TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Interesting Session of Teachers' Association for Annapolis and Digby Counties Held at Digby.—Principal Soloman and Dr Hall Contribute to Interest and Value of Discussions

Minutes of twenty-eighth session of the Teacher's Institute for District No. 4

The teachers of Digby and Annapolis Counties held their twenty-eighth session in the Academy Hall Digby on March 23rd and 24th. There were about 100 in attendance. On Wednesday morning at 9.30, President Morse called the meeting to order. On motion the enrollment fee for this year was fixed at ten cents.

After the teachers had enrolled and other preliminary business had been transacted, the program was taken up.

The first lesson was one on the multiplication table by Principal Ruggles of Bear River. The object of this lesson was to enforce upon the teachers the idea that the fundamentals of everything pertaining to factors or multiples were contained in the multiplication table. Principals McGill and Haford spoke on this lesson. Each was of the opinion that the subject of factors was not generally taught intelligently. Miss Hortense Spurr then read an interesting paper on, "A Plea for Aids in Teaching History." It contained many helpful suggestions among which was the necessity of procuring portraits of Kings and all leading characters in history. The author believed that the policies of the different political parties should be plainly outlined in the text books so that the pupils might get an intelligent idea of them.

This paper was discussed by several of the teachers. Prin. Magee thought that history was preeminently the one subject by which we could prepare our pupils for future citizenship. The textbooks are inferior; therefore we must teach the main outlines of our texts and then collect all stories bearing upon the events contained therein. Prin. Ruggles spoke favourably on the paper but advised caution in introducing politics into school work. Mr. B. Havey a retired teacher, but one who is still in touch with all educational work, also complimented the author of the paper, and emphasized the idea of individuality in teaching history. Prin. McGill and Miss Evelyn Smith also made brief remarks on the paper.

On motion of the Institute it was agreed that we hold evening session, so that the program might be completed in order to close on Thursday noon. Prin. Magee of Annapolis was elected Vice President and Prin. Hogg of Digby was re-elected Secretary Treasurer for the ensuing term.

President Morse and a teacher from each county was appointed a committee to nominate an Executive Com. and report at next meeting. Secretary was instructed to forward a telegram to the teachers of Cumberland Co. in session at Parisboro, conveying Easter greetings and hopes for a successful Institute.

How Edmonton Grows

This is the way they do things in Edmonton. It should be remembered that Edmonton was only incorporated in 1904. It now has 24,000 population. It has twenty-two hotels, fifteen banks, eleven public schools, two colleges, four hospitals, twenty churches two sanitariums, Y. M. C. A. etc., street cars electric light and power waterworks, Automatic Telephone System, the latter all owned and operated by the city.

It is served by three transcontinental railways, The Edmonton and Slave Lake, and the Edmonton, Yukon and Pacific. Two years ago it had only one line, a branch of the C.P.R. from Calgary. It has besides these three more lines building.

Its assessed valuation is $22,535,210. Building permits for 1907 $22,535,210. Building permits for 1908 $2,498,847.

During the year 1909 the building operations were more than 50 per cent greater than for the same period in 1908.

The city charter has many unique points and is considered one of the best in Canada. For example, the civic taxation system ensures tax exemption on all improvements. This has acted as a stimulus to property owners. Unoccupied lands are taxed as much as if covered with buildings. This has stimulated building. The man with a vacant lot pays as much as his neighbor with a big stone building.

This has brought wonderful improvements. Men are not fined for being good citizens. The land pays, because it gets its value from the presence of all.

But space forbids more. The people are alive. They have built a city where only a few years ago there were only a few trappers collected around Hudson's Bay trading post.

They have great opportunities. But they made them. Edmonton will be a big city, but it is the people of Edmonton who are responsible.

Obituary.

JUDSON BALCOM.

Mr. Judson Balcom died at his home at Lawrencetown, N. S., March 16th 1910, in the 83rd year of his age. He was in vigorous health until last April, following his business of collector of taxes, an office he filled with great satisfaction to the people for thirty five years, during fifteen years of this time he was also mail carrier and discharged his duties with punctuality and faithfulness.

Mr. Balcom will be greatly missed from the community. He was born at Paradise but lived here since he was a boy and was held in high esteem by the people not only of Lawrencetown but from far and wide.

He was a man of strict and upright business principles, kind to the poor and considerate with all. In business circles his word was as good as his bond. His loss is mourned by a widow and three children Mrs. C. S. Balcom, Mrs. D. B. Durling and Mr. J. A. Balcom and an adopted son, Dr. F. A. Walker of Bradford, Vermont U. S. A. One sister survives him, Mrs. Lenora Durling, and a host of relatives and friends mourn their loss in his death.

The funeral service was largely attended. It was conducted by his pastor Rev. H. G. Mellick. Some familiar hymns were very tenderly and sweetly sung, and Rev. Haddon Balcom led in prayer. Rev. Mr. Mellick and Rev. Mr. Hart gave brief addresses in which they conveyed the deep sympathy of the people to the bereaved relatives and making tender and kind mention of the departed and urging claims of religion upon the hearers.

It was a deeply impressive service. There were many very beautiful floral tributes. Interment took place in the new Cemetery.

The Coming Gyroscopic Age

Nearly thirty years ago Lord Kelvin, then Sir William Thomson, introduced to the British Association for the Advancement of Science, at its meeting in Montreal, a gyrostat—a modification of the gyroscope.

At that time gyroscopes seemed to be little more than scientific toys, the only use of which was to demonstrate some of the laws of motion.

Today there are essential adaptations of the gyroscope to important uses, and the principle involved gives prominence in the railway world.

We have a gyroscopic mariner's compass which is independent of magnetic influence and therefore of local disturbing causes.

Some success has attended efforts to prevent the rolling of boats at sea, by the use of big gyroscopes.

Quite recently we have had an adaptation of the gyroscope to practical uses, which promises to work a revolution in the railway world.

The new Brennan mono-rail car runs on a single rail and the equilibrium of the car is maintained by spinning in a perpendicular plane at three thousand revolutions a minute a steel wheel weighing three-quarters of a ton.

The car is kept upright by the same law that keeps a top upright while spinning.

The car is practically a bicycle, but unlike a bicycle, does not fall down when it stops.

There are two gyroscopes to each car. If one breaks down the other is sufficient to maintain the equilibrium and if "the power is off" the momentum is enough to keep the gyroscopes running for two days and to keep the cars upright for two hours.

The success of the invention has been demonstrated by running of a car unevenly loaded with forty people, and the speed possibilities and the safety are said to be far ahead of the two rail system.

Whether or not there is any probability of the two-rail system being supplanted by the one-rail, it is easy to see that there is a field, especially in new countries, and in war, for a railway system that can be constructed in the form of a single "streak of rust" or a tight rope.

What is perhaps even more important, is the immense field opened for the application of the gyroscopic principle in other directions.

Some of us may have thought that the gyroscope was a toy unworthy of Sir William Thomson's laborious investigation and that the British Association might have found something better to do than to study the principle of top-tops.

But the most important of the world's scientific work has been in the realm of pure science.

It was hundreds of years before the discovery of electricity was turned to any useful purpose and only in the last half century have its possibilities begun to be even dimly appreciated.

The man who invented or discovered the top took a long step towards a marvellous system of rapid transit. Mr. Brennan (whose opinion is entitled to respect, although he is an inventor) says: "Whether a hundred and twenty or two hundred miles an hour, is a mere detail."

