to corporation profits tax of the balance, £22,581 9s. 6d.

Satisfactory as the progress has been during the quarter of a century, I think you will agree that the general position is greatly strengthened by these new developments. The Company now possesses three standard preparations of recognized merit, and our strong financial position, due to the conservative policy pursued in the past, will enable us fully to develop their great possibilities.

In conclusion, I must again pay a well-earned tribute to the services rendered by our able and energetic staff at home and abroad, and offer to one and all our sincere thanks for their loyal co-operation, which has contributed so materially to the record results of the year.

Doctor Gye's Critics

QUESTIONS ON HIS CANCER DISCOVERY—DETERMINING FACTOR.

Questions are being put to Dr. William Ewars Gye, by eminent research workers, on the answers to which they think absolute proof of his cancer discovery will depend.

The chief doubt relates to whether, in the chloroform extract—which is one of the factors in the production of cancer in Dr. Gye's experiments—the virus was certainly destroyed by the chloroform.

Both Dr. Archibald Leitch, director of the Research Institute of the Cancer Hospital, Rulham Road, and Dr. F. W. Twort, of the Brown Institution, University of London, raise this question.

To make the critic's intelligible it may be explained that Dr. Gye cultured a virus from cancer tumours in rats and mice and inoculated fowls without producing any disease. He also made an extract from a fowl cancer and treated it with chloroform in order to kill the virus. Inoculation with this also produced no disease. But when the two were combined a cancer growth ensued.

The conclusion therefore is that both a chemical substance from a tumour and a living virus are necessary for cancer growth.

Is the Virus Killed?

The question now raised is: Was Dr. Gye quite sure that the chloroform killed the virus in the extract, for otherwise it alone may have been the cause of the cancer.

Dr. Twort writes: I feel sure that Dr. Gye and Mr. Bernard will appreciate the desire of some workers to be given a little more information on several crucial points, a satisfactory answer to which would go a long way towards convincing those whose critical analysis of the results leaves them in some little doubt.

In view of the fact that ultra-microscopic viruses will tolerate pure alcohol to a certain extent either, Dr. Gye convinced that his chloroform-treated filtrate is quite free from the virus or contagion? Might not a small amount of specific contagion be left?

Have cultures of non-cancerous tissue been tested side by side with cultures of cancerous tissue when the same treated filtrate was added.

The point of this question is that cancer could be produced by non-cancerous tissue plus the chloroform filtrate alone. Instead of being freed from the virus by the chloroform, it would still contain the virus.

The Proof. Dr. Leitch, in a laudatory article on Dr. Gye's "wonderful work," raises the question.

sams point. He says that everything practically hangs on whether the method of destroying the virus in the filtrate was effective.

If, says Dr. Leitch, the destruction of the infective agent is not always assured, the thesis of the presence of two factors is considerably weakened; there would be no convincing proof of the actuality of an accessory chemical factor. He adds: "This is so evident that I cannot imagine it would be overlooked by Dr. Gye, though the point is not considered in his paper."

Novel Potato Digger

Clean digging of potatoes is said to be accomplished by a new implement invented in England, through special link-motion tines that reproduce as nearly as possible the action of the hand fork. The tines rotate at a speed consistent with the natural pace of the horses drawing the implement and the size and depth of the potato ridge. A changeable gear adapts the machine to these varying conditions.

A rear wheel controls the depth of the share action. It is claimed that the chain drive accommodates itself to the frame of the machine better than a spur or bevel gear arrangement would. The implement may be drawn by a tractor.

ILL TWO YEARS.

MECHANICVILLE, July 31.—Through the death of Dr. Edward A. Wood, which occurred at his home on South Main street last evening, Mechanicville, and the vicinity has lost one of its progressive professional men who was most active in the dental surgical field.

Dr. Wood had been in failing health for the past couple of years, but despite this has attempted to attend to his large practice which he enjoyed for the past twenty-five years since first coming to this city and opening a dental parlor.

Dr. Wood was born in Newfoundland, December 8, 1867, where his father was superintendent of schools for a number of years. Dr. Wood was graduated from the Buffalo university with the D.D.S. degree. Coming to this city twenty-five years ago he has during his residence here made a wide circle of friends both socially and professionally, and had the distinction of being classed as one of the best dental surgeons in the vicinity.

The survivors are his wife, Mrs. Emmaline, and five brothers, Heber of Rotterdam Junction; James of Florida; Albert of Canton, N.C.; Charles of New York city, and Fred of this city; Dr. Wood was affiliated with Gardfield Lodge, K. of P., and with the Crescent Temple Pythian Sisters.

