ISLAND SOLD AFTER BLECTO

Peculiar Deal Put Through by Late Government in Dying Days-Involves Control of Great Water Power

HON. WM. HARTY SUPPOSED TO BENEFIT

New Minister of Public Works Orders Suspension of the Transaction Until After His Return to Department

OTTAWA, Oct. 11 .- Victoria island,

close to Chats falls in the Ottawa river, thirty miles from Ottawa, has been Thereby is said to hang a tale which is a sequel to the story of Hon. William Harty's control of a part of the enormous water power at the Chats. The islands which give him this partial control were alienated years ago by the province of Ontario during the Liberal regime. They have since then very greatly increased in value. The falls are situated immediately above Fitzroy harbor, and extend from Island to island across the river. The city of Ottawa has had an eye on this power but the party control was found insufficient to back it. Victoria island has been counted upon as the key to the power situation. It belonged to the crown. Mr. Hardy is said to want the island in order to tighten his grip. Negotiations were opened with the department of public works for the sale of the island to Mr. D. O'Connor of Ottawa. The O'Connor-Hardy connection was not revealed, if any. The proposal was considered by the Liberal government ofter the election, and the island sold to Mr. O'Connor, fourteen acres, at $100 an acre. The recommendation to the Liberal cabinet has not yet been returned to the public works department. In the meantime, Horl. F. D. Monk, the new minister, has given instructions that nothing be proceeded with until his re-

Hon, William Pugsley in conversa tion today freely admitted that the island had been disposed of for the sum named. The property, he said, was of no use to crown as an island. He nied that the sale carried power pri ileges with it, but admitted that the essession of the island was an important step in controlling the falls power What the new government will do with the sale remains to be seen.

This money, the complaint states, was btained between July, 1907, and March, 911. During the same period approximately $4,000,000 was collected from tock sales by the selling forces. Of his amount $900,000 reached the company, the remainder being divided among Parker, Christopher C. Wilson and other high officials of the company. Parker is now serving a fiveear sentence in the federal prison on McNeil's Island, Wash., for using the nails to defraud.

Parker did not dissipate his share of the proceeds, but invested in Seattle real estate and mortgages. The trustee has found between $600,000 and $700,000 worth of such property belonging to Parker, and has tied if up by an injunction pending the hearing of the suit for an accounting and the turning over the property to the trustee in bankuptev.

As soon as the state rested the defense sought to have stricken from the record the evidence concerning the alleged confession of Wilson. A motion was also made to have the case dismissed. ENDS HIS LIFE

NANAIMO, Oct. 11 .- Andrew Beverdge, a young man residing at Extension, B. Despondency is mentioned as the cause of his act. Beveridge, who was a native of Scot-

He was employed in the Extension mines up to the 13th of last month, when he left his employment, since which time he has been in a more or less despondent state of mind. Shortly after supper last evening Beveridge wrote two letters, posted them, returned to the cabin and for several minutes took part in a conversation with his baching partner, Geo, Mitch-ell, and a friend, Sidney Gordon. Leaving the two in the kitchen, Beveridge walked into an adjoining room, and shortly afterwards Mitchell and Gordon heard a shot. Entering the room whence the report came, they found the body of Beveridge lying across the bed, his hand still clutching the smoking weapon, and terrible wounds in the head, life being extinct. Dr. Fowler of Extension notified Mr. John Shaw of this city, who was acquainted with deceased. Mr. Shaw made arrangements to have the body removed to Nanaimo, where it now lies, pending funeral arrangements which are being made.

Three Residents of Thetis Island Believed to Have Been rows

The finding of an up-turned boat at Burgoyne bay, Salt Spring island, brought to light what is believed to have been a tragedy in which three Mr. Charles Heneage, cousin of Rev. and Hon. T., R. Heneage of this city: Mr. Lambert and Mr. Harvey, are believed to have lost their lives.

The three are supposed to have left Thetis island to attend the fall fair at Duncan, making the trip in a small oat. They set out on their return, but no further word from them has been heard, and with the exception of the inding of the boat no trace of them on September 25. Apparently the three young men had started on their return cross Sansome Narrows and were capsized.

For the past week or two the accident has been rumored, but no definite information had been received by Rev. Mr. Heneage until yesterday when he received a telegram from Provincial Constable Halhed, of Duncan, telling of the reported accident. A reward has been offered for the recovery of the OTTAWA, Oct. 11-Writs will be isued tomorrow for ten bye-elections in the constituencies represented by those members of the Borden government who were elected on Sept. 21 and have been assigned portfolios. They include Hon. Messrs. Borden, Monk, Doherty, Pelletier, Nantel, Foster, Reid, Crothers, Roche, and Hughes. Nominations will be held on October 25 and elections on November 1, if there are to be contests. This much was decided upon at today's cabinet council, and tomorrow the c der in council goes to the clerk of the

Nothing has been determined as to the seats to be ocupied by Messrs, Hazen, Cochrane, White and Rogers. The probability is that Mr. Hazen will take the St. John city and county seat." There is talk of Dr. Daniel going to the senate. It is also pretty well understood that Hon. Robert Rogers will sit for a Manitoba constituency, and will not move into Saskatchewan. It is said that he has been offered the Winnipeg seat now held by Alex Haggart. There is a vacant enatorship in Manitoba since the death of Senator Chevrier, and it might go to Mr. Haggart, although it has been regarded as a French appointment, and

Hon. A. O. Lariviere, former member for Provencher, is mentioned for it.

STORM IN MONTANA Snow Piled in Great Drifts by Pierce Gales-Railways and Telegraph

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 11 .-Dispatches received tonight at the general offices of the Oregon Short Line from the company's linemen, who have been battling all day against a errific blizzard in southwestern Montana, paint a gloomy picture of conlitions in that section. Snow, wet and neavy, piling in huge drifts before fierce gales, miles of telephone and telegraph wires disarranged, poles uprooted and leveled, and light and power plants paralyzed, is the substance of the news at hand.

At Butte, Mont., the centre of the storm, the situation is believed to verge on demoralization. Streets and idewalks have been obstructed by the unprecedented fall of snow, street car service is annulled and all business has practically been suspended. Since nine o'clock last night, when all wire communication with the city was severed, no definite word has come to ndicate the real extent of the damage wrought. However, the railroads report that the snow lies to a depth of two and a half feet on the level, with the high vind causing drifts in many places to depth of several feet.

Disastrous Explosion at Colwood Buries Men Working on Canadian Northern Pacific Construction

The premature explosion of a blast at a cutting on the Canadian Northern Pacific line about 500 yards north of Colwood hotel killed two and injured five workmen yesterday morning. The dead are: Dominico Grilli and Olliscino Salvatori, and the injured, Guiseppi Caligoni, Antonio Magoro, Giovanni Mauz-zillo, Carmeni Rucci and Leonardo Crusiano. The injured were hurried to St. Joseph's hospital, the ambulance from the Victoria Transfer company making a very fast run, covering the distance out in 35 minutes, and they came back with the sufferers in 48 minutes. Of the injured Mauzillo suffered most, having three ribs fractured.

The accident occurred at one of the "stations" a cut of 10,000 cubic yards for which a sub-contract was held under Grant Smith & Co. by Grilli. Shortly after nine o'clock the timekeeper cam to the station and saw Grilli putting in four kegs of black powder and six sticks of giant. The cut is about twenty-five feet wide and the banks are about twenty feet high. Seven men were at work at the face of the cut with pick and shovel and Grilli stood on the top at the end of the cut, tamping down the powder in readiness for the blast. From the cut a couple of narrow guage lines run to Millstream nearby where cars are hauled to dump the earth at the filling there, and the teamster was a work hauling one of the cars away, while another was leveling at the end of the cut. These two saw Grilli hurled in the air when the explosion took place, he hav ing been standing directly over it and his body was badly mutilated and thrown a distance of about forty feet At the same time many tons of earth shot out from the face, overwhelming the seven at work there, and when the dust cleared the two saw only a few heads and shoulders sticking out from the living grave, and heard shrieks and cries for aid. They ran to the adjoining cuttings to shout for assistance and quickly eager shovelers ran to scene and worked frantically to extricate those caught under the great mass of earth. One of the workmen ran across the fields to the Colwood hotel and dashing into the bar shouted "Nine or ten blown up Grilli's cut. Telephone doctor, come quick; get help!" Mrs. Campbell and Mr. Dan Campbell ran to the camp to Mr. Dan Campbell ran to the camp to the westward of the hotel where the steam shovel crew was working at another cutt and grasning shovels the other cut, and grasping shovels the workmen ran to join those working hurriedly to dig out the entombed men. Grilli's body was found in a field close by, and a sheet placed over it. The body was badly burned and mutilated, death having evidently been instantaneous,

Meanwhile, in response to telephon messages sent to the city—the first messages being to the effect that ten had been entombed alive-two ambulances and automobiles with Drs.-George Hall Sinclair and Bechtel were sped out from the city.

Dr. Nunn of H. M. S. Shearwater and an ambulance party, including Sick Bay Steward Ingledew and two men, also came to the scene. Lieut. Newcombe of H. M. S. Shearwater had been shooting near Colwood and when he heard of the accident he telephoned to the naval yard and Dr. Nunn and his party were rowed across to Parson's bridge, and ran from there to the scene.

The scene in the cut was a pitiful one. While workmen shoveled desperately, several of the partially-buried cried in agony, but the workers left these temporarily to seek in the piled earth for those covered and in more danger. With a shout one man uncovered a hand, and there was a rush there and soon the head was brought from under the mud, the clay brushed off, and it was seen that the unfortunate workman lived, and then another reached a man's shoulder and another was uncovered, both having been buried for one or two minutes and yet both lived when the earth was lifted from them. The others were not completely covered, and as quickly as possible all were freed, the buried men squirming to endeavor to loosen their bodies in the debris which caught them.

Quickly the workers tallied the survivors. Salvatori is not here, they said, and again the shovels scattered the earth. It was some time before the blue shirt of Salvatori was seen and although the shovelers kept up their hurried work they knew that there was no hope that he lived. Salvatori had been bur ied underneath Mauzzillo, and his body was deep in the debris near the side of the cutting. Finally the head and shoulders were uncovered and Dr. Nunn of H. M. S. Shearwater went down into the cutting and pronounced him dead. He had seemingly been stunned and suf-

The injured men were carried to the Colwood hotel, where the doctors did what was necessary to revive them for tne journey to the hospital, and the ambulance and two automobiles were sent to Victoria with the five men. All are now at St. Joseph's hospital. Mauzzillo, who is most seriously injured of the five, has three ribs fractured, a bad cut on the neck, one on the face, and both arms are badly bruised; Guiseppi Caligoni has one rib fractured, and slight wound on the forehead; Rucci has the bones of one hand dislocated and a slight wound over one eve: Antonio Magoro has his back injured, a slight flesh wound and a bruised arm, and Crusiano is slightly injured, being bruised at the back of his head.

The dead, Grilli and Salvatori, came to the island for the railroad construction work, and Grilli was the sub-con-

Slave Trade.

While the Turkish embassies deny the existence of slavery in Tripoll, for the reason—as they set forth—that the Ottoman empire was a signatory to the anti-slavery convention at Brussels, Italian officials declare that, notwithstanding the denial, the fact remains that Tripoll, up to two weeks ago, was the only outlet of the great slave market of Central Africa.

Slavery, they, point out, had always in Africa its established seat, as it was allowed by the Koran and approved by usage. Its worst feature in Tripoll was that for each slave who arrived alive on the Mediteiranean coast, ten had died while crossing the desert.

Italy, Great Britain and France, wishing to stop the flow of slaves through Tripoli, instructed their consuls to make strong representations against the laxity of the Ottoman officials, but according to the official documents, the traffic continued.

