

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N.S., OCT. 14, 1898.

Editorial Notes.

The government has appointed Thursday, Nov. 26th, as a day for national thanksgiving in Canada. We had hoped that those who have the select in hand would have fixed upon a day earlier in the season and more appropriate for celebrating a harvest festival, but in their wisdom they have seen fit to do otherwise. We suppose it is "better late than never" with them.

There are about 3,500 different makes of their patented at Washington, U. S. and yet the inventor still finds room for improvement. The kind, made of iron, strong, and practically everlasting one is a full staff chair with both seat and weight only seven feet high. It folds up when not in use into an apparent solid. When open and adjusted for service, by its peculiar construction, every part locks itself in place, without pin, bolt or screw. It is so constructed that the pedestrian, if he chooses, can slip it on to his hands and there is a soft seat it has the exact appearance of an umbrella. The inventor, Rev. D. O. Parker, of this town, proposes putting it into the U. S. market the coming season.

The weather this year having been somewhat broken during haying and harvesting season, some little drawbacks have been experienced, yet on the whole, the abundant crops have yielded well, and our farmers are consequently feeling well over the situation. There is no doubt that the farming interests of the country are progressing, and the farmers of the Maritime Provinces are making rapid strides in many directions heretofore neglected. The opening up of speedy and continuous transportation to the British markets by steamers from St. John and Halifax, with first-class storage equipment and reasonable rates, puts us in touch with the great markets in the world and it is our duty to see that these properly prepared, the results are bound to be beneficial to all concerned.

Numerous cases of fraud perpetrated in the polls in the city of Montreal and other parts of the province of Quebec, in connection with the prohibition plebiscite, are reported. The evidence is so strong and definite that it has been decided that a statement of all the cases reported be compiled and laid before government for investigation. In one district of the city a certain individual registered his vote forty-five times against prohibition and numerous similar cases are reported. These investigations will no doubt throw considerable light upon the subject, and Quebec was obtained. The Montreal Tribune, which has done such excellent service for the prohibition cause during the campaign, is publishing from day to day very interesting details of the frauds perpetrated.

Sydney, C. B. has a daily paper, the Record, which was started a short time since, and has devoted a good deal of attention to the road reform. The following, taken from a late issue is very much to the point. It is fine for Nova Scotia to realize that, speaking generally, the means at our disposal are in a measure at least sufficient to secure permanent improvement to the highways. The trouble is that too often the money available is frittered away by incompetent and unscrupulous contractors, and the result is not so much one of money available as to devise a scheme where the means at hand may be used to the best advantage. We venture to suggest as our solution of the problem, that the whole road work of the province should be taken in hand by the provincial engineer and a corps of trained road masters, of whom there might be one or more for each county, according to area and population. Peace at the disposal of the engineer and his assistants all the money and means now available; let permanent work be the motto, beginning with the main highways; let it be understood that the parish politicians are not to interfere with the road work, and we believe that a few years would show a wonderful improvement in the roads, and the people not called upon for a dollar.

Centralization of authority is what is most wanted, and no scheme can ever have a fair chance of success if the disbursement of the road money is left under its present control with the result that it is divided and subdivided until all trace of the road grant is practically lost.

Miss Cowan's Musicals.

The musicals given by Miss Louisa Wheatley Cowan, in College Hall, last Friday evening, was not favored by a large audience as would have been wished for and reasonably expected. Miss Cowan is a Wolfville young lady and perhaps this accounted for the small attendance. Those who were present, however, and they were a good many, enjoyed a rich musical treat. Besides Miss Cowan the other performers were Mrs Percy Woodworth, of Kentville, and the Wolfville orchestra. The latter is a strong organization and their selections on Friday evening were particularly enjoyable. The general comment was that they had never played better. Mrs Woodworth had two numbers, which were given in her usual brilliant and masterly style. It is always a pleasure to listen to her performance on the piano, and the audience testified to this on Friday evening by their close attention and hearty applause. Miss Cowan was of course the star of the evening, and she received an encore for every number she has a rich, sweet voice which she used to advantage in the difficult selections rendered.

