THE FAIR IMPOSTOR.

Chapter XXII. Quite harmless. (Continued). 'So that you are quite unknown?' 'Exactly—just so,' assented Mr. Green. 'Laura considered a moment. "Why have you come, then?" she asked, with a pretty, little smile. "Mr. Robert Green nearly closed one eye—not quite, but nearly—remembering himself just in time, and turning the wink into a pretense of having ensnared a fly in his eye. "Well, miss, don't it seem natural that I should come down just to get a sight of the young lady after I'd followed her, tracked her life for several years, and lost her at the last moment? I wanted to see her in her prosperity, with all her flush of money, and the stakes in hand. And by gumbo! she has struck it indeed! If she'd been an empress there couldn't have been more fuss. Gold ain't good enough for her. It's a pleasin' sight!" Laura looked at him quietly. "And I am the only person who knows that you are the agent who tracked—as you call it—Miss Woodleigh?" "I reckon that so," assented Mr. Green, setting his sport hat so that it covered one eye and calmly regarded her with the other. "Laura rose, with a sharp little smile in her keen eyes. "Why did you not tell me?" she asked. "I am a perfect stranger—" "Not to me," he said, coolly; "I've watched you for a fortnight past. It was in the grounds at the duke's when you and Lillian Woodleigh were together; I've seen you riding out with her and Mr. Harold; I saw you at the bank—" "Well?" asked Laura, impatiently, but in a low voice. "Well, if ever one girl hated another, you hate Miss Lillian Woodleigh, I reckon." Laura shrank away and stared at him, pale and breathless. It was too awful—awful, because ridiculous! This commonplace-looking man in the cheap tweed suit, this man who looked like a harmless, respectable tradesman out for a holiday, was laying bare her innermost heart; had watched her and learned even more than she had confessed to herself! and here he sat looking up at her with one eye, with both his hands in his pocket, and a smile of shrewd confidence and cunning. This was more than she had bargained for. It frightened her, yet it fascinated her. Mr. Robert Green waited until her agitation had somewhat subsided, then he said: "Did you speak, miss?" "No—yes—I mean," said Laura, "it is very—very—strange language, Mr. Green. I—I scarcely know how to receive it."

Robert Green loud enough for all three to hear. 'Of course—of course, miss; quite so. Very sorry, I'm sure. Directly I get my tackle together.' Laura turned with outstretched hands to Lillian, and stood on tiptoe to kiss her. 'How do you do, dear Lillian? How well you look! and I am as white as a sheet of note paper. It was the dance on the carpet last night.' 'Say rather that homage is exhausting even to the goddess who receives it,' said Dawson Slade, in his deep musical voice. Laura dropped a courtesy and looked at Harold; he was looking at Mr. Robert Green, with a smile of amusement. 'Our friend is ubiquitous,' he said—'turns up everywhere! Has he been poaching, Miss Laura?' 'Looks like it?' doesn't it?' said Laura; then, as a brilliant stroke, she added, in a whisper: 'Do you know, I don't think he is quite right?—I don't mean insane, of course not; but rather—rather simple. It is too absurd for a man quite in his senses to walk straight into private grounds, and commence fishing, as if the place and all in it belonged to him.' She spoke in a whisper, but an audible one, and Mr. Robert Green took the hint like lightning, and with just such a smile as would fit the stupid simplicity which she had described, he touched his hat to Harold. 'Good-morning!' said Harold, going toward him. 'I say, Mr.—Mr.—' 'Green,' said the gentleman, with a simple smile. 'Mr. Green, I wish you would confine yourself to trespassing and poaching on Woodleigh courts—Sir Talbot doesn't appear to object to your doing it—but oblige me by leaving these grounds alone.' 'Quite so, just so; anything to oblige you, Mr. Woodleigh,' assented Mr. Green, cheerfully. 'And, now you mention it, how about our friend Jones? Now those buildings—' Harold turned to the rest with an amused laugh. To be continued.

Their number was estimated not to exceed 200, including female slaves of all ranks, but the Ministry of Finance found itself confronted by claims from 746 women who demanded from the ex-Sultan's successor compensation to the tune of $800,000. The Government refused to pay this sum, but proposed that the Chamber should sanction an arrangement whereby the women of the harem for a period of ten years should receive monthly pensions ranging from $4.25 to $21.25, which, even in frugal Turkey, is a pretty meagre subsistence. The Turkish Deputies, however, still thought the Ministry over-generous. Some of the Extreme Left shouted: "Why don't you get them married?"'

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

In the hope of bringing a suggestion to some woman who has her living to earn and cannot decide just how to do it, and with a desire to give woman a broader outlook a position what the rest of their sex are doing, I occasionally devote this column to telling something about some of the unusual ways in which women are earning their bread and butter. If any of my readers are doing any work that is rather out of the ordinary, or know of anyone else who is doing such work, I wish they would write me a few lines about it.

Please tell how you or your friend started in with the unusual work, what its advantages and disadvantages are, and how well it pays.

An unique niche in the real estate business has been both created and filled by a very clever woman, with a small amount of money and a large amount of taste.

After failing to obtain a regular position as a real estate agent, this woman started the business of making undesirable summer houses desirable.

She began by renting a house that was desirable in locality and in everything but furnishings, and completely overhauling it. She repapered, painted, cleaned and refurbished it—mostly with second-hand furniture rejuvenated, and dainty but inexpensive hangings. All of the work this rejuvenating entailed, she herself did with the help of a scrub-woman. Not a room cost more than fifty dollars, but it was all done with such taste and daintiness that as soon as it was furnished she rented the house for the summer for twice what she had paid for a whole year.

She was at once offered a position by the real estate agent, but preferred to work along this new line and has made a good living in this way. Often she furnishes the house with antique furniture rejuvenated, and sometimes sells the furniture. This year she expects to make desirable, and sublet five houses at a good profit.

Because of the high cost of food-stuffs, woman's time honored occupation—keeping boarders—is said to be difficult to make profitable just now.

One clever woman, however, has evolved a variation upon it that she has been able to make pay very well.

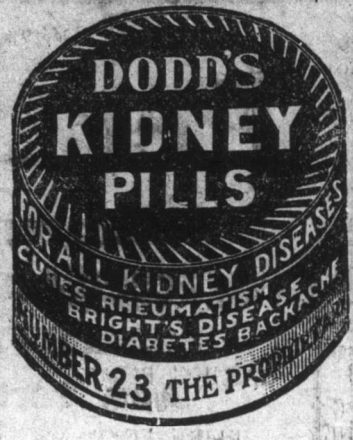

She boards helpless and "cranky" old folks, charging from ten dollars up, according to the care required, and as care is the chief commodity supplied and the food they consume is a comparatively small consideration, she makes a very comfortable thing out of it.

