The action of Germany in discriminating against Canada has not been overlooked. Mr. Fielding said that the time had come when Canada should be able to make tariff arrangements with the mother country without any interference from foreign powers and, as a consequence, a surtax of one third over the Canadian general tariff will be charged on German imports. This begins tomorrow morning. The British preference stands. Hon. Mr. Pugaley stated that as there was much interest being taken in the question of the readjustment of the representation, he would state the present condition of the case. The dominion government had consented to the reference of the special ease to the supreme court, and this government had drafted a case and sent it forward. The question to be decided was: Did the words aggregate population of Canada, in sub-section four of section 51 of the British North America act, mean the four original provinces of Canada, or all the provinces of Canada, including those since admitted?

The question affected Ontario and Nova

Fredericton, April 14—The legislature resumed its sesions this afternoon, after the selection will be approved of by the house and country. It was very essential that the case should be well argued, for if we $4,500,000 was paid to the government of New York. the case should be well argued, for if we are to be deprived of the safeguard contained in the saving clause referred to, it will be a result never foreseen by the framers of the act, and place us in a most deplorable position. He had given his best attention to the case, and the more he studied it the more he was satisfied that the position taken by this government was correct.

Finally these owners, among others, Judge Steadman, asserted their rights, and in the end succeeded in getting a decision which showed that in inland waters, the fish belong to the riparian owners, and in the case of crown lands, to the province.

This was followed by a claim on the part of the province that the fish in the beds of tidal rivers and in the sea within three marine miles of the shore, belonged to the provinces. They took the position that, while the dominion government, for national purposes, had the right to regulate and to protect the fisheries, the property in them remained in the provinces.

At last, in 1898, in a case before the judicial committee of the privy council, it was decided that while the dominion government had the right to make regulations, that was a very different thing from any right of property, and that all property that was in the provinces before confederation remained in them afterwards.

That settled the question of right, and no one who has studied the subject can fail to come to the conclusion that the right to fisheries remains today in the provinces, as it was before confederation. By the treaty of Washington, of 1871, it was provided that the fishermen of the colony and the fishermen of the United States should enjoy the fisheries equally, and that the difference in the value of the Canadian fisheries as compared with those of the United States should be settled by arbitration.

the decision will be favorable to New Brunswick.'

The question which the supreme court has to decide was how were the proprietary rights and privileges which are referred to in article 22 of the treaty of Washington and in respect of which her majesty recovered the compensation of $5,500,000 from the government of the United States vested in Her Majesty.

The leader of the opposition had referred to the question of how this sum of $4,500,000 was to be divided between soin in the case. It was evident that the case as prepared by this government, commended itself to the dominion government, the chief Justice of Canada to set down a day for arguing it. The chief justice thought that all the provincial governments should be notified, so that all might be represented on the argument, and this had been done by the minister of justice, and replies were expected today, so that all might be fixed.

In the Manitoba act, it is set forth that the provisions of the British North America act apply to that province, and that its representation, originally fixed at four, is to be readjusted according to section 51. British Columbia and Prince Edward Island were admitted later on imperial orders in council, based on addresses from the provinces to the Canadian parliament and from the latter to the queen-in-council. In both of these cases it was declared that their representation is to be goved that their representation is to be governed by section 51 and that all the provisions of the British North America act and applying to single provinces were to apply as at the new provinces had been one of the provinces originally united by the said act.

I do not agree with what I understand to be the contention of New Brunswick that, for purposes of readjustment, it means only the four original provinces." The government, however, did not want to take from the provinces anything they had; every constitution right is sacred and will not be interfered with, unless it is clear that under the act it is less it is clear that under the act it is necessary to do so, and for that reason and that reason only, the matter is to be submitted to the supreme court.

wick that is too wet for profitable cultivation, and which, after a small expense for drainage, would be the most sertile land available.

As in many localities stone drains are not practicable, and everywhere they are the best devices for drainage, require a considerable investment of money, a cheaper and effective way of making an underdrain will be of great benefit to many men who have wet land.

In most parts of the province an abundant growth of small spruce and fir obtains, and where poles from this growth can be easily got, a cheap underdrain may be made.