Personal Mention.

(Contributions to this department will be gladly received.)

Miss Jennie Ryan is visiting friends in Boston.

Mr and Mrs A. V. Rand are spending a few weeks in Boston and vicinity.

Mr C. H. Borden left on Tuesday to spend a few weeks at St. John and Fredericton, visiting friends.

Mrs D. O. Parker left Wolfville on Monday to visit her aunt, Mrs L. Chipman, in St. Stephen, and then to St. Andrews, as stated in the Advertiser. Mrs Chipman is the mother of John Chipman, Esq., M. P., of St. Stephen. From St. Stephen she will go to Boston to spend the winter with her daughters, whose address will be after the 1st of Nov, 103 Armaside St., Dorchester. Miss Alberta's office address will remain as heretofore, 28 State St., Boston. Mr Parker expects to join them, later in the season for the winter.

Return of Ayas Saxon.

Mr Saxon has received the highest commendations from the press of the province during his last tour. From a host before us our space will only permit us to copy the following:

Every number was abundantly chosen and given in such a measure, as to call forth hearty applause. Mr. Saxon is in some cases, quite correct, so highly delighted with the address. What ever one could say about the wonderful singer's voice would scarcely do him justice. He has a magnificent baritone voice full of expression. The Lent Chorus was given by special request.—Halifax Journal.

Every number of the program was happily chosen and rendered in such style as to elicit the highest applause of the audience. All the numbers were accord, some twice, and particularly Mr. Saxon's own, which so highly delighted the large and fashionable audience that requests aplaud was kept up and no notice taken of him in acknowledgment until he responded by singing again.—Halifax Chronicle.

To say that Mr. Saxon has done more for the cause of the temperance cause than any other man who has been present at his concert, "don't know what they missed."—Halifax Recorder.

A party of Christian Alliance teachers will arrive in the Province about Oct. 22nd inst., for the purpose of holding a series of Conventions along the Seaside line of truth. The party will visit St. John, St. Stephen, Moncton, Amherst, Truro, Halifax, New Glasgow, Pictou and Sydney, and will, it is expected, be composed of Rev. A. B. Simpson, Dr. H. Wilson, Rev. D. W. LeCocher and Rev. E. Kingman; the two last named being Superintendents of C. A. Missions in China and the Sudan.

Billions.

The members of "Lads" Division are having their hall newly papered and painted, and when completed it will be an exceedingly cozy and comfortable place of meeting. The society is in a healthy condition, and is looking forward to a successful winter's work.

The Newest Wonder of Science

Is the title of an article in the June number of the "Cosmopolitan," which treats of the liquefying of the air, an undertaking which most of people have hitherto thought impossible. Anybody who will take time to read the article referred to will have no trouble to appreciate the contentions of the manufacturer of

The Hooper-Axford Wedding.

Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 6th, witnessed a very interesting wedding in the parish church of St. John, Cornwallis, Nova Scotia. The contracting parties were Cecil H. Hooper, M. R. A. C. F. S. L., Highlands, Swanley, Kent, England, second son of Gen. N. Hooper, of Beckenham, Kent, and H. T. Marsalis Axford, only surviving daughter of the Rev. F. J. H. Axford, Rector of Cornwallis and rural dean of Avon, and grand-daughter of the late Rev. Wm. J. Bellow Archer, incumbent of Churchhill, Towerhamlet, England.

The day which was as a summer's day in warmth and brightness, commenced by the celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 a. m., the Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia being celebrant. All the members of the family were present. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and autumn leaves, by kind hands of the parishioners, who from childhood have been closely connected with the bride in all parish work and pleasure.

