The whole evening's programme reached a successful climax by the tableau, "Rock of Ages." WATFORD, JANUARY 9, 1914.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

A Sydney, Australia, despatch re ports the arrival of 55 Western Canadian farmers to settle there.

The forestry branch of the Canadian Government is now distributing some 3,000,000 trees annually am ongst the Western farmers as compared with 385,000 distributed this year by the United States forestry department.

A monument in each state along the Canadian boundary to mark the line and commemorate one hundred years of peace between Great Britain and the United States, was proposed in a bill at Washington by Senator Jones, of Washington, which asks a $500,000 appropriation for the pur-

Welland county this year has spent $58,924,15 on its road system. Besides macadam, a thousand feet of concrete pavement was put down on one of the roads at a cost of a little over $3,000. This is the first stretch of concrete road built in Ontario under the provincial aid system.

Agriculturists in Ontario are up against another pest. An apparently new rot on tomatoes has been discovered in the Niagara district by A. W. McCubbin, of the Dominion Library of Plant Pathology, who is at St. Catharines conducting a series of

The number of warrants issued by the Department of Militia for Fenian raid bounties of $100 each now totals 15,900. There are almost as many more applications for bounties still to be passed upon. The original estimate of the number of men who were actually called out for service was approximately 10,000. Canada's experience with the pension list bids fair to surpass that of the United States when it comes to the survival of war veterans and the constant turning up of new ones.

HOME HINTS

Put home first and foremost; for here will come a time when the home circle will be broken, when you long "for the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that s still" and when your great pleasure will be in remembering that you did all in your power to put a song under every burden, to make each other happy.

A kind word costs but little, but it may bless all day the one to whom it is spoken. Nay, have not kind words been spoken to you which have lived in your heart through years, and orne fruit of joy and hope? Let us speak kindly to one another. have burdens and worries, but let us not, therefore rasp and irritate those near us, those we love, those whom Christ would have us save.

It is when the sun has gone down that the home influences become actual and potent. In opening the tenler buds of young characters, the ight from the hearthstone is far more efficient than the sunlight. The dissinctive characteristics of the home life are manifested most strongly when the labors of the day are ended and the family gather round the fireside for the evening. One hour of evening homelife is worth a month of ordinary daily experience.

Our country needs grand and good men, and to become a grand and good nan, one must be a grand and good boy. It is a wrong idea that every boy must "sow his wild oats." When you sow a crop of wild oats, you must take time to harvest a crop and the crop is never anything but chaff. "Wild Oats" need never be sown. The time spent in sowin wild oats is worse than lost, for the time could be spent in sowing a crop that would yield a golden harvest. Be careful about the kind of seed you sow, for "whatsoever a man soweth that shall be also rean.

SHEEP ON THE FARM.

They Flourish on Fodder That Would Go to Waste Without Them.

No one knows definitely what it costs to keep the farm flock, by farm flock meaning the small flock, twentyfive to seventy-five ewes, on farms from 100 to 300 acres in size. They will clean up much that would other wise go to waste, and they will save much by consuming what should, be destroyed. In early spring they will clean the weeds out of the oats, even helping the oats, some state; they will not hurt the meadows when well started after cutting if not pastured closely, nor will they hurt the new seeding in the wheat stubble if not kept on too long; lambs can be run in standing corn some time before they find the ears, thus saving the lower leaves that would otherwise go to waste; they may be pastured on the rye in winter; they will clean up any out of the way places, and wherever they go they leave the land richer and anything like decent handling make their owner money.