At present she has six guests and keeps two maids. One maid does the washing and ironing, the other does the table work and chamber work and helps her with the old folks. She herself does all the cooking and takes care of the guests. Under present conditions she could accommodate eight. Four are the least with which such an establishment could be made to pay, she says.

Of course, most of the old folks are just like children and require infinite patience and watchfulness. Some of them have to be dressed and undressed and fed. Some are weak-minded and ask the same question half a dozen times in half an hour. They are also apt to forget to be blue and depressed, requiring constant cheering.

"No one could do it who do not like old people," she comments, "but for anyone who does and who has much patience and vitality, I think there is a good opening for such work in any good-sized town or city. Get the doctors to be on the lookout for cases for you to apply for, and advertise in the local paper."

Now please don't forget to send in that little story of your work that may help or interest some other woman.

dresser suits heavy satin and broadcloth will be used.

Neckchains composed of the large gold or silver beads, hang about many pretty necks and dangle in front of the waist line.

It is expected that in the autumn fashions chiffons will be much used over brocade taffetas and figured silks of various descriptions.

Those who ought to know predict that the double box plait in back will be seen as the prevailing style in tailored skirts this fall.

Some entire hats are made of cashmere and Persian silks, and they are very prominent as facings and in the making of millinery accessories.

Scotch Baronet a Saint

Gives Up Estates and Labours as-Missionary Monk Until Blind.

Although British baronets have the reputation of being wicked, probably owing to the fact that the villain of almost every melodrama is "a bold, bad baronet," there are some of them who are almost saints. To the latter category belongs Sir David Hunter Blair, a barefoot monk of the Order of St. Benedict, who, after spending a number of years labouring in the swamp districts of the Amazon River to convert the natives to Christianity, has now returned home to Europe perfectly blind, in the faint hope that some miracle may be accomplished towards the restoring of his eyesight by the world-famed oculist, Professor Gegenstecher at Welsbaden.

The baronet graduated from Oxford and married. Upon his wife's death he obtained special permission from the Pope to take orders and turned over the family Ayrshire estate to his brother, a naval captain.

Sir David, who is the fifth baronet of his line, has also done missionary work in Patagonia. He is the only monk on record who belongs to any clubs, having retained his membership in the Caledonian, in Edinburgh, and of the Conservative, in London.

Archbishop Ireland Sees in Socialism a Serious Menace

DULUTH, Minn., August 7.—Socialism was pointed out by Archbishop Ireland in an address here as the most momentous question that America will be called upon to face.

"If there is one sign of alarm in the skies of the future for our country, as I see it," said Mr. Ireland, "it is that there will be an effort to chain individualism, to give all into the hands of the Government, and to bring every one to a common level, which in that case must be the level of mediocrity. We are equal in liberty, and equal in rights, but equal in talents never."

"The most perilous problem ever presented to humanity is before America. There are clamorings for a division of property, for special laws, and there are mobs and rioting. If these go on and increase, the hour may come when America will say, 'I must maintain order at any cost; if not with liberty, then with a powerful centralized government.'"

Laid Up With Lame Back

Pain, helplessness and suffering are overcome by DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Mrs. Frank Bloom, Hardwood Lake, Ont., writes: "I want to tell you of the great benefit I found in the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I suffered so badly with kidney disease that when I lay down I could not get up without help. I was completely laid up with lame, aching back. I read about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the almanac, got them, and they cured me of kidney disease and backache."

"My husband had dreadful pains in his sides and obtained cure by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. These pills are the best on the market and I am glad to recommend them."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are definite and certain in action, enliven the liver and bowels as well as the kidneys, are lastingly beneficial and economical. But to obtain these results you must get the genuine Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GARGLES IN COWS.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

Fads and Fashions.

Pompons will continue to be worn, and the moodish algrette now has the round and sunburst effect.

Travelling coats of crash or grass linen are seen almost as frequently as those of linen.

There is evidence that velvets and all pile fabrics will be in great favor in the autumn.

The habit or panel skirt is in evidence, carrying out the general effect of slenderness.

It seems certain that in the early fall the narrow skirt and peasant bodice will prevail.

Some of the new fall hats are to be brimless, it is said, and peaked like a witch's crown.

The rage for all kinds of scarves is at its height, scarcely a costume being seen without this accessory.

Choux or bows matching in color, the straw of one's hat are quite natty as a neck finish to summer gowns.

Hats of chintz or small figured chiffon are worn more and more by small girls at shore and mountains.

For outing wear coarse straw hats, handed with hand-embroidered coarse linen, are among the novelties.

Swiss openwork embroidery continues its vogue, being employed impartially on hats, blouses and dresses.

Ribbon run insertion continues to be a favourite finish for the top of the ruffle on lingerie, petticoats.

Long scarves of black satin are very striking, some self-lined, others with oyster white or pearl-gray satin.

Black satin tailormades show accessories of embroidery in the dark Korean hints or in the blues and reds of Bulgaria.

Sleeves for tailored costumes are tighter than ever, and are finished with stitched straps, braiding or turnover cuffs.

Great A'roplane Flights

Special to Evening Telegram. PARIS, Aug. 17.

Half of Paris forsook their beds last night and remained in the streets until morning to watch the conclusion of the great cross-country aviation race, which was won by LeBlanc in a Bleriot Monoplane. Auburn, also in a Bleriot, took second prize, finishing a shorty twenty minutes behind the winner, although his total time in completing the course was somewhat longer. LeBlanc's flight from Amiens, some 60 miles, was made in the same superb style as the previous laps in the race. He left Amiens at 5.03 and descended at Issy, in the suburbs of Paris, one hour, twenty-eight minutes later, making the total time for the 485 miles of the entire flight 11 hours, 55 mins., 59 secs., an average of nearly 40 miles an hour, as the crow flies, without making any allowance for detours or for the time spent in battling with the storm in the flight from Mezières to Douai, last Friday, Auburn, whose time from Amiens was 1 hour 51 mins., completed the circuit in 13 hours, 27 mins., 14 secs. With every prospect of success in completing the aerial trip from Paris to London, which since the crossing of the English Channel by Bleriot and others has been the great aim of the birdmen. Noissant, the young Spanish aviator, descended near here to-day having accomplished the flight from Paris to Calais and the journey across the Channel to deal with, with an ease and brilliancy rarely surpassed. He is now preparing to continue the trip to London, the completion of which will bring him the cup and prize offered by a London newspaper and the proceeds of the subscription raised in England for Graham White, which the unsuccessful competitor in the London-Manchester flight generously offered as prize for the Paris to London competition.

