Celebrated Norwegian Jigger

Fishermen should use these Jiggers and rig them with swivels same style as in Norway, then the Jigger acts like a minnow and when spinning attracts the fish, so that instead of jiggering they really snap the Jigger and in this manner you never fail to catch them. Ordinary leads can be used, but the Norwegian style seems more simple and easily made. Our fishermen should try this great Norwegian fish killer.

The Earl's Son; TWO HEARTS UNITED

CHAPTER VIII.

"You are new to the place and its ways," he said, quietly. "We who are born here get used to them; yes, and accept them as we do the weather. They treat you like dogs sometimes, but their roughness and contempt is often better than their kindness, and less harmful."

He paused a moment, his face growing dark. "They're all alike. Do you think you are the only one to feel it?" He laughed grimly: not a pleasant laugh to hear. "But if you stay, and I don't take much heed of your threat of leaving, lad—pray that you suffer only from their pride and insolence; pray that they may never unbend and grow kind—kind! My God!—to you or one dear to you! So you've been up to the house; and you've met Mr. Talbot, the next earl, and quarrelled with him; and his lordship stood your friend? Aye, he has a knack of getting his way. I remember years ago when I was eager to shake the dust of the Court from off my feet, that smile, that voice, of his kept me. I chafed against it at the time, but I fell back into the groove, though God knows it was hard enough to do so, for the wrong done me and mine ached like a bad burn—like a bad burn—"

He stopped suddenly and, awaking from his reverie, seemed conscious of Ralph's presence. "Better stay on a while, lad," he said, less grimly. "I've got used to you and we work well together; it's not many men I can live and work with. I'm like the old oak in the south spony; since it's been struck with lightning, the other trees seem to grow away from it. Some day I'll tell you my story; not now. Better stay."

"Thank you, I'll stay for the present," said Ralph; "as you say, we've got on very well together, and I'm grateful for your kindness to me and your trust in me. Oh, here's the letter! Praps you'd better take it to Mr. Whetstone, the steward."

Burchett shook his head. "No, no," he said. "His lordship told you to take it, and he likes being obeyed. You'll have some dinner first?"

"Oh, I'm not in the humor for dinner," Ralph responded, with a short, irritable laugh.

"Take that and eat it as you go along. I'll have something ready for your tea," said Burchett, putting a roll into his hand.

Ralph flung on his cap and went out. The steward lived in a small house on the road just above the north lodge, and Ralph, as he went a short cut through the wood, tore impatiently at his roll; but, as he had said, his usually healthy appetite had been destroyed; the dry bread seemed to choke him, and he thrust the greater part of the roll into his pocket. All the way he thought, not of Veronica's proud disdain and haughtiness; and his brow was still heavy when he reached the steward's house. The door stood open; in answer to his knock someone had him come in, and going along the narrow passage he entered the room from where the voice had proceeded. An old man, thin and grey-haired, was seated at a table, bending over some papers, and without raising his head he asked in a voice which struck Ralph as peculiarly gentle and sad for a man:

"Who is it?"

"Mr. Whetstone?" responded Ralph. The steward dropped the pen from his hand and turned swiftly, with so strangely startled an expression that Ralph was struck dumb.

"Who—who—is it?" he demanded, in a voice tremulous with emotion. "Who are you?"

Then, before Ralph could answer, he seemed to recover his equanimity, and rose, but keeping his hand still on the chair, as if for support, and his eyes still half apprehensively on Ralph's face.

Who is it?

"Mr. Whetstone?" responded Ralph. The steward dropped the pen from his hand and turned swiftly, with so strangely startled an expression that Ralph was struck dumb.

Then, before Ralph could answer, he seemed to recover his equanimity, and rose, but keeping his hand still on the chair, as if for support, and his eyes still half apprehensively on Ralph's face.

"I'm the new under keeper, Mr. Whetstone," said Ralph; "and I have brought you a letter from Lord Lynborough."

The steward took the letter and read it, after slowly withdrawing his eyes from the bearer's face.

"Yes, yes," he muttered. "I mentioned it to his lordship some time ago, but he gave no orders. It shall be done—"

"At the proper time, which is not now, sir, of course," said Ralph, with, perhaps, more respect than was his wont; for a certain gentle bearing, a vague sadness in the man's accents, affected him.

The steward stood as if he were listening to some echo of the young fellow's musical voice, then he said as if with an effort:

"No, no; of course not. The proper time, yes, yes. I have not seen you before, Mr. Burchett told me he had engaged you, but I have not seen you. Your name is—"

Ralph repressed a smile; it seemed to him that he had spent his time, since he had come to the Court, in telling various persons his name and history.

"Ralph Farrington. Yes, yes!" repeated the steward, with a sigh. "No; I never heard it," he added, rather to himself than Ralph.

"Likely enough, sir. I come from Australia—"

A faint eagerness dawned in the steward's weary-looking eyes, but it faded again as he said in the same low tone:

"Australia! Yes, yes! Many go there; there is a regular stream of young people from the estate; not so many as from most, but still a stream, a stream. You look strong—a keeper's life is a hard one at the Court, for there are plenty of poachers."

"So I am aware," said Ralph; "I'm continually finding snares; and I fancy that some men have been trying the woods ever since I came."

The steward seemed to be still listening to a far-away echo, and he nodded his head absently while his eyes rested on the handsome face.

"You don't know these parts at all, then?" he said. "Not till you came. No? Of course not, of course not. I hope you like your situation."

"Yes, thanks," said Ralph; "that is fairly well."

"Nothing to complain of?" asked the steward, quickly. "You live with Mr. Burchett. You get on with him? He's—he's not easy to get on with. No, no; but he has had a great deal to try him. But he has told you, perhaps?" he added, with a quick glance at Ralph.

"No," said Ralph; "that is—remembering Mr. Burchett's words just now. 'No, he has not told me, though I gathered that he had had some trouble, trial.'"

