Fine Stylish Overcoats

We sell more fine overcoats than any other store. Why? Well, for the simple reason that ours are not the ordinary ready-made affairs, instead, they are all built for us, built the way the tailors build made-to-measure garments, they have to be come up to the high standard required before they can wear the New Method label, which guarantees pureness of fabrics, correctness of style, excellence of workmanship and perfection of fit. Prices

$7.50, $10.00, $12.50, $15.00

You can choose from a large variety of fabrics, including black, dark gray and brownish Cheviot Coatings, Friezes, Scotch rough wools and black Meltons, all the new models, the Chesterfields, those with broad shoulders and long, loose, full skirts and the Yoke Coats.

For Young Men

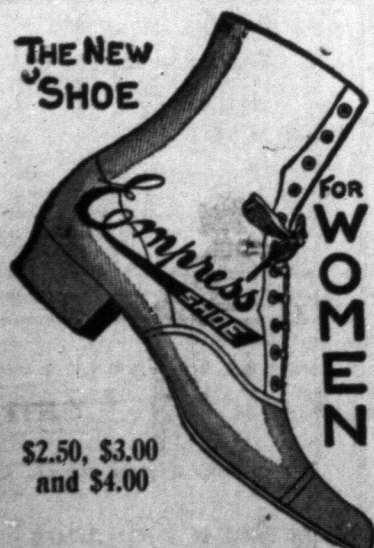

Overcoats as fine and as well tailored as men's. Nothing is more stylish than those Raglan Coats in Oxford mixture at $15.00. Gray Friezes, Oxfords and brown Rough Diagonals and dark Oxford Coatings, the latest fashions $10 to $15.

EMPIRE'S PRAYER

Correspondent Rightly Complains of the Usage Which the National Anthem is Accorded.

With people so prone to offend in the foregoing particular, it is perhaps needless to expect them to display any finer sense of feeling with respect to another serious infringement of decorum. By this is meant the manner in which the present day theatrical audience receives the playing of the National Anthem. Time was when the opening bar of "God Save the Queen" was the signal for the members of an assemblage to rise to their feet and stand respectfully until its close, or better still, join in, and make the invocation a vocal as well as a musical one. Now, however, it would seem that only the members of the orchestra are aware that the National Anthem is being played, for the rest of the audience is busily engaged in donning rubbers, adjusting wraps, and showing a way toward the exits. Surely modern life is not so strenuous that theater patrons cannot spare two or three minutes which would suffice to fittingly honor the playing of the nation's hymn. If this be found impracticable, it would be far better to cut out "God Save the King," and let some less hallowed number take its place as a perfunctory form of dismissal.

GEN. BULLER HAS FALLEN

Relieved of Command of First Army Corps and Placed at Half Pay.

Pays the Penalty of his Indiscreet Address—Gen. French Appointed to Succeed Him.

London, Oct. 22.—Sir Redvers Buller has been relieved of the command of the first army corps in consequence of the speech he made Oct. 10 after the luncheon given in his honor by the King's Royal Rifles, dealing with his famous dispatch to Gen. White at Ladysmith. He has been placed on half pay and Gen. French has been appointed to succeed him. In the official announcement the war office says that the commander-in-chief "after full consideration of all the circumstances and the explanations furnished," recommended that Gen. Buller be relieved, which has been done. The appointment of Gen. French is to take effect "when his services are no longer required in South Africa." Pending Gen. French's return Gen. Haldy will command at Aldershot.

Gen. Buller's supersession was not unexpected, but the manner of it has caused a sensation. It is understood that the government endeavored to break the fall by giving him the option of resigning, but that Buller declined to give way.

The morning papers all express sympathy for the unfortunate ending of a brilliant career; but they are unanimous that no other course was open after his indiscreet speech, and they express the greatest approval of the selection of Gen. French to succeed him.

The Daily Chronicle and the Daily News attack the government for weakness and lack of courage in ever appointing Gen. Buller to the command of any army corps.

In the official announcement the war office says that the commander-in-chief, after full consideration of all the circumstances and the explanations furnished, "recommended that General Buller be relieved, which has been done."

"We were very much pleased with the design you sent. It was beautiful and appropriate." The Victoria Ave. Greenhouses receive such words of commendation every day. Telephone No. 181.

THEATRE PANIC

Was Caused by Uncalled for Cry of Fire and Resulted in Many Serious Injuries.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 22.—Hundreds of people attempted to rush out of the Temple Theatre this afternoon because the cry of fire was raised when a little flame was seen about the polyscope machine.

In the scramble, scores of people were knocked down and more than 20 were badly hurt, while it is feared that two or three will not survive their injuries.

It was about 3.30 o'clock, just after the first act of "Tennessee's Partner," and while the polyscope was being prepared for its exhibition, a little flash of flame came that caused the panic. Many women and children made a rush for the door. The panic seized the gallery, and in a moment the occupants were plunging down the stairway in a heap, or were taking the swifter method of climbing down into the auditorium proper.

In their haste, many fell landing on those beneath. Several were badly hurt in this way.

The great crush occurred where the stairs come down from the gallery. Here the two crowded seats, and were packed in a space not large enough for half of them, and all were trying with a desperation born of fear to reach the street.

The weaker were soon knocked down and trampled under foot. Those who realized the state of affairs were trying their best to check the rush, but the crowd went on pell mell through the doors, and literally rolled down the long flight of stairs.

Just as the doors were closed, Mrs. O. W. Blunt pitched her 3-year old child through the exit to a policeman. He caught it in his arms, but it slipped to the floor, sustaining, however, no injuries except slight bruises.

There was no damage from fire. It is said the cause of the flame was the blowing out of a fuse on the polyscope.

THE SUGAR BEET.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Three large sugar beet companies doing business in Ontario have submitted their contracts for next year to the provincial department of agriculture. One of these concerns, which has its head office at Wallaceburg, but no factory there, shipped many tons of the sweet roots to Michigan during the summer, sending them by boat to Saginaw. Next year the firm proposes manufacturing stock in Canada, and will establish a plant here.

PRIEST PLEADS TO NO AVAIL

The Assassin Czolgosz Definitely Refused to Renounce Anarchism.

Declared to be Incurable and Contamination of Church May be Denied Him.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, who is awaiting electrocution in the prison here during the week commencing next Monday, fully realizing that his death is now a question of a few days, has asked for spiritual consolation, and this afternoon received a visit from the Rev. T. Szadinski, a Polish priest of the Roman Catholic church.

The interview between priest and prisoner proved very unsatisfactory to both. It took place in the condemned man's cell and the conversation was carried on in Polish. During the interview Czolgosz said he had been baptized in the Roman Catholic faith in the Polish church in Detroit. He had abandoned the church early in life and had lost all faith in its teachings. Fr. Szadinski urged him to renounce his belief in anarchy and return to the faith of his early years. Czolgosz declared his inability to do so, and he was informed that unless he could the consolation of the church would be denied him.

Father Szadinski, before taking his departure, left with Czolgosz some Catholic literature, printed in Polish and also some emblems of the church. Czolgosz assured Fr. Szadinski that in case he determined to accept the offices of religion, he would send for him, but he did not hold out much hope that he would renounce doctrines of anarchy.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Rev. Fr. Szadinski returned home to-night. Fr. Szadinski would not say whether his visit had been of his own volition or whether upon the request of Czolgosz.

