GLADSTONE'S ESTATE VALUED

AT $297,530. London, Sept. 6.—The will of the late Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone has been probated. It shows that his personal estate is valued at £59,506. Mr. Gladstone's will was written by himself in an ordinary memorandum book. It is a document of about 2,000 words, and is a remarkable specimen of penmanship. The second clause of the will has reference to the funeral arrangements, and says: "Commending myself to the infinite mercles of God in the Incarnate Son as my only and sufficient hope, I leave the particulars of my burial to my executors, specifying only that they be very simple and private, unless that there be conclusive

directions to the contrary. And where I am buried I desire that my wife shall also lie. On no account shall a laudatory inscription be placed over me." After appointing his sons his executors, the will charges the future possessor of Hawarden to remember that, as the head of the family, it will be his duty to extend good offices to other members thereof, according to his ability, and their manifest needs and merits. The rest of the document leaves souvenirs to servants, and bequeaths to his grandson, William, as heirlooms, all patents of crown offices held by the testator, and books and prints presented to him by the Queen, letters from the Queen, etc. The will bears date of Nov. 26, 1896.

Yesterday was Labor Day, and workmen all over the Dominion laid down their tools for a day of rest and recreation. The smoke from the numerous factory chimneys which ascends in volumes with the rising of the sun, was wanting, and the clang and clatter of the "shop" were for a while forgotten. In London, as in other places, the day was looked forward to with pleasurable expectation, as preparations for its observance had been in progress for weeks. Every day and all day long in the printing offices

"The weary press beneath its burden groans, And printers' devils shake their weary -Byron. bones."

Yesterday these busy "devils" took a day off, and instead of shaking their bones in the printing office, shook them in the procession. A collection of apprentices from the different establishment, including Charles Watling, Frank Plant, Alfred Lyttle, M. Mc-Lean, Ernest Knowles and Charles Upshall, were uniformed in a blazing | year. red garb from head to foot, and, protruding from the headgear of each, were the regulation satanic horns. Over their shoulders they carried devils' pitchforks, and bobbed up serenely here and there as though fresh from the "regions infernal." Decorated rigs and delivery wagons representing different industries and mercantile concerns, with gaily caparisoned herses, gathered from all parts of the city to the Market Square, where the procession formed up about 11 o'clock. The day was threatening, and the showers of the morning had the effect of dampening the ardor of many an enthusiast; but Old Sol's rays dispersed the gloom, and before the proceedings started there was every evidence that the weather would be most pleasant, which it was. In anticipation of the rush, enterprising vendors had rented booths and stored them well with all kinds of cooling drinks, fruits, cigars, etc. Signs used at the last Western Fair still hung over the doors, and "Hot Lunches, 15 was one which occupied a conspicuous place over a collection of ice drinks and peanuts. Fakirs with wheels of fortune took up good positions, but the police appeared and ordered them off the grounds. There was also the usual quota of small boys, who lugged around baskets of pop and peanuts, and importuned people to

THE PROCESSION.

The parade was eagerly looked for by thousands of citizens, who thronged the streets to see it. They waited on every corner, and seemed not to tire with the long delay. The procession, timed to leave at 10 o'clock, was delayed half an hour, as the different unions were slow in arriving at the Market Square. When formed the rain caused another delay, as the paraders sought shelter in every available place. The Seventh led the column, which, with the "Union Jack" and "Old Glory" at its head, marched from the market east along King street to the fair grounds. The aldermen in carriages came next. The make-up of the procession was in some respects more attractive than in former years, but not quite so large, possibly on account of the rain. The 'Rube Band" was there, made up with painted faces and dressed in the most outlandish costumes. The Advertiser carrier boys, with a banner to which were attached ribbons of red, white and blue for each of the boys, was favorably commented on by many

Dress Parade of the Different Or- as they passed along. The print-ers made a fine showing. London Typographical Union, No. 133, marched three abreast, to the number of about fifty, marshalled by C. Fewings and C. Knowles. wore hats of red, white and blue, a light striped linen coat, and carried canes. They also were decorated with beautiful button-hole boquets of white carnations, which were kindly donated by Messrs. Gammage & Sons. The line was formed so as to place the red on the left, white in the center and blue on the right, and was very effective. Along the line of march when the band was playing they carried the canes with both hands across their shoulders, which, along with their steady marching, proved a noticeable feature. The "printers' devils" who marched ahead of the printers provoked much laughter by their freaks. They were costumed by Mr. Alf. Holman, and the attention which was paid them along the route of march was a proof of the success of his efforts in their "make-up." The Cigarmakers' Union made the best showing numerically, and were headed by Mr. J. E. Moran, of 418 Hill street, who has just returned from Cuba, and wore the uniform of his regiment, the Thirty-fourth, of Michigan, which took part in the capture of Santiago. Buffers', Platers' and Polishers' Union, No. 32, was composed largely of employes of the McClary Manufacturing Company, and brought along a nickel-plated stove as a specimen of their work.

The Coopers' Union was largely represented and wore badges. The Iron Molders' Union, which won the handsome water pitcher presented by Mr. Thomas Gillean for the best-dressed body in the procession, was about 50 strong. The Painters' and Decorators' Union, No. 9, brought up the rear, accompanied by banners and wagons, in which workmen were engaged in the several departments of the trade. The first of four banners bore the name and number of the union. The second read: "A stitch in time saves nine. So does a coat of paint. We are the boys to do it." A third bore the following: "Painters' Union, No. 97. The best men are in it. The trade that beautifies your home." "If a man's in love, it's his biz; if a girl's in love, it's her biz; but if they get married, it's our biz to decorate their home," was the information imparted by the fourth ban-

Following the unions came the delivery rigs of butchers, grocery, wood and coal merchants, laundries, dairyharness-makers, confectioners, etc., prettily decorated, and the horses caparisoned with ribbons and rosettes. Among them the following were represented: Parisian Steam Laundry, J. H. Gatecliffe, F. Myers, Campbell & Chantler, London Laundry, W. Hea-man, E. Edworthy, J. Darch & Sons, G. W. Kent, E. Tanton, J. PARK. Thousands of citizens, when the procession passed, wended their way to Queen's Park, where the day was leasantly spent. The Musical Society Band, under Mr. Fred L. Evans, which arrived shortly after 1 o'clock, brought another large concourse of people, and nearly 3,000 persons piled into the spacious grand stand, while about 1,000 more occupied points of vantage to witness the interesting programme of sporting events and attractions that had been arranged. These consisted of games, high rope walking, acrobatic feats, trick bicycle riding, vocal and intrumental music, the "Rube Band," etc. The track was heavy and wet, with the aid of a team of horses and a drag, it was made fairly good in a short time. The games, through good management, were pulled off without a hitch. For lack of entries two or three events were struck from the list, but they were never missed, as there were 22 contests, and they were sufficient.