But both the man who invented the top and the man who invented the gyroscope had been long preceded by the Infinite and Eternal Intelligence which invented the solar system.—Montreal Star.

People's Fish and Game Protective Association

At the session of the People's Fish and Game Protective Association held in Halifax last week, the officers for the ensuing year were elected. They are as follows:

President—F. C. Whitman, Annapolis. Secretary-Treasurer—A. D. Mills, Annapolis.

Executive—T. N. McGrath, Tusket; W. G. Clarke, Bear River; A. D. Mills, Annapolis; and D. R. Forsman, Bridgewater.

Legal Decision of Local Interest.

Judge Chipman filed his decision a few days ago in the action brought by W. D. McCallum of Truro against Abner S. Williams to cover a commission alleged to be payable under an agreement whereby Mr. McCallum listed the farm of Mr. Williams for sale in the real estate register. Mr. Williams sold his farm himself without any assistance from Mr. McCallum but not withdrawing the terms of the agreement were such that he was entitled to the commission although he had not negotiated the sale. The learned judge has decided against Mr. McCallum on this point and has further decided there was a verbal agreement made when the writing was signed to the effect that if Mr. Williams sold the farm himself he was not to pay any commission. Mr. A. C. Paterson and Mr. S. D. McLellan K. C. of Truro were for the plaintiff and Mr. F. L. Milner for the defendant. The action was tried in Truro last November and created considerable interest among the members of the Truro bar.

Caring for Convalescents

"Chattering and gossiping visitors have no place in the sick room," asserts Dita H. Kinney, R. N., Superintendent of the U. S. A. Nurse Corps in the Women's Home Companion for March, "and to save the patient from such friends is an important duty of his nurse. A few agreeable, low voiced and judicious persons make a pleasant break in the monotony of an invalid's life, and are great aids to cheerfulness, but care must be used regarding the number admitted—never more than two at a time—and a fatiguing succession must be avoided.

"In early convalescence great care should be taken not to strain or tire the eyes. If not conscious of fatigue, the patient may read a little while at a time, but he should be so placed that the light will fall over his shoulder on the book or paper, and not shine directly into his face. He may be read to, as anything which interests and entertains him is a help.

"Convalescents are particularly sensitive to cold, because of their lowered vitality. They should always wear light woolen garments next the skin, and convalescent children should sleep in flannel.

"Change of scene and climate are valuable aids to recovery. After suppurative diseases, hip disease or empyema, a long stay at a warm seashore is beneficial; after acute diseases, choose a warm, sunny place which is easily accessible and where there are plenty of creature comforts. It may be either seashore or inland. After whooping-cough and diphtheria, the sea air is beneficial; after a long fever the mountains are best."

Electric Sleep

Declared to be Analgesia, No Bad Effects.

The search of noted surgeons for an anesthetic with no detrimental effect on the heart or other vital organs apparently has been rewarded at last. The result of investigations here and abroad, which have just been made public here, show that electricity is an anesthetic to produce analgesia.

The discovery is expected by prominent surgeons to revolutionize modern surgery. Electricity as an anesthetic has no bad effects on the heart. It produces a form of insensibility by acting on the nerve centres of the brain, called "electric sleep." When the circuit is opened the influence of anesthetic is immediately lost and the patient becomes conscious without feeling any of the after effects common to the ether and chloroform.

At the Philadelphia General Hospital the city will shortly procure the necessary apparatus and will conduct a series of exhaustive investigations.

EASTER SERVICES

Large Congregations, Choice Music, Floral Tributes and Bright Sunshine Gladden the Hearts of the Pastors of the Various Churches on Easter Day

With bright sunshine without and an equally bright service within, the Easter Festival was commemorated in St. James church with the usual 11 o'clock service. The sanctuary was more than ordinarily attractive, as apart from the festal hangings, beautiful cut-flowers had been contributed, calla lilies by Mrs. Chas. DeWitt, carnations and daffodils by Mrs. O. T. Daniels, and these were supplemented by beautiful Easter lilies, in pots, by Mrs. (Dr.) Freeman. The singing was of the usual high order, both morning and evening, and large congregations were present. Following is the music sung at the morning service:—

Opening Hymn, "Welcome Happy morning."
"Christ our Passover is Sacrificed for us," Humphrey.
Te Deum, Landamus in E flat, E. R. Barrett.

Benedictus, in C, J. F. Bridge.
Anthem, "Hallelujah! Christ is risen," E. A. Clark.

Hymn, "Jesus Christ is risen to day."

Kyrie in "G" flat, Ruggles.
Hymn, "At the Lamb's high feast we sing."

The services in the Baptist church on Easter Day were exceptionally interesting. The pulpit and platform were beautifully decorated with Easter lilies, carnations, hyacinths and other potted plants which lent additional charm to the bright Easter day. The pastor, Rev. N. A. MacNeill preached two very helpful sermons, the theme in the morning being "The Risen Christ." The Anthem "Come See the Place" and the music rendered by the male quartette, as also the hymns were of a bright character, befitting the day. In the anthem the solos were taken by Miss Gladys Reed and Mr. Arthur Charlton. In the evening a new musical feature was a Ladies Quartette which was greatly enjoyed.

The Easter services at Gordon Memorial Presbyterian church were conducted by Rev. M. A. McKinnon of Park Street Presbyterian church, Halifax. The congregations both morning and evening found much pleasure in listening to Mr. McKinnon's interesting discourses, the effect of which was heightened by the unusually impressive and attractive manner in which they were delivered. The text of the morning sermon was "A man shall be as a hiding place from the storm, a covert from the wind and the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." After dwelling on the refuge and consolation the Savior of the world affords at all times and in all circumstances. Mr. McKinnon pointed out how clearly this truth is brought home to us at Easter. Mr. A. O. Price's fine tenor voice was heard to advantage in a solo from Messiah "Thou didst not leave his soul in hell."

The sermon in the evening was a missionary one. Mr. McKinnon specially emphasized the great necessity of faithfulness in ministering to the spiritual needs of the vast foreign population arriving in our Dominion, if we would have it become the grand country of our wishes; giving an interesting account of work in Kootenay. He referred to the noble work done by pioneer ministers in Nova Scotia, and stated that but for the self-sacrifice and devoted labors of these men, we would undoubtedly not be blessed with the high degree of civilization and education to which we have attained.

Easter was fittingly celebrated at the Providence Methodist church, both morning and evening services partaking of the Easter spirit. The morning service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Jost, the pastor Rev. Geo. Johnson, filling his appointment in Granville. The music by the choir, consisted of specially selected Easter music. Two anthems were given, "Death is Hallowed unto Sleep," and "Praise the Lord of our Salvation," also an opening chorus by the full choir, "See the Stone is Rolled Away." The organist, Mrs. A. R. Bishop rendered two fine voluntaries in her usual efficient manner, "Low in the Grave He Lay" by Lowry, and "Glory Be to God" from Hayden's 1st Mass. In the evening the church was filled with a congregation that greatly enjoyed a special musical service given by the Sunday-School, under the capable leadership of Miss Wilkinson entitled "The Risen Lord."

STANLEY AS A FIGHTER.

His Revenge on the Africans For Attacking His Forces.

In the following language Sir Henry M. Stanley describes an attack of natives upon his party during one of his African expeditions: "The ferocious bears down on us with mad speed, its consorts on either flank spouting jets of water into foam and shooting a thrilling chant from 2,000 throats rises louder and louder on our hearing. Presently the poised spears are launched, and a second later my rifles respond with a ripping, crackling explosion, and the dark bodies of the canoes and paddlers rush past us.