"A terrible one," said the steward, absently; "so terrible a one that he is entitled to your forbearance, Farrington. Will you remember that?"

"I will," said Ralph; "though up to the present, Mr. Burchett has been most kind to me. He's not what you would call sociable or very cheerful—with a smile—but I'm used to all sorts of men out there in the wilds, you know, sir."

The steward nodded.

"Will you have a glass of wine?" he said, almost abruptly; and, without waiting for a reply, he got a decanter of sherry and, pouring out a glass, watched Ralph, as he drank it, so intently that he seemed lost and quite absorbed in the process.

Ralph put the glass down. "No message, answer, I suppose, sir?" he said.

"No, no!" said Mr. Whetstone, rousing himself with a little start. "I will write to his lordship. Er—er—good-day."

He sank into his chair, but looked round presently.

"You'd better come up to me now and again," he said. "Of course, I leave everything concerning the game to Mr. Burchett, but I like to know from time to time how things go on."

"Certainly," said Ralph. "Good-day, sir."

He had got half way down the passage when he remembered the weir and the weeds in the south pool, and he went back quickly.

"I beg your pardon," he said, apologetically, for the steward was bending over a small miniature in an open case which lay on the desk before him, and which certainly had not been there when Ralph left the room.

The steward covered the miniature with a swift movement of his hand, and looked round with a startled expression.

"Oh, it's you—what is it?" he stammered.

Ralph delivered himself of the object of his return, and Mr. Whetstone, after listening absently, dismissed him with a nod.

"I'll see to it, yes, yes," he said. "Good-day!"

Ralph, favorably impressed by the gentle manner of the old man, and the kindness with which he had treated him, was going back to the hut by the way he came, when he remembered that he had to get some wire in the village, and he struck into the road.

He had not gone far when he caught sight of a man crouching amongst the bracken. In the woods a few paces from the open fence, Ralph walked on quietly and, suddenly vaulting the paling, laid his hand on the man's shoulder.

He sprang to his feet and presented to Ralph an exceedingly ugly and evil-looking face, rendered all the more unprepossessing by a scowl, half fearful, half defiant.

"What are you doing here?" demanded Ralph; though he could give a pretty shrewd guess, for the place swarmed with rabbits, and rabbits are tempting things to a hungry tramp. Ralph's quick eye saw that the man's right hand held a useful and business-like stick, and that his left was wrapped in a dirty and blood-stained bandage.

"What am I doin' 'ere?" retorted the man. "What d'ye s'pose I'm doin'? I was goin' to 'ave a doze, that was what I was doin'."

"Well, I'm sorry to disturb you," said Ralph, gravely, but good-humoredly enough; "but you're trespassing, and, besides, you must not go to sleep here; you'd snore, perhaps, and disturb the rabbits."

"Ho!" said the man, with a sneer. "And who may you be? You might own the bally place for the airs you give yourself!"

"No; I don't own it, worse luck," said Ralph, who was trying to place the man; for though he looked a tramp he was a little different to those Ralph was acquainted with in England; this man had rather a foreign—ah, yes, that was it, Ralph thought, "No, no; but he has had a great deal to try him. But he has told you, perhaps?" he added, with a quick glance at Ralph.

"No," said Ralph; "that is—remembering Mr. Burchett's words just now. 'No, he has not told me, though I gathered that he had had some trouble, trial.'"

"A terrible one," said the steward, absently; "so terrible a one that he is entitled to your forbearance, Farrington. Will you remember that?"

Had Stomach Rumbings Distress Before Meals

Was Seldom Free From That Weary, Droopy, Half-Dead Feeling.

Now Cured, and Gives Good Advice to Others With Dyspeptic Tendencies.

If you have any stomach distress at all you will certainly be interested in the following experience which is told by Mr. Edward Dawkins:

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fullness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

Refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butter-nut, 25c. per box or five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or post paid from the Catarrhose Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

"I'll see to it, yes, yes," he said. "Good-day!"

Ralph, favorably impressed by the gentle manner of the old man, and the kindness with which he had treated him, was going back to the hut by the way he came, when he remembered that he had to get some wire in the village, and he struck into the road.

He had not gone far when he caught sight of a man crouching amongst the bracken. In the woods a few paces from the open fence, Ralph walked on quietly and, suddenly vaulting the paling, laid his hand on the man's shoulder.

Anniversary Parade

OF C. C. C. YESTERDAY. The C. C. C. Regulars and Reserves celebrated the eighteenth anniversary of the formation of the Corps yesterday by a parade that will mark an epoch in the history of the Catholic Cadet Corps.

In the morning at the Cathedral and St. Patrick's some hundreds of the Corps received Holy Communion, and as the Regulars and Reserves knelt side by side at the Communion table they presented a truly edifying sight.

Try Again. You have, it may be, used ointments, pastes, lotions for Eczema till you begin to get tired of trying things. Well, but you should remember that science is advancing all the time, and that what was not possible yesterday can be accomplished to-day.

Suffragists.

The suffrage dames who play their games just like the whist-keeping fellers, who bravely stand and make demand for votes, are city dwellers. They run outdoors, neglecting chores too numerous to mention. The city wife an idle life of ease and sloth is leading; no more she makes the ginger cakes, no more the dough she kneading; she pulls with vim her husband's limber for rhino for her spending, and spends her days in useless ways, in foolish schemes unending.

Fishery West

LOOKS BAD. Thus far the shore fishery on the S. W. Coast is a complete failure, according to news just brought along by the Portia. Besides the outlook is gloomy, there being no indications of a change except the taking of a little cod at a few harbours last week and the presence of some caplin for bait.

Uncle Tom's Cabin

IN THREE REELS, TO-DAY! The House of Features known as the Crescent Picture Palace presents one of the strongest dramas seen in this city for some time when to-day the great three-reel feature: "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the attraction that calls for attention.