Reports from Tripoli this afternoon say Arabs of the interior are circulating a report that the great Mandi of the Sahara, having hearf of the Italian invasion, is gathering arms and men and trained horsemen, and has proclaimed a holy war which is to be conducted relentlessly until the infidels are diven into the sea.

New Hall of Justice is Formally Opened with Fall Assizes— Compared with Courts in London

VANCOUVER, Oct. 9 .- The fall criminal assizes opened today in the new courthouse, which for beauty of appointments and splendor of decorating, is excelled by few halls of justice in the British Empire.

"I think I may say without exagreration." commented His Honor Judge McInnes, "that the appointments are equal to those of the new Strand courts in London, England, to which the British bar points with pardonable pride as being the last word in court furnishings."

After a long acquaintance with the old courthouse one is almost lost in entering the new building. Barristers were flitting in all directions today looking for the assize court, the court of appeals, supreme court chambers and other courts, and it was some time before they got their bearings. The court of appeals is a palatial room. The panneling and other woodwork is of mahogany and a massive canopy frowns over the bench where the highest provincial tribunal will sit The color scheme is crimson.

The attorney general, Hon. W. J. Bowser, and Mr. L. G. McPhillips, K C., representing the British Columbia bar, attended at the opening of the criminal assize. Mr. Justice Murphy presided at the first court held in the new building.

Rex vs. Clarke was the first case at the criminal assize. The accused Frank Clarke, is facing a charge of forgry. It is alleged that Clarke ob tained possession of a money order for $90 sent to Mr. C. S. Wormald, who was living at the time with Clarke at Prince Rupert, by the former's father

W. C. Fry, who is conducting the rospecting for gold and platinum at the forks of the rivers near Princeton was in this country thirty years ago on the great rush to Cariboo, and landed in Quesnel with a plug of tobacco and wenty-five cents, representing his entire capital. He went to work on the bars and in a fortnight cleaned up $700. Later he took out $90,000 on Lightning Creek in less than three months.

Alex. Patterson and Bill Harris, miners of Lockport, had last week a miraculous escape from instant death. Discovering that their blacksmith shop was afire, they rushed to rescue a box containing thirty-five sticks of dynamite and a box of caps. Both of these exploded when they were about four feet from the building, Patterson being hurled many feet in the air escaping with a few bad cuts. Harris received no injur-

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.-James McNamara went on trial for murder here today before Judge Walter Bord-well in the superior court amid cir-cumstances as austere and simple as proverbial Western justice. District Attorney John D. Fredericks for the prosecution elected to try him for the nurder of Charles Haggerty, a macilies, who, with 20 other men met death in an explosion and fire which wiecked the Log Angeles Times building October 1, 1910.

This case was picked from 19 indictments for murder found against the prisoner, his brother, John J. Me-Namara secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, William Caplan and M. A. Schmidt, both at large; and four unidentified persons specified as John Doe, Jane Doe, Richard Doe and John Stites, because Haggerty's body was found nearest the spot at which the

"Yes," said Nelson. "And that most men have taken sides?"

"Yes." "Have you the opinion that labor ions as they exist are proper, or that they are inimical and a menace?"

To this the prosecution objected because "counsel was asking the opinion of the witness on evidence that may arise during the trial."

"He may answer," said Judge Bordwell, and Nelson said he was "not prejudiced." Further questions were met by the assertion from Attorney W. J. Ford of the prosecution that "this is not union labor trial." "Do you take the Los Angeles Times?" and "Do you read the weekly

It was not until court opened today that the defense could make formal demand for separate trials for James J. McNamara and his brother John. Hence the brothers, handcuffed together, were taken to court. All Los Angeles knew about this, but when seven deputy sheriffs besides the jailer and an assistant left the jail with the prisoners they found an empty street, except for newspaper photographers and a few stray spectators In the court room, where only a moderate crowd of spectators gathered, the formal opening of the case was not

MARAUDERS POISON THE ISLAND'S GAME

For Past Three Years Americans Have Done Away With Denizens of Wild

Indiscriminately on West Coast.

The wholesale slaughter of the wile animals of the west coast of Vancouver Island is reported by recent arrival from Nootka Sound, Deer, wolves, marten, mink, in fact everything loose on four legs, are being killed indiscriminately. The Indians who depend largely on the deer and other game for their winter food, are indignant. It is said that the situation is so serious that the natives are likely to cause trouble unless something is done immediately to put a stop to these depredations. Those responsible, while their names are not known, come from the American side every fall. Taking the steamer at this point they establish their head quarters at Nootka, setting out from there along the coast. Killing a deer they manufacture poisoned balls of meat, prepared in such tempting fashion as to be irresistable to the wild animals. These are placed on the top of a stick firmly bedded in the ground. En route north these men leave a string of such traps and coming back they collect a miscellaneous lot of spoil. The wolves are taken to the govern ment office where the bounty is secured. With their skins and all the fur of any value that may have been obtained through their illegal industry the murauders return to Washington state, where, no doubt, they dispose of them

This practice, it is asserted, has been regular thing for three years and reports have been received that it is the intention of the same parties to undertake the same enterprise again. the unrest among the Indians who have visions of the rapid diminution of deer meat, something which heretofore they have been able to shoot any time within a few feet from their domiciles.

Master of the Schooner Mary Dodge Says Crew Man Vessel to Suit Themselves

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.-Captain Pearson, of the schooner Mary Dodge, here from the Marshall islands, brought back a small cargo of copra and a tale woe. From the time the schooner left San Francisco, the captain says, until her return the crew ran the ship to suit themselves. The mate, says the skipper, sided with the crew. laughed at his orders in the daytime and at night made so much noise that he couldn't sleep. The cook was loyal until the return trip, when, as the captain said, "they took him away from making the run to Jaluit, and when she arrived there the skipper was a nervous wreck. He expected to have a nice rest and restore some of his injured dignity but alas! for his hopes.

"The German officials in charge there," said the skipper, "took full charge of me, the ship and the crew We had to do exactly what they told us, and could do nothing without getting permission." The Mary Dodge was at Jaulit fiv weeks. The mate quit the ship and the captain had to put up a bond to insure the German government against his remaining in the Marshall islands. The loss of the mate left him short-handed. and he had to ship two natives. Before he could get these chocolate-colored mariners he had to put up two heavy bonds as a guarantee that they would be returned to Jauilt. These bonds ate up the profits of the voyage.

WHITE MAN'S LAW

Special steps will, it is understood, be taken immediately by the Provincial police with the object of teaching the unruly Indians of the Clinton district due respect of the white man's law. Recent serious infractions of that law, of which the number of serious cases at the just-closed criminal assize is indicative, illustrate the necessity of such drastic action. More particularly does the involved William White murder case stand out as a case in point, White being the halfwas found dead near the cabin of a chinese rancher named Ah' Wye.

The man had evidently been done death, and circumstances connected with the crime two Indians known as Haller and Coxie Moyie, alias Moses Paul. Both were arrested, but little evidence being presented at the preliminary inquiry connecting Halliberty. Moyie, or Paul, escaped from custody, and has not yet been

Within the past few days however the Chinaman Ah Wye, who was regarded by the Crown as its principal witness in fastening to the missing Indian the crime of murder has also been found by a compatriot in his lonely cabin, hacked to death with an axe. There is in this latter case no evidence connecting the missing Movie with the second crime, but suspicion is strong that the Chinaman was sacrificed by him in order to remove the dangerous witness whose testimony might have sent him to the gallows for the killing of White. A plentiful if mysterious supply iquor to the aboriginal inhabitants of the district is said to be at the foundation of a large number of recent crimes in the Chilcotin.

Order Goes Out for Boilermakers' and Machinists to Leave Work-Men Allege Lockout

WINNIPEG, Oct. 9.—The boilermakers and machinists of the Grand Trunk Pacific to the number of 350 will go out on strike tomorrow morning. Negotiations for a settlement, which have been pending over two months, have not matured. The leaders of the men claim that there has been a lockout, and that they are therefore justified in the action that they are taking in going out now. The company deny the lockout and say that the shops are only closed for repairs and will be opened. Wednesday.

James Somerville, the representative of the boilermakers, said that he had called the strike for tomorrow morning as he felt the company had been merely dilly-dallying with the men and there appeared to be no hope of solution as long as the company did not get their representatives to the meetings of the board. Notice of the strike was communicated o the company this morning by Mr. Somer-ille. He says that they are not claiming he recognition of any union, but merely hat the men should have the same condithat the men should have the same condi-tions of labor as prevail on other lines of the west. Canada's Population Will Fall Far Short of Estimates-Work Inordinately Expensive and Badly Done

OTTAWA, Oct. 9.—Information is accumulating to the effect that the census is about to prove a great disappointment. The population has been placed at eight millions in the estimates given out by the Laurier government. It is certain that it will fall materially short of that figure, and it may fall short of seven and a half millions.

BID FAREWELL

Bishop Perrin Is Recipient of Address and Presentation-Many Attend Ceremony at Alexandra Club

Memorable indeed was the gathering held last evening in the ballroom fo the Alexandra club when Right Rev. Bishop Perrin took farewell of a large number of the members of the diocese The beautiful room was handsomely dec orated in honor of the occasion, and luring the evening an orchestra rendered a number of well known airs. The playing of the National Anthem heralded the entrance of his honor, the Lieuenant-Governor, who was accompanied Mrs. Paterson, handsome and dignified in a black sequin gown.

A beautifully illuminated address was presented to the bishop on behalf of the diocese by Ven. Archdeacon Scriven In making the presentation the archdeacon said this was not only the official farewell of the church, but of all the bishop's friends, the wide circle of which included Victoria and elsewhere All of them felt that night that they were not so much saying good-bye to their bishop as to a friend-one who ad been a real friend to many of them. He himself had been almost in clined to think of him more as a friend and a brother than as a bishop, and he thought that was the feeling in the hearts of most of them that evening In less than two days they would see him

He then called on Rev. J. H. S. Sweet to read the address which ran as follows Text of Address "To the Right Rev. William Perrin, Lord Bishop of British Columbia: "We, the clergy and laity of the diocese of British Columbia, take this opportunity of taking an affectionate fare well of your lordship, on the eve of your departure to take up the important work n London to which you have been recently appointed. Our feelings on this occasion are of a mixed nature. We congratulate your lordship on your appointment as Bishop of Willesden and are fully conscious of the honor thus incidentally bestowed upon this diocese nevertheless it is with a feeling of regret and sorrow that we learn that we are to be deprived of your loving care and wise and judicious oversight of the work in this portion of the Lord's vine-

"During eighteen years we have had the privilege of your hopeful enthusiasm and practical insight into all that make for the best interest of the nurch in this diocese. Your genial and kindly disposition, your unfailing energy and wisdom of administration been largely instrumental in placing this diocese in the satisfactory sition in which it stands at presen Your advocacy of all that tends to promote the work of God, your loving unselfishness and singleness of mind in devotion to the cause of Christ, will cherished in our memories with the deepest reverie. We acknowledge with gratitude that you have done much to rease the principle of reverence and devotion to the worship of Almighty God, and much also to deepen the spiritual life of the clergy and laity in

"We close with a very sincere exesteem, and with the promise that our prayers shall follow you in the imprayers shall follow you in the important work to which we do not doubt you have been called by God."