"For a short time the savages are paralyzed, but they soon recover. They find there is death in those flaming tubes in the hands of the strangers, and with possibly greater energy than they advanced they retreat, the pursued becoming the pursuers in hot chase. My blood is up. It is a murderous world, and I have begun to hate the filthy, vulturous shonks who inhabit it.

RAVENOUS EATERS.

Gulotony of Soliman and the Appetite of Louis XIV.

Touching the matter of eating, the stories told by the old chroniclers and historians of the abnormal appetites of certain Roman and oriental men of note fairly stagger belief.

Gibbon tells of Soliman, a caliph in the eighth century, who died of acute indigestion in his camp near Chalchis, in Syria, just as he was about to lead an army of Arabs against Constantinople. He had emptied two baskets of eggs and figs, which he swallowed alternately, and the repast was finished with marrow and sugar. In a pilgrimage to Mecca the same caliph had eaten with impunity at a single meal seventy pomegranates, a kid, six fowls and a huge quantity of the grapes of Tayef.

Such a statement would defy belief were not others of a similar character well vouched. Louis XIV. could hardly boast of an appetite as ravenous as Soliman's, but he would eat at a sitting four platefuls of different soups, a whole pheasant, a partridge, a plateful of salad, mutton hashed with garlic, two good sized slices of ham, a dish of pastry and finish this ample repast with fruit and sweetmeats.—London Saturday Review.

Victorian Gods.

If Thackeray, with a brain weighing fifty-eight and one-half ounces, had the biggest head among Victorian writers who had the best features? The choice would seem to lie between Tennyson and Henry Taylor. "That man must be a poet," remarked one of his Cambridge contemporaries when he first saw Tennyson come into the hall at Trinity, and another friend describes him in his undergraduate days as six feet high, broad chested, strong limbed, his face Shakespearean, with deep eyelids; his forehead ample, crowned with dark wavy hair; his head finely poised, his hand the admiration of sculptors. But time dealt none too gently with Tennyson, whereas Henry Taylor, always a distinguished looking man, seems to have grown singularly majestic with years. Grant Duff, meeting him when he was over eighty, notes that "Taylor looks more like Jupiter than ever," and contemporary memoirs are full of references to his Jove-like appearance.—London Standard.

No Chance in History.

Mazzini said that he did not believe that chance existed in history. "A cause must necessarily underlie every event, although for the moment it may appear as the result of apparently accidental circumstances. An Alexander, a Caesar, a Napoleon, are not the results of accident, but the inevitable product of the time and nation from which they spring. It was not Caesar who destroyed the Roman republic. The republic was dead before Caesar came. Sulla, Marius, Catiline, preceded and foreshadowed Caesar, but he, gifted with keener insight and greater genius, snatched the power from them and concentrated it in his own hands. For there was no doubt that he was fitter to rule than all the others put together. At the same time, supposing he had appeared 150 years earlier, he would not have succeeded in destroying the republic. When he came the life had already gone out of it, and even Caesar's death could not restore that."

Nicely Graded.

It is still a tradition that the people of Manchester, England, should give at Liverpool with the proverb, "A Manchester man, a Liverpool gentleman," but it is said, classification is not so strongly marked in Lancashire as in the old days. When stagecoaches were running a guard was once asked, "Who has th' gotten inside, Billy?" Billy consulted his list and replied, "A gentleman fra Liverpool, a mon fra Manchester, a chap fra Owdham and a fellow fra Wigan."

Words of Different Size.

"Did they exchange words?" "Yes, but it wasn't an even exchange. One spoke in English and the other in Russian."—New York Press.

I hardly know so true a work of a little mind as the servile imitation of another.—Greville.

Horrible Case Near Grand Pre

Agent of the S.P.C. Discovers Family Living in One Room of Cattle Shed, The Children Being in an Awful State of Disease and Destitution, the Mother's Corpse in House and Father No Good.

One of the worst cases in the annals of the S.P.C. was brought to its attention on Friday. An honorary agent who is interested in the case of some children wrote the Society as follows with reference to a case at Horton Mountain, near Grand Pre:

"I saw the worst sight of my life. In a log shack, one part of which was a stable for half a dozen cattle, there are now and for eight years have been housed a boy eight years of age, another twelve years of age suffering frightfully from inflammatory rheumatism, a girl of nine years of age having had all the fleshy part of her leg between the knee and hip blown away by a gun exploding, the knotted muscles having drawn apart, keeping the wound open. The sides which are healed thus lay bare the opening at the bone with a running sore. I saw the doctor about this. He said that after it happened he attended the child and dressed the wound. They would not let him remove the bandages and he had to rely on them to do so. In a short time suspecting their efforts he insisted and when he lifted up the girl's leg he scooped off the maggots from the wound. Strange to say, she is able to get around on one leg, the other being horribly drawn up.

There is another girl fifteen years old, a boy sixteen and a girl about seventeen, who is also suffering from rheumatism, but not of as agonizing a kind as the other boys. Not one of these can read or write or go to a church of any kind. It is said that the whole of them use tobacco, one boy admitted to me after denying it for a while, another contradicted it. I did not question the others.

ALL LIVE IN ONE ROOM.

They all live in one room. There are three beds in this room with one window which does not open, one door opening out doors, which formerly served the purpose of a barn door. Through that door I think a carriage could be driven into this room. The mother gave birth prematurely to a child some weeks ago, septic poisoning set in and was followed by pneumonia, all of which she suffered in this room. Only three days ago she died there, since which time the corpse has remained uncoffined. Yesterday we arrived at the place at about one o'clock. The funeral was to be at two. The floor is of small round poles, between any of which you could shove your hand only that the spaces are full of dirt. The ceiling is also of round poles covered with hay for the use of the cattle. I must confess being almost overcome when in the midst of the horrible scene with the corpse of their mother and the whole situation, as I was taking the census, being directed to a dark corner where an agonized little rheumatic was drawn upon a board sort of thing covered with filth with all the accompaniments. This room would be about twice the size of your office. It is simply partitioned off from the barn. The manure of the cattle circles round to the entrance of the room. I can only recall only a small table and two remains of chairs, a very badly shaken stove as the only furniture beyond the beds. These have simply some ragged quilts on them. I do not think they undressed at all. With the door shut everything must have been gloom there. What about the days and nights with the corpse? These people have practically nothing to eat, the Overseers of the Poor have been assisting them a little. The father is fifty-two years of age, sober, temperate, but simply idle, he seems to feel deeply the loss of his wife, and when the coffin, which was provided by the Overseers of the Poor, was brought there in my presence protested to me against my ordering the little children away from gazing on their mother being put into the coffin. I do not think he is dissipated, but he is just no good. There is no use of my going more fully into this matter. The children, of course, are practically naked."

The agent also reported several other cases. The Overseers of the Poor for the District are taking immediate steps to have the little ones removed to the Children's Hospital, and it is a regrettable fact that they think they will be compelled to place the fifteen and seventeen years old girls and the sixteen year old boy in the Poor House. Surely some homes should be quickly available for these young people, who should make good citizens if taken in hand at the present time.

Bless me then, O Lord, with thy grace, and help me at the turning of the morning. So shall I be with thee all the day.—John E. McFayden.

A Bit of Advice

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache, headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney troubles are but forerunners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Booth's Kidney Pills cure Kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Bridgetown residents desire more convincing proof than the statement of an Annapolis Royal citizen who says that the cure Booth's Kidney Pills effected years ago has proven permanent?