The funeral of Dr. E. A. Wood was held yesterday afternoon at his late residence in 164 South Main street. It was one of the most largely attended funerals in this city, which made very evident the extent of his popularity. Rev. W. R. Hammsley of Albany officiated and the ritualistic services of the K. of P. were also conducted. The floral tributes were many and very beautiful. The following acted as bearers:—Oliver Carlton, Geo. Cone, Raymond Cone, William Butler, Raymond Butler and Archie Williams. Burial was in the Oakland Cemetery, Troy.—The Saratogian, July 31.

It's Up to You!

WHAT YOU DON'T USE, YOU LOSE; SO IF YOU HAVE ANY NATURAL GIFT, EXERCISE IT.

Sailors and gamekeepers have the keenest sight. Their calling compels them to exercise their eyes. The best singers in the world are those who spend many hours in exercising their voices. The best conjurers are those who regularly and persistently exercise their fingers.

The list might be extended until it wearied, but the moral would remain the same. Practice makes perfect, and exercise is needed to maintain perfection. Otherwise there is rusting, deterioration, loss of efficiency.

Thousands would be better mentally, morally, and physically if they made "Exercise" their watchword. A conscientious oculist, instead of prescribing expensive glasses for a man who consulted him, told him that all that he required to make his sight as good as it had ever been was exercise.

The Only Alternative.
"Get on a hill and make your eyes pick out something half a mile distant. When you hear a bird singing in a tree, make your eyes find the songster."

Exercise your brain and the power of thought increases. Minimum thinking may bring you three pounds a week; maximum thinking may bring ten times as much. It's done by exercise.

Conscience is the seat of morality. Exercise your conscience instead of letting it lie quiescent, and you will be better morally. Your judgment of right and wrong will be sure and quick.

An aptitude, if exercised, may grow into a gift, and the gift, if exercised, may bring you fame and much reward. You may possess "apologies" for legs, sticks for arms, and no chest. Exercise would move the muscles, and you would be a man.

The contrary to exercise is atrophy. Exercise!

HOW MANY HAVE YOU DONE?
We got to talking the other day of the things we were perfectly sure when we were children we were going to do (or not do) when we grew up.

here is a list compiled from the going-to-dos of the different members of the group. Maybe you will find some of yours among them. Maybe you will have some to add.

A List of Going-To-Dos.
—"Always to adopt any stray cat or dog that came around."
"To have at least a hundred dollars worth of fireworks" on the Fourth of July.

"Never to go to bed before twelve o'clock (isn't it fortunate the God of things as they are doesn't hold us to those childhood resolutions of ours?)
"To read all Horatio Alger's books through from cover to cover (the same having been denied the resolver by flint hearted parents.)

"Never to go near a dentist's again."
Never to take any nasty tasting medicine.

"To keep all Tabby's kittens instead of drowning three quarters of her family every time she bravely tried to combat race suicide in the feline race."
"To go into a store and have an ice cream soda and then another one right on top of it. (Ice cream sodas are half the size they used to be, to get through one of those tall pump glasses would stagger most of us now. I suspect. To say nothing of two.)

Not A Feminine Going-To-Do.

Little Jack Rabbit
by David Cory

"Very warm day," exclaimed Uncle Lucky Lethindfoot, the nice old gentleman bunny, who was making a call on Granddaddy Bullfrog, as I mentioned in the last story. "But you look nice and cool, resting on your wooden stool."

"Keep my skin wet; that's the reason," answered the old frog. "Every now and then I take a dive into the water. We frogs don't believe in getting overheated."

"Neither do I," sighed the nice old gentleman rabbit. "But I never learned how to swim when a boy, and now it's too late. Yes, Granddaddy Bullfrog, it's too late to-day for me to take swimming lessons for to-morrow, and funny Uncle Lucky began to smile, when, all of a sudden, just like that, that right off of his head went his stovepipe hat. You see, the old gentleman rabbit had forgotten on leaving home to tie over his top and under his chin his blue silk polka-dot handkerchief.

Away rolled that precious old wedding stovepipe hat, for Billy Breeze had suddenly sprung up from somewhere, and the next moment Mrs. Redwing flew out of the burrows.

"Please pick up your hat before it crushes my new speckled egg," she twittered. "It's almost toppling onto my nest."

"As soon as I possibly can, my dear madam," promised nice Uncle Lucky, hopping after his beloved hat. But, oh dear me! Just then Billy Breeze gave another puff, and away rolled the stovepipe hat, but in the opposite direction, luckily for anxious little Mrs. Redwing.

