CHAPTER I
 AFTER FORTY YEARS.

"Yes, I suppose so," snarled the squire. "You mean you'll go, hat in hand, and beg him to ride all over the estate. Bah, sir, I had more spirit when I was half your years! I would have thrashed the rascal within an inch of his life who dared to ride over the Dale lands."
 "So would I," retorted Hugh, "if I thought he meant to be impudent, but—"
 "Ay, but, but, but!" mocked the squire. "But what, sir; what is the difference? By gad, sir!" turning to the servant who stood at the door undecided whether to do his fiercer bidding or not, "if you are not out of this room and off with my message I'll—"

The man hurriedly withdrew, and Hugh, who was averse to such rudeness toward the man, who, though a stranger, had treated him courteously but a few hours before, caught up his hat and followed after.
 The squire, dashing down his tea-cup, snatched a whip that hung in a rack above his head and hurried after him.

The three, father, son, and the servant, arrived at the paddock in a group.
 The squire, slipping to the front, roared out:
 "Hi, you, sir! What the deuce do you mean by trespassing over a gentleman's grounds?"

The settler pulled up short and turned round in his saddle with a pleasant smile that added to Squire Darrell's anger.
 "I beg your pardon," he said.
 "Confound you for an insolent jack-anapes!" roared the squire. "Hark you, sir: you're trespassing; if you don't make for the road in double-quick time, by gad, I'll—"

"Trespassing?" repeated the horse-man, with a still pleasant smile. "I'm very sorry, I'm sure, and with a cool touch of the hat he turned his horse's head and rode off.
 The squire stopped for a moment to swear himself out of breath, then turned and walked after Hugh, who, directly his father had commenced to harangue, had gone back.

WOMAN SUFFERED 12 YEARS

Finally Made Well by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Emmittsburg, Md. "I suffered for twelve or fifteen years, and was treated by a physician, but I got little relief. I saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in my newspaper, so I thought I would try it, and it did me more good than all the doctor's medicine. I am a farmer's wife and do my housework all the time, and I am better now than I have been for years. I am never without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the house and have recommended it to several of my friends. You are perfectly welcome to publish my letter, for the good it may do other women."—Mrs. ETTIE WARREN, Emmittsburg, Md.
 Backache and nervousness are symptoms or nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment. Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Warren's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

"Good-morning," said the settler, casting a sharp glance after the departing squire. "I'm just off and couldn't leave without saying good-by. You mustn't mind me. I've taken a fancy to you—no offense—and it isn't in me to beat round the bush."
 "It is very kind of you," said Hugh, smiling, but not with a very pleased expression. "So you are off to your cattle station? Well, I wish you a prosperous voyage."
 "Thank ye, thank ye," said the man, "and the same to you."
 "But," said Hugh, with his hand upon the gate, anxious to end the interview and rejoin his father, whom he knew would be storming inside, "but I am not going on a voyage."
 "Oh, yes, that's true!" said the settler, with a strange smile. "Still, it will stand good until you do. And," he added, as he turned toward the path leading to the village, "and if you do, let the trip be to the Cape of Good Hope."
 Hugh laughed shortly.
 "As likely there as anywhere else," he said, carelessly.
 "Ay," said the man; "we never know what a day may bring round. Anyway, if you do come across the herding pond in that direction, don't forget to ask at Cape Town for Stewart's Corner."
 And with a hearty "Good-by" he walked sharply off.
 Hugh entered the dining-room, expecting a storm, but the squire did not seem so much enraged as he expected.

"So that insolent bagman who rode over the paddock is a friend of yours, eh?" he asked, wrathfully.
 "Well, no, not a friend," replied Hugh, decidedly. "I never saw him but once in my life—at the forge last night. He is—"
 "Oh, hang the insolent fellow! I don't care who he is—there, don't say another word about him."
 Hugh, only too glad to drop the obnoxious subject, sat down, to luncheon, after which the squire's old bay mare and Hugh's stout, well-paced cob were brought round.
 As in the walk so in the ride the squire was particularly agreeable, and the cloud began to disappear from Hugh's face and he became more talkative and light-hearted than he had been for some time—so much so that when the squire asked him to gallop the cob across the fields that he might see how he went, Hugh, starting off with a laugh, calling his two hounds after him, flew along the velvet turf and over the hedges as happy as the dogs themselves.

At dinner Squire Darrell's good humor reached its climax.
 "Bring in the old port," he said to the butler, and, drawing his chair up to the window, invited Hugh to come and see the sunset.
 "It is a beautiful evening," said Hugh.
 "Yes," said the squire, "it makes the old place look cheerful, eh? By the way, Hugh," he added, "we are rather lonesome here, lad."
 "Lonesome?" repeated Hugh, with his short laugh. "I don't think so, sir; at least I am not."
 "Oh, you're young!" said the squire; then, glancing up at his face and meeting his eyes looking out at the sky again: "The place seems dull—dull, Hugh. Wants the feminine element to light it up."
 This was touching upon dangerous ground, and Hugh felt it safest to say nothing.
 "It's weary work for both of us," continued the old man, fumbling in his pocket for the letter. "We get snappish with one another, not having a woman to quarrel with."
 Hugh smiled rather grimly.
 "Our quarrels are soon over," he said.

As it was, they walked on in silence until they reached a small gate leading to the kitchen garden of the Dale House, where, much to Hugh's surprise and the squire's rage, the obstreperous horseman who had been caught trespassing at breakfast-time appeared, leaning against the fence in close conversation with one of the farm laborers.
 Before the squire could get out the oath which rose to his lips, Mr. Stewart, with a cheery "Good-morning," advanced and held out his hand to Hugh.
 Hugh, rather taken aback by the familiarity, yet too courteous to resent it, held out his hand, and the squire, purple in the face, stood stock-still with a stony stare for the space of a minute, then turned sharply and strode on his way.

Council have not been made public, but it is understood that neutral countries, having representatives at the meeting, have agreed to give substantial aid to Austria and other European states, thus relieving the pressure on Great Britain and the United States. Substantial advances, in which both neutrals and Allied countries would participate, have been agreed upon, and it has been decided to establish in Paris an advisory committee.

HUNGARIAN CRUELITIES.

BUDAPEST, April 24.
Charges that the Hungarian Government is conniving in a plot for the wholesale massacres of Jews, and that Jews are tortured and thrown into jail without trial are made in a communication sent to the peace conference in Paris by a committee of delegates with headquarters in this city.

U.S.A. ROBBERS' ROOST.

WASHINGTON, April 25.
"The United States has become a robbers' roost," Senator Capper, Republican from Kansas, declared in a prepared address in the Senate on Saturday, in which he scored profiteering and declared that if the law enforcement officers of the Government could not enforce the laws, they should resign, "and let men, who can, take their places."

A GERMAN ASSURANCE.

LONDON, April 24.
A note has been dispatched to Paris by the German Government, according to a Berlin wireless message received here, stating that German troops in the Ruhr district no longer exceed the number stipulated by the peace treaty.

OLYMPIC HOCKEY.

ANTWERP, April 24.
An American hockey team defeated a team of Switzerland in the Olympic games here this afternoon by a score of twenty-nine to nothing.

RAILWAY TROUBLES.

WASHINGTON, April 24.
Warning against further delay in settling the wage demands of two million railroad workers of the United States, Timothy Shea, Vice-President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, told the Railroad Labor Board to-day that the men "were fed up on promises and dead dog tired of delays."

HUN TREACHERY.

PARIS, April 25.
Large quantities of arms and munitions were discovered by French cavalry entering Panau, east of Frankfurt, according to the Temps to-day. The war material was labelled "army of west." Numerous plans relating to manoeuvres, also, were found, purporting to cover military operations against France through the zone occupied by the American army at Coblenz. Two hundred and fifteen cannon have been discovered at Koenigsberg, east Prussia.

EARL CURZON'S DISCLAIMER.

SAN REMO, April 25.
Earl Curzon, British Foreign Secretary, said on Saturday that it was an entire mistake to attribute to him any utterance respecting Canada taking over a mandate for Armenia. The Canadian Government, so far as he was aware, had neither requested a mandate, nor been asked if it were willing to accept it.

WILL ASK AMERICA.

SAN REMO, April 25.
The Supreme Council is sending a formal request to President Wilson that the United States Government will take the mandate for Armenia. The Council is leaving to President Wilson arbitration of difference over the boundaries of Armenia. There seems to be a division on the part of the Council as to whether the region of Erzerum and its vicinity should be included in the territory of the Armenia Republic. Turkish Nationalists are strongly claiming Erzerum for themselves.

A PROTEST PARADE.

NEW YORK, April 25.
Overalls, worn duds and patches were the insignia of honor yesterday when hundreds of people, organized by a cheese club, paraded in New York streets in protest against the high cost of wearing apparel. The spectators were in thousands all along the route and markedly enthusiastic, although the numbers in the parade itself were disappointingly small to those in charge. The costumes were varied and picturesque. Girls in riding breeches marched side by side with girls in gingham and blue denim. Men wore patched trousers and plain overalls, while a few youths were clad in barretts. There were school girls in middie and hundreds of boy and girl scouts in khaki.

PLASTERERS GET INCREASE.

OTTAWA, April 24.
Though the actual formality of signing has not yet been performed by the builders, the new agreement presented by the Plasterers' Union, some time ago, to the Builders and Contractors' Association, has been signed and men for the next year, beginning from May 1st, are to receive thirty-five instead of seventy cents per hour, an advance of fifteen cents per hour, which means about $120 per day, or making a total wage of $300 per day.

OPPOSES REFERENDUM.

HAMILTON, April 24.
The local branch of the Independent Labor Party passed a resolution last night in opposition to the proposed referendum on the importation of liquor. The mover of the resolution suggested that Hon. Walter Rolfe, Minister of Labor, who was present, be asked on the question, but the majority of the members present declared that there should be no discussion.

DEVELOPMENTS IN TURKEY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24.
Colonel Tatar, Turkish Commandant in Adrianople, who last week called on all Moslems to unite in an effort to free the Sultan from Allied influences, appeared here yesterday and announced he supported the demand of Ferid Isasha, Grand Vizier, and abandoned the Turkish Nationalist. All regular army officers have been ordered to report for service within three days under penalty of court martial. Raouf Bey, Deputy for Sivas and reputed mouthpiece of Mustafa Kemal, Nationalist leader, is reported to have gone to Angora in company with General Townshend, of the British Army, to make an effort to effect a compromise with Mustapha. Raouf Bey left Constantinople a few days ago, and, it was understood at the time, he had been deported to Malta.

FIUME AGAIN BLOCKADED.

FIUME, April 25.
Fiume is again severely blockaded by land and by sea, following a raid by D'Annunzio's soldiers at Abazia, west of this city, where 45 horses were stolen from regular troops. The blockade is intended as a punishment by General Ferrario against the military command of Fiume.

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC COUNCIL.