Herbert L. Ritchie, of Annapolis Royal, N. S., says:—

"I had suffered for months with very severe pains in my back and sides and could scarcely attend to my work. I also felt depressed and was subject to headaches and dizziness. My appetite was poor and my stomach was weak. I had tried various remedies but could not find any relief until through an advertisement I learned of Booth's Kidney Pills and procured a box. I was greatly relieved after a few days treatment and continued their use until I had used the balance of the box I am very glad to say that they have cured me. I have had no signs of a return of my trouble and think Booth's Kidney Pills the best remedy I know of. For sale at S. N. Weare's Pharmacy. Sold by Dealers. Price 50 cents. The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd. # "A Kingly Gift"

EARL GREY'S APPEAL
On behalf of Needy Consumptives
Strong words of Canada's Governor-General

At the official opening of the King Edward Sanatorium for Consumptives, near Toronto, His Excellency delivered an address that must have an important bearing on the future of the sanatorium movement in Canada. We quote:—

"The proceedings this afternoon commenced with a beautiful and reverent prayer from your old friend, Dr. Potts. He prayed that the light of the Lord might shine upon us. That prayer is abundantly answered. He also prayed that the White Plague might be removed. Well, whether that prayer will be answered or not depends upon yourselves."

"Is it not a standing shame and reproach to the governments and individuals that there is not more care taken by the people of Canada to protect themselves against the curse of consumption?"

On his way out to the King Edward Sanatorium,—so named by permission of His Majesty King Edward VII.—the Governor-General's car was stopped in its progress outside the Canada Cycle & Motor Co. by a large crowd of its employees. A contribution of one hundred dollars was handed the Governor-General, a donation to the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives.

"'Twas a kingly gift" said His Excellency in making acknowledgment, "I will tell the King."

Addressing the large audience that attended these opening exercises, referring to this event, Earl Grey said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, when the workingmen of Canada are setting an example of this character, I hope you will not be slow to follow, and I trust that the example of the Canada Cycle & Motor Co. may be followed, as I am sure it will, in every factory and manufacturing industry throughout the land."

An institution that has never refused a single applicant admission, because of his or her inability to pay. Seventy-five patients can be cared for to-day. Accommodation could be provided for three hundred if the required money were forthcoming. To make this possible, our appeal is for $50,000, to be used in extension of buildings and maintenance of patients.

Where will your money do more good? Every community and every individual is interested.

His Excellency Earl Grey has shown his interest and sympathy in the work at Muskoka for needy consumptives, by accepting the position of Honorary President of the National Sanitarium Association.

INVIGORATING TONIC

Miss Ella Muriel Wood, of Brownsville, Ont., says: "Two years ago I was going into a decline. I could hardly drag myself across the floor. I could not sweep the carpet. If I went for a drive, I had to lie down when I came back; if I went for a mile on my wheel I was too weak to lift it through the gateway, and last time I came in from having a spin I dropped utterly helpless from fatigue. My father would give me no peace until I secured PSYCHINE, knowing it was excellent for decline or weakness. I must say the results are wonderful and people remarked my improvement. Instead of a little, pale, hollow-cheeked, listless, melancholy girl, I am to-day full of life, ready for a sleigh-ride, a skating match, or an evening party with anyone, and a few months ago I could not struggle to church, 40 rods from my home. I have never had the slightest cause to fear any return of the disease."

JUST ONE DAY APART.

A song of sunshine through the rain
Of Spring across the snow.
A balm to heal the hurts of pain.
A place surpassing woe.
Lift up your heads, ye sorrowing ones
And be ye glad of heart,
For Calvary and Easter Day,
Earth's saddest day and gladdest day
Were just one day apart!
With shudder of despair and loss
The world's deep heart was wrung
As, lifted high upon His cross,
The Lord of Glory hung.
When rocks were rent and ghostly forms
Stole forth in street and mart—
But Calvary and Easter Day,
Were just one day apart!
No hint or whisper stirred the air
To tell what joy should be:
The sad disciple grieving there
Nor help nor hope could see.
Yet all the while, the glad near sun
Made ready its swift dart,
And Calvary and Easter Day,
Earth's blackest day and whitest day,
The darkest day and brightest day,
Were just one day apart!
Oh, when the strife of tongues is loud
And the heart of hope beats low,
When the prophets prophesy of ill,
And the mourners come and go,
In this sure thought let us abide,
And keep and stay our heart,
That Calvary and Easter Day,
Earth's heaviest day and happiest
day,
Were just one day apart!

THE GLORIFIED CLOD.

A few weeks ago a friend rot from the woods a clod of earth, black and heavy, without a suggestion of life, and inhaled about the edges with ice and snow. Placed in an earthen dish, it has stood since then in my window, where the sun has poured its warmth into the heart of the cold dark clod. I held it in my hand today, and was thrilled with the mystery of its beauty! Every part of that once cold bit of earth is covered now with greenness and flowers. Tiny blossoms so dainty and sweet as only the woods can produce, varieties of grasses, little embryo bushes—the whole rich, productive forest is here in miniature. I have studied it eagerly, thrilled by its lesson. Who would have dreamed of this development when first this bit of ice-bound earth was brought to me? But the possibilities all were there, the seed of every beautiful growth was hidden within it. Dropped by the passing wind, they had lain under the winter snows waiting the touch of spring.

Thus in your heart and mine has God put wondrous possibilities. They wait only to "know the power of His resurrection" to spring into beauty and bloom. Put them where the Great Sun can reach them! Let the warmth of the light divine strike to their roots, and lo! what marvel of development we see. And after the winter of death is over, who shall fortell the possibilities of the life eternal through the power of Him who was dead, but is alive for evermore? "Oh, if we could only lift up our hearts and live with Him! live new lives, high lives, lives of love and hope and holiness, to which death should be nothing but the breaking away of the last clod and the letting of the life out to its completion. May God give us some such blessing for our Easter day!"—Dr. J. M. Buckley.

"AND I SHALL WIN."

Because of your strong faith, I kept the track
Whose sharp-set stones my strength had well-nigh spent.
I could not meet your eyes if I turned back.
So on I went.
Because you would not yield belief in me,
The threatening crags that rose, my way to bar,
I conquered inch by crumbling inch—to see
The goal afar.
And though I struggle toward it through hard years,
Or fainch, or falter blindly, yet within,
"You can!" unwavering my spirit hears:
And I shall win

Provide Things Beautiful

(By Prof. P. M. MacDonald, M.A.)

In Nova Scotia there "is a farmer whose fields are highly cultivated and fertile; whose stock is prize-winning, whose trees yield fruit that is easily first at the fair; whose barns and fences and walks and gates are in excellent condition. But he is not so careful of these as he is of his cosy, cheerful home, and his flower-house. He argues that the best of his life is in the home, and the love of beauty which his wife and children possess is one of the most important considerations.

"They crave for something lovelier than a vegetable landscape, so I have the flower-house kept for them as well as I can, and I do not save at the expense of the beauty of the living-rooms. My dear ones do not live in the barn, so I see to it that my cattle are not the most favored. Apart from loving to make things beautiful, I am sure it pays me large returns of the best sort."

This man is not a millionaire, nor a gentleman farmer, but an ordi-

CHIC STYLES.

Fillets and Bandeaux Girls Can Make For Themselves.

Now that fillets and bandeaux are in vogue many girls are making their hair garnitures at home. A dainty bandeau can be made from two strands of silver braid less than half an inch wide, connected by short strands in graduated width, the widest coming directly in front. Imitation pearl beads are sewed in rows to the braid. Velvet in a pretty color can be substituted for the braid if desired, sewing a thin wire at the back.