A. T. Doull, Dean of Columbia;
Austin Scriven, Archdeacon of Vancouver; Ludley Crease, Chancellor; J.

H. S. Sweet, Clerical Secretary; Percy Wollaston, Treasurer; Fred W. Blankenbach, Lay Secretary.

Happiest of Homes In replying Bishop Perrin said that even now he found it difficult to realize the fact that he was going away He valued the words of the Arch very much indeed. They had indeed been friends, and during all those years a single difference. He knew what was in their hearts that evening, and they might be sure that their feelings were reciprocated. The words of the address read by Rev. Mr. Sweet had made him feel humble-had made him feel how very little he had done. His life during his eighteen years' residence in Victoria had been a very happy one, and British Columbia would always remain in his memory as the happiest of

His Lordship made a characteristically humorous reference to Bishopclose which provoked much merriment If Victoria could only be buried for a thousand years as was Pompeli, and the ground covered with ashes, he prophesied that great discoveries would be made, and he could imagine the people saying "What an extraordinary house the Bishop had." And now he was to eave it. When he first walked down the streets of Victoria on his arrival in this city, it had been rather a sad time, for he knew no one, but since then he had made many friends. Very few positions he knew of could be more enjoyable than that of the Bishop of Columbia. All the many kindnesses he had received had made him feel that he was privileged to be able to influence the people in some way. He dwelt on the difference between the new work to which he was called and the old. If he could be sure that those who called themselves his friends would remember him in their prayers as he did them, he felt sure the burden

Several people had told him that evening that "goodbye" was such a sad word. But he failed to see that, for they all knew that "goodbye" meant "God be with you," and if He was with them, how could it be sad?

Recipient of Presentation

His lordship was also presented with an album containing views of the churches in the diocese, and the signatures of the contributors, and in receiving it from the archdeacon, he referred to the building of the new cathedral, and again urged upon all those present the advisability of building on the old site-"the finest church site in the whole of Canada."

The gathering then broke up into social groups and refreshments were served. For the rest of the evening the bishop's time was taken up in shaking hands with his many friends present, a large number of whom had konw him for many years. The reception was brought to a close by the playing of the National Anthem.

Probably no feature of his farewell reception touched and pleased the bishop more than the letter he received during m, the Right Rev. Bishor Cridge, the veteran leader of the Reformed Episcopal church, who, unable to be present that evening, "took the opportunity of wishing the bishop Godspeed on his journey."

A noticeable feature of the gathering and one that appealed specially to his lordship, was the presence not only of the Anglican clergy of the city and several from the outlying districts, but also of a large number of the ministers of other churches.

Among those present were: His honor the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Paterson, Very Rev. the Dean of Columbia and Mrs. Doull, the Ven. Archdeacon of Vancouver and Mrs. Scriven, Rev. W. Barton and Mrs. Barton, Rev. W. Baugh Allen and Mrs. Allen and Miss Allen, Rev. H. A. Collison, Rev. E. G. Miller and Mrs. Miller, Rev. J. H. S. Sweet, Rev. R. Connell, Rev. Mr. Fatt, Rev. and Hon. T. R. Heneage, Rev. Gilbert Cook and Mrs. Cook (Sidney), Rev. J. W. Flinton (Saanich), Mr. J. S. Bastion, Salt Spring Island, Right Rev. Bishop Macdonald, Rev. Dr. Campbell, Rev. T. E. Holling, Rev. Leslie Clay, Rev. T. W. Gladstone, Rev. J. B. Warnicker, Mr. G. H. Barnard, M.P., and many others

MORE EQUIPMENT FOR TRAMWAY SERVICE

Six Additional Cars Put Into Commission to Cater to Rapidly Growing Population of City

Indicative at once of the great rapidity with which the population of Victoria is increasing and the desire of the B. C. Electric Railway company to do everything possible to meet the needs of its local system of transportation, comes the announcement, made vesterday by Mr. A. T. Goward, local manager of the company, that some six additional cars have just been put in service in this city. They are being utilized on the Douglas street-Outer Wharf, on the Willows and on the Esquimalt groutes. For some time past it has been apparent to the company as well as to its many patrons that owing to the large number of workingmen using the cars during what may be termed the rush hours of the day something would have to be done to relieve a congestion which was growing intolerable, particularly on the Douglas street line, and at con siderable additional expense to the daily service it was determined to press more cars into service and this has now been done with the result that the additional service is proving a big success.

It is perhaps on the Douglas stree route that the congestion was the more pressing. This is owing to the fact that very many of the workingmen of the city have built homes in that section of the city lying adjacent to and north of the terminus of the Douglas street line and the consequence has been that the ordinary service has been entitely inadequate especially between the hours of 5 and 5 p. m.

and Mr. Goward adds that it is the aim of the company to do everything possicommunity, not only in the matter of street car transportation, but also in respect to the supply of light and power. In respect to the latter requirement, the Jordan River power plant having now been completed, there will be no longer

California Gives Close Vote on Women Suffrage - Other Proposed Changes Carried by Large Majorities

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11 .- Tabulation of the constitutional amendment election held in this state yesterday indicated at 1:30 o'clock this morning that the woman suffrage provision, previously conceded to have been beaten, was making a close run. Complete returns from 1,367 precincts out 3,120 in the state, give 60,968 in favor, 63,589 against. This showed such a decided change, due principally to the back country vote, that the suffragists claimed that the amendment had carried.

The initiative and referendum and the recall, which includes the judiciary, have received a most emphatic endorsement by the voters of the state. The enlargement of the powers of the state railroad commission also has undoubtedly has carried, though by a smalle majority. The vote in favor of placing in the hands of the electors the power of recalling its public officials, in cluding the judges on the bench, was somewhat amazing, even to the friends of that proposed constitutional amend-

San Francisco, which voted almost two to one against woman suffrage, voted more than four to one in favor of the recall, while the vote for the initiative and referendum was aimost equally large.

With one-third of the state heard rom, the vote stood: For woman suffrage, 37,170; against,

Initiative and referendum, for 50. 51; against, 17,391. Recall, for 52,997; against, 17,904. Appointive railroad commission, for, 39,821; against, 22,334.

WRECK PIPE-LINE

Unknown Parties Blow Up Section of Esquimalt Water Works Company's New Main to Goldstream /

For the past two weeks the provincial police authorities have been endeavoring to ascertain the identity of the person or persons who, on September 25th, attempted to put out of commission the new main pipe line of the Esquimalt Water Works company from Goldstream to the city. Some miscreant placed a charge of dynamite or other explosive under the pipe line at a spot near Langford lake and wrecked one of the lengths of pipe allowing the water to overflow the adjoining territory. A large hole was blown in the pipe but the escape of the water was noticed early and the flow shut off.

The identity of the perpetrators of the act has not yet been discovered, nor has any reason for the act been assigned unless it was done by some disgruntled workman employed by the com-

The new main, thirty-six inches in diameter, has almost been completed from Goldstream to the point of connection with the company's system in Victoria West and will be connected at an early date, replacing the twelve-inch main which has done duty for severe years. With the new main completed the capacity of the company's system in Victoria West will be materially increased and several important extensions contemplated will be undertaken and also all the provinces of Canada wer in attendance, and numerous interesting re-ports and papers were read, in which con-sideration was given to the latest safety devices adopted for the protection of the lives and limbs of factory operatives. Which devices adopted for the protection of the lives and limbs of factory operatives. Which appliances if properly made use of will tend towards securing a marked diminution in the number of factory accidents.

In a preliminary report to the attorney-general, Inspector Gordon says: "I also attended illustrated lectures given by Professor Sweetzer showing safety devices employed in various European countries, also statistical tables of accidents occuring in various industrial concerns. The professor showed one safeguard which is much in use in Europe, and which might well be adopted generally in this country. It consists in painting guards and safety devices, and, wherever practicable, the moving parts of dangerous machinery, a bright red. This serves most effectually to call attention to danger. One leading matter discussed during the progress of the convention was the sanitation of factories, and several valuable suggestions were advanced as to means of overcoming the insanitary conditions, from which I learn there is considerable work to be done in this province to bring conditions to a higher standard. The subject of safety devices is indeed a difficult as well as a technical one, but inasmuch as the subject has been assigned to me, I hope it will not be considered immodest on my part to state that I consider the safety devices provided for in the province of British Columbia to more nearly approach the ideal safety than those employed in the various places that I have visited.

Ecumenical Conference Methodists at Toronto Takes Up Controversial Subject of Biblical Criticism

TORONTO, Oct. 9 .- The ' Ecumenical conference moved on to a keenly interesting and controversial subject-that of Biblical criticism. Today the bulk of opinion apparently, and certainly the majority of the speakers, were favorable to the results of the criticism. Professor Peake, of the Primitive Methodist church of Great Britain, said: "Critics sincerely seek truth. They are given due credit. The investigation must be free. We will lose the young men and women of today if we don't show them that we are after the truth, whatever it is. If Wesley were here he would agree, I believe, with modern thought. Truth is not fixed; it is evolutionary.

THE NEW CABINET

In the cabinet selected by the Hon. Borden there appear to be all which will make for a of affairs in the Dominion. He has whose names are a guarantee of all that is best in the life of the nation. His task has not been an easy one. When the clouds and whirlwinds of the political hurricane had passed away one fact stood out in clear relief. Canada had declared, not only lars and the birches play their several for loyalty to the crown, but for the conservation of her resources for the use of her people and for those of the snow crowned. On the opposite side Empire to which she belongs. This, if people, with no uncertain voice, have from their bases by from four to ten given to Mr. Borden. In the promoting of her destiny along these lines an immense duty has devolved upon the new prime minister, in the carrying of round himself with the men of the utterests of their country at heart first, last and all the time. That he has succeeded it is too early to say yet, but it is certain that his first act of power in the creation of his ministry, containing as it does such excellent material, will go far towards illustrating to the people the manner of government they are going to have.

The government came into power on a great national issue. The new cabinet is composed of men who embody perhaps different ideas along certain lines but who are one in their belief of Canada for the Canadians. In the selection of his ministers Mr. Borden has shown the same courageous motives which have inspired his political career. It is evident that he allowed no considerations to weigh with him against the importance of choosing the best men, and those whom he believes will most faithfully perform the services which will fall to their lot. His choice shows him to be essentially broad minded. If, as his opponents have said, his supporters are composed of warring elements which he will find it difficult to reconcile, the best answer to this statement is to be found in the cabinet honors which have just been announced.

action in including among his ministry the name of the Hon. W. T. White. Mr. White was one of those Liberals in the recent campaign who set country above party and who was instrumental in forming what was known as the National League, which did such good work prior to the election. He is only forty-five years of age. This is young for such an important position, but Mr. White has the reputation of being not only a sound financier but a man who for years past has been marked as destined for high place.

The past record of all Mr. Borden's ministers will, we believe, bear the closest investigation. Speaking from a British Columbia standpoint we can assure the prime minister that in selecting Mr. Martin Burrell from this province he has chosen wisely. Mr. Burrell enjoys the confidence of all classes, He can be relied upon to promote our interests to the utmost of his wellknown ability. If all the new ministers turn out as satisfactorily as we are certain Mr. Burrell will, then the new government of the country will contain a phalanx of names which will be remembered with praise for a long time

Mr. Borden's cabinet is not so much a Conservative as a national one. It was evidently chosen after the fullest and weightiest consideration had been given to the popular verdict and what it meant. If we are not greatly mistaken the new administration will rank among the greatest, if it does not prove to be the greatest, that has ever gone into power in Canada.

