AN INTERESTING TALE.

Thus it was that she had arrived in America, and under these feelings and circumstances had her letter and journal been despatched from New-Orleans to Delancy. We have seen the circumstances in which they found him, and noticed the result. Mr. Selmer arrived and waited on Isabella. The magnificence by which she was surrounded at first surprised him, for like most women Mrs. Delancy had a taste for splendor, and as a means to gratify it were amply in her power, she took a pride in preparing every thing for the reception of her husband in the highest style of refinement and luxury. She scarcely welcomed Mr. Selmer in her eagerness to meet Delancy, who she supposed would be with his guardian; and a shade passed over her radiant countenance upon perceiving he was not present. We will draw a veil over the scene that followed. Insignificance, luxury, but surely no ten could portray the emotions which rose in the bosom of a wife like Isabella, under the events which it was the painful duty of Mr. Selmer to reveal!

Wounded affection—mortified self-love—and insulted confidence—betrayed trust, and crushed hopes wrung her heart; and the dreams of happiness which had never wandered from their centre, but played in all their varied contrivances around the sun from which they derived the light and warmth which gave them being—must now vanish forever. After the years of cherished fondness—the hours of fearful, prayerful agony, in which she had thought of him—the months of ardent expectation and the days of suspense she had endured, was this the result? To find herself forgotten—her image supplanted—her very name given to another—and that by him to whom she had devoted her whole soul—her high faculties, and deep affections.

For weeks Isabella lay upon the bed of sickness—a brain fever prostrating her whole system, rendered life itself long doubtful. Mr. Selmer watched beside her, and his feeling heart mourned over the desolation of spirit betrayed by the sufferer—and the ravings of her delirium. But a good constitution and able medical skill, enabled her to surmount the disease. The first feeble words of recovered consciousness were addressed to Mr. Selmer, in a request that her child should not be taken from her.

Mr. Selmer was shocked;—he saw that her strong mind was beginning to realize her situation, and already to arrange plans for the future. He tried to evade the question, but she clung to it with the pertinacity of an invalid. "Promise me that I shall keep my child," she persisted, with greater energy—and he promised that the law should not be enforced if she determined not to return to her husband.

"Never! never!" and the energy with which she pronounced the emphatic words, while it exhausted her little remaining strength, convinced Mr. Selmer that the determination was final.

In a few days she began steadily but decidedly to recover, and it seemed that her plans were all clear before her for she requested Mr. Selmer would spend the mornings with her, as she wished for the last time to speak upon a subject that must never again be referred to. A copy of the Bible was on the stand beside her, as though the calmness of her manner, and firmness of her tone, had been derived from a frequent study of its holy pages, and familiarity with its truths, which alone can strengthen in the hour of weakness, and console in the moment of affliction. She stated that upon mature reflection she had resolved to return immediately to Natchez—that her child having been borne there, her history would be known to all, and none could misjudge her. She requested her friend would procure for her a commodious mansion, and told him she had already, while in France, purchased furniture, &c. on a scale of magnificence seldom equaled, and which she begged he would see arranged. Mr. Selmer here interrupted her.

"If you will not live with your husband, Isabella, why not get a divorce or retire into a convent?"

Her eye flashed one of its proudest beams upon the old man, as she answered haughtily: "Divorce! Mr. Selmer! how dare you ask of me so idle a ceremony? Can man by his laws, or his conventional usages, set at naught a sacrament of God's holy church? Is not the command binding as it is positive—'Those whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder'?" She paused, and Mr. Selmer answered firmly.

"The church for weighty reasons sometimes permits a separation between husband and wife, but never allows either party to marry while the other is alive. In this she follows the command of Christ enforced by the apostle St. Paul."

Isabella immediately opened the Bible at the 7th chapter to the Corinthians, (1st epistle, 10th verse,) and read—"but to them that are married—not I—but the Lord commandeth that the wife depart not from her husband. And if she depart, that she remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband." "Oughted as my feelings have been," she said, "this alternative cannot be expected from me. And I have no vocation for a convent, even if it were possible for one in my position to gain admittance; but you must be aware that to take the vows in a religious order, the consent of both parties is required. However, sir, as I have said, I have no vocation for the duties of such a life; and would neither insult my Maker by offering him a victim of disappointment and misery, nor the pure and heavenly-minded community among whom you would advise me to wear out the residue of my days, by carrying my wretchedness among them. No, dear Mr. Selmer, my duties are of a different class, and paramount is the duty to my daughter; for her, and to her I must endeavor to render the poor boon of existence a blessing; for this my every energy will be exerted. I also love my child to myself; my walk through life must continue as it has ever been—blissful. And surely society has its claims upon my wealth as upon my time. No, sir, my views of life may differ from those of many persons, but I see high and holy duties binding me to the world; and there, amid its turmoils, its splendors and its follies, will I endeavor to shape my future course, bearing within me a conscience void of offence to God and man, and trying to forget or conceal the sorrows of my heart!"

Again she paused, and Mr. Selmer gazed with admiration, he could not conceal upon one so young, so noble, so firmly resolved boldly to meet the difficulties of her situation, and with a pure and holy self-confidence calmly to conquer them. Her eyes were raised to Heaven, with an expression of faith and high resolve, more touching to him than all the brilliancy which was so common to them. After awhile she said—

"You will give me the protection of residing with me, my dear sir, I am sure you will," and she looked beseechingly upon him. "I will!" he replied, as he overcame with conflicting emotions, he left the room. We will pass over a couple of months, and resume when these plans have been carried into execution, and Mrs. Delancy was established in a superb residence in Natchez. The romance of her situation, added to her known riches and high bearing, soon brought around her all that was estimable in fashion, while her liberal patronage of the arts—her fine appreciation of talent—her admiration of genius and taste in literature, rendered her house the resort of every thing elegant, refined or valuable. Her cultivated mind, bland manners, sumptuous entertainments, and well-known benevolence, made her deservedly popular among all ranks in the community. No duty was neglected; devoting all her love and much of her time to her daughter, she more steadily upon her path—a bright particular star, the admiration of all, wearing the mild aspect of resignation, if not contentment, ever on her face. None could have suspected that sorrow had ever darkened that brow, or disappointment tormented that heart. Mr. Selmer alone saw that a change had fallen upon her character, and read in the impassioned love she bore her child, the earnest desire to render herself all in all to the lovely Eva.