A gown of coral moire velours, made on the simplest lines, was seen recently. The bodice was laid in folds, and the only trimming was a garniture of crystal studded net to form the sleeves and top of the low necked bodice. A glittering fringe of crystal fell from the elbows.

The waist pictured is very smart for a young girl. The emplacement about the yoke of a contrasting color strikes an effective note in the color scheme. The sleeves are extremely new and pretty.

GLIMPSSES OF FASHIONDOM.

The Turban Favorite in the Millinery World—Short Jackets.

In the world of millinery the turban has survived—just why no one explains. It may be the law concerning the fittest. It fits close to the head, it resists the wind and interferes not with the passerby or with the one who sits next.

There is a tendency toward shortening the jackets to such an extent that a hint of the Eton is noticeable. A few models show this new or old line, and it is not unsafe to predict that the bolero and the very short jacket will be among the spring styles.

A WORK APRON.

On nearly every hat, wrap, suit or afternoon gown there is fur. And the queer part of this recurrent note in dress is that one does not become wearied of it.

*Such a protective apron as the one illustrated is needed by every housewife who takes part in household duties. It is equally desirable for the artist. The epaulet portions are pretty and becoming. Checked linen with bands of white makes the apron described.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Manton pattern is cut in three sizes—small 32 to 34, medium 34 to 36, large 40 to 42 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 632, and the pattern will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

Dropsy

Given up by Doctor

"I had dropsy, and was told by my family physician that there was no chance for me. My family also gave me up. My limbs and body were swollen one-third larger than natural, water collected around my heart and I had to be propped up in bed to keep from smothering. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy until I was entirely cured. This was in 1902, and I am now able to do any kind of work on my farm. My cure was certainly marvelous."

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been wonderfully successful in relieving heart trouble. Its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles is a great factor in assisting nature to overcome heart weakness.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1910.

—Mr. G. H. Vroom and Mr. Payne are in town today with Dr. Hewitt the Dominion Entomologist. These gentlemen regret to report that Bridgetown is badly infested with the Brown-tail Moth, over three hundred nests having been discovered here. In the vicinity of Clementsport, which is one of the worst sections, over four hundred nests having been discovered, one tree alone contained eighty-six nests. It undoubtedly behooves our farmers to be on the alert in checking this dangerous pest.

—Secretary N. W. Hogg has furnished the Monitor-Sentinel with a comprehensive report of the proceedings of the Teacher's Institute which will be found on our first page. This will be of especial interest not only to the teachers who were unable to be present, but also to the parents of all school-children. Nothing is of more vital importance than that the mental and moral growth of the coming generation should be under competent and suitable guidance and to the parents belongs this responsibility.

—Although official announcement is not yet made it has become known that the negotiations between Hon. Mr. Fielding and President Taft have resulted in conciliatory tariff measures between the United States and Canada. It is understood that any changes made will not be applied only to the United States but will probably be made general, Canada will get the benefit of the United States minimum tariff.

THE VALUE OF THE MINUTE

Remember:
It is the minute that counts.
It is the drip, drip, drip of the drop of water that finally wears away the block of marble.
It is the tiny blow of the steam-hill that in the end opens up the great rock tunnels.
Likewise, it is the constant investment of minute after minute that gives men leadership in the world of thought, science and business.
Have you ever stopped to think of your time in the period of minutes?
It takes time for the drop of water to wear away the marble.
It takes time for the drill to open up the tunnel.
Likewise it takes time for man to reach his advanced position in thought, science and business.
But remember—all this time is made up of the little minute!
Would you win success?
Study then, successful men. See how they have applied themselves; see how they have mastered the minutes.
e. The story of their minutes is the story of their days, weeks, and months; in short, the story of their lives!
Success in mastering the minute means success in mastering your life work.

"There is no chance, no destiny, no fate,
Can circumvent or hinder or control
The firm resolve of a determined soul!"

Presentation to F. L. Milner

An important social event occurred last evening when at the invitation of Mayor Hoyt the members of the Town Council and prominent citizens to the number of forty gathered at his residence in honor of F. L. Milner, Esq., the present town clerk and solicitor, who will shortly take his departure for Amherst. Mr. Milner was presented with an address by the Mayor in behalf of the company and the gift of a handsome cane as a token of their esteem. Speeches were made by the members of the Council and School Board and by the representatives of the legal profession who were present and were feelingly responded to by Mr. Milner. A sumptuous banquet was then enjoyed after which music and social conversation closed a notable and long-to-be remembered occasion.

St. James' Church Notes

The Annual Easter Parish meeting was held in the school-room on Monday evening. The retiring church wardens reported favorably on the work of the year, and the Treasurer presented his financial statement with a small balance on the in side in the matter of current expenses. The Rector's stipend account was not quite complete. The retiring Wardens, Messrs. J. B. Whitman and A. F. Hiltz, were re-nominated but Mr. Whitman felt compelled to decline because of other duties necessitating considerable absence from home. Much regret was expressed at his retirement as in him the church has had a very efficient and painstaking Warden. It was then moved that Messrs. A. F. Hiltz and Thos. Bird be Wardens for the ensuing year.
The following were also elected vestrymen:—The Hon. O. T. Daniels, Dr. DeBlois, Messrs J.B. Salter, G. I. Salter, H. Ruggles, E. Ruggles, S. Prat, Wm. Spurr, A. FitzRandolph, V. Goldsmith, A. Morse, W. D. Lockett, with W. R. Longmire as Vestry-Clerk. Mr. E. Ruggles was re-elected Treasurer of the corporation, and as representatives of the Diocesan Synod, Messrs. A. Morse and Allison FitzRandolph, with Mr. A. C. Johnson, Dartmouth, and Mr. Wm Spurr as provisional delegates. Cemetery committee, Mr. S. Prat.

ST. MARY'S, BELLEISLE.

The Easter celebration in St. Mary's commenced with festal evensong on Easter-Eve, at which the Rector gave an address appropriate to the occasion.
This was followed by the annual meeting of the congregation at which the Chapel Wardens presented a splendid financial statement showing a very useful balance on the right side.
The retiring officers were unanimously re-elected viz.: Chapel Wardens, Messrs Chas. Wade and Wm. E. Bent; Recording Secretary, Mr. A. J. Bustin.
On Easter day the Holy Communion was celebrated at 8 a.m. with an increased number of communicants present. There was also the usual afternoon service at 3 o'clock with appropriate music and sermon.

DANGER OF THE LOADED GUN.

Tragedy in New Brunswick Home Which is Only Too Often Repeated Elsewhere.

Centreville, March 30.—A terrible tragedy occurred here on Saturday morning, as a result of which Mrs. Esther Gallup, aged sixty-three, is dead and her brother, William Lewis, is almost crazed with grief. Mrs. Gallup whose home is at Knoxford, four miles from here has been visiting her brother. On Saturday morning she was sitting in his kitchen, while his little grand-child was playing at her feet. Lewis was examining a gun, when he pulled the hammer back and it exploded, a heavy charge of buck shot passing through Mrs. Gallup's brains carrying away the back part of her head and scattering her life's blood and brains over the kitchen walls. A doctor was at once summoned, but death was instantaneous. The family is very well known and highly respected, and the sad affair has caused a gloom over the entire community.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Michie desire to express their gratitude to the friends who showed their sympathy by many acts of kindness during the illness and death of their mother, Mrs. Bertha Michie.