Through all this splendor you go for mile after mile, thinking that nothing can be more wonderfully beautiful than what you have seen, when suddenly you find before you the long hill south of Sinclair Bridge. As the car mounts it slowly, beauty is piled upon beauty. splendor upon splendor, glory upon glory until you reach the summit, and thenbut I have no words for it. It is a little for the journey; that is for those who may read this; but in the future it ought to be one of the most favored resorts. It has not yet been much advertised: nor are the public familiar with it from photographs. It is too great to be handled by the camera. The road is very good for almost the whole of the 82 miles between here and Golden, and the few miles that are a little rough will be in first-class condition next year. The provincial government is spending a good deal of money in improvements, and capital work is being done. It is money well spent, for even after the Kootenay Central railway is completed travelers for pleasure will prefer the highway. Surveys are being made for two motor roads through the mountains to Banff. They will be scenic highways of exceeding grandeur. One of these will pass by the Sinclair Hot Springs, and this is certain to be a through an ever-changing panorama-I popular resort. Great Audience Greets President Taft and Applauds His Speech-Guest

SEATTLE, Oct. 9 .- President Taft faced here tonight one of the largest and by far the most enthusiastic and responsive audiences he has met on any of his recent travels. He was greeted with prolonged cheers and constantly was interrupted with outbursts of ap-

The president unscussed a variety of subjects, including the relation of government to business, the tariff vetoes and Alaska, the latter subject of vital interest here. He declared that Alaska should have at least a semi-self-governing body. Two years ago Mr. Taft advocated here a straight commission form of government for the territory declaring the population not stable enough for a full measure of selfcontrol. In discussing the Sherman anti-trust law Mr. Taft said he was just as much bound by his oath to enforce that statute as the law against counterfeiting. Following his address at the Armory, the president was escorted to the rooms of the Seattle Press club, where a lively programme of songs and speeches mostly in the Chinook jargon, was presented to the great delight of the president who did not understand a word of the Indian language except the frequent use of the words "tyee Taft." Tyee meaning chief. The president as a former newspaperman was elected a member of the club and made a speech to 'his brothers of the craft."

STRIKING CAREER OF SIR

Sir Robert Hart, the Inspector-General of the Chinese Customs since 1863, died on Sep-tember 20th at Great Marlow. With his death there passes from the scene one of the most picturesque figures of the 19th century, a man whose remarkable talents and personality could not have failed to bring distinction in any work or environment of life, and who, by virtue of the unique background in which his career was set, attained at a comparatively early age to world-wide fame. The name of Robert Hart was a household word in China before he was 30 years of age; it grew in prestige with the marvellous organization of the Chinese Customs Service of which he was for so long the distinguished head, and it gained naturally in importance from the crises through which China passed during his administration of her revenues, crises in the settlement of which his personal influence and exceptional knowledge saved the Manchus and the Chinese Empire from the consequences of the folly of the Mandarin.

NAMEL

Born on February 20th, 1835, in the North or Ireland, he graduated at Queen's College, Belfast in 1853, and he went out to China in the following year, as a student interpreter in the Consular Service. Employed as secretary to the allied commanders during the Anglo-French occupation of Canton in 1858, he was appointed in 1859 Inspector of Customs in that city. This was his first connection with the service he was ultimately to be connected with in all his work in China.

His Work in China

When young Hart first went out to China in 1854 the Southern and Central Provinces were the scene of a great popular upheaval, the Taiping Rebellion. The Taipings had in that very year swept down the valley of the Yang-tze and seized the native city at Shanghai, compelling the Chinese Superintendent of Customs to close his office. The European settlement held its own, and two months later the 'Shanghai custom-house was reopened in the settlement for the collection of Imperial revenue under the joint inspectorate of the three Treaty Powers, then in relation with the provincial authorities-Great Britain, the United States, and France.

This was the origin of the great organization which Sir Robert Hart was destined to govern for so many years and which he first represented at Canton.

In 1861 Prince Kung, the President of the Tsung-li-Yamen, formally invested the Collectorate of Foreign Customs at the Treaty ports with regular powers from the Central Govern ment, and placed the management in the hands of Mr. Lay, who was then in charge of the Shanghai Collectorate. Mr. Lay, however, was compelled, almost immediately, to return to England on sick leave, and deputed his duties during his absence to Mr. Hart. In the same year the Tsung-li-Yamen invited Mr. Hart to Peking to consult with him on the organization of the service, and he soon acquired, by sheer force of character and ability, an mount of influence over the Central Government which no foreigner had ever possessed since the days of the great Jesuit missionarystatesmen.

When Mr. Lay resigned in 1863 owing to serious differences of principle between himself and the Chinese Government, Mr. Hart. although then only 28 years of age, was appointed to succeed him.

From that day he devoted himself with all the dogged perseverance, the shrewd intelligence, and business-like capacity of a typical Ulsterman to the task of evolving European order out of Chinese chaos. In his masterful hands the Maritime Customs, which originally represented mere local agencies for the collection of duties on foreign goods, grew to be a great and complex organization, administering the one substantial and liquid source of revenue at the disposal of the Central Government of China. In 1864 the value of the foreign trade with which the Imperial Maritime Customs had to deal was 116,642,770 hai-kwan taels, in 1899, the year before the Boxer outbreak, it was 460,533,288, while in the same period the home trade rose from 114,218,655 to 731,942,126 hai-kwan taels. The revenue of the Maritime Customs when Sir Robert Hart became Inspector-General was 8,509,528 haikwan taels; in 1899 it attained the unprecedented figure of 26,661,460 hai-kwan taels, though the Japanese War had in the meantime taken away two important colletcorates in Formosa. The number of ports actually open to trade in 1864 was only 14; by 1899 there were 32. When he entered upon his new duties the Inspector-General had a staff of barely 200 foreigners. In 1899 the great administration over which he presided employed 993 foreigners, of whom 503 were British, and 4,611 Chinese. But these figures only convey a very inadequate idea of the enormous development of a service which undertook the lighting of the coast and inland waterways of China, which disposed of a fleet of revenue cruisers, which instituted a European University in Peking, and which of late years became the sheet-anchor of Chinese finance.

Loyalty to the Chinese

Sir Robert Hart's career since 1900 has little to show in the way of new constructive work. After the restoration of peace his life at Peking returned almost without effort in the old grooves, and he continued until January, 1908, loyally to serve a Government which had ill-requited his serices and which. as he himself was forced to confess, was apparently incapable of learning or forgetting anything. It was through his mediation and chiefly owing to his influence and wise guidance that Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang were able to pave the way for the restoration of the Manchu Dynasty and practically of the authority of the late Empress Dowager Tzu Hsi. That august lady admitted as much herself when thanking him at a private audience after her return to Peking. "To you," she said, "who have ever been our most faithful servant, we owe the o servant, we owe the opportunity of making a new beginning." Sir Robert Hart himself had doubts which he guardedly expressed in his work, "These from the Land of Sinim" (1901). as to the wisdom and expediency of permitting the Manchus' return. He realized the necessity for new measures if the ancient Empire was to be saved from itself. But he was already then in his 60th year and long association with the easy-going philosophy of the Orient had taught him many lessons of expediency, and he was swayed above all, as the results proved, by a sentimental devotion to the Chinese Throne and Government which made him instinctively their apologist even when he could not be their reformer. Nothing when he could not be their reformer. Nothing could shake his unswerving loyalty to the rulers of the country which he had made his home; even the base ingratitude of their treatment of him in 1900, the destruction of his home and personal belongings, never affected him or his attitude in the slightest degree; on the contrary, the articles which he published in English magazines and the whole tenor of the book to which we have referred revealed increasing evidences of sympathy with the Oriental standpoint in politics and philosophy. From 1901 to 1908 he labored in the hope of inducing the Chinese to adopt measures of financial and administrative reform, which he considered indispensable to the future safety of the Empire. In 1905, realizing the dangers to which the country would be exposed as soon as the supremacy of Russia or Japan was determined by the war then proceeding, he urged the Government to set its house in order and submitted an elaborate scheme of internal revenue by the reorganization of the land tax. The Chinese ignored his advice, and the atti-tude of the Mandarin towards China's most faithful and efficient adviser was well reflected in the contemptuous memorial which the Viceroy Chang Chili-tung thought fit to submit to the Throne with regard to Sir Robert. Hart's proposals.

The End of His Career

It was in May, 1906, that Hart received final and convincing proof that, however much his services had been used by the Chinese Government in the past, there was nothing of gratitude or even of consideration in their appreciation of his labors. The one essential factor of the success of the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs Service was the undivided authority of its chief, and the loyalty of the staff who had efficiently served him and China in the collection of her revenue. That factor the Government proceeded to attack by appointing high Chinese officials to be controllers of the Customs under the title of the Chui-Wu-Chu'u. It was not only the nature of the change, which was felt at its full significance by foreign Governments and financiers, but the gross discourtesy shown to the I. G. personally, in the fact that he was neither consulted nor notified in regard to the pending change. Writing to a friend at the time, in the first flush of natural indignation, he expressed the belief that this was the beginning of the end of the great service which he had built up after long years of labor, and his chag-rin was undisguised. But he had learnt from the East a lesson which he was fond of inculcating in the words of a Chinese proverb which says; "When the strong wind blows the tree may break, but the waving grass will bend and recover." In the subsequent pourparlers between the Chinese and the British Governments he took no pronounced part, and expressed no strong opinions; but in the fol-lowing year he tendered his resignation. Then arose the question of his successor, a question greatly complicated by international jealousy and by the policy of China for the Chinese which inspired the action of the Pekin Government. Again ,as in 1885 (when for a few weeks he accepted the appointment of British Minister in China), the Chinese government declined to accept his recommendations in regard to his successor. The question was eventually settled in the usual Chinese manner by leaving it open. Sir Robert Hart received a year's leave of absence, dating from January, 1908, which leave has since been regularly renewed, while an acting I. G. (Mr. Aglen) carries on the duties of the post without any very definite understanding as to his future position and authority.

Thanks to the complete destruction wrought by the Boxers in 1900, not only in Pekin but in the Foreign Settlements at Tientsin, no complete record of the life of Sir Robert Hart on its political and administrative side can ever be written; for the archives which recorded the earlier history of the Customs Service and his many diplomatic measures and negotiations with the Chinese Government were destroyed by fire. Destroyed also were the letters of Chinese Gordon and many other priceless documents. The preservation of his correspondence with Mr. Detring would have enabled future historians to reconstruct the history of the French and Japanese wars from materials which are not to be expected from purely Chinese sources. Only his private diary was rescued in the nick of time from destruction. It is characteristic of the man that, seeing it brought for safety to the British Legation, he expressed regret that it should have been saved, and there is reason to helieve that the executors will receive instructions that no use shall be made of its records for biographical or other purposes.

Personal Character

With his remarkable personality and wide range of sympathy, deep learning, and almost poetic imagination, Sir Robert Hart endeared himself to a very wide circle of friends and acquaintances. His character is as complex as personality was sympathetic. The Spartan training of a Belfast Irishman was tempered through his long residence in the East to a broad and tolerant acceptance of life in all its phases. Upon the traditions of a Puritan stock was grafted the easy-going philosophy of the East; and the combination of these qualities made up a character that stands out against the background of modern Chinese history as romantic a figure as that of General Gordon, or of Rhodes, or of any other great Englishman overseas. During the siege of the Legations in 1900, when the whole ma-chinery of a life of routine had been so sud-denly upset, his character stands at its noblest and best, showing him to be a very gallant gentleman, who, combining the qualities of endurance, courage, and helpful cheerfulness, raised himself in the esteem of his fellow-men more than he could have done by any administrative successes. The autocrat and martinet of the Customs became a simple volunteer in the work of defence. Sir Robert Hart was a philosopher and a poet; he possessed a capacity for friendship to which years of correspondence testified. The sentimental and sympathetic side of his nature undoubtedly developed as his years increased, and led him in the end to view his position and duties in a manner very different from that which distinguished the thorough and energetic nature of his earlier work. His political knowledge was wide, and his instincts generally sound; but they were always liable to be affected at critical moments by the impulsive nature of his sympathies, which outweighed on more than one notable occasion his deliberate judgment.