The boys' race was most amusing, as in this the printers' devils showed

The bicycle races were watched with eagerness, and the local champion, F. Deeley, who left the scratch alone in the three-mile race, was lustily cheered as he gained on his opponents and finally passed them near the wire. Dean gave him a hard chase, as he and only a foot or two to spare. Ald. Dreaney's smiling face was seen to advantage in the judge's stand, whence waved the red rag that started the jockey races.

The foot races were run first. Mr. Thomas Gillean actes as official starter in a most sportsman-like manner, and Wm. Burleigh, Wm. McGeary, Wm. Lyons, James Hiscock, George Talbot, Wm. Lamerton, Ald. O'Meara, Ald. Cooper, Ald. Nutkins and Ald. Graham as judges. As Ald. O'Meara and Graham were the only city fathers at all accustomed to "trip the light fantastic," they were requested to act as judges in the dancing competition. The former gentleman had seen jigs in the Emerald Isle, and knew when they were done in good Irish style, while the latter is an authority on the national dances of Scotland. Ald. Charles M. Graham, on behalf of the corporation of the city of London, delivered the opening address of welcome. He spoke of the high standard of labor this city possessed, the splen-did character of workmen generally, and of the great harmony which prevailed between employer and employe. The city ranks high, he said, from an educational standpoint, which fact he was inclined to believe was responsible for the high standard of the workingman. Another evidence of the thrift and frugality of London's workingmen was that most of them owned their own homes, and that the greater number of the members of the unions here were men who had been born and raised in the city. Ald. Graham congratulated the working people on the manner in which they observed the Sabbath. It was one of the workngman's greatest blessings, and he oped they would ever continue to observe it as they did now. The speaker paid a high tribute to the ladies. He, claimed that association with true womanhood was probably the chief cause zens, and thanked them for their patronage. It was only a few years ago, he said, when the majority of people considered a union man was little short of an anarchist. But times had changed, and competition had rendered necessary the banding together of unions in every branch of trade, which were consolidated in the Trades and Labor Council. People now regarded them as a most important factor in the community. Unions were not organized as a means of extortion, but for the higher purpose of securing justice to themselves, without injury to others.

The most welcome attraction for the committee men and other interested parties, who had toiled all afternoon was the refreshment booth, where a bountiful supply of substantial eat-ables and drinkables had been provided. It is needless to say that these were punished with vigor. With the shades of evening another concourse of people, possibly over 2,000, gathered in the grounds and on the grand stand for the evening performance. The ar-rival of the Seventh Band, under Bandmaster Roselle Pococke, 15 strong, about 8 o'clock was the signal for a grand rush to the stand. The attrac-tion as far as the "Rube Band"

The singing of this grotesque aggregation was repeatedly encored. Mr. M. McKeough took the leading part, introducing the latest songs to an ac-companiment played by F. Gruber. The prize in the illuminated bicycle parade was awarded to Frank Plant The feature of the evening then followed-the presentation of the handsome silver water pitcher and goblet to the Molders' Union, whom Ald. to the Molders Union, Whom Aid, Graham, Nutkins, O'Meara, Geary, Dreaney, Belton and School Trustee Gillean, who acted as judges, had se-lected as the best-dressed body of men in the procession. The molders formed up on the platform opposite the grand stand, while Mr. Frank Plant, sen., a well-known enthusiast in labor circles, presented the trophy in a neat speech on behalf of the Trades and Labor Council of London, He expressed the pleasure such an oppor-tunity afforded. The judges had had a difficult task in arriving at the conclusion as to whom the prize belonged, and had chosen the molders, a strong and worthy organization. was pleased to say that the printers had stood a good second place, but a miss was as good as a mile. Had not the rain interfered with the morning preparations, there would have been more organizations in the parade. The trophy was handed to Mr. F. Pace, expresident of the Molders' Union amid In replying Mr. Pace thanked the presenter for the tribute he had paid the molders. He accepted the prize with pleasure, and tendered the thanks of the union. Next year he promised a better and bigger turnout. Then came the music, wire walking and juggling. Frank Lawrence, the trick bicyclist, who is a wonder in his way, gave another exhibition of his skill, which needs only to be seen to be highly appreciated. The Seventh Male Quartet, Messrs. E. Westman, T. Adams, G. W. Stevenson and H. R. McDonald, made a decided hit in their rendition, and were loudly applauded. The Seventh Band played a lengthy programme of choice selections, which terminated with a grand national fantasia, "Episodes in a Soldier's Life," n which a firing party, under command of Sergt. Ross, took a very important part. "God Save the Queen"

The energetic committee who had the affair in hand was composed of Frank Plant, chairman; Wm. McGeary, vice-chairman; W. Burleigh, treasurer; W. Hunter, secretary; Wm. Lyons, George Hills, Jos. T.  The Cockneys and Babes broke even yesterday at Tecumseh Park. Even so far as the score was concerned, but the honors were not quite equal. The tailenders won a clean victory in the morning, and the locals had to be contented with a donation in the afternoon. Although the afternoon game was practically clinched by London before Chatham threw up the sponge, there was still a fighting chance for the Babes had they continued. A game is never lost until the last man is out, and this glorious uncertainty of baseball might easily have been illustrated in that ninth inning, which did not materialize. A forfeited game causes all-round dissatisfaction, and it is time the Babes outgrew their pettishness, which has already brought about two such unsatisfactory terminations at Tecumseh Park this sea-The forbidding weather in the morning was responsible for a small attendance-about 500-and the rainsoaked grounds materially affected the article of ball put up by both teams. The attendance in the afternoon was nearly 1,500.