Three priests, Fr. Letoka, Fr. Szulca, and Fr. Stadenon, who were with Fr. Szadinski, would not say what their business was with him, but all seemed familiar with Czolgosz and his recent actions. Fr. Stadenon admitted that Czolgosz was without the ban, was an incurable and utterly worthless case.

ANOTHER FACTORY

Mayor Sulman Says There Are Probabilities of Chatham Securing Beet-Sugar Industry.

"It has been my fondest hope," said Mayor Sulman to The Planet this morning, "to see Chatham the centre of a Radial Railway and to have a Beet Root Sugar Factory. My last desire is beginning to take shape."

There is a syndicate of American and Canadian capitalists who are prepared to submit a proposition to the Council and their offer is, I consider, the best that we have yet had. The promoters will probably be able to lay their proposition before the Council this week. It will be along the lines of exemption from taxes, free site, and probably supplying a limited quantity of water for use in washing the finished sugar.

It is advisable that the Council should look over this matter as soon as possible, so that arrangements can be made to submit the proposition to the ratepayers at the coming municipal elections.

The most completely lost of all days is the one on which we have not laughed.

The Conservatives Won't Have a Ghost of a Show of Beating Ross Government, Says McKee.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 22.—W. J. McKee, M. P. P., appeared pleased this morning on learning that the Provincial elections will not be held until after another session of the Legislature. The news confirmed a belief he has held for some weeks.

"There will certainly be a redistribution of the electoral divisions during the next session," said he. "This is but natural after the Dominion census. We will change the constituencies so that the Conservatives will not have a ghost of a show of beating Ross' Government."

He admitted that it was the intention to lop off the township of Andover from North Essex, and add it to South Essex. This change would materially better McKee's chances of re-election, as Andover gives over 100 of a Conservative majority. Being placed in the south riding, it would not interfere with John A. Auld, M. P. P., who has a sincere

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 23.
WHAT HON. MR. HARCOURT DID NOT SAY.

In yesterday's issue of The Planet nearly five columns of space was devoted to a full and fair report of the East Kent Liberal convention. Over half of this was devoted to the address of Hon. Richard Harcourt, Minister of Education.

It was to have been expected that in the course of a two hours'—and more—political address to the electors of the Province that a member of the Government, which has been most energetically and earnestly attacked on the stern arrangements of betrayal of trust, abuse of power, breach of public confidence and gross negligence of duty and tramping upon the rights of the people, would have taken that splendid opportunity to refute the serious charges and vindicate the acts and policy of his party in power—were he able to do so.

But Hon. Mr. Harcourt observed a suspicious silence on all these matters. His address was momentous—not for its contents, but on account of what it left unsaid.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt might have dealt with the machine in politics, the election frauds, the ballot box stuffing and ballot burning, the fake land grant to veterans, the school book and other monopolies, the liquor license coercion boards, Dryden's Dakota ranch, Stratton's power contract and an appalling et al.

But he didn't.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt had a great opportunity to vindicate his government on a series of damaging charges, in which the people whom it represents, are deeply interested—if it could be done. But he didn't.

WHY?

LITTLE ROMANCE

Mr. Sweet Admitted in the Essex Free Press for a Wife—Miss Margaret McCullum Answered and the Two Are One.

Windsor, Oct. 23.—Saturday morning a couple called on Rev. Jas. Livingston, pastor of the Windsor Ave. Methodist Church, and expressed the wish to be made one. There is a romance connected with the marriage of this particular couple which is known to a number of their friends. The groom's name is Charles R. Sweet, and his residence is Essex, while the bride was formerly Miss Margaret McCullum, and resided with her family at the little village of Gesto, in South Essex. Sweet and his newly-made wife were strangers up to a few weeks ago, and their acquaintance was brought about through an advertisement published in the Essex Free Press. In the advertisement he set forth that he wanted a wife. He stated that she must be of a lovable disposition, young and pretty, but he did not mention anything about a dowry. On his part he promised to take good care of the woman who would trust her future to his keeping. He intimated that he was comfortably well off, and had a good home. The applicants were to address their answers to a certain letter box in the Essex post office. At first replies were slow in coming, but some young ladies and gentlemen of Essex, learning the identity of the advertiser, commenced sending letters to him, asking all manner of questions. Some of these epistles, it is alleged, Sweet answered, but this is as far as the correspondence went, as his letters brought forth no answers. Miss McCullum, who is of a very romantic disposition, read the advertisement, and decided to answer it. Sweet, at once replied to her letter, and it was not long before a correspondence of several letters a week passed between the two. Sweet was invited to visit the McCullum home, in Gesto, which he did, and McCullum had plighted their troth. Sweet was anxious to have an early date set for the wedding, and his fiancée agreeing, the marriage Saturday was the sequel.

Mrs. Jno. Marshall yesterday received the sad news of the death of her son, who has been living in Detroit. Mrs. Marshall left last night to attend the funeral.

Eruptions

Dry, moist, scaly tetter, all forms of eczema or salt rheum, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions proceed from humors, either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation.

To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous.

The thing to do is to help the system discharge the humors, and strengthen it against their return.

Hood's Sarsaparilla permanently cured J. G. Hines, Franks, Ill., of eczema, from which he had suffered for some time; and Miss Alvina Wolter, Box 215, Algona, Wis., of pimples on her face and back and chafed skin on her body, by which she had been greatly troubled. There are more testimonials in favor of this great medicine than can be published.

FOUND LONG LOST DAUGHTER

Gypsies Had Stolen Her From Home Nine Long Years before.

Ohion Spent is All in Search for His Child—Girl was Forced to Beg.

Crawfordsville, Ind., October 21.—Nine years ago the 10-year-old daughter of Peter Bell, a miller living at St. Mary's, Mercer county, O., failed to return home from school. The belief was general that she had been drowned. Her father, however, refused to believe the story and spent his meagre savings searching for her. He finally became convinced, however, that the girl was dead.

A band of gypsies camped near the Bell mill last August and one of them, out of revenge, told Bell that his child had been abducted by a gang of gypsies, nine years ago. He said he had come all the way from Mexico, Mo., to inform the father of the whereabouts of his child.

Bell at once made preparations to go in search of the girl, and with Mrs. Bell and their other daughter, started for Indianapolis by wagon. There they sold the wagon and began the journey on foot. They walked to Peoria, Ill., from there to Quincy, to Keokuk, Ia., and finally traced the band of gypsies to Carthage.

Arriving there last Saturday, the Bells found the band in camp. When the leader was confronted by the father of the girl and local officers, he drew a gun but the officers overpowered him and he gave up the girl. The young woman says she has been compelled to beg food and clothing for the entire band of gypsies, who at all times have treated her cruelly. Mr. Bell intends to have the gypsies indicted and extradited to Mercer county, Ohio, for trial. He has spent his last cent in his search for his daughter.

HIS SORROW WAS SILENT

Pathetic Scene When Husband Kissed Faithless Wife's Death-Cold Lips.

Two Broken Hearts Survive Sad Tragedy Enacted Sunday Night in Chicago.

Chicago Oct. 22.—Dr. Orville S. Burnett, who was with Mrs. Charlotte Nichol last night when she committed suicide, said who claims to have attempted his own life, was held to the grand jury by a coroner's jury to-day. It was charged that he could have kept her from her act had he tried, and that his conduct should form the basis of an investigation by the grand jury.

Two letters were found in Burnett's pocket, evidently written by Mrs. Nichol. One is as follows:

Don't worry your dear head about "Shoup." Everything is all right. I found Sallie at home and she had been over taking care of the babies for me and I took lunch with them. I found them clean and happy. I have an awful headache now and my hands are so shaky that I can scarcely write. I hope you feel better, dear, and will not forget me before to-morrow. I want to see you right this minute.