PARIS, April 24.
Canada was among the nations represented at yesterday's session of the International Economic Council. The Dominion was represented by Sir R. Perley. The programme prepared by the Council provides for the participation of neutral nations in extending credits to European countries in need of food and raw material, but without ready cash to buy. Other nations represented at the conference were Great Britain, the United States, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Holland, Sweden, Norway and Denmark. Details of the plan drawn up by the

WINNIPEG VICTORIOUS.

LONDON, April 25.
The Winnipeg Falcons hockey team easily defeated the Czech-Slovak team in the Olympic games at Antwerp on Saturday by a score of fifteen goals to nil. The Falcons were clearly the superior team and played short bases at terrific speed, Goodman particularly standing out as the star player. The Czech-Slovak team played hard, but could make no impression whatever on the Falcons.

Early Days of the Fisheries and Agriculture in Newfoundland.

H. F. SHORTIS.

There has been no country of its importance in the world which has been so neglected from a historical point of view as Newfoundland. True there have been some attempts made at writing a crude history of its resources and capabilities. All those fall indefinitely short of being a mere outline of the future possibilities of Newfoundland. In all those attempts at writing the history of our country, there is a singular absence of any attempt to show our people in their true light. Here and there in our so-called histories we find certain men singled out for their philanthropy—their capacity for amassing a fortune, or some other cause, and these are taken generally from the upper and middle classes; but there has been no attempt made to show up the heroism, hardihood and adventurous spirit of our people—I mean the fishermen and farmers of every capacity, who have built up Newfoundland, and made her what she is and what she promises to be.

NOT AUTHORITATIVE.

What has been told up to the present of the people of the country has been gleaned from old legal documents and records, kept by fishing admirals who from time to time visited our shores. These documents are necessarily confined to international relations, the enormous possibilities of the, at that time, one and only industry of the country—the codfishery. All these things are, I admit, very impossible in themselves in relating the history of a country. In this connection it must be borne in mind that the principal factor in compiling the history is the history of its people. By a singular coincidence, all who have hitherto attempted to tell the story of Newfoundland have studiously avoided this subject, which is of vital importance. A book that confines itself to the transcribing of documents dealing with events and epochs in the life of a country cannot claim pretensions to the dignified title of history. The manners and customs of a people, their leading characteristics, their mode of life, the adaptability for the requirements of their environments, their evolution and growth from a handful of settlers to a unit in the make-up of the Empire or country from which they sprung—these are subjects to be enquired into with the greatest diligence by the men who undertake to unfold to the world the history of a people.

A FIRST ESSENTIAL.

No one will deny that events are a first essential in the make-up of history, but bare recording of the facts themselves is inadequate to satisfy the inquiring mind. We must know what led up to these events. We must know the circumstances that controlled them, and, above all, we must know the character and quality of the people who were the main-spring of them. Where then, I may ask, are we to inquire into the manners and customs of the people whose history we wish to relate? Not from the legal documents, not from the records and ledgers of the merchants' country houses, but from the people themselves. In all conditions of human society, from the primitive savage up to the highest point of western civilization, there is one trait recognizable as of a universal character, and that is—an inherent desire to relate past events and exploits, and this universal characteristic of the human mind has been called—tradition. It is absolutely necessary for the historian to apply himself diligently to the task of mastering the traditions and stories of a people, in order to show them up in their true light. A history to be complete must be retrospective, and how then can we acquire a knowledge of the past without taking the people into our confidence? It is not only by delving deep into dusty documents that we can acquire all the information that goes to make up history. History, to be complete, must go hand in hand with tradition. When the great, but somewhat self-laudatory orator, Cicero, tells us, when speaking of history that "to be ignorant of what happened before one's birth is to remain in a state of perpetual childhood," he had in his mental vision the traditions and stories of the Roman people. The poetry of his countrymen had contributed lavishly to the making of Roman history. No one will deny that poetry enters largely into the history of all peoples. There is nothing so closely allied to tradition as poetry, in fact, it is tradition in verse. The deeds and daring—the conquests and failures—the trials and difficulties of the evolution of a nation from its infancy to full-grown manhood—are handed down to posterity by the pens of its poets. This is tradition pure and simple. Why did not those who have hitherto attempted to make the history of our country consult the traditions of our people?

IN THE FRONT RANK.

Newfoundland, it must be admitted, is fast coming to a front rank in social and commercial prosperity. The sciences and arts are being taught and cultivated. Her sons, when they go abroad, are proud of the land of their birth; but it is of first importance to know how this refinement and civilization were accomplished. Even here in the suburbs of St. John's we have tracts of highly-cultivated land, yielding splendid returns for the labor bestowed upon it. Yet no collector of data has been found to go and visit the holders of these farms and enquire into their growth and development up to the present stage. Surely in bringing these fine holdings into their present state a vast amount of labor has been gone through. In going into the virgin forest, with no capital behind them, save that of their own energy, perseverance and indomitable courage, the original owners of these farms handed down to their children an enduring monument to their own ability and energy. The very fact of these farms being there, are, of themselves, a stimulus to the enquiring mind to seek information about them. Men of such courage and endurance as pioneers of these homesteads must be worth studying. It must be remembered that at the time those men undertook to reclaim the land, everything was against them. Climatic conditions were adverse, as the winters in those days were long and severe. Isolation was the order of the day. There were no connecting roads, and the prospective farmer not only had to face, what would seem to a less determined race, insurmountable difficulties, but he was cut off from social intercourse with his fellowman. Everything was against him. He had to contend against the hostile forces of Nature, an ill-supplied purse and a want of sympathy and intercourse with his fellows. Yet amidst all these adverse circumstances, these men reclaimed the soil from its primitive virginity and made it yield a bounteous maintenance for themselves and their families.

REAL PIONEERS.

Surely such a class of men were built of sterner stuff than the ordinary run of mankind. They are worthy of investigation and inquiry. Yet, in all the histories of our country, we fail to find anything like adequate tribute paid to such men. Sterling manhood, no matter in what walk of life it is to be found, deserves to be inquired into. There is nothing exceptional in the instances I have above cited. Hundreds of farmers from England, Ireland and Scotland have gone into the primitive forests of Newfoundland, and, having overcome the difficulties and obstacles consequent to a severe climate, such as Newfoundland was then subjected, and accomplished such feats, were it not that their work remains to-day to speak for itself, it would be almost impossible to believe. The first settlers of Newfoundland stand out as a distinct and unique race. They appear to have been, and subsequent events prove that they were, endowed by Nature with a peculiar fitness for opening up a new country. They were possessed of indomitable courage, capability for physical endurance, and an unconquerable determination—qualities which gave them special fitness to become founders of a race which for courage and endurance are second to no people in the world. I fail to see the completeness of a history which, while devoting pages to the natural possibilities of a country (both present and prospective) entirely ignores the men who made those possibilities a living issue in the history of the commercial world.

IRISH IMMIGRANTS.

In the development of the agricultural, as well as the fishing resources of our country the Irish race played an important part. Driven from their own land in cockle-shell vessels, huddled together like cattle, under the lash of brutal and tyrannical captains, for days without food or water, stricken with fever hundreds of them never reached our shores, and found their graves in the broad Atlantic. Yet those who arrived on our shores became the most enterprising and successful residents in every walk of life, in church, state, fisheries, agriculture, as artisans, teachers and every other branch of industry. Who can ever forget the sad chapter of 1847; to be exact, on the 8th of May of that year, the first of a long list of fever-laden emigrant ships from Ireland arrived at Grosse Island, in the St. Lawrence, about thirty miles below Quebec? Crowded with human beings driven from their native country by poverty and persecution, these ships (if they could be called such) witnessed scenes of horror and misery which are better not written. Malignant typhus had taken hold of the emigrants. The crowding together of so many passengers, the miserable food and conditions then prevailing in the steerage, the long and anxious voyage across the Atlantic—all added to an epic of sorrow that no pen has adequately recorded. When they arrived at Grosse Island, the inhabitants were naturally alarmed. Temporary but inadequate provision was made to handle the vast number of sufferers. They were huddled into hastily constructed sheds, until these were filled; and there the unfortunate died by hundreds and thousands. Sometimes whole families, sometimes parents, sometimes children were laid away in a common grave; and it is estimated that before the pestilence ended 10,000 unfortunates were consigned to the grave at Grosse.

One of the saddest incidents in American history. They left behind them, however, a record of patience, piety and resignation, which powerfully edified those who waited on them; and also it is said, they were the occasion of acts of charity and heroism worthy of the days of the early church.

Defoe's Robinson Crusoe Fame.

On April 26, 1731, Daniel Defoe, journalist and novelist, died from lethargy, or deadly sleep, in Roper-makers' Alley, Moorfields, London. He was born in the parish of St. Giles, Cripplegate, in 1660 or 1661, and he was interred in the neighbouring Bunhill Fields Burial Ground. During that time he wrote two hundred and fifty published works. It might be expected that his most celebrated work would be that published in 1702, just after the accession of Queen Anne, with the title "The Shortest Way with the Dissenters," of whom he was one by birth, for the House of Commons ordered this book to be burned. The author of it was tried at the Old Bailey in 1703 and punished by being placed in the pillory on July 29, 30, and 31 that year. A person thus publicly exposed had his head put through a hole, and his hands through two others, and was thus unable to defend himself if pelted by the mob with stones and garbage, as was usually done. On this occasion, however, the people formed into a guard round Defoe, covered the pillory with flowers, and drank his health. He was also ordered to pay a fine of 200 marks, each of which was equal to thirteen shillings and fourpence; to be imprisoned as long as Queen Anne pleased; and he was required to find securities for good behavior during seven years. All this he suffered for a satirical pamphlet against what is called occasional conformity, which required a Lord Mayor of London, though a Nonconformist, to attend Church of England worship on some occasions. And yet very few have known that such a publication existed, compared with the number who have read his "Robinson Crusoe," of which one of the best and oldest Free Libraries contains five copies, while it has not one of the pamphlet. "Robinson Crusoe" is only a tale, the subject of which was suggested by Alexander Selkirk, a Scotsman, who had lived alone for nearly five years on Juan Fernandez, an uninhabited island off the Pacific coast of Chili in South America. He had been left there at his own request in 1705, when he had quarrelled with his master, the captain of the ship. Such was the lasting fame which Defoe obtained by this book, that in 1877 Queen Victoria granted a pension to three old ladies of his name who had descended from him.

OVERSTOCKED SALE!—Everybody in St. John's is waiting for this gigantic $80,000.00 Sale, where they will buy for the two weeks of the Sale enough wearing apparel to last until prices are brought down by a similar over-supply of the merchandizing centres of the world, which will take at least two years. The Speech From The Throne.

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things:
Of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—
Of cabbages—and kings—
And why the sea is boiling hot—
And whether pigs have wings."

