The Federal Capital

Another seat on the Government side of the House of Commons has become vacant, through the death of the Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister without portfolio in the present cabinet. Mr. Cochrane had been ailing for the past two years, and latterly his health had been very precarious. Although in Ottawa, he was unable to take his seat in Parliament this session at all. His death occurred early on Monday morning September 22nd. The deceased statesman was a native of Clarenceville, Que. where he was born in November 1852. He received his education at the Clarenceville Academy. Early in life he moved to Ontario, and for some years was a hardware merchant at Sudbury. He was elected, as a Conservative, to the Ontario legislature for the district of East Nipissing in 1905. He was re-elected for the legislature in 1908 for Sudbury, and was appointed Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines in the Whitney Cabinet. He was a member of the Royal Conservation Commission in 1909, and vice-president of the Dominion Forestry Association. He was opposed to the Taft-Fielding reciprocity compact, and upon the defeat of the Laurier administration at the polls, in the general election of 1911, he accepted office in the Borden cabinet, as Minister of Railways and Canals. His administration of this portfolio is generally conceded to have been most highly successful. Mr. Cochrane, in his politics, might be regarded as a disciple of the late Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario; under whom he served as Minister for several years. He was a man of sterling integrity, fearless in his advocacy of what he believed to be right and honest; most unremitting in his devotion to duty, and strong as adamant in his determination to do what he believed to be right. He was most highly esteemed by his cabinet colleagues, and generally regarded by those who were best acquainted with him as one of the very best men in the public life of Canada. His health in 1907 was rather precarious, and when Sir Robert Borden was forming the Union Government he placed his resignation in the hands of the Prime Minister, in order to make way for someone else. Sir Robert however, was most anxious to retain his ripe judgment, and advised and insisted on his remaining in the cabinet, without portfolio. Since then, however, his health has been rapidly failing, and although, in the House for the greater part of the session of 1918 and a part of the session of 1919, his activities and energies were over. His favorite son enlisted in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and died overseas. He is survived by his widow, one son and one daughter. His remains were taken to Toronto for burial, leaving Ottawa Tuesday evening. About all the cabinet ministers and a large number of the Unionist members were at the station when the train bearing the body went out. Appropriate references were made to the demise of the Hon. Mr. Cochrane in the House of Commons when the sitting opened on Tuesday afternoon by Hon. Mr. Doherty Acting Prime Minister, and by Mr. McKenzie leader of the opposition. The funeral took place at Toronto on Thursday afternoon, and, as a token of respect to his memory, the House of Commons, when it rose Tuesday evening, stood adjourned during the time of the funeral.

IS YOUR LIVER OUT OF ORDER? HOW TO TELL.

Unless the liver is working properly you will find that a great many troubles will arise, such as constipation, heartburn, the rising and souring of food, which leaves a nasty bitter taste in your mouth; then again there is a sort of watery substance, that comes up in your mouth from time to time and which has a sweetish taste; spots float before the eyes and for a few seconds you feel as if you were going to fall down in a faint, your tongue is heavily coated, your head aches, you become bilious in the stomach; your feet do not agree with you and a thousand and one other things seem to be the matter with you.

YOUNG LIVER IS OUT OF ORDER

Milburn's Liver Pills are a specific for all diseases and disorders arising from a slow, torpid, lazy or sluggish liver, as they draw away all the waste and poisonous matter from the system. Price 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

He says that all of his "suggestions were directly provoked by outrages committed in dissertations offered by candidates for the degree of doctor of philosophy in one university department in one year."

As these suggestions have a practical value for all writers of English, and not only for the "higher degree" candidates at Columbia, reprint the first ten of them.

1. Don't say "between" when you mean "among." Look up these words in the dictionary.
2. Don't say "consider" when you mean "regard" or "think" or "view."
3. Don't say "co-ordinate" when you mean "correlate." Look up these words in the dictionary.
4. Don't say "differentiate" when you mean "discriminate" or "distinguish" form.
5. Don't say "due to" when you mean "attributable to" or "on account of" or perhaps something else. "Due to" is inaccurate and slovenly.
6. Don't say "during" when you mean "in."
7. Don't say "eventuate" when you mean "occur" or "happen."
8. Don't say "eventuate" when you mean "occur" or "happen."
8. Don't say "motivate" when you mean "motive."
9. Don't say "phenomena" (plural) when you mean "phenomenon" (singular).
10. Don't forget that "none" is a contraction of "no one" and takes the verb "is" not "are."

The Result of the New Education.