Announcement. D. J. Furlong wishes to announce to his friends and the public generally that he has opened a custom establishment in connection with the Cleaning and Pressing in the store lately occupied by N. W. Chown, 7 New Gower Street, and is now prepared to receive orders for any garment in the tailoring line; also wishes his friends to notice that he is giving a very special offer to anyone having suit length to be made up.

Fads and Fashions.

New summer hats have black velvet crowns and bluish rose trimming. Separate colours of white organdie often have colored linen vest effects. The fashionable Paris fan is of white peacock feathers, mounted on tortoise shell.

Belge straw hats for little girls are trimmed with bright-colored tiny plumes.

Goitine is one of the most practical of materials for summer sports clothes.

The fact that short tunics are not universally worn is said to account for the favour of the new long tunic.

Semi-fitted bodices are coming in in Paris. Frequently they are finished with low-waisted sashes.

So marked is the demand for all-white effects that even lingerie dresses have white instead of colored girdles.

An ingenious two-in-one costume for the summer is equally appropriate for sports or for an afternoon call.

Anything that's pretty may be used to trim the underpin of the fashionable plateau or NIBERIE hat.

Sheer embroidered linen and white tulle are used for many of the new lingerie frocks.

Little bonnets of flowered mousseline de sole are always becoming to children of six and eight.

When a child gets too big for rompers she should be dressed in plainest little frocks of linen, chambray or gingham.

Will Study For the Priesthood.

Mr. Dan Dyer, a prominent C.C.C. boy, takes passage by the s.s. Morwenna to-morrow for Montreal en route to Winnipeg, where he will enter college to study for the priesthood. During his connection with the corps of which he was an ideal member, having an enviable record, he did much to promote the interests of the brigade in relation to athletic sports, and only at last year's Regatta, rowed the stroke oar of the C.C.C. in the Juvénile race. Yesterday he was the recipient of a purse of gold, presented to him by the officers and members of the corps, as a testimony of their esteem and regard.

Port au Port Notes.

Owing to the stormy weather that has prevailed here since the opening of navigation, very little has yet been done in either the cod or lobster fishery.

Operations at Limeville or Agguathina, as it is now named, were after six months' suspension—renewed early last month, and about three hundred men are now employed at the quarry.

The s.s. Felix, Johnson, master, took the first cargo of limestone for the season, on the 4th inst. This ship was engaged last summer in carrying limestone between this port and Sydney, and the many friends of her courteous and obliging captain were pleased to see him return to the coast.

The bridge spanning Romain's River, on the main road, between this settlement and Stephenville Crossing, is badly in need of repairs. It is said that the Government intends replacing the present dilapidated wooden structure by an iron bridge, and those competent to judge give it as their opinion that for the convenience of the travelling public and the protection of the heavy traffic that passes over this highway, the sooner the new bridge is erected the better.

Boat racing on the harbor was one of the features of the Catholic annual picnic at St. George's last year, when invitations were issued to send competing crews from the settlements on this side of the bay, but owing to the distance and other considerations it was not found practicable to accept. It is well known that Newfoundlanders are deeply interested in aquatic sports and that the people of this section are no exception to that general rule and would be only too glad of the opportunity offered to exhibit their skill as oarsmen or in any other manner compete in friendly rivalry, on the race course. At Stephenville a central location, is a splendid sheet of water about two miles long by one and a half wide, surrounded with picturesque scenery and is within easy reach of the people of the neighboring settlements by boat, rail and wagon, in a word it is an ideal spot for a regatta.

No Limit.

Three reporters were boasting of the speed of their shorthand writing. Quoth one: "On a warm night all the people try to get near my table when I am reporting."

"Why?" asked the others. "Because my hand goes so fast that it creates a current of air like a fan."

"A mere nothing," said number two. "I always have to report on wet paper."

"Why?" "Well, you see, when I write on dry paper the friction of the pen sets fire to it."

"Pooh!" remarked the third. "I once saw a flash of lightning begin to cross my notebook from the left hand side just as I commenced a line, and my pen got to the other side first."

A CITY

Under Confederation.

A citizen of an incorporated Canadian city in reviewing public debts, revenues and expenditure which he is called upon to face, must direct his attention to three sets of finance. One set is that of the city he dwells in; the second set is that of the province in which his city is located; and the third set is that of the Dominion. He has therefore three sets of burdens to bear. In Newfoundland it is different. The whole public debt, Colony and City, is included in one statement issued by the Finance Minister in his Budget Speech. For instance the Public Debt to 30th June, 1913, was shown in the statement issued in the last Budget as $29,470,060.54. A note appended showed this sum included $1,429,104.22 of the Municipal Debt of St. John's.

The interest on this sum of $1,429,104.22 is paid by the city to the Government; and therefore the burden borne of this gross debt by any person, as an inhabitant of the Colony is $28,040,956.32.

This city debt is small as compared with that of such a city as Vancouver, B.C., as will be seen by a perusal of figures which we obtain from the Twenty-Seventh Annual Report of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

The outstanding debentures and stock of the Vancouver City Corporation is given as Dec. 31st, 1913, is given as $30,738,835.46. The population is given as 114,220. This gives a city per capita debt of $269.

In contrast to this we have a city debt in St. John's of $1,429,104.22, borne by 32,292 (1,911 Census). This gives a per capita debt of $44.

In other words the debenture debt of the Vancouver City Corporation is six times as large as that of the St. John's City Corporation, reckoned on a per capita basis.

It is of course true that St. John's is backward as far as needed improvements is concerned. But the fact remains that if St. John's could raise on debentures and spend a million and a half on such improvements, the per capita debt of the city would still be three times less than that of the Vancouver City Corporation.

In this connection it should be remembered that Vancouver has built its police stations, fire halls, hospitals, cemeteries, schools and equipped them.