Once a year, according to custom, the members of the Legislature of this Dominion assemble together in the Upper Chamber of the local House of Lords for the purpose of hearing the announcement of the opening of Parliament and to listen to the Speech from the Throne, prepared by the Cabinet in the person of the Prime Minister, and read by His Excellency the Governor as the representative of His Majesty the King. This speech is supposed to contain an outline of the legislation to be carried out, during each annual session, by the Government of the day. The words of the first line of the verse quoted above might be said to be significant of this occasion, and though it would be considered less majestic to use the walrus as a simile to be applied to the Governor, yet it cannot amount to the same to refer to the Prime Minister as the Walrus, in the political sense, who makes the announcement that "the time has come to talk of many things," when he puts words into the mouth of the Governor, which are the official expression of the programme to be adopted in the making of laws for the government of the people in accordance with the constitution and traditions of this Dominion.

The Speech from the Throne, as delivered to the General Assembly on Wednesday last is perhaps without exception the baldest and most insincere address that has ever been heard by the lieges of Newfoundland. It talks of many things, unimportant in their way, and again it omits mention of many other things that should have been included in its scope and intention. It refers to the Shoes—and Ships—and Sealing Wax—and Cabbages in far greater degree than these items warrant, but it does not discuss the matters of vital necessity, which, under the heading of Shoes, might be styled the High Cost of Living. This was a subject treated most exhaustively by the new Prime Minister when appealing to the electorate for their suffrages, last fall. The promises made by himself and his following relative to this problem and its solution in the best interests of the people, were, in great measure, the cause of the success of himself and party. Yet there is not the slightest reference to it in the Speech from the Throne. It cannot be said that the Prime Minister has forgotten this promise, for as a rule the honorable gentleman is possessed of a very long and retentive memory. But assuming that this matter did not occur to him when drafting the address, his colleagues in the Executive and his followers in the House should have refreshed his memory, and recollected their promises made from many a platform that their first duty, if returned, would be the consideration of this question and its adjustment to the advantage of the masses. The mover and seconder of the motion for a select committee were among the number of candidates last fall, who did not hesitate to declare that the people were being robbed by the then high prices prevailing. As a matter of fact the member for Burgeo & LaPoile was filled with righteous indignation because of the profiteering carried on, and pledged himself to the voters that he would insist on better conditions. The member for Bay-de-Verde was not behind in making liberal promises of reform in the matter of the H.C.L. But both these gallant gentlemen forgot all about their promises, and had not the courage or independence to voice a protest. They were obliged to speak on the lines laid down for them and were not strong enough to deviate from the printed copy and suggest, at least, that they stood for the carrying out of the promises they had made.

And Ships. Government members are patting themselves and each other on the back because of the acquisition and purchase of three steam vessels for use in the coastal and other services of the Dominion. Both the Prime Minister and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries arrogate to themselves the credit for securing these vessels. The personal organ of the former says that he was instrumental in getting them, The Advocate making a similar and no less strenuous claim on behalf of Mr. Coaker. As a matter of fact two of these boats come to us in the shape of a gift from the Admiralty, and were placed at the disposal of the Government as part of Newfoundland's share from the war winnings of the Empire. The ship acquired by purchase was merely a business transaction, which could have been accomplished by any person without any trumpeting of special ability. Having secured this addition, a badly needed one, it is true, to our marine fleet, it is to be hoped that the Government will use them entirely in the various services for which they are proposed, and that it will not neglect the filling of the complement of officers and crews of each one, with men who fought overseas and on-the-seas during the Great War. The Government has an opportunity of making good in this case, and of showing that it has a desire to provide for those of our soldiers and sailors who wish to take up marine work again. These ships with others in the Government service will make quite a little fleet, and their full quota of crews will amount to a respectable number. The employment of returned men must therefore be a first consideration, and no political pull should be allowed to stand in the way of giving every veteran of the Regiment or the Royal Naval Reserve a chance of securing a position as an officer or seaman or fireman on the vessels of the Government squadron. Officer-ed and manned by Newfoundlanders, every one of whom is of the army or navy, the personnel of such crews will command the confidence of all who have occasion to use these vessels, and will further be a convincing proof of the fact that Newfoundland is capable of rewarding and taking care of the heroic men who, at duty's call, left their positions and stood to arms for the cause of freedom and the safety of democracy.

Another Anglican Dismissed.

One of the first acts of Mr. W. F. Penney, M.H.A. for Carbonear, was the dismissal of Mr. Leander Pike, Secretary of the Water Company, and the appointment of Mr. W. T. Guy, brother-in-law of Mr. Penney in place of Mr. Pike. Thus goes the only Church of England appointment in the town of Carbonear to a member of another denomination. The unkindest cut of all is that Mr. Pike, the dismissed official, was a strong supporter of the Liberal Reform Party. This is fidelity rewarded. The Church people of Carbonear will have something to say regarding this usurpation of their rights, which is not by any means the sole one since Hon. R. A. Squires became Prime Minister. The question is being asked, what has that staunch Anglican, Mr. Coaker, to say about the disturbance of the denominational ratio, not only in this but in recent instances. The late Sergeant-at-Arms in the House of Assembly, likewise was a citizen of Carbonear and a member of the Church of England. He gave sons for the cause of Empire, but that does not count with the present Government, who have adopted the principle of advancing notorious slackers. Mr. M. J. Hawker, as a father of soldiers, is thrown out of office by a Government which was elected by the votes of the men who fought. This is the thanks they are getting and the reward for services rendered.

Rev. Dr. Fenwick at Cochrane St. Church.

At Cochrane Street Centennial Church last evening the Rev. Dr. Fenwick occupied the pulpit, kindly supplying for the pastor, Rev. Dr. Bond, who as President of the Newfoundland Conference of the Methodist Church, is attending an important church gathering in Toronto. Mr. Roy Kendall presided at the grand organ with much acceptance.

Young Men Emigrating.

About 150 young men left by last Rosalind for Halifax and New York, and about 100 more left by Kyle from Placentia. A number of those who left by Kyle are men who have been overseas in the R. N. R. and Regiment. Such a flow of emigration has not taken place for the past ten years and it is regrettable that our manhood should be obliged to seek a living in other countries.

Studebaker Car for Christian Brothers.

Yesterday morning Hon. J. D. Ryan presided at a meeting of gentlemen interested in presenting a motor car to the Christian Brothers. A Studebaker car was chosen as most suitable. It will arrive here by next Rosalind, after which the formal presentation will take place.

Reids' Boats.

Argyle, Clyde, Petrel at St. John's. Glencoe not reported. Home left Placentia at 2 a.m. yesterday. Kyle left Port aux Basques at 6.20 p.m. yesterday. Meigle at Placentia. Sagona left St. John's at 3.30 p.m. Friday, for Port aux Basques.

Supreme Court.

(Before Justice Johnson and Justice Kent.)
The hearing of the election petition against Dr. Jones, was resumed this morning. Mr. Robert Joyce, of the Board of Works Office, was called and submitted a list of names with cheques and allocations, which were put in evidence. Another list covering from October 14th to Oct. 29th, was submitted, but objected to by Mr. Howley, who stated these cheques and allocations were issued by a minister, and yet were to be submitted as evidence against Dr. Jones, and as the latter is not charged with directing or indirectly giving employment, etc., as per sub-section 2, Section 142 of the Election Act, the charges made against Dr. Jones are confined to sub-section 1 of the Act, therefore this list is not evidence to the point. Mr. Mews states his reasons for putting the evidence in and states that though issued by Minister Woodford, ostensibly for work on the roads, he contends that this is only camouflage. The money was received by the people who were named in the list during the month of October. The court took recess till 2.30 p.m.

Overall Movement Coming Here.

Citizens to Hold Overall Parade in Protest of High Prices of Clothing. Parade at Sydney To-day.

The "Overall Movement" is coming to Newfoundland. Already a number of citizens have interested themselves in the idea, and are well under way to organizing an "overall parade," such as took place in several cities in America within the past week or so, which happened in Sydney to-day. The idea is to have a parade of citizens wearing overalls, old and patched clothing, or any "disreputable" apparel that can be obtained. The fact of such clothing being worn by so many would make the idea a popular one, so that the city may soon witness the sight of office clerks and shop assistants walking to work in overalls and patched clothing. In Paris some millionaires, erstwhile leaders of fashions, have taken to wearing old, patched clothing, and throughout Paris the idea is being enthusiastically taken up. Meanwhile we will look forward with great interest to the "Overall Parade" here.

BARBERS' PRICES INCREASED TO-DAY.

An increase in barbers' prices occurred to-day in future, beginning today, shaves will cost 20 cents, and haircuts 40 cents, or an increase of 5 cents. Shampoos, massages, etc., have also risen by 5 cents each. Now we may expect a "Barber's Parade" and "Long Haired" parade in protest.

COAL PRICE TAKES ANOTHER JUMP.

Coal was selling this morning at $4.35 per quarter ton—an increase of 45 cents over $3.90 per ton. This coal was that being landed from the Prospero at A. Harvey & Co's. wharf. This is the only coal in the city. A large steamer, which had been chartered to bring 3,000 tons from Sydney, has been disabled.

Drunks Had Narrow Escape.

Three drunken men had a close shave from serious injury yesterday afternoon, when, on Southside Road West, Sydney, a bridge over a drainage ditch in which they were driving overturned and threw them out against a rail fence at the lower side of the road. The impact was great enough to break off the post to which were nailed the rails. Fortunately the horse did not bolt and, with the help of people living nearby, they righted the carriage and resumed their interrupted drive to town.

New Mission Boat for Harbor.

Bethesda Mission, New Gower St., is to have a Mission Boat on the Harbor, and beginning next Sunday morning with an open-air service on the wharf of A. H. Murray & Co. The boat will henceforth on Sunday mornings hold the harbor between ship and ship, holding services.

Personal.

Mr. Geo. Penney and daughter, Ramea, arrived on Saturday and are staying at the Crosbie.
Mr. Roy C. Wolvin, the new President of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co., which is the biggest company on Bell Island, is scheduled to visit the town within a very few days. This will be Mr. Wolvin's first visit to the mining scenes of the big company of which he is now the chief executive.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Sable I. leaves Sydney for here on Thursday.
Schr. Smugler has arrived at Burin, salt laden, to Capt. Hollett.
Schr. Mary Statton has cleared from Hr. Buffett for Barbadoes with a cargo by Wakely & Sons.
Schr. Inspiration, Capt. Wm. Kennedy, has arrived at Metegham, Digby County, N.S., after a 10 days' trip from here, in ballast. She will load lumber in that vicinity for Great Britain.

Prospero's Passengers.

S.S. Prospero arrived in port from the Westward this morning, bringing the following first-class passengers: Misses English (2), Bonnell, Chaffey, Matthews, Pippy, Gillingham, Hawkins; Mesdames Pippy, Green, Dyatt, Dyke, Martin, LeFeuvre, Boley; Messrs. Torsey, Bennet, Burks, Sullivan, Capt. White, Hadson, LeFeuvre, Const. Hibbard, Const. Stapleton and 25 steerage.