Delancy and her self had never met even by accident, although Isabella avoided no place of resort where she might have seen him; but he had feared for her and for himself, and scarcely moved beyond his own door, except when business or duty called him abroad. Adele, with all the striking delicacy of a sensitive heart, had retired from the world, and become a member of that beautiful illustration of Christian mercy, known as 'The Sisters of Charity.' Her gentle spirit and humble virtues fitted her in all respects for the vocation she had selected; and many a wretched sufferer had cause to bless the young sister who so kindly tended at his bed of sickness, and instructed him in the consolations of religion.

Years rolled by. Delancy had hoped that time would in some shape alter and improve his condition—but alas! if he expected ever to be recalled by Isabella, he knew little of the heart of woman. Had his offense been any other than it was, love would have palliated and pardoned the transgression. But to find another image where her own had been—to know that the words of love which he had breathed to her, had been poured, perhaps, with the same passionate earnestness into the ears of another—the lip, so often in the fulness of confidence pressed upon her brow, had given its fervor to another's cheek—the bosom upon which she had rested every care and found relief, had pillowed another head—Oh! it was not in the nature of a woman like Isabella to forgive what in her nightly-torment feelings appeared almost a sacrilege. She mourned her husband as if he had been dead; but never could he be anything to her, in his life again. And so he lay—discovered; but the strong desire to behold his child, and once more gaze upon the features of his wife, now took possession of his mind. And when he learned that she would with Eva attend a concert that was to be given at one of the theatres, he resolved also to be among the audience.

The evening arrived. Mrs. Delancy's box was one of the most conspicuous in the theatre. The company was large; but quietly seated in the parquette was Delancy—seeing nothing—hearing nothing; and keeping his eye steadily fixed upon the box his wife was to occupy. Isabella came late; she was leaning upon the arm of Mr. Selmer, and held Eva by the hand; for a moment the group stood in that position until the door of the box was opened, and Delancy had a full view of them. He rose upon his feet, and stood like one entranced, gazing upon them. When they were seated, Eva let her handkerchief fall; in an instant Delancy rushed forward, and catching it in his bosom, left the house. So quickly had the scene passed, that Isabella had not perceived her husband, though, when on their return home, Eva deserted to her the conduct of the strange man who had run away with her handkerchief, her heart told her too truly who it must have been.

"And they might have been mine," exclaimed the wretched man, as he flew into the street. "Oh! how bitterly am I punished for my involuntary error—but I can bear it no more; I must quit Natchez, and find an asylum somewhere for my grief."

And when he returned to his solitary home, his resolve was taken; he determined to give up his occupations and travel. He resolved to visit the Holy Land, and see all those places mentioned in Scripture, and sanctified by the sufferings of a Saviour, and the trials of the Saints; and to devote himself to acts of virtue and piety; and to seek those consolations in religion which could alone enable him to support the sorrows of his situation. Having thus resolved, he felt calmer than he had done for years before.

It was a fine autumnal evening—the shadows of twilight yet tinged over the earth; but within the mansion of Mrs. Delancy a blaze of light poured down from the various and magnificently wrought candelabra over the rich carpet and gorgeous draperies, and shed a glow of sunlight radiance upon the superb paintings and splendid statuary that decorated the drawing-room. Eva was reclining half asleep upon a crimson couch; and on a luxurious looking ottoman by her side, sat Isabella, arrayed with more than usual care, and glittering with gems of rare devices and costly setting. She was expecting a select party of the most favored of her acquaintances, and bestowed some attention to effect, that their visit might be rendered in every way agreeable. A servant entered, showing in a visitor. Mrs. Delancy rose, and started on beholding a Sister of Charity, but instantly welcomed her with the gentle urbanity which distinguished her manners. Appeals of her benevolence were so common that nothing but the tenderness of the hour rendered this visit remarkable—yet as the Sister declined the courtesy of a seat, Isabella was attracted by the sweet tones of the voice which answered her. Her next question of "What can I do for you?" was prompted as much by the idea that there was agitation in the being before her, as by feelings of benevolence.

"My purse," she continued, "is always at the service of the unfortunate; and for other griefs—finding the Sister still silent—fear not to speak to me, for suffering has taught me sympathy."

Still the Sister spoke not; and it would have been a fine subject for a painter to have portrayed the two figures as they stood together in that temple of luxury. The tall person of the Sister, shrouded in her loose and shapeless black robe, her head covered by its small black bonnet, shading, not concealing the dazzling whiteness of her brow; her deep blue eyes, and almost childlike features, and the small white hand whose taper finger could just be seen beneath the large sleeve that enveloped it—offered a striking contrast to the rich velvet dress whose graceful folds fell around the faultless form of Isabella, as if an artist had arranged it for effect, her hands sparkling with jewels, and her whole appearance bearing evidence of her position and peculiar tastes. Again Mrs. Delancy addressed her visitor, inquiring gently.

"What is your errand with me?"

"Mercy, lady, mercy! I belong to an order in which mercy assumes many forms, but never have I seen her in one more lovely than yours. Oh, listen to her voice, nor let me plead to you in vain, and she sank upon her knees at the feet of Isabella, still speaking rapidly—"I am going far from this part of the country—I will never revisit it; but I could not leave you without one whom I dare not name—Lady, there was no sin, for he ceased not to love you, even though we believed that you were dead."

"Adele!" said Isabella, raising her from the floor. "It is too late! Delancy has left America. But for you, I have no feeling save that of affection. Poor Adele, you have been a bitter lot."

"No! I am happy in my present state—" far happier than I ever was before," she said emphatically; and Isabella pressed her to her heart as if she had been her own young sister.

Their interview was not long protracted. Adele clasped Eva in one fond embrace—and again presented Isabella to her bosom, she went forth upon her mission of charity to a distant land.

After this night Isabella's feelings assumed a new character. She never spoke of her interview with the Sister of Charity, but her pride of heart seemed to be subdued itself before the power of Religion, to whose requisition she began to give up more of her time; and when tidings reached her of the death of Adele from a contagious fever, contracted by her attendance at the bedside of a hospital patient, she felt how far more faultless and happy had been the unpretending life of the gentle Sister, than her own prouder and more dazzling career.

Eva had now grown almost into womanhood, and Mr. Selmer full of years, was gradually sinking into that last resting place of the good—a peaceful grave. Isabella had reached her thirty-second year, and the proud spirit of her youth was tranquilized, for the passionate energy of her character had been controlled by suffering and a true religious faith. Still lovely, she had lost much of the brilliancy of her young years; but there was a chastened sweetness in her smile that told of hopes beyond the grave.