When we come to proper handling of the farm flock it becomes neces sary to decide what is economical and what is not. The man who raises pure bred sheep for sale for breeding purposes cannot give too good care nor too much attention to feeding He is looking for extraordinary income from his sheep and to secure

The Cheviot is a Scottish breed of sheep and considered by many the most beautiful of all breeds. Chev-iots have been bred for over a century in the Cheviot hills of Scot-land. They were first brought to this country in 1838, but not many were brought until much later, and even today not many high class flocks of them are bred on this side They have undergone wonderful improvement in the last few years. most particularly in the fleece. this the extra attention is necessary But when it comes to the man who uses no grain, and in some grass sections this is economy, the sheep naturally are not going to get as much

Take the man who has kept a farm flock continuously for a period of ten years, who has cared for his flock in telligently, who has maintained his ewe flock up to fair size, never jumping to extremes in size, with young stuff of his own breeding; who has learned to know his sheep individually season after season, and who has culled closely, who has used good rams, did anybody ever hear him kick about the sheep business? Every time he will say that sheep are the most dependable and best profit makers on his farm. The kicker is the careless sheepman, the in and out type, none one year and a lot the next.

Meat on the Farm

There are few animals that increase as fast as swine. Starting with a bred gilt one can soon have hogs enough to supply the family table with pork, bacon, hams, sausage, etc. It requires feed and some pasture to produce cheap pork, but it is worth while for most farmers to raise their own meat.

Feeding Cattle. Clocklike regularity in the feeding and watering of cattle on full feed is of the utmost importance. If possible the same man even should always do the feeding, and it is important that this be the most intelligent and trustworthy man on the farm.

Dairying in connection with farming helps the manager to distribute labor and enables him to have labor when it is in great demand. A few cows, where one is in reach of a creamery, will produce the living fow

CAN REDUCE WEIGHT IN BATH. German Professor Gives Simple and

Harmless Remedy for Stoutness. Professor Franz Nagelschmidt, of Berlin, Germany, after pointing out the poisons that lurk in all anti-fat panaceas, declares that he has for panaceas, declares that he has some any two years employed an electric battery for the reduction of superfluous flesh. This electric battery produces a "foradic" current which sets the little fibres and strands of your muscles in rhythmic, regular, harmonic vibrations. These muscular movements are attuned to Another method of reducing fat to a minimum, available for many who cannot be placed in touch with this new electricity, is to artificially pro-duce a current of electricity in your bath tubs. Although it is not so reasonable nor yet absolutely ex-plainable upon our knowledge of the impenetrability of the human skin, yet it is a well-proved fact that if Epsom salts or sulphate of magnesium is added to the water of your full bath, in the course of a few months from fifteen to thirty pounds will be eliminated.

Whether this is a mysterious electrolytic action that is set up between your skin and water, or merely a powerful assault of the salt upon the usually impervious skin has not been positively determined. The fact, however, remains that Epsom salts in the bath tub aids materially in reducing your avoirdupois.

It is evident from these two pro cedures that corpulent persons need not expend all sorts of money upon every published anti-fat remedy. is far better to apply these certainly harmless, cleanly and non-fatiguing methods discovered by medical men of acknowledged training than to pick up every catchpenny panacea with no other support than the emblazoned words of an advertising

Prehistoric Relics From Africa. Central Africa was once the home f a highly civilized people. The

of a highly civilized people. The latest proof of this comes from Leo Frobenius, a German explorer, who collected and brought back to Berlin recently many specimens of ancient art. Much of this material is not older than the sixth century after Christ, but the various objects were found in the ruins of places from 15 to 25 feet below the surface, and these buildings had been built on the ruins of still older and more pretentious structures. The latter were of solid, well built masonry with court yards and gardens surmounted by roofs of tiles.

Some of the finest specimens of statuary and bas reliefs in bronze, terra cotta and carved quartz come from these prehistoric ruins. They rival in perfection of workmanship the best relics of ancient Egypt, thus proving that in very remote ages Central Africa must have been inhabited by a highly civilized people, and supporting the theory that Africa was the seat of the first high civilization which was transmitted across the Mediterranean to Turope, while the peoples who had founded it sank gradually into a condition of savagery, through what cause we can only

Shady and Sunny Side of Japan. A remarkable difference exists between the climates of western and central Japan, so much so that these districts are distinguished by the two names Sanindo-shady sideand Sanyodo—sunny side—respec-tively. During the long and rigorous winter of western Japan the cen-tral provinces, bordering the inland sea, enjoy dry and comparatively mild weather. The two regions are separated by mountain ranges, and the factors determining their climate conditions are distinct. A Japanese writer says that while the winter climate of central and southern Japan depends on the southwestern monsoons, that of the western coast is directly related to the barometric area of north China.