Crowe did not steady down until after the fatal second, in which five runs were scored on a double six singles and a base on balls. After that only one tally was made by the Babes -Jones' home run in the fifth. Almost a triple play was made in the ninth, in this way: Conklin and McCann each singled; Jones hit to Keenan, who touched Conklin on his way to third, and threw McCann out at second; Mohler passed the ball on and gave Jones a close call at first. Meara's running one-hand catch of a fly off 'Reid's bat in the fifth was the prettiest catch of the season and the feature of the game.

London was unable to hit Watkins, the ex-Bay City pitcher, who was in the box for the Babes, and did superb work throughout, A string of fielding errors gave the locals their three runs in the fifth. In this inning the visitors seemed hypnotized, Watkins alone keeping his head cool. He probably realized that the only way of retiring the side was by three strike-outs, and rose to the occasion. In the sixth Hagerman got a base on balls, and was batted around. The score:

The Last of the Dervishes.

The victory at Omdurman will rank as one of the most brilliant in the annals of British military achievement. The magnitude of the engagement and overwhelming triumph of the British-Egyptian forces, entitle it to this distinction; but the victory be comes even more lustrous when the nature of the whole campaign is considered. The result of the battle was a foregone conclusion. The supreme genius of the campaign was shown not so much in the clash of arms as in the extraordinary prescience of Sir Herbert Kitchener and his colleagues. Their plans were two seem to have been absolutely perfect. The whole movement has been as precise as clock-work. As an exhibition of scientific warfare it has few parallels in this century.

The results of the victory are farreaching. The hideous despotism of the Khalifa extended over a fertile region of 760,000 square miles, containing 11,000,000 people. His has been R reign of terror, bloodshed, slavery other barbaric horror. The purpose of the British was more purely of the Khalifa. Lord Salisbury recent-"The Soudan invasion, if safely accomplished, will be the greatfor civilization in which has participated for two or three generations." Those who have most cause for jubilation are the native Soudanese, who have been under the cruelest coercion, and at heart are friendly to the invaders.

The victory adds enormously to the prestige of Great Britain in the East, nd will have a wholesome effect on whom there are tens of millions. The abolition of slavery in the Soudan, the establishment of law and order, and the opening up of the vast territory to commerce and missionary effort are chief among the train of blessings which follow the victory of Omdur-

Co-operation in City Refuse Removal.

Ottawa civic authorities are wrestling with a subject that interests every progressive municipality. It is trying to discover the best means of keeping Its streets, alleys and back-yards clean. It has been proposed to inaugurate the civic co-operative system, whereby there can be established a periodical collection of all refuse from every premises in the city, as has for years been the case with all progressive municipal-Ities of any size on the continent.

As is always the case when a reform of this kind is proposed, the first thing that the old fogies do is to raise the question of the expense. It will cost several thousand dollars a year; therefore the system should not be adopted. The first question that should be settled is whether it is advisable to have the city kept clean. On that point there should be no two opinions among intelligent people. The sanitary experts tell us that good health cannot be guaranteed to a community that is not scrupulously careful of its surroundings; and it is an ascertained fact that if all kinds of filth are allowed to accumulate in the spaces surrounding the dwellings of the people, they must suffer in health, and perhaps lose their lives through this neglect to observe the laws of nature. It is admitted, therefore, that it is a good thing to have filth removed at as early a date as can be arranged.

The only question that remains is as to how this can be most efficiently and economically done. We are not surprised that Ottawa has found its present happy-go-lucky system a failure. In a matter of this kind, where individual choice is the rule, and where the cleanly citizen is apt to suffer for the shortcomings of his neighbor, rather than assume the role of informer, which is distasteful to most zeople, the results of the system of individual action, or inaction, as is the case in this city in common with Ottawa, are most unsatisfactory. Ah! say the opponents of change, you do not think of the expense. The expense under a thoroughly efficient civic co-operative system, such as a member of The Advertiser staff found in Hamilton-the much-despised in some things-on a visit to that city, the other day, is really less than under a happy-go-lucky, every-man-for-himself system, such as we in London fidence.

have. Now we have only a yearly, or, at most, a half-yearly removal of domestic refuse. This costs the average taxpayer from 50 cents to $3 or $4, according to the size of his family, and the care with which he looks after the sanitary surroundings of his home. Under the co-operative system, managed by the civic authorities as a portion of their duties, just as are the cleaning of the streets and providing of police and fire protection, the cost to the individual taxpayer is so small that it makes no appreciable addition to his tax bill, and anyway it is most effecundertaker's bills. We have never been able to see why any community that is anxious to enjoy good health, to preserve life, and to have this accomplished at the least possible expense, should for a moment hesitate to provide for the removal of all waste, except night soil, at least once a week, from the premises of the inhabitants. As a community it is a distinct loss to us to maintain the old and discredited overgrown village methods that prevailed when the city was in its infancy, and when the knowledge of sanitary law was most meagre.

Terrible Disaster at a Railway Crossing,

Crowded Trolley Car Struck by a Locomotive at Cohoes, N. Y.

Eighteen Persons Killed and Ten Fatally Injured-AfSimilar Though Less Serious Accident at Washington-Wreck on the N. E. and Central Railway.