William H. French, of Brookline N. H., set up his old Christmas tree outside his house and covered the branches with food for the birds. Every day large flocks of bluejays, chickadees and woodpeckers are to be seen fitting about the place from morning till night.

after which the meeting adjourned till 2 o'clock p. m.

On reassembling, the nominating committee, reported the following persons as an Executive:—Miss B. Evelyn Smith, Miss Ethel M. Eaton, Miss Mary A. Belliveau and Miss Flora M. Wilson. On motion the report was received and adopted, and Miss Smith was elected chairman of the committee.

It was thought advisable that a portion of the afternoon session should be devoted to the discussion of practical questions presented by the teachers. The passing of the "Question Box" resulted in gathering an abundance of questions of more or less importance to the practical teacher and these were quite thoroughly discussed. Dr. Soloan and Dr. Hall of the Normal College arrived during these discussions and assisted very materially by contributing to them opinions, which, if not matured by age, are surely refined by experience. Prin. Gesner of Weymouth then gave to the Institute, an illustrative talk on writing to Grades VI, VII and VIII. He outlined a system of teaching writing, which, he vouched for as having good results. His method was to place before the pupils a few fundamental movements from which all the letters of the alphabet can easily be built up. He insisted upon the straight downward stroke in order to give the letters a youthful appearance. This talk called forth many questions in reference to the method. Dr. Soloan spoke for some time on the lesson. Mr. Hovey thought the system a good one, but expressed the opinion that teachers would not adopt it unless compelled to do so. What pupils need is not so much a new system, as proper directions how to use those which are recommended. Miss B. Evelyn Smith of Middleton then gave a lesson on Tuberculosis to a class of Grade VI pupils. They were led to conclude for themselves that germs of all kinds thrive in dust, and darkness, and readily inferred from this that cleanliness and sunlight, were their two greatest enemies. They were taught to avoid all intemperance in order to keep the body strong, and to breathe the purest air and in the proper way. Dr. Hall, Dr. Soloan, Prin. Ruggles and Prin. McGill all commended this lesson. A telegram was then read from the teachers at Parrsboro, heartily reciprocating our own expressions to them. Meeting then adjourned until 7.30 p. m.

The evening session, which was attended by a number of the representative citizens of the town, began with a paper:—"The Place of English Literature in our Public Schools" by Miss Hattie J. Baker. This paper was the occasion of a very interesting and extended talk on English Literature by Dr. Soloan, which was listened to, with marked appreciation by everyone present. In his pleasing style Dr. Soloan explained what is, and what is not Literature, and discussed the merits of School Readers and pointed out the store of true Literature which they contained. Miss Irene Balcom also spoke on this paper.
Miss Cora M. Harris then read an interesting paper on "The Value of Nature Study." The author held that nature study properly taught, develops the observation powers and gives a pupil self reliance. It also develops a kind heart and thus contributes towards making better citizens. This paper was discussed by Dr. Hall. He claimed that Nature Work was not properly taught and is not achieving results, the first of which should be the beautifying of the school ground by trees and flowers. Its most practical outcome should be a love for the beautiful. Dr. Soloan thought that every teacher in Nova Scotia should contribute their part towards beautifying our province. Prin. Ruggles also spoke on this paper.
Mr. D. S. McCurdy of the Mechanical Science in our Curriculum. It contained much valuable information about a subject of which the majority of the ratepayers know too little. Mr McCurdy showed that it is a training which contributes to every phase of human life. It is simply the complement of the School Course and not an addition to it. Mr. McGill could not see where the scholastic work of his school suffered in the least degree, by the time spent in Mechanical and Domestic Science, and urged all schools, where possible to establish Mechanical Science Classes.
Prin. W. H. Magee then gave a very pleasing and highly edifying talk on "Character Building the Teachers' First Duty." A few thoughts were:—inspire high ideals and aims in the pupils. If we do not keep the boys and girls—the future citizens—up to this ideal, our Nation will decline as did the Greeks and Romans. The work lies with the teacher to build up this ideal in those pupils from homes where it is not established, because our first aim should be to provide useful citizens for the future. It has always been the men of character who have built up the nation, and if the character of the nation can be uplifted the length of its life as a nation will be extended after a few complimentary remarks on Prin. Magee's address, the meeting adjourned till 9 o'clock a. m. Thursday.

A large Easter dance took place in Ruggles' Hall last Monday night, at which over a hundred young people were present, many coming from a distance. Round Hill, Granville, Paradise, Lawrencetown and Clarence being among the places represented. The music was furnished by the Mitchells with violin and harp.

The atmosphere of Good Friday morning was so gloomy and dark that Mr. Beckwith, manager of the electric light plant, turned on the lights, leaving them on for an hour in the middle of the forenoon until the clouds had dispersed. From that time till night drew her shadowy curtains warm genial sunshine prevailed. No March day could have been brighter or warmer.

The old "Revere House" which is now the property of Mr. E. G. Langley, is being remodelled into a double tenement house, with separate entrances on the front. A chimney has been removed, partitions altered, an ell built in the rear and extensive repairs made. As there is a demand for moderate priced tenements, Mr. Langley will doubtless find it a paying investment, in addition to the satisfaction of greatly improving the appearance of an important locality of the town.

The young ladies and gentlemen of the Senior Mission Band, under the leadership of their efficient president Miss Nettie Healy, gave a fine entertainment last Wednesday evening in the Baptist church, consisting of solos, quartettes, missionary dialogues, recitations, readings and an instructive banner exercise by eight young ladies, interspersed with music four in black, representing the heathen nations, four in white, representing the Christian nations. The family have the heartfelt sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

The Easter concert held in the church Sunday evening by the W. M. A. S. was a marked success. The president and committee deserve great credit for the program presented. For Your Dough Hadn't the Courage to Rise
You remember, Madam, that bakeday a week back—or was it a month—when his folks were coming to dinner self-invited. And you arose bright and early, and ran-over to your mixing bowl to knead that glorious batch of shapely golden-domed loaves— And astonish his folks with his wife's breadmaking. You remember: that was before you bought FIVE ROSES.

And how the dough had forgotten to rise!
Or had quickly risen overnight and fallen again, to rise no more.
How aggravating to be sure.
And how his mother gazed critically at him, saying in a stage whisper:
"Poor John! Don't you think the buns a little tired, associated?"
And John's father replied: "No wonder—such bread—such eating, now!"
Don't you remember?

But the explanation is most simple, Madam.
Your flour was weak in gluten, erratic, ununiform, may be.
Never so with FIVE ROSES—because it's consistent flour, changeless as the sun or a mother's love.
It invariably possesses that glutinous strength which makes it rise to the delight of the particular housewife—and stay risen, because it has the necessary consistency and elasticity.

And when you begin to knead it, Madam, you find the dough quite springy and you hear it squeak and crack as you work.

And it gets whiter and whiter under your hand till at last it rivals our own dazzling Canadian snows.
Then think of it, Mistress Housewife, YOUR bread is never sour, never lumpy, never dark or discolored, nor soggy nor heavy.
No baking accidents when you most covet success.
Because you are using FIVE ROSES, and cannot help it.
And it keeps fresh for days—its delicious nutlike flavor grows until the last slice disappears by dint of second helpings and smacking of lips.
What, Madam, you don't use FIVE ROSES?
Well, you know, it's never too late to mend.