The Cupids Celebration

OF THE

GUY TER-CENTENARY.

An Historic Event in the History of the British Empire—
Unveiling of the Monument and Unfurling of the Flag—
Patriotic Addresses by His Excellency the Governor, Mr. McNeily, K.C., Rev. Mr. Stacey, of Bristol, and Several Others—Four Thousand Visitors and Residents Unite in Enthusiastic Demonstration in Honor of the Great Event.

Wednesday, 17th August, 1910, witnessed a most successful and enthusiastic carrying out of the patriotic programme outlined by the Historical Society of Newfoundland and the Committee of Cupids in honor of the Guy Ter-Centenary Celebration at the pretty and picturesque little village of Cupids on the northern shore of Conception Bay. Delightful weather enhanced the enjoyment of this great occasion, and with the large influx of visitors who mingled with the residents it was estimated that close upon four thousand people attended the various functions. From all around Conception Bay, from Trinity Bay and Grand Bank, from even Toronto, Sydney and Montreal, many friends and visitors went to take in, and in addition there went by special train from St. John's nearly two hundred of its citizens, comprising, in addition to the members of the Historical Society and press representatives, three cars containing the city excursionists. All over the village in front of the comfortable homes of Cupids residents' flags and banners were displayed, whilst the warship Brilliant and our local cruiser Plover swung to their anchors in the harbor and were Gaily Bedecked With Bunting Also. The official proceedings began when the Governor, Lady Williams and suite landed from the Plover at 3.30 p.m., accompanied by the officers and sailors of the Brilliant, both steamers having arrived from Harbor Grace but a short time previous. At the wharf His Excellency and party were met by the Cupids Committee and then proceeded at once to the site of the memorial erected in honor of John Guy. The school children of the village were marched in processional order, each one carrying a small and pretty colored flag, and joined along the roadside with the crowds who had assembled on the wharf in accompanying the Governor and party. The members of the Historical Society with guests and excursionists from St. John's arrived on the scene just as the official landing took place and when all gathered at the memorial site there was an immense assemblage present, spread out in all directions. When the Governor Committee and distinguished guests including many clergymen, took their positions on the platform, Capt. Arthur Smith, J.P., read the

Following Address to His Excellency:
To His Excellency Sir Ralph Williams, K.C.M.G., Governor of the Island of Newfoundland and its Dependencies.

It is with more than ordinary pleasure that the inhabitants of this little Settlement welcome Your Excellency and Lady Williams here today. As the representative of His Gracious Majesty, King George V., your presence is most fitting on this historic occasion, when we are assembled for the purpose of celebrating the three-hundredth anniversary of the founding of this, the oldest settlement in Greater Britain.

We believe that this circumstance will be of great interest to our well-beloved Sovereign, and we beg that Your Excellency will acquaint him of the matter, and assure him of the loyalty of the people, and affection of this (his oldest) Colonial possession.

During the twelve months that Your Excellency has spent in this Colony you have given many proofs of your warm interest in the welfare of the people committed to your charge, and we feel that we can confidently count upon your sharing in the pride we take in marking to-day, with appropriate ceremonial, our unique historic position.

We trust that your visit to Cupids may prove a pleasant and noteworthy event of your sojourn in this Colony.

Thanking Your Excellency for your presence here to-day on behalf of the inhabitants of Cupids we again extend to you a most hearty reception.

A. J. W. McNEILY, K.C., who delivered the Inaugural Address.

(Sgd.) A. SMITH,
ALEX. SERRICK.

His Excellency then thanked the Committee for their beautiful address as presented to him, and was especially proud of doing so as the representative of His Majesty the King in this the oldest Colony of her great dominions. "You may well be proud," he said, "that here Guy landed and made the first practical attempt at the colonization of our imperial realm. Looking back to-day to the period when Guy came from Bristol, associated with and taking a leading part in a journey with others of his race to these western parts, it is a glory we all feel proud of, though deeds of other great men are recorded in the annals of our history and brilliant Britishers such as Drake, Hawkins and Sir Richard Jernville, we none the less should honor the practical outcome of Bristol citizens in sending out their May- or with a company to colonize Newfoundland. It is a great pleasure to have with us to-day a representative from Bristol to present us with a tablet commemorative of this great event. Bristol recognizes Guy's work in this Colony, and I hope the outcome of this event to-day will be to lead us to be more closely united with Bristol.

To Strengthen the Ties between this Colony and the Old Country. Though our Empire is widely separated, we should all unite in heart for the welfare of the whole, and only in this can we stand together to guard the rights and liberties and destinies of us all. Let us all look upon this and cherish it as an event which binds us together, and each of us while loving our own land to love the Old Country in whose deeds we glory. We are here to celebrate this, a great Newfoundland event, as it matters not where Guy landed. Bristol has given us a memorial which is the place of celebration, so in acceptance of their views I am here to celebrate the tercentenary of Guy's landing. He began here the work which has made Newfoundland what it is, and I should wish you to realize more fully as an incentive to us to do more than we are doing. You are too fond of sitting still. Consider how the people abroad are looking towards Newfoundland and how other countries are doing. Not many years ago Canada, South Africa and Australia were behind, but all

Have Marched to the Front, all are striving in the race for domination. Put your best efforts forward. You don't tell about yourselves abroad. You should have a representative in England. You have a beautiful country, although you may have feelings occasionally. I advise you to let the world know your resources and then capitalists in the world abroad will come in and help you to develop it. It is only by this means you can keep up in the race and maintain a foremost place. It is a pleasure to me and my wife to mix among the people—all of you from the humble to the higher, although sometimes we are told that in a self-governing Colony the duties of one in my position do not require such acts as these. But I don't sit down. I go about—see every one from the fisherman to the politician and the merchant. I try to know you all. That is my aim and my wish. If when the day comes that I shall be leaving you again I have won the hearts of the people and they believe I have done my best in their interest and their welfare, I shall feel amply satisfied that my labors among you have not been in vain. I thank you once more for your address and glory in the honor done by you coming here in such large numbers to participate in this

Joyful and Historic Event.
Frequent applause for the Governor was given throughout his patriotic speech, and at its conclusion he was greeted with a great outburst of vociferous cheering.

Mr. McNeily, Vice-President of the Historical Society, was then introduced and delivered the Inaugural Address as follows:—

MR. McNEILY'S ADDRESS.