Cohoes, N. Y., Sept. 6 .- One of the nost appalling disasters in the history of railroad wrecks occurred in this city last night. Shortly before eight clock a trolley car of the Troy City Railroad Company was struck by the night boat special of the D. and H. Railway Company, at a crossing at the west end of the Hudson River bridge, which connects the city with Lansingourg, and its load of human freight was hurled into the air. Eighteen of the 35 passengers are dead, and at least ten of the remainder will die. The cars entering the gity from Lansingburg were crowded with passengers, returning from a Labor Day picnic. Car No. 192, of the Troy City Railroad, came over the bridge at 7:35 o'clock, laden with a merry party. Four tracks of the Delaware and Hudson road cross two tracks of the THE AWFUL CRASH.

The tracks of the street car line run at a grade from the bridge to where the disaster took place. The motor the disaster took place. carwas struck directly in the center by the engine of the train, which was going at a high rate of speed. The motor car parted in two, both sections being hurled into the air in splinters. The mass of humanity, for the car was crowded, were torn and mangled. Those in front of the car met with the orst fate, and every human being in that section of the car was killed. TERRIBLE SCENES.

The pilot of the engine was smashed, and amid its wreckage was the corpse of two women. The shrieks of the wounded, the groans of the dying, and the terrible spectacle was gruesome in the extreme. The passengers of the train suffered no injury in addition to violent shock. The majority of the passengers of the trolley car were young people from Cohoes. They included many women. There was absolutely no chance for them to save themselves from the crash, for it came without slightest warning. Within ten minutes after the colli-sion fully one-half of the population of the city were surging about the

The engineer stated that he did not see the car until he was upon it. He tried to prevent his train from striking the but his efforts were fruitless. He was some minutes late, and was trying to make up lost time. The first he knew that the car was coming was when it hove in sight at the corner of the street at which the crossing is situated. He was but a short distance from the car at the time, and it was utterly impossible for him to bring his train to a standstill in order to avoid the accident. He thinks that the motorman, when he saw the train was upon him, tried to get beyond the danger line. The following dead bodies were idenyears old, of Cohoes; Mrs. Eliza Mc-Eldoy, of Cohoes.

VIOLENT DEATHS

A Niagara Falls Citizen Literally Butchered.

Toronto Man Drowned in Shallow Water in Sight of His Drunken Companions.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 6.-The body of John Doherty, of Niagara Falls, Ont., about 35 years of age, was found in Juggully Cut, in the Queen Victoria Park, on the Canadian side, yesterday morning. Investigation showed that a horrible crime had been committed. The man was atrociously cut, and death evidently resulted from loss of blood. So far the murderer has not been found.

DROWNED WHILE DRUNK. Toronto, Sept. 6.-Michael Farrell was drowned yesterday afternoon in Small's pond, a small piece of water 50 yards back of Tymon's Hotel, opposite the Woodbine race track, in East Toronto. County Constable Booth and a number of men were sitting round the pond. Farrell, who was drunk, was boasting he could swim farther than any man in Canada, and Booth challenged him to swim across. Farrell immediately jumped in with all his clothes on, swam three or four strokes and sank, though the water was only four feet deep. The con-stable went off as soon as he had seen the man in the water. The other men stood looking on, too drunk to help and to realize what had happened. FATAL FALL.

Paris. Ont., Sept. 6.-While working on the bridge which crosses the Grand River, about one mile east of here this afternoon, John Hurley, a G. T. R. section hand, lost his balance, falling a distance of 30 feet, and was instantly killed. He leaves a wife and two small children.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Suffered Untold Agony Two Years. Itching and Burning Terrible. Had to Give up Work Entirely.

Instant Relief in First Application OF CUTICURA REMEDIES. At Work, Fully Cured in 2 Months.

I was afflicted with a terrible malignant breaking out all over the upper part of my body. I was treated by some of the very best physicians, who proncunced it contagious blood poison, through whom I spent hundreds of dollars trying to get relief, but it seemed to get worse. All the time I was suffering untold agony, and finally had to give up work entirely. I grasped at everything I saw advertised, and listened to every suggestion from friends, but nothing seemed to reach my case. The burning, itching fix I was in seemed to be aggravated by every effort to relieve myself; but, thank God, relief came to me at last. Curr CURA REMEDIES were suggested to me, and I immediately procured the Cuticuna (cintment), CUTICURA EOAP, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT. From the first, I experienced a soothing relief, notwithstanding my intense pain. The warm bath, with CUTICURA SOAP, the anointing with CUTICURA, and the dose of CUTICURA RESOL-VENT, seemed to start the good work from the first. I improved right along, and in less than two months I was able to be up and at work, and continued to improve daily till at last I was entirely cured, sound and well, not a sign on my body anywhere indicating that anything had ever been the matter with me. It is now over two years since I have been entirely cured, and not a sign or a symptom has ever returned. I will gladly answer any and all letters with reference to my case.

Nearly all the councils in the district were represented, and considerable business of importance and interest was transacted. The open meeting in the evening was well attended. Sister Musgrove, of South London Council, took the chair, and filled it admirably. Speeches by Bros. Spence and Young, of London, on prohibition were given, and listened to with interest. Discussion of the Million Dollar Scheme.

Standing of the Denominational Colleges.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—The big general conference of the Methodist Church has got down to business in style. The principal work done was the consideration of the twentieth century million dollar scheme, originated by Rev. Dr. Potts. Dr. Potts moved a resolution indorsing the scheme, and outlined what was proposed. He asked the conference simply to indorse or condemn the principle of the scheme, and leave the methods and time and object to be dealt with at another