Co-operation Among Farmers
Few of our farmers realize the large proportions reached by the co-operation time movement in other countries and the opportunities which it offers them to garner more of the fruits of their toil. We have trade and labor organizations among other classes for the purpose of advancing wages and increasing the cost of the goods bought by the farmer, but he yond one or two co-operative stores in different sections there is no effective organization among the farmers of the province.
Particularly in the work of marketing farm products is the way open for great improvement. It is here the weakness of the present system of individualism is most apparent. It is here that the middleman steps in and reaps his easy harvest. The farmers sell at varying prices at different sections and their products pass through the hands of many, always going up in price, before they reach the hand of the consumer. When the trader makes a profit of from .25 to .30 cents on every barrel of potatoes marketed by the farmer, as he is doing at present, it indicates an impossible condition. If potatoes were selling at the farm for two dollars instead of .65 cents, as now, he might be able to afford this extortion by the wholesaler. But with the potato market so unsatisfactory as it has been this whole season and fertilizer $40.00 a ton, the farmer stands to lose heavily at best. And he must go heavily into debt and mortgage his harvest for the coming year if he is to continue in the business of potato raising under these conditions.
In Kansas some four or five years ago about fifty farmers established a co-operative grain elevator. The railways and the grain trust tried to break it down by buying grain above the market price. The farmers sold to the trust, but paid over a cent a bushel to the co-operative on their sales and the trust gave up the fight. There are all through the Western States co-operative bee-keepers, basket makers, saw-mills, grist-mills, wood-yards, starch factories, canning factories, dealers in poultry, eggs, cattle, horses and cotton, creameries, butter and cheese factories and farmers are beginning to co-operate in many ways and it is a remarkable fact that a survey of the co-operative scheme of all countries show that they have been narrow and selfish; and that the most frankly democratic have taken the deepest root and borne the most abundant fruit.
No occupation is so affected by the varying social and political conditions of men as agriculture, because no occupation so depends for its life on settled habits, peaceful life and general prosperity. All that the farmer buys and the transportation and marketing of his product have passed under the bonds of combination. The tariff has enormously increased the cost of his tools, wagons, ploughs and farming implements; it has increased the cost of clothes he wears, of the cradle in which his children are rocked and of the casket in which he is buried. His taxes are heavy and his corresponding comforts few. There are forces now at work which will very considerably increase the production of the farm within a generation and which promise to continue that increase indefinitely. That they may profit by this increased production enjoy a larger share of the world's treasure, leisure and pleasure, wider opportunities as well as more considerate treatment from traders and politicians, union and co-operation are absolutely essential.—St. John Times.

Water on Slag Injured Seven
Superintendent McLey and Six Employees of Dominion Iron and Steel Company Hurt.
Sydney, March 20.—As the result of an explosion at No. 6 furnace of the Dominion Iron and Steel company on Saturday the furnace building was considerably wrecked, and Superintendent McLey and six of the employees were more or less injured. The explosion was the result of one of the men pouring cold water on the slag which was in molten form, which at once exploded, the report being heard all over the plant and creating much excitement until the facts were known. Superintendent of furnaces, McLey, who was passing at the time, was thrown down and sustained a severe cut on the head and above the eye the others being quite severely injured about the face and body. The men were taken to the hospital, where their injuries were attended to. Mr. McLey was improved today and will be around in a week.
WAS IN DOUBT.
"Did you ever have appendicitis?" asked the insurance man.
"Well," answered the scotic, "I was operated on. But I never felt sure whether it was a case of appendicitis or a case of professional curiosity."

Union Blend Tea
the Tea that satisfies
YOU know the kind of tea you like—will you let Union Blend prove its own case? That's all I ask. Simply go to your grocer, order a pound packet—or a half pound if you prefer—and see for yourself if it doesn't make half as many cups again as the kind you are using. Just count the cups. A tea at 40c, that goes half as far again as a 80c, ten is economy, isn't it? Your own teaspoon can be the judge—I'll stand by the decision it makes. Try it.
Union Blend one pound packets—the pound packets only—contain coupons that are worth money to you. But this is merely an advertisement—the tea itself is worth the price, July
Harry W. Frost

Build on resolve, and not upon regret. The structure of the future. Do not grope Among the shadows of sins, but let Thine own soul's light shine on the path of hope And dissipate the darkness. Waste no tears Upon the blotted record of lost years, But turn the leaf and smile. O smile, to see The fair white pages that remain to thee.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.
Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invariably bring relief to women suffering from chronic constipation, headache, biliousness, dizziness, sallowness of the skin and dyspepsia. Sold by all dealers.
Our life is like the life of a tree.... again and again stripped of every sign of life that it has put forth, and yet which still has gathered all those apparent failures into the success of one long, continuous growth.—Phillips Brooks.
The first regular meeting of the new town council of Fredericton, N. B., which will be held this evening, will be opened with prayer, the mayor having engaged a chaplain for the occasion. This is a laudable example for other deliberative bodies, some of which open with intrigue, says an exchange.
Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invariably bring relief to women suffering from chronic constipation, headache, biliousness, dizziness, sallowness of the skin and dyspepsia. Sold by all dealers.

THE DANGEROUS HAT PIN
The hat pin is coming for a good deal of attention and condemnation; and deservedly so. As frequently made and worn it is a public menace. Recently in a Toronto street car, where "strap-holding" is much in vogue, the pin in a lady's hat was accidentally lurch through a gentleman's cheek. He received damage enough, but whether any court has awarded him damages has not yet been reported. A despatch from Belgium is more complete. The victim was standing in a street car, when the car stopping with a sudden jerk, the pin in a lady's hat pierced one of his eyes and destroyed the sight. A court has awarded him $2,000 damages, which has been assessed in equal portions against the owner of the hat pin and the owners of the car. The only remark that this verdict seems to call for is that eye-sight in Belgium seems to be rated at a low figure. In many places, a campaign is going on against the hat pin, notably in Chicago, where legislation is being sought to abate the dangerous nuisance. If women could once be freed from this fashion they would wonder why they ever submitted to it.
Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

NA-DRU-CO
Reliability
When you buy clothes or groceries, meat or furniture, you can judge for yourself the quality of what you are getting.
When you buy Medicinal or Toilet Preparations you buy on faith. Tooth-paste may look good—have an agreeable flavor—whiten the teeth beautifully—yet eventually destroy them. A medicinal preparation may be pleasant to take or very much the opposite without giving you any clue as to whether it is a safe and effective remedy.
No one cares to risk experiments along these lines—everyone wants to know for a certainty that the medicinal and toilet preparations he buys have been compounded by expert chemists and are backed by responsible men.
The Law's Protection
The laws of every Province in Canada, expressing the will of the people, protect you so far as doctors' prescriptions are concerned by demanding that these must be dispensed by physicians or duly qualified druggists.
NA-DRU-CO'S Protection
To protect you in the matter of household remedies and toilet articles we have brought out the NA-DRU-CO line of about 125 Medicinal and Toilet Preparations. Each of these preparations is compounded by our own expert chemists, and is guaranteed by one of the largest wholesale drug firms in the world, the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited.
The formulæ from which these NA-DRU-CO preparations are made are the gems from the formula books of the 21 wholesale drug houses now united in the "National". Each formula has undergone years of study and practical tests and has demonstrated its superiority for the particular use for which it is intended.
The ingredients used in NA-DRU-CO preparations are the best and purest that we, the largest buyers of drugs in Canada, can procure. Nothing is left undone to make NA-DRU-CO preparations absolutely reliable.
The phenomenal demand for Na-Dru-Co Tooth Paste, for example, proves that people appreciate the scientifically compounded tooth paste which keeps the mouth and teeth in perfect condition.
Ask Your Physician or Druggist
To put this absolute reliability of the NA-DRU-CO line beyond doubt or question, we are prepared to furnish to your physician or druggist, on request, a complete list of the ingredients in any NA-DRU-CO preparation. Ask these men, who are men of standing in your community, and in whom you place implicit confidence, all about NA-DRU-CO remedies.
Moreover, if after trying any article bearing the NA-DRU-CO Trade Mark you are not entirely satisfied, return it to the druggist from whom you bought it and he will hand back your money.
If your druggist hasn't the particular NA-DRU-CO preparation you ask for in stock he can get it for you within two days from our nearest wholesale branch.