Young-Adams Co.

Offer An Elaborate Production.
The Young-Adams Company offer to-night and to-morrow night one of the most elaborate productions ever seen in St. John's, namely, "Her Great Temptation." This is a story of surpassing interest of a young Englishman, Walter Lawrence, who is visiting America for the benefit of his health, and falls in love with a pretty American girl, Miss Montrose, who is possessed with unlimited abilities. The couple are, however, secretly married. Upon receipt of a cablegram from his native country informing him of his father's serious illness, he has to return home, and through an attack of fever he becomes blind, whilst his wife unable to trace him follows. Depending on her musical talents, she at last becomes a noted operatic star, and whilst singing in Paris at a social function, finds her former husband. Of course a happy ending follows and they return to America. Miss Adams will be seen in the title role and will be seen in some charming gowns. At to-night's performance, His Excellency the Governor, Sir C. Alexander Harris, K.C. M.G., will be present. On Wednesday the company will repeat, by special request, "East Lynne," the great emotional drama that proved such a hit two weeks ago.

Sacred Concert.

The joint choirs held a successful practice last night. Those present said they never heard anything like the choruses in St. John's before. The soloists are Messrs. King and Christian, with Hr. Hutton as director. The soloists are Mesdames King, H. D. Reid, (making her debut) W. R. Warren, C. J. Cahill, G. Christian; Misses Ryan, Brown, Russell, Howlett, Brophy; Messrs. P. J. McCarthy, C. Trappell, S. W. Cornick, Fred Cornick, F. Bradshaw, D. Hinchell, and R. Sullivan. We are informed that much as it is desired, it is not possible to have a repetition of the performance.

NOTICE.—The Senior Members of the Mission Band of George St. Church, assisted by the Auxiliary, will hold a Sale of Work, Tea and Concert in the Sunday School Room on Wednesday, 28th. Admission 10 cts. Tea served at 6 o'clock, 50c. Admission after tea, 25c.—ap23.26

WHOLESALE EXPULSIONS.

NEW YORK, April 26.
More than two thousand local railroad workers were expelled Sunday from the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen for the part they have taken in the unauthorized strike in this district, and according to Edward McHugh, Chairman of the Strikers' Executive Committee, the charters of nine local unions were revoked.

RETROGRESSION.

VIENNA, April 26.
Austria is suffering from a stamp famine, due to a paper shortage and the activity of collectors, and the Government may resort to the old custom of having mail prepaid and forwarding it without stamps.

CIVIL WAR IN MEXICO.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 26.
Fighting between Revolutionary troops and the supporters of the Carranza Government has begun on the threshold of Mexico City, in the Adujo Mountain, according to private advices received yesterday by General Alvarado, agent of the Sonora Government here. No details of the engagement are given.

CLOSES TO-NIGHT.

PARIS, April 26.
The San Remo conference will close to-night, according to Havas Dispatch. Premier Millerand and Marshal Foch and the Japanese and Greek delegations will leave for Paris by a special train Tuesday morning. The Italian Premier will leave for Rome on Wednesday by sea.

PERILOUS RESCUE.

HALIFAX, April 26.
In thick weather early to-day, the schooner Attainment from St. John's Newfoundland for Paroboro, to load deals, ran ashore at Bear Cove, Digby, and will probably be a total loss. A heavy sea was running and boats from shore could not be launched. A cable was sent ashore and a basket rigged up, in which Captain Sheppard, his wife and seven of the crew were landed safely. The vessel is expected to go to pieces.

FRENCH DISASTER REPORTED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 25.
Five hundred French troops are reported to have been wiped out in the evacuation of Urfa, in the northwest part of Mesopotamia, but details are lacking.

GOMPERS SIZES UP SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, April 25.
Sweeping charges that the present Congress has failed the American nation, with "completeness and abandon" are made by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, in the current issue of the American Federationist. "America must get rid of its Veto Congress, and elect an action Congress," he says. "The 'no' Congress must give place to a 'yes' Congress." The labor leader asserts that Congress has failed on the Peace Treaty, with reconstruction and the cost of living, and that it also has "failed us in intelligent comprehension of every great question affecting the lives and welfare of our people." Also, says Mr. Gompers, "America cannot play for ever the part of a peevish child in international relations. The affairs of the world are the concern of the United States."

WHOLE FAMILY MURDERED.

TURTLE LAKE, N.D., April 25.
Eight persons were found dead yesterday at the farm home of Jacob Wolf, three miles north of here being victims of a mysterious tragedy. The dead are Jacob Wolf and his wife, their five daughters and Jake Hofer, who was employed on the farm. Only one member of the family escaped, Emma, a baby eight months old. Indications are that the murder was committed in the kitchen of the Wolf home, and that the weapon used was a hatchet. The bodies of the mother, three daughters and the hired boy were thrown into the cellar by the slayer or slayers, and those of the father and two daughters were put in the cowshed and barn, and covered with hay.

FIVE POWERS REACH AGREEMENT.

SAN REMO, April 25.
An agreement between Premiers Millerand and Lloyd George, regarding Germany, was presented to the Supreme Council late this afternoon, and will form the basis of a very stiff note to Germany, which will be ready for signature to-morrow by Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Belgium.

HUNGER STRIKING POPULAR.

LONDON, April 26.
Among the 160 Irish prisoners in Wormwood Scrubs Prison, a large number have been on hunger strikes since yesterday, as a protest against their detention without charge or trial. One of the men was released unconditionally on Friday night, in a state of collapse.

CANTING HYPOCRISY.

BERLIN, April 26.
A vote of thanks to former Emperor William as "the last temporal head of the Protestant State Church," was given at the closing session of the annual general synod. The synod also paid a tribute to the former monarch and his Consort, for having "in many ways testified to their practical Christian spirit by works of love towards their brethren."

Attempted Suicide.

MAN SLASHES THROAT WITH RAZOR.

This morning John Brasil, owner and master of the schooner Alice C., attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. It appears that the man had recently purchased the vessel for $1,500 and had to put her on dock for repairs, which cost him $500, but after coming off, it was found that the vessel needed a new mainmast and some extra rigging. The worry of these un-looked-for expenses played on his mind, and for the past couple of days he was noticed to be not normal. The schooner was hauled to Steer Bros. which the unfortunate man went to his cabin, being there only a few minutes when his son heard cries. Rushing down he saw what had been done, so he quickly called for assistance. Dr. Murphy was on the scene in a short while, made an examination and found that the man's wound was not serious. He ordered him to hospital, where he was conveyed in the ambulance.

Re-Establishment Committee Meeting.

At last week's meeting of the Civil Re-establishment Committee, 28 cases were considered; 23 applications for courses in general education and motor engineering granted, and 8 extensions to vocational training allowed. Hon. Justice Kent presided, and in attendance were H. E. Cowan, Esq., Dr. V. P. Burke, Rev. Dr. Curtis, Major W. H. Parsons, M.C., Major B. Butler, D.S.O., M.C., Dr. W. W. Blackall, B.A., Vocational Officer, Lieut.-Col. W. F. Rendell, C.B.E., and by invitation, Lieut.-Col. Geo. Carly, Capt. Leo Murphy, Capt. J. B. O'Reilly, Capt. G. Whitty, M.C., and Capt. Gerald Byrne, M.C., Secretary to the Committee.

Miss Evelyn Smith, of the Department of War Aides, Ottawa, was also present by invitation, and gave a very interesting outline of occupational training for veterans who are receiving treatment in the military hospitals, displaying a number of samples of the work done in the Canadian institutions by disabled men. Miss Smith has already visited Jensen Camp, Escason, and the General Hospital, and the organization of the local training will be taken up at once and it is felt will result successfully. A special sub-committee, comprising Hon. J. M. Kent, Dr. Parsons and Dr. Blackall, was appointed to be known as "The War Aides Committee" to inspect the progress of the training at regular intervals.

A sub-committee, consisting of Hon. A. Campbell, chairman; A. J. Bayley, secretary; H. E. Cowan, of Brookfield, H. R. Cook and Lieut. Col. G. T. Carly, to consider the qualifications of applicants under the Land Settlement Scheme, will meet every Wednesday and Saturday at 11 a.m., to go into the individual merits of each case. Fifty-two applications under the Agricultural scheme have been received to date.

The Vocational Officer announced that arrangements had been made whereby Lieut. Curtis would lecture each morning to the Students of the Engineering School on "Shop Mechanics and Elementary Science," and Lieut. Lloyd Woods in the afternoon on the "Internal Combustion Engine."

The reading of correspondence, minutes, etc., terminated a very busy session. Major B. Butler, D.S.O., M.C., who had been acting as Deputy Vocational Officer, leaves to-day for Scotland, and will be absent about two months.

NOTE OF THANKS.—The members of the C. E. I. Athletic Association desire to tender their sincere thanks to the ladies whose whole-hearted efforts contributed so much towards making the recent affair such a brilliant success. Many of the members have been showered with congratulations on the way the arrangements were carried out, and they all feel conscious that the results were due almost entirely to the industry and enthusiasm displayed by the ladies who so kindly gave their assistance. The Association also desire to thank all those who gave donations, and those who helped in various other ways.—adv.

Shannahan & Tucker Visit Delaney.

Delaney having an attack of the Mumps, we went up last night to see him. He looked grand, Delaney did as he lay nice and cozy in bed, covered with a quilt patterned of red and white diamonds. Delaney looked ashamed as myself and Tucker entered the room. Most people are ashamed to have the Mumps. "First time I've been 'laid up' in twenty years, says Delaney, and if anybody asks you what's wrong with me, tell 'em I fell from a Royal Yard or something like that. Don't let those Reporters know I have the Mumps or they'll be sticking it in the papers. Why not do as all the grand folks do, says Tucker and say that "you are confined to your room suffering from a severe cold." That's kind o' getting played out, says Delaney, like the Bride "leaning on the arm of her father." I'd just as soon that ye'd say I have the Mumps. Anyway boys what's the news down town. Have they started in excavating for the Poor Men's House yet, or anything like that. Oh not yet, says Tucker, but they are starting out to promise them again, and that's better than nothing at all. "Hope springs eternal in the human heart," says Delaney and 'tis a darn good thing it does spring. Without hope this would be a dismal old planet to be kicking about on. Anyway, says Delaney, these houses will be good when we get 'em, and the longer we are without 'em the longer they'll last.