Rev. Mr. Lanceley thought they should make it two millions, which sum could be raised better than one. Senator Cox approved the project. The scheme named a million dollars to pay off debts that had been honestly incurred. He would like to see the scheme succeed, but he did not think the raising of money should be left to 50 or a hundred men Mr. E. Gurney said the money should be used to clear the church of debt, and not for the purposes of expansion. In this way he favored raising the Rev. Dr. Sutherland moved the appointment of a committee of 100 members, clerical and lay to consider the scheme in detail and report to next conference. The committee was objected to as being so large that it would break up the conference by its sittings, and after some discussion, the the following committee of 20-10 clerical and 10 laymen-was appointed to consider the details of the scheme and report to the present conference: Revs. Drs. Potts, Sutherland, W. Rigsby, Dr. Ryckman, Dr. T. G. Williams, T. W. Jolliffe, D. L. Brethour, George A. Bond, L. Gaetz, J. J. Betts, Hon. Geo. A. Cox, Dr. J. J. McLaren, Dr. Lavelle, John Torrence, J. G. Dean, Dr. James Mills, L. L. Beer, R. K. Bishop, J. A. M. Aikins, W. J. Ferguson. Following is the text of Dr. Potts' resolution regarding the twentieth century million dollar scheme: "That this conference recognize with profound gratitude to Almighty God the great and manifold blessings, temporal and spiritual, national and social, in which we as a church have so abund-antly shared—blessings which call for thanksgiving and practical acknowledgment. Wherefore we hail with satisfaction the proposal to signalize the close of the century by raising within the Methodist Church a special fund of one million dollars as a thanksgiving to the God of all our mercies, said fund to be applied to such connectional objects as the conference may hereafter determine, and we promise to aid to the utmost of our carrying forward the undertaking to a triumphant issue.' RE EDUCATION.

The report of the committee on edustion, read by the general secretary of kar, Toronto. education, Dr. John Potts, dealt first with the subject of colleges. showing was not satisfactory. From St. John to Victoria every college was over-burdened with debt. V.ctoria was the worst off of the lot. The old site at Cobourg had been sold to the gov-ernment for $13,406 and $13,406 had been raised in other ways. But the most remarkable event of the quadrennium in this connection was the bequest of $201,000 by the late Mr. Massey. eral scholarships have been founded through the generosity of friends. Dr. Potts called for decisive action on the part of the conference in regard to this financial embarassment of the colleges. The million dollar scheme offered a distinct prospect of hope.

The report was referred to the committee on education. VICTORIA REPORT.

But the expense was weighing heavily upon them also.

The opening of Petrie's Athletic Park, Guelph, yesterday, was success ful in every way. The different events were keenly contested, fast time was made, a large crowd was present, and everyone was well pleased with the afternoon's sport. Wheelmen from all sections of the country voiced an opinion that these athletic ranked among the best in the Dominion. Petrie's Athletic Park is fitted up with conveniences for almost every sport. The board track was pronounced excellent, by the "sprinters." A well-laid out ball diamond adorns the center of the track, and there is a bowling green, a cricket crease, and numerous lawn tennis courts. The gymnasium and baths in connection are fitted up with every modern applibest ever held in Guelph, in the half-mile open there being 17 entries, and in the mile open 23. Rumors of winding up earlier than schedule time are rife, but nothing definite of this nature has been announced. The present situation is exciting. To each of the first three teams in the race the pennant is a possibility. With the advent of Foreman, London has the advantage. The Saints considerately pulled the Hams down a notch vesterday, and there is no telling where that Ambitious City aggregation which astonished Toronto last week, may end. Battle-Worn Soldiers Narrowly Escape Drowning.

Over a Hundred of Them Shipwrecked on Point Judith Breakwater.

Dastardly Attempt to Sink a Sailing Vessel With 152 Passengers on Board.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 6 .- One hundred and thirteen battle-worn, camp-sick and shipwrecked soldiers, most of them of the Ninth Massachusetts, arrived in this city early this morning, and distributed among the difwere ferent hospitals to recover, if possible, from the fearful hardships through which they have passed. They survived Spanish bullets and the fever camp at San'tiago, but were last night forced to go through another trying experience on the steamer Lewiston, which was wrecked on Point Judith breakwa-

The Lewiston ran into New London for supplies for the sick soldiers. Soon after she left New London a heavy fog was encountered, and the steamer pro-ceeded slowly. About ten minutes to eight the lookout suddenly sighted a red light off the port bow; the next instant he saw a white light on the starboard bow, and right ahead he saw the breakers. Before he could shout a warning the steamer crashed into the outer part of the breakwater, which has recently been built off Point Judith. The Lewiston hit the breakwater so hard that she carried away nearly half of her keel and she shook from stem to stern. Everyone who was standing at the time was thrown from his feet, and many were hurled against the side of the vessel. An attempt was made to back off the breakwater, but fortunately it was unavailing, for if she had slid off she probably would have sunk in 15 fathoms of water, and the accident would have become a

CARRIED ASHORE ON LITTERS. A lighter was towed to the opposite side of the breakwater and the work of transferring the men began. Fully twopirds of the men had to be carried on lftters, and it was necessary to cut a hole in the bow of the stranded steamer and build a rough plank walk across the jagged rock of the breakwater. As soon as all were on board a tug took her in tow for Newport.

An hour after the men arrived at the wharf a train of seven cars backed into the big trainshed, and again the young men of the ambulance corps had to litter the helpless soldiers.

About a quarter to four this morning the last man was carried aboard, and the train started for Boston, arriving here at an early hour this morning. Forty or fifty were unable to walk, and a dozen more were practically uncon-DASTARDLY DEED. to it. If Canada is freed from this curse, she must largely thank that noble organization, the W. C. T. U. The voter's responsibility was tremendous. The ballot was a sacred trust, and to east it on the side of wrong on Sept. 29 meant the facing of an awful responsibility. The Caldwell brothers sang a duet, which was marvelously forceful. Mr. John Potts spoke concerning the curse of the traffic, giving some of the scenes that had come under his own notice. Messrs. Caldwell brothers again favored the meeting.