Not years but worries make men old.

Overcrowded Professions

A survey of the professions shows that most of them are overcrowded. The trend of education should be to prevent every youth from getting the mpression that if he fails to select one of the so-called "learned professons" he falls short of that high aim in life which is supposed to bring credit upon a proud family line,

Modern educational methods are adding to the efficiency of the man who combines energy of intellect with technical skill in the doings of things which millions are asking to have accomplished. While hundreds of young doctors and lawyers are barely ekeing out a living, the demand for thoroughly equipped men to plan and supervise the constructive work of the workaday world is in excess of the supply.

Perhaps it is useless to tell the outh that there is more chance of success in becoming an efficient farner than any of the professions, but evertheless it is true.

Electing Mayors in England

The municipal elections in England the first week in November and the Mayors of over 300 cities and towns are chosen by the municipal councils. In the majority of cases these are purely formal functions. but there are some interesting exceptions, as the London Oh points out. For instance, at Lincoln the Mayor is elected by having placed upon his finger an ancient ring worn by his predecessors for several centuries past. At Brightingsea the Mayor's election has to take place in the belfry of the parish church, and at Grantham the new chief citizen is declared duly elected after a tap on the head from the town clerk's gavel. Chichester presents the Mayor on his election with a gold-mounted malacca cane, while the Mayor of York is similarly equipped with a heavy silver-mounted oak staff.

At Neweastle-under-Lyme, public holiday is held on election lay, and the new Mayor is proclaimed at the market cross in the town square—a ceremony said to have been observed for close upon eight centuries. In several towns, Bournenouth notably, the retiring Mayor nstalls his successor by imprinting kiss upon his forehead, while at other places the retiring Mayor has the pleasanter task of kissing the wife of his successor. At High Wycombe the newly-elected Mayor s weighed and at Dunstable the Mayor is "bumped."

ORATORICAL AND NERVY.

An Old Cobbler Who Won a Laugh and Favors From Napoleon,

Napoleon's arrival at Mars-la-Tours the mayor, a farmer, tried in vain to make the speech he had prepared. Bowing and scraping, he stood fascinated by Bonaparte's scrutinizing black eyes—an unhappy squirrel in the gaze of the rattlesnake.

Close behind the trembling mayor stood an old shoemaker, in figure a true Don Quixote, clad in his working dress. "Why don't you speak, you fool?" he muttered from time to time to his leader. At last his patience gave way. He pushed the mayor aside, advanced, with his left hand removed his greasy cotton nightcap, with his right lifted the born spectacles from his nose, made his bow and delivered the oration: "Emperor, you are on your way to thrash the Prussian rogues once more. I hope soon to see you return crowned with glory, and I have nothing more to say, but that Caesar and Alexander were botches in com-parison with you."

The emperor laughed and inquired of the old man whether he had any sons. "Yes; four are in the army-two of these in the guards." Their names were taken down, and the honest shoe maker soon saw them raised to the rank of officers and found himself provided with a comfortable pension.

A CORNER IN WHEAT.

It Didn't Take the Usual Course of Deals of That Nature. John Willer of Scarboro township had a good crop of spring wheat one year-almost the only good crop for miles round. He thrashed it out during the winter and cleaned it carefully, but did not sell it. "Seed wheat will be scarce in the spring," he said to his wife. "I'll keep it till then."

One day in April a man who lived several miles farther out in the country drove up to John Willer's barn and said he wanted to buy a load of seed wheat. The farmer did not answer him

"You needn't be afraid, Mr. Willer," said the would be purchaser. "I've got the money to pay for it right here."