Sir Robert Hart was the possessor of 13 Grand Crosses bestowed upon him by European sovereigns, privileged to wear the red ribbon of the first order of Chinese officialdom. the Peacock's Feather, the Double Dragon. and many other distinctions which, as he quaintly put it himself, gave him the appearance of a Christmas tree. His life will go down to history as one of the greatest monuments of British administrative capacity and loyalty. His opportunities were undoubtedly great, but the man rose to them, earning golden opinions not only from his own countrymen but from the many men of other races with whom he frequently came into contact in circumstances calling for unusual tact and discrimination. That there were weaknesses and errors in his administration of affairs few will deny; one of the most conspicuous was that quality of autocracy which has left the Customs Service without cohesion or definite policy to face the uncertain future. Taking him all in all, Sir Robert Hart leaves behind him a record as an administrator that has been rarely excelled and an example from which the Chinese in the long run cannot fail to derive guidance and

Sir Robert Hart was made a K.C.M.G. in 1882, a G.C.M.G. in 1889, and created a baronnarried, in 1800, Hester daughter of Mr. Alexander Bredon, M.D., of Portadown, County Armagh, by whom he had a family.-London Times.

On Growth of Knowledge

At the banquet eccently given in connection with the quincentenary celebrations at St. Andrew's University, Mr. Balfour delivered a most interesting speech. He said in part:

"I now have the honor of addressing a great international assembly. Learning is represented in this room from every country boasting Western civilization, and in this we are carrying on, after all, the traditions of the great medieval universities. The medieval universities were an absolutely new product owing nothing, so far as I am aware, to ancient tradition, to ancient organization, to ancient methods of organization; and, from the beginning, they were international in their character. Learning was welcomed from every country in the world, every country that could attend irrespective of national jealousies, irrespective even of national hostilities. In the 13th century, as in the 14th, as in the 15th, when this university was established, the fact that a student even belonged to a hostile country was regarded as being no bar to his having all the advantages which a university could give. There is something, I think, splendid in this idea of a great international task to be carried on in which all the nations of the world are equally interested, in which all sections of humanity to whatever race they may belong, whatever religion they may profess, are all equally concerned, and nothing could illustrate the greatness of this truth or the nobility of that cause than such an assembly as I now see. before me. (Cheers.) I hope, and I believe, that, as this common consciousness of a great intellectual task comes more and more home to the peoples of Europe, it will become more and more impossible for them to find themselves divided upon other questions, and that when the next 500 years pass over this university and when the lord rector of that day has to follow in the steps of my noble friend on my right (Lord Rosebery), it will regard international warfare and will speak of international warfare with the same disgust, with the same moral disdain, with which Lord Rosebery speaks of medieval Scotland. (Cheers.)

A Look Into the Juture

"What of those 500 years which are to come as compared with the 500 years which are past? It is very difficult to keep our ideals of temporal perspective in due proportion. I do not venture to prophesy, in fact I believe prophet would venture to make with regard to the coming period-the only prophecy as distinguished from the hope which might be expressed—is of a rather unpleasant kind. namely, that the material resources of the world will by that time, so far as we can judge, have not only diminished materially, but in many parts of the world, not excluding these islands, some of the most important will be exhausted. Just consider how difficult it is to keep this proportion in mind. I have the great honor to be chancellor of Edinburgh University. We regard Edingurgh University as the younger sister of St. Andrews, but after all not so very much younger, but the period that elapsed between the foundation of this university and the foundation of Edinburgh University, that period repeated from the present moment will see our coal supplies of these islands exhausted. Let me turn from that which is not a pleasant reflection to another aspect, perhaps more nearly associated with academic life. What hopes—I venture on no prophecies now-what hopes may we have of the growth of learning? And here I should like, and I venture to strike a more cheerful note. I do not believe that we realize the magnitude of the growth of knowledge that has yet taken place in three generations, in the 60 or 90 years drawing to a conclusion. I do not think we realize how great is that growth compared with previous periods. Our whole view of the world has been revolutionized in that time -our whole view of history, our whole view of science, our whole conception of the material world, our whole knowledge of the growth of progress, of the development of mankind, and of the organic world of which man is but a part. Are we going-can we hope to go-at the same rate of progress during the next 500 years that has marked the growth of knowledge in the last 30, 60 or 90 years? If we can make any such prophecy, if we can entertain any such hope, what will be the position of our great-great-grandchildren, our remote descendants? How far will they have got on beyond the point which we with difficulty, with labor, but, surely, not without success, have been able to reach at the present time?. Will they look back on us not merely in the way that we are justified in looking back to the great men of the Middle Ages? Will they feel progress has been as rapid as it has recently been? The difference between that the only prophecy that any self-respecting our knowledge and their knowledge in 500 years time will be incomparably greater, without powers of measurement, greater than the difference that separates us from the great schoolmen of the 13th, 14th and 15th centuries.

I hope it may be so. The Probably Growth of Knowledge

"I hope that our knowledge of nature and that our conquests over nature will go on at the same rate of growth as they have gone on in the years which are remembered by many of those whom I am addressing, and if that expectation be carried out then it is impossible for us to form the slightest conjecture of what the world will be 100 years or 150 or 200 years hence. Whether these hopes are destined to fulfilment or whether after a great outburst of physicial discovery which has, I believe, exceptionally characterized recent years, whether after that there is to be a pause, a set back, a period of quiescence, no man can tell. But, after all, knowledge breeds knowledge, and the more you pursue your way into the secrets of nature the more instruments are at your command for making yet further advances, and I see no reason to doubt that if, unless mankind mismanages its affairs in the grossest and most scandalous fashion, our descendants will be able to look back upon us as merely beginners and pioneers in the great field of discovery which is open to mankind."

SHAKESPEARE IN 1793

What, we wonder, would happen to the London manager nowadays who should dare to put on the stage such a version of a Shakespearean tragedy as was played in Ireland a hundred years ago? Mrs. Earle in her recent book "Memoirs and Memories," gives a Dublin play bill of 1793, which is well worth quot-

The play was "the tragedy of 'Hamlets' the celeoriginally written and composed by the celebrated Dan Hayes of Limerick and inserted in Shakespeare's works." The title role is taken by a gentleman "who between the acts will perform several soles on the patent bagpipe, which performs two tunes at the same time."-From the University Correspondent.

"Sir," said the haughty American to his adhesive tailor, "I object to this boorish dunning. I would have you know that my great-greatgrandfather was one of the early settlers: "And yet," sighed the anxious tradesman, "there are people who believe in heredity."- Jueen

Neville, Elizabeth of York, Anne Boleyn, Jane Seymour, Katharine Howard, Katharine Parr. German, six: Anne of Bohemia, Anne of Cleves, Varoline of Ansbach, Charlotte of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Caroline of Brunswick.

Adelaide of Saxe-Meiningen. Flemish, two: Matilda of Flanders, Philippa of Hainault.

Danish, two: Anne of Denmark, Alexandra of Arragon. One Scotch, Matilda of Scotland; one Portuguese, Katharine of Portugal; one Italian. Mary of Modena. Sixteen queens were the mothers of the succeeding sovereigns. And sixteen queens were ancestresses of the present King and of Queen Mary. The English kings as a rule acted on the dictum of Weller pere, "beware o' widders," but in one or two cases the crown matrimonial did displace the widow's veil. Eleanor of Aquitaine was, like Anne de Bretagne, a twice crowned queen, though not so reputably; for it was as a widow Anne wedded her second lord, while Eleanor was divorced by her first husband, Louis VII. of France.

She had the strange hap of receiving as her eldest son's bride the daughter of her first husband by his second marriage; saw two sons on the throne; lived to what in her day was extreme old age-over 70; and did not murder fair Rosamund. Her daughter-in-law, Berengaria, it may here be noted, was the only queen of England who was never in England. Henry IV. married Joan, the widowed Duchesse de Bretagne.

Consorts

The number of queens left widows is eighteen, nay, if we include Anne of Cleves, nineteen; but as for long years she had been the monarch's "sister" her status is perhaps doubtful. Of these royal ladies five married again -Adelicia, Isabel of Angouleme, Isabel (the little queen), Katharine of France and Katharine Parr, who mourned her redoubtable spouse something under three months.

Not all were crowned. The plague deferred Jane Seymour's coronation, and within a few months she was dead. Her three successors, too, were uncrowned. Henrietta Maria declined to participate in a service of the English church, and Charles H., perhaps fearing a similar procedure on his wife's part, made no suggestion thereto. The unhappy story of Caroline of Brunswick is well known. The great majority became queen on their marriages, but Eleanor of Castile married Edward while he was heir; Mary of Modena was Duchess of York, Caroline of Ansbach, Princess of Wales, as was her granddaughter of Brunswick, and her descendants of Denmark; and Adelaide of Saxe-Meiningen was Duchess of Clarence.

The present queen is the only one who has been wife of the heir apparent and then queen. She is the first Englishwoman to be on the throne for 360 years, and like thirteen of her predecessors is descended from Alfred the Great. The shortest reign of a queen consort was that of Anne of Cleves, not quite four months; while good Queen Charlotte, coming as a bride of 17, occupied her throne fiftyseven years.

Canadian Physician Made It

Wonderful New Substance Formed By Combining Fruit Juices

It takes Canada to do the really big things that are being done. For thousands of years, people have known that fruit was good for them without knowng exactly why. A Canadian physician experimented until he found out.

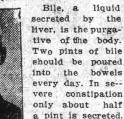

Fruit juice is about nine-tenths water and one-tenth solid matter. And this solid mater is eight-ninths sweet and one-ninth bitter. It is the bitter principle that is the curative part of fruit. To get the full benefit of fruit, one must eat great quantities of fresh fruit. By the discovery of which I suffered for many years." To cure Constipation, the liver must be stimulated to pour out more bile and the weak muscles strengthened.

Schooner is Total Loss

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10 .- The fourmasted schooner Oliver J. Olson, lumher-laden, Gray's Harbor to Guaymas, was blown ashore at Cape Falco, Lower California, during the recent hurricane in southern waters, according to advices received today by the owners, Olson and Mahoney of this city, Captain C C. Stream and his crew of 10 men escaped, but the vessel is a total loss according to the captain's report. No details of the wreck were received but it is understood that she encountered the same storm which forced the ran ama liner Panama to return to port recently. The Olson was a 667 ton steamer, built at Aberdeen, Wash., in 1900 No estimate of the value of the cargo was given out here today.

Force of Three Thousand Men with Field Guns Attempts Recapture of Tripoli and is Beaten Off with Loss

TRIPOLI. Oct. 10 .- The Turks apparently do not intend to abandon Tripoli to the Italians without further resistance. For several days horsemen have been reconnoitering in the vicinity of Italian outposts. Several times at night they have been discovered by the searchlights of the warships, and shells drove them back into the hills.

About 1 o'clock this morning 3,000 Turkish troops with field guns were discovered advancing in two columns with the evident intention of recap-turing the town. A large body of na-tives marched with the troops and presented a formidable array. The Italian commander, however, had an intimation that such an attempt probably would be made, and his men were prepared. The Italian guns were well placed, and the Turks were met with a heavy artillery and rifle fire to which they replied with equal energy. It moonlight and the fleet turned the search lights on the contending forces. When the engagement was at its height, the battleships directed their shells so as to cover the Island front and flank. For more than an hour the firing in force was continuous, but at 2 o'clock it ceased. The Turks retired in good order, although it is reported that they suffered heavy loss. Another body of Turks tried to turn the Italian eastern flank, but without success The Italian casualties were slight. The fleet pursued the retiring Turks with a heavy shell fire until 6 o'clock in the morning.

Looting of Tripoli The looting by the Arabs, which occurred after the bombardment and the disorderly flight of the Turks was to great extent the work of 450 criminals left in prison who beat down the doors and escaped. The looters made a clean sweep of the Vali's palace, the public buildings, the barracks and the forts. Nothing was left but the bare walls and a great litter of official documents. Even doors and win-magazines pillaged.