The church was crowded to the doors and even on the steps. At about two o'clock the groom and the best man, W. J. B. Axford, brother of the bride, entered the church by the vestry door, taking their position at the entrance of the chancel; then the doors were thrown open and two little girls, Miss Edith Cox and Miss Annie Chapman, were introduced up the aisle and untied a ribbon bow at the entrance of the chancel, when a third, the smallest flower girl, Miss Madeline McNutt, passed between them and took up her position, followed by the bridesmaid, Miss Jennie Rand, then the bride leaning on her father's arm. The beautiful service was impressively read by the Bishop. The first part of the service ended, the bride and groom proceeded to the chancel rails during the chanting of the psalm; the service being concluded the bride party followed the Bishop to the vestry, and on re-entering the church, the Sunday-school children, over whom the bride had been superintending, lined the central aisle and together with the flower girls scattered flowers at the feet of the newly married couple, whilst the wedding march was well executed by Miss Annie Chapman, a most intimate friend of the bride. On passing under the gallery a shower of rice greeted them.

After partaking of some refreshments at the Rectory, the bride party drove to the station to take the train for a short tour within the province. As our female readers will wish to know how the bride looked and how attired, we state, that we heard it widely remarked how very beautiful she looked. She was attired in a costly white silk dress, which her mother had worn at her wedding 50 years before; over it was worn a dress of chiffon, trimmed with satin and lace, the bridal veil reaching to the ground, being caught up here and there with orange blossoms, matching those in her hair.

The bridesmaid wore a dress of cream material, finished off with narrow blue ribbon, matching the blue forget-me-nots in her hair and looked very pretty. The flower girls wore long Princess dresses of white cashmere, with long silken sashes reaching to the lower edge of their dresses. They wore short veils and blue forget-me-nots in their hair, and appeared a charming little group.

The bride wore a specially made gold brooch set with topaz and pearl, which gem had been worn by her great grandmother.

The month's recipient of many presents, including a pretty gold watch from the bridesmaid, a very handsome travelling companion with the usual fittings presented by the members of the congregation of the church of St. John, where the organist for 7 years, and a handsome mirror from the teachers and scholars of the Sunday School.

The bridegroom presented the bridesmaid with a gold brooch set with pearls, and the little flower girls with silver chain bracelets. Mr and Mrs Hooper propose sailing for England, via Halifax, on Oct. 20.

There are too many cases of work out on the farms of the country, particularly in the long settled portions. The sooner such soil is plowed up the better. Soil turned late in the fall is tough and unrotted in the spring, causing less depth of soil for the crops, a more difficult working, and a loss to the planted crop of the fertility that would come from a rotted soil.

The Western Vote.

The Montreal Tribune gives the following explanation of the falling off in the plebiscite vote in Ontario and Manitoba as compared with the previous provincial vote:

The anti-prohibition press is making a great ado about the apparent decrease of prohibition sentiment in Ontario and Manitoba owing to the much smaller vote polled for prohibition last Thursday compared with the vote polled in these provinces nearly four years ago. The lack of patriotic interest in public questions of such importance is certainly to be deplored, but the reduction of the number of voters on this occasion as compared with the former plebiscite has no significance, as it could not have been otherwise. The last week in September is one of the busiest periods in the year among Ontario and Manitoba farmers. Threshing is in full swing all over the country, and as each machine requires a force of some eight or ten men to run it, when the weather is fine, we could hardly expect that the threshing would stop until the operators would go five or six miles to register their votes. Those who have sites are also filling them just at this time, and at each a gang of half a dozen or more men are required to keep the cutter going. In addition to this, the backhatch crop is being harvested, potatoes are being dug, corn is being cut and hauled, and fall ploughing is in progress. As the farmer has too many pressing duties requiring his immediate attention, and the plebiscite being often considered a secondary matter, the latter was neglected. The former plebiscite were taken during the ordinary farm work is suspended by the frost, and the voters were coming out anyway to choose their local councillors.

High Grade Sewing Machines.