"Now, that's just what I wanted to know," said John Willer, and his face brightened perceptibly; "I'm glad you told me. Lots of my neighbors need seed this spring and haven't the cash to pay for it. If they can't get seed on credit they can't get it at all, and I want to help them out. But if you've got the money you can get seed wheat anywhere. So just drive on into town You'll find plenty there."-Youth's Companion.

Fnglish Words In German. Like the word "sport" and many other English words for which the German language has no adequate terms. the word "strike" has become one of common usage in Germany. Panic has been made into 'panik' and check into 'scheck,' record as 'rekord' when the German uses the word, and strike, in order to preserve the proper pronunciation, is written 'streik.' These words look English enough when you see them printed, but when you hear them you involuntarily think of the 'English spoken here' signs."-New York Tribune.

Camp Candlesticks. A camp candlestick can easily be made with a piece of stick. Choose a straight stick about eight inches long and one inch thick. With a good knife sharpen one end as you would a lead pencil or a stake. Then split the other end into four parts, taking care not to allow any to snap, and strengthen the point where they meet by binding with string. The candles can then be placed between the four branches and held in position with string. The pointed end is then stuck into the ground and the candlestick is ready for use.-Boston

TRUE HAPPINESS.

It Enables Man "to Draw Contentment

From a Cup of Tears."

Wordsworth in one of his poems speaks of "a man too happy for mortality." We sometimes forget the spiritual significance of joy. The stoics believed that happiness was not essential to man and not to be expected. Happiness of a specific kind, based upon good fortunate to the individual, is indeed not always to be expected nor always to be desired. But the deeper happiness and joy that come from the sure triumph of the good and the true are essential to the individual well being and the progress of society.

There have been those who learned through a beautiful consecration "to draw contentment from a cup of tears" and who came, through life's higher discipline, to know that there is a deep and abiding joy in the midst of pain and disapointment, a joy built upon the knowledge of life's greatness and the ability of the soul to rise above the temporary thing.

Such a joy as this is needed to make a man capable of inheriting eternity here and hereafter, for it raises man above the merely mortal and invests him with energy to pursue the tasks that are without end and fills him with a desire to ally himself with the powers that build the beauty of a continuing world.-St. Paul Pioneer Press.

SILENCED BY A LOOK.

Gladstone's Burning Eyes Rendered Blackie Speechless.

Gladstone had peculiar, eagle-like eyes. At a dinner at which he and Professor Blackie were present the two men were opposite, and when Gladstone gave in a forcible way his idea that Homer was no longer recited, but chanted, the professor cried out, "Mr. Gladstone, I don't believe a word of it!" Then he rose to argue the matter and said one sentence, but got no further. He had met Gladstone's gaze and seen his outer eyelids widened to their fullness in a steady glare, and his tongue stumbled, and he sank back into his chair in confusion. The writer concludes:

"Go to the zoo for it. Take your umbrella. Make your way to the place where eagles, vultures, falcons and such like creatures blink on their perches. Select a bird. Stare at him with insult and you will see the outer lids expand as Mr. Gladstone's did. Poke at him with your umbrella. The filmy vertical lids through which he looks at the sun and opens to paralyze his prey will part, and then you will see what Blackie saw and understand his feelings."

When Britain Fought For an Ear. Perhaps the most extraordinary example of Britain going to war for "no reason at all" occurred in the reign of George II. One Robert Jenkins, an English merchant-captain, trading from Jamaica. arriving in England in 1738, ed by the Spanish coast guards and that, though no proof of smuggling had been found, he had been tortured and his ear torn off. All England flew into an uproar. "Jenkins' ear" divided parties and shook Walpole's ministry itself. The house of commons sent for Jenkins, and he was told to bring his ear with him. The incident grew into a crisis, though Walpole did his best to persuade people to keep their heads, but the popular indignation was so great that the next year the government was compelled to declare war against Spain.-Pearson's.