The Fortnightly Review has often called attention to the looseness that vitiate a great deal of modern "thinking" and especially the vast output of some of our universities in the shape of "doctor dissertations" and original research work. It seems that many of the candidates for highest degree have not learnt how to express their thoughts clearly, concisely, and accurately. We would not revert to this subject to-day had it not been lately brought to the notice of educators in a very striking way by one of the professors of what is perhaps the greatest of our American universities—Columbia, New York. Under the title, "Twenty-five Suggestions," this professor, Dr. Giddings, has sent out a leaflet to ladies and gentlemen who have completed an American college education and are now pursuing graduate studies at some of our higher degrees.

Kidney Disease

WAS OF A DROPSICAL NATURE.

No one can be healthy with the kidneys in a diseased or disordered state. The poisonous urea which it is their duty to filter out of the blood is carried into the system, and produces all kinds of kidney troubles, such as backache, weak, lame or aching back, rheumatism, swelling of the feet and ankles, urinary disorders, bladder troubles, headaches, etc., and unless these are attended to promptly, serious complications are sure to arise and perhaps develop into dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease or other serious kidney trouble.

Mrs. Abel Corburn, East Berlin, N.S. writes: "I was a great sufferer from kidney disease, headache and constipation. The terrible was of a dropsical nature as my legs would swell up and I could scarcely walk. The doctor did not seem to help me, so I started to use Doan's Kidney Pills. It took about five boxes to effect a complete cure, and I am satisfied that the cure is thorough." Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Some very interesting and warm debating took place in the House of Commons during the week ending September 27th. The occasion for a most lively interchange of political views, across the floor of the House, was initiated on Wednesday the 24th, when Mr. McKenzie, leader of the opposition, rose in his place and presented a motion for a committee of enquiry relative to an alleged telegram, originally in code, and subsequently decoded into readable sentences. The telegram is alleged to have been sent, from Winnipeg, by the Hon. Arthur Meighen, Minister of the Interior, to the Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden during the election of 1917. It purported to request the distribution of one thousand soldiers' votes at large among three different constituencies in Manitoba. The first intelligence the public received regarding this alleged telegraphic message, was during the Liberal Convention, held in Ottawa in the month of August last. It was read at the convention by a no less notorious individual than Mr. W. T. R. Preston, whose reputation as liberal manipulator, ballot switcher and other feats of political legerdemain are quite well known in Canada. He is very generally known as "Hugh the Machine Preston." Mr. Preston, in consequence of his services to the Liberal party at election times, of course possesses very large inside information, and was an extremely dangerous person to antagonize, in the slightest degree, by the party which he served so faithfully. In consequence of this, he was constantly kept in office, of one kind or another, by the late liberal government of Canada, and for several years prior to 1917 was employed, in different parts of Europe and Asia, as an Immigration agent. Possessing such a remarkably unsavoury reputation, it has been a wonder to all reasonable people in Canada, that the late Laurier Government should employ this man as their chief scrutineer and manager for them in the overseas elections of 1917. However—this may be, he was the man, above all others, who disclosed what purported to be a telegram from the Minister of the Interior to the Prime Minister of Canada on the occasion above stated. Mr. Preston was not satisfied with exploiting this so-called telegram, but backed it up with a most bitter partisan speech at the convention. A lively speech, no doubt, it might be considered if delivered by any other person than Preston, but in such extreme contempt is this man held, in the Province of Ontario especially, that it is extremely doubtful if there are very many people in that province who would be disposed to believe his oath. This was the subject matter of and this the authority on which rested the attack on Hon. Mr. Meighen in the discussion initiated by Mr. McKenzie, as above stated.