Joker's Corner

A DISCOVERER.

My little daughter, Helen, says one mother, recently had her first introduction to geography. Her father thinks that perhaps she is destined to become a great Arctic explorer.

"If you stood with your right hand toward the east and your left hand toward the north," said the teacher. "Now tell me what would be back of you?"

"My hair," answered Helen in a patient tone.

HIS SMILE CAME OFF

In a Pennsylvania town, where the Friends abound, a prim old Quaker spinster recently attended the marriage of her grand-nephew, a young person who had in the course of his twenty-one years received much discipline at her hands.

The old lady was at her best this festive occasion, and, at a pause in the wedding breakfast, the happy bridegroom looked over at her with a beguiling smile.

"Tell us why thee never married, Aunt Patience?" he said, teasingly.

"That is soon told, William. 'Tis said the old Quakeress, calmly. 'Tis was because I was not as easily pleased as thy wife was."

MODERN PAVING.

One of the best loved clergymen in the Church of England is the Rev. A. H. Stanton, curate of St. Alban's, Holborn. He is popularly called "Father Stanton," and has been curate of Alban's from the time of its opening in 1862, and has just completed his forty-seventh year there. He is fortunate in having the gift of humor. One of his best stories concerns a church in the slum district, where he was preaching about the present-day social conditions among the rich. Warming to his subject, he kept his audience in rapt attention. "I tell you, my friends," he said, "that figuratively speaking, the road to redemption is paved with flowers and diamonds and motor-cars." He paused, and from the back of the church there came a soft voice, quite audible in the silence. "Oh death, where is thy sting?"

WHAT HE WAS,

Miss Bixby was not given to coquetry, but she was pardonably anxious to make an agreeable impression upon Prof. Clark. He was young and handsome, and like herself learned she gathered from the common friend who was plotting to bring them together. Also the friend, a sprightly North Carolina woman, referred to him as a "tarheel."

"A what?" Miss Bixby inquired.

"Tarheel," it appeared, was the vicious name for a native of North Carolina.

Miss Bixby, who modestly felt the need in herself of an added touch of vivacity, impressed the term upon a memory which, surcharged with knowledge, had been known to be treacherous.

However, profound a conversation is destined to become, it should begin in society, Miss Bixby was aware with graceful nothings. "You are a tarheel, I believe?" it seemed to her would serve the purpose of breaking the ice.

He was handsomer and more intellectual looking than she had expected; even: also shyer and more reserved. The polite commonplace which she had prepared would be just the thing to set him at ease. Raising her voice, she addressed him across her friends' dinner table.

"I believe, Prof. Clark," she remarked with sweet graciousness "that you are a tadpole."—Youth's Companion.

HIS BUMPS.

The Explanation Given by the Book on Phrenology.

They were newly married and were calling upon one of the friends of the bride who had been particularly pleasant upon the occasion of their wedding. The bridegroom, apropos of nothing, began to talk about phrenology and told how his wife had discovered two very prominent bumps on the back of his head. He was proud of them. So was she, and she passed him around that the host and hostess might feel the bumps and know of their existence. Then she explained:

"My book on phrenology says that they mean good memory and generosity."

It was evident that she was proud of the facts, and so was he. But the host, being of an inquiring turn of mind, wished to satisfy himself, so he got down a phrenological work from one of his library shelves and after much labor found the bumps on the chart. Turning to the notes, he read, seriously at first, then unsteadily. The bride became suspicious, but she was game and said:

"Read it out loud. Please do!" And the host read:

"These bumps are most frequently found on cats and monkeys."

Other topics consumed the remainder of the visit, which was brief—New York Sun.

THE CABINET LEAK.

Daniel Webster Was Not Long in Discovering Its Source.

Once years ago, when Daniel Webster was secretary of state, there was an important foreign matter up for discussion before the cabinet, and the utmost secrecy was of course maintained, but the whole thing was blazoned about in a few hours after the cabinet meeting. So the president hastily sent for his cabinet to talk over this leak. Each man had a different idea of it.

Finally Mr. Webster arose, saying, "You, gentlemen, go on with your discussion, and I'll be back in a minute." In a few minutes he returned and repeated every word that had been spoken in the room in his absence. He explained that if by standing close to the door outside the cabinet room you held your ear to it you could not distinguish one intelligible word, but if moving back from the door and a little to one side upon a certain spot in the carpet you kept an attentive ear every word could be plainly heard as though whispered. Some enterprising eavesdropper had been experimenting with the door and had found that upon that exact spot there was some acoustic property of the door or room that conveyed the sound in perfect entirety.

"Going—Going—"

The auctioneer had auctioneered for the last time, for he was very ill and lay now almost at death's door.

Beside his bed stood the doctor and the auctioneer's wife, anxiously watching each symptom, each movement, each respiration.

"Doctor," hoarsely whispered the hammer welder's wife, "what is his pulse now?"

The doctor raised the patient's wrist. "His pulse," he answered, "is now going at 104."

The auctioneer sat up excitedly in bed.

"Going at 104!" he cried feebly. "Going at 104! Who'll make it 105? Do I hear 105 for a pulse that has been running steadily for forty-seven years and never once stopped? Will you bid 105? Who'll make it 105?"

But no one made it 105. And a minute later the auctioneer was going—going—gone!—Exchange.

How Eskimo Women Die.

On her first entrance to her new but of snow an Eskimo woman is buoyed by hope of welcoming a son. What of her last incoming to those narrow confines? She knows that the medicine man has decided that her sickness is mortal when she is laid upon her bed of snow. She gazes upon the feebly burning lamp beside her, upon food and drink set close at hand. She sees her loved ones pass out of the doorway that needs no tunnel entrance to keep chill airs away, for presently the door is sealed with snow. The chill of death pierces through her enveloping furs. Her tomb insures that no long tarrying will be hers. The soul, companionship with her, may refresh itself with food; but, starving and freezing, her feeble body will witness even that soul's departure and know that its hour has come to perish alone.—Harper's Bazar.

Paying For the Spots.

"I conceived a perfectly candy scheme for saving my table linen and tending Jack to be dainty about his carving," said a young married woman. "Every time he gets a spot on the tablecloth I have him cover it with a coin. The larger the spot the larger the coin, and more often than not it takes paper money to cover it all. Then Norah takes up the money when she clears the table, and we save it up to buy kitchen utensils."—New York Press.

A prominent Ontario orchardist says:—

Personally, I am a great advocate of spraying. Last year we used a gasoline engine power sprayer with good result, and, by the way I have had costly experience in that which I desire to tell as a caution to others. In spraying 'tis impossible to avoid the mixture falling on the horses. It did so in many cases, with the result that the mixture worked down through the skin to the blood and caused blood poisoning. One horse died next day, the other very nearly. I then got rubber covers for the entire horses each, that, of course, carrying out the old adage "locking the stable after the horse was stolen" but better later than never. I strongly advise covering horses when spraying, even as a protection for harness if nothing else.