"Dearest me! Will it ever stop?" gasped poor Uncle Lucky as he hopped after his wind-blown stovepipe hat. Down the hill it rolled, over the bushes and burrows, until, with a bump caught on Mrs. Cow's horn, so starting this gentle lady that she tossed up her head, throwing the precious old hat in a trestle.

"Goodness gracious meebus!" exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit, looking up into the branches, "here's a peck of troubles and a bushel of worries. Dear, oh dear three times over."
"If I had known it was your hat," apologized Mrs. Cow, "I never would have tossed my head—that is, of course, had I known it in time. But it all came so suddenly I was startled out of my wits."
"It's not your fault," answered polite Uncle Lucky. "Dear me, I'd give a thousand Lething Lead Dollar Bills for a pair of wings. Yes, I would."

Famous Fasting Feats

How long can a man fast? A Scarborough councillor deprived himself of food for over three weeks and declared afterwards that he felt much better.

Some years ago, forty days was the longest authenticated fast; but Sacco, the professional faster, outdid this achievement when at Manchester he went without food for fifty-six days.

Dr. Tanner carried out periodical fasts for medical reasons, and one lasted forty days—a wonderful record when it is remembered that the fast was self-imposed. Dr. Tanner's faith seemed to be well founded, for he lived till he was over a hundred years of age.

Thirty Days Without Water.
Among followers of this cult was Mr. Upton Sinclair, the novelist, who underwent a fast of from ten to twelve days, going about his ordinary business all the while. Mr. Leonard Theas, of Philadelphia, when told he was dying of dropsy, underwent a fifty days' fast, which he believed was responsible for curing him.

From time to time hunger-strikers have set up fasting records. The late Alderman MacSwiney took no food for seventy-four days, another prisoner succumbed after a sixty-seven days' fast, while French prison records show that a criminal at Toulouse fasted for sixty-seven days.

Most of these feats were made possible because the fasters took liquids to sustain them, but a Polish woman, Dr. M. Lipinska, recently completed a fast of forty days, the first thirty of which were without water.

A Market Harborough girl, by using morphia, was able to abstain from food for over three years; while Christina Marshall, who died in 1832 at the age of fourteen, went over fifteen months with nothing but water, beef-tea, sweets, and now and again a little piece of orange.

MORNING SESSION.

MR. HUNT—Do you take the same position of MacDonald and Greenwood being the Trust as to those payments to them for management expenses.

MR. EMERSON—That was a personal agreement. That is quite distinct, and it was made quite clear. So far as we know, or so far as we cared for that matter, it is quite immaterial in whose name the Little Bay Option was; we were asked to perform this work for the Reid Company on a commission basis of ten per cent. Now, subsequently the scheme was altered and the Little Bay Coppers, Ltd., or some similar Company, was formed, and they agreed to give us ten per cent. of what they receive from that.

MR. HOWLEY—But the Reid Newfoundland Company did not.

MR. EMERSON—Well, let us see the actual position there. If your Lordship will look at the correspondence on that point, which is contained in the Pleadings, Page 55, there is a letter written by Mr. Forbes, who is a Director of the Reid Company, on Reid Company paper, the Natural Resources Department, in which he says:—“You will remember that on the 31st of January a scheme was drawn up covering Newfoundland Coppers, Ltd., and Little Bay, comprising an issued capital of $1,500,000, of which we were to receive $500,000. At that time the question of commission to the Trust was discussed and the principle was laid down that the Trust would obtain ten per cent. of the amount received by us. Under the present modified scheme Little Bay holders will receive $166,666 in shares, the British Metals Corporation will receive $141,666 in shares, and my associates will receive $141,666 in shares. The British Metals Corporation and ourselves subscribed for the purchase of $25,000 each in shares. Under these conditions the commission of the Trust will be $141,666 in shares. Please confirm our understanding in this regard.”

And then we write back: “We beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the tenth instant, referring to the commission to be paid the Trust on this transaction. At a meeting of the Board of the Trust on the 11th of the month, we have decided to pay a commission of ten per cent. on the amount received by H. D. Reid, yourself and partners, for the sale of your interests in copper properties in green Bay, was confirmed. I am therefore instructed to say that the amount of $141,666 worth of shares in the new company for the purchase of Little Bay Copper property, is the correct amount of commission due to us on this transaction. We will be glad to hear what your views are with regard to the handing of the further forty thousand odd acres of copper lands, and it seems to us we could continue our negotiations with the British Metals Corporation and prepare the way for active operations in the very near future, if we could be advised as to your idea of the policy to be pursued. We shall be glad to hear your views in this connection.”