The following paragraph which is taken from the Memorandum sent by Premier Mackenzie Bowell to Earl of Aberdeen Governor-General during the time of the last Confederation movement throws some light on the situation. It is as follows:—

"To-day the Newfoundland Government practically assumes the whole burden of the poor relief, educating the people, building the roads and bridges, and performs other services which, in the Provinces of Canada are dealt with almost exclusively by the Municipalities, and in no cases by the Federal Government."

The fact however remains that in Vancouver city, the per capita burden of the city debt is twice as much as the whole debt of Newfoundland, Colony and city, and that in addition a citizen of the Western city bears his proportion of the Provincial and also of the Dominion Public Debt.

Daring Thief

Caught at Bell Island.

Sergt. Cox arrived in the city this morning from Bell Island in charge of a prisoner named John Bucken, who was brought to the Penitentiary to serve six months. Bucken was the perpetrator of a series of thefts which were committed in daring fashion because most of them were carried on at daytime. Within the past month he broke into shops and houses on several occasions and stole a considerable amount of goods altogether. He was shadowed by the police on the island and on Thursday last after forcing an entrance into and looting a shack he was captured. On Saturday the accused was tried before Magistrate Power, convicted and sentenced to 6 months imprisonment.

McMurdo's Store News.

MONDAY, June 22nd, 1914.

We have just opened a new lot of Milards Forkdip Chocolates. These chocolates are very dainty and are regarded by many as the top notch in Chocolate Candles. Certainly their flavor is distinctive and much to the taste of the sweet-toothed public. Among the special ones we notice the "Tango" box, the futurist one, $1.25 a box, large size; and the Apollo, something new and moderate in price, while still of excellent quality. Prices 55c. and 65c. a box.

If you fancy the Military Hair Brush just look in on us. We have an extremely interesting line at various prices from $1.50 to $4.50 a pair, as well as a few single ones. Some of these sets are really excellent.

Kyle Returns.

The s.s. Kyle, Capt. Parsons, arrived in port from the Labrador route at 10.30 a.m. to-day, having reached as far north as Emily Harbor. The ship made the run in 14 days, and reports encountering much ice going north and returning. From Indian Harbor north an unbroken jam of heavy Arctic ice extends as far as the eye can see, and on the Newfoundland coast a considerable quantity of ice is shifting to and from the land continually. On the way north the ship was detained for some time at Spotted Islands owing to ice, as previously reported in the Telegram. Some of the ports that were made going could not be entered on the ship's return, and vice versa. Capt. Parsons reports the heavy almost a total blank, the principal cause being attributed to such a backward season which has not had a parallel for many years past. The Kyle brought only a few passengers.

Reids' Boats.

The Argyle sails from Placentia for the westward this afternoon. The Bruce left Port-aux-Basques at 6.05 a.m. to-day. The Clyde left Campbellton at 1 p.m. yesterday, outward. The Dundee left Port Blandford at 7.40 a.m. to-day. The Ethie sails from Clarenville to-day. The Glenace left St. John's at 7.30 a.m. to-day, to take up her regular route from Placentia. The Home sails from Lewisporte to-day. The Invermore sailed on the Labrador route at 1 p.m. to-day. The Kyle arrived from the northward at 10.30 a.m. to-day. The Lintrose leaves North Sydney to-night. The Meigie is north of Flower's Cove.

Diphtheria Outbreak.

Causing Alarm.

Diphtheria is on the increase at Bell Island and causing no small amount of alarm. From people who come over to the city to-day we are told that seven persons are now stricken with the malady, the last to contract it being a man on Saturday last. The disease, however, we are glad to state, is not of a violent type and patients are all doing well. The physicians on the island are doing their utmost to prevent the disease from spreading.

Vandalism

Severely Dealt With.

A West End resident was before court to-day charged with malicious injury to property at Bowring Park. The keeper there testified that the defendant had been cutting his name with a knife on a rustic sea. The defendant was convicted and fined $5 or 14 days. Judge Knight commented strongly on the case and intimated that so far as he was concerned he would do his utmost to protect the resort referred to and that in all like cases that came before him in future he would impose a fine of $25 with an additional $20, or in other words the offender would have to pay $45, and justly so.

CITY DUST-SWEPT.—Clouds of dust swept over the city this forenoon and the Reid Co's sprinkling cans was not out on any too soon.

Bishop March pleasantly replied to the address in his usual way and thanked his people sincerely for such manifestations of loyalty to the representative of their Church. After Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was imparted to the large congregation present His Lordship gave them a special Papal Blessing, received from his Holiness Pope Pius X doing his recent visit to Rcuie.

"The Silk for 57c. a yard now I've paid $1.00 for at last fall; true as you're there." Navy, Sky and Brown.

Proud Preston was very proud of himself last night when it saw its own native boxer, Young Ahearn, the cleverest ever produced in Lancashire, and certainly at least one of the cleverest ever produced in the world, gain an easy victory in a fifteen rounds contest with Harry Duncan.

Ahearn, whose wife followed the contest with interest in a seat at the ringside, did not seem to me so swift and strong as he had been last Monday night in London, but nevertheless he jabbed and jolted Duncan from one end of the ring to the other for the whole of the fifteen rounds. Fortunately for Duncan these were only two minutes duration each, and after a few of them he bent forward, smothered, and patiently and pluckily took his cruel in the hope of squaring up matters with one heavy punch.

In the twelfth round occurred the only approach to unpleasantness in a clean manly battle. Duncan cried out as though he had been fouled, and Ahearn reproachfully remarked, "Don't do that, I wouldn't do it." The next round was full of lively exchanges in which Ahearn showed that he could stand up and take as well as give punishment. Duncan fought desperately to the end, his courage being wholly admirable, but at the conclusion there was only one possible verdict, and Preston cheered twice—once for its great boxer and once for the gameness of an old favourite.