} "Ethel," I said to my flancee, "we must fix our wedding day either be-fore the fall trade begins or after it is over, for I can't get away when it is on. If we fix it before it must be within, say, a month; if after we shall need to put it off for at least three

"I am afraid," said Ethel reflective-"that it must be later rather than before. I've done very little in the way of getting ready and couldn't possibly complete my preparations within a month."

"You mean buy your trousseau?"
"Well, 'yes. But there are some small matters that need to be cleared up before we're married, and they all require time."
"Such as"—

"Oh, they are of no importance to you, simply affairs between me and acquaintances of mine." "Obligations you wish to pay off?"

"Oh, no; not that at all. I'm not indebted to any one for favors." "Old scores then?"

"That's more like it." "Mention one of them."

"Well, there's Nell Blanchard, Last immer when we were at the Springs together she treated me very badly. Ned Franklin was there and devoted himself to me. Nell prejudiced him against me and got him away." "What sort of a retaliation do you

"She'll burst for spite."

Being one of those fellows who consider the courting period a season wherein the girls are prizes to be gambled for, I saw no way but to chime in with my fiancee, pretending that I was quite willing she should remain in the ring till the last minute. Some men would have informed the lady that the old scores were ended upon her engagement and if she proposed to still take a hand in paying them off she must take back her freedom. But, for me, I never considered a girl a woman, but, rather, one to be played like a fish. I had supposed that I had landed Ethel, but now I saw that the landing must be deferred. So I told her that we had better put off our wedding till after the fall trade, and by that time I expected she would have paid all her indebtedness in the way of punishments and would have especially caused Nell Blanchard to rue the day that she had stepped in be tween Ethel and Ned Franklin At this she declared I must not imagine she would encourage Franklin

We had a busy season, but I was not too busy to keep an eye on my flancee. A lover is a pessimist, and I was by no means easy in my mind upon this vindication Nell was arranging for her-self. Franklin I knew had been her favorite before I had appeared on the scene, and prior to our engagement I had suspected that I was serving for a snare by which to trap him. I heard something of his recent attentions to Ethel since she had begun her vindication, and some of my intimate friends, who knew that I was interested in her, began to look upon me with commiseration. Now and again I asked Ethel how she was getting on with her vindication, and she said that jealousy. I have never believed in defensive warfare. It is a military principle that the advantage preponderates to the attacking force. I considered bringing the matter to a focus by telling Ethel that if Nell was green with envy and jealousy nothing more was required and there was no further neessity for her playing Mr. Franklin in the matter; also that she had been reported to be engaged to him and all the surprise she could wish for would occur when her real engagement with ne was given out, with the wedding on to follow. But did not Ethel know all this without my telling her? And if she knew it what was to be gained by telling her?

If Mr. Franklin was destined to win in the game—as I strongly suspected he would—the end would be Ethel's giving me a rigmarole about her having unwittingly, unknowingly and unintentionally got into an unfortunate position and that she was obliged to give pain to me or Mr. Franklin and she was absolutely crushed; also that she had loved him and he had loved her till that horrid Nell Blanchard had come between them and made all the trouble. Then under such distressing circumstances I would be expected to do a magnanimous, noble part by relieving her of her frightful embarrass-ment by releasing her without blame. One day I received a note from Ethel chiding me for not having been to see her for a week. She simply called my attention to the fact without com-I replied that the fall trade was at its height, and I was working nights. I received another note stating that I had not worked every night, for I had been seen at the theater in company with a pretty girl a few evenings before. My reply to this was a confession. The young lady I had taken to the theater had once been a "flame" of mine. She possessed certain letters I had written her when I thought I loved her, which I was desirous to get into my possession before being married. In order to do this I must dissemble. When I had won her confidence I could the better devise a scheme for securing the let-

I was quite sure this would bring matters to a climax, and it did. Ethel wrote me to come and see her at once. If I delayed she would send back the engagement ring I had given her. I thought over my next move and decided to go to see her. I found her very much troubled, though she endeavored to conceal evidence of the fact. Her face was heated, her eyes were restless and her bosom heaved. "Why did you not tell me of this former love affair?" she asked in an accusatory tone.