As a Vice-President of the Newfoundland Historical Society I have had imposed upon me the honour of delivering the opening address of the present celebration. In this historic surrounding, before this distinguished audience, and in this historical Tercentenary year. Though I could wish that the task had been committed to other hands, I accept it as a duty, and I claim your forbearance if I fail to do justice to an occasion which is worthy of an inspiration and an eloquence far beyond my powers. It is seemly, however, that this function of to-day should be under the auspices of the Historical Society; for the event which we are celebrating now and here is one which has affected not alone the history of Newfoundland but the history of England and the mighty British Empire. May we not say that it has affected the history of the world? That three hundred years ago John Guy, the Master of the Bristol Company of Merchant Venturers landed here to establish the first English settlement in Newfoundland, is a fact which, to the outside world, would seem to carry no significance with it, or which at most would appear noteworthy from a purely local point of view. "It is right and fitting," one might say, "that Newfoundland should celebrate the birth of their Colony, and should regard with pride its right and progress." "But of what interest," it might be asked, "is this trivial happening to the world which lives and moves beyond the shores of this little island?" The answer to such a question is that the landing of John Guy at Cuper's Cove with a Royal Charter for the settlement of a part of Newfoundland was an incident of supreme and commanding interest to every subject of the British Crown. And for this reason, that it marked a new departure in English statesmanship and the ethics of government.

The policy of England towards this her first discovered Colony had been a policy of stringent repression. England was deeply impressed with the importance of an efficient navy; and here in Newfoundland she found an apparently inexhaustible fishery, which season after season attracted the splendid seamen of Devon and Dorset. When their season's voyage was completed these men returned to their English homes. In this great industry, England found the nursery of her navy. The men who were reared in these stormy seas and amidst perilous surroundings were men whom she would not permit to drift away from her. Her Navy must be manned, and these were the very men that she required, men who "used the sea," as the quaint old phrase went, and were fearless, stalwart and enduring. And so in order that she might keep these men for her fighting ships, the severest of repressive laws were enacted. Every fishing crew was required to have a certain number of "tread men." Every boatmaster was required to have in his boat at least two fresh men, one who had never been at sea before and one who had made one voyage only. Masters of fishing ships were required, under heavy penalties, to bring back to the Homeland the men whom they had brought out. The bulk of the men's earnings was by law retained from them, in order that they might return to England to claim it. Statute after statute recited as the "mischief" to be remedied that fishermen had failed to return to England, and that "some had become robbers and pirates." Every man who did not return was regarded as a human asset lost to the English Navy. Under laws like these, it is easy to perceive that the settlement of the Colony was made impossible.

The Charter, then, which was granted to Guy, was, as I have said, a "new departure" in English policy and statesmanship. We know that Francis Bacon, the most far-seeing statesman and the most brilliant intellect of his age, was deeply interested in the development of Newfoundland; and one wonders if his prophetic soul did not penetrate the coming years to "see the vision of the world and all the wonder that would be" in the boundless expansion of the mighty British Empire. Be that as it may, in the grant of this Charter for settlement there was the initiation of a new doctrine, and its enunciation as a working theory. It was a policy of inspiration; and it is idle to speculate or philosophize upon the springs of action by which the rulers of that age were moved. Possibly, wise as they were, these wise old Master Builders little thought that they were laying the foundation of "an Empire vaster than the world has seen." "Genius," says the Poet, "does what it must."

"Themselves from God they could not free; They builded better than they knew. The conscious stoneto beauty grew." And this is truly the keynote of the great doctrine of evolution. These men rough-hewed the work the ends of which were shaped according to the eternal counsels of the Almighty. All unconscious of the far-reaching consequences of their acts, they did intuitively that which they were impelled to do by forces unseen and unknown. And thus it was that John Guy, the pioneer of Empire builders, on this spot, which should forever be a hallowed and a classic spot, not only to Newfoundlanders but to the wide British world, planted the germ of Britain's imperial and world embracing expansion.

We have read, and some of us have seen, how a finger touch upon an electric key may set in motion a mighty system of machinery. Even so, by the settlement of this infant Colony, first-born of England's Empire, was developed the colonizing energy which has evolved the Empire of to-day, and has carried the Briton and the British Ensign triumphant "from the River to the ends of the Earth." Amongst all nations and in all ages it has been an instinct of humanity to mark by monument or memorial stone the place where some great deed was done, or some great hero died. It is a pious duty to commemorate thus the salient incidents of history, and surely in all our history there is no event more prominent ent than this, without which we would have no history to record. You will remember that when the children of Israel passed dry shod over Jordan, by the inspired commands of Joshua twelve stones were taken from the river bed and set up as a memorial cairn; and when the people encamped in Gilgal, "these twelve stones which they took out of Jordan did Joshua pitch in Gilgal." And in words which thrill our souls to-day he spake unto the children of Israel, saying:

"When your children shall ask their father in time to come, saying, What mean these stones? Then shall ye let your children know, saying, Israel came over this Jordan on dry land, that all the people of the earth might know the hand of the Lord that it is mighty: that ye might fear the Lord your God forever."

Even so, with solemn reverence we have placed here this memorial stone, that your children's children may learn the history of the event to which it bears witness and may see the connection of that event with the fount and origin of British Empire. Once that connection is understood, this place will be a centre of attraction for every patriotic British soul, and hither from the uttermost parts of the earth may come pilgrims to view the spot where was planted the germ of Britain's world wide Empire.

The environment of Nature is but little changed. That same rugged headland yonder, which frowned upon John Guy's landing here three hundred years ago, looks down upon us as grimly and as sternly to-day. From that "specular mount," as it might well be called, the beholder sees to-day the same vista of Bay and headland and sheltering harbour and indentured Cove which greeted the sight of Guy and his sturdy companions of the voyage. But though the face of Nature be almost constant, the world has moved apace since then. To-day the leviathan ships, freighted with thousands of souls, cleave the ocean-highways of the world with the speed of a seabird's wing. The wilderness and the solitary places of the earth have been traversed by the rushing railways, and ocean has been spanned by clouds that link 4,000 miles. For many a league beneath the waters of the deep, the silent cables have carried between continent and continent, the trade and commerce, the joys, the sorrows and the daily hourly history of distant lands. The very ether has been made the slave of science, and through the voiceless winds has borne the messages of man to man. And who, regarding the achievements of recent science, shall be bold enough to say that the dream of the Poet was not the vision of the seer inspired, the Poet who

"Saw the heavens filled with commerce, argosies with purple sails," the vision in which he believed that the "War-drum beat no longer, and the battle flags were furled in the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World."

A glorious dream, it may be said, but is it conceivable that it should ever be realized? Aye, verily it is conceivable. There are far-seeing men who do not despair of the time "when the kindly earth shall slumber lapped in universal law," when nation shall not lift up sword against nation. It is, perhaps, presumptuous to assert our hopes. But this we know that ever such an auspicious consummation is reached, it will be because the consolidated power of the British Empire, of Britain, and her dominions beyond the seas, her daughter States, is supreme and unapproachable, more supreme and unapproachable than when gallant Larry boasted,—

"Come the four corners of the world in one
And we shall match them!"