Miller Bros' display of the "New Raymond," "New Williams," and "Wheeler & Wilson" sewing machines at the Provincial Exposition of 1898, held at Halifax, N. S., was certainly very beautiful. Their sewing machine booth, to say the least, was very artistically fitted and furnished, and reflected much credit on the taste of the person or persons who decorated the show. Thousands of visitors, who visited the show at that the store, said firm, Corner of Prince and Barrington streets, was awarded the diploma and medal for the best exhibition of high grade sewing machines. The exhibit consisted of the "New Raymond" and "Wheeler & Wilson" in family and tailoring styles, and the "New Williams" as a unique family machine. In the booth was a skeleton machine kept running by an electric motor, with a mirror adjusted underneath so as to reflect the underwork in motion to perfection, much to the satisfaction of admirers of art. Some very fine samples of work done on the "New Williams" sewing machines were on exhibition in the booth. Lessons were given on the different machines in the booth by courteous and obliging operators. Visitors, as well as all others, were specially invited to the firm's workrooms to inspect the fine stock which consisted of a large number of very handsome machines in oak and figured walnut.

High Grade Sewing Machines.

Miller Bros' display of the "New Raymond," "New Williams," and "Wheeler & Wilson" sewing machines at the Provincial Exposition of 1898, held at Halifax, N. S., was certainly very beautiful. Their sewing machine booth, to say the least, was very artistically fitted and furnished, and reflected much credit on the taste of the person or persons who decorated the show. Thousands of visitors, who visited the show at that the store, said firm, Corner of Prince and Barrington streets, was awarded the diploma and medal for the best exhibition of high grade sewing machines. The exhibit consisted of the "New Raymond" and "Wheeler & Wilson" in family and tailoring styles, and the "New Williams" as a unique family machine. In the booth was a skeleton machine kept running by an electric motor, with a mirror adjusted underneath so as to reflect the underwork in motion to perfection, much to the satisfaction of admirers of art. Some very fine samples of work done on the "New Williams" sewing machines were on exhibition in the booth. Lessons were given on the different machines in the booth by courteous and obliging operators. Visitors, as well as all others, were specially invited to the firm's workrooms to inspect the fine stock which consisted of a large number of very handsome machines in oak and figured walnut.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., OCT. 14, 1898.

Local and Provincial.

Supreme Court has been in session at Kentville this week. The docket was a small one.

Farmers are busy gathering their fruit and potatoes this week. The weather has been most favorable.

Oysters at Evangeline Kandy Kitchen, good or otherwise.

The teachers of Acadia Seminary will be at home to their friends on Monday afternoon, Oct. 17th, from 4.15 to 5.45 o'clock.

We understand that the College Y. M. C. A. is making arrangements to bring an evangelist to Wolfville some time in November.

Buy Suits, Reefers, Overcoats and Underwear, at J. D. CHAMBERS.

We understand the Union Bank is to have quarters in the new building of Dr. McKenna. It is said the Masonic lodge will also have its rooms there.

Try our Brown Bread, it is fine. Evangeline Kandy Kitchen.

Those who are indebted to the town on accounts of taxes should call on the clerk and settle, as a warrant for their collection will be issued to-morrow.

A meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society is to be held in the Methodist church this evening at 7.30 o'clock. Mr. T. McKelvie, the agent of the society, is to be present and give an address.

WANTED.—Young lady to learn Millinery, at our rooms. J. D. CHAMBERS.

The Wolfville Art Association will meet at the home of Mrs Hatch on Monday evening, October 7th, at 7.30 o'clock. Plans for the winter's work will be discussed. A large attendance is desired.

On Monday evening last Miss Cowan sang in the chapel before the young ladies of the Seminary. Miss True addressed the young ladies very charmingly. After the fourth song Miss Cowan was presented with a beautiful bunch of roses.

There has been quite a boom in shipping at this port during the past week. The following vessels were here: schooner, Freeman Hall, Knowlton, with coal from Sydney; schooner, Stearns, Mathews; Able, Grenville, steamer Beaver, and other craft. The wharves presented quite a busy appearance.

A safe for sale at a bargain. One of the latest patterns. STARR, SON & FRANKLIN.

Those who had the pleasure of attending the concert given recently by Mr. Avon Saxon in College Hall will be glad to learn that by special request it is to be repeated on Friday evening, Oct. 23rd, at the same place. Mr. Saxon has just completed a successful tour of the province, during which he has won untold praise.