The Turks appear to have enormous supplies of ammunition, guns, cartridges and shells have been recovered, and the Italians have blown up three large powder magazines. Laborers and escaped prisoners are constantly being recaptured.

Signs of loot are visible on all sides in the incongruous attire worn by miserable negroes and ragged native children, who for the first time in their lives are able to wear boots. fezes and fine clothes formerly the summer uniforms of Turkish soldiers. One of the curious sights of the town is the appearance of the Turkish police and soldiers who have been enolled in the Italian service, all clad in Turkish uniforms and wearing Turkish arms, accompanying the Italian governor and other officials and aiding the Italian marines to restore order and arrest criminals.

A smart engagement followed, and three torpedo boats were severely damaged and sunk. The fourth escaped by hoisting a foreign flag.

Italian Force Landed ROME, Oct. 10.-The first Italian expeditionary force which left Naples October 5, was landed at Tobruk, Tripoli, today. It consisted of infantry, artillery and a company of engineers. The largest part of the total force sailed from Naples last night and another fleet of transports left Taranto at sunrise today. These three groups will assemble as one east of Malta. The landing of a whole army corps on the Tripolitan coast is looked on as one of the most difficult operations of the war despite the fact that little fear of an attack by the enemy is entertained. Accordingly every precaution looking to the safety of the troops has been taken. The battleship convoy covers a mov ing area over one mile wide and five miles long. Within this square the transports appear secure from any danger except the ever-present one of the

According to advices from Constantinople, it appears that Turkey desired to have a Christian in the post of foreign minister, and urged several Armenians successively to accept the offer.

The naval attaches of all Europes countries and the United States, Japan and China, who accompany the expedition, were most cordially received by the Italian naval and military officers.

The great secrecy concerning the sailing of the expedition is explained by the fact that the government realized the danger from a surprise attack on the forces at Tripoli because of the withdrawal from the blockade along that coast of ships to convoy the transports. The sailors and troops landed at Tripoli were not considered sufficient to resist a serious offensive movement. Reports from Tripoli say the town is rethe second act of The Revolution before an immense meeting of the Unionist Association on Saturday.

"I hope," said Balfour, "that our people will find the spirit in which we must approach this question in the decision reached by the Canadian people. The Canadian decision extended far beyond the borders of Canada, and miss, have beneficial results for the Empire at large. The decision of Canada shows how impossible it is to maintain the present system of things. Our colonies are not believers in the system spoken of as free trade.

Unless this country meets the Situation we will have Canada. Australia, New Zealend and other great communities making their special commercial tariffs with other countries. This country will awake some fine morning to find that these local communities, loyal as they are have instituted a system of tariffs in which we will find ourselves at a disadvantage. Such a state of affairs must have a fatal effect upon the unity of the British Empire."

Mr. Balfour declared that the system of commercial defence was as necessary as any other defence, but he did not propose any plan. He specified home rule and disestablishment as constituting the "second act of the Liberals' attempted revolution."

"The Conservative Party mist not, "he said," leave the constitution in the mud where the Liberals had put it, but must rebuild and strengthen the second chamber with a representative element."

Contemplated Structure of Three Storeys Will Cost in Neighborhood of $140,000 —Site is Secured

If favorable action be taken at a special meeting of the local lodge of Odd Fellows to be held this evening another big block will be reared on View street in the near future. The plans for the structure have been drawn and the cost estimated; and it is only now remains for the members of the lodge to give their approval to the scheme before construction can be undertaken.

The property on which it is proposed o erect the building is situated on the north side of View street, a short dows were removed, and the powder distance above the Y. M. C. Recently it was decided to sell the Odd Fellows block and tenders for the same were called for. The bids were not considered satisfactory and it was thereupon decided not to sell at the present time. An arrangement was, however, made for the leasing of the Clarence hotel property to Mr. L. W. Bick for a term of ten years.

The need of larger quarters for the accommodation of the various lodges of the city becoming more pressing steps were taken for the erection of the block on View street which it is now proposed to build, and at the meeting this evening final action will be taken preliming ary to the awarding of the contract.

B. C. Electric Railway Company Secures Over 200 Acres of Land to be Used for Recreation Purposes

Persistent rumors have been afloat for the past few days to the effect that th B. C. Electric Railway company, in pursuance of its general policy of expansion in order to keep pace with the marvelous growth of the city, had acquired a large area of land in the vicinity of Ten Mile Point. From inquiries, however, it appears that there is no doubt that the company as secured the land in question, some 200 and odd acres. It is believed that it is intended to convert the same into a public park in the not distant future. Ten Mile Point is that neck of land which runs southeast and furnishes the eastern shore of Cadboro bay. From a scenic standjoint it is very attractive It is argued by those closely in touch with the situation that it is a very natural development of its policy that the B. C. Electric railway should have made the move indicated. The famous Uplands' farm property on the eastern shore of Cadboro bay, which recently passed into the hands of a powerful French syndicate, will shortly necessitate the extension of the street railway to that point, and Ten Mile Point is, figuratively s speaking, but a stone throw away, It is assumed that the Hillside avenue line, which is to be constructed almost immediately, will ultimately be extended to the Uplands Farm, in fact just as soon as the latter has been developed, as plans call for, as the choicest resi-

-180 Miles of Trackage, Shops and Material Yards so extensive that $7,000,000 are to be spent forthwi and 5,000 men ultimately given permanent employment.

The existing terminals of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company in Vancouver have proved absurdly inadequate, and the Company has therefore decided on improvements of a magnitude: -That will equip Vancouver as no other Pacific Coast Port is equipped,

-That will enable the Canadian Pacific Railway to maintain on the Pacific Coast that supremcy over its rivals which it enjoys elsewhere in Canada, and adequately arm Vancouver to outstrip Seattle, Portland,

Los Angeles and San Francisco as the world city of the Pacific. The Canadian Northern, the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and a second Great Northern line are headed for Vancouver, but the Greatest of America's railway systems proposes to be ready for every kind and degree of competition, and while its rivals are building their lines, it will be building terminals.

The new terminals are located seventeen miles from the centre of Vancouver proper, thus necessitating a new suburban City, which will infallibly become Vancouver's Greatest industrial suburb. At present the new town is spoken of as Coquitlam, that being the name of the rural municipality in which it is situated, but a more striking and imposing name is desired. The railway company has already spent $1,000,000 in purchasing about Twelve Hundred Acres required for its own uses from the Coquitlam Terminal Company, Ltd., and the latter has reserved 1,500 acres of surrounding land for the townsite, but it is not possible to state when the official townsite lots will be placed on sale, though it is hoped to inaugurate the sale sometime this fall. Plans and surveys are being made as rapidly as possible. In the meantime a name, a name worthy of the dignified position the new City will command, is required, and to stimulate the wits of the bright men and women who are interested in the glorious epic of the conquest of the Great West, now being wrought before their eyes in mighty deeds of industrial and commercial prowess, the Townsite Company have decided to offer

The two hunters who knew practically nothing of the country, were in-a bad plight. Their legs were cut from slipping over rocks and when dis covered they were about to light a fire and give up their search for the railway track.

They left here Sunday morning to join another party of the company's employees who went out on Saturday morning. They did not meet the first party but started out on Sunday to d some shooting on their own account When nightfall came on they were un-

EGERIA GOES

Mr. S. Goldberg Bought. Old Warship at Auction Yesterday on Account of Vancouver Branch of Navy League

H. M. S. Egeria was sold by the Ad hiralty at auction yesterday to ar. S. Goldberg on behalf of the Vancouver branch of the Navy League for $6800. There were a number of shipbreakers present from Seattle and San Francisco and bids were advanced quickly from $1000 until Mr. Stewart Williams knocked the old hydrographic vessel down to the Vancouver man for $6800, Mr. Goldberg also bought two whalers and a cutter, all the suit of sails of the Egeria, which brought $300, compasses, instruments, even a couple of old Gardne machine guns for the Navy League. The sale, which will be continued today comprises a large assortment of things from old brass candlesticks to silver ware, from lounging chairs taken from the wardroom to hammocks used by the lower deck, even the old leggings of the former crew being offered for sale. The bidding was spirited and the assortments brought fair prices.

Arrangements will be made by the officers of the Vancouver branch of the Navy League to man the Egeria in a few days and steam her to Vancouve where she will be anchored in Burrard Inlet and a commander appointed to instruct the youth of Vancouver in all that pertains to seamanship.

Premier McBride, with Hon. Dr. Young, yesterday morning received as a deputation from the Navy League of Vancouver, Captain Charles Eddie, F.R.A.S., F.R. Met. Soc., and Mr. Ludovic Blackwood, which gentlemen have come to Victoria as delegates of the league to bid upon H.M.S. "Egeria," offered for sale by auction, under in structions of the Admiralty.

Assurances have been given the Pro vincial authorities that sufficient subscriptions have been secured to provide for the maintenance and advantageous utilization of the vessel. Upon previous occasion when the patriotic desires of the league in this connection were presented to the government, an assisting grant of $1,000 from the Provincial treasury was promised, which grantin view of the demonstrated enthusiasm and practical activity of the league in its object-the Premier yesterday consented to double in the event, assurance geing given of its ability to usefully maintain the Egeria for the purposes set forth as a training ship for youthful seamen under the flag.

Albert Leon, Captured by U. S. Secret Service Men at New York, Had Plant at West Coast Point

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 9 .- After a search across the continent and up into British Columbia, the secret service operatives today captured Albert Leon, a Russian Jew and political refugee, as he was about to leave New York for South America. Leon is alleged to be at the head of an extensive counterfeiting gang which has flooded the Pacific Coast with spurious ten-dollar bills during the last year. The secret service was advised today that Leon was alleged to have perfected a process by which he photographed the face of a note which looked so much like surface printing that many experts declared it to have been printed from an etched plate. Two of Leon's alleged confederates, Rudolph Swanson and Fred Mernek, were arrested in Chicago two weeks ago, charged with passing counterfeit money. Leon arrived in this country about three years ago. He took up a section of land near Beaumont, Los Angeles, Cal., where it is believed the first spurious notes were made. In December, 1910, he went to Nootka, Vancouver Island, British Columbia, and it was charged that most of his counterfeit work came out of his plant there. The notes of these national banks, it was alleged, were counterfeited by Leon: The Riverside National Bank; the First National Bank, Yuma, Ariz.; First National of Orange; Pasadena Cal., National Bank; First National of Williamsport, Pa., El Centro, Cal., National; First National of Portland, Or .: National Bank of Commerce, Wichita, Kas.; Anglo and London-Paris National Bank of San Francisco; Illinois National of Springfield, Ill.; Blair County National of Tyrone, Pa., and the Crocker National of San Francis-

Leon also was alleged to have counterfeited the ten dollar United States Buffalo note and to have circulated it on the Pacific Coast. The national bank notes were circulated principally in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Ore., Seattle, Chicago and New Notes in Portland.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 9.-Albert Leon, who was arrested in New York today on a charge of counterfeiting was up to the time the Associated Press dispatch was received, believed by the secret service officials here to be in this city. The last counterfeit note to be discovered alleged to be his work was the Crocker National Bank note. This was secured in Portland out portfolio.

A seat in the cabinet was offered to Rodolphe Forget of Montreal), who declined it for the time being, as the supposed to have come here after the arrest of his gang in Chicago on September 2. Leon, it developed at the time of the arrest, was in a building across the street from where his gang was caught.

The "plant" at hootks Sound Vancouver Island, was raided shortly after the arrests were made in Chicago. Since then the place has been under nectation that Leen himself would sooner or later return there.