The peace of the world must be the Pax Britannica. On this memorial stone which Your Excellency is about to unveil, there is inscribed a dedication in four pregnant letters, A.M.D.G., ad Majorem Dei Gloriam, to the greater glory of God. It is most fitting, I take it, that such a function as this should not be without its religious aspect. We believe in Britain's greatness; without hypocrisy we believe that Britain has been a peculiar nation favoured by the Almighty, and we attribute the extent and splendour of the British Empire to the fact that as a nation her rulers at home and abroad have feared God, and ruled in equity. They have recognized the subordination of earthly Kings and Emperors to the great King of Kings. Our sovereigns have regarded their kingdoms as a trust from Omnipotence from the Over Lord of the universe. They have led them the way in which He has led them and they re-echo the note of Kipling's magnificent hymn.

"God of our fathers known of old,
Lord of our far-flung battle lines,
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine,
Lord God of hosts be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget!"

The stone so solemnly dedicated is a stone of Remembrance. We desire by this to record the memory of the men who as instruments in the hands of Providence, have brought us into a large place. We who know in part the history of these bygone days, and who are imbued with the spirit of these historic surroundings, can never forget the men or the times. We cannot, I say, forget them, and we would not if we could. But by this memorial stone we charge the coming generations to keep their memory green. And now, Your Excellency, on behalf of the Newfoundland Historical Society, and on behalf of the people of Cupids, who have so cordially and loyally co-operated in this celebration of an epoch, I have to ask Your Excellency formally to unveil this abiding record in perpetuum memoriam rei.

The language, as may be seen, was choice and felicitous, most eloquently delivered, and its author and orator was tendered the very highest compliments from all who had the privilege of hearing him. Following Mr. McNeily, the Rev. Mr. Stacey, representing the Corporation of the City of Bristol, made the formal presentation in advance of the memorial tablet, which he regretted has not yet arrived here owing to some error or delay in shipment. This defect, however, would be relieved promptly and the tablet would arrive in another week or so. Meanwhile he would say to be here to-day in a settlement which brought before him an audience so large and manifested such interest which is well worthy of the highest praise. He was proud to be there also as the representative of Bristol, which played such an historic part in the event leading up to this, though he was not quite sure that in Bristol they knew as much about us as they ought to know. "After the eloquent and choice address," he continued, "by Mr. McNeily, there is no need for me to say anything concerning the History of the Guy Colonization, and there is so much to be done in connection with these proceedings that I would not take up too much of your time. I stand here as a Newfoundlandian, and as I always was, proud of my native country. I have said this many times and in many places abroad, for I feel that it is something worth being proud of and that my countrymen are well able to hold their own and succeed wherever they may go. You all know how Guy obtained permission to colonize this country, so it is needless for me to go into the matter. We have a great interest in the welfare of the Colony. John Guy was its first Governor in 1610. His coming was not only a great event here, but it prepared the way for linking it with the Great British Empire and the subsequent development of this Island. Looking out to Canada and seeing how that country is growing, I cannot but feel that here in Newfoundland will be (Continued on Sixth page.)

The Celebrations at Harbor Grace.

Special to Evening Telegram.
HARBOR GRACE, Yesterday-Afternoon.
The patriotic speeches of His Excellency the Governor, Archbishop Howley and others (Tuesday), were favourably commented upon. The officers on the Brilliant entertained the committee immediately after the great torchlight procession held in boats on the harbor, the British Band supplying the music. The Brilliant and Fiona left for Cupids about one o'clock, taking amongst the guests Misses Roddick, Kennedy, Wilback, of Montreal, Mrs. R. A. Munn, Miss Gwendoline Munn, Miss Frew, Canon Smith, W. A. Munn and others.
Great Preparations are Being Made For Battle

tomorrow, horses and carts being sent out to Carbonear Island to be in readiness to remove the heavy guns from landing place to batteries; everything so far has worked most successfully; regatta now on at Lady Lake. Great number of visitors coming in from outlying settlements, and cabin are reaping a harvest.—H.F.S.

Flies Across Channel With Passengers.

Special Evening Telegram.
DEAL, England, Aug. 17.
It has been reserved for an American citizen to perform one of the most daring feats in the history of aviation. John B. Moissant, of Chicago, to-day flew across the English Channel to Felmanstone with a passenger, and by this achievement far surpassed the rats of Berliot, De Lesseps and the unfortunate English aviator, Rolls, who later met his death at Bournemouth. The two man flight from France to England was the more astonishing as it was only a month ago that Moissant learned to fly, and made so few flights and was so little known among men that even his nationality was not disclosed. To make the feat more surprising Moissant was totally ignorant of the geographical part of the country. He had never been in England and was obliged to rely entirely upon the compass, while the crossing of the Channel was accomplished in the teeth of a strong westerly wind. The Channel flight was an incident in the aerial voyage from Paris to London. Moissant left Issy yesterday in company with Hubert Latham and reached Amiens in two hours. Latham's machine was wrecked, and this morning Moissant leaving Amiens at an early hour headed for Calais. Thousands who had gathered to watch the daring aviator were amazed, and urged him not to make the attempt in the face of the high gale that was blowing. He cared nothing for the warning of the people, and even the fact that there was no torpedo boat to follow in his wake but only a slow moving tug boat, did not deter him. He made the trip in 37 minutes. When he descended his eyes were bloodshot and greatly inflamed, as a result of the heavy rainstorm into which they drove on approaching the English coast. The high wind beat rain into the faces of the men like hail and almost blinded them. An average height of between 300 to 400 feet was maintained over the water. The aviator expected to land at Dover but was forced by the wind a few miles north and made the coast near Deal. The cold was intense, and both men were benumbed. Moissant seemed to take his feat as though it was a daily occurrence. When he revived sufficiently he said to an interviewer: "This is my first visit to England."

The Cholera Scourge Increasing

Special Evening Telegram.
ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 17.
The horrors of the cholera scourge in Russia, according to Prof. Rein, of the Red Cross, who has been sent by the Government to South Russia to study measures of combating the disease, are steadily increasing. Children are starving in many instances because their parents and adult relatives have been swept away by the disease, leaving them unsupported. There is no indication yet of the epidemic diminishing in vigor, and thousands of new cases are being registered daily. The official figures, according to reports, though immense in themselves, understate the full extent of the disease, owing to the impossibility of registering all cases.

Torpedo Boats in Collision.

Special to the Evening Telegram.
KIEL, Aug. 17.
The German torpedo boat 7, in a collision last night in Kiel Bay, rammed the torpedo boat 32. Both the torpedo boats sank. The crews were saved.