Now, my Lord, there is nothing in that which negates the idea that the Reid Company is interested. They are not mentioned by name, it is true, but in Forbes' letter he says that “ten per cent. of the amount received by us” under the present modified scheme is payable to Trust. The British Metals Corporation and ourselves.” Who is “ourselves”? The Reid Company.

MR. HOWLEY—Well now, how do you make that out?

MR. EMERSON—I do not see who else it can be.

MR. HOWLEY—There is no reference to the Reid Company there.

MR. EMERSON—The word is “us.” It might very easily be that the associates would be the Reid Company.

MR. HOWLEY—Does not your own letter show that you know who “ourselves” is?

MR. EMERSON—H. D. Reid, yourself and partners. Who are the partners? We do not know; probably the Reid Company. At any rate, so far as we are concerned, it is the Reid Company, and then the reference there to the British Metals Corporation, I submit, clinches the matter. The only transaction of which there is any evidence in connection with the British Metals Corporation is this one over Little Bay, and Mr. Conroy in his letter of the 15th November said that in bringing them into touch with the British Metals Corporation were have performed a valuable service.

The fact that the Reid Newfoundland Company has not got any shares in this matter is quite immaterial to us. Let them go out in the market and buy them and deliver us our shares. They entrusted us with the work and they must pay the bill. Even this letter here of ours to Mr. Forbes makes no reference to Mr. R. G. Reid. The whole thing was nebulous so far as we were concerned; we were acting for the Reids on the basis of the Exploration Company, and this would have been formed had the Reids kept faith with the British Metals Corporation.

MR. HUNT—Under what Minute did you find the £150,000?

MR. EMERSON—The scheme did not go ahead. As soon as the British Metals Corporation came out here they immediately started in to deal with property which had not been discussed in London but was brought up by Mr. Forbes with them in such a way that they ultimately withdrew from the matter. I am rather glad my learned friend pointed that out. “The Trust will be required to find £150,000 by the end of September, 1920, to provide for taking up the options on Little Bay and Tilt Cove.” For whom? The Reid Brothers or the Reid Newfoundland Company?

MR. HUNT—The Reid brothers.

MR. EMERSON—Why do they make an agreement with us to find £150,000? It is quite clear that the interests of the Reid Brothers and the Reid Newfoundland Company in this property are the same. What their exact relationships are, we do not know.

Now, my Lord, this scheme which was then in the minds of the parties would, as I say, have resulted in a very large development under the Exploration Company. It is one of these cases again where it was not recognized that the duty of the principal to the agent existed at all, and, as Major MacDonald shows in his evidence, when the British Metals Corporation, with the support it had from the Government, the British Government, came out here to deal with the Little Bay Mines, they found that some other scheme had been arranged and that they wanted to change the plans which had already been formulated, with the result that the whole thing was thrown up, and a very large development by a corporation of such good standing was undoubtedly nipped in the bud.

I think I shall finish after lunch, my Lord, in about half an hour.

KENT, J.—Are you going to settle the question of the admissibility of Mr. Cowley's evidence?

MR. HOWLEY—I was going to ask your Lordship to hear me for a minute or two on the case to which Mr. Emerson referred yesterday, when Mr. Emerson is finished.

Recess was then taken until 2.30.

with us. Now, on the 15th November, 1921, Mr. Conroy writes the letter in which he tells us that he is going to pay us a commission that is to be settled by arbitration, if the money was raised through the Armstrongs; and in assenting to that letter, we presumed that the Reid Company would try to raise the money through the Armstrongs, or to put the matter accurately, to get the assistance of the Armstrongs in raising the money if the Armstrongs got the contract; which meant, of course, the contract to supply the additions and extensions which it was intended that the $1,000,000 issue should be used for.

There is no evidence that there was any effort made by the Reid Company after writing that letter to carry on the negotiations with the Armstrongs where we left off. There is no evidence that they tried to get the Armstrongs' assistance to raise this money by the issue of these bonds or of any arrangement with the Armstrongs that they were to get the contract for supplying these additions and extensions; and we have to accept it therefore, that when that letter was written, the Reids abandoned any effort to raise the money through the Armstrongs or with their assistance. Therefore the agreement in that letter has been broken by the Reids; and we ask your Lordship to assess the services which we have performed as if the matter had been brought to a conclusion.