That plant consisted of some splen-did cameras and other paraphernalia and some notes in the process of pho-tographing. At that time the process was supposed to be a photo-etching, but the story from Washington would indicate that the work is a color-photographic process.

According to local officials, the first counterfeit said to be traceable to the gang of which Leon is alleged to be the head, was discovered in Los Angeles on September 29, 1910, and was a Pasadena National Bank note. The next was a note of the First National Bank of Williamsport, Pa., then one of the El Centro National Bank of En Centro, Cal., and another on the First National Bank of Portland, Ore. These four notes were picked up within a month. So far as this coast is concerned, the gang kept under cover for almost a year-until September 12. 1911, when one of their notes was picked up. The last note found was the Crocker note, picked up here on Thursday.

Few prints of each notes are lieved to have been struck off, perhaps not more than half a dozen. Only one note of a kind has so far been picked up in any one city. The notes are splendid counterfeits. They are, however, blue-green instead of the proper color, and the serial number slightly darker. The Crocker note was defective in that the treasury number was printed in black instead of blue.

The Plant at Nootka. In the arrest vesterday morning of Albert Leon, a crook of international status, and one of the cleverest counterfeiters with whom the United States secret men have yet had to cope, Yanguwer Island has lost from among its residents of many diverse nationalities a genius whose ability to manufacture apprious currency has successive. nationalities a genius whose ability to manufacture spurious currency has successfully been pitted against the shrewdest of American bank cashiers. In his two-story log house on land he had but a few months ago secured at Nootka, on Nootka Sound, Leon has been busily engaged turning out the artistic counterfeits which have been circulated far and wide throughout the United States. Recently counterfeit bills have been in circulation on the Canadian side of the line, and it is possible that Leon did not confine his attention wholly to the currency of Uncle Sam.

A message from the secret service headquarters at Washington conveyed the information to the provincial police headquarters here yesterday that Leon had been captured.

It was because of the arrest of his partner in crime, Swanson, at Chicago, that the headquarters of the crooks were located at Nootks. Swanson and another confederate under the "third degree" gave up the secret of the hiding place of Leon, the master mind of the gain. Immediately two secret service men, Rester and Glover, came to Victoria and enlisted the aid of the provincial police authorities. On September 17 they went to Nootkal of the steamer Tees and were met by Provincial Constable McLeod, whose headquarters are at Clayoquot. Leod, whose headquarters are at Clayoquot. I'wo miles inland from Nootka Sound Leon's house was discovered. Within was found a thoroughly up-to-date photographic gallery, with all the necessary apparatus, including with all the necessary apparatus, including a very expensive camera, acids and a quantity of fine paper such as would be used in the manufacture of counterfeit bills. But Leed was not to be found. Inquiries established the fact that some time previous to the visit of the officers he had started for the visit of the officers he had started for the outside, leaving his house in charge of a resident of the district. From statements made before he went away he was expected to return on the Tees, which sailed 'from Victoria last Saturday. A close watch was kept here and at Nootka, but he did not put kept here and at Nootka, but he did not put in an appearance.

Swanson, one of the suspects under arrest at Chicago, was earlier in the year also at Nootka, staying some time, but he left evidently with a quantity of the spurious bills which it was his work to dispose of throughout the States.

When here the secret service men stated that Leon was a Russian Jew, a man involved in old world criminal work, and one of the smoothest of any known for years. His work would indicate that he was a past master in the art of photography.

If is work would indicate that he was a past master in the art of photography.

Leon is described as a man of about 27 years of age, about five feet, six inches in height and prepossessing looking. He is an accomplished linguist, a good musiciant and well educated. At Nootka he kept much to himself, and had little to do with any of the residents of that lonely goot. any of the residents of that lonely spot was notable in more ways than one. at the same table for the first time pubnce the election were Sir Wilfrid Laurer, leader of the defeated Liberal party, and Mr. R. L. Borden, the victorious chieftain of the Conservative party.

After announcing that on account of the elections his departure had been delayed from October 6 to October 12, and expressing a wish that conventions might perhaps be broken and that he might once again visit Canada, Earl Grey spoke in part as follows, his address being punctuated with long and loud applause:

You have all been very kind to me to Lady Grey and to my daughters, and it is not, believe me, possible for any of us to wrench away the roots that have entertwined our afjections round Ottawa and its people during even years, and to transplant them across the tlantic without suffering many painful winges and tuggings of the heart.

"Well, gentlemen, I am glad that my last ublic association with Ottawa should be rough the medium of your Canadian Club. e first Canadian invitation I received in Engad after my appointment as Governor-Genral was from the Canadian Club at Ottawa. I as warned that the Canadian Club might be a angerous nationalistic institution, and its ultimate aim and ambition might be complete inendence.

Gentlemen, I confess the warning did not reatly terrify or unnerve me. I was one of hose who had such an intense belief in the adantage and privilege attaching to British citizenship that I could not conceive the possibilty of any self-governing portion of the Empire in its senses ever thinking that there could be a nobler future and a greater destiny for it outside rather than inside the British Empire.

"Yes, gentlemen, if the evolution of the Empire is to be on sound lines, on lines leading to greatness, to the greatness of the whole as well as to the greatness of the parts, that evolution must be based on the unreserved and unstinted recognition of autonomy of the self-governing

"I have from the first moment of my arrivat in Canada been the enthusiastic and wholesouled friend of the Canadian Club. I am in love with the club because it responds to the higher requirements of my being. It carries the badge of no sect; it wears the livery of no

Autonomy is Part of Empire Greatness

"The only criticism that so far is I am aware, has been passed upon me during the last seven eyars is that I am sometimes perhaps too imperialistic.
"Gentlemen, it is because I regard the British Empire as the most potent instrument ever conceived by man for diffusing the blessings of law and order, freedom and duty, ser nice and mercy throughout the world.

"In the imperialism of which I am a devotee there is no question of interference by the parliament of one kingdom with the parliament of another kingdom or dominion within the Empire. No, gentlemen, every self-governing country in the British Empire enjoys security so long as it retains its allegiance to the British Crown, that the strength of the Empire shall be exercised in its behalf whenever necessary to secure it in the continuous enjoyment of its rights. When I came to this country seven years ago Canada was still in her colonial clothes. Imperial garrisons at Italifax and Esquimalt proclaimed the fact that you, the people of Canada, were content to lie down and depend upon the over-burdened people of the United Kingdom for your protection.

Finds Pleasure in Canada's Self-Dependence

"No act in my Governor-Generalship has given me greater pleasure than that announcing the readiness of the Dominion to make herself responsible for her own defence and authorizing the withdrawal of the Imperial troops from Canadian ports. I was warned that this withdrawal meant the end of the Imperial connection. That was not my view. To me, the withdrawal of the Imperial garrisons from your Canadian seaports was a proclamation to the world that a new national spirit had been born in Canada, a spirit which was too proud to add a single ounce more than was necessary to the weight of the Empire to the over-burdened shoulders of John Bull.

"It is true that Canada is at present a dependent independency. That is a result, not of your desire, but of present conditions. You are dependent for your security on the su-premacy of the British navy. It may be said by some that you are dependent on the Monroe Doctrine. Well, if you examine into the mat-ter, I think you will be satisfied that the Monroe Doctrine, like the independence of the self-governing dominions, also floats on the British navy. I do not know at what price you could value it if the British navy were stripped from the seas. If I have offended-which I do not admit-the limit of my offence is that I have never hesitated to give expression to my conviction that the continuance of your liberties and of your prosperity depends on the maintenance of British supremacy on the seas. This I believe to be so generally admitted as not to be controversial. Nor am I giving expression to any controversial opinion when I say that I do not believe there is a single person in Canada who, if he or she were convinced that the continuance of your liberties required the sacrifice of your lives, would not be prepared to make the necessary sacrifice.

Rejoices in Canada's Growing Prosperity
"I have rejoiced as an Englishman over the material developments of Canada, and over her emergence from the status of a daughter to that of a sister assistant nation in the Empire. If you examine the speeches I have made since I became Governor-General, I don't think you will be able to find one single occasion on which I have referred to you as a colony or as colonials. I have also endeavored to emphasize the character of your relationship to the Empire, by substituting wherever possible for the expression in ordinary use when I came into office of 'my ministers' the more dignified expression of 'His Majesty's Canadian ministers.'

"It has always been my practice when referring to the loyalty of Canada, to speak of her loyalty not to England, but to the Empire. I recognize that at present the people of Canada have no voice in the administration of the Empire outside the self-governing dominions; but the time is coming when the people of Canada may demand to be admitted into a fuller participation in the obligations and responsibilities of the Empire. The privilege of bearing the burden of this duty is at present vested, and vested by consent of the Dominions, in the parliament of the United Kingdom. The parliament of the United Kingdom is the trustee and guardian of the great inheritance into which Canada and the other self-governing dominions shall one day enter and, in as much as you are destined one day, by reason of your wealth, population and strength, to be perhaps the most powerful partner in the Empire, not even excluding Great Britain, the way in which the parliament of the United Kingdom administers that trust must necessarily be to you a matter of the deepest concern.

Looks Forward to Future Visits Here

"Thanks to improved transportation facilities. I have been able to make the acquaintance of nearly every part of your broad Dominion. I look forward to breaking the unwritten convention, which appears to penalize a former Governor with a sentence of permanent exile, by perhaps taking the shortest route from England to your prairie provinces, by the Hudson's Bay Railway. I should like to say here, with the view of contradicting any impression that may exist to the contrary, that I have no views as to the possibility of Fort Churchill being a superior harbor to Port Nelson. On the contrary, I am inclined to think that the engineering considerations will favor Nelson being made the terminus. In any case the construc-tion of the Hudson's Bay Railway will for the first time bring the Maritime Provinces into close contact with the Prairie Provinces. Thus the Hudson's Bay Railway will help to consolidate the Dominion by establishing a new relationship between the eastern and western parts of Canada, and will also enable the producers of the West Indies and the Prairie Provinces to exchange their products with each other to their common advantage.

"I mentioned Newfoundland as a country which would have a new market provided for its products by the Hudson's Bay Railway. May I now suggest, not as Governor-General. but as an Englishman who loves Canada and Newfoundland and the Empire, that you should bestow a little more of your attention and more of your favors upon this oldest colony of the Crown. You will not win their affection by keeping aloof from them. Just as the mother in the backwoods of the province of Ouebec shudders at the word 'navy' because she believes the result of its creation will be to tear by force from her clinging arms the babe of her heart, so there are families in Newfoundland who believe the result of confederation will be to ram their bahies as wads down the mouths of your cannon.

Emphasizes Ideals of Canadian Club

"Gentlemen, there are many things which I would like to say to you, the members of the Canadian Club. It is up to you, if I may say so once more, to keep the national ideals high. Let me beseech you to watch jealously the influences which help to mould the character of your children; secure the best teachers that money can buy-teachers who will teach children to think for themselves and to live for others; see that the imaginations of your children are properly stirred by well-selected pictures, both on the walls of your schools and by the moving-picture shows which, unless carefully controlled, are apt to poison the minds of the young with vicious inclinations.

"I do not like to sit down without giving expression to my recognition of the singular good fortune I have enjoyed during the seven years of my happy Governor-Generalship in having Sir Wilfrid Laurier as His Majesty's Prime Minister of Canada and Mr. Borden as Leader of His Majesty's loyal Opposition, and I should like to congratulate the people of Canada on their good fortune also in having secured as captains of the two great contending parties, leaders whose characters make them a high standard of example for the imitation of the whole Dominion.