Mrs. Gordon Wright spoke on compensation. A man putting his capital into a liquor business did so at his where the government had seen fit to close up a railroad, canceling its charter, and giving the promoters 60 days to quit. Why? Because the business was in the best interests of the people. No compensation was made. Give the liquor men compensation? Yes, when they can compensate the broken-hearted widow, the hungry children, for the blighted homes, the then, should they seek compensation. "Does the liquor traffic conduce to any desirable end?" was the subject of Mr. Thomas Brenton's remarks. He spoke of a certain missionary who had labored for years with his people, and had succeeded in bringing many to Christ. They built him a nice little church. One sad day there landed on their shores a British ship laden with rum and whisky, which was unloaded and sold to the natives. The results were awful. But why go to foreign fields to get illustrations of the havoc the traffic is working? We have them daily. They were legion. The speaker gave figures showing the great majority for prohibition at the late plegiscite. This one would be a greater victory if we are all faithful. Rev. Richard Hobbs will be the TORONTO TRAIN SERVICE. To the Editor of The Advertiser: Sir,-A special C. P. R. train from London to Toronto yesterday was started out at 4:15 a.m., with more people on it than there were seats for. This style of passage was prolonged for five hours and three-quarters, when To-ronto was reached. The return trip of the same character as the easterly one and lasting five hours and a half, was begun at 8:10 p.m. and ended at London at nearly 2 o'clock Tuesday morning. No attempt was made at preventing rudeness, swearing and sn ing by men among children and ladies. # NOT LOVED.

"Folly, Andeed, my dear Carisford. I am glad you have the wisdom to try to overcome it," responded the captain, puffing at his cigar.

"Folly!-is it folly when a fellow loves as I love? I tell you I have tried to overcome it. Yes, almost for her sake rather than my own. My greatest fear is for her. Were I to marry her tomorrow, might I not wed her to The captain nodded his head.

Cecil's fair forehead clouded. He knew he was right; still it was not so agreeable to have his assertions so readily agreed with. He proceeded: Who in our set would notice her?" "A ci divant lady's-maid, think of that. Carisford? "Yes, that is it. Even my cousin, Lady Westbrook, who now appears so effectionate, would probably refuse to admit her as an equal into her drawing-room.

"Possibly-most probably. And your uncle, the marquis? You are his heir.' "That troubles me far less. He would disinherit me; but I have a sufficient fortune of my own. I could live abroad. I am aware I ought not to think of myself, but of my family, of my rank, and all that sort of thing, Granby," went on the nobleman, ex-"But in my opinion, love should not be sacrificed to them, but they to a pure, heaven-born devotion. Hence do I feel a coward. I love her; I crave to call her mine-yet I hesitate -I feel shame, because-because of the world's opinion-of the opinion of those who, in all other respects save rank and wealth, are Maria's inferiors."

'My dear Carisford, you have stated the world's opinion, and the world would be right. For society's sake,' remarked Captain Granby, with a dash of grandiloquence, and the air of one in a position to speak, "there must be a line drawn somewhere. There must be caste. Egad, what would society become without it? Maria Saproni is beautiful, worthy to be loved, adored, but-here's the nasty bit-she is a Marry her! Poh, my dear fellow, you couldn't in your position. It's only a madman who would talk of marriage," proceded the captain, with a smiling cynicism, encouraged by the other's silence. A fellow of your exalted rank and deucedly handsome appearance, Carisford, may surely pick the fruit he covets. Why, egad, he's an idot who-The worthy officer never completed the sentence. His fair face crimson with indignation, Lord Cecil, on the spur of the moment, delivered a blow straight from the shoulder at the speaker. It alighted right on the chest, and Captain Lascelles spun off the table like a top, staggered and finally measured his length upon the floor. One second's reflection was enough to make Cecil Carisford heartily ashamed of what he had done. He had not taken time to think, fired by honest indignation at the base suggestion the other's speech had conveyed respecting Maria Saproni. Yet, after all, the speech was one many a worldly man besides the captain might have made.

Contritely and with sincere apology he hastened to assist the officer to rise. Granby Lascelles did so anything but quickly. He was stunned a little; besides, he wanted to keep his face concealed until he could overcome his fury, which made his whole countenance darken, and his teeth clench savagely, as if bad words were behind

Still, he had not so far lost his presence of mind that he did not remember Cecil was far too valuable and profitable a friend to lose for a little outburst of temper. Maria, too, had read him correctly-he was a bully and a coward. Thus, after awhile, he rose to his feet with a tolerable grace, and received the other's hearty apologies. "You must, however, remember this, Granby, if we are to remain friends," said Cecil, a little gravely. "You must never talk in such a fashion of Maria Saproni again-certainly not before me. Not only is it a base slander. but, on my side, I would never harm one I so devotedly love." "You would be mad—confoundedly mad—to marry her," broke in the captain, sullenly. "You'd think so before the honeymoon was half over. As a man of the world. I'd bet you what you like that the 'golden expectan-ry her," persisted the captain, doggedly, still smarting under the ignominy of the blow, and mentally vowing a secret revenge. Cecil was nettled. He felt that he had acted absurdly, and saw his "tame cat" was too out of humor to be a pleasant confidant; so, to turn the subject, he rang for some Burgundy

It was a welcome salve to Granby
Lascelles. He soon grew eloquent upon horses and races, and such-like topics. Cecil assumed sufficient interest not to create suspicion; but his thoughts were with Maria. In fact, his mind was nearly determined to confess his passion, and if Maria would accept him, which he did not doubt, marry

He little dreamed that, as he so pondered, the man opposite, who owed him so much, was, even at that moment, weaving in his brain a plan by which to thwart him.

CHAPTER XVI. That canter to Sydenham was a very delightful canter to Gerard. It represented true enjoyment-pleasure without excitement-love without passion. His had been a great victory in Cupid's arena, indeed. . Yet was there no secret concerning it? Yes; one of which he was unconscious. This was the absence of any cause for jealousy. Of all Lady Westbrook's male friends none were received as well as he. Had she neglected him to smile on a rival, had he noted her lids droop, her color heighten at another's approach, bitter would have been the pang. The smouldering fire he had conquered would have leaped into flame. Still, to be just, he would have conquered it. The future will prove he did, though with a seared, scarred heart. But who dreams of the future when reveling in a golden present? And what more golden than this canter to Sydenham-the glorious sun around him, the air sweet with the perfume of the hedgerows, the lark's note descending in fond cadences to his mate, and that graceful girl by his side, her cheek agiow with exercise, her small hands controling the spirited chestnut, and her eyes bent so brightly upon his, as the conversation flowed pleasantly with the trio. Why cannot such days last for ever? Why must they be broken by more feverish joys, or-bitter despair? While the marquis quitted them to transact the business which had brought him in that direction, Lucille and Gerard rode alone, waiting for