QUÉBEC, June 21. The announcement by Jacob Saxé, third officer of the collier Storstad, that though he knew it was wrong to change a ship's course in the fog, without orders, yet he put the helm of the vessel hard astport just before the collision with the Empress, roused intense interest in Saturday morning's session. Saxé following his surprising statement by saying he did not think that his action had caused the collision, and explained that the helm was put hard astport by him to try and offset the effects of the current on his vessel. He also contended that the ship did not change her course, because she had lost steering way, and he put the wheel hard astport, when the order of the first mate to port the helm a little had no effect. Saxé's statement drew a number of searching questions from Lord Jersey and Aspinall, K. C., while Haight, of New York, acting for the Storstad's owners, immediately had him finished their probe, jumped up and got a clear cut explanation from the witness.

Ludwig Fienmerrid, the lookout, said that when the ships came together he was standing on the forecastle watching, when the Empress loomed suddenly in the fog about a ship's length ahead. She was crossing the bow of the collier. He struck to his post until he saw the vessels about 10 feet apart, when he ran back from the bow to the hatch. The first he saw of the passing ship was when the masthead lights were discerned; then the red light was seen on the port bow. That was in eight or five or six minutes. He thought it was still showing when the fog dropped, and shot in the liner. His next glimpse of the vessel was when she came out of the fog across the head of the collier with lights shining through the casting port holes. At 4 a.m. after the smash he picked up cabin plate No. 328 on the deck of the Storstad. This was about four feet from the stern almost half way between port and starboard. The plate was filed as an exhibit, because it served to prove that the ships came together near the forward funnel of the Empress. From the big ship he heard three blasts. The first was a long one, then came two or three short blasts, and the third three long blasts. As far as the Storstad was concerned, he could give no information about the whistles.

LONDON, June 21. Although for the first time Premier Asquith yesterday received a deputation urging "votes for women," he flatly refused to accede to their demands that he introduce a suffrage bill into Parliament. Mr. Asquith promised the east end women, however, that he would confer with Home Secretary McKenna as to their request for the unconditional release of Sylvia Pankhurst and Mrs. Walker. He also promised careful consideration of the claims made by the women that forcible feeding was brutally practiced.

LEITHBRIDGE, June 21. Latest news from Hillcrest, says that all rescue work has been abandoned, owing to an outbreak of fire in shaft No. 1. Some sixty bodies have so far been recovered. It has been ascertained that 219 were in the mine at the time of the explosion.

Fifty of these went into north working mine, which is divided into two parts. Of this number forty came out alive. The force of the explosion was in the south workings, where over one hundred are still entombed through a cave in. Hope of their being alive is given up. The shock of the explosion was so severe that both the north and south entrances, two miles away from the occurrence together with the roof of the engine house outside the south entrance were shattered.

LONDON, June 21. It is feared that seven lives were lost in Thursday's Highland Railway Disaster, near Afton, caused by the collapse of a bridge over a mountain stream. A report that Sir Oliver Lodge was among the victims, was happily untrue.

LIÈGE, Belgium, June 21. Two hundred miners were entombed in Vieille Montagne colliery near here, when fire broke out in the mine. The men were all rescued after a hard fight by the fire brigade and rescuing party.

ST. LOUIS, Missouri, June 21. The river steamer Majestic, the largest excursion steamer on the Mississippi struck the cribbing of the water works tower near here early today, and sunk in ten minutes. Of 49 persons on board at the time, 24 have not been accounted for, and it is feared that they were drowned. All on board were members of the crew or of the boat band.

PARIS, June 21. There was a unique funeral yesterday of a chauffeur named Clouet, who was killed when his taxi was engulfed in the subsidence of St. Augustin. There were 3,000 in the cortege. They followed each other in a close line, and refused to allow any other traffic to break through. This resulted in paralyzing the traffic for two hours.

VIENNA, June 21. Nine men lost their lives today when a mine war in the air suddenly turned into a tragedy by the accidental ripping of the airship by a biplane, while both were flying at a great height during the Austrian army manoeuvres. Both craft were destroyed and their occupants, nine military and naval officers and non-commissioned men, were burned beyond recognition.

State Capitals.

LINCOLN, NEBRASKA

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Siwash." Lincoln is one of the few American cities which have been growing steadily but are not as large as they once were. Lincoln now has 45,000 people, but in 1850, when it was a mere village, it contained over 50,000 inhabitants. This was because the Nebraska census enumerators of those days counted a man's first, middle and last names separately and then added them up.

Lincoln is in the eastern part of Nebraska, and fifty years ago contained a few white men and several thousand buffaloes. Both white men and buffaloes came to get the salt which is scattered profusely over the country to the west, but the former soon crowded the latter out and in 1867, with seven houses within its limits, Lincoln demanded the state capitol. As it was a large city for those days in Nebraska, its demand was granted and it has been the storm center of the struggles between Nebraska legislators and Nebraska railroad attorneys ever since. It has had a fairly peaceable political career, however, and there are no bullet holes in the state house.

Nebraska is a fine modern American city with wide streets, a profusion of colleges, a vast number of Burlington trains which meet each day from all parts of Nebraska and a Secretary of State. Many years ago, William J. Bryan chose Lincoln for his home, but this was not, as has been sometimes stated, because Salt Creek runs past the outskirts of the city. Bryan made Lincoln famous, and in 1900 Lincoln men could be told by copies of the Commoner sticking from their coat pockets.

Lincoln was once peopled by the wild and woolly bad men of the west, but is now peaceable, except when the football rooters from the University of Nebraska celebrate a victory over Minnesota. The former boys of Nebraska train for their football team by husking corn from the age of ten up and more than once the Nebraska team has thrown a pale scare into the east as far as Michigan. Lincoln would be a richer city today if it had not but so faithfully upon its football team in the wrong season.

