Indigestion, costiveness, headache, nausea, biliousness, and vertigo indicate...

which is Ayer's Pills. Purely vegetable, sugar-coated, easy to take and quick to assimilate, this is the ideal family medicine--the most popular, safe, and useful aperient in pharmacy.

Mrs. M. A. BROCKWELL, Harris, Tenn., says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills cured me of sick headache and my husband of neuralgia. We think there is no better medicine, and have induced many to use it."

"Thirty-five years ago this Spring, I was run down by hard work and a succession of colds, which made me so feeble that it was an effort for me to walk. I consulted the doctors, but kept sinking lower until I had given up all hope of ever being better. Happening to be in a store, one day, where medicines were sold, the proprietor showed me a weak and sickly appearance, and after a few questions as to my health, recommended me to try Ayer's Pills. I had little faith in these or any other medicine, but concluded, at last, to take his advice and try a box. Before I had used them all, I was very much better, and two boxes cured me. I am now 30 years old; but I believe that if it had not been for Ayer's Pills, I should have been in my grave long ago. I buy 6 boxes every year, which make 30 boxes up to this time, and I would no more be without them than without bread."--H. H. Ingraham, Rockland, Me.

POETRY.

Her Best. Have you noticed the change it sometimes makes--

In a woman's face-- Passive it may be, and dull and cold, Neutral-tinted and commonplace--

When the sun falls on it! How swift it takes Meaning and color and soft outlines! How strange new lights from the eyes will ally!

And new life! Women on cheek and lip, The whole face softens and warms and glows, And the hair a milder green overhoid Shows forth of a sudden, unthought of gold.

Oh, there's many a woman, east and west, Must be in the sunshine, to look her best!

Have you ever noticed the change it makes In a woman's face And her heart and her life, that were cold and dull And slightly inclined to commonplace

When her nature a ware of gold, Bringing out beauty unknown before, Melting, widening more and more, Lifting her up till her eyes behold Ever new bloom for her hands to cull, So she and her life grow beautiful? Oh, there's never a woman east or west, But must live in love's sunshine to live her best!

SELECT STORY.

At the World's Mercy. BY FLORENCE WARDEN.

CHAPTER VI.--Continued. "I have forgiven your brother, Mr. Hubert, so I must forgive you--"

"What! Has Tom apologized then?" "Yes."

"Then you won't go away?" "I think not."

He looked delighted. "Miss Verney, we will have a bonfire to celebrate the day." "And celebrate me like Guy Fawkes? I don't think I should like it, Mr. Hubert."

"Then I will have a private entertainment with illuminations, in my own room, Miss Verney, and blow up old Martin with gunpowder or oaths; you won't mind that, will you?" "I could not help laughing."

"You may prepare it as soon as you please, Mr. Hubert."

"That means I am to go. Very well, Miss Verney. Good night."

And, after shaking hands for about a minute and a half while he went on talking, he took his departure.

I sat down again and looked at the grapes thoughtfully. It would not be so easy to avoid these two young men in future. And yet, if all Mrs. Godfrey had told me about them were true--

If I began to doubt it. Lazy and abrupt, impatient and intemperate they might be; but liars and slanderers? I doubted it. Without a spark of good feeling or generosity? I denied it. I had been touched by the expression on the face of the younger when he saw my tear-swollen eyelids. Stronger than I had ever felt it before rose within me that restless longing to check it that the sight of waste, especially the waste of human life, must always awaken in man or woman.

As I had expected, I was therefor on a different footing with the brothers. Mr. Tom Godfrey talked to me during breakfast; Mr. Hubert discovered that his place at the luncheon-table was draughty, and changed it for one by me. I met these advances shyly; but, as both gentlemen were perfectly kind and courteous, my life was much the pleasanter for their friendship. But I was hurt by the tone in which Mr. Hubert talked of "Delliah," as he would call Mrs. Godfrey, and soon I cut him short whenever he spoke of her.

One afternoon, when the children and I were having tea in the school-room, there was a knock at the door, and "Come in" brought in Hubert.

Local and Provincial.

A quantity of matter intended for this issue is unavoidably crowded out.

Attention is directed to the bicycle adv. of Messrs Brown, Munro & Co. in another column.

The Wolfville Speedway is now completed, and will be open to the public free of charge, for a short time.

The new plate of glass to replace the one broken in Brown, Munro & Co's building last week, has arrived and was set on Tuesday.

Anniversary next week. The exercises promise to be of unusual interest, and a large number of people will probably be in town.

Rev. W. P. Begg occupied the Presbyterian pulpit at Wolfville and Lower Horton last Sunday. Rev. Mr Fraser preached at Kentville.