This debate, as already stated, was started in the House on Wednesday the 24th. Now it so happens, according to the rules, that the House does not sit on Wednesday evenings, and further, on this particular Wednesday the House did not meet until 4 o'clock in the afternoon; as it was the day of the funeral of the late Hon. Mr. Cochrane, and out of respect to his memory the House stood adjourned over the hours of the obsequies. It will thus be seen that the sitting of the House was limited to only an hour and three quarters remained before six o'clock. At this time, Mr. McKenzie consumed an hour and a quarter, consequently, only a half hour was left for reply. When Hon. Mr. Meighen, amid loud applause from the Government side, arose to commence his reply to the vicious attack that had been made upon him, he called attention to the very limited time at his disposal, and stated that he had communicated to the leader of the opposition the peculiar conditions surrounding the debate, as to limit of time, and asked him if he would be so kind as to occupy only one half of the space that remained before six o'clock, so that they would both have an equal chance of presenting their case to the House. The leader of the opposition refused to grant this request; thereupon, the question arose as to whether or not the sitting should not continue after six o'clock. After some questions back and forth across the floor of the House, it was decided that a courtesy frequently granted to one speaking at the hour of adjournment, be accorded to Mr. Meighen, that is that the sitting might be prolonged. Having settled these preliminaries, the Hon. Mr. Meighen started in to show up in its true light the nature of the attack that had been made upon him. He emphatically declared that he had no knowledge of having sent such a telegram, and moreover, he had the positive assurance of the Prime Minister that no such telegram had been received by him. Having decided these points, he in a masterly manner explored the untenable ground that had been taken by the leader of the opposition, and the false and villainous conclusions sought to be deduced therefrom. He quoted the sections of the Military Voters Act, and showed beyond the possibility of doubt, that even if the telegram was genuine, it was perfectly in order that such a telegram might be sent. He showed, as everyone knows who has studied the act, that there were certain soldiers, British subjects, who had never been in Canada, but who had joined the Canadian army overseas, and were entitled to vote in the election of 1917. These were "voters at large." He asked whether or not they were entitled to the franchise; in consequence of their giving their services, and risking their lives in Canada, except in such places as they might choose, or as might be indicated to them; as they had no residence at all in Canada, and knew nothing of the country? Their votes either had to be assigned in this way or they would have to be disfranchised. Would anyone deprive these men of the franchise, because they volunteered to fight for Canada? Without dwelling further on this point, it is sufficient to say that this section of the act makes the position absolutely clear. That being so, what impropriety could there be in a telegram of the nature of the one alleged to have been sent, as contended by the leader of the opposition. "But where is the telegram?" asked Mr. Meighen. "Why did not the leader of the opposition produce the telegram?" He asked him now to produce it, but the leader of the opposition said he did not have it, probably nobody ever saw it; but this was the manner of argument upon which the leader of the opposition rested his motion to have a parliamentary committee appointed to investigate what he pretended was a scandal. Mr. Meighen, in emphatic language pointed out to the leader of the opposition that if he were sitting in the House, he would have a very good chance of knowing very precisely from a number of the contents of the opposition. There was no phase of Mr. Preston's tortuous, scandalous political movements and actions that Dr. Edwards did not show up, even to their most minor details. It was indeed a tremendous slaughter of Mr. Preston and his associates. It might be called a regular sledgehammer demolition of the opposition pretences. When he was through, it would be difficult to imagine there was a shred of argument or even plausibility left of the opposition or Mr. McKenzie in this particular matter.

A rather amusing incident took place during the week. A motion was promoted by Mr. Pedlow, opposition, of South Renfrew, Ont. Mr. Pedlow is a little man, and like a great many other little men is extremely bumptious and consequential, and is not infrequently called the bantam; but he is extremely ambitious. In this particular case the little man promoted a bill in connection with the annual Thanksgiving Day in Canada. He desired that this should henceforth be amalgamated with Armistice Day, and that the date for observing the public holiday should be the second Monday in November. To this proposition considerable opposition was presented. It was contended, as reasonable, that the celebration of Armistice Day should be on the anniversary of the event, namely, the 11th of November, otherwise it would not be a reasonable observation of that great event. It being a private bill, members of the Government did not interfere, except to express their individual opinions, and they were pretty equally divided as to either one or other of the propositions put forward. During the course of the debate the amendment to celebrate the day on the 11th of November was carried. Finally, when after the bill had been reported for committee, Mr. MacMaster moved that it be not then read a third time, but referred back to committee, to have it amended so that it would read, the second Monday in November, in accordance with the original resolution of Mr. Pedlow. This motion carried, by a vote of 76 to 66. It was then reported back for committee, and when the motion for the third reading was again made an amendment was moved that it be not then read a third time, but that day six months. This is known as the six months hoist. Another division was taken, and when the votes were counted, it was found that the six months hoist had carried by a majority of five votes the count standing 78 to 73. Thus poor little Pedlow had all his labor in vain, and the bill on which he had put such arduous work vanished into thin air.

Pre-War Days Are Resumed.

It's funny how quickly we slip back into the old grooves of life, even though jarred out of them by years of war and wrenched by sad partings. Isn't it true that in most Canadian homes life goes on to-day pretty much as it did five blank years ago, the stalwart sons come to the breakfast table with the same noisy greetings, though there is, perhaps, a shade deeper ring to their voices? Returned from war, the head of a family sits in his old accustomed place at a story time, perhaps bringing a new kind of prince and knight for the youngsters.

With the men home life goes on pretty much as before. The old realities of war are slipping into the misty background. We can never forget the price in flesh and blood; we could easily forget the blood in treasure.