Highland Sports a Grand Success

At St. George's Field yesterday the Highland Sports (under the auspices of the Newfoundland Highlanders, were carried out with great success. The programme which was an excellent one concluded with the wind up of the Marathon Race, W. Wall, the winner, finishing the 15 mile race from Manuels on the grounds, amidst great applause. There was great interest manifested by the spectators in all the items of the programme, and in some instances the competition was very close, which added to the interest. On the whole the event was voted one of the most successful held yet by the Brigade. The gathering would, no doubt, have been much larger if the weather had been more genial, and there had not been so many other attractions.

The field was gayly decorated with flags, and the grand stand presented a brilliant appearance. The prizes were presented by Mrs. H. D. Carter. Following is the programme and the names of the winners:—

G. KNOWLING.

The Cupids Celebration.

found the key to that great productive country. I liked very much His Excellency's expression when he said: 'You ought to make Newfoundland More Widely Known.'

All over England I have never ceased referring to my native land. The fish and fog delusion only is not correct; fish it has undoubtedly, more valuable than gold and silver, but not the fog to that extent that's told about, nor none over the interior of the island. I came among you as a Newfoundlanders—one of the old stock—my father having lived here a century ago, and I have always felt a pride in this country. I came here on behalf of Bristol to ask your acceptance of the tablet to be placed on the obelisk you have erected. They desired to send you a worthy one and thus delayed in getting it until the last moment. It will be one yard long by two feet broad, and will cost £150 sterling, and will have inscribed on it the Arms of the City of Bristol and of the Merchant Venture Society. It will be Dedicated to John Guy, 1st Governor of Newfoundland, Mayor and M. P. for Bristol, and tendered as the gift of the City of Bristol and the Society of Merchant Venturers, these inscriptions bearing underneath the names of Lord Mayor Hayes of Bristol, 1910, as well as Colonel F. C. Ore, now Master of the Society of Merchant Venturers. I feel glad that Guy came here as one of the first pioneers in the work of the colonization of the vast British Empire, a work which in its extension has carried the British flag all over the world. Bristol has asked me to ask your acceptance of that tablet by the Historical Society of Newfoundland, and in doing so I feel sure Cupids will allow this to be commemorative of the land of John Guy.

Rev. Canon Pilot, D.D., President of the Nfld. Historical Society, then graciously promised acceptance of the tablet, and said: "It is a great pleasure to be present and accept this gift from Bristol City. I have the honor to be the only member of the Historical Society who is a native of Bristol. I feel proud of it and of the occasion here afforded me to formally accept the presentation. I regret being unable to say as much as I would like to say owing to medical restrictions. I want to say, however, that the members of the Historical Society have done all they could do to bring to our minds and memories the story and glory in adventures of the British colonizers who founded this the Oldest Colony. I also thank Bristol and ask Mr. Stacy to convey our appreciation to the Lord Mayor and citizens, and to hope and trust that the old bonds will be cemented to our mutual advantage."

His Excellency Governor Williams then unveiled the memorial whilst the men of the "Brilliant" presented arms and the band of the Methodist Guards played the National Anthem. After His Excellency had unveiled the memorial he again came to the front of the platform and in another short speech said that he hoped it would long stand to the honor of John Guy, Bristol and this Colony as well as of Canada. Generation after generation will tell their children the glory of John Guy which has culminated in this celebration to-day.
The monument is made of native granite and bears the following inscription:—
Inscription on the Guy Memorial at Cupids.
A.M.D.G.
This Monument is Erected Under the auspices of, The Newfoundland Historical Society, With the assistance of the Executive Government of the Colony, The Corporation of the City of Bristol, The Inhabitants of Cupids, And by Contribution from the General Committee,
To Commemorate the Landing in the year of our Lord M.D.C.C.X.
And near the site of this memorial
JOHN GUY,
First Governor of Newfoundland, Master of the Bristol Society, of Merchant Venturers.
The plantation which he founded in this place, then known as Cuper's Cove, was the first chartered or lawfully authorized settlement in Newfoundland.
In this settlement his founder lived for a season, and returned to his Native City of Bristol to receive the honors, rewards and esteem of his fellow citizens.
A.D. M.C.M.X.
Following the unveiling of the monument Hon. R. Watson, Acting Premier, spoke, saying: "I have much pleasure in proposing a vote of thanks for presentation to His Excellency the Governor, whom we all feel so proud to have present. He is one indeed who himself can claim to have done his part in the extension of the British Empire in the distant countries of Africa, Australia and the West Indies, and in his great work to have associated with him at one time another great Empire builder, the late Cecil Rhodes. Nothing would give him greater pleasure than in unveiling a monument such as this in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the first Royal chartered colony established beyond the seas of our great Empire. I am glad of the honor of proposing this vote of thanks, and would like to say one word or so more. A matter that is of interest here to the people of Cupids is the need of a harbor light which would be of so much benefit to the fishermen and which will be erected around the base of the new memorial flagstaff. This matter has been favorably reported on by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and the Government I know will give it their most favorable consideration; whilst also when it comes before His Excellency we shall be pleased to Obtain His Assent.

This light would be a great guide in entering your harbor at night and in locating the bar. In conclusion, I must say we are also very grateful to the officers and crew of the Brilliant and to all the visitors from other parts of Conception Bay and everywhere else.
Rev. Mr. Hackett had great pleasure in seconding the motion and spoke on behalf of the people. His short residence so far would not detract from this claim, for he knew the people well. They delight to-day at cheering the representative of the King and they are brimful of patriotism. Their spirit of patriotism was exemplified a few days ago when one of the officers of our Committee addressed a fellow member in this strain: "Jim, come to the meeting, your country needs your help." We are delighted at the interest shown by His Excellency in moving amongst the people. We saw this trait exemplified in our late King Edward and now see it in our present King George, whilst our present Governor breaks all records in seeing so much of us and our country though with us so shortly. Long may he represent His Majesty here. The people of Cupids will be glad to hear about the new harbor light, will appreciate it very much, and hope it will not only receive favorable consideration but