I love you more than I ever loved anybody before in my life and the only sin now for me is being found out. We must be careful. I love you and could write all the afternoon, but can scarcely keep my eyes open. Lovingly SHOUP.

The other reads:

Doctor: I can't come to-day at four, as I found that Will had made an engagement for me on the west side this last night, but I "squared" everything all right. Will try and see you about 6 o'clock. If you are in the office wait for me. SHOUP.

P. S.—I love you.

The police believe "Shoup" was a nickname given to Mrs. Nichol by Burnett. Dr. Burnett is confined in a cell in a police station, begging for the means with which to end his life. A bereaved husband, with his three small children gathered at his knee, is bowed in grief in his richly furnished home at 6519 Minerva avenue, and rudely awakened to the perfidy of the man he trusted, is prostrated in another home but a short distance away, at 458 Sixty-third street.

Before the police could notify Nichol has night he had learned of the tragedy. Accompanied by two friends he went to Horan's undertaking rooms, at 169 East Eighteenth street. With a white face, the bereaved man pushed silently through the office and went directly to the rear room. Covered by a white sheet the form of the girl he had married years ago lay still and motionless.

Drawing back the white shroud from her features, he placed his hands on each side of the casket, gripping the plain pine board in intense agony. Silently he stood, gazing down into the quiet face, with its closed eyes and parted lips that showed "even, regular teeth."

Without a word, his face nearly as expressionless as the dead countenance before him, he bent slowly over

SEASONABLE HINTS.
Guard Your Health in Fall and Early Winter.

A change from warm to cold is always attended with more danger than from cold to a warm temperature, hence the greater mortality from lung and throat diseases at this season of the year, as compared with spring.

The best protection against colds is not so much in extra clothing as in good digestion.

If the digestion and circulation are good, colds will be unknown.

Poor digestion causes poor circulation of the blood and when in this condition severe colds are contracted on the slightest provocation.

People who make a regular practice of taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals are free from colds, simply because their health is perfect, the heart strong and regular, and the whole system fortified against disease.

It requires little argument to convince anyone that the best safeguard against colds, pneumonia and changes of temperature is a good stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets (taken after meals) are dissolved and mingling with the food, cause it to be promptly digested and assimilated; they do this because they contain nothing but harmless digestive elements, which digest meat, eggs and other food even when the stomach itself is weak and flaccid.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets make people well and keep them well, and the best habit you can acquire is to keep daily use of them at meals to make the digestive organs strong and vigorous.

"Nonum recordo," commented barrister Geo. G. Martin, as he read his Planet last evening. "Hoots! There is no expression as 'Nonum recordo' in the whole sum total of literature. The Crown Attorney might as well as pick out the truth in the bottom of the great Shakespeare. It is neither good Hog-Latin, Pigeon-Italian nor Pigeon-English. The celebrated expression is 'Mi non ricordo.' Little and was used by a perjured little fellow in 1820 while he was in the sweat-box facing Lords Brougham and Denham. This contemptible 'banan' water was swearing like a trooper till Lord Brougham got him into the MI non recordo position, viz., 'I don't remember.'"

OCEAN STEAMSHIPS.

HOW THEY ARE MADE READY TO MEET MISADVENTURES AT SEA.

The Life Saving Outfits That are Carried by the Atlantic Liners. Paraphernalia Required by Law. Those Who Die at Sea.

Going down to the sea in ships is generally regarded as a risky business. Even persons who would take their lives in their own hands are squeamish about putting them into other persons' hands. This squeamishness doesn't keep many of them ashore, but it makes most men, and probably all women, wish they knew how many lifeboats stood between them and a watery grave.

When the manager of one of the lines of ocean steamers was asked what preparation his company makes for saving passengers in case of accident, he said: "In the first place, we don't expect to have an accident."

"But if you do?"

"Then we have lifeboats, life preservers, life rafts, lifelines and all the paraphernalia required by law. Our steamers sail between New York and an English port and are therefore subject to the regulations of the British board of trade as well as to the American rules. In order to clear a vessel carrying passengers from a British port we must be inspected or surveyed by the British surveyors before we can get a certificate. This has to be done before every departure from their ports. That means we are surveyed by their inspectors every few weeks. When that takes place, all our fire apparatus is examined, and we have to go through a part of the boat drill. A certain number of the lifeboats are swung overboard to show that the davits are in working order, and one of them is lowered to the water."

"We used to have drills at sea, but that meant that the whole ship's company must appear on deck. The crew came up in their underclothes or without them, as the case might be. The stewards, the cooks, the butcher, and the baker, and the scullion—everybody turned out. It wasn't what you might call a dress parade, and we gave it up. Drills are had in port now. We have lifeboats with a carrying capacity of 1,500, although we rarely have more than 1,300 or 1,400 souls aboard. When we have carried over 1,500 out from England, we put on rafts for the balance."

A big ocean steamer carries a whole fleet of lifeboats. Here is the list of the boats carried by one of the German steamers: Ten steel boats of a capacity of 520 cubic feet each, two steel boats of 350 cubic feet each, twelve collapsible boats of 304 cubic feet each and two wooden ones of 124 and 135 cubic feet respectively. The cubic capacity of a boat is of interest because upon that depends the number of persons it can carry. According to the law in this country, the carrying capacity of a lifeboat on an ocean vessel is found by multiplying the cubic capacity by six and dividing the result by ten. According to this rule, each of the largest steel boats mentioned would be allowed to carry thirty-one passengers. As a matter of fact, they are expected to carry fifty or sixty.

The lifeboats are always ready for use. They are not elaborately stocked, but each one carries a certain list of articles stowed away so as to economize space as much as possible. Each boat contains two casks of water, a case of ship biscuit, nine oars, extra corklocks, sail and mast, fireworks for making signals of distress, lamps, oil, bolt compass, axes, rope ladder with wooden rungs, ballers and plugs for stopping leaks.

The shipping regulations in this country require an annual inspection of steamers which "must be made only on written application" by the owner, master or authorized agent. Our shipping laws are modeled on those of Great Britain, but in this respect are considerably less rigorous. We have no inspector to see that there is a fire drill or that the life saving appliances are ever tested, except once a year "on written application." The certificate then issued is good until the next annual inspection. As for the drills, there is a law requiring them to take place once a week, and the fact that the drills are held to be entered in the log-book. Excellent law. If the drill is always held and recorded and the busy inspector looks through the logbook for the whole year and satisfies himself that it is all there, then the excellent law is most excellently observed.

Here is the British regulation for the inspection of steamers carrying passengers from British ports: "A ship shall not clear outward or proceed to sea on any voyage unless she has been surveyed under direction of the immigration officer at the port of clearance, but at the expense of the owner or charterer thereof, by two or more competent surveyors, to be appointed, etc. The survey shall be made before any portion of the cargo is taken on board, except so much as may be necessary for ballasting the ship and such portion, if laden on board, shall be shifted if required by the surveyors."

While the proportion of passengers lost at sea is remarkably small, the proportion of those who die at sea is still smaller. Obscure persons unaccompanied by friends are recommended not to shuffle off their mortal coil on shipboard unless they have a fancy for being buried at sea. Steerage passengers who die—and they form the majority of those who do—are always buried at sea and in very short order too.