Lincoln has a state capitol built during the scroll saw and hand-painted period, great railroad shops, biennial bloods, saloons which wear halos and close right after supper, large numbers of prominent citizens with "ex-" before their names and with Lindell hotel in which much of the late history of Nebraska has occurred. It is one of the few cities which have gotten away with it. When the city tried to fire a corrupt police judge in 1887, a federal judge enjoined them. But he didn't know Lincoln.

Suggests a Monument. NEWS BY CABLE.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Allow me space in your valuable paper to make a suggestion to the people of Newfoundland. Now that the disaster fund is closed, and when all the subscriptions are in, the amount will be in the neighborhood of $275,000, as there is a sum of $25,000 to be received from the Dominion Government. There is also a sum of $25,000 from the Newfoundland Government Marine Disaster Act.
It looks as if it will reach the $300-000 mark; in fact twice as much as was expected at first. Now, Sir, the disasters the last spring was the worst in the history of the seal industry with the loss of the Southern Cross, with all hands, and the crew of the "Newfoundland" overwhelmed by a terrible snow storm, and two days and two nights' awful suffering, during which time seventy-seven brave men gave up their lives and thirty-seven (37) others were seriously frostbitten. Surely the people of Newfoundland should open a subscription list and erect a monument at a cost say three or four hundred dollars. It is only the matter of getting a committee and open up a list, and I am sure the people would do their share. I would suggest that the Citizens' Committee take the matter up as a nice monument in one of our streets would attract attention to the visitors who visit our little Island Colony every year, and show them that we honor our brave dead. I venture to say if it was in Canada or the States they would have a monument or some memorial to those men who lost their lives at the icefields the past spring. Now, Mr. Editor, on July 15th we shall have the pleasure of a visit from His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, as Governor-General of Canada, and I am sure if we could have a monument nothing would give him greater pleasure than to conduct the ceremonies. I would like to hear from anyone their opinion on the subject.

By inserting the above you will oblige

Holy Name Society.

Yesterday the Holy Name Society attended 8 o'clock Mass at the Cathedral, and received Holy Communion.
In the afternoon the regular monthly meeting of the society was held, and was largely attended. The Rev.
Spiritual Director, Fr. Sheehan, gave an interesting discourse on the "Four Evangelists," referring principally to St. John and relating many beautiful incidents of his life, which was spent in the companionship of his Divine Master. The meeting closed with Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, after which the members repaired to the vestry room where the usual routine work of the society was transacted.

St. John's Gas Light Company.
Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your works and I found 20.5 per cent of NITROGEN, Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manure.
Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently, it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.
Yours truly,

'Bon' and 'Bell.'

The S. S. Bonaventure has just been renovated at the dry dock and leaves here to-morrow to take up her charter with the Canadian Government. She will first go to Halifax to get supplies, also taking a number of passengers on board, thence calling at Sydney to bunker, after which she will proceed to Port Nelson.

The Bellaventure which has been engaged for a similar mission will not leave this port until July 31st, and like her consort will visit Halifax and Sydney before going to the Hudson's Bay territory. The 'Bell' will only make one trip to the far north and will then go to England to be lengthened and have other necessary alterations effected. The 'Bon' will operate in Hudson's Bay waters until September next.

OTTAWA, June 21.
Sir Robert Borden has taken a deep interest in the work of relief, following the Hillcrest Mine Disaster.
A telegram was sent by him to the officers of the mine's union, Hillcrest, expressing profound sympathy with the sufferers and announcing the desire of the Government to assist the work of relief. The Miner's Union is asked to advise as to the best way which such assistance can be rendered. A similar message offering all possible assistance was sent to the Manager of the Mine. The latest information in possession of the Government shows that at the time of the explosion there were 237 in the mine, of these only 43 got out safely. Ninety bodies have been recovered. The Government sent J. D. McNeven, representative of the Dept. of Labor in the West, to the scene of the disaster, and offered the services of the Mounted Police.

Holy Cross Schools.

A meeting of the Holy Cross Building Committee was held yesterday after last Mass. Rev. Bro. Kennedy presided and briefly explained the object of the meeting which was to devise means to pay off the outstanding debts in connection with the building of the extension. Owing to the many other calls on the Catholic citizens, the necessary amount has not been raised, and Father McDermott has permitted a collection to be taken up at all the Masses at St. Patrick's on Sunday next, for this purpose.

Mr. John Barron, Treasurer of the Committee, read the general statement which showed that at least $300 is needed for present requirements.
Arrangements were then made for next Sunday's collection, after which Brother Kennedy announced that they were having an up-to-date heating plant installed in the new schools, finances for which would be met by the disposal of some of the Holy Cross property.

After the meeting the Committee visited the new school rooms which are in every respect modern and excellently planned.

Attending Conference.

Rev. Dr. Hallyard is here from North Dakota attending the Methodist Conference, and on Thursday next will deliver a lecture on Theology.
He is a native of Ochre Pit Cove, and is a distinguished clerical visitor.

After first leaving Newfoundland he studied at Harvard and Germany and on both occasions won honours and distinction. Professor of Philosophy and Theology in Wesley College, Grand Forks, North Dakota is the present position he occupies.

VICIOUS GOSSIP.

By RUTH CAMERON.

One of the most vicious kinds of gossip is that which formulates fallible opinions about the causes of events in other people's lives, and then states these opinions as facts.

For instance, we were talking about hot baths the other day, and someone said, "I knew a girl who died from taking too many hot baths." Did you, really, we asked. "Who was it?" The name was given. "Why, I knew her," said someone else, "and I never knew that was what caused her death. I thought it was the indirect result of over-work." "Oh, no," said the first woman, positively, "she used to take those terrible hot baths, and finally she went into a decline. What did the doctor say? I don't know, but that was evidently the reason. Why, she took a very hot bath almost every night, and you know how weakening they are."

It was perfectly evident that this woman had no grounds for her statement beyond her own opinion. And yet, instead of saying, "I think so and so," she stated boldly as a fact, giving the impression that she had definite information on the subject.