In that connection evidence has been given in correspondence between Jackson and Conroy which has been produced here. It is not in the volume, but your Lordship will remember that there was a correspondence between these gentlemen in which it was shown that enquiries had been made in the city of London as to what should be paid in these cases, and it varied from one to four per cent.; and I think your Lordship will come to the conclusion, although the correspondence on the matter is not clear, that Jackson himself was rather inclined towards the four per cent. I think he says in one of his letters that the person who refers to the four per cent. is the most reliable of those he made enquiries from.

I therefore ask your Lordship to give us a judgment on the matter of the quantum for a substantial sum, anywhere from one to four or five per cent.

Now, for the question of the quantum, my learned friend has argued—I am speaking now of the quantum generally, if your Lordship finds yourself compelled to deal with us on the basis of a quantum meruit; my learned friend has argued that the payments of the sums of £250 and £400 a month, and the £175 a quarter, is the payment of the quantum. I submit that that is not the position. I think I can give your Lordship a very exact analogy in the cases which have been quoted both by my learned friend and myself, dealing with the Gander-House Agents case. Your Lordship will have noted that the House Agents charged a fee varying from five pounds to twenty pounds for what they call their trouble in case the sale does not come off; but if the sale comes off, he gets his commission. Now, the cases that we had under consideration in connection with the Gander were cases where, through the fault of the principal, the sale did not come off

AFTERNOON SESSION.

MR. EMERSON—My Lord, the last item, or practically the last item in connection with which there is a particular claim is the St. John's Light and Power Company.

There can be no question but that we were employed by the Reid Company to work in connection with the flotation of the St. John's Light and Power Company's bonds for $1,000,000 and I think it is also common ground that there was no fixed agreement in regard to the remuneration. When it arose, it arose under the relationship of agents which had been created by the oral agreement, and as a result of the contract of the parties; but it was very early realized that 10 per cent. on such transaction was higher than should be paid. Services of this kind are not in the same category as services where we sell an undeveloped asset, or float an enterprise for its development. This was a flotation of a series of bonds of a going concern, earning profits; and early the idea of a ten per cent. commission had been created by the oral agreement, but no agreement was reached as to the payment of commission or payment, to put it more accurately, of remuneration. Some discussions took place as to whether we should be treated in the same manner as though we were an issuing house of bonds and get one or two per cent. It is quite clear at any rate that up to the time that the November letter was written there was no agreement as to the remuneration to be paid for the issue of these bonds.

Consequently, our claim, apart from the letter of November 15th, is a claim for quantum meruit for services rendered. There is no doubt at all that we did perform the services. The file of correspondence that is put in evidence is ample testimony to that fact.

Then there is no doubt that on June 8th, 1921 this matter was taken out of our hands by the Reids. Apparently they also intimated to Armstrong that they must not negotiate further with us. Now, on the 15th November, 1921, Mr. Conroy writes the letter in which he tells us that he is going to pay us a commission that is to be settled by arbitration, if the money was raised through the Armstrongs; and in assenting to that letter, we presumed that the Reid Company would try to raise the money through the Armstrongs, or to put the matter accurately, to get the assistance of the Armstrongs in raising the money if the Armstrongs got the contract; which meant, of course, the contract to supply the additions and extensions which it was intended that the $1,000,000 issue should be used for.

There is no evidence that there was any effort made by the Reid Company after writing that letter to carry on the negotiations with the Armstrongs where we left off. There is no evidence that they tried to get the Armstrongs' assistance to raise this money by the issue of these bonds or of any arrangement with the Armstrongs that they were to get the contract for supplying these additions and extensions; and we have to accept it therefore, that when that letter was written, the Reids abandoned any effort to raise the money through the Armstrongs or with their assistance. ter has been broken by the Reids; and we ask your Lordship to assess the services which we have performed as if the matter had been brought to a conclusion.

Your Lordship will have noted that the House Agents charged a fee varying from five pounds to twenty pounds for what they call their trouble in case the sale does not come off; but if the sale comes off, he gets his commission. Now, the cases that we had under consideration in connection with the Gander were cases where, through the fault of the principal, the sale did not come off and it was held that the payment of this retaining fee, as it were—this payment for their trouble, his fees it is called in some cases for putting it on his books, was not considered as a payment of the quantum; and these agents were held to be entitled, when the breach of the agreement had taken place to a quantum, and the quantum was held to be the amount of the commission.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—He could not get both.