Become an Actual Fact.
We are glad that His Excellency is amongst us, and trust that in looking back upon this great event to-day it will be to us an inspiration worthy of the deeds and greatness of our Empire.
The vote of thanks was carried by acclamation to His Excellency, followed by enthusiastic cheers and the rendering of the National Anthem. For these manifestations of welcome His Excellency again returned thanks to the Colonial Secretary, Rev. Mr. Hackett and all the people, stating it was only a pleasure to him to be here and a privilege he would long remember.
This ended the function at the unveiling of the monument. Again the men of the warship drew up in order and headed by the band and accompanied by the school children marching two by two, followed by the vast throngs along the roadways, proceeded on a march from the monument to the flagstaff. The site of the monument opposite the Methodist Church, a walk of about ten minutes from the monument, and here again all the distinguished personages gathered upon the extensive concrete base upon which the steel tower bearing the flag pole is erected. This tower is a splendid piece of workmanship and resembles a miniature of the celebrated Eiffel Tower of Paris.
It is a four-legged skeleton steel structure with cross stays extending at various distances from top to bottom on all its four sides. Its four legs are embedded in a great rock and a concrete foundation built near the roadside and extending out over the water's edge. The tower extends to a height of 100 feet and it bends inward towards the top. On this is placed the flag pole, which goes 30 feet more upwards, and the whole is surmounted by a steel ball with a diameter of about 18 inches and as large as an ordinary half barrel. A stout Manila halyard is used, as heavy as a good-sized schooner's, to hoist the flag. The Chairman when ready to proceed with the programme outlined in connection with the flag and staff, first invited Mr. Harry LeDrew, a native of Cupids but now of Sydney and a representative of a Society of Newfoundlanders in Canada, called the "Oldest British Colony Association." Mr. LeDrew felt delighted in his representative capacity and otherwise to represent at this great Cupid's celebration.

Though Only a Working Man his love of country impelled him to be here to-day to participate in this event. He had left his native land 21 years ago, but paid several visits since, and on going back again shall be so impressed with the function of to-day that he shall not fail to tell his countrymen abroad of what those at home have so successfully accomplished to-day.
Prof. W. G. Smith, another native of Cupids and now Professor of Psychology and Philosophy, then made the presentation of the tower, staff and flag, doing so in an eloquent and patriotic speech which ranked amongst the cleverest oratorical efforts of the day. To Cupids, he announced, there are two red letter days in its annals—one, the landing of John Guy, the other, to-day's celebration. When after 300 years of British colonization the flag has enveloped an Empire upon which the sun never sets; its foundation laid here in this little wooded centre when the end no man knew then. For the past 12 months he had been residing under another flag in Germany. He said: "When I went outside the Empire first I had little of the fire of patriotism. But one year's residence there set the fire blazing and made me thank God I was a Briton at last. We are now all sharers in the work of colonization which has gone on these past three hundred years. By a strange combination of circumstances following a great craze caused us by the development of Canada, many of our people from here went there and have wrung from the turbulent Pacific a livelihood of Prosperity and Success.
These Newfoundlanders abroad in Sydney and Toronto, from the Atlantic to the Pacific have united in sending down the flag and tower. They offer to you this emblem which has stood for integrity in government and the help of the oppressed; for free government and free speech. Keep it a sacred thing, for all it means to every one of us, and accept it as a memorial of John Guy's Colony. It is the largest flag without exception on this side of the Atlantic and also in the Old Country with one exception, at Westminster. Be ye worthy of the boys who have gone out into the world and of the traditions of this flag. The flag pole is of steel and stands pliant and supple and bends to every breeze, but turns its sides to all the world. I hand them over as the representative of those Newfoundlanders abroad and ask you to accept it as a sacred trust; guard it and keep it holy. The citizens you have sent out to other countries have proved worthy of their fathers, may those who follow next be worthy of their blood; and in conclusion I wish God speed to all."

Mr. R. J. Smith, Treasurer of the Cupids Committee, in accepting the cherished and highly valued gift, felt reason to be proud of our sons and daughters abroad. We had just listened to one in the person of Dr. Smith, of Toronto University. Mr. H. W. LeDrew, another Cupid's man, also had a professorship in the Ontario Agriculture College at Guelph, whilst Miss Smith has reached the highest standard in music ever attained by a Newfoundland lady. Our boys are making good everywhere, and we regret the time was inopportune for all who wished to do so to come here, as otherwise we would give them a royal welcome. With feelings of pleasure we accept this great gift and shall endeavor to hold it as a sacred trust. Cupids is proud to-day of the part it is playing in this great commemoration, and may the memory of it long remain to impress us with the importance and vastness of our Empire.
His Excellency was then requested to hoist the flag. He promptly grasped the heavy rope and in the teeth of a stiff breeze hoisted the immense flag right to the pinnacle of the pole without finching in the least. It was no easy job to do, but with true British vim he stuck manfully to the post and held the halyards securely until all was taut and safe. Vigorous cheers rent the air as he pluckily completed his task, and then he delivered another of his
to the multitude around. He said: "I have much pleasure in hoisting this beautiful British flag and have also listened with pleasure to the great speeches in honor of and what is due the flag of Britain. It is a precious heritage to us all and I trust it may long be held as a memorial and an honor to the people."
At the unfurling of the flag the men of the Brilliant again presented arms whilst the band again rendered the National Anthem. When His Excellency concluded his speech on the flag he called for three hearty cheers for the King. The response made the hills re-echo. This was the closing function of the afternoon events. The Gubernatorial party after a chat with the members of the Committee and beholding in admiration the splendid tower and staff, then walked leisurely towards the public wharf, crowds lining the roadsides everywhere around. The officers and saviors of the Brilliant reformed ranks and paraded to the wharf, the band of the Methodist Guards in the lead, and hundreds went down on the pier to bid

The Cupids Celebration.

Good-Bye to His Excellency and Lady and all the participants from both ships who had contributed so greatly to the successful, delightful and patriotic programme which was the good fortune of so many to witness. The Fiona and Brilliant returned shortly afterwards to Harbor Grace to be in readiness for the sham fight and other incidents taking place there to-day. After the tea hour in Cupids a large number of the residents and visitors attended the concert in the village hall, where a vocal and instrumental programme was gone through, comprising the following numbers: Piano Solo—Prof. P. J. McCarthy, St. John's. March (Directoire)—Band of M.G.B. Solo—Miss Noseworthy, of Clarke's Beach. Solo—Mr. Jno. O'Reilly, St. John's. Band selection, entitled "Sweet Memories."

NATIONAL ANTHEM. The concert was most enjoyable and the performance enthusiastically received, many of them receiving encores, whilst Mr. C. Morris most felicitously occupied the position and honor of Chairman. He was most happy and, needless to say, brilliantly patriotic in his closing address, expressing the hope that we should foster a spirit of encouragement to celebrate all historic occasions that concern us, to cultivate a greater love of country and a spirit of independence and development that would forever tend towards keeping our own sons and daughters in our own homeland. The concert committee are especially grateful to Prof. McCarthy who, while not on the programme, kindly consented to sing. The concert terminated at 10 p.m. and amidst expressions of general rejoicing over the brilliant success of the whole event the visitors from nearby villages went homewards and the St. John's excursionists boarded the special train which started on the return journey at midnight. Bonfires were in evidence on the hill-tops all through the night, and altogether it was a day which ended happily and successfully for everyone, and from a patriotic and imperial standpoint its influence will long be felt and it will henceforth be remembered as probably the most successful.