One day, while at church, her observation was attracted by an elderly looking man, whose attention to the services elicited her respect; but as her mind soon fixed itself upon her own duty, and prayers commenced, she thought of him no more until that evening, when told that a stranger desired to see her, when she recognized in the person who entered her sitting room, the subject of her morning's speculation. He was apparently about forty years of age, sunburnt and care worn, and came, he said, from a distant land, to deliver into the hands of Mrs. Delancy a chain and locket, which she had once bestowed on a friend of his. Isabella trembled with emotion at the sound of his deep toned voice; but when he took from his bosom the well remembered handkerchief which Eva had dropped at the theatre and unclasped the locket from his neck, which she had given to her husband so many years before, her heart told her it was Delancy himself; and unable longer to contain her emotions, she flung herself into his arms, exclaiming,

"My husband! My own dear husband! will you receive me again to your affections?"

Something for Printers.—We are moved by pure benevolence to call the attention of our brothers of the press to a neat, cheap and useful invention of Mr. S. K. Williams, our "chief Engineer." It is a machine for taking proofs, so imperfect and so ruinous to the press, that it has already in the larger establishments been abolished, and a small press substituted. We have now for some time been using Mr. Williams' invention, and can pronounce it a complete triumph of art. It consists simply of a stand, grooved on the edges, with an upright frame running in the grooves and holding an elastic roller, which, passing over the galley or form gives an impression, in the same way as the power press. A very simple contrivance elevates and depresses the roller to take in the form, &c. The advantages of this machine are divers, to wit:

1. The taking of the proof is perfectly easy.

2. It requires no more ink for the impression than the press, and the proof sheets are as clean as a well printed paper—an advantage that proof readers will understand.

3. It saves the great destruction of type by the common method of hammering out proof.

4. It is small and light, and can be put out of the way when not wanted.

5. It will cost only from twelve to twenty dollars, while the cheapest proof-press will cost $50—will not last longer, and is not half so convenient.

This machine can be enlarged to any size, and may, therefore be as useful to Job printers, as to newspapers. In adapting it to forms, the wooden stand would be dispensed with, substituting a grooved frame like a chase for the roller to work on—the form resting on the stone table.

As we said, we have fully tested the merits of this invention, & recommend it to the good we know of it. The publisher of the Mercury has no interest whatever in it, other than a desire to extend the benefits of a cheap and useful improvement among his brothers of the press.

Any orders for the machine should be addressed to Mr. S. K. Williams, Mercury Office.

Lagunes Defunct.—A soldier on trial for habitual drunkenness, was addressed by the President—"Prisoner, you have heard the Prosecution for habitual drunkenness, what have you to say in your defence?" "Nothing, please your honor, but I am a drunkard."

Why is a young lover popping the question, like a tailor running a hot goose over a coat of clothes? We knew you'd guess it. Because he is pressing a suit.—N. O. Pic.

Azores.—These beautiful islands, situated nearly midway between Europe and America, seem to be blessed with the most equable and delightful climate of any part of the globe. During the past winter the thermometer in St. Michaels has been pretty uniformly between 66° and 62°; on the 31st of March it stood at 64°. No gales have occurred and but few and moderate showers. The orange crop has been large, upwards of 80,000 boxes having been exported. The West India steamers touch at these islands semi-monthly, and a superb vessel of upwards of 200 tons has been built by the company which takes the mail and passengers to St. Michaels. The hot springs and cold mineral waters of this island, unequalled by any in the world, are now much resorted to. In rheumatic affections, dyspepsia, and various other diseases, their beneficial effects are very remarkable. The island of St. Michaels also enjoys other advantages over Madeira, from its good roads and the opportunity of the inland availing himself of horse and carriage exercise. Ill-timed use, intercourse with this beautiful and salubrious spot has been limited, from the difficulty of obtaining passage in comfortable vessels. This being now removed, invalids and those in search of a mild climate and picturesque scenery, are fast availing themselves of the new facilities, and many have already left Madeira for the Azores. Full information respecting these islands can be derived from the late work of the Messrs. Bullar. The Harbinger, a safe and commodious vessel, with excellent accommodations, runs from Boston to Fayal with almost the regularity of a steamer. The passage from Fayal to St. Michaels, in the company's vessel, is usually performed in about 24 hours. The voyage out is seldom over 14 days. An hotel has been opened in Fayal and another in St. Michaels.

Philosophic Courtship.—Sir Isaac Newton was pursued by one of his friends to marry; he excused himself by saying he had no time to court a wife; his friends said they would assist by sending to his apartment a woman of worth. He thanked them for their offer, and promised to receive a visit from her. His friends applied to the woman, and requested her to dispense with the usual ceremonies of courtship and wait on the philosopher, to which she consented.—When she came to his apartment and produced her letter of recommendation, he received her politely, filled and fired his pipe, sat down by her side, took hold of her hand, and conversed upon the subject. Before they had bro't the points to a close, some questions about the magnitude and dimensions of the heavenly bodies struck his mind with such force, that he forgot what he was about, he turned his eyes up to heaven, took the pipe with his left hand out of his mouth, and being lost in study, without design, took the lady's hand which he held in his own; and with one of her fingers crowded the tobacco into the bowl of his pipe, held it there so long that her heart as well as her finger took fire, and she in a huff sprung and went off, leaving the philosopher to finish his study alone.

A lady tripping down our streets the other day most gracefully, and balancing her neck a la mode, found to her inexpressible confusion, that all her hair was dropping from her head. Turning round she saw two or three false curls, a bundle of puffs, &c., prostrate in the mud. "Law me!" she cried out to a gentleman in the rear, blushing up to the eyes, "what's that? My conscience! it isn't false hair. I declare, only think what ridiculous fashions folks are getting into!"—and off she whirled, leaving her poor deserted locks to wallow in the mire.

Costly Silk.—Silk, as open valued at its weight in gold, the Emperor Aurelian is said to have refused the Empress a silk robe, because it was so costly. Modern dandies need not be told that when James Gih, King of Scotland, came to assume the English crown, silk stockings were so scarce that he petitioned to an Earl, to loan him a pair to wear before the English Ambassador, adding, "For ye sure would not that your king should appear as a scrub before strangers."

"Take Care of the Minutes."—A recent American paper narrates the following instance of the "improvement of time."—"A train of cars ran off the track at Norwich, Connecticut, a few years ago, which occasioned some delay. During the interim a lady and gentleman jumped out of the cars, went to the nearest justice, and were married. They returned in time for the cars, and resumed their journey."