The "Cute Man" came in sideways as we were talking carrying a parcel which he passed to Delaney. Drink that, says the "Cute Man" and you'll be as frisky as a kitten in less than no time. Delaney took the wrapping from the parcel and revealed a bottle of Tanlac. Oh Tanlac, says Delaney, this is the stuff I read so much about in the papers. Yes Tanlac, says the Cute Man, why Sylvester Doubtney was on his last ones and after partaking, yes partaking, that's the word, after partaking of seventeen bottles he got so sprightly that he ran around Kitty Vitty Pond four times, and would have run around it the fifth time only a big crowd gathered and were about to ring up Dr. Duncan, so he decided 'twas better to run home. When you're cured says the Cute Man, pointing to Delaney, we'll get your picture on the paper. That's the only way you know that a poor man like you can ever get your face in the papers. Talking about pictures, says Tucker, I often wonder why politicians have such a craze for putting their pictures in print. You wouldn't mind so much if we didn't know them so bloomingly well. Why we're sick and tired of looking at the same old faces in real life every day in the week. Oh! that's not done for home consumption, says the Cute Man, that's done just to show their friends in the States how fat they have grown since they entered Public Life, and to demonstrate what a healthy business it is to be engaged in—saving one's country. Delaney's sister came in and spoiled our interesting conversation by hinting that we were talking too much for Delaney's good, and we not wishing to kill Delaney bid him good night and expressed the wish that the bottle of Tanlac would speedily restore him to his former vigour.

Baseballers Meeting.

The St. John's Amateur Baseball League will hold their 8th Annual Meeting on to-morrow evening at the Board of Trade rooms. The finalization of last year's business and the election of officers, together with the presentation of the H. A. Allen Championship Cup to the Red Lions and the Mount Cashel Cup to the Cubs, will take place. As the C. E. Institute Association has made application for entrance, this year will see a 5 Club League. Young baseballers have been asking that a Junior League be formed, and it is understood that this matter will be taken up at the meeting. The meeting takes place at 8 o'clock, but the delegates and executive will meet a half hour earlier to prepare their reports.

St. Thomas's Women's Association will hold their Spring Sale in Canon Wood Hall Wednesday, April 28th. Plain and Fancy Work, Afternoon Serviettes, Handkerchiefs and Children's Clothing for sale; also Home Cookery, Candy, Refreshments and Afternoon and Six O'Clock Teas. Admission 10 cents.

The "New" Morality.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—There are insidious changes going on amongst us, and they are not for the better. We are enshrouding ourselves in the new morality founded on hypocrisy and fair outward appearance. This applies to the highest as well as the lowest, because those in authority say in effect "your greatest crime is in being caught. The text of your respectability and your good citizenship is in not being caught. We have no interest in that." And so, a deadly seriousness and simulation of righteousness pervades all ranks, and only the citizen who laughs or has a hearty greeting for his neighbor is suspected. It is the day of the detective, the spy, and the informer. These gentlemen are fattening on the dead carcasses of the people's manliness and the dirtier the work the more they thrive and are encouraged. All these men were once the people's servants; to-day they are their masters, their ignorance gluttled with official praise. Promotion, pay and half the fine will make men do deeds that make a mockery of the words "Liberty of the Citizen." No wonder then that there is growing such contempt for the law. It begins with contempt for some laws and soon grows into contempt for all laws. The only idea that is tacitly inculcated by this system is, "Be a successful hypocrite and clever enough not to be caught breaking the law and you will be respected." The system implied in the new morality makes most citizens follow out this motto. The best of men are driven to do so for their own protection. They feel mean in their souls and despise themselves for a time, for doing so; they invariably curse the system that is emasculating their manhood; but after a time they fall into line and wear the mask to the end. What kind of a generation then will we have in this city and country a few years hence? It is a people's own fault if they become slaves, and it is not yet too late to save ourselves from being ground down and overridden by too much over-zealous "police baton law." A few days ago a citizen was arrested in his bed because he had drunk liquor. It was done without a warrant. They have apparently grown stark crazy over this bottle business. To-morrow it may be your case or mine to have our homes invaded by those over-zealous "half-the-fine" men. It is gratifying to know that Judge Morris, in the District Court turned them down with a well-deserved rebuke, and it is a good thing to have a man like this standing between the so-called law and the people.

Yours truly,
LIBERTAS.

Care of Cemeteries.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I was very glad to read in the 'Daily News' last week a letter and an editorial comment, favorable to the idea of giving more attention to the care of our cemeteries and the graves therein. If you remember, I wrote several letters in your paper last year making as strong a plea as I could to induce the people concerned to give some attention to the General Protestant Cemetery in the West End of the city. It is in a disgraceful condition and requires a new fence as well as a thorough cleaning up of the walks and grave plots. The writer in the 'Daily News' on "God's Acre," makes a good suggestion in reference to people establishing a permanent fund in the bank, the interest of which will keep grave plots of those who can afford to devote $100 or $200 in this way, for ever. Only a very limited number of persons, however, can afford to do this and the majority will have to depend on the efforts of the parishioners through the cemetery committee in charge. I am of the same opinion about the General Protestant Cemetery as I was last year. They are doing nothing to improve conditions and if they would only realize that they are doing nothing and stand aside confessing their inertia and inability, this would be a hopeful move in the direction of getting others to do something, or at least make an attempt to do something. It fills my mind with shame and humiliation to see the West End Cemetery in this neglected condition, and what is hard for me as well as others, no doubt to understand, is how our many wealthy citizens whose dear ones rest in the sacred soil there, can view with indifference the disgraceful condition of the G. P. Cemetery. They can get enthusiastic over all kind of "drives" to raise money, but are content to allow the last resting place of those who made them what they are to-day in temporal wealth, continue to be a reproach and a by-word to all who pass that way. Encouraged by the writer in the 'Daily News' I again make an appeal to all who have relatives buried there. Let us get together and see if we cannot—now that the fine weather is at hand—put this cemetery in respectable condition. I believe it only needs that the people interested be called together to have the work done.

Yours truly,
BEREAVED PARENT.

The Woman Who Murdered For Love.

by JOHN LAURENCE, in Pearson's Weekly.

Mary Ann Burdock kept a lodging-house in Bristol.

It was not a very prosperous house, but it was all between her and starvation; and as she had no relatives in the world who cared a jot whether she starved or not, she made the best of the little income she made.

But Mary Burdock hoped some day that the right man would come along and relieve her of all future anxieties. Many of her lodgers were seamen, and many made love to the pretty landlady, but she refused them all, for she wanted a stay-at-home husband. She had dwelt too long in Bristol not to know the ways of sailors, and she was a firm believer in the truth of the saying that they had a girl in every port. Mary Burdock meant to be the only girl, and Bristol the only port.

Loved Her Lodger.

She had just turned thirty and was beginning to despair when who she thought was the right man turned up in the person of Charles Wade, a man who was starting a small lock-up shop in Bristol, and who was looking round for some comfortable place to lodge at, and where he could be well looked after.

Before many months were over Mary Burdock and her new lodger were on the friendliest of terms, and more than one neighbour slyly remarked that the two would soon be making a match of it.

Though the pretty landlady was madly in love with her lodger, the reverse was very much the case with Charles Wade. He had only one ambition, and that was to make money as rapidly as possible, so that he could retire and have a good time. His absorbing passion was money, in fact, and though at first he seemed attracted by the pretty landlady, it was only because he had the idea that she had a little nest-egg saved out of the lodgers she catered for.

"I can't afford to marry you, Mary, and that's the honest truth," he told her one evening when she had practically proposed to him. "The shop's only just paying, and if I want to make a success of it I shall have to get a little more capital from somewhere."

Corveted An Old Landlady's Riches.

Mary Burdock determined to scrow and scrape every penny she could in order to give it to the man with whom she was in love; but, try as she keeping for her relatives when they learnt of her death, and it was she who paid all the doctor's fees and even arranged and paid for the burial of the woman.

"She died very poor," she told the undertaker; "and I can't afford to pay for a very expensive coffin, but of course I can't let her be buried as a pauper."

Relatives Became Suspicious.

She appeared very anxious to have her lodger buried as soon as possible, giving as an excuse that it upset her other lodgers to have a dead body in the house. Accordingly, but a couple of days after the old lady had breathed her last in the presence of her landlady, she was buried in St. Augustine's churchyard at eight o'clock in the morning. The only mourner was Mary Burdock.

In a few weeks old Mrs. Smith was apparently forgotten by everybody, and certainly the neighbours of Mary Burdock were more interested in the story that the poor landlady of Bristol had been left a considerable sum of money by a distant uncle who had died suddenly.

Nothing definite was ever told her neighbors by the landlady, but that there appeared to be a certain amount of truth in the rumours was evident from two facts, one that Mary Burdock was spending money more freely than she had done in the past, and the other was that Charles Wade was extending his business.

The neighbours knew even better than the landlady that Charles Wade had a passion for money, and they were easily able to put two and two together. They knew, in fact, that it was merely a matter of time when Mary Burdock would be Mary Wade.

But that time never came. A bare six months after the death of Mrs. Smith, Charles Wade died suddenly, and this time the pretty Bristol landlady really was overwhelmed with grief. Her grief was none the less genuine because her lover had made a will bearing all he had invested in his little business—some £700—to her.

Mary Burdock was slowly recovering from the shock of her lover's death, and had almost forgotten that of her lodger, Mrs. Smith, now nearing its first anniversary, when a Mr. Read arrived in Bristol to make inquiries about the old widow.

"Oh, she died nearly a year ago!" replied Mary Burdock in answer to his question.

"Didn't she leave any papers behind?" asked Mr. Read.

"Oh, yes!" replied the landlady. "But I burnt them, because I thought they weren't of any value. She seemed to have no money, and I didn't know the address of any of her relatives or I would have sent for them."

The Body is Exhumed.

Mr. Read couldn't understand Mrs. Smith's dying in poverty, because he knew that she had been paid close on a thousand pounds three years before, and had in addition a small annuity which would save her drawing any great extent on any cash she had. She ought to have died, in fact, worth eight or nine hundred pounds at least.

After Mrs. Smith's relatives had heard Mr. Read's report they decided to investigate further, for they were not satisfied by the absolute absence of any money, and the more they inquired the more they began to feel that the landlady of their late relative had had at any rate the handling of some of the money.

It was a significant coincidence, at least, that Mary Burdock had blossomed from poverty to comparative riches so soon after the death of her lodger. It was curious too that Charles Wade, who was known to be in a bad way, should die and leave over £700 worth of property.

They obtained an order for the exhumation of the body of Mrs. Smith, and had it examined by four of the most eminent doctors in Bristol. The body was in a wonderful state of preservation, and the doctors, after a careful examination, said that the dead woman had died from arsenical poisoning.

It is a well-known fact that arsenic preserves human remains instead of destroying, and Mary Burdock had chosen the one poison which could be detected in the body years after death. It was such a long time after the death of her lodger, in fact, that she felt quite secure, and she appeared absolutely astonished when she was arrested.

"I'd never do such a thing!" she cried; and then added, "and no one could ever prove it against me now."

The Servant's Fatal Evidence.