"Because I supposed it was off long "And now it's on again." To this I made no reply. I looked at the ceiling. "Unless you wish to break with me you must drop it at once." "I have not yet recovered my let-

"Your letters! Nonsense!" There was another silence. I took my eyes from the ceiling and directed them out through a window. "Well, what are you going to do?"

Ethel asked. I responded in a quiet, reflective tone that if she would not object to my letters being used against me after my narriage with her I would let them remain where they were. I would call the next evening upon the lady pos-sessing them and endeavor to persuade her to give up all idea of there ever being anything between us.

"Is it necessary that you should call to do that? Can't you write?" "I committed myself in these letters I am anxious to secure and I should use diplomacy in the matter, just as you have been diplomatic in setting yourself right between Franklin and Nell-Blanchard. By the by, how is that affair progressing?"

I looked at her with a cold stare.
"I have finished it," she replied rue-

"Indeed. It's a pity I had not taken up mine earlier; then they would both have been ended together." "I thought you said you would end the matter at once." "I said I would endeavor to do so." She had taken hold of her engage ment ring and was toying with it. I knew she was meditating taking it off and handing it to me. "You would not have me treat a girl who loves me harshly, would you? You know how you have been situated with regard to Franklin." There was a long silence. I thought it time to bring the matter to a focus. "I will make you a proposition," I said. "Drop Franklin without a word. written or spoken, and I will do the same in my own case." Another long silence, at the end of which she put out her hand to me. I clasped it, drew her to me and that was the end of paying off old scores. By this time the rush of the fall trade was over and we were married within We passed over the border ividing the single from the married tate, and prenuptial nonsense gave way to antenuptial conditions.

CASTORIA The Kind You Have Always Bought

Feyther and the Passon After a Saturday afternoon tramp in Cheshire, writes a correspondent in the Manchester Guardian, I stopped at a little whitewashed inn, where I heard the following rustic story. On a bench outside half a dozen farm workers, with faces and bared arms richly sunburned, were relating reminiscences of bygone times.

"Did Ah iver tell yo' about ma poor owd feyther and the passon?" asked a white whiskered sturdy veteran. "No? Well, passon meets feyther one day, an' ses 'e, 'John, Ah could find yo' a bit o' a job blowin' t' organ up at t church o' Sundays if yo' doan't mind.'
'Aye, thankee, sir,' ses feyther. 'Ah'd be very glad, but Ah doubt Ah hevna wind enough."

"Sustenance Space." When we estimate that the average inhabitant of New York may have but a few score square feet for his own use, we are apt to forget that he can only exist on them because somewhere in the country there are acres of ground producing for him, as really and definitely for him as if he owned them and hired the labor on them, what Professor Penck has called his "sustenance space."—Mark Jefferson in Atlantic.

QUEER GREETINGS.

Tribes That Spit Upon or Weep Over Their Visitors.

Among the Masai and Ukerewe it is a mark of respect to greet an acquaint-ance or a stranger by spitting at him. Almost as strange is the custom ascribed to the Tibetans of sticking out the tongue by way of salutation. Rubbing noses is quite common; the Burmese and many tribes of Eskimos, Laplanders and Malays do so.

Stranger than any of these customs is the weeping salutation that has been observed among central South American Indians. This form of greeting occurs, too, in the Andaman islands, New Zealand and Polynesia. A Portuguese explorer describes the custom as he saw it used among a tribe of South American Indians:

"Whenever a guest enters a but be is immediately honored and made welcome by being wept over. Without a word being spoken he is led to the hammock. As soon as he is seated the hostess and her daughters and any of their girl friends who happen to be in the house at the time come and sit about the guest, touch him lightly with their fingers and commence to weep loudly and to shed many tears. During this ceremony, in a sort of connected discourse, they recite everything that has happened to them recently and talk of the hardships of the road that the visitor has suffered and of anything and everything that can arouse compassion and tears. The guest, his hand before his face, pretends to weep and does not speak until the crying has gone on for some time. Then they all wipe away their tears and become as lively and merry as if they had never cried in all their lives."—Exchange.