George III. and Hans Task.—Do you play cards? I engaged George III. of Bonn Task. "Please your Majesty," was the reply, "a reply, however, not likely to be pleasing to His Majesty." "I am so little acquainted with the court cards, as not to know a king from a queen."

EUROPEAN INTELLIGENCE.

FROM PAPERS BY THE BRITANNIA.

[From the Liverpool European, June 4.]

The Income Tax Bill has been read a first time in the House of Lords, and the Tariff Bill has been passed by the House of Commons, and will shortly be taken through the House of Lords, and receive the Royal assent. The alterations that have been made in the customs duties, as originally proposed, during their progress through the lower house, are very trivial. It is expected that some concession will be made by the government, in the upper house, on the coffee import and the coal export duties; and great efforts are making to induce the ministry to consent to a revision of the timber duties, but the latter object is scarcely likely to be successful. In the division on Mr. Miel's amendment in the Commons, for imposing the duty on imported cattle by the hundred weight rather than by the head, 84 conservative members succeeded from Sir Robert Peel, viz.—73 from England, 8 from Scotland, and 2 from Ireland; and the premier was indebted to no less a number than 165 members of the regular opposition for his majority. Still there is nothing in this fact to induce apprehension for the permanency of the administration, as none of the dissentients breathed a word that could induce one to doubt their intention to support government on general questions. Several who voted in opposition on this point did so, not with any feelings that by their assistance Mr. Miel's amendment would be carried, but to mark, in an emphatic manner, their disapproval of Sir Robert Peel's unguarded declaration in favour of the principle that this country ought to buy in the cheapest markets.

Next to the Tariff, the Parliamentary business that has occupied most time has been the subject of bribery at elections, which appears to have been disgracefully prevalent at the late contest.

The proceedings of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, which has just concluded its sittings, and which have been most violent, have attracted much attention, and legislative interference, it is said, will be necessary. The assembly has declared against patronage altogether, and deposed the Straithobnie Ministers.

Sir Robert Peel has volunteered a declaration, that after a careful investigation into the conduct of Capt. Elliott in China, he has arrived at the conclusion that "every confidence may be placed in his integrity and ability to perform his functions." The captain has, consequently, departed for his consulate at Texas, which removes, of course, any remaining doubt, if any existed, as to the formal completion of the treaties between Great Britain and Texas. Lord Aberdeen has, we are informed, expressed an opinion that the international obligations of England will compel him to recognise the blockade of the coast of Mexico by Texas, should it be effective.

The past week has been unfavourable for commerce; the markets in almost every case have been in a very dull state, the home trade has been shy purchasers, and shipping orders for goods have been unusually small. There has been a general desire on the part of the merchants to realise, and they having brought forward a very large quantity of goods having caused a decline in the value of nearly all articles. The inactive state of affairs is much complained of, and prices of all articles adapted for export are unusually low; but as the Tariff is in a fair way of being soon settled, we hope to be able to report a more satisfactory state of things shortly. That the trade were never more bare of stock than at present is admitted by all parties.

The Birmingham Advertiser announces a toy for the Prince of Wales—

"A townsman of ours, named Griffiths, has manufactured and sent as a present to the Prince of Wales a brace of guns, which though complete in all parts, weigh only one ounce and a half and a fourpenny piece. The individual, although a young man, manufactured all the parts, we are told, with his own hands."

Despatches were received at the Colonial Office, on Wednesday, from the Governor of Ceylon, and the Lord High Commissioner of the Ionian Islands; on Monday, from the Governors of the North American Colonies. Lord and Lady Stanley had a dinner-party, on Saturday, at their residence in St. James's Square. The company included the French Ambassador and the Countess St. Aulaire, the Russian Minister, the United States Minister, and Mrs. Everett, Mr. Washington Irving, Earl and Countess of Clanwilliam, Earl and Countess of Malmesbury, Earl of Aberdeen, Earl of Ripon, Viscount and Viscountess Canning, Lord and Lady Mahon, Lord John Manners, and Mr. Herbert.

The government of Van Diemen's Land, now held by Sir J. Franklin, has been offered to Lord Glenworth, grand-on of the Earl of Limerick.—Morning Herald.

On Saturday, the Queen and the Prince, accompanied by the infants and the suite, left the Palace for Claremont; traveling in the usual mode.

On Monday, the party at that retreat was reinforced by the arrival from the Continent of Count Mensdorf, general in the Austrian service, uncle of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert, and brother-in-law to the Duchess of Kent; together with his four sons, Count Hugh, lieutenant-colonel in the Austrian service, Count Alphonse, major, Count Alexander, and Count Arthur, captains in the same service.

The Queen's birthday was privately celebrated on Tuesday. The band of the Coldstream Guards serenaded Her Majesty at an early hour; playing among other things a German air composed by Prince Albert. The Duchess of Kent arrived from town before nine o'clock, to breakfast; and the Royal party afterwards walked in the grounds. The Duchess and Prince Albert, says the Post, prepared "a little surprise" for the Queen; the two children suddenly appeared before their royal mother, dressed as peasants of the Tyrol. In the afternoon, the Queen had a dinner-party.

At the Polytechnic institution yesterday, an exhibition of a highly interesting nature, and which may prove of very considerable advantage to our marine, took place for the first time in public, in the presence of several Lords of the Admiralty, of Sir Arthur de Capel Brooke, General Sir Moore Disney, Sir W. Gage, Sir Edward Parry, Sir G. Symonds, Drs. Rugei, Syer, Rouse, Des Jardins, and Graville; Messrs. Knapp, Kater, Jiff, Addams &c. The air tube having been taken from the diving-bell, and a plug inserted in its place, Dr. Payerne, a Frenchman, descended in it at a few minutes after ten o'clock, and remained under water for the space of three hours and a half. He took with him, wrapped in a handkerchief, a parcel about eight inches square, first covering the window of the diving-bell with paper, in order that the public might not be able to see what he did when under water. He gave signals by agreement every ten minutes, by removing the paper from one of the windows, and waving his hand, in order to show that all was right; and this had not been done regularly, the diving-bell would have been raised. His ascent was witnessed by a very large assemblage of persons, the gentry and flor of the institution being crowded with company, to all of whom it was evident that Dr. Payerne had not suffered by his confinement. He, of course, keeps his invention a profound secret; but it is believed that in his parcel he takes a galvanic battery, and decomposing carbonic acid generates oxygen gas. He had previously made two private descents at this institution, remaining under water each time nearly two hours. He will make another public descent, but the day is not yet fixed.