But once the police hit upon the trail leading to a crime it is very remarkable how clues accumulate which were absolutely hidden before. A seaman named Evans, who had lodged with the Bristol landlady for a few days, came forward and related that a short time before Mrs. Smith's death he had bought some arsenic for the landlady in order to destroy rats. Lodgers who were in the house at the time and a young servant asserted that they had never seen rats in the place.

This young servant also told the police a damning tale. She swore she had seen her mistress put some powder into Mrs. Smith's food, and when the latter died her mistress had warned ed her to say nothing about it to anybody.

"I gave it to her to make her well, and it hasn't succeeded. If people get to hear of it we should both get into trouble and you would be blamed as much as I would," she had said.

The servant was too terrified to say anything, and it was not till the police had arrested her mistress that she came forward. In the face of this and other evidence Mary Ann Burdock was duly found "Guilty" of being a heartless poisoner.

Our American Letter.

YUMA, Arizona, April 11.

One of the wonders of the American continent is the Apache Trail which winds through desert and mountain canyon and over precipices which rise sheer for a mile from the plains below. The curving mountain road enters a veritable region of romance and mystery. The strange buttes and gigantic masses with their wonderful coloring at once appeal to the eye of the traveller. Surely only on the moon itself can be found vegetation and landscape like that which is opened up by the Apache Trail. Cliff dwellings, in ruins when Ptolemy was born, appear here and there and the mind is filled with wonder at the ingenuity of the strange people who built these homes on the face of the inaccessible cliffs. The sky takes on curious tints as we follow the trail of the blood-thirsty savages who made Arizona a scene of bloodshed and massacre not so long ago. Who does not recall the exploits of Geronimo the chief of the red demons whose warriors scalped and murdered men, women and children, until General Miles and his cavalrymen effected his capture. Napoleon was once heard to say "Where a goat can set his foot, an army can pass!" Had he taken his troops through this crooked trail, he might not have thought his maxim altogether infallible.

ROMANCE AND LEGEND.

Since the earliest days, men have traversed this route and because of this fact the region abounds in historical association and legendary lore. If we could marshal the hosts of picturesque people who travelled this route for a romantic procession we should witness a scene more colorful than any could not be imagined. Beginning with the Spaniards who came in search of gold and jewels, which they imagined were contained in the seven fabulous cities, and ending with the cowboys and the red shirted pioneers of later years, it would be a motley parade of romance and legend that would be unfolded before our startled vision. Here came the gallant conquistadores of Vasquez de Coronado, their armor glistening in the sun, on their quest of the treasures of the Aztecs. Following in a more humble manner came the no less stout hearted missionaries of old Spain who were also searching for treasure, the treasure of the immortal soul. Jesuits and Franciscans, in black and brown robes, battled in this strange land for the souls of the pagans and oftentimes gave up their lives when the savages turned against them. Then in later years came the American pioneer, the hardy prospector and the dashing cavalrymen to found an empire in these wilds and do battle with the fiercest savages the world has ever known—the Apaches.

A BRAVE STAND.

It seems strange to the visitor here in this land of wonders that it was once the scene of turmoil and bloodshed. Here in a secluded part of the winding pass an entire company of American soldiers were massacred and scalped by the red demons who poured down upon them in overwhelming numbers. It is said of them, however, that for every American life taken, the soldiers killed twenty Apaches before their ammunition became exhausted and death was inevitable. The Apaches, strange to say, regarded this country as the abode of the Evil One and actually indulged in devil worship, accompanied by the most awful ceremonies known to any people. Yet when cries were heard from the top of Superstition Mountain their very blood ran cold. The last remnant of these brutal demons is now engaged in peaceful pursuits on a reservation near Globe. Geronimo died some years ago, shortly after his capture by General Miles' troops, after slaying perhaps more white persons than any one individual since the days of the professional bravo. More anon.

What causes Indigestion

An excess of acid in the stomach sours the food and starts fermentation. Distressing gases form. Your meals don't digest but lay like lumps of lead. Then you have heartburn, flatulence, fullness, belching, headache, and real misery in the stomach and intestines.

A few tablets of "Pape's Diapepsin" bring relief almost as soon as they reach the stomach. "Pape's Diapepsin" costs little at drug stores.

Produce and Provisions.

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)
CODFISH.—The exports from Nfld. for the week just closed amounted to 23,776 quintals; 13,218 from St. John's, and 15,558 quintals from the Outports. (Lamaline and Harbor Breton), all of the latter going to Oporto. Of the St. John's shipments, 11,793 quintals were sent to Pernambuco and 1425 quintals to Liverpool. April 18th, Cable from Oporto said that there were 55,715 quintals of Nfld. fish there, and the week's consumption was 5,200 quintals. This is a marked improvement. The other European markets are taking very little of ours just now, but Brazil is in a fair condition and will probably absorb the greater portion of what is now left of 1919 catch of Nfld.

COD OIL.—This week 13,762 gallons of Common oil were shipped from St. John's all to Liverpool. The market for this quality on both sides of the Atlantic is quite satisfactory, when as high as $310 per ton is paid in St. John's as was the case this week. Of Cod Liver Oil 2,577 gallons were sent out since our last issue. The total left of this quality in Nfld. of 1919 product is now down to less than 10,000 gallons—a very small lot for this time of the year. The local quotation is $2 per gallon. The demand is dull and 1920 product is likely to be lower.

LOBSTERS.—There are now only 675 cases of last year's Lobsters unsold, 275 in New York and 500 in Newfoundland. The market will be clean by the end of May. The price holds at $30 per case in the St. John's market and this will be about the opening price for new catch. The season will open on the 26th inst. in Placentia Bay, and two weeks later on the East Coast. The Fishery should be good this season as Nfld. had practically a close season the past three years. Reports from Notre Dame Bay in particular, says that Lobsters are very plentiful there where the lobster fishery has been abandoned since 1915.

PORK.—A dull feeling still pervades the pork market, and purchases of Spring supplies are being made reluctantly by the St. John's importers. There is a feeling that the indications all point to lower prices. Reports sent here by Cable from Chicago from day to day all continue to show a gradual decline in the Pork market.

The Trade realizes, however, that they must have pork in time for Spring fishery supplies, and even if lower prices are probable they deem it preferable to meet the loss than to be without sufficient Pork to meet the fishery demand. Those who so vehemently denounce wholesale profiteers would do well to note this. Ham Butt to-day is $57.50 to arrive, Mess and Fat Back $49, per barrel.

BEEF.—Local situation is the same as it was last week. In the U. S. market there has been a slight stiffening from the low quotations noted a week ago. It must be remembered that Beef at the present time costs about half the price of Pork, consequently it is only reasonable to believe that it has already gone down to a point which precludes the possibility of a much further decline. In fact when we survey the general list of food stuffs to-day we must concede that Beef is comparatively cheap at present prices. Libby's special Family is $28, Boss Flank, $37, and Boneless, $32 to $35 per barrel, according to quality, and Regular Flats is $25.

FLOUR.—Market is unchanged and we are not likely to see lower flour here the coming Summer. The United States Report issued last week confirms the shortage of the crop of the Winter Wheat. Last year 151 million bushels were harvested. This year the total is only 485 millions, such a big deficit is bound to influence the market. Every possible effort is being made to increase the Spring wheat harvest, but so far the weather has been impossible. Local price of leading brands is $16.75 wholesale, other grades $15.50 to 16.50 per barrel.

SUGAR.—No change in the local market. The week's sales by Importers have been made at 21c. per pound for large quantities. There is not much in town, but the S. S. "Edmund Donald" is bringing a fair consignment, and the market will be kept going for Spring trade. There is, however, a scarcity impending for the Summer months, and the price will probably be 25c. per pound, wholesale. Crop exports from Cuba show that there will be a shortage of 500,000 tons from earlier predictions, and this is the chief factor in the recent stiffening of prices. In view then, of the impending scarcity here later in the season, it would be well for the people to turn their attention to Molasses, which sooner or later will have to be substituted.

MOLASSES.—Prices follow sugar, and in addition there is the sterling exchange on which Barbados molasses is based, contributing to add about 10 per cent. to the cost. The Village Belle and Norma B. Strong arrived this week from Barbados with the first cargoes of new molasses. Since her arrival the wholesale prices have been set as follows: $1.75 per gallon for Fancy in the puncheon, and $1.70 for Choice. The cargo of the Norma B. Strong is 306 puncheons and 74 barrels, and of the Village Belle 130 puncheons and 93 barrels.

POTATOES.—"Not a potato to be had in town," is the way that one of our large dealers characterized the situation to the Trade Review yesterday. P. E. potatoes to arrive next month will be $5.50 per half sack or $11 per barrel of 180 lbs. Charlotte town is flooded with buyers from Boston, New York, and as far South as Texas, and the excitement consequent on competitive demand has put prices up to this unprecedented level. The situation is made worse by the fact that the P.E.I. crop last year was a short one. It is predicted that much higher prices will have to be paid before the new crop is available. There are no home grown, worth while offerings. Farmers say they want all they have for seed.

Household Notes.

To restore the original whiteness to Ivory articles which have turned yellow, rub with a flannel moistened with turpentine.

In frying cooked cornmeal, add a little flour to hold meal together, and a little sugar to make mush brown more quickly.

A delicious drink is made by heating up an egg in a glass, adding the juice of an orange and two tablespoons maple sugar.

While roasting pork, slit it now and then and insert pieces of tart apple. The apple cuts the grease and makes the gravy delicious.

If a creamed soup scorches, add a teaspoon of peanut butter, and the burned taste will not be noticed, while a pleasant flavor will be added.

Grapefruit cocktail is made with one grapefruit, one tangerine, three tablespoons shredded cocoanut and three tablespoons maple syrup.

To clean soiled or discolored white enamel furniture, dissolve one tablespoon soda in one quart boiling water, and cool. Use with flannel cloth.

Maple frosting is made by boiling two cups maple syrup until it threads and adding slowly to stiffly beaten white of one egg. Beat until cool enough to spread.

Fishermen!

Here's the Boot for You!

Excel Boots

Have Pliable Uppers. Weather Proof and Weather Resisting. Tire-Tread Soles. Hard to Wear Out.

For Men and Boys.

Pliable Uppers, Weatherproof and Wear-Resisting, Tough Tire-Tread Soles. Hard to wear out.

You know from experience what happens to ordinary boots when used in fishing. You've seen how salt water seems to take the life out of the rubber and how the rubbers crack and the soles wear through in a surprisingly short time.

The "EXCEL" is a different and better kind of boot. It has been made especially to stand up under the unusually hard use a fisherman's boot gets.

The rubber and fabric in "EXCEL" boots are of the very highest quality. But it is the special method of curing, under tremendous pressure, that makes the "EXCEL" so wear-resisting. The pressure forces the layers of rubber and fabric together so that they are actually "one-piece", without losing the least bit of the life of resiliency of the rubber. Salt water has practically no effect on "EXCEL" boots. The UPPERS remain pliable and weatherproof, and resist the drying-out action of sun, heat and cold far longer than other boots, consequently they don't crack anywhere so quickly. The SOLES are almost wear-proof, because they are made like an Auto Tire, with 8 plies of rubber and fabric welded by tremendous pressure into a "tire-tread" sole that rivals an automobile tire for toughness and durability.