Among the men who have practiced this method of draining and found it in every way successful, is John Dawson, of Restiguenche county (N. B.), who has kindly contributed the following statement in regard to these drains:

As to what you ask me in reference to pole drains, they are a good drain, if poles are properly laid and care is taken to break the joints. The poles should not be less than 4½ inches at the top end, especially when used in soft ground. If the ground is hard or strong clay, this size is not so needful, but you must be sure to leave a three-inch waterway. The poles are best laid butt and top, which is much more convenient than two butts together, as it would necessitate hewing off each but or else making the drain very wide where the butts were. I only advise using three poles, the top pole being nicely placed on the two bottom ones. There should be a fiat stone placed over every joint and if convenient to get stone the pole should be covered six inches, more would be better. If stone cannot be had, another pole should be placed at each side of the drain on the outside of the poles, preferably larger ones, so that they will meet in the centre of the drain, then cover the whole with a foot of spruce boughs or brush of any kind. I recommend spruce for the poles, as it is generally the straightest and most easily laid. The drains that I have put in in this county of this material are from three to four feet deep. It is either 27 or 28 yea

HIGHER SALARIES FOR THE TEACHERS.

get the government to increase the county fund, and to get the local districts to infund, and to get the local districts to increase their grant also. The only way this could be accomplished in the local districts would be by increasing the school tax. If the government were to fix a minimum salary for the districts it might result in the poorer districts making it also their maximum, and thus give an opportunity for teachers of a lower grade to enter into collusion with the trustees to evade the law and secure the position by contributing towards their own salaries, the different was willing nce between what the district was willing or able to pay them, and the minimum fixed by the government. Several cases of collusion with trustees similar to this had been known. had been known.

As the situation stands at present the inducements in the matter of salaries are not sufficient to retain the best members of the profession. If it were possible to have about 100 positions for teachers in this province paying salaries of $1,000 or more, the salaries would be some object for any then there would be some object for amitious men and women to enter the teach ing profession, and naturally this would result in the raising of the standard, and the elimination of the poorer class of ion of school districts wherever practi-cable, and if the experience along these lines which was now being carried out at lines which was now being carried out at Kingston, in Kings county, with the aid of the McDonald fund proved a success, as in all probability it will, he hoped to see the whole province divided into such groups or consolidated districts. This would be a factor and an important one in the betterment of the teachers' position and salaries, and would afford the children in rural districts the same advantages of education as given those who vantages of education as given those who eside in he city. He was very much in of increased facilities for instru ion in manuel training and in agricult Dr. Inch, when asked what he though of the teachers' association, recently for association not only an excellent educato tween teachers and the interchange of thoughts and ideas, something which was greatly to be desired.

Not Courting Reciprocity With the United States.

Dealing with the question of trade with the United States, Mr. Fielding said that the us hope with the same happy results." when the Canadians found how hostile hat country was to granting any liberal that country was to granting any liberal trade arrangements, they did not grumble, but like sensible people sought markets elsewhere and found them. The proposition that the two peoples should enjoy greater freedom of reciprocal trade was as sound as ever but Canadians no longer felt the need of reciprocity as keenly as they once did. There would be no disposition to chase after reciprocity with the States, but there was an increasing growth States, but there was an increasing growth of public opinion among thoughtful Americans in favor of better trade relations with Canada.

That had been manifested in several ways, one of them being an approach on the part of an authorized agent of the United States government to the government of Canada to see if it was willing ent of Canada to see if it was willing again to take up the question of recipro-city. This approach was in the form of a letter from Senator Fairbanks to Sir Wil-frid Laurier, dated Feb. 13, in which he asked a resumption of the joint high com-mission. In reply to this Sir Wilfrid wrote as follows:

"My dear senator,—I duly appreciate your thoughtfulness and I hasten to give you my reply. It is a great satisfaction that at last the Alaska boundary is on a fair way to be honorably settled. This makes the course clear for the settlement of the other questions with which the high commission has been entrusted. I am sorry to say that as far as we are concerned on this side of the line, it would not be possible to reassemble the commission before the end of next summer. The session of congress will close on the 4th March but our own session will not commence before the 12th of the same month, and it is expected to last at least four months, and as three members of the commission on the Canadian side are also members of our parliament it is a fatal objection to early summoning of it. Moreover, I think it would be inadvisable to have the commission meet officially unless we are pretty sure in advance of being able to come to some conclusion on some important points.

I think it would be inadvisable to have the

If you will permit me a suggestion, as soon as our parliament has been proroqued I will take an opportunity of asking you for a private interview, where we could survey the ground again and fix a date for the commission to meet again."

In acknowledging this letter, Senator
Fairbanks wrote: "It is quite well eninterview after your parliament prorogued and as you suggest so that we may con-sider the work before us and agree upon

Commenting on this correspondence, could not again approach our American riends with a request for reciprocity, yet, if they are disposed to take a more liberal view and manifest a desire to have the ions between us as would be honorable both and advantageous to the interest

Fielding said the policy of the gov-ment had been one of moderation and cility. There were extreme views on oth sides, on the one side extreme pro

Other opposition members received the remarks with good natured cheers, as if they thought the government was accept-

A Blow at Germany. Mr. Fielding next dealt with the negotiations carried on with Germany in the colonies, but which are denied to Canada as an act of retaliation for our part i colonies, but which are denied to Canadda as an act of retaliation for our part in as are act of retaliation for our part in as securing the abrogation of the treaty between Britain and Germany in 1898. As Germany has flatly refused to listen to Canada's representations, even though the balance of trade is greatly in favor of that country, Canada has determined to place a surtax of one-third in addition to the present general tariff upon all German goods, beginning tomorrow.