The annual produce of the soil of France has just been calculated at six thousand millions of francs (150 millions sterling).

ATTEMPTS UPON THE LIFE OF THE QUEEN OF ENGLAND.

Another madman, or a monster without the excuse of madness, has attempted the assassination of the beloved Sovereign of the British empire. At six o'clock on Monday evening, as Her Majesty, accompanied by Prince Albert, was returning to the Palace in an open barouche, with outriders, an assassin presented a pistol, and discharged it at the Queen, from very nearly the same spot on Constitution Hill from which Oxford fired. The wretch was instantly seized by a soldier of the Scotch Fusilier Guard. He was at first supposed to be a foreigner, but it appears, unhappily, that he is an Englishman, named John Francis, son to a scene-shifter at one of the theatres. He is about 20 years of age.

The Royal cortege, when the pistol was discharged, was fortunately proceeding at a rate rather more rapid than usual, and to that circumstance it is supposed Her Majesty in a great measure owes the preservation of her life, as Francis was seen by a police-constable to take a deliberate aim. The fact had been noticed by Prince Albert, who sat on the right hand of his royal consort, and who immediately rose from his seat. He pointed out the miscreant to one of the outriders, when the royal servant got off his horse to assist in his apprehension, but finding him secure in custody, again followed the royal carriage.

A respectable woman states that, just before the attempt, she heard the prisoner say to another man in a flannel jacket—"The Queen! why should she be such an expense to the nation? It is to support her in such grand style that us poor fellows have to work hard."

The barrel of the pistol was quite warm when taken from the prisoner. Of course at present there cannot be any evidence as to whether it was loaded with ball or slugs, but the impression is that it was loaded with a ball. A search has been made in order to endeavor to discover the bullet, if possible, but as yet the result has not been successful. Colonel Arbuthnot and Colonel Wyld were close to the royal carriage when the pistol was fired. We understand the prisoner was so close to them that the smoke came into their faces, and that they are of opinion, if the shot had taken effect it would have been more likely to have injured one of them than either her Majesty or her illustrious consort.

When the news was known to the two Houses of Parliament, they immediately adjourned. The Palace was thronged with enquirers after Her Majesty, and the whole town was in a state of the greatest excitement.

The assassin was examined before the Privy Council, and conveyed the same night to Newgate.

The prisoner, who was narrowly watched, passed a very quiet night, and although often visited by the governor, he did not enter into any conversation, or make the least allusion to his diabolical offence, or the motives by which he was actuated. He was stripped, and most carefully searched when he arrived at the prison, but nothing was found on his person of a suspicious character. There is not the least impression that he is insane, or laboring under any aberration of intellect; but the contrary is evident, and he was as cool and collected as possible.

The house of the prisoner's father was minutely searched, but nothing whatever of a suspicious character was found. No paper or writings of any kind which could give rise to the least suspicion that the miscreant has any accomplices having been discovered, it is considered the rash act of an isolated individual.

It has been stated that Her Majesty was not aware of the attempt having been made, until informed after her arrival at the Palace, but an eye-witness informs us that he has no doubt that she observed the flash of the pistol, as she became so much agitated that she was only prevented from falling by Prince Albert supporting her.

As soon as the Queen and Prince Albert returned to the Palace, Count Mensdorf went over in one of the royal carriages to the Duchess of Kent, at Clarence House, St. James; and after communicating in the most delicate manner what had occurred, instantly returned to Buckingham Palace with Her Majesty, (whose nerves did not appear in the slightest degree shaken,) in the most warm, affectionate, and at the same time, cheerful manner. The Duchess of Kent was, on the other hand, deeply affected, and fell upon Her Majesty's neck, shedding a flood of tears. The Queen, however, gaily caressed her royal mother, and assured her that she had not sustained the slightest alarm or inconvenience, and that there were no grounds for a alarm.

Her Majesty's evening party was put off by the Queen's command. The usual dinner party was given, at which the Queen and Prince Albert attended, who appeared cheerful and thoughtful; yet a serious tone was manifest in the guests, although truly grateful for the escape of Her Majesty.

The news of Her Majesty's escape was received with the warmest demonstrations of joy at all the places of public amusement in the metropolis, and indeed throughout the country.

The Queen and her royal consort, on the following evening, visited Hyde Park.

On Her Majesty's entering the Park the cheering from the gentlemen and the waving of handkerchiefs by the ladies were general, and not a head was covered during the passage of the Queen down the ride; indeed the delight of all classes, assembled apparently to offer homage to the illustrious presence of their sovereign, can be but feebly described, and the rap or acclamations that saluted the royal car were such as to affect Her Majesty, who was evidently overcome by the display of public affection evinced on the occasion.

Subsequently the Queen and Prince Albert attended the performances at Her Majesty's Theatre, and were very warmly congratulated.

As in the case of Oxford, the overt act of treason being a direct attack upon the life of Her Majesty, the ordinary forms in cases of high treason will not apply, and the culprit will be tried in the ordinary form. If the pistol had not exploded, the offence of attempting to shoot, supposing the weapon to have been loaded, is one of equal magnitude as if it had been actually discharged, and the circumstance of the failure to explode would not, in the slightest degree, mitigate the character of the offence, or the punishment to which the party convicted of it would be liable, if found guilty.

It appears that an attempt had been made upon Her Majesty's life on Sunday. A Mr. Pearson states that on Sunday, about two o'clock, while walking in St. James's park, he saw the carriage containing Her Majesty Prince Albert, and suite, approaching from the Chapel Royal, and when near to the lute gate leading out of the drive into the Green park, he saw a young man who was standing near him with his back to the rails, pull a pistol out of his breast, and as the Queen's carriage passed, present the weapon at it, but whether he pulled the trigger he could not positively say. At any rate the pistol did not go off, and no sooner had the carriage passed than the individual returned the weapon to his breast. Mr. Pearson having unfortunately a most serious impediment in his speech may account, in some measure, for his not having raised an instant alarm. He admits, also, that he at first considered the exhibition of the pistol was out of a frolic, and not seeing any policeman near, considered the party would be out of sight before he could make persons understand his meaning.

On Monday night, after the removal of Francis from the Home Office to Tottil fields Bridewell, Mr. Pearson was shown the pistol taken on the prisoner, when he expressed the firm belief that it was the same pistol which he had seen the individual pull out as above described, and on Tuesday morning, on being taken about 9 o'clock to the Bridewell, and shown the prisoner, he immediately identified him to be the person.