To that pleasant ride a declaration of love would have been a suitable climax; but the earl's words did not even verge on it, and Lucilie's conversation was as cheerful and unrestrained as before

The marquis was delayed longer than he had expected; consequently the gallop back to town had to be sharp one. Reaching town, Gerard, owing to a previous engagement, having to refuse the marquis' invitation to dinner, took his leave. "Remember, my lord," said Lady

Westbrook, as they shook hands, "you meet us at Chiswick tomorrow.' "Is it possible I could forget?" he "especially when you have promised me my first lesson in bot-

He was yet holding her hand as a closed carriage rolled by. One of its occupants leaned quickly forward; it was a girl's face, a handsome one, yet the expression was dark as night. Gerard's eyes were on Lucille, and saw nothing but them. They parted gaily; yet for a long time to neither of them was the sun to shine again as it had that day. Yes, the pleasant dream was over; the awakening was at hand-at the earl's very elbow. On leaving Lady Westbrook he had urged his horse to a quicker pace, when he heard a clatter of hoofs close by; then a riding-whip tapped his "Ah! Hampton, it is you? Not started to the North Pole yet?" laughed Gerard, recognizing the burly noble-

"Not yet; but I start decidedly next week. I would tomorrow, this hour, if I could," remarked Lord Hampton, lugubriously, as he pulled his tawny mustache "That would be quick work, indeed, old fellow.' 'Quick work? By Jove, not so quick

If a man, be he clergyman or layman, will resort to the right remedy just as soon as he feels out of sorts, and knows that he is a little bilious, of that his liver is torpid, or his digestion is out of order, he will remain healthy and robust and add much to his usefulness and many years to his life. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery restores the appetite, makes digestion and assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver, purifies the blood and tones the nerves. ### STERLIZING MILK.

A Simple Method of Destroying Germs in Milk Used for Table Use.

The sterilization of milk, now quite extensively practiced in order to destroy the injurious germs which it may contain, can be satisfactorily accomplished with very simple apparatus. The vessel containing milk, which may be the bottle from which it is to be used or any other suitable vessel, is placed inside of a larger vessel of metal, which contains the water. If a bottle, it is plugged with absorbent cotton, if this is at hand, or in its absence other clean cotton will answer. A small fruit jar, loosely covered, may be used instead of a bot-The requirements are simply that the interior vessel shall be raised about half an inch above the bottom of the other, and that the water shall reach as high as the milk. The apparatus is then heated on a range or stove until the water reaches a temperature of 155 degrees Fahrenheit, when it is removed from the heat and kept tightly covered for half an hour. The milk bottles are then taken out and kept in a cool place. The milk may be used any time within twenty-four hours. A temperature of 150 degrees maintained for half an hour is sufficient to destroy any germs likely to be present in the milk, and it is found in practice that raising the temperature to 155 degrees and then allowing it to stand in the heated water for half an hour insures the proper temperature for the required time. The temperature should not be raised above 155 degrees, otherwise the taste and quality of the milk will be seriously impaired. The simplest plan is to take a tin pail and invert a perforated tin pie plate in the bottom, or have made for it a removable false bottom perforated with holes and having legs half an inch high, to allow circulation of the water.

A MILK STERILIZER.

The milk bottle is set on this false bottom, and sufficient water is put into the pail to reach the level of the surface of the milk in the bottle. A hole may be punched in the cover of the pail, a cork inserted, and a chemical thermometer put through the cork, so that the bulb dips into the water. The temperature can thus be watched without removing the cover. If preferred, an ordinary dairy thermometer may be used and the temperature tested from me to time by removing the lid. This is very easily arranged, and is just as satisfactory as the patented apparatus sold for the same purpose. The accompanying illustrations shows the form of apparatus described, and recommended the United States Department of Success in Dairying. Success in dairying depends in a very large measure upon the individual effort of the dairyman. Unless he puts skill and intelligence into the business by selecting the proper cow, providing her with the proper food, and giving her his best attention, he cannot expect to reap a very large profit out of his investment. Too many patrons of our cheese factories carry on the dairy branch of their farming operations in a sort of haphazard way, and then condemn the business because it does not return them a handsome profit. It pays to keep a good cow or none. It is surprising how many poor cows are kept in some of our oldest dairy districts by men of long experience. In many factories last season where one patron would realize $45.00 per cow for the season, his neighbor would only realize $25.00. This is due nearly altogether to the good judgment and superior intelligence of the $45.00 man in selecting and feeding his cows, as compared with the lack of good judgment and carelessness on the part of the $25.00 man.

It costs on an average about $28.00 or $30.00 to keep a cow during a year, and about half of the cows kept by the average dairymen give in return for this expenditure about $30 00 per annum, and a great number come far short of this amount. This means that there are numbers of cows that might as well be taken to the butcher's "block," for all the benefit they are to their owners. If it were pointed out to a farmer that his hired man, for example, was not worth his board or the wages he was receiving, the farmer would simply rise up in his wrath and get more work out of that man, or give him the G.B. Why should not as much good sense and superior judgment be shown in dealing with the cow that does not pay for her keep? The profit in any business is not always at the market end of the concern, but at the home end. The profit , depends upon the difference between the cost of production and the price obtained. Therefore, the man who can produce goods the cheapest is going to reap the largest profit. The logic will apply especially to the business of farming, and particularly dairying, as the market price of dairy products does not vary considerably in comparing one season with another. - Farmers' Advocate.

Dairy Suggestions. If you have never churned granulated butter it time to begin. Canada forbids the adulteration of cheese, and Canada is right. If the cows are "home grown" and are not gentle it is apt to be the owner's fault.