On last Saturday evening the young women of the upper classes of Acadia University gave a reception in college library to the girls of the Freshman class of the Seminary, Miss Edna Cook, of Cape, and Miss Zella Clark, P. E. I., who received and welcomed the guests. An excellent programme was rendered and refreshments were served. There are over 20 young women taking the regular course, nine of whom are Freshmen.

As will be seen by announcement in another column Mrs. Amy Knowlton Woodward, of Boston, is to lecture in Temperance Hall this evening on "The Light of the Golden Age; or Longfellow and his poetry." Mrs Woodward has been greeted with good houses in provincial towns where she has spoken—the hall at Bridgetown not being able to accommodate all who sought admittance. We bespeak for her a good house in Wolfville.

A Full Line of Baked Goods always on hand. Call and compare—not prices but quality. Evangeline Kandy Kitchen.

The cottages on Parker Terrace are all occupied, three of them by students who have women for house keepers. The doors are numbered. Mr. Roach and sister respond to No. 1. Mr. Colpitt, with Mrs. M. A. Perry, her son and his cousin, from N. B. to No. 2. Mr. Shaw and sister and Mr. Huntley to No. 4. Mr. Young also has a room in the chamber of No. 3, and Mr. Richardson in that of No. 4.

The Dominion Atlantic Railway have made a change in the whistle signal, which took effect on Oct. 3rd. The signal which attention is particularly drawn to, is the public road crossing signal, and which is, "two long followed by two short blasts of the whistle, instead of the single long blast formerly used. The first alarm signal is one long blast, followed by two short blasts, followed by three short blasts, given two or three times in succession, and is to be continued and remembered as the first alarm signal always.

The new time-table of the D. A. railway appears in another column.

The Convention of the W. C. T. U. in their late session in Amherst, passed the following in regard to Prohibition: Resolved—That we, the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the Province of Nova Scotia, in Convention assembled, grateful for the substantial majority vote cast in favor of Prohibition, demand a fulfilment of the promise made by the Premier, that a Prohibitory Law should be enacted whenever the people demanded it.

While at Upper Dyke Village the other day we had the pleasure of inspecting the handsome new residence of Mr. Andrew McDonald, which is now about completed. The exterior is very attractive and the planning of the interior is most convenient and up-to-date. The dwelling is fitted with bath-room, hot and cold water and all modern conveniences, and finished throughout in best style. Mr. Charles Palfrey, of Hantsport, had charge of the work and has certainly done an excellent job. The plumbing was done by Mr. L. W. Sleep, of Wolfville. We congratulate Mr. and Mrs. McDonald, on the completion of their fine residence, which is certainly a credit to the village.

Mrs. Amy Knowlton Woodward scored a great success in the delivery of her lecture, "The Electric Era," Thursday evening, in the Broomfield Street Church. Possessed of a quiet, dignified grace, with a remarkably well-modulated, clear, sweet voice, she is gifted in an unusual degree with the essential qualities for public speaking, while the subject matter of her address dealt ably and logically with many of the vital issues of the day—striking at the keynote of many of the difficult problems that agitate thinking minds in a manner fearless and forceful, which not only denotes courage of conviction, but carries the weight of well-balanced judgement in consideration of questions that the present era has to deal with. Mrs Woodward cannot fail to arouse the attention of all progressive persons by her discourse, while her presence upon the platform represents refined, American womanhood, capable of ably presenting causes that relate to the welfare of the entire community.—Boston Daily Standard.

Gentlemen—I am truly thankful for the good results I have obtained from the use of your Paine's Celery Compound.

JOHN H. BROWN, Truro, N. S.

A tedious preacher had preached the assize sermon before Lord Yelverton. He came down smiling to his lordship after the service, and, expecting congratulations on his effort, asked: "Well, my Lord, how did you like the sermon?"

"Oh, most wonderful!" replied Yelverton. "It was like the peace of God—it passed all understanding, and like his mercy, I thought it would have endured forever."

Accordingly, the Congregationalist minister prepared and had printed an elaborate programme for an Easter service.

His feeling may be imagined when he read this line in the closing hymn: "Jesus reigns, and heaven rejoices."