This attempt had been "hushed up;" and although it was known that something had occurred, few persons, even within the walls of the palace, had been made acquainted with the circumstance. The second attempt, however, precluded all concealment, and considerable alarm was experienced at the determined spirit which had induced the miscreant again to endanger the life of our beloved Sovereign.

The prisoner was again examined before the Privy Council on Tuesday. The inquiry occupied until nearly four o'clock; at its conclusion a warrant was immediately made out and signed by the Secretary of State, fully committing the prisoner to Newgate to take his trial at the next sessions of the Central Court, on the charge of having attempted to take away the life of Her Majesty.

The letters received from Lancashire and Yorkshire are a little more satisfactory. The slight improvement felt in Manchester at the date of our last paper, has been so far sustained, but much will depend on the tenor of the accounts by the Indian mail whether the ground gained can be preserved.

Money continues to be plentiful, though on Wednesday and Thursday higher rates were required in the discount market. Large houses obtained readily three and a half per cent. for 1st class paper.

The weather is still delightful fine, and there is a fair promise of abundant crops.

The Indian mail which arrived at Marseilles on Wednesday night, brings we lament to say, an account of the fall of Ghuznee. The place capitulated and surrendered, on condition that the garrison be safely conducted to Cabool. On the other hand, Colonel Pollock had forced the Khyber Pass, and taken possession of the Forts commanding it, and would, no doubt, march to the relief of Jellalabad. General Sale, in a sortie from that place overthrew the insurgents.

A rumour prevailed that Akbar Khan had been badly wounded.

General Knott had gained some advantage on the side of Kandahar, but General England had not yet joined him. It was reported that Shab Soojah had been poisoned.

Liverpool Timber Market, June 4.—Staves.

There has been rather more inquiry for standard Staves, and several parcels, all pine lengths, have been sold at £40 to £50 per M. Inferior are not worth more than £30 per M. Pinecones Staves are quite unsaleable; these may be quoted at £10 to £15 per M. Ash Hoghead Staves are worth £7 per M.

Pine.—A quantity of Quebec Pine, of second quality, has lately been forced off by auction, at 13d. per foot, but Quebec Pine of first quality is still selling at 15d. per foot to consumers. A parcel of St. John Pine, of fair quality, was sold by auction at 18d. per foot. The consumption of Pine Timber, as compared with that of former years, has certainly fallen off, still the quantity taken out of the market the past four months, has averaged 350,000 feet per month.

Red Pine.—Quebec Red Pine, of large size, is inquired after, and would sell at 22d. to 23d. per foot—common 21d. per foot. St. John Red Pine is 15d. to 16d. per foot.

Pitch Pine.—This market is overstocked with Pitch Pine. It has been sold as low as 22d. per foot.

Birch.—St. John Birch is worth 16d. to 18d. per foot, and Picton Birch in cargo, 13d. to 13d. per foot.

Deals.—Of common quality, may be quoted at 2 1-4d. per foot of two inches, and first quality deals at 2 1-2d. to 2 1-2d. per foot of two inches.

UNITED STATES.

Floren.—Boston, June 17.—The arrivals having been quite large, has caused less activity in the market and some decline on former prices. Genesee is dull of sale at 6 1-2 a 6 25 and other description at 5 87 a $6 per bbl, cash and 4 mos cr.

Woolen Manufactures.—The Woolen Manufacturers of Boston and vicinity, recently presented to the House of Representatives, a memorial, showing the magnitude of this branch of industry, and asking for a specific duty, or the introduction of a minimum on Woolens.

It is estimated that there are 20,000,000 sheep in the United States, worth $40,000,000, consuming the produce of 10,000,000 acres of land. The wool manufactured is estimated at 50,000,000 pounds, and that persons dependent on the manufacture, and raising of this article, are 150,000,000, that the amount of Capital invested in machinery, buildings, &c. considerably exceeds $20,000,000.

It is asserted that the ad valorem duties imposed by Congress, for purposes of protection to this branch of industry have completely failed. False invoices and representation of cost abroad, are alleged causes; the duties on the raw material frequently exceeding those on the manufactured article. The injury to American agriculture and labor has been so extensive, by the frauds thus practised, that the American producer is almost wholly deprived of the home market, by foreign competition. The memorialists say:—

"In England, the duties are generally specific, and no oath is required on entering goods; and our experience justifies the assertion, that a Yorkshire manufacturer, when he comes to enter goods at the custom-house in the United States, regards an oath as a matter of form, and such oath has no efficacy to prevent false invoices under an ad valorem system."

And whilst the ad valorem duty has deprived those engaged of a just compensation for their capital and skill, it has also deprived the Government of their intended and just revenue.

Wheeler Markets.—They live well and cheaply at Wheeler, Pa. The following is from the Gazette of that city. Our markets have been most abundantly supplied for some time past. The following are the prices of some of the articles: Meats 2 1-2 cts. per lb; Butter 6 1-2 1-2; Eggs 5-6 per dozen; Turkeys 6 1-2 per bunch; Cabbage 1 1-2 cts per head; Peas 25 cts. per peck; Cucumbers 4 1-2 cts. apiece; Strawberries 8 1-2 1-2 per quart; Cherries 6 1-2 cts. per quart.

Deliberate Murder.—A poor white woman named Fanny Garrett, wife of Stephen Garrett, living near Jamestown, Martin county, N. C., went on the 1st inst. to the orchard of a man by the name of William Watson, who lived in her neighborhood, and was in the act of picking up a few plums, when she was discovered by Watson, who very deliberately left his work, went to the house and got his gun, walked back towards her until near enough to shoot, took deliberate aim, and shot the poor inoffensive woman dead on the spot, and left her weltering in blood. Watson is about 65 years of age. He alleges that the woman had conjured him. He was arrested and imprisoned for trial.

A Hard Case.—One of the Texan prisoners, recently liberated at Mexico, by Mr. Pakenham, was robbed of his all on the road to Vera Cruz. He had found friends who assisted him in purchasing clothes and other necessities, and with means to pay his way home. About six miles this side of Puebla, a noted place for banditti, the stage was attacked, and as none of the passengers were armed they were compelled to go through the common process of lying down quietly upon their faces and submit to being stripped.

The United States Bank for Sale. Sheriff Morris, of Philadelphia, advertises that the splendid building of the United States Bank, and the lot upon which it stands, will be sold at auction on the 2d of July.

In Arkansas they call a coat of tar and feathers "a protective tariff."