MR. EMERSON—It is hardly clear whether they did or not; but in any event, there is a distinct agreement in those cases. In those cases, the fee for “putting it on the books,” and perhaps interviewing prospective purchasers without result. But there is no evidence here that those payments were intended to cover our services in cases where the sales went off owing to the default of our principals, or that we were handed these amounts that had to be credited to the principals in case of a quantum, because a quantum would only arise where an agreement had taken place. In order to bring these payments within the right of the principals to deduct them from the quantum, one would have to assume that they were held with that object in view, but a quantum would only arise in such cases if there has been a breach of the defendants of the agency agreement, and the court does not lean to that if the agents were paid either a quantum or a commission that contemplates a breach. A contract is presumed to be made in the contemplation of its being performed by the parties.

A quantum arises in two cases: where there is no specific agreement as to services, if I am engaged to perform services, it is implied that I will get reasonable remuneration. As soon as I have performed the services, I am entitled to sue “quantum meruit.” But that is not the position here. We are not suing quantum meruit because there is no specific agreement for remuneration. The only section which would give rise to a judgment for a quantum is the case of the Gander; but if your Lordship found that there was a commission agreement made with the Trust, and the Trust has performed all its services, but owing to the fact of the Vendor's misconduct the sale was abortive we would not be entitled to a commission qua commission, but that we would be entitled to a quantum, then the quantum in fact should be the amount of the commission. I think that if the judgment were strictly for a quantum, in settling the quantum the total amount of the commission should be recognized as being the quantum.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—It would not necessarily follow that the quantum would be the amount of the commission. It may in some cases, and in others it may not.

MR. EMERSON—If the agent has performed all his work—all the work that he was called upon to do, I think it is general for the Court to look upon the commission as being the quantum. That is if we cannot get better evidence of what the service are worth—but it seems to me that when a man says to me, “If you perform certain services, I will pay you a certain amount” that is the best evidence we could have as to the quantum to be paid to the agent. That is, if he has performed the services.

But as I say, it was never contemplated when these payments were made—certainly was not stipulated—that if the agents were paid either a quantum or a commission that the principals should get credit for these payments.

These are payments towards specific objects. The 250 pounds a month is in the nature of a retaining fee, or salary, whatever you like to call it, to MacDonald and Greenwood personally. It is not a payment to the Trust, and the Trust gets no benefit from it except through Greenwood and MacDonald's work. The 175 pounds a quarter is a payment towards the rent of offices and salaries staff. That is, if you could have reference to all. The 400 pounds really an advance on the part of the principals on their personal credit for that work, the personal commission to the defendants' side there is no evidence of these payments were upon as being a part of the Reid when the was made, or by the Reids.

If I might draw your attention to the position of the Reid company, your Lordship might be interested in the fact that I might draw your attention to the fact that the letter from the Reid company, asking for agents, at a fee of $150,000 plus expenses and per which they would pay to the Reid company, if the Armstrongs were to be the agency, would be a contract with the Reid company. While on this point only fair to mention that this $46,000,000 in this expense account more, when we take the period of more than the 2,500 pounds was proposed to pay Armstrongs. In fact, a money over and over a year, that was to Armstrongs, would be

That is the only one which would have reference to the Trust. The 400 pounds a month is really an advance to the three directors on their personal commission from the Reid Company will get paid for that when the settling of personal commission notes arises. I think the chief argument against the defendants' contention is that there is no evidence whatever that these payments were to be looked upon as being a part of the quantum that they were ever so considered by the Reids when the arrangement was made, or by the Trust or its officers.

Now, my Lord, the next matter to which I would call attention is our claim for certain disbursements, and these have been classified under three or four heads, which will make them very simple of being dealt with. The first is for cables, and I ask your Lordship to take into consideration whether we have discharged the onus of proof in regard to the 200 pounds which we claim on this account; and here again, I think I should call attention to my learned friend's suggestion that if there were 800 pounds worth of cables in twenty volumes in the Trust office, they have not been disclosed. That is incorrect. Everything has been disclosed that was at all relevant to the case, and my learned friend, Mr. Howley, was invited by Mr. Hughes, the secretary of the Plaintiff Company, in his evidence to inspect the cable book of the Trust office and those books were there for his inspection if he had any doubt as to whether he had disclosed all the cables. Mr. Hughes says that he had gone through the books with a view to making an estimate. He has not counted each cable, but he has taken generally, and to the best of his knowledge and belief, and without wishing to go to any detailed calculation, the cables that he thought were relevant, and it is his opinion that 200 pounds is a conservative estimate of the amount spent on cables on behalf of the Reid Company business. Now, the agent is not bound to carry on an extensive cable correspondence with his principal, and any disbursement of that kind, I submit, he is entitled to recover; and if you will look at the correspondence which has been included in the volume, I submit, it is clear that most of the cables that passed were due to the fact that we could not get proper instructions or proper data, or reports from the Reid Company, and that at least half the cables would never have passed if we had had this information in our possession.