In a little town in Northampton, Pa., one hot Sunday recently there were very few worshippers when the worthy pastor opened the services.

With that he shed his heavy black coat, hung it over the side of the pulpit and preached his sermon in his shirt sleeves.

Good old-fashioned brown bread is the proper accompaniment for baked beans.

Steam for three hours and then dry in the oven for half an hour. The brown bread should be eaten warm, and what is left over can be re-steamed again or toasted.

Flowers on the Table. In the English country houses great attention is paid to the arrangement of the flowers on the dining table.

England's national flag has been called "a triplet of crosses," for it is composed of the cross of St. George, the cross of St. Andrew and the cross of St. Patrick.

Every young girl there is a natural and inherent desire to look pretty and attractive, and nothing gives greater delight to the ordinary school miss than an occasional new dress.

Before the advent of Diamond Dyes the large majority of our school girls had to content themselves with two dresses a year—one each for summer and winter.

Every mother has put aside one or more dresses too old and faded for herself and daughters. It is a mistake to imagine that these dresses are worthless.

Take one of the old dresses and try your skill. First remove all grease spots and stains, then prepare your bath of Diamond Dyes—the color most becoming to the mix who it to wear it—and dye according to the simple directions on the envelope, and you have a creation in new material, which, when made up your daughter can wear with pride and satisfaction.

A new and pretty dress at a cost of ten to twenty cents is always your reward when you make use of the Diamond Dyes.

"The Ideal Whiskey."

"The ideal whiskey," I saw these words in glowing letters on a sign-board by the side of the railway.

It will be a whiskey that does not intoxicate, I said to myself; a whiskey that does not redden the nose, and blur the eyes, and "chicken" the tongue into stupidity, and before the mouth with vile oaths, and blanch the skin, and congest the brain, and inflame the blood, and produce disease, and burn up conscience, and paralyze the will, and stifle the affections, and transform the son, brother, husband, father, into a brute, and the brute into a devil—that is what the ideal whiskey will not be and do.

But hold! I said to myself; whatever such a liquid as that is it will not be whiskey at all. The ideal whiskey cannot answer in any particular to such a description. Try again.

Then I decided that the ideal whiskey, if it must be whiskey, should exercise its God-given power as rapidly as possible, should, at the first touch of the drinker's lips, cause him to swallow the dose in a mad delirium, and as the fatal liquor descended, in a flash it would draw down with it, proud reason, lofty purpose, tender love, as a meal-tram sucks all things to itself—draws them in and drowns them.

As the burning stream passed the lungs, it would shiver them up. As it passed the heart it would make it a ball of black tinder. As it reached the stomach, the man would fall dead. No gradual heart-rending loss of this noble faculty and that. No eating out of strength, and J. V. hit by hit, from the three of dear ones. No fall now to a fever, and then to a lower place in the world's regard. Improved machines work more speedily. The ideal whiskey would do in a moment what the ordinary whiskey does none the less surely, but in the course of several years.

But then, I thought, while I am about it, why not give this ideal liquid one quality more, and transform it into a great blessing? And so I gifted it with the knowledge of whose throat to run down, the shrewdness to turn from the buyer, often to the seller, and from the tempted to the tempter, from the poor buttering wretch, infirm of will, crazed with a fearful appetite, to the diamond-smiling villain behind the bar; yes, and to the proprietor of the hell, in his luxurious home; yes, and to the voter that upholds his hands. Into their greedy mouths the sensible liquid leaps and aids the death of them forever.

Ah! that must be the ideal whiskey. How I grieve that I did not notice when it is manufactured—O. E. World.

Scraps for Odd Moments.

Misera and people with poor memories are always forgetting.

"I understand they sang the hotel keeper's favorite hymn at his funeral." "What was it?" "Able with Me."

When you see a girl swing a hammock in the darkest corner of the piazza and hang a white bloom within reach, that girl has had experience.

J. Annie—Mamma, if the devil were to show his tail, where would he get another? Mamma—I don't know, dear. "Where they rest their spirits."

The Wife—Were you ever in a notion runaway, John? The Husband—You seem to have forgotten that I eloped with you, my dear.