In the case of cabin passengers it all depends on circumstances. All steamers carry one special coffin, but as a general thing only one. This can be hermetically sealed and would be used for bringing into port the body of any one of special consequence or of any one accompanied by friends who objected to a burial at sea. If a man was not well known and was unaccompanied by friends, his body would not be carried to port unless the ship was only a day or two from landing. The steamship man who gave this information said it was rather a delicate question whether a corpse had any rights. He did not know whether the friends of a person who had been buried at sea would have a right to protest because his body had not been brought to them. The captain's word is law aboard ship, and if he chose to bury anybody who had died he would probably be within his rights.

Folled.

"Hair singed, sir?" the barber said, with a rising infection.

"What good does it do to singe it?" demanded Mr. Tyte-Pist.

"Makes it grow better."

"So you can get to cut it oftener, hey?" said Mr. Tyte-Pist fiercely. "No, sir! It grows too blasted well now!"—Chicago Tribune.

JUSTICE

Is portrayed as a woman, yet her sex might complain that they get scant benefit of her powers. There is little justice, it would seem, in the suffering that many women undergo month after month.

Justice acts upon the legal maxim that ignorance of the law cannot be pleaded in mitigation of punishment. It is ignorance which causes so much womanly suffering. Ignorance of the requirements of womanly health; ignorance on the part of those who attempt to cure and fail, and ignorance of the fact that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"When I first wrote to Doctor Pierce concerning my health," says Mrs. Mollie E. Carpenter, of Linaria, Cumberland Co., Tenn., "I was so weak I could only write a few words until I would have to rest; so weak I could hardly walk. Words cannot express my suffering: dimness of sight, palpitation, shortness of breath, black spots or the shining lights before my eyes, terrible headache, numbness in my arms and hands and tongue, also my jaws would get numb; constipation was the rule; the uterus, disagreeable drains, soreness through my bowels; in fact I was diseased from head to foot. Now I can do my own washing and cooking. I can take a ten quart pail in one hand and a six quart pail in the other (full of water), and carry both one-fourth of a mile and never stop to rest. I am as heavy as I was at 15 years of age. I used thirty bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and twenty-five vials of 'Pleasant'."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Activity in Automobile Patents.

By all odds the automobile section is the busiest of all the divisions of the Patent Office these days. Since all the fashionable world has taken to automobile, and this import is no longer a fad, the inventors of the country seem to have turned their attention to bringing out improvements in motors, carriages and other parts. The number of applications that are being received for patents on devices for automobiles is so great that it has been found necessary to have five special examiners on this work. Four separate divisions have been organized to which are referred papers, according to the specific kind of patent that is demanded. One division handles electric motors, another steam motors, another gas and acetylene motors, and another looks out for the compressed air motors.—American Automobile.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBING.

SKILL, PRUDENCE AND EXPERIENCE NECESSARY TO SUCCESS.

The Dangers and the Perils of Ascent and the Methods of Avoiding Them Described by a Veteran Alpinist. How Accidents Happen.

Mountain climbing is a craft which has a twofold object—the attainment of the point which it is desired to reach and the avoidance of accident in so doing. The first is gained by skill, the second by prudence and experience. Accidents are caused either by things falling upon the climber or by the climber himself falling.

When I speak of accidents, I mean practically unavoidable misfortunes. More than half the deaths that annually occur on the Alps are caused by neglect of the most elementary precautions and are not properly accidents. True, Alpine accidents are those which occur in spite of foresight and precaution. They have always been few, and when the continually increasing number of climbers is reckoned they may be said to decrease rather than increase in frequency.

The things that by falling upon a climbing party may produce fatal results are rocks, ice and snow. All rock mountains are falling to pieces—some faster than others—under the alternate frost and thaw. Water trickles into cracks on a warm day. At night it freezes and in freezing expands. It thus acts like a wedge to widen the cracks and tear rocks asunder. Thus the whole face of most rock mountains is crumpled with loose stones balanced on ledges to fall when the least impulse is applied. One stone in motion starts others and they in turn may more. In this manner a whole rock face may be swept by myriads of falling rocks of all shapes and sizes. Such falls are fairly common on the east face of the Matterhorn. That is why the route followed up it keeps as close as possible to the edge of the face.

Rock faces are usually furrowed with tracks called gullies and couloirs, worn by the stones falling down them. If a gully is straight, stones generally fall down the middle of it, and the sides may be climbed in comparative safety. Some faces of rock are less liable to be stone swept than others. An experienced climber knows the signs of danger. When there is much recently fallen snow on a rock face, stones do not fall so often as when the snow is all melted away. A good climber bears all these facts in mind and knows what to look out for.

As with stones, so with ice. It does not fall anywhere and anyhow. It has its habits, which may be learned by observation. Except in the lower part of a glacier ice seldom appears on the surface. People talk of sliding in the early part of the day. It is generally easy to perceive whether a given serac is ready to fall or whether it is firm. A well chosen route avoids the track where the serac may be expected to fall. The crests of some narrow snow ridges are fringed with an overhanging wave of ice, called a cornice. Cornices grow slowly by accretion of snowflakes. When they become too high, they fall, and woe to the man on whom they fall! The wise man does not pass under a great cornice.

Falling snow is called a snow avalanche. Snow avalanches only fall in easily recognizable tracks. Most of them fall in springtime, before climbing begins. The summer avalanches fall after fresh snow has accumulated during bad weather. Avalanches, however, seldom fall on climbers. Usually an accident is caused by the climbing party starting an avalanche. Professor Tyndall nearly lost his life in this way. He was crossing a steep slope of snow in the afternoon, after it had been softened by hot sunshine. It cracked across, and the whole surface—a foot deep or so—slid down, carrying his party with it. By good luck they escaped from the rear of the avalanche before reaching the edge of a cliff, over which it fell. A prudent climber avoids crossing rotten snow slopes that are steep.

Most accidents, however, are caused by falls from rocks, ice or snow. Careful climbers seldom fall from rocks. They do not undertake ascents that are beyond the skill of their party. If the guides are good enough for the particular climb, two of them will render any tolerable climber safe by proper use of the rope. While they are moving he keeps still. When he moves, they remain firmly planted and draw in the rope as he advances. If he slips, they easily hold him.

A fall from ice is less easy to check. The dangerous places are steep slopes of real ice—hard blue ice like the surface of a frozen pond set up at an angle. Steps cut in such material are themselves quite slippery. If a fall of this kind is very long and takes perhaps hours to ascend, the time comes when carelessness in footing or balance may lead to a slip. If the man ahead is immediately above the one who slips, he can hold him easily, but if the ascent, as is probable, is being made diagonally, a slip is more difficult to arrest, and the whole party will be in great peril.

From slopes or ridges of snow men are not likely to fall unless they are overthrown by a sudden blast of storm, as has happened once or twice. Even then a fall may be arrested by using the ax as a brake if the surface of the snow be not too hard frozen. The chief danger on snow is that you may fall through it into a hidden crevasse. It sometimes happens after a fresh fall of snow that a crevasse is completely covered up so that not a sign of it can be perceived even by the most experienced eye. Against this peril, however, there is one certain protection. It is the rope, rightly used. If the members of a party are joined, as by a good rope firmly knotted round the waist of each, with a distance of from ten to fifteen feet between a man and his neighbor, and if the rope be not allowed to dangle on the ground, it will be a matter of indifference whether one falls into a crevasse or not. Before he is more than waist deep the rope will hold him, and he will be able to scramble out without difficulty or damage.—Sir Martin Conway in London Mail.