If you want the choicest Fruit kept in town go to G. E. Torrie's at the New York Oyster House.

The "Old Homestead Quartette," are to furnish music for the Anniversary Concert. Those who attend are assured of a treat. Get your tickets early as they are limited.

Hantsport has a paper, The Advance, published by Mr Oscar Dornier, made its appearance on Thursday last week. It is a neatly gotten up and new sheet, and the ACADIAN extends to it a hearty welcome.

Vegetable and Flower seeds. Full assortment at the Drugstore. 41.

A little daughter of Mr J. M. Shaw was run into by a bicycle one day this week and quite badly hurt. It is contrary to law for bicycles to be run on the sidewalk, and the authorities should see that it is enforced.

The last recital of the season by the pupils of Acadia Seminary is to be held in Alumni Hall to-morrow evening. Preparations are being made to have this the best on the coast, and it should receive a good patronage.

We are sorry to see our street authorities perpetrating the mistake of allowing material from cellars being put on the streets. The experience of the past in this line should be sufficient to prevent the further continuance of this practice.

Do not forget to visit the Studio of Acadia Seminary on the afternoons of June 4, 5 and 6, when an exhibition of the work of the Art Class, in Charcoal, Oil, and China, will be held from 2 till half-past 5 of p. m. Front entrance main building.

The choicest Ice Cream always on hand at the New York Oyster House.

There will be an exhibition of work from the literary departments of the Seminary in class-room B. on the afternoons of June 4, 5 and 6, from 2 to 5 p. m. This exhibit is intended to show the character of the work done in geometry, zoology, botany and book-keeping. Front entrance, main building.

The BEST Spring and summer medicine, Sarsaparilla Blood Purifier, 50c. Drugstore.

The death of Mr Bishop Palmeter, one of the oldest and best known citizens of Wolfville, took place last Friday night. He had been in poor health for some time, having had an attack of paralysis during the winter from which he never recovered. The deceased was a native of Long Island, but had lived in Wolfville for many years. He was 75 years of age.

Always a fine assortment of Confectionery, Kandy Kitchen Chewing Candy received fresh every week.

The School of Horticulture after finishing the course of grafting and budding have during the last week been carefully discussing the plum, cherry, and quince, with the diseases and insects pertaining to each, the receipts and prevention to be applied—a very necessary addition to the knowledge of any amateur who owns a single fruit tree. On Tuesday evening Prof. Faville gave a highly interesting address on Forestry, which was instructive and much appreciated by the class.

Acadia Seminary.

The last days of the term are devoted to written examinations and preparations for the Saturday evening's Recital and the closing exercises.

The whole number in attendance has been 114 of which 63 were boarding pupils. Forty-eight pupils have attended from the village and vicinity.

The present Junior class, numbering 15, is the largest in the history of the school. Eight of these will graduate in piano, having completed three years under the instruction of Fraulein Suck.

The classes in Drawing and Painting have been unusually large, and more excellent work from Still Life, Casts and Models has been done than perhaps ever before.

It is hoped that the friends and appreciators of Art will avail themselves of the opportunity afforded on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to visit the Studio and see what excellent work has been done.

At the same time an exhibition of literary work will be held, where the friends of the school can examine the character of the work done in several of the sciences and mathematics.

The school has also been blessed in a spiritual way, and six young ladies have taken a decided stand for in the Christian life. One of the graduates is a member of the Missionary Volunteer Band, and after further preparation in a school of Christian Workers, hopes to open the foreign field.

The representatives of the Seminary in India already number eight. What school, in existence but fifteen years, can show a like record? Let the friends of Acadia Seminary thank God and take courage.

Robert Bonner TELLS HOW HE BECAME INTERESTED IN THE TROTTER HORSE.

Robert Bonner has been so long prominently before the American public, as a successful journalist, publisher and owner and breeder of the most superb trotters in the world, that those not favored by knowing him personally, imagine him to be a very old man.

Born in the north of Ireland in 1824, Mr Bonner was seventy years of age on the 24th of April though he does not look fifty. Fair haired, fresh-faced, powerfully built, and under the average height, he looks like a man in the prime of life.

Since turning over his publishing business to his three sons, about four years ago, Mr Bonner has devoted his time to the care of his large holdings of real estate, and to the management of his extensive breeding farm in West Chester county, about sixteen miles north of New York City.

Mr Bonner's abundance of information makes him the most difficult man in the world to interview on his favorite subject. He directs the conversation, and though he sticks to the subject, like a bloodhound to a trail, he is led off, to discuss related matters, all intensely interesting to those who can follow and understand them.