An old Scotsman, when advised by his minister to take snuff to keep her awake during the sermon, replied, "Why didn't you put the snuff in the sermon, mon?"

Minards Liniment is the Best. Success—I saw a man in a window making faces to-day. Simple—What was he doing that for? "For a couple of clocks. He is a Jeweller."

Schoolmaster (entering boys' dormitory)—What are you doing out of bed this time of the night, Murphy? Murphy—Oh, sir, I got out to tuck myself in.

Groom—A ring round the moon is a sign of rain. Bride (sweetly)—And a ring round a woman's head is a sign of a good groom (sedly)—Reigs.

Mamma (at the breakfast table)—You always ought to use your taffin, George. George—I am using it, mamma. I've got the dog tied to the leg of the table with it.

Philanthropic Caller (at the Temple)—My friend, have you any religious convictions? Avery Toldon—Well, I've got that's what you ought to call 'em. I was sent here for making children.

Minards Liniment Cures La Grippe. He—A penny for your thoughts. She—It's a bargain, but I'm afraid you'll not get full value for your money. "Well, it's a bargain. Now, what were you thinking of?" "You."

Manufacturer—Have you succeeded in perfectly imitating Good and Co's goods? Superintendent—All of them, sir. "Very well. Get up a circular warning the public against the imitations, and put 'em on the market."

Physician: Two of your ribs are broken, your right arm is fractured, and one of your ears is missing, and three fingers gone. Patient: How is the bicycle? "Without a scratch!" "Thank heaven! Think of what might have happened!"

A young man from a country village, when sitting in Edinburgh was greatly astonished on seeing "Mr. Smith, Taylor, (Ground Flat)" inscribed on a door and after a careful study of the plate exclaimed: "Great Scott! She's dead! I shain't be her'n run over 'til a steam roller!"

Phrenologist (examining Johnny's head)—This lad, and gentlemen, is the bump of caution, and here is the bump of combativeness. This—this (much puzzled)—is—oh—oh— "Johnny—Oh, I know all 'bout that one. That's the bump of curiosity. I got it last night for peekin' into the parlor."

Effective speech is not confined to grown-up men and poets. Old Nancy Doane was talking about another old woman in the neighborhood and she said: "I never see her best. She'll lop in a cheer, an' there she'll set, an' set, an' set, absolutely nothin' for hours an' hours, day after day. I 'pon my soul, I sh'd think she'd mislead!"

Minards Liniment the Best Hair Restorer. Her Little Brother—Set down in the parlor. She'll be here as soon as she gets through giv' her face a wipe with the powder rag.

Her Little Brother—And what did she say when you told her I was here? Her Little Brother—She said she knew when the window came down and her thumb. Monday morning, that the judge wants me to stay here five years.

"I do not claim," said the thoughtful member of the club, "that the influence of fashion is entirely harmful. We must admit that we owe the milliner and dress-maker something. Goodness, yes!" exclaimed the usually frivolous member, shivering. "My account can't be less than £30."

An amusing story is told by a country doctor in England. He had been attending for a considerable period a person, and according to custom, now attending his grave. When in due course the person died, his widow wrote to inquire how much the doctor would allow her for the medicine bottles.

An acquaintance, meeting an Irishman carrying a small box, asked him what it contained. "Sure, no' it's full of nothin'," replied the son of Erin. "Nothin'!" exclaimed the other. "And, pray, what does nothing look like?" "Faith, an' if you'll that your eyes will be either restin' it immediately."

"Women in business," he said thoughtfully, "adds much to the confusion of things." "What's the matter now?" she demanded.

"Why, here's this new woman editor out with an announcement that she will appear in a new dress next week, and for the life of me, I can't make out whether she's got some new make-up or a new gown."

Boon—Editor's sonnet. (Printed rousing in scoldingly)—Here's a job found innocent, and the government has telegraphed a pardon. We've got the whole account of the hanging set with illustrations, and the form it of the Miller (singing)—Don't get excited now. Just put over the account a large capital. (Johnson's Parody) Full account of what he escaped!