Of Course He Was a Brute.

Mrs. Stator—John, don't you think I need a new gown? This one is beginning to look shabby.

Mr. Stator—I don't see anything the matter with it. You look well enough in it to suit me, and why should I pay out money to make you more attractive to other men?

STYLE

Has but little to do with the cost of a carriage, but it has everything to do with its appearance. It costs as much to build a very ordinary appearing vehicle as a stylish one, if the same quality of material is used and the same care exercised in its construction. Some carriage builders know how to build stylish vehicles better than other builders; but they do not charge you anything for the "know how." They charge you only for the material put into it and the labor expended upon it. Thus the quality being equal, two carriages cost the same, even if one of them presents a stylish appearance while the other one is lacking in that qualification.

Long experience, and a keen appreciation of the beautiful in carriages has enabled us to make the choicest of Buggies and Carriages and other vehicles that are in popular demand. We sell them at the same price we would if the style wasn't there.

Chatham Judge and Lawyers Dis-

Missionaries Needed More in the Map
City than in India or China, Declares Crown Attorney.

"Alas! for the rarity
Of Christian charity."

Judge Houston, Crown Attorney

Douglas, P. C. Dezelia and the few curious spectators were brought face to face with the cruel realities of this life, at the Police Court this morning.

The gulf between the "Ever-Ready Society" and respectability was clearly demonstrated. The illustration was particularly sad and cast an atmosphere of sepulchral gloom over the almost empty court room. Mrs. Scott had been tried for child desertion and found not guilty. She still sat in the box awaiting trial on the charge of perjury. The girl, for a little time, appeared nervous but composed.

She is of prepossessing appearance and, had she the opportunities of some girls, might have been an ornament in the home. The evidence showed that her mother was dead and Bertha, having no home for herself and baby, had been taken in by two women of the demimonde caste. They were her only friends. Yet even they did not desert her in her time of trouble, but were present in court and had even secured the services of Ward Stan-worth for the defense. Mrs. Scott, whatever her faults, and even these may be laid to her bringing up, is a fine looking girl and her appearance in court could not but excite sympathy, and led the Crown Attorney to make an effort to save her from the life of shame to which her teachings, her life, her loneliness and her absolute want had directed her.

The child desertion case collapsed

this morning. After hearing the evidence of Mrs. Annie Reame, Judge

Houston said that he didn't think that the case came within the statute, which holds that the desertion must endanger the health or life of the child.

"Certainly heartlessness has been displayed by both the father and mother," said the Judge. "The child seems to have come into this world without anyone desiring that it should be. The father certainly told me many things, when he laid the information, that have not been proven, and he has now run away.

"If it had been my child, I think

I would have seen it. If the mother knew what feeling was, she would have gone to see it. I don't think it is love of the child, but hate for you," continued the Judge, addressing the mother, "that makes the family keep the child. While I don't think that the prosecution have made out a case,

I can't see how you can get out of the child."

The Mother—I am willing to take care of the child and have never refused to.

The Crown Attorney—Would you go to live with a respectable woman if a home can be got for you?

Judge Houston (sadly)—Tell her where she can go. "Tell her where she can go."

The Crown Attorney—It is a difficult thing to do anything, but it is a great pity that a handsome woman, like Mrs. Scott, should go to hell so quick and so straight. There should be some Christian willing to extend a helping hand.

You hear "Rescue the perishing, care for the dying," etc., sung often enough but you see very little of it carried out.

Crown Attorney—Yes, we want mi-

missionaries in Chatham more than we do in China or India.

The perjury case against the girl was not taken up, owing to the absence of all the witnesses. Warrents were asked for the following witnesses—Mrs. Mary Scott, Mabel Scott,

Walter Scott, Frank McCart and Robert

H. Abbott.

The Crown Attorney—It should be a dreadful thing if a police should execute all the warrants.

Judge Houston—Well, I don't want the police to go too far away in the effort.

The case was adjourned till three o'clock this afternoon.

NEGLECT

If the tooth aches the owner goes to a dentist; if the stomach, he goes to the doctor; if his corn hurts he goes to a chiropodist, but if his eye aches he blames it to overwork or perhaps to a cold in the head. A man in New York who once had good eyesight but turned blind offered $100,000 to have his sight restored. We do not know what the diagnosis of the case is, but as this offer has been pending for a long time, and the man is still sightless, we presume he is permanently blind. Perhaps his eyesight could not have been saved, but it is an undeniable fact that many are blind and many others are practically so whose sight could have been preserved by the early attention of a reliable optician. He was like hundreds of other people of the present day and who are troubled with a dull headache, which they blame to overwork, study, or perhaps to being up late the night before. There are others who complain of objects being dull, and again there are people who see specks floating in the air like dust, which is not dust, but eye trouble. These troubles can all be relieved by consulting E. J. MacIntyre, Chatham's reliable optician, who uses all the latest methods for treating these troubles.

We have no other alternative. We can get into plenty of trouble without seeking it. I am not in favor of the Board of Health appointing the health inspector, and I don't think that the citizens are in favor of an irresponsible body appointing civic officials."

THE ACADEMY OF ST. URSULA

It's History and Many Interesting and Sacred Associations.

Splendid Concert Presented Yesterday by the Pupils—Bishop was present and Bestowed Congratulations.

The Feast of St. Ursula, Oct. 21, was celebrated with great eclat at "The Pines," which is, like all convents of this Order, under the especial patronage of the Martyr Princess of Britannia. This institution in Chatham is the only Ursuline Academy in Western Ontario and is one of the most flourishing academies in the Dominion. The education given is noted for its solidity and breadth, comprising a business, as well as an academic, course. Perhaps a few words would not be out of place here regarding this grand old Order of the Church.

It was in Brescia, some five hundred years ago, that Angela of Merici, a noble minded maiden, conceived the idea of devoting her life to the service of God and giving herself up to the instruction of youth. In a very short time she was joined in her work of charity by many ladies of the most distinguished families in Italy—royalty itself laying aside its purple and fine linen and going about with our heroine in modest garb, instructing by example as potently as by words. It may be a matter of surprise that this Order founded by Angela of Merici should have the name of Ursulines. It happened in this way.—Humility and modesty were two virtues dear to the heart of the maiden. She had read the lives of many holy women, and had chosen as her patroness Ursula of Britannia, her who was espoused to Prince Conon, who won for herself the crown of martyrdom and the title of virgin, who was with eleven thousand virgins martyred by the barbarous Huns, in Germany, at the beginning of the 5th century. When Angela, about eleven hundred years later, had formed her great design, she gave to her company the name of Ursulines, by which the Order is known throughout Europe and America. This institution, founded so many hundred years ago, is remarkable for the sanctity and learning of its members. Very wisely did St. Angela lay down as one of her rules for the society that it should keep abreast and conform itself to the exigencies of the times. That this rule is carried out is evidenced in the numerous academies throughout Europe and the United States, and one has but to visit "The Pines" to testify to the fact of its superiority as a teaching institution.