Historical Gathering that ever was witnessed in this or any other Colony of His Majesty's broad dominions. We regret that space and time do not permit us to more fully refer to many other incidents of the day that we should like to mention, but we hope our report will amply convey the most essential facts of the celebration. The Historical Society of Newfoundland and the Cupids Committee, consisting of Capt. A. Smith, Chairman; Robt. Smith, Treasurer, and Alex. Serrick, Secretary, are entitled to great credit for the successful outcome of a celebration so worthy of the great event in the Empire's colonizing. Prof. Flynn acted in the capacity of band instructor to the Guards and greatly contributed to the pleasure of the festivities by his selections of lively and patriotic airs.

The Flag. The large British flag measures 37 feet by 22 feet, and is made of the very strongest and best quality bunting.

The Monument. The monument is in the form of an obelisk and is of native granite from the quarry of the Colonial Granite Co. in Old Man's Bay, on the Southwest Coast. It was partially polished in New Glasgow and otherwise trimmed and set up by Mr. H. Tremblet, of St. John's. It stands on a foundation of concrete 4 feet 8 inches square. The base of the monument is 3 feet 6 inches square, its height is 12 feet 10 inches, narrowing in width to about 20 inches at top. On its front is cut the inscription which is given above.

Message from the Premier to the Cupids Celebration Committee. The following message was received from Premier Morris during the course of the Guy celebration at Cupids yesterday:

From Bristol to Alex. Serrick, Sec. Guy Com., Cupids. Here from the old city of Bristol, the home of John Guy, Newfoundland's first Governor, the man who first planted a colony in Newfoundland, the link of the dominion across the sea, the dawn of Empire whose ter-centenary you are celebrating this year, I send you my best wishes for a successful function. I am sorry that my public engagements prevent my being with you. Will you please accept from me six gold medals which you may assign to any sport that will form part of your celebration. E. P. MORRIS.

Prominent Visitors. In addition to His Excellency the Governor and Lady Williams, Hon. R. Watson, Colonial Secretary, and Secretary Fitzherbert and A.D.C. Gale, the officers of the Brilliant, &c., as well as the speakers noted in the proceedings, amongst the prominent personages present at the Cupids Celebration yesterday were: Hon. M. P. Gibbs, M.L.C.; Canon Pilot, Rev. Wm. Bolt, Rev. Canon Noel, Mgr. Walsh, Rev. Canon Smith, Rev. C. Hackett, Rev. H. Field, Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, Mr. W. G. Gosling, Mr. M. A. Devine, Mr. J. W. Withers, Hon. J. Harvey, Dr. Tait, H. F. Bradshaw, Prof. J. W. Nichols, Mr. John J. Flynn, Mr. P. J. Summers, Mr. H. E. Hayward, Mr. J. P. Howley, Prof. D. A. Flynn, Mr. N. Wills, Mr. C. D. Sreater, Mr. W. Atwill, Prof. McCarthy, Mr. A. H. Seymour, M.H.A., Photographers Lyon and Vey. Many prominent ladies also attended the festivities.

To-Day at Cupids. The Guy Celebration Committee at Cupids are giving a picnic to-day to the children of the historic settlement commencing at 10 o'clock this forenoon. It will be held in the park where the monument will be located and everything possible will be done by the Committee to make the youngsters merry in remembrance of the day they celebrated this week. A basket party in which all the ladies will join will be held in conjunction with the picnic and a series of sports will be held also from which the winners will be selected to receive the six gold medals presented by Premier Morris.

A Miraculous Cure.

Mr. Thomas Armstrong, of the R. N. Co. Electric Dept., who visited the Shrine of St. Anne de Beauspre while in Quebec a few days ago, reports witnessing a miraculous cure there. The subject was a ten-year-old girl named May Carven, from New York. She had not been able to use her left leg for several years and walked with the aid of two crutches. On the Monday morning she repaired to the Shrine with others in the front of the procession. When about to return she was able to leave one of her crutches behind. The next day she visited the Shrine again and prayed, and left the second crutch behind. The third day she was seen playing gaily on the green and romping about with the other children, perfectly cured.

Wedded Yesterday.

The marriage of Mr. W. H. Charles, son of the late Mr. Thomas Charles, to Miss Effie Whiteway, daughter of Mr. E. L. Whiteway, was solemnized last evening at George Street Church by the Rev. J. W. Bartlett. The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Jesse Whiteway, M.H.A., looked very beautiful in a white silk gown. Her bridesmaids were Miss Elsie Charles and Miss Elsie Whiteway, who wore iceberg blue with black picture hats. Little Miss Escott was flower girl. Mr. Walter Clouston supported the groom. The ushers were Messrs. Harvey Parsons and Vater Pippy. A reception was held at the residence of the bride's father, Springdale Street, where the health of the bride and groom was proposed by Mr. Jesse Whiteway, M.H.A., to which the groom ably responded. The happy pair then drove to Waterford Bridge where they took the train for Avondale where they will spend a few days. The large number of presents received is a practical proof of the popularity of the bride and groom. The premises of Mr. George Neal, the business firm at which Mr. Charles works, were gaily decorated with bunting in honour of the event. The Telegram extends its hearty congratulations to the bride and groom and expresses the hope that they may have a long and happy wedded life.

Marathon Race.

The Marathon Race was won by W. Wall yesterday; time, 1 hour 39 mins.; Robertson, second; Duff, third. Eight competitors entered, the others being: Wall, J. Kavanagh, E. Shea, J. Bell and J. Mercer. They started from Manuels at 4.35. W. Wall held the lead to the Octagon when Robertson caught up and kept pace with him out to Dunn's, there Robertson gained on him and held the lead till near Cornwall Avenue where he was seized with a weakness in the legs and was obliged to slacken his pace. Wall forged ahead gradually and had two laps on St. George's Field when Robertson entered the gate. A large gathering assembled to see the conclusion of the race and waited patiently in spite of the cold weather.

The company consisted of residents who had been attending a dance within the Star Hall at St. George's, and who were going back to their homes at Sandy Point. There were about 24 persons in the company and luckily most of them were in a dory that was towed behind. When the explosion occurred the young man Goodland, a son of Sergeant Goodland, and a youth named White, both about 19 years of age were blown overboard and drowned. The others were burnt badly, but one of them, Miss Butler, is out of danger. Another report says that it was a can of gasoline that exploded.