ELEPHANTS IN A TEMPER.

When Enraged They Are Apt to Tear Their Victims to Pieces.

An elephant uses several original and effective methods of exterminating its victims. It may rush upon a man, seize him in its trunk, beat him to death on the ground and before leaving tear up the foliage for yards about. There are many instances of elephants literally tearing their victims to pieces. The story is told of an English official in Uganda who on noticing a "safari" passing stepped to the door to inquire of the head man the whereabouts of his master. In response the black swung a human arm before the official and replied that a few days previous his master had been torn to pieces by an elephant and that he had brought back the arm in proof of his assertion.

Then again after knocking a man down an elephant will often continue on its course without stopping to learn how much damage it has done, hunter who was within close proximity of a herd of elephants handed his rifle to the gun bearer and started to climb a tree to look about. At that moment an elephant charged from the tall grass and made for the gun bearer. As the man started to run be threw up his arms, and in some manner the ele phant in reaching for him snatched the rifle from his hand and stopped to hammer it on the ground, while the black made good his escape.—J. Alden Loring in Outing.

Gunpowder.

The explosion of gunpowder is divided into three distinct stages, called the ignition, inflammation and combustion. The ignition is the setting on fire of the first grain, while the inflammation is the spreading of the flame over the surface of the powder from the point of ignition. Combustion is the burning up of each grain. The value of gunpowder is due to the fact that when subjected to sufficient heat it be comes a gas which expands with frightful rapidity. The so called explosion that takes place when a match s touched to gunpowder is merely a chemical change, during which there is a sudden evolution of gases from the original solid. It has been cal-culated that ordinary gunpowder on exploding expands about 9,000 times or fills a space this much larger as a gas than when in a solid form.

Mark Twain Liked Girls.

Mark Twain, although the creator of the most lovable boy in literature, Tom Sawyer, was really more interest ed in little girls, and it was through his interest and affection for my little daughter Helen that we came to know him so well and to share the last months of his life. He used to pretend that only girls were interesting, that boys ought not to exist until they were men. The fact was, he really was in-terested in any young creature. In one of the books he gave Helen he wrote, "It is better to be a young June beetle than an old bird of paradise."-Marion Schuyler Allen in Strand Magazine.

Curious Fate of Burne-Jones' Favorite Water Color.

A very curious history is that of Burne-Jones' favorite picture, "Love Among the Ruins." The original picture was in water color and was sent to Paris by a firm of art publishers for reproduction and in that city forwarded to their photographic studios in the suburbs. The picture unhappily preceded the letter of instructions regarding it warning the photographer of the medium in which it was painted, so that immediately on its arrival it was brushed over with white of egg to bring out the colors for photographing -an excellent procedure in the case of oil pictures, harmless and very effica-

But, as to the Burne-Jones picture. Love was very soon among his own ruins, for every swish of the brush brought off the final touches and left a mere smeared ground. Sir Edward Burne-Jones was heartbroken at the loss of a work on which his reputation. he considered, would in great measure rest and on which he had spent many months of patient toil and the very perfection of his execution in the realization of one of the most poetic conceptions that had sprung from his fanciful imagination.

"Love Among the Ruins" was painted during the years 1870-3. In October, 1893, it was destroyed, and by the following year the oil version was finished, but was scarcely a consolation to the artist for the loss of his first and more spontaneous work

ANIMALS IN OPERA.

Some of Them Raised Up Their Voices With Weird Effect.

Few persons realize how many animals appear in opera. By this I do not mean such animals as the tenor who played the part of Lohengrin and was told by Von Bulow that he was the knight of the swine rather than of the swan, but real bona fide animals. verde to Wagner.

About A. D. 1600 it was not unusual to have lions or elephants upon the operatic stage. One can never tell what these animals may improvise in their parts. I know of a case where an elephant caused a most hasty exit of the orchestra in London long ago, when the father of B. E. Woolf, the Boston critic, was conducting.