"For seven years it has been my privilege to discuss matters of state with Sir Wilfrid Laurier. I have never during that long period, heard as much as one single expression of vindictive annoyance or of selfish ambition from the lips of Sir Wilfrid, and he will continue as Leader of His Majesty's loyal Opposition to be the same great servant of the state that he has been for fifteen years its Prime Minister. Although I am not obviously so well acquainted with Mr. Borden, I know enough of him to believe that he will continue the high traditions of Sir Wilfrid.

"Happy and fortunate is the country that places its destiny in the hands of such men."

The Palace of Holyrood

"The Palace of Holyrood," observed R. L. Stevenson, "has been left aside in the growth of Edinburgh, and stands gray and silent in a workmen's quarter and among breweries and gas works." The gas works have gone since R.L.S. wrote, but the breweries remain, and otherwise he environs of the palace are little changed. Among them, however, must be numbered the magnificent royal park, the picturesque line of serrated rocks which form the Salisbury Crags, and the lofty hill, crowned by its noble lion's head, which owes its name of "Arthur's Seat" its associations with the old Arthurian egends of Edinburgh.

Of royalty itself Holyrood has seen but lite since James VI. of happy memory left it to ccupy the throne of Elizabeth.

King George will be the first reigning King the second reigning sovereign) to occupy the value since the time of Charles I., while Queen lary will be the first Queen Consort to reside here since Queen Anne of Denmark, James L's Queen, quitted its walls. In 1633 Charles was crowned in the chapel royal at Holyrood, nd in 1641 he spent about three month in the alace—not very happily. From that time till eorge IV. visited Edinburgh in 1822 no Britin monarch crossed its threshold. And George V., while holding various state ceremonies in lolyrood, resided in Dalkeith House. Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort also ived at Dalkeith on the occasion of their first visit to Edinburgh in 1842. In the autumn of 1850, however, Her Majesty and Prince Albert resided for a couple of days in Holyrood, and subsequently the Queen, when going to or returning from Balmoral, several times broke her journey at Edinburgh, and spent a night in the palace. In April, 1903, King Edward held a court at Holyrood, but His Majesty and Queen Alexandra resided at Dalkeith House.

Although not the oldest of the Scottish royal palaces, that of Holyrood House is in many respects the most interesting. It apeals to the imagination as none other does. has been the scene of some of the most plendid, the most romantic and the most agic incidents in Scottish history-or coronaons, royal marriages, festivities, court revels, ots, conspiracies, feuds, intrigues, murders. Moreover, while Linlithgow and Falkland alaces are of earlier date, for nearly four and alf centuries before the erection of a royal ace at Holyrood the magnificent abbey is stood there was closely associated with Scottish sovereigns. Founded in 1128 by I., this religious house was frequently as a royal residence. Parliaments met its walls, and in its church Kings were whed, wedded and buried. The erection of a royal palace was begun out 1501 by James IV., and from his time ward it was the chief residence of the Scotmonarchs. It is noteworthy that one of first events connected with it was the marage of James to the Princess Margaret, ughter of Henry VIII. of England-from hich marriage came the union of the crowns. ames V. extended the palace, and it has associations of a peculiarly close and interesting

Here the lovely Queen of Scots enjoyed a brief period of her happiness after her return from France; here she read with George Buchanan, played chess with her favorites, danced with Chastelard, listened to the music of Rizzio and held stormy interviews with John Knox. Here she wedded Darnley; here Rizzio was slain, and here she celebrated her nuptials with the ruffianly Bothwell.

James VI. lived chiefly at Holyrood before his accession to the throne of England, and it was here Sir Robert Carey brought him tidings of the death of Queen Elizabeth. He visited the palace only once afterward. The two visits of Charles I. have already been referred to. While no reigning sovereign occupied Holyrood subsequently for a couple of centuries, James II. lived there twice while he was Duke of York.

The palace, too, played a romantic part in the rising of 1745. For six weeks Prince Charles Edward held a court in it and gave receptions, balls and so forth. After the French Revolution Holyrood twice provided a residence for the exiled royal family of France. In 1859, King Edward, then Prince of Wales, lived in Holyrood while he was studying, and in 1863-1864 the Duke of Edinburgh, afterwards Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, resided in the palace while he was attending Edinburgh University.

Of the ancient Abbey of Holyrood, frequently plundered and burned, nothing remains but a part of the fine church, afterward the Chapel Royal. The palace was set fire in 1544 by the English, and although at once repaired, was again destroyed three years later. Rebuilt almost immediately, it suffered once more during the civil wars, when most of the building was burned by Cromwell's troops. After the Restoration it was rebuilt by Charles II., who took a great interest in the work and made several suggestions which, it is said, were treated with great respect, although they were ignored.

The existing palace, with the exception of a remnant of the building of James V., (the northwestern towers, in which are situated the historical apartments), is the structure of Charles II.

The residential part of the palace includes throne room, drawing rooms, dining rooms, etc., and several have a magnificent outlook towards Arthur's Seat and the Salisbury Crags. In anticipation of the present royal visit the building has been thoroughly overhauled and extensive renovations carried out externally and internally. Many modern facilities have been introduced. Most of the private apartments of the King and Queen have been redecorated, and Her Majesty has taken a great interest in the details of the work. The wall papers have been selected by

"If I buy you a seat in the Stock Exchange. will you agree to go to work?"

'I ain't crazy for work, dad. Make it a seat in the Senate." +- Courier-Journal.

FARMING FOR MINISTERS

Most every one has heard of the Rev. Moses Breeze, who gave up an influential pastorate to get into home mission work, in which he has won a national reputation through his sensational activities. Rev. Breeze is out with a new idea almost every day, and each sees a little bit better than its predecessor. Here's his latest, as set forth by a writer in Munsey's Magazine:

"In the first place, Breeze believes that the training of ministers is deficient. The machinery for making ministers seems to have no relationship to the purpose of its product. Foreign missionaries, city pastors, theological professors, and country parsons all pass through the same hopper.

"Why shouldn't the theological seminaries prepare men for the particular work they have to do, just as a university gives vocational training according to the special bent of the student? They will do so, in time. But Breeze is taking ridicule with Christian complacency just now for advocating a chair of agriculture side by side with the dignified chairs of theology and philosophy. "Of course, he isn't backing water on the proposition. Largely as the result of his efforts, hundreds of ministers in the Middle West have attended the agricultural summer schools of the universities. These men go back to their parishes full of intelligent sympathy for the farmer, and become the apostles of scientific agriculture. They make their churches what the country church should be everywhere—the real centre of rural life, the clearing-house of advanced methods and experiments. The sacred doors are thrown open for institutes and conferences on every subject pertaining to farm life, and pews, which were solemnly dedicated to the spread of predestination often hold men and women who are much more interested in a lecture on poultry-raising."

"Then you don't think I practice what I preach, eh?" queried the minister in talking with one of the deacons at a meeting.

"No, sir, I don't," replied the deacon. "You've been preachin' on the subject of resignation for two years, an' ye haven't resigned yet."-Tid-Bits

When our English cousins speak of secondhand garments they say "left off" where we say "cast off." The following advertisement recently appeared in a London paper:

"Mr. and Mrs. Hardy have left off clothing of all kinds. They can be seen any day from 3 to 6 p.m."-Ladies' Home Journal.

"Judge, I simply have an irresistible im-"I have those irresistible impulses sometimes," said the judge. "I have one right now to send you to jail. Sixty days."-Kansas City

British M.P. on the Empire

A Unionist demonstration attended by 15,-000 people was held in Witton Park, Blackburn, England, recently, the principal speaker being Mr. A. D. Steel-Maitland, M.P., the head of the Conservative Central Office.

Mr. Steel-Maitland said no one would deny that during the last six weeks this country had had to deal with problems such as it had not been faced with for a hundred years. There were rumors of war between Germany and France, and the end was not yet. There had been strikes, and, though at the present moment there was peacefulness, yet, after all, the whole of the industrial life of the country was just like the big whirlpool at the bottom of Niagara which occasionally broke out into great waves. Having observed that in politics as in medicine it was the doctor and not the quack whom they wanted to cure the patient, Mr. Steel-Maitland said he noticed that on the last day in parliament the Chancellor of the the Exchequer had some very hard words to say about Mr. Keir Hardie. He (the speaker) did not pretend to defend what Mr. Keir Hardie had said, but the last person who had the right to criticize him of all people was the Chancellor of the Exchequer. As he believed the hight hon, gentleman was fond of texts he would give him one. There was one text which ran: "Paul may plant and Apollos water." If Mr. Keir Hardie watered bad feelings in Wales the planting was done at Limehouse and Newcastle by the very man who was accusing him of doing it. (Hear, hear.) The strike troubles were not to be cured, as the Radical politician told them they would be. by the Insurance Bill and giving the men higher wages. The dock laborer under this bill would be a deposit contributor. He was not insured at all. He got what the dog got from the mistress, who said she was going to fatten it, and said to the dog, "Jack, bite a bit off your own tail.' There was no doubt that the dock laborer had an uncommonly hard life of it, but it was not so much higher wages he required—he already got five bob a day—but more regular work. What they wanted in a case like that—and he was sure Unionists could do it-was to make their labor more regular. and they could do it perfectly well.

Apart from tariff reform, Unionists were told they had not got a programme. They might not have a flaring, staring programme like the Socialists, but they had got a programme, and that was one of them, that where they had got these conditions they could make them right by applying the proper remedies. The same applied to the railway porter. If he was working under the conditions these men did, he should be discontented too; but these conditions could be remedies without upsetting the whole of society.

Meeting the arguments of the free-traders that the fact that the railway goods traffic had increased was a justification for the continuance of the present fiscal policy, he said it was true that from 1890 to 1908 the goods traffic in minerals had gone up from £42,000,000 to nearly £60,000,000, but for the same period Germany's had increased from £44,000,000 to I Journal.

£85,000,000. Not only that, but the wages of the German railway servant had gone up 25 per cent in ten years, whilst on British railways they had been stationary. Some one would say that was because the railways were state-owned. Not a bit of it. In America they had got just the same.

What was the industrial and national strength of England compared with other countries? Fifteen or 20 years ago we were supreme in all industries. In the matter of coal mining we were ahead of every country. Today we had fallen behind the United States and just took third place behind Germany. Take the iron trade; we had fallen behind both countries. Take the test of wealth. Forty years ago we were supreme, but the United States had outstripped us, and Germany was passing us just at this minute. Take the population. Forty years ago there was no country to say us nay. Today Germany had three men for our two, and the United States two men for every one in the United Kingdom. Forty years ago no nation in the world could stand up to us, but today there was another fleet expressly built to challenge ours on the high seas. We had got one safety which other nations had not. Our colonies were increasing at a rate greater than our foreign rivals. One talked about the British Empire, but was it anything more than an empire in name? Not if it was tested by countries like Germany or France, where, if one part went to war the whole country went to war. We trusted that our colonies would help us, as they did in the South African war, but they had expressly reserved the right not to do so if they did not want. In that way no one would say our Empire was an empire in reality but in name. It was at this time, of all times, that we ought to be united in face of our growing rivals. He asked them to support the Unionists not only because they had a positive programme, but because it was alone the policy which could guaranteed them safety and prosperity. (Cheers.)

The story is told of a man who had great difficulty in spelling words with "ei" and "ie" in them. One day a friend offered to give him an infallible rule for such cases. "It is a rule," he said. "that is forty-seven years has never failed

The man resumed: "The rule is simply this: "Write you 'i' and 'e' exactly alike, and put the dot just between them."-Ladies' Home Journal.

The proofreader on a small Middle-Western daily was a woman of great precision and extreme porpriety. One day a reporter succeeded in getting into type an item about Willie Brown, the boy who was burned in the West End by a live wire."

On the following day the reporter found on his desk a frigid note asking "Which is the west end of a boy?"

It took only an instant to reply: "The end the son sets on, of course."-Ladies' Home