Along on the Ocean!—The Newburyport Herald says that the brig James Caskey, Capt Pillsbury, arrived at that port from Cadiz, picked up adrift in an open boat on the ocean, about 100 miles from Cape St. Vincent, without oar, rudder, provisions or water, a young Portuguese, about fifteen years old. His only aid was a broken spar, used as a mast, with an old piece of canvas attached. He was taken on board in a nearly starving and exhausted condition. When discovered, it was blowing quite fresh, the brig being under two-reefed topsails, and in the course of the following night it blew a hard gale, when, but for the providential rescue, the lad would have been lost. Being unable to speak at all in English, he cannot give any account of himself to the people on board.—Boston Mercantile Journal.

Wheat Crop in Arkansas.—The Arkansas State Gazette of May 18, says:—"Our farmers in Saline county have already harvested their wheat crops, and we understand it comes in very fine—fully as productive as in the old grain-growing states. We would advise those who pretend to send any to this market to send soon. New flour in May would be a treat which few of us have enjoyed."

The Ladies.—We go for the ladies out west, for they have resolved not to marry a man who does not take a newspaper, and what is still better, they won't let a fellow look at them if he owe the printer more than a year.—Exchange paper.

We go for the ladies Down East, for they have resolved not to marry a man, who does not pay for his paper on subscription—and what is still better, they won't let an Editor look at them who is fool enough to send his paper, without advance pay.—Down East ladies against the world, we say.—Portland Tribune.

A Poser.—As a teacher of the "young ideas," was employed, the other day, in his "delightful task" of learning a sharp-urchin to cipher on a slate, the precocious pupil put the following question to his instructor: "Where did the figures gang till when they're rubb'd?"

Encouraging to Mechanics.—By the Madison Indiana Courier, we learn that the municipal officers of that place are all filled by mechanics. The Courier says:—

"Our Mayor is a cabinet maker, our Marshal a blacksmith, the City Attorney a plasterer, the Secretary a Carpenter, the Assessor a Pattern maker, the Collector a Tobaccoist, and three of the nine Councilmen are Tailors, two are Carpenters, one a Millwright, and one a Fan Mill maker. Let any one city in the United States beat us if they can. Who will say we are not working men."

A Pleasant Place to reside in.—The condition of Cairo, Ill, which some time since was set down on the speculator's map as a very large flourishing, and very pleasantly situated town, is described as follows:—

"The water is about five feet all round the houses, and the frogs are so busy trying to find logs to sit upon, that they have stopped croaking entirely. The boat on board of which the writer was, hailed one of the houses in the evening, thinking it was a steamboat, the pilot took the windows for 'stern lights.' On finding that he was right in town, with his steamboat, and the house was a tavern, the captain pulled up, and every body 'figured.'"

HALIFAX, 16th June.—Something Ahead!—Her Majesty's steam-ship "Rhodanthe" arrived at this port 1st evening at 5 o'clock, in 17 days from Plymouth en-route to New-York, with Special Messengers on board, carrying despatches for His Excellency Lord Viscount Falkland, and for Lord Ashburton, Her Britannic Majesty's Minister at Washington.—Post.

PROVINCIAL.

We understand that the Reverend Robert Wilson, A. M., Minister of Saint Andrews Church in this city, has resigned his pastoral charge.—Courier.

Steamer John McAdam.—The sailing of this vessel from Liverpool for Pictou, Prince Edward Island and Miramichi, we observe by the Liverpool Chronicle of the 21st of May, had been postponed to the 1st June. She was to touch at Cork and at St. John's, N.F. for fresh supplies of coals.—Id.

Bishop Fraser of the Catholic Church in Nova-Scotia, has been raised by the Court of Rome, from the nominal rank of Bishop of Taten, to the dignity of Bishop of Halifax, investing him, without any restriction whatever, with the fullest powers pertaining to the Episcopal office.—Ibid.

Fires in the Woods.—We learn from the Miramichi Gleaner, that several buildings on the North West and a large amount of fencing in different directions were destroyed by fires which had been raging in the woods in the immediate vicinity of the settlement on both sides of the river for some days previous to Saturday last, when they were extinguished by a heavy rain.—The Gleaner recommends a more stringent law than at present exists, with reference to persons setting fire to brush on land at an unreasonable period of the year, even the present one, defective as it is does not appear to be enforced.

The Woodstock Dwelling house situated at 10 was destroyed by Loss estimated at the 2nd inst. Charles S. Apple destroyed £300. In both nature, clothing.

ARRIVAL OF THE BRITANNIA.
The steamship Britannia arrived at Hal-fax on the 15th inst., in 11 days, bringing Liverpool papers to the 4th and London to the 3rd inst. A synopsis of the most important items of news will be found in our columns.

The most important item, we regret to say, is a most villainous attempt to assassinate our beloved Queen. We are happy to state, however, that an all-wise Providence averted the blow, and that the miscreant is in custody. The House of Lords and the Corporation of Liverpool presented addresses of congratulation to Her Majesty, on her providential escape from the diabolical attempt upon her life, and another to Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Kent, sympathizing in her feelings, and thanking the Almighty for his signal mercy.

The right of search, and the commercial relations between France and the United States, have lately been discussed in the Chamber of Deputies at Paris, and by the journals. Some further obstacle has been started at Lisbon to the completion of the Portuguese treaty with Great Britain.

In Spain there is likely to be another change of ministry.
There is no news from China.

DR. ALEXANDER MACLEAN.
It gives us great pleasure to notice, that the pious, talented and beloved Pastor of the Scottish Church of this town, the Rev. A. Mac-Lean, A. M., has had the degree of D. D. conferred upon him by the University of Glasgow, where he graduated. The Editor of the Courier in noticing the above, passes the following well-merited encomium, to which we can bear testimony.

“His ministerial duties are highly appreciated by the congregation among whom he labors, being discharged with great credit to himself and satisfaction to his parishioners;
and during times of much discouragement and pecuniary difficulty, he has depicted himself in a manner to command the respect of every right thinking person in the community.”

NEW PAPER.—The first number of a new paper called “THE REPORTER” was issued at St. John on Saturday morning last, edited by R. Percival Robinson Esq., a gentleman of talent.—It is to be published on Mondays.
—We welcome the Reporter into the ranks of the Provincial journals.

FROST AND SNOW IN JUNE!—We learn from our American papers that many of the States have been visited by frosts, and in Bennington, Vermont, snow fell all day.
Vegetation has suffered severely by these unseasonable visitations. It appears, however, that it has been warm enough in New-Orleans. On the 4th, the thermometer averaging quite as high as during the hottest portion of the summer months.