Nothing is to be done in regard to the demand of the lead miners for protection. Machinery for alluvial mining is to be put on the free list until June 30, 1904. Machinery for the manufacture of beet sugar is to be further exempted from duty for another year.

When the governor in council is satisfied that Canadian mills can make enough steel rails of Canadian steel of the required standard, a duty of 87 per ton may be placed on imported rails.

Mr. Fielding's last announcement, only indirectly bearing on the budget, was that as an experiment, the canals of Canada will be as free as the ocean for two years, the government, of course reserving the propose the toll if necessary.

In January there were treasury bills outstanding in London amounting to £1,250,000 sterting, but some of these have been redeemed in advance of maturity and the remaining £950,000 sterling will be paid off on July 10. A domestic loan falls due about November 1 amounting to $2,852,000 at 4 per cent with no sinking fund to meet it. It is proposed to issue a new loan in

One of these half millions and part of the other would be paid out of the accumulated fund at the government's disposal and the belance would be met by a small issue of treasury bills to carry it over to the following spring when other loans mature

In concluding his speech Mr. Fielding again referred to the satisfiaction which he and every other member must feel in the circumstances which enabled him to pre sent such a pleasing picture of the condition of Canada. There was every reason to rejoice as we looked at the past and

Montreal Master Builders Decline to Grant the Demands of Their Men and They Will Go Out.

Montreal, April 16—(Special)—Two thousand carpenters and joiners of Montreal have decided by a vote of 1,405 to 30 to strike. Five hundred members did not vote. The master builders at a meeting today positively declined to grant the men's demands for a minimum of 22½ cents an hour. The workmen are now awaiting official sanction from the United Brotherhood to declare a strike.

ITEACHERS' FAREWELL TO MISS AMY IDDLES AND MISS IDA YERXA.

Address Presented on Eve of Departure to Take Up Work in South Africa.

Pleasant Function at the High School Last Evening-Superintendent Inch and Others Deliver Speeches, and a Musical Programme is Enjoyed.

The assembly hall of the High School, on Union street, was the scene Wednesday evening of a reception, and the presentation of a farewell address to Miss Amy Iddles and Miss Ida Yerxa, two of the most esteemed lady teachers of the city, who are about to take their departure for South Africa, where they have accepted positions on the teaching staff.

A short musical and literary programme engaged attention during the early part of the evening. Vocal solos by Miss Comden and Miss McCarron were rendered in excellent style, and Miss Knowlton, of the High School teaching staff, gave a most instructive and interesting interpretation of selections from Browning's poems.

Miss Iddles and Miss Yerxa were then called to the front and President Miles, on behalf of the St. John Teachers' Association read and presented copies of the following address to them. They were much moved by the expression of good will it contained and returned their thanks to the association in a few well chosen words. Ice cream and cake were then served and a pleasant social half hour enjoyed, after which short addresses were words. Ice cream and cake were then served and a pleasant social half hour enjoyed, after which short addresses were delivered by Dr. J. R. Inches, superintendent of education for the provinces, and Dr. H. S. Bridges.

The address was:

cently acquired possessions, we feel assured that you will be actuated by the same sense of duty so characteristic of your labors among us, and by that earnest spirit of loyalty which has won for our beloved Canada so much of honorable mention abroad. In bidding you farewell, we say to you most earnestly that our best wishes will accompany you. We venture the hope that your labors may aid in the removal of racial animosities, and in the fostering of that spirit of good will and confidence so desirable in the unifying of an empire we love so deeply, and whose best interests it will be your pleasant privilege to promote.

On behalf of the teachers.

The New Field Root.

During the past few years, there has been either too difficult to harvest or not yielding a paying crop. The new root (Remnie's Giant Sugar Mangel) has become immensely popular and is rapidly taking the place of Sugar Beets and Mangels for general crop. This new feeding root contains. Ligher feeding value than either Mangels or Sugar Beets and yields enormous crops, as heavy as the Mammoth Mangel. The roots keep longer than either Mangels, Sugar Beets or Turnips and make the very best of feed for Hogs, as well as Cattle, Horses and Poultry. The seed is sold by nearly all the leading dealers, and progressive farmers should plant