It never increases the milk supply to pitch milk stools at the cows or swear at them. If you mean to make a success of dairying this winter, believe you can and go ahead. At the price of feed and milk this season it will not pay to feed poor cowsit never does Perhaps one of the things needed about your place is an icehouse; if so, do not wait till the crop is wasted before building the house. Look out for the man that wants to sell you the "right" to get more butter out of the milk than the cow put in it. Take the right to get out all there is in it. but pay no royalty for doing it.

A matured hen will fatten more rapidly than a growing pullet. A good variety of food is relished by the fowls and helps materially in egg production besides maintaining better health.

Turkeys are capable of rapid digestion and are always apparently hungry and for this reason can rarely be kept confined to advantage. In raising fowls for market, flesh is the first consideration. Select a good breed that will make the greatest growth in the shortest time. A sudden change from one kind of grain to another will often cause hens to stop laying for a short time, as will a sudden change of any kind. Tarred paper properly put on is an ex-cellent covering to line the insides of poultry buildings. It helps to drive away lice and is easily kept clean.—Exchange.

Famous Tree Almost Gone. "The famous oak tree under which William Penn, the great Quaker, made his treaty with the Indians over two centuries ago was literally ruined by the relic hunt-

"All that remains of the treaty oak now is a scarred stump a few feet high, and it is inclosed in a strong iron picket fence to keep the vandals away. This stump is loacted in Penn park. Relic hunters for years chipped off the bark of the tree and even cut into the trunk and carried away pieces of the wood, and even whole limbs were carried away. Finally the brave oak could not withstand these ignoble attacks, and it died. At last the authorities came to their senses, when it was too late, and ordered a strong fence put around the stump of the tree."-St. Louis Globe-

For the benefit of Canadian mothers, who have daughters who are weak, pale run down or nervous, Mrs. Belanger, 128 Rideau Street, Ottawa, Ontario, made the following statement, so that no one need suffer through ignorance of the right remedy to use: "My daughter suffered very much from heart troubles at times. Often she was so bad that she could not speak, but had to sit and gasp for breath. She was so extremely nervous that her limbs would fairly shake and tremble. Frequently she would have to leave school; and finally she grew so weak that we were much alarmed about her health. I gave her many remedies, but they did not seem to do her any good. Then I heard of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and got a box of them, and they have indeed worked wonders with her. I can recommend them very highly as the best remedy I ever heard of for complaints similar to those from which my daughter suffered."

Preparations Pushed Ahead by the Attractions Committee of the Western Fair.

Preparations for the celebration of the silver jubilee of the great Western Fair are being pushed forward with vigor, and the exhibition grounds and buildings are fast assuming a different appearance from that of a week ago. The space in the main building has all been taken p, and men are at work ornamenting the place and designing displays. The lights are being put in, and a day or two more will see the building pretty well filled. The board of managers have determined to make the fair this year eclipse all previous efforts. Besides the thousands of arc and incandescent electric lights scattered through the buildings and over the grounds, Mr. W. J. Reid, chairman of the attractions committee, has arranged to have 1,500 prismatio electric lamps, of all colors, festooned in the trees, which will make the place a veritable fairyland. Amusements and attractions galore have been secured. They are in character "par excellence," and are worth going a long Prof. Wm. Sherman's caprine paradox, is one of the last added.

WHAT WALES SMOKES.

"I see going the rounds of the press a paragraph about the Prince of Wales' cigars," said the old tobacconist who for a full generation has dispensed nicotine to patrons in the west end. "According to this story they are made of the finest four-year stock by the most expert cigarmaker in Cuba, and after being wrapped in gold leaf and oil pastamped with the prince's crest and packed in mahogany boxes, they cost H. R. H. just 6 shillings apiece. "That's a pretty good cigar story, but lovers of the weed can beat it. There is a prominent importing firm now hav-ing made a lot of the very finest Havana cigars, which will cost, when the duty is paid on them, just 16 shillings apiece. They are intended as presents, in packages of ten, to the firm's principal patrons, who will then be able to Remarkable Story Told by a Neighbor of Deceased.

An Indian Who Said He Had to Kill a Man-Detectives on the Case.

Port Lambton, Sept. 6 .- Patrick Meagher's body was buried on Saturday and the mystery surrounding his death is still undispelled. At the inquest last night a young neighbor of the Meagher 1 family, named Mills, requested to be sworn, and told the jury a most remarkable story of meeting an Indian named Angus at Algonac on the day on which Meagher disappeared, and Mills, the witness, said that he bought a boat from the Indian for the sum of $1, and got into the craft, but Angus and an other Indian threw him out into the water. Then Angus said to him: supported by a clever company, each don't want this boat for a short time, do you? I am going to kill a man be specialties between the acts were fine tween 8 and 4 o'clock." DR. CHASE MAKES A WONDERFUL

Mrs. Knight, 17 Hanover Place, Toronto, makes the following statement :mother, Mrs. Wright, who lives at Norval, near Doncaster, suffered a summer and winter with Eczema in her feet. She could not walk, and very seldom got any sleep. It became so bad that she was perfectly raw from the toes to the knees. After trying every available remedy without receiving any benefit, and almost hopeless of relief, she was advised to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. She has altogether used 8 boxes since commencing, but with the happiest results, for she is now completely cured. There is but one scar on one of her feet, a memento of her fearful suffering condition. Any person desiring further testimony in this case is at liberty to communicate with Mrs. Wright at her address.

Norval P.O. Mrs. Knight says after such a grand success, is it any wonder we recon Dr. Chase's Ointment?

HIS OTHER NAME. This story is from the new biography of the Prince of Wales: On one occasion when his royal highness and an equerry were going through the Louvre galleries they were observed by a party of Americans, one of whom re-marked in a loud whisper to one of his friends: "I'll bet you ten naps that's the Prince of Wales." "Done!" cried the other. Accordingly a few moments later the American approached the Prince's equerry and asked him in a low tone the name of his companion. "The Earl of Chester," was the truthful answer. "Sold" said the Yankee of his mourning extended by taking a in a disappointed tone