In every civilized country throughout the world, the human hair is always found to be a subject of peculiar attention. Of the numerous compounds professing to promote or reproduce the hair, few have survived—even in name, whilst ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL, with a reputation already unparalleled, is still on the increase in public estimation; which fact, together with innumerable testimonials (for perusal at the proprietors,) is sufficient to satisfy the most incredulous as to its sovereign virtues so repeatedly shown in restoring, preserving, and beautifying the human hair.

In Dressing the Hair, nothing can equal the effects of “Rowland's Macassar Oil,” on either Natural or Artificial Hair, rendering it so admirably soft, that it will lie in any direction: it produces beautiful flowing curls, and by the transcendent lustre it imparts, renders the head dress truly enchanting! It preserves the coiffure in the heated atmosphere of the ball room, and neutralizes the effects of a damp atmosphere or violent exercise.

HEADACHE.

CERTAIN CURE FOR HEADACHE, which has been used in families every member of which has had some kind of headache, as a constitutional family complaint, and has cured effectively in every instance yet known, amounting to many hundreds. It is not unlike salt to the taste, and does not prevent the daily avocations of one using it; it must be preserved in, and the cure is gradual, but certain and permanent. In cases are constantly multiplying where this distressing complaint is completely relieved and cured, although of long standing. One decided preference is its pleasantness, having none of the nauseating effect of common drugs.

It is so perfectly salutary, that the proprietor has given directions for his agent to refund the price to any one who is not pleased with, and cured by it. He hopes also that this may secure the great benefits to the distressed sufferers who are labouring under headache.

From the New York Herald.

MYSTERIOUS.

A gentleman belonging to one of the most ancient and wealthy families of this city, who must be well known to numerous friends, having since the year 1815 up to recently, been bent nearly double, and for several years confined to his bed, has been restored to good health—has regained his natural erect position—and has quitted his carriage, and now walks with ease. We believe this is the gentleman's own description as near as possible, and there is no exaggeration in it. We will give his address, and doubt not his humane feelings will excuse the liberty, so that any one doubting may know these facts—though he requests his name may not appear in print. Among other similar instances, Mr. James G. Reynolds, 141 Christie street, has been restored, and will give personal assurance of the facts of his case. Both were like tumours, and contracted colds & winds. How has this been done?

TEMPERANCE LIFE-BITTERS,

AND

CHINESE BLOOD-PILLS.

The greatest Secret discovered!

PURGE—purge—purge—has been the cry for the last few years. This has been effectually tried, and yet sufferers have multiplied—and died, and why? Not because purging was not necessary, but too much has been done—without the time to follow, and sustain the system. Purge, you must! The sickly humours of the blood must be carried off—the accumulation of them prevented. Prevent, then, the growth of such humours.

Why do the Chinese live so much longer than we?—Because they purify the blood. The Chinese Blood Pills—so called because they work upon the blood—will do it. The standard remedy—these pills will do it. The standard remedy—these pills will do it.

taken as directed, will strengthen the system and prevent the accumulation of the base humours which infect the blood, and which only increase by purges and the bitter and salts. Take weekly the pills and daily the bitters, and if you are or have been invalid for days, weeks, months or years, you will find the sickly humours drawn off, and prevented from returning, and the salutary yellow line of health & youth full buoyancy.

There are cases so numerous of these brilliant effects, that time and space forbid an attempt to put them down. Buy and use these medicines, and use no other, and health and strength shall be yours. See wrapper and directions that come with them.

FRAUDEULENT COUNTERFEITS will be detected. Buy no remedy of the kind unless it have my name—O. C. LIN, M. D.—on the wrapper, and also the notice as follows:—

"Entered according to Act of Congress, A.D. 1841 by Thomas Conner, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the United States, for the Southern District of New York."

Warned the only genuine.

There is no trouble in removing it from the hair, as in all powders before used. By an occasional application, a person turning grey will never be known to have a grey hair. Directions accompany the article. There is no coloring in the statement, or one can easily test.

This dye is sold only by COMSTOCK & CO. 71 Maiden Lane, New York.

OLD DRUGS

BALM OF COLUMBIA.

THIS article was first introduced into New York City about a century or more ago, and from its superior virtues in restoring hair, when it had fallen out, keeping the head free from dandrif, (a most loathsome article on a gentleman's coat collar) and giving a fine and beautiful hue to the hair, has induced some persons to set up and advertise many other articles for the same purpose, none of which stand the test of trial, professing as most of them do, to be of various kinds, all of which are positively injurious to the human hair. Let none be deceived, no other article will make the hair grow rapidly and of a good quality but the Balm of Columbia, and no article purporting to be the Balm of Columbia is genuine without the name of COMSTOCK & CO. on the wrapper. Some have been deceived, and obtained a counterfeit article for the true and genuine Balm of Columbia. Remember to look for the name of COMSTOCK & CO. on the wrapper.

10 COPIES A YEAR FOR $10!

The handsomest and cheapest Periodical for the Young.

Every Youth's Gazette.

Illustrated by Elegant Engravings.

TO BE PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

ON Saturday the 22d day of January, will be commenced the editing and publishing of a new weekly paper, which will be called "EVERY YOUTH'S GAZETTE." It will be of the quarto form, containing eight pages similar to the New York Mirror. Every number will be embellished with BEAUTIFUL PICTURES.

The contents will be for the most part original, and adapted to the wants and capacities of youthful readers. Not only will the exclusive services of an accomplished Editor be given to the work, but the talents many popular writers will be enlisted in its support.

All the new popular works for children which appear in England will be obtained; and from these the best articles will be chosen and published entire in the columns of the Gazette, together with the engravings by which they may be illustrated. Thus, in our catalogue of contributors, there will be many names, dear and familiar to the young—Miss Edgeworth, Mrs. Holland, Mrs. Howitt, Miss Martineau, Mrs. Barwell, Miss Mitford, Mrs. S. C. Hall, Joanna Baillie, Mrs. Southey, Miss Cole, and others. Thus, at a price far less than that for which such works could be reprinted in the shape of books in this country, will the most excellent treatises and stories for the young be presented.

Arrangements will also be made to obtain original articles by favorite American authors.

A pure moral tone will pervade every sentence of the new periodical. Every thing like sectarian, religious, or political bias will be sedulously avoided. In fine, the Journal will be adapted to the tastes and capacities of all children, and thus testify its value.

EVERY YOUTH'S GAZETTE will, on and after the 22d of January, be issued on Saturday mornings, at the office of