Again, I once heard that a certain girl had broken her engagement because she discovered that her fiancé went around with other women. Investigation proved that the sole grounds for the statement were that E. was of a very jealous disposition, that her fiancé had been seen on the street two or three times with another woman (who, by the way, afterwards proved to be his sister-in-law) and that the engagement had been broken very suddenly.

On this ephemeral foundation some kind friend had built the hypothesis that the break must have been caused by the discovery that the fiancé went around with other women.

If she had stated this merely as a hypothesis, it would have been had enough, but she didn't. She stated it as a fact. In reality, the engagement was broken because the girl had found she no longer cared for her fiancé. And the break, although sudden enough to others, had been of gradual growth.

Next worse to foisting your own hypothesis on people as fact, is helping to pass on other people's opinions in the same way.

A says to B, "Mr. L. has left town very suddenly. I wonder if there was anything wrong with his business transactions."

B says to C, "Did you know Mr. L. had left town very suddenly? A thinks there is something wrong with his business transactions."

C says to D, "What do you think L. has left town unexpectedly. Everyone says there's something wrong with his business transactions."

D says to E, "Isn't it a shame about L? You didn't know? Why, he left town because there was something shady he'd been doing in a business way."

So a vague "wonder if" becomes transformed into a definite statement of fact.

Beware how you let yourself supply even one link in the chain of such cruel and wicked distortion of facts.

Record Borrowers.

Canada Secured Nearly $100,000,000 in London Market in Less Than a Year—Reckless Extravagance Has Affected Canadian Credit in Britain—Enormous Increase in Public Debt.

Ottawa, June 12.—In the past ten months the Borden Government has borrowed no less than $92,500,000. Almost $100,000,000 have been added to the liabilities of Canada in less than a year! It is a staggering record, a startling commentary upon the methods of extravagance and the waste characterizing the administration of the Premier and his colleagues.

In September, 1913, a loan of four million pounds was made in London by Hon. W. T. White. Three months later another loan of four and a half million pounds was floated. In February, 1914, Mr. White made a third loan of five million pounds, and now this country is in debt for still another five million pounds. All in all, then, between September, 1913, and June, 1914, the Government has borrowed eighteen million five hundred thousand pounds, or practically $92,500,000.

Inevitably, such enormous borrowings have affected Canada's credit in the money markets of the world. The February loan was not well received in London, while the London Times in its issue of June 5 declares that Mr. White's latest piece of finance has been "received with positive disfavor."

It is to be noted, moreover, that the June loan has been made on less favourable terms than even the February borrowing. Canada's credit is suffering because of the extravagance and recklessness of the Government and the Finance Minister—a condition that would be bad enough at any time but is especially serious at this period of financial depression and hard times in the Dominion, when nothing should be done which renders it more difficult than it otherwise would be to obtain capital for Canadian enterprises. Canadian provinces, Canadian municipalities, Canadian private undertakings will suffer because Canada's credit has been damaged through the course of the Federal Ministry, and directly or indirectly, sooner or later, every Canadian citizen will suffer.

Last year, the Government added some $19,000,000 to the debt of the Dominion. This year, by bond guarantees for railways, it has increased the country's liabilities by over $60,000,000. In less than a year, it has increased the borrowings of the nation by upwards of $100,000,000. Upon this huge sum, Canadians must pay interest for years to come while the principal, of course, must be repaid eventually out of the public treasury. These conditions are part of the price which Canada is paying for Borden rule.

Marian Sends Two Telegrams

The exasperating refusal of Ratgenhauser to give her a duplicate pay check for the one she had lost exacted more tears from Marian than any other grievous event had done in many a month. The man's cool refusal to do the right thing almost maddened her. She knew full well the motive back of his conduct. Had she been willing to submit to his attentions, she knew that the situation would have been very different. She knew, too, that as matters now stood between them, she might expect nothing more from the theatrical manager. Again, in her quest for a career she had been dashing up a blind alley.

"I'll get a lawyer. I'll sue him!" she resolved early the next morning. But after breakfast her determination to sue grew weak. She knew that she would never have the courage to tell any lawyer for what a meagre stipend she had been engaged to play her role in "The Climbers." "Why," she mused bitterly, "a chorus girl gets more than that. Whatever made me agree to a miserable wage like that?"

Much as Marian needed the fifteen dollars that she had carelessly allowed to slip through her fingers, her vanity reared an implacable wall before her, a wall that kept her from making an effort to recover through the courts what belonged to her. Bitter tears shot once more to her eyes, and again she swore that she would be revenged. But how? She yearned for brains and cunning, for the wit and strength to carry out her vague purpose.

Marian rammed her hat-pins desperately into place, put on her coat, and descended to the street. Her mind was in a whirl; her brain refused to act. What to do? The question buzzed through her like a wasp.

"Just a moment, Miss Winthrop," came the landlady's voice, as Marian drew near the outer door. She start-with style, lured and beckoned. "I must look a regular frump in these winter togs," mused Marian. Averting her eyes quickly from the shop window she was passing, she moved on, with the feeling that the spectre of poverty was marching at her side.

Through an open door came the clamor of telegraph tickers. A sudden impulse swept into her mind. She paused and entered the telegraph office. Obedient to the impulse, she crossed to the counter, and seized some telegraph blanks and a pen. To Ann Stewart, the artist, she composed a wire asking for a loan of fifty dollars. To her brother-in-law in Seattle she penned a similar despatch. She paid for their transmission, and departed. "Should I have done that?" she asked herself, as the current of pedestrians on the sidewalk picked her up again. "Why not?" answered herself. "I've got to live. I've got to dress." (To-morrow—The Call of New York.)

Picture Theatre Robbed
Of $10,000 by Four Men Posing as Detectives.

New York, May 18.—Posing as detectives, four men gained an entrance to a Broadway motion picture theatre early to-day, made the watchman a prisoner, handcuffed three workmen who were in the theatre, then blew open the safe in the box office, obtaining $10,000.