Each year, as this glorious "Jour de Fete" comes around, St. Ursula's of "The Pines," in fact every Ursuline convent the world over is "en fete." The day is happily looked forward to by newcomers, as well as by those who participated in the festivities in the year past, for it means a gala holiday. All the divisions of the school are allowed to converse together. This is indeed considered a very great privilege, for except on grand holidays, the young ladies of the First Division have no intercourse with the Juniors, nor these with the Minims. It was our good fortune to visit this renowned institution last Monday, and being accompanied by a very dear friend of the Community, we came in for an invitation to the concert given by the pupils at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The first object to arrest our attention on entering the Grand Hall was a beautiful tapestry painting hung on the south-eastern wall. Back of the stage was a fine painting of St. Cecilia; near this a very tasteful banner bearing the coat of arms of the Rt. Rev. F. C. McEvay, D. D., of London, Ont. Right here we remark that the fact of His Lordship honoring the occasion added a lustre and regality to the festivities. Sufficient to know that His Lordship is coming to make gladness reign supreme at "The Pines."

That morning, holy mass was said by the Bishop, during which the young ladies sang some beautiful hymns. The one in honor of St. Ursula was particularly beautiful. After mass His Lordship spoke a few congratulatory and encouraging words to the religious and pupils, and from the life of St. Ursula gave many practical exhortations and inspiring lessons. Evergreens, wreaths of pines, beautiful palms, the choicest and richest maple leaves were in profusion. At 3 o'clock the concert commenced.

"Autumn Leaves" was sung by thirty of the Junior Division. Each one had autumn leaves in some pretty design, and the grace of gesture, and really refined rendition of the little song was greatly admired.

Those in this chorus were: A. More, O. Mather, S. Kinsella, W. Bartlett, O. Peck, B. Kelly, C. McGregor, G. Prudhomme, K. Kilken, R. Deloge, S. Post, G. McDonnell, E. Ouellette, F. and I. Donovan, Angela and Catherine Payne, Angela Crotty and Angela Kinn.

At the close of the program, His Lordship presented medals, certificates and premiums as follows:

Medal awarded to Miss Sarah Reid for having received highest marks at the Junior Leaving Departmental examination.

Certificate and premium awarded to Misses Gordon, More, Phaneuf, Hogan and McDonnell for having successfully passed the Junior Leaving Departmental examination.

Medal awarded to Miss Therese O'Rourke, who received the highest marks, girls' Entrance class.

Medal awarded to Miss Cecilia McGregor for application and progress, and having passed the Entrance examination.

The following were successful candidates at the Entrance examinations: Misses Marguerite O'Keefe, Ethel Walsh, Rose Deloge, Laura McDonnell, Pearl Taylor and Claire Chevalier.

Medal awarded to Clarence Goudreau, who received the highest marks, boys' Entrance class.

A few words of encouragement were addressed to the pupils by their zealous and devoted Prelate. He complimented the young ladies on their successful and highly artistic rendition of the magnificent cantata. The young ladies taking the leading parts, Miss Mattie Gavin, of New York City, as "Ursula," and Miss Claire Chevalier, Marinette, Wisconsin, as "Angela," came in for a well merited word of praise.

The reverend clergy present were: Rev. Archdeacon Andrieux, Rev. Fr. O'Donohue, Port Lambton; Rev. Fr. Aylward, rector of Cathedral, London, Ont.; Rev. Fr. James, O. F. M., P. P. City; Rev. Frs. WEAKNESS
OF MEN AND WOMEN

Could we read the hearts of every man we meet, what a load of sorrow and despair would be disclosed. Indiscretions and Blood Diseases have caused more physical and mental trouble than all other causes combined. They strike at the foundation of manhood; they sap the vital forces; they undermine the system, and not only for the sufferer but for the family circle, but they may even extend their poisonous fangs into the next generation. If you have been a victim of early sinful habits, remember the seed is sown, and sooner or later you will reap a harvest. If your blood has been diseased from any cause, do not risk a return later on. Our New Method Treatment will positively cure you and you need never fear any return of the disease. We will give you a guarantee and send to that effect. We warrant you, sincerely against the promiscuous use of mercury, which does not cure blood poison but simply suppresses the symptoms.

WE CURE OR NO PAY.
Don't Let Your Life be Drained Away, which weakens the intellect as well as the body. There is no room in this world for mental, physical or sexual dwarfing. Our New Method Treatment will Stop all Unnatural Losses, Purify the Blood, Strengthen the Nerves, Restore Vitality, and make man of you. If you are in trouble, call and consult us. Consultation is Free. We treat and cure Drains, Blood Diseases, Varicocele, Stricture, Unnatural Discharges, Gleet, Kidney and Bladder Diseases. No cutting or operations. No detection from business. Everything confidential. Consultation Free. Books Free. Question Blank Free for Home Treatment.

HEART DISEASE.

SOME OF THE PECULIAR ASPECTS OF THIS DREAD MALADY.

Anger, Hate, Tobacco and Excess of All Kinds Forbidden to its Unfortunate Possessor—The Fear of Death That It Entails.

A lawyer was talking with a friend when a sudden pallor came over his face. Thrusting his hand quickly into a waistcoat pocket he drew out a small phial from which he poured two or three pellets into the palm of his hand and swallowed them. He was a stout, robust man, having every appearance of health. His friend exclaimed:

"Why, Jack, what's the matter? What are you taking those pills for?"

Jack smiled grimly.

"There is something the matter with my heart," he replied. "Now and then the machine gets out of order. Some of the wheels don't work or a cog slips. If at those periods I can get those little pellets of strychnine down quick enough, the difficulty is fixed up for the time being. But one of these days the poison will get in its work too late, and then—"

The clasp was supplied by a look more eloquent than words.

"What is the nature of your heart affection? Have you been examined?"

"Yes, I presume that in 25 years I have been examined by 50 physicians. But no two of them ever agreed as to the exact nature of my disease."

"What are your symptoms?"

"The first and most prominent symptom is the fact that I am constantly made aware that I have a heart. Either it is beating so slowly that I can scarcely feel it or else it is racing like a Corliss engine at full speed. At night I can hear it croaking and straining like an old schooner off Point Judith in a storm. I have often smiled to myself in the dark hours just before dawn when I have been awakened by some frightful struggle on the part of my heart to keep up its natural rhythm to think how some strong man, a baseball player or an athlete, who never knew he had a heart, would act if such an attack came upon him suddenly."

"Oh, it is only a case of dyspepsia," said his friend. "I often have green feelings around the heart myself."

"Yes, that's what all your friends tell you," said the lawyer. "They want to cheer you up. It's a good thing that they do. Heart disease is naturally depressing. Consumptives always believe they are going to get well, but a man whose heart is affected is positive that he won't live a week."

"I suppose the condition of your heart prevents you from running?"

"Yes, and any form of severe physical exercise. I wouldn't run a block for $30,000. I am never in a hurry to catch a car. I usually take from two to three minutes to walk up the stairs of the elevated road."

"What effect does heart trouble have upon the mind?"

"Well, I suppose that depends upon the man. If he be of the highly imaginative type, the consciousness that his heart is diseased is always depressing. There are times when he is perfectly quiet or when the heart is gently stimulated by poisons, such as strychnine or alcohol, that he is comparatively free from distressing symptoms. But the knowledge that his heart is weak never wholly leaves him. It follows him everywhere. He dreads not drink because he is afraid of overstimulation and consequent palpitation. He must not use tobacco because the weed has a depressing influence upon his life pump. He dreads not permit his temper to get the better of his judgment. The heart is peculiarly susceptible to anger. Should a man grossly insult him he must grin and bear it, for both the passion of resentment and the physical effort required to place a blow would result in more injury to the man himself than to his enemy."

"I can see from your remarks that heart disease has some moral advantages."

"Yes; it certainly is a deterrent so far as alcohol, tobacco and anger are concerned. In fact, heart disease is a great asset to vice of any kind. It keeps up a row even if a man tries to do a little loving."