Then there are two sums of 375 pounds for expenses of Major MacDonald and Mr. Greenwood in coming to Newfoundland. It all comes down to the same question in regard to both these trips. Were the trips responsible in the interests of the Reid Company—the Reid business? Was the expenditure justified in the interests of the Reids? An agent is entitled to make a reasonable disbursement for necessary services on behalf of his principal, and this is particularly so where, as in this case, we were doing nothing else but Reid business at his request and with his knowledge. The first trip was a trip of Major MacDonald to Newfoundland in August 1920. Major MacDonald's trip was spoken of when Mr. H. G. Reid was over in London in June, and when he came out here in July he thought that it would be a great thing for Major MacDonald to come out to Newfoundland and get to know local conditions and study out the situation on the spot; to get to know the Reid business in a general way and to get to know its personnel; and that was the object of his visit. After all, if the visit had the full approval of the vice-president of the Reid Company, it does not lie in the mouth of the Reid Co., to say that it was not in the interests of the Reid Co.

Then Greenwood's trip was a trip out here with Blakstad and H. D. Reid, with H. D. Reid's approval. He knew that Greenwood was coming—he knew that he was coming about the Blakstad agreements, and he apparently thought that it was necessary for him to come, so that in his inception the trip was with the full knowledge and approval of the President of the Reid Co. in the interests of the Reid Company's business. It is not my intention to go over the ground covered by my learned friend, Mr. Howley as to what Greenwood did while he was here. I think I have shown that in so far as there is any evidence of hostility, it all points to the fact that if he was hostile, he was made hostile by the previous hostility of the Reid Company. So that that trip is a trip which would be also paid for.

Now there seems to be some error in connection with the solicitors' bill, and I do not know how it occurred. Frankly, I think it is an error on the part of Mr. Hughes who has included one bill and not another, because I passed upon these accounts myself in London. However, it is quite clear that we cannot claim for the £295 which was chiefly concerned with advising the Trust as to its position under the various commission agreements, when the trouble arose first. The rest of the bills are, I submit, thoroughly applicable to the Reids. An agent is now bound to incur and pay for solicitors' accounts on behalf of his principal. The account for the Gaider for £135 is obviously an expenditure for which the Reid Company is responsible. It might very easily be that owing to complications of this and so forth the solicitors' bill might be more than the agent's commission, so that it is absurd to say that the agent should pay the solicitors' bill.

My learned friends object to a small bill for £25 in connection with the slate quarry, and your Lordship has pointed out that we have no evidence that these services were rendered by Messrs. Parker and Hammond. I am compelled to agree with that. We certainly did have these services performed for the Reids, but if my learned friends insist upon having strict proof, I am afraid that I cannot insist upon the bill.

Now, there is the claim by the Reid Company that they are entitled to have these sums amounting to $46,000.00 paid to the Trust and the Trust Directors credited to the Reid account, as it were, in the settling of the commission or the quantum. The first one that I would draw attention to is the $20,000.00 paid to Thomson for his expenses when he came over to England from British Columbia in March, 1921. Now, it is obvious from the contention put forward by my learned friend that he was sent for as a director of the Reid Newfoundland Co., by its president, to go over to London. However, it is quite immaterial whether he went over there as a director of the Reid Newfoundland Company or not. He was sent for by Reid; he was called for by Reid on several occasions. He cannot be expected to pay that himself. He was out in British Columbia on his own personal work. It was not Trust work. Reid knew he was going there, and Reid personally sent for him. There is no evidence that the Trust required him in London at this time. He was not drawing any director's fees from the Trust, he was not taking an active part in the Reid's management in London. He was a director of the Trust but certainly the Trust was not going to pay $2,000.00 unless they required his presence in London. Mr. H. D. Reid almost demanded his coming to London; and this $2,000.00 was obtained by Mr. Thomson in Montreal to cover his expenses for that trip. Now, I have already dealt with the £250 a month and the £400 a month. Those were both payments to MacDonald and Greenwood personally, and have nothing to do with the Trust. In regard to the £400 a month, the Reids are entitled to credit for that when it comes to settling in the personal commission note. The Trust has no interest in it whatever. The £215 a quarter is the only payment that has been made to the Trust, qua Trust, and that is a payment towards rent and salaries of the Trust. It was not paid as part of the arrangement under which the lease was taken. The agreement was not made upon the terms as the lease was made. There is no evidence of that at all. It was an absolute, unequivocal and unconditional agreement to pay for and indemnify the period £215 a quarter towards the rent and salaries of the Trust now in office; and as I say, there is no inference to its being on the terms of the lease, or for the shorter period which it is now alleged could have been created by terminating the lease and paying the fine.

