The Coast-Guard

Do you conder what I'm seeing, In the leart of the fire, aglow In the leart of the hit, age.
Like diffs in a golden sunset,
with a summer sea below?
I see, away to the eastward,
The line of a storm-best coast,
And I hear the tread of the hurrying wave.
Like the tramp of a mailed host.

And up and down in the darkness, And up and down in the darkness,
And over the frozen sand,
I hear the m. n of the coast-guard
Pasing along the strand,
Besten by storm and tempest,
And drenched by the pelting rain,
From the shores of Carolina,
To the wind-swept bays of Maine.

No matter what storms are raging,
No matter how wild the night,
The gleam of their swinging lanterns
Shines out with a friendly light.
And in my a shipwrecked sailor
Thanks God with his gasping breath,
For the stordy arms of the surfmen
That drew him away from death.

And so when the wind is wailing.
And the air grows dim with sleet,
I think of the fearless watchers
Pacing along their beat.
I think of a wreck, fast breaking
In the surf of a rocky shore,
And the lifeboat levping onward
To the stroke of the bending oar. I hear the shouts of the sailors,
And the boom of the frozen sail,
And the creek of the loy halyards
Straining against the gale.
"Courage!" the captain trumpets,
"They are sending help from land!"
God b oss the men of the coast-guard,
And hold their lives in His hand!

Casgrain made a motion that it is expedient that some measures be adopted for securing by legislation a better super-vision and inspection of banks. He open the door to all sorts of rumors. The effect would be bad. If Canada had national banks like the United States with small capital and limited ares, in-spection would be easy. Canada has large banks with numerous branches necessitating closer enquiry than any government inspector could possibly give. People would hold the government responsible in cases where the government could not possibly arrive at the fullest in-formation and would, when suffering from oss through bank failure, apply to par-iament for reimbursement of losses. latter part of January, and her ordinary food had been timothy and clover hay, with one peck of carrots daily.

The work of improvement began by increasing the food ration by the addition of a pint of oatmeal and three quarts of bran per day, which was gradually increased during the first month to six quarts of bran; the second month to one quart of oil quarts of corn meal, which was coninued until grass came, when the raion was reduced to one pint of oil meal, and four quarts of bran per day. This formed the daily ratio through the summer.' Such experiments have considerable value, not only because they

WASTEFUL WINTERING.

Much food is thrown away every winter in the common management of stock. I do not mean the fodder actually wasted in farmyard or stable, but that which is fed, especially to vounger animals. For instance, supoose I feed four calves and six year ings all winter and in the spring they are no larger than in the pr perceptible immediately after commenc- vious fall, how much of the fodder they consumed is wasted? "While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours, Mrs. EMMA GEDNEY. C.

The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL ha well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured, "In 185 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PEOTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL SAVED me.