When we hear of plans for the Victory Loan, 1919, we are brought back with a jerk to the fact that the cost of Canada's Victory has not been fully paid, and that the future's burdens upon us also.

tion rested his motion to have a parliamentary committee appointed to investigate what he pretended was a scandal. Mr. Meighen, in emphatic language pointed out to the leader of the opposition that if he were sitting in the House, he would have a very good chance of knowing very precisely from a number of the contents of the opposition. Your Soldier Boy Wants HICKEY'S TWIST

No matter where he is, or what other tobacco he can get, the Island soldier who chews tobacco is never satisfied with anything but HICKEY'S TWIST.

In hundreds of letters from the boys in Flanders, France, England and the training camps, they ask for HICKEY'S TWIST—and the 105th took along 20,000 figs with them.

Send your soldier boy a pound of HICKEY'S with the next parcel.

Many casualties resulted from the floods from the excessive rains throughout Spain, particularly in the city of Cartagena, the inhabitants of which spent a night of terror on the 2nd, owing to the inundation of the lower parts of the city. The town was in complete darkness owing to the interruption of gas and electric light service. The inhabitants who had taken refuge in the upper floors, crowded the windows and balconies, appealing for help. The mounted police did their utmost to rescue them, swimming their horses neck deep in water to rescue the terrified inhabitants, but were eventually obliged to abandon their efforts in consequence of the rising waters. One hundred persons were drowned and loss exceeding 10,000,000 pesos, was caused, it is estimated, by the floods in southern Spain and bad news continues to come in.

London, October 3

London, October 3.—(Reuter's Dispatch.)—In 1910, initial steps were taken to organize an exhibition of industries, inventions, products and raw materials of the British Empire, to be held in 1921. A large and influential meeting, held recently in London, and attended by Premier, high commissioners and representatives of overseas Dominions and others interested in the scheme, passed a resolution that the exhibition on the above lines would be the best means of firmly binding together the peoples of the British Empire, and restoring its commercial and financial supremacy. It has been decided that the exhibition shall be held under the auspices of the British Government. Extensive preparations are being made, and to ensure complete representation local committees have been formed in most of the large centres of industry. It is felt that the exhibition will offer an opportunity of demonstrating the magnitude of British resources at a time when such a demonstration is most needed.

Announcement

For the information of our many patrons, in both town and country, we deem it necessary to announce that the Coal Business, successfully carried on in the past by the late Mr. Charles Lyons, will be continued by the Estate, under the old firm name of C. Lyons & Co.

By maintaining a high standard of service and by courteous and honest treatment of the public, this firm has, for a period of more than a quarter of a century, enjoyed a large and ever-increasing patronage; and in announcing our intention of "carrying on," we desire, most earnestly, to give expression to our appreciation thereof. We are deeply grateful to the firm's many patrons for their constant manifestation of confidence in it in the past, and we assure them that if they favor us with a similar evidence of their good-will in future there shall be no economy of effort on our part to make our intercourse both pleasant and profitable to them.

As we possess almost unlimited facilities for supplying the coal trade, and as we are desirous of extending our already large business, we respectfully invite the patronage of new customers; and if we succeed in thus increasing our present connection, we guarantee that we shall be indefatigable in our endeavor to justify the confidence of our new friends.

We again thank our patrons for their past generous patronage, and respectfully solicit a renewal of their esteemed custom.

A TRUE GHOST STORY (Ave Maria)

It was an autumn evening. A great bank of purple clouds rose from the west, obscuring the light of the setting sun...

"How the wind shrieks!" exclaimed Margaret Trevor. "It might be an escaped ghost seeking admittance."

"Yes," answered her sister Anne, "it is just the evening for ghosts. Do you believe in ghosts, Father Brown?"

"Well, yes, I do believe there are ghosts, but I don't believe in half the ghost stories one hears. I do know a real ghost story, however, and can vouch for the truth of it, at least as regards its substance."

"Oh, do tell us a ghost story, Father!" impetuously broke in Susan, the youngest of the sisters, before Father Brown could answer Anne's inquiry.

"Do I believe in ghosts?" said Father Brown, smiling and gazing thoughtfully into the fire.

After a few months in her service, they invariably imitated those who had gone before them—gave notice, and declared that it was impossible to remain longer with her.

The Countess not discouraged by her failure, resolved on a second attempt to hear the footsteps of the mysterious night-walker; so a few nights later she kept a second vigil.

Slowly the steps moved forward along the gallery, down the broad stairs into the hall; the Countess following, with heaving heart, but with firm resolve.