These are exclusive features of "EXCEL" boots.

The picture at the left, of an "EXCEL" boot, with every detail of construction visible, shows how "EXCEL" boots are reinforced at every point of strain. There is not a single feature but what has been proved necessary and desirable by tests of severest use. Your own experience will tell you that a boot with these features simply must be a better boot.

Study this picture. Learn these features. Remember them when you compare "EXCEL" boots with ordinary boots. And remember, too, that very important point which the picture cannot show, namely, that "EXCEL" boots are cured under tremendous pressure which leaves the rubber pliable, weather-proof, and wear-resisting. It is only by the use of this tremendous pressure combined with highest quality materials that the best results are obtained.

Below are listed seven special features which make "EXCEL" boots superior. Read them carefully so that when you need boots you will know how to get the best value for your money.

Seven Special Features that make the "Excel" Best.

FEATURE No. 1.—The entire boot is cured under heavy pressure, forcing all parts together in "one-piece", and retaining the full life and resiliency of the rubber.

FEATURE No. 2.—An 8-ply double sole of tough, durable rubber, made like an Auto Tire, running all the way under the full moulded heel. This sole and heel are so wear-resisting that they are commonly called the "tough on rocks" sole and heel.

FEATURE No. 3.—A heavily reinforced boot which will withstand the hardest kind of wear.

Most reliable dealers sell "EXCEL" boots. Be sure to look for the name "EXCEL". Substitutes and "just as good" boots will not give you "EXCEL" service. If your dealer does not have them in stock, write us for name of nearest dealer.

FEATURE No. 4.—Six plies at the instep relieves strain and prevents wrinkling or cracking.

FEATURE No. 5.—Reinforced five-ply leg for extra wear. Just the right amount of strength to stand up, yet not be uncomfortable.

FEATURE No. 6.—Four-ply top, very pliable.

FEATURE No. 7.—Heavy duck lining, and a heavy insole prevent dampness and keep feet dry and comfortable.

MONTREAL DRUGGIST COMES OUT WITH THE FACTS ABOUT TANLAC.

"We Never Had A Medicine In The Store That Gave Such Satisfaction," He Declares.

SAW OTHERS RESTORED, THEN TOOK IT HIMSELF.

Quickly Overcome His Own Troubles After Everything Else Had Failed To Bring Relief.

"After my personal experience with the medicine, I do not hesitate to say that Tanlac is the finest tonic and system purifier that was ever had over a druggist's counter," was the very remarkable statement made by Alphonse LeCavalier, druggist at Dr. LeDuc's drug store, 1658 St. Catherine St. East, Montreal, recently.

"I had acute indigestion for the last three years, and could find nothing to relieve me. After every meal I used to feel as though I had swallowed some hard substance. The gas would form so as to nearly suffocate me and cause my heart to palpitate. I had no appetite whatever and my food seemed to have no favour. The distress caused by indigestion was especially bad at night, and hindered me from sleeping. I was fidgety and nervous, and when at last I did drop off to sleep, I would have the most frightful nightmare, and wake up with a start to find myself in a bath of perspiration. My complexion was very sallow, and I got so weak that I felt as though I must give up altogether and go to bed. In fact I was in a complete state of nervous prostration and exhaustion.

"We never had a medicine in the store that sold like Tanlac, or that gave such general satisfaction. So many people who bought it told me that they had been benefited by it, that I decided to try it myself. The result exceeded all my expectations for Tanlac did more for me than any other medicine I ever tried. I now have a splendid appetite and my digestion is perfect. I have the most refreshing sleep at night, undisturbed by nightmare. My complexion is fine and healthy. I have gained several pounds in weight, and feel as well and strong as can be. After this I shall take special pleasure in recommending Tanlac, for I now know from personal experience what it will do."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv.

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

There have been a few packages of 1919 pack in the market, the price being $24. More is expected, still it is problematical as to when it will arrive. The winter has been a particularly severe one and many of the vessels have not yet been freed from the ice which has been holding them prisoner since the close of the herring season. It will probably be June before there is fish here in quantities and even then the pack will be considerably smaller than in 1918. The high price for the pack of that year was $20 and there is still some to be had, in fact dealers say that there is considerably more than enough and that it can be bought in the neighbourhood of $11 to $12 for good stock. Poor fish do not make a market, still it is well to bear in mind that some of the 1918 pack was moved at ridiculously low prices. Good fish would have brought more money.—N.Y. Fishing Gazette—April.

I. O. O. F. Celebrate 101st Anniversary.

Throughout the world, wherever there are Lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, they will today, April 26th, celebrate the 101st anniversary of the foundation of this fraternal and benevolent organization. Five men founded the first Lodge in Baltimore, Maryland, April 26th, 1819. To-day this world-wide fraternity can boast of two and a half millions of membership, those members joining this great Order not through high-paid organizers to boost them, but by and through the hearty co-operation and splendid spirit shown by each individual member. Yesterday (Sunday), all Lodges of the Order, in St. John's, acting under an annual proclamation issued by the Sovereign Grand Lodge, that a form of Divine Service, should be held to commemorate the 101st anniversary, attended Divine Service at St. Mary's Church, Southside, Rev. A. B. S. Stirling being the officiating clergyman. The reverend gentleman treated the members to an address and sermon, which every member of the Order should have heard, delivered in a free and easy conversational manner, the subject being "Fraternalism" and the Brotherhood of Man. Members sat motionless as the preacher spoke of educational matters in this Dominion. The Society returned to the hall via Water Street, where in the absence of the District Deputy, Bro. J. C. Phillips, who was slightly injured in the recent train accident, Bro. Geo. Grimes, Past District Deputy Grand Master, acted as chairman. Bro. Grimes made a most masterly speech, and extended greetings and a hearty welcome to all, and especially so, for the excellent turnout, he also extending a hearty welcome to Bros. Young and Carew, of the Young-Adams Co., who joined with us in the Church service. After the usual resolutions had been passed to the Pastor, Choir and Officials of St. Mary's Church, the Chairman extended a welcome to the male members of the Young-Adams Co. to be present at the Smoker and concert to be held to-night in the hall. Space will not permit to detail the items of the programme, but the male portion of the Young-Adams Co. will be there after their performance at the Casino, and take part in the proceedings, and we would urge every member of the I.O.O.F., visiting or otherwise to attend, as preparations have been finalized to make this celebration of the 101st anniversary, a record one for Odd Fellows in Newfoundland.—W.G.

C.M.B.S. Meeting.

The Cathedral Men's Bible Class met in the Synod Building yesterday afternoon at the usual hour and was well attended. After the opening address, the chairman referred to the Harbour and Wharf Mission work that for the past twenty years or more has been so vigorously prosecuted by volunteer members of the Class. This work will re-open on Sunday next at 8 a.m. with a celebration of the Holy Communion at the Cathedral. After the service the Messrs. Bowring Bros., where the launching of the boat will take place. As the boat is entirely new, the meeting at the wharf this year will be of additional interest, inasmuch as it will include the naming of the boat and dedication to the service of Almighty God. A new feature of the work this season is the association of the Class with the great Society known throughout the world as The Mission to Seamen. Up till last year the Class had carried on this work quite independently, but owing to the increase of trade with foreign countries it is now felt that much better work can be done by joining with the larger Society.

The next meeting of the class will take place in the Synod Building on Sunday next, when the address will deal with the Missionary work of the Church, and the offering will be given to the fund for the support of our own Missionary in China—Rev. Ives Stocker.

Big Sale Next Week.

Preparations are now under way for one of the largest Sales of Ready-to-Wear for Ladies, Gent's and Boys that has ever been attempted in St. John's. We understand that $80,000.00 worth of Merchandise is to be offered at forced Sale Prices to the public of St. John's and other places. Sale to last for fourteen days, to begin Tuesday morning next. We understand that this Sale will be of the sort that the Americans take advantage of, to select their wearing apparel for their different seasons. A Sale where you get 200 per cent. for every dollar you spend. Why? Because it is a forced Sale. New merchandise and bankrupt stocks have been purchased for little or nothing, and their quantities being so large that it has overstocked us, and in fact over-supplied our trade, that is at regular prices, therefore in order to bring our stock back to the normal standard we are forced to dispose of this gigantic over-supply by a two weeks' sale that will forever remain upon the minds of every purchaser at St. John's or elsewhere. Sale will begin Tuesday. Preparations are now going on in full force. A full page ad. will announce some prices that we will offer at this Sale Tuesday morning. LONDON, NEW YORK and PARIS ASSOC. OF FASHION.

A Fine Schooner.

Although the weather was so stormy during the past months of winter, which caused much annoyance to men working outside of sheds, yet Capt. Barry of Safe Harbor is making the progress with his schooner, Willie K. The vessel was taken down to the water line, throwing away all the bad timber, and now shipwrights have her all planked. Capt. Barry has 10 men working on the repairs, under Mr. Samuel Winsor of Wesleyville, as foreman and the work is rushing. It looks as if the Willie K. will be a real first-class schooner and ready for sea by middle of May.

Industrial Workers Discuss H. C. L.

At the monthly public meeting of the N.I.W.A. Friday night, the subject open for discussion was "The merchants' reply to the 'Longshoremen.'" The speakers were Messrs. T. C. Noel, chairman, Kirkland, Chipman, Tucker, Earle, Fagan and White, all of whom strongly resented the schedule presented by the merchants, particularly the section dealing with clothing as entirely inadequate. Mr. T. M. White took the opportunity to refute the imputation that the schedule was based on a scale drawn up by him. The latter submitted to the merchants in May, 1919, was taken from a copy of the Industrial Worker several weeks old, and was really intended to show how lacking that scale was for a working man and family though it took all his wages. It allowed no variety of food, covered only the bare necessities and permitted nothing for school fees and other demands. He read a copy of his letter to the merchants at the time and showed that inadequate wages to the father results in children being compelled to work when they should be at school. Young men too are not in position to marry because most of their earnings have to be pooled with the father's to provide for the younger children, and they have no chance to save. The schedule here is based on a family of four, while in Canada and the States the family is averaged at five. An increase in wages is generally followed by an advance in foodstuffs and those outside the union, or unable to organize are the sufferers. The laborer, whose case was mainly dealt with is, however, forced to make demands, who ever suffers, because of his conditions. Profits should be fixed and regulations made to severely punish those found guilty of fleeing the public. With the ad valorem system of duty and the percentage accruing from the excess profits tax, the Government is as great a profiteer as any one and will not move in the matter. The public should make a move as all are affected by the high cost of living, but as in most matters they are too pathetic. To any who raise their voice in favor of a living wage the motive of pay or politics is attributed. The rather small number present, though the meeting had been advertised as a public one, showed the apathy of the workmen in general. He thought the 'Longshoremen' should have taken opportunity to correct the figures submitted by the merchants, as many were wrong. As all are concerned in the cost of living question, he moved that the executive of the N. I. W. A. consult with the heads of the L. S. P. U., as to what action should be taken. This was seconded by Mr. Tucker and carried, supported by Mr. Earle, who hoped to see a public meeting called and some definite action taken.