The donkey in Leoncavallo's "Pagllacei" has not a speaking part, yet once that I know of he lifted up his voice and made Canio's great solo an unexpected duet. Balaam himself was not more astonished than was the tenor on that occasion.

In spite of the saying, "Thou shalt not yoke the ox and the ass together," Pierne caused these two to sing a duet in "The Children of Bethlehem." this occasion the ass was a tenor, but I do not believe that Pierne meant any reflection upon the high voiced fraternity.—Louis C. Elson in Musical Ob-

Couldn't Be Divided.
In Felix Moscheles' "Fragments of an Autobiography" occurs the following: Mme. Schumann was wanted to play at a little musical reunion. but she did not respond. Mr. Moscheles was deputed to approach her. "Was she inclined to play?"
"Particularly disinclined," was the discouraging response.

The envoy tried again and mentioned her husband's "Carnival." "One part I particularly love, the 'March of the Davidsbundler.' If I could only hear you play just that page or two!" This roused her. "Page or two, in-deed!" she cried. "Wenn man de 'Carnaval' spielt, spielt man ihn ganz."

(When one plays the "Carnaval," one must play it all.) And she played the whole season in England at King's Acre, Hereford. It is a Gloria Mundi.

It weighs no less than 32½ ounces and the announcement of its advent has created quite a sensation in the fruit world. This wonderful apple was grown in an 11-inch flower pot, the tree producing six mammoth fruits at the same time. It was this very tree which bore the giant apple of 1910. Coupling the advent of these monster apples with the fact that this season in one plantation in the south of England there were hundred of trees carrying over 10, bushels of immense apples a tree, equal to over 800 bushels to the acre, it looks as if commercial fruit culture was a gold mine.

To show the importance attached to this latest colossal fruit six casts have been taken of it so that a permanent record may be kept of its phenomenal proportions. Britain has now the credit of producing the biggest heaviest and highest priced apples grown.

Remedy For Ants

The following is a tried and true receipt for driving away ants of all kinds: Equal parts of tartar emetic and sugar. Mix dry, then moisten with water to the consistency of syrup and put in a dish in the runway of the ants. They will eat very freely of it and fail to return for a long time, or perhaps for the senson. The dish may be set away when dry. When again needed add water and a little more sugar, and it is ready for use. The one dish may be used several times. Great care should be observed in order that children do not get at the tarter emetic preparation, as it is poisonous.—Mary L. Bull.

Lambton Dept. of Agriculture

Hugh Cameron, of Inwood, was the successful competitor in the Acre Profit Competition which was carried on in connection with the Lambton County branch of the Department of Agriculture. He will receive a short course at the Ontario Agricultural College, all expenses paid., Mr. Cameron's acre yielded 82 1/6 bushels. The total cost of production was $25.78, leaving a net profit of $30.60. The field on which this corn was grown was clay loam, following wheat. It had been farmed for fifteen years. Five hundred pounds of commercial fertilizer were used in addition to twelve loads of barnyard manure. White Cap Yellow Dent was the variety of corn selected by Mr. Cameron for this competition.

These Acre Profit Competitions were carried on in twenty-six counties during the past year. Young men who have taken a four-weeks short course with the District Representative are eligible for entry. The purpose of this competition is to demonstrate the productiveness of an acre of ground and what it will do under intensive cultivation. Careful account is kept of the cost of production, which includes rent of land, time of man and team and cost of seed, manre and fertilizer. In making up the profit the corn on the cob is valued at $1.00 per bushel.

tilizer. In making up the profit the corn on the cob is valued at $1.00 per bushel. In the County of Lambton eight young men entered this competition. Last Spring the late frosts proved a serious check to the corn crop and as a result the yield in no case can be considered very high. However, under the circumstances, Mr. Cameron is to be congratulated on his high yield. If every acre of corn in the County of Lambton yields as high as Mr. Cameron's field it would mean a arge increase in the wealth production of ambton County.