"Is there any pain?"

"Not in the sense that the word is generally understood. If your finger is caught in a door crack, there is a vivid sense of suffering, but no fear. With heart trouble there is no acute pain, but plenty of uneasiness and a full sense of weakness. Anguish is the better word to describe it."

"I have been walking along a street, feeling in my normal condition, when a chain has opened in the sidewalk and I have found myself sinking into the hole. I have stood on the brink trembling and sweating with apprehension. A feeling of such awful weakness and apprehension has come over me that I have been paralyzed speechless. There was absolutely no physical indication that anything had happened, but the mental appreciation was frightfully appalling."

"At such times my heart had telegraphed my brain that it was tired. It had been pumping away in my breast ever since I was born, never stopping. And now, in some inscrutable manner, which the wisest of doctors can give no rational explanation of, it has stopped beating for the fraction of a second. But in that brief space of time all the organs of the body have been notified that something is the matter with the engine."

"You stand hesitating on the brink of another existence or annihilation, listening to see if the engine will resume its old time beat. That is the time that your clammy fingers reach for your waistcoat pocket. In your haste you take a double dose. Slowly the noble organ responds to the stimulus, and you are saved for the time."

"I believe that I make no exaggeration in the statement that I have really to all intents and purposes died a thousand deaths. But such is the wonderful elasticity of the mind, so buoyant is hope, that after the most severe of these attacks it leaves no lasting impression. But I naturally try to get the little bottle out quick."

Content Either Way.
"People are always content with their children," said Mr. Crusty.

"Yes," answered Mr. Dusty. "If a boy is diffident, they say he is naturally reserved, and if he is belittled they say he is sure to make his way in the world."

Single Ever.
I called her my wild Irish rose and asked her to marry me.

"But wild roses are always single!" cried she, with a mocking laugh.—Detroit Free Press.

Bile Poisons, Liver Disorders, Headache, Biliousness and Constipation are Thoroughly Cured by

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

There is no single organ in the human body which exerts such a wide influence over the other organs as does the liver. It has been well named the regulator of the system. Once the liver grows sluggish and fails to filter bile poisons from the system, there comes pain, disease and death. The head aches, the tongue is coated, the bowels become constipated, the digestive system is thrown out of order, and foul impurities, that should be removed from the body, are thrown back into the blood streams, to find their way to the weak spots of the human frame.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have a direct action on the liver, and bring back the liver to its normal condition. Nearly everybody is familiar with the extraordinary virtue of this famous treatment. Here is an example of the letters received from cured ones:

Mr. John Skelton, the well known bridge-builder of 101 Sherwood street Ottawa, states:—

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney and liver derangements, brought on by exposure, and find them better than any pills or medicine I have ever used."

"They cleaned my system and made me feel healthy and vigorous and better in every way. I can recommend them as the best liver and kidney medicine that I know of."

Mrs. G. Bird, Harrison, Ont., says:—

"I have suffered agonies from such headache and dizziness, often having to take to my bed. Reading of your celebrated Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I tried a box of them. They indeed are wonders—relieve quickly."

Mr. James Baird, postmaster, Coneseon, Ont., states:—

"It gives me and my wife much pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a family medicine of superior value. We use them in preference to all other pills in our family and I might here state that they cured me when suffering from biliousness, and also cured my wife of sick headache, from which she suffered severely."

IN JANUARY

The Ontario Legislature Will Meet—So Says the Provincial Premier.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—It is our intention to have a session of the Legislature early in January," said Premier Ross, when asked in regard to the report in a morning paper that a session of the House was to be held in December and the dissolution of the Parliament to follow in April. The Premier stated that the newspaper was barking up the wrong tree when it predicted a session before the year was out. "That article was evidently inspired by the publication of a receipt and expenditures for Ontario for the past nine months. The public should have died had not the bill been passed last session, extending its life."

HOW TO GROW THIN.

Remarkable Effect of Abstaining From Water—Not Hard to Do.

The most popular means of reducing adipose tissue just now consists of abstaining completely from water or an excess of any other liquid at meals. Encouraging stories are told of the amount of flesh lost in this way, and there is no doubt that the method is highly effective. Of course coffee for breakfast is not included in this regime, which does, however, prohibit any liquid whatever at luncheon or dinner. For any hour preceding the meal no liquids must be taken, and to make the cure effective one hour should be allowed to elapse before anything is drunk.

This process is not nearly so difficult as it seems. The most contrived drinkers of water with their meals, men and women who are never satisfied unless they drink four or five glasses of water during a meal, have found that after two or three days they have become entirely accustomed to doing without so much liquid. The effects of this sort of abstinence are really remarkable. Like all methods of reduction, they are first shown in the face as the cheeks lose the puffed and bloated look that goes with undue stoutness. All of the athletic training farms follow this system, which is as good for the general health as it is for the reduction of flesh. The prohibition against water or any liquid greater in amount than a wineglass is strict. Not until an hour after eating can water be taken, and then there may be no limit to the quantity of it.

With a Difference.

One is sometimes startled at the discovery of a new and most disagreeable force in a single word, when that word is applied to himself to characterize some unpleasant fact of which he has long been aware.

"Don't call me fleshy," said a lady of magnificent proportions. "I don't object to my size, but I simply can't bear to hear that word."

Another woman has not the least desire to marry, but can't endure to be called a "spinster."

Not long ago a pretty woman in the thirties announced her intention of taking a somewhat extended trip alone, and ended with the remark, "An old maid like me doesn't need an escort."

Then Marjorie, the little maid of the family burst into a torrent of tears.

"You're not an old maid, auntie!" she wailed. "You're not. I can't bear it!"

"But I am, Marjorie," said her aunt, laughing. "Why, it's a nice thing to be. I like it."

"Oh, but you're not, you're not!" cried Marjorie, and she rushed off to the study to ask, passionately, "Papa, is auntie an old maid?"

"No, dear," said her father, soothingly, "not at all. She is only a postponed bride."

That proved wondrous comforting. The tears were speedily dried, but auntie herself was somewhat electrified when a caller came that afternoon to hear the little girl repeat sweetly, and in a tone of triumph that no one could suggest her ceasing to repeat the remark:

"Did you know Aunt Helen is a postponed bride? Isn't it nice?"

The Ethics of Luck.

On the belief in luck have augurs, diviners, fortune-tellers, all traded from time immemorial to the present age. They "calculate" the incalculable, and, necessarily, arbitrary dogmas take the place of a logical basis on which to work out their schemes. They rely on the luck of odd numbers; in them the imperial phantom—either in birth or chance or death—loves to reside. Seven has always been a number to conjure with, and the seventh child of a seventh month, born in the seventh month comes clad in a mysterious panoply of foreknowledge absolute; while nine was at one place and period looked upon as a symbol of Deity. Great men will have their lucky day or month, as one of the Caesars gave his name to the eighth month, that in which the most fortunate events of his life had occurred. The blood of a great family like that of the Stuarts or the Bourbons, for instance, in its collateral branches, the taint of that ill-success, ill-health, which is summed up as ill-luck. Certain genes, such, for instance, as opals, are esteemed as stones of ill-omen—talismans reversed. It is not, of course, that they carry with them ill-luck to their wearers or owners. The truth of this superstition is demonstrated by the violent deaths which have befallen unlucky opal wearers. Have they not succumbed to the ill-luck attending a gem, to gain possession of which a fellow creature has not hesitated to shed their blood? No doubt it is very unlucky to awaken the covetousness of a robber and a murderer.