B.I.S. A.A. Elects Officers

The B.I.S. Athletic Association held a meeting yesterday forenoon, at which it was decided to take part in baseball and football as usual this season. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—W. J. Higgins, K.C., Chairman; R. McGrath, Vice-Chairman; D. French, Secretary, and A. Doyle, Treasurer of the Association; Bert Channing, D. French, Brazie and A. Doyle, manager, captain and delegate, respectively of the baseball team, and J. G. Higgins, H. Phelan and J. P. Crotty, captain, vice-captain and delegate of the football team.

Old Comrades Arranging Excursion.

Arrangements are being made by the C.C.C. Old Comrades to hold an excursion to Placentia on the eve of the June holiday.

It is hoped that the dedication and unveiling of the monument to the soldiers and sailors of Placentia who made the supreme sacrifice will take place on that day, which will be the celebration of the King's Birthday. The many residents of the city who claim Placentia as their birthplace will no doubt avail of the excursion train, which will leave at 8 o'clock on the night previous to the holiday, if the dedication takes place on the general holiday in June.

PILES

Unfavorable Weather Hampers Fishery.

The weather on the West Coast for the past month has been very unfavorable, consequently nothing has been done by the fishermen. Last year at this date the catch for shore men was well above the average, and bankers had from 700 to 900 quintals. The fishermen are of opinion that cod is plentiful on the grounds, and that with fine weather there is every hope of picking up an average catch.

Cleans Thoroughly--Polishes Brilliantly

THE remarkable, beautiful effect obtained from the O-Cedar treatment, is due to the fact that O-Cedar "cleans as it polishes."

It is important that all dust and grime be removed from any surface, in order to give it that lustre which is something more than a mere surface polish.

This O-Cedar accomplishes. A few drops of O-Cedar on a wet cloth will form a soft lather that removes all scum and dust.

The final operation consists of a brisk rub with a dry cloth. The result is all that could be desired—a hard, dry lustre on furniture and floors; a dazzling radiance on your automobile.

Both O-Cedar Polish and the O-Cedar Mop are obtainable at your Hardware or Grocery Store.

Both Polish and Mop at your Hardware or Grocery Shop.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DYPHTEIRIA.

House of Assembly.

Mr. Walsh resumed his speech after the House met at 8 o'clock Friday evening, and said the reference in the Speech that Rev. (Major) Nangle was engaged in the task of looking after the concentration and registration of our dead soldiers gave him great pleasure and a debt of gratitude was due Hon. Mr. Coaker who had taken up the matter of the purchase of the sacred ground of Beaumont Hamel, where so many Newfoundlanders laid down their lives on July 1st, 1916. He regretted, however, that the movement that it be paid for by public subscription had not met with a full measure of response. He felt this was not due to indifference. If the matter was properly brought to the doors of our people they would be only too willing to subscribe. The paragraph dealing with the revenue for the fiscal year closed was a tribute to the integrity and ability of the late Finance Minister, Sir M. P. Cashin, and he hoped that his successor, Hon. Mr. Brownrigg would be able to show the same good results at the close of his term. That the department of Marine and Fisheries was to be reorganized, should meet with general approval. In the capable hands of Hon. Mr. Coaker, good results should be hoped for. He had no doubt that the Minister would use his every endeavour to bring about a new order of things that was so essential if we are to hold our place in the world's markets. He regretted that no reference had been made as to aids to navigation. He looked to the present Minister to incorporate in his new policy an extension of lights and safeguards along our entire coast line. He need not dwell on the great loss of life yearly owing to the absence of lights and fog alarms along the coast; and now that Mr. Coaker who had so ably espoused the cause of the fishermen was firmly consolidated in the Marine Department, he felt confident that the neglects of many years and poor administrations would be attended to. He approved of the Government's policy of a survey of shipping, and hoped it would extend to our local coastal steamers. After reciting the Beverly case, Mr. Walsh referred to the utter neglect of boat drill on our local steamers, and stated that if "emergency required the launching of the life boats attached to these steamers they would not float twenty minutes, and that the life belts would help to sink a passenger instead of keeping him afloat. He would not question the wisdom or otherwise of the establishment of the department of Posts and Telegraphs. He was prepared to give the occupant of that department a chance to make good. With regard to transportation coastwise and inland he was prepared to assist the Government in any legislation that was brought forward to improve existing conditions. He was sorry to notice the absence of any reference to the reduction of taxation or profiteering in the speech, though in his manifesto Mr. Squires promised to reduce everything and deal with the grasping profiteer. These two items interested the whole people. It was true a Commission had been appointed to enquire into the H.C.L. but nothing has been accomplished. Profiteering was flourishing as never before, both in the City and Outports, and he hoped that Mr. Coaker who presided over one of the biggest business establishments in the country would see that a fair deal was given the people. Transportation of the sick poor was another matter that had no place in the Governor's speech. Present conditions were most deplorable. In many cases sick people having to drive from 80 to 100 miles in a baggage car to reach hospital here, their suffering during the journey in many cases hastening death. Further, no provision had been made for the erection of outport hospitals, though such promises had been made. With the erection of those hospitals, the sufferings of the sick poor complained of would not occur, and many lives would be saved. Mr. Walsh was prepared to give every support to any legislation that meant the uplift of the people and the country's advancement, and was willing to give the Government reasonable time in the matter, but he wished to serve timely notice, that if some of the suggestions made by him were not taken hold of his voice would be heard during this and subsequent sessions.

Mr. C. J. Fox (St. John's East) following, congratulated Lieut. Small and Sergt. LeGrow on the mastery way in which they had moved for an address in reply. It was a pleasure to see them in the House on opening day in uniform. Referring to the Speech from the Throne, he would say that it was a fair sample of methodical skill, finely worded and put together—altogether dissimilar from the Premier's manifesto. In connection with a permanent peace on earth and good will amongst warring nations, it is true that all our patience and all our sympathy will be required before we can realize them. The moral example should be set by these in authority, especially the leaders. Five weeks ago a certain thing had happened in this city—a Minister of the Crown was charged, under oath, with a serious crime, and the people waited patiently a month for an explanation. None forthcoming, they themselves took the matter in hand. It was not by such tactics that the people were to be cemented together and permanent peace brought about. Referring to what the Premier had characterized "The St. Patrick's Day affidavit," he was not concerned with the merits or demerits of the case, but in justice to all concerned a clean denial should have been made on the proper legal steps taken. Certain authorities in England had been wired in connection with the case, the House had been told. The reply from England had been that the English law did not apply to Newfoundland and that the charges, if correct, did not constitute a criminal offence under Newfoundland law. He had every confidence in the Minister of Justice, but was at a loss to understand why the ordinary machinery was not put in force. They had been told that His Excellency would appoint a Commission. For what? Not alone to enquire into the charges made against the Prime Minister, but as a grand inquisition to enquire into the deeds of past Ministers for the last 15 or 20 years, who are not concerned at all. The position, he said, was this: "Nothing had been done for a month. The criminality or non-criminality had nothing to do with the case, and the opinion of the eminent jurist referred to had no bearing on the matter. We had a judiciary of our own, and the proper course to pursue if a prima facie case had been established was to initiate proceedings here. In painting the other side of the shield Mr. Fox referred to the action against the sealers of the Terra Nova. The case against a number of men had been dismissed by the Magistrate of the Central District Court on Thursday, and on the same day another bunch of men were torn from the hearts of their families and lodged in jail. In this case the cables to England were not kept burning to find out if the English law applied or not. The Minister of Justice did not stop over night to enquire into the case. (Here Hon. Mr. Warren interjected, and asked if the speaker meant to infer that the Justice Department had anything to do with the matter). Mr. Fox replied, 'No, and properly so. But it looked as if there was one law for the rich and another for the poor. The sealers did not hold any affluent positions nor have friends in high office. If we were going to have an impartial distribution of justice all should be treated alike. If this kind of thing was to go on and all were not treated alike the pious sentiments and unctuous thought outlined in the Speech from the Throne were not worth the snap of his finger.

He fully endorsed the paragraph referring to the Labrador Boundary, and he was glad that there was to be an attempt at settlement. The great Labrador peninsula contains immense natural wealth. The Fishery Regulations were touched on. This matter should be separated from party bias. If the Government brought in any legislation that was conducive to the best interests of the country it would have his support.

As to that part of the speech dealing with Re-establishment, too much could not be done for the gallant men who went across. He hoped that the reference in the Speech was not ordinary sentiment ordinarily expressed, but that the Government would carry out its proposed policy and merit the lasting approval of the whole community. The section dealing with the war memorials was worthy of the Government. The work assigned by Rev. Major Nangle, he knew, was a labour of love. "Over there" these splendid Newfoundlanders had fought shoulder to shoulder. There was no class nor creed, nor color; but one determined desire to uphold the dignity of the Empire that our forefathers built up, and the honor of Newfoundland. Theirs should be an example to public men. And here he wished to touch on a matter that should be handled without gloves. He referred to the canker of sectarianism which was stalking throughout Newfoundland. When one stood on the floor of the Assembly he did not do so as a Protestant or a Catholic, but as a Newfoundlander. He should leave his religious views at home. Unfortunately the ugly monster sectarianism was running wildly through the country, and if not checked our prosperity would cease and one would be set against the other. It was his sad duty to say that since last November an insidious attempt had been made to separate our people—to put one sect against the other. Any man who attempted to prey upon the religious sentiments of a people was a scourge and a menace and should be driven out of public life. It was very easy to inflame the passions of an unthinking people, but not so easy to cure the fever. It was the conduct of a cur, whose only object was self. He did not wish to make any personal charges but that Nfld. should be peopled and governed by men who do not regard religion as sacred was a terrible reflection on our morality. Mr. Fox appealed to the House, to the Cabinet, to the press, to unite and save Newfoundland from dissension and disgrace.

Mr. Fox referred to the terrible conditions under which the crews of sealing ships had to work and live. He unmercifully scored those who were responsible—not only the owners but the public men who permitted it. He paid a high tribute to Dr. Robinson, the late Postmaster General, whom he characterized a "highly educational, cultured gentleman." At 11.15 he concluded a magnificent speech and sat down amidst the warm applause of both sides of the House.

Sir John Crosbie then moved the adjournment of the debate.

Several bills were read a second time. The Prime Minister informed Sir Michael Cashin that the coastal boat bought from the Admiralty cost £15,000 sterling, outfitting not included.

The House adjourned until Monday at 3 o'clock.