But even assuming for the purpose of argument that this is the case there has been no notice given of the intention to terminate in connection with their contract to pay this £215; and they kept on making the payment until March, 1924. It is true that we had to sue them, but when we sued them they paid, and they paid right up to March 1924. Might I point out that my learned friend has been rather ingenious in the manner in which he made up this account, is that in the account paid to Russell and Arnolds when we sued under this agreement there is included about £20 costs, and my learned friend wants to take credit for having paid those. I am instructed, my Lord that we did not actually sue, we threatened to sue through our solicitors, and the money was paid and they claim the solicitors costs about £20. MR. HOWLEY—I think my learned friend is in error there, because in going through these accounts, my learned friend will remember that there were two or three small accounts that were specially payments on account of costs that we did not include, and one is Russell and Arnolds. MR. EMERSON—But those were two specific payments in connection with a suit on the £400 agreements. There were proceedings in that case. There was a writ served in the matter. But in this other claim, where the writ was threatened the rent and the solicitors costs were paid through Russell and Arnolds, and you will find the costs there. Now, as I say, the agreement is not conditional upon the lease at all. In fact, Mr. Conroy admits none of the Reids Company had any knowledge of the terms of the lease when the agreement was made. Then it was not referable to the lease; and no notice was given which would terminate it. Even if the agreement was conditional upon the terms of the lease being complied with, and even if we had notice (all of which we deny) it still has to be borne in mind that the Reid Company paid beyond the period of termination of the lease under the notice, because the right to terminate the lease expired in December 1923, and they paid in March 1924, so that whatever notice was given has been waived by the payment of amounts under the agreement subsequent to the expiry of the notice. MR. HOWLEY—The position is that the Reid Company paid to the end of the term which they understood was the short term of the lease. HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—The Conroy evidence is that they paid rent afterwards. MR. EMERSON—There is no question about the fact that because Mr. Hughes has proved it. So that in regard to the claim for rent, whatever notice has been given has been waived, and I submit that no proper notice had been given, and that in any event, there were not entitled to give any notice. In that event we claim for one year's rent, from March 1924 to 1925. KENT, J.—Is that claimed?

MR. EMERSON—No, I think we claim the rent up to the date of judgment. KENT, J.—Then it brings up the question of the validity of this notice and the effect of it? MR. EMERSON—Yes. In regard to the whole of these payments, to the Trust and the Trust Directors I would call your attention to the fact that all these amounts have been repaid to the Reid Company—every cent of them, has been paid to the Reid Company by the Power and Paper Company. All these amounts have been charged up to the Power and Paper Co., or as it was then the Products Corporation. MR. HUNT—You do not claim for rent you claim £175 a quarter? MR. EMERSON—When I say rent, I mean your proportion of the rent and salaries. KENT, J.—Under that letter? MR. EMERSON—Yes, and all these amounts have been charged up to the Power and Paper Company, and are included in the $500,000 which has been repaid to the Reid Co.

that was paid to the Trust, has been charged up to the Products Corporation. I make that statement without any limits whatever, with the exception of one or two items that were paid to Thomson for Railway Services, that is, the $25,000 and his directors' fees. I think that is a correct statement and on the authority of the case of Grosbie, Sellers and Gosling Trustees of the insolvent estate of Manuel vs. Job Bros. & Co., tried here in 1923 and the judgment of the Chief Justice in that case I say that the Reid Co. should not claim for a second payment of these amounts. My learned friend himself was engaged in the case with me and I think he will agree with me that that is the basis on which the judgment was founded. That case has not yet been reported in the printed reports but the judgment is on file in the Registry. MR. HOWLEY—We are not claiming to be paid these amounts; we are claiming to get them off. MR. EMERSON—A set off is the same as payment. KENT, J.—There is really no distinction between them. You get the benefit in any case. MR. EMERSON—On the Humber I would like to make reference to one case of Green vs. Bartlett, 14 Common Bench, New Series at Page 681. I would like your Lordship to give consideration to that case. It is of value on the substantial performance of the work that we were employed to perform. I do not think that there is anything more that I need deal with. I have endeavoured to be as short as possible and I thank your Lordship for the patience which you have displayed in all that I have had to say.