The robbers were in the theatre three hours and compelled the watchman to wind up the watchman's clocks at the various points in the theatre at the proper time so that no suspicion as to their presence would be noted on the outside.

A novel fashion is the lace "minaret"—a sort of short tunic composed of two fionces of shadow lace gathered on to a belt and worn about the waist.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. Its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland.—ap17,14

Freight Congestion.

There is considerable freight now at Montreal awaiting immediate shipment here. The Sindbad and Morwenna brought full cargoes and the Cacoua is well filled. The cause of the congestion, it is alleged, at this stage is the fact of only two steamers being used on the route by the Black Diamond Line, there being neither ship put on to replace the ill-fated City of Sydney.

Springtime of Life
AT THE NICKEL THEATRE.

The charming Pathe Film D'Art the "Springtime of Life" is the special feature at the Nickel Theatre to-day. It is a marvellous production with the finest photographs and superb dramatic work. It is a photo-play that will hold attention from first to last. The situations are thrilling and the climaxes great. No film like it has ever been seen in Newfoundland before. Paris, the gay city of Europe, was delighted with the magnificent pictures. Everyone should make an effort to see it. There will be a Pathe Weekly and a side-splitting comedy: "His Mother-in-Law's Visit." Miss Gardner and Mr. McCarthy will be heard in new songs this evening.

To-Night's Match.

The players in this evening's match are the Collegians and St. Bon's, as follows:—

COLLEGIANS—C. Quick, goal; Ayre, Barrett, backs; H. Barnes, Pike, E. Barnes, halves; Maudock, Noonan, Smallwood, Hutchings, Quick, forwards.

ST. BON'S—J. St. John, goal; Power, Higgins, backs; Ryan, Cleary, Crawford, halves; W. Callahan, Jackman, Gear, R. Callahan, E. Jackman, forwards.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

QUEBEC, To-day.
When Chief Engineer of the Storstad goes into the box, an attempt will be made by the Commission to get definite information about the various orders received in the Storstad's engine-room immediately before the collision. The inquiry is expected to last a week more, members of the Commission spent the week end quietly. Lord Mersey took frequent strolls in the terraces on Saturday evening with the Duke of Connaught, yesterday morning he was seen asleep on the terrace in the sunshine, and was snapped by a photographer, who said it was probably the only occasion Lord Mersey had been caught napping.

LONDON, To-day.
The final lap in the long Parliamentary struggle over the Irish question will be entered upon this week, when the Lords will hear the Government's proposals for amending the Home Rule Bill. On Tuesday Lord Curzon, leader of the Government in the Upper House will introduce the amending Bill and after Lansdowne's reply the debate will probably be closed. Speculation regarding the proposals for amending the Bill has been met to some extent by Lloyd George's declaration at Saturday's demonstration in South London. The Chancellor stated the proposal would be that every county in Ulster should have the option of voting itself out of the operation Home Rule Bill, until two general elections have passed. This differs but little from the offer made on March 21st by Asquith of the exclusion of any county Ulster by vote for a period six years, since the average life of Parliament is now about four years. In well informed political quarters the belief is expressed, that Ministers are in a conciliatory frame of mind, that if the Lords can offer some alternative reasonable proposal rather than mere stubborn opposition the Government will not consider the amending Bill as introduced to be the last word. Any new concession would probably take the form of abandonment of the time limit. Though this would be strenuously resisted by the Redmond Party. T. P. O'Connor writing in Reynolds's newspaper declares that Carson is almost isolated and that he knows it, while Redmond was never in a stronger position, having united Ireland behind him. Although the Commons will not participate in the Irish struggle this week, a struggle is brewing over finance Bill. Several prominent liberals object that it exceeds the usual limits of a Money Bill and it is expected that in regard to several of the Bill's proposals.

BOLTON, To-day.
Carson addressing an anti-Home Rule meeting here on Saturday said that if the amending bill simply repeated the Government's offer of optional exclusion Ulster from Home Rule for six years he would have nothing to do with it.

For Mother's on the Jury.

(New York Telegraph.)
Oh, Mary, call the children home and make the shutters fast, Put out the cat and fill the furnace full enough to last; The key beneath the doormat place, turn out the front hall light, For mother's on the jury, and won't be home to-night.
There was a time, long years ago, when mother stayed at home, And tended to her household tasks, with no desire to roam; She made the beds and swept the hearth and kept the children down, Until one day a woman's club was started in our town.

Soon mother was a member, and all her leisure time Was spent in writing papers on "The Decadence of Rhyme," "The Celtic Note in Bernard Shaw," of "Tennyson—the Man," But even then she got home ere the evening meal began.

Then came the bridge whist ere, when mother played all day, Topped off with tea and sandwiches and bore the prize away; Of all the village card sharks our mother was the best, But even then she reached home ere the sun had gone to rest.

From bridge to Civic Betterment the ladies next did leap, And mother muttered health laws and statistics in her sleep; For lectures and fresh air funds she let herself be led, But she got home from committees ere the family went to bed.

Now mother has the ballot, and at last has found her niche In turning up the Commonwealth to just the proper pitch; Against corruption, greed and graft the women have to fight, So mother's on the jury and she won't be home to-night.

"Tea and Coffee

are just as harmful to children as alcohol is to grown-up's," says Dr. Charlotte Abbey, superintendent of the Women's Directory.

The reason why tea and coffee injure anybody is because these beverages contain the poisonous drug, caffeine, (from 1 1/2 to 3 grains to the cup), which physicians have long known affects the heart, stomach and liver.

Children especially, with their delicate nerves, are susceptible to the action of caffeine, and should never be allowed to have tea or coffee or any other beverage containing drugs.

Thousands of adults have found that their headaches, nervousness, indigestion and sleeplessness have vanished when a change was made from tea and coffee to