"What do you know about trotting before your time, and when did you become interested in the subject?" I asked. "Well, there was a great deal of trotting before my time, particularly at agricultural fairs, in the spring and fall.

My own interest in trotters came about largely through chance. I had been working very hard, and my health threatened to give way. My doctor advised cessation from work and a long trip, but these remedies were not to be thought of. To have left New York then, would have meant disaster to my publishing business, so as a compromise, I was advised to buy a horse and drive for a few hours each day.

So I bought a good horse one that would neither lead the procession nor limp back at the rear. Mr Bonner laughed heartily at some pleasant reflection, then concluded: "There are certain feelings and impulses that are common to all men, and one of these is a strong dislike to take another man's dust. No man, who ever held lines over a dashboard likes to have another man shoot by him, with a faster horse and proceed to give him his dust.

Commodore Vanderbilt had, at this time, the fastest team in New York, and he knew how to drive it. Whenever he passed me, as he was always sure to do, if he came my way, I imagined there was an expression of lordly superiority and triumph in his eyes and this stirred up my Scotch-Irish blood at the fountain head. I learned there was a phenomenal horse for sale down in Maryland, and keeping my own counsel, I had him tested, and became his owner. One of the proudest moments of my life was when I first pulled the lines over that horse's back, and headed for the road where the old Commodore had been in the habit of starting the dust at the head of the procession. My heart hungered to have him come in sight, and its hunger was soon appeased. He drove my in a hurry and wheeled out to pass me, as had been his custom, but I kept a level head. A side glance showed me his face was red. He whipped up—still on the side cur of the road, but I kept in the lead. His team broke, and then I let my horse out; and he never passed me again, without my own consent. He made overtures to buy that horse, but so long as I liked driving, he was not for sale—unless there was a better horse in sight.

A Cunning Toad. A naturalist paper relates an interesting instance of a toad's cunning. A brood of chickens was fed with moistened meal in saucers, and when the dough soured a little it attracted large numbers of flies. An observant toad had evidently noticed this, and every day toward evening he would make his appearance in the yard, hop to the saucer, climb in and roll over and over until he was covered with meal, having done which he awaited developments. The flies enticed by the small soot swarmed around the seeming baltharian, and whenever one passed within two inches or so of his nose his tongue darted out and the fly disappeared. This plan worked so well that the toad made regular business of it.

Wisdom for Advertisers. In advertising be sure you say what you mean.

The power of hypnotism lies in a cleverly displayed ad. There is not a legitimate business that cannot be benefited by advertising.

Do not be too ready to adopt new methods of advertising; be a little conservative. Don't play an important part in display; don't be afraid of "white space."

Experience tends to confirm the opinion that success in the commercial field to-day lies in advertising. If you are lax in the wording of your ads, people will expect nothing better of you in your other branches of business.

Compositors and proof readers get much blame for the few errors they make and little praise for the many blunders they rectify. A man is never in the mood to search for the meaning of an advertisement. What you have to state must be put in the clearest and most straightforward manner.

Subordinates may be capable of doing the routine work of the office, but when it comes to work that is to go out into the world, the eye of a superior should at least pass judgment on it. Do not over extol the superior quality of your own goods. Self-praise will not help your case. Just make plain statements. They have a greater effect on a customer. Still, if you have nothing good to offer don't advertise.

The man who refuses to advertise his business, saying that he is willing to let trade come to him by natural means, should be consistent, walk home from business, cook his dinner over a few stumps, and read the paper by the light of a pine knot—if he can read.

People who read the newspaper advertisements do not look for elegance of style. They are in search of facts. Give them what they are looking for, and write a novel to show your literary ability—you need not publish it unless some other person will assume the expense.

While the miser's money is secreted in a cellar, it is losing interest. The merchant who has goods in stock and fails to let the public know of it, pursues a policy that is equally un sound. In both cases the principal may be secure but the profit which might have been realized is a bad advertisement to do effective work, even though it appears in a first-class paper. The paper is merely a conveyance which is used to bring the ad before the reader. Further than serving this object it is impotent. The failure to obtain results is due to the inefficiency of the advertisement. A bad one may even do harm—but it costs just as much as the best.

The object of all advertising is the dissemination of knowledge relative to some subject with which the advertiser wishes the public to become acquainted. If the article to be advertised is not known to the public, the ad must go into a detailed explanation. Presenting the merits of the salesman as closely as possible, it must set forth the article, tell of its cost and where it can be purchased. If the summing up is strong and the general treatment lucid, it is reasonably certain that the ad will make an impression on the mind of the reader.

Scraps for Odd Moments. The search is fruitless, sighed the man, as he looked in vain for pineapples on a pine tree.