Tread in a Bowdler.

A remarkable flint bowdler has been discovered in Leazes, England, and is now in the possession of Chas. Dawson, F.G.S., of Uckfield. In a cavity within the bowdler was found a full-grown toad, which must, when young, have entered the hole in the stone by a small aperture. There the unfortunate prisoner waxed to adolescence, and probably he may have died of chagrin on finding that he had delayed his exit too long, for the hole afterward became silted up. The bowdler, which is shown in section and also with the pieces replaced, was exhibited at the last meeting of the Linnean Society, and is eventually to be placed in Henry Willett's collection at the Brighton Museum.

Not Disposed to Dispute.

Aunt Hannah—Oh, you fool of a girl! Just because a man tells you you are the prettiest woman in the world and the wisest and sweetest you believe him.

Arabella—And why shouldn't I? Do you know, aunt, I kind of think so myself.

WERE LOADED

Big Point Sportsmen Tried Home-Made Shells and found they had Fully Sufficient Power.

There is always a deluge of accidents of the "didn't know it was loaded" variety, but out at Big Point the sportsmen are now very careful to know who loaded the gun before they care to shoot it off.

Mr. Cheff keeps a store at Big Point for a living and to add to the financial receipts and to make sure that his customers got their money's worth, he decided to load shells himself.

Eugene Martin, who enjoys the reputation of being the most powerful man in Dover, thought he would go shooting one day of recent date and hearing that storekeeper Cheff had some good shells which he had charged himself, Mr. Martin decided to patronize local trade.

Mr. Martin had some doubts as to whether the shells were loaded with sufficient strength. He asked how much powder was in the shells and learned that there was 3 1-2 drams of gold dust powder in each shell. Not satisfied, however, Mr. Martin said he would try the shells, so he borrowed a gun and went out in the yard to shoot at a board and find out what those shells would do. Had Mr. Martin known that 48 grains was a large load of gold dust powder, he would probably have hesitated and in contradistinction to popular tradition, have been saved, but in blissful ignorance of the compressed power bottled up in the innocent looking shells, the Senator of Dover took careful aim at the board. That was the last time that he cared to look at the board. The heavy charge in the gun broke the stock and nearly dislocated Mr. Martin's shoulder. He felt like he had been run through a threshing mill and then jumped on. He had no doubt about the shooting power of the shells after that, but he didn't care to try any more hunting with. He didn't even care to ascertain what damage had been done to the board, which was really too bad.

Joe Toulouse, also, purchased some of the shells and as he wended his way merrily to the hunting ground, he waxed jubilant as he thought of the great destruction he would scatter amid the game with Cheff's shells. He is even said to have smiled happily to himself. Then he felt sad. It would be a pity to kill so much game at once.

Elkely and with malice aforethought, Joseph took aim at the waxy game, but for once the birds had the best of it. The home loaded shell broke open the gun and the brass part of the shell was carried into the muzzle of the gun. Joseph didn't do any more shooting that day and he hasn't shot off one of those shells since. He says they are loaded with "damnable" all of which goes to prove that it is just as well to know what your shells are loaded with and who did it, when you go shooting.

THORNTON & DOUGLASTheatrical

Mr. Walker Whiteside, appearing in that delightful romantic comedy, "Heart and Sword," and supported by a company of rare worth, is to be seen in this city at the Grand on Friday evening, 25th October, and one of the rarest and most delightful performances of the entire season is assured. Mr. Whiteside is what may be termed "an eminent actor," though many persons of limited mentality insist that eminence alone is consistent with a hoary age. Mr. Whiteside gained his first laurels in Shakespearean roles, and he gained them only after a struggle against almost overwhelming odds. His inborn talent, his unquenchable fire of ambition, his youth and bearing finally won for him, and when he had attained to the long sought pinnacle of pre-eminence he turned those talents to the new field of the romantic play and he has been as decided a success in this line of work as he was in Shakespearean roles. Shipman Bros. are presenting "Heart and Sword" in an almost lavish fashion. Every detail of stage dress and costume effects are identical with the period in which the scene of the play is laid. An excellent supporting company, including Mr. Jos. DeGrasse, Mr. Richard George Arthur, Mr. Lawrence Ewart, Miss Lelia Wolsten, Miss Kate Pennean, Miss Katherine Swift, Miss Gale and other well known artists.

MR. WALKER WHITESIDE

Harris & Floyd's production of Hal Reid's masterpiece, "A Homesman Heart," will be the attraction at the Grand on Monday evening, Oct. 24th. Critics of the Chicago dailies, where this play opened its season, have ranked this gem of rural love stories with the stage classics as "Way Down East, Shore Acres, Peaceful Valley, Sag Harbor and Old Homestead." There is not a dull moment in "A Homesman Heart." The action of the play, while laid in a rural community, does not drag for an instant. It deals with a homespun people, their life, life and trials. The atmosphere of the play is wholesome and points an excellent moral. In the cast are such well-known character portrayals as Blanche Warren, Lulu Espey, Lucille Allen Walker, Estelle Howard, Fred Monley, Harry L. Dunkinson, Asahel L. Evans, Will M. Chapman and Charles W. Porter.

GETTING READY

Organizer Smith Says the Liberal Party is Now Actively Preparing for the Election.

Alex. Smith, Toronto, secretary of the Liberal Association of Ontario, and organizer of the party, was present at the Liberal convention held in Ridgeway Monday.

In conversation with a Planet reporter he said:—"We have never before had the voters' lists in better condition than we have, them for the coming general elections. We commenced at the beginning of last January and have them nearly completed. We have three stages which we have to put through. First, through the association, then the revision court, and then the judges' courts."

"We adopted a new course this year and find it very successful. The lists were looked after in each separate stage, and we completed them in their several stages before entering on another. The prospects for victory are more prosperous than they have ever been."

Mr. Smith is a tall, well-built, and intelligent looking man, and has served as secretary to the Ontario Liberal Association for the last eight years. During that time he has conducted four general elections, two Dominion and two Provincial. It is his duty to visit the different municipalities and to put life into the different Liberal associations. The places he visits are chiefly where the Liberals are in the minority. Already 40 Liberal candidates have been nominated for the coming election, and 30 who are at present members in the House, will probably be again candidates, making 70 candidates nominated out of 94. This, Mr. Smith thinks, speaks well for this department of the work.

Mr. Smith is a highly educated gentleman and a very pleasant conversationalist. Early in life he made up his mind to be a lawyer, and in 1889 he enlisted in the reporter staff of the Mail and Empire, of Toronto, working at night and studying law in the day time. By constant pluck and steady perseverance, he gradually rose in his chosen profession, and in 1893 he graduated as a lawyer and was accepted at the bar. Shortly after his graduation he received the position which he now holds.

He is a warm personal friend of G. D. Smith, of Ridgeway, with whom he studied law in Toronto. These two gentlemen were in the same class at the university, studied in the same law office in Toronto, viz., that of A. McCrimmon, now a judge in the Ontario court, and both graduated at about the same time.

Mr. Smith returned to Toronto on Monday evening to continue the duties of his office.

The rates to the Pan-American exposition have taken a sudden drop, and W. E. Rispin now announces via Grand Trunk and Wabash Rys, round tickets to Buffalo, on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, at $2.85 each, good to return six days from date. This liberal arrangement by the railways should induce a heavy travel to the exposition for the balance of the month.
