The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Library of Congress Photoduplication Service

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol  $\longrightarrow$  (meaning "CON-TINUED"), or the symbol  $\nabla$  (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole → signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ▼ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

The principal point is generally supposed to be our maritime rights ; but to suffer these even to be discussed would be a dereliction of duty, in any negociator who might attempt, or any minister who might sanction it. No infringement, abatement, or qualification can be admitted. But there are various other objects, concerning which this negociation will give us an opportunity of treating ; and which, though latent and little regarded by the public at large, are seriously felt, as of the utmost moment, by the few who have had opportunities of appreciating their importance. To secure this last it is requinite to advert to one grand point, the mechanist of the establishment of a new line of boundary, between the British and the American possessions, and to several subordinate objects, which will be noticed in this tract. Posterity will scarcely believe, though history must attest the montifying truth, that in acceding to the independence of the Sister of America, their territory was not thereby allowed to them ; but

The pests were accordingly given up ? but the leucouching character of the Americane was here again manifested, for, notwithstanding the positive stipulations of that treaty, so little regard was paid by the American government to their plighted faith, that by a treaty between the United States and the Indians, concluded at Fort Greenville on the 3d of August, 1795, an article was forced upon the Indiant, by which they engaged that no. trader should reside at any Indian town or hunting 'camp, without a license under the authority of the United States and anti- this Post Will be will R det To remedy this direct breach of the treaty of 1794, an explanatory article was concluded at Philadelphia, on the 4th of May, 1796, between Mr. Bond and Mr. Pickering, on the part of their respective governments." British traders were assuiled and harassed in various ways, even passes were enforced, notwithstanding the stipulations of the treaty of 1794, extortions were practised in the duties required to be paid, and wherever my flaw could be discovered, or there was for any unnatural interpretation, the British were sure to be the buffirerstrainty with in standay outs particle with the the burg fired

And have, again, the ignorance or institution of the framers of the recently to the locality and courses of the river, has produced the monstrous absurdity, that there is actually no readily presticable examination between Lower Gaussia and New Branswick, without crossing a part of the American territory, now called the province of Maint, will control further and the traff of the fact.

It then proceeds westward along the forty-fifth degree of latitade, till it reaches the St. Lawrence, cutting off, in a most artifiial and ununtural manner, the water communications of Lake Champlein and Lake George, with the St. Lawrence ; therice along the middle of the Sta Lawrence into Laise Ontario, three the water opermunication between it and Lake Erie, thro le of Lohe Brie to the water communication with Lake Hurou, through that, and then across Lake Huron is a northerly direction, and through the straits of St. Mary into Lake Superior. That no geographical blunders took place in the drawing of this extensive line from the St. Lawrence to Lake Superior, may be secribed to the plain direct course, which did not admit of ignorance or inattention deviating either to the right or the left." But the line is thenceforward described to extend through Lake Superior northward to the isles Royal and Philippeaux, to the Long Lake, and the water communication between it and the Lake of the Woods ; thence through that lake to the northernmost point meof, and thence in a due line west to the river Missisppi. Now there is no water communication at all between Lake Su perior and the Lake of the Woods. A height of land interv between them, from which the water flows in north-westerly and auth ensuring directions. The line presumed to be meant by the regrate negociators; is that along which the most custers for trade is conducted. From the north-western point of the Lake of the Woods, a line drawn due west could never strike the Missisippi, which rises far to the southward. So that at this end of the box ary line the uncertainty of it is so great, that, had not hostilities intervened, it would in course of time have become necessary to resume the discussion of the boundaries, and fix them in a more intelligible and defined manuer. med in proster in security in a star Thus, however, it stands at present. A new boundary line i therefore necessary, were it simply to define geographical limits, and remedy the errors we have pointed out. But it is more imperjously requisite, in a political point of view, to give permanent security to our North American possessions, and effectually to curb the avowed ambition, and encroachments of the Americana. The great feature of this new line, strenuously to be insisted on, ought to be the exclusion of the Americana from the navigation of the St. Lawrence, and all its congregation of tributary seas and waters. They are the natural patrimony of the Canadas. Water communications do not offer either a natural or secure boundary, Mountains separate, but rivers approximate mankind. Hence the prominent boundary should be the heights of land separating the respective territories. If this basis were adopted, the advantages of it, on looking at the map, will be obvious to the most superficial observer. We should have possession of Lake Champlain, and the waters descending into it; of an adjacent country, and of the southern shores of all the great lakes, of which we have now, only the northern coasts : together with the whole of Lake Michigan, from which, through a series of the same watercourse, we are wholly excluded. In this quarter, the heights of land separate the waters that flow into the great lakes, from those that take their course towards the Missisippi ; and as, by the eighth article of the treaty of 1785, we are entitled to the free navigation of that im-

be ensured to us, and a point of contact of our territories with a navigable part of that river, secured by a line down one of the rivers running into it in these regions, or along a height of land between two of them.

No arguments need be used to illustrate the extreme importance of this last object, which is obvious; and if we should not be able to obtain the heights of land as a new line of boundary throughout, and should be obliged to be content with a line passing through the several watercourse communications from Lake Ontario to Lake Huron; at all events, instead of proceeding through the Straits of St. Mary into Lake Superior, it should go from Lake Erie up the Sandusky River to the nearest waters falling into the Ohio, and from thence down that river into the Missisippi; thus according with the spirit of the eighth article of the treaty of 1783, and giving us a point of contact with the Missisippi in a navigable part, which the second article, defining the boundaries, meant to bestow upon us, but failed of doing from its geographical ir accuracy.

2 ain, whether we procure the heights of land as a boundarybasis or not, we ought to insist on all the islands in the River St. Lawrence and the Lakes, and the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon; at least, no one of them should be ceded without previously ascertaining, by commissioners duly qualified from residence in the country, their locality and importance.

It has been suggested, that it should be stipulated that no vessel belonging to the Americans, exceeding a certain burthen, twenty or thirty tons, which is a size quite adequate to the trade of those regions, should be suffered to navigate any of the lakes, and that no fortifications of any kind should be erected upon their borders, or the borders of the St. Lawrence, or upon any of the waters that fall into them from the American side; whilst the right of the British in these respects should be reserved to be exercised without restriction : because one of the avowed and main objects of the American government, in this war, being the conquest of the Canadas, and the object of Great Britain merely the security of these provinces against aggression,—it is indisputable, that no peace can be safe or durable, without providing ample security against attacks tories with a m one of the at of land bee importance should not be of boundary a line passing n Lake Ontaeding through go from Lake lling into the issisippi ; thus the treaty of sisippi in a nahe boundaries, its geographias a boundary-

It is equally important that the new claims set up by the United States to the whole of the north-west coast of America, as far as the Columbia River, in consequence of their possession of Louisiana, should be set at rest, and extinguished for ever.

Before dismissing the subject of our own boundary line, it may be well to advert to the limits as now existing between New Brunswick and the United States; and if we cannot get to the Penobscot, at least let some route or line be drawn, by which we may be enabled to have a free communication between Canada and Nova Scotia. And it is also, perhaps, the more requisite to insist upon the necessity of our resuming the islands in Passamaquoddy Bay, (and why they have not been taken possession of since the war cannot easily be explained,) as, by the unratified convention of 1805, it was most unaccountably agreed to cede them to the United States, this government being, it is presumed, ignorant not only of their importance, but of their having been for many years part of the parish of West Isles, in the county of Charlotte (the southernmost county of New Brunswick,) paying the rates, and acknowledging the municipal regulations incident upon such an approprintion. In andias

Large quantities of lumber, furnished from the neighbouring parts of the province, are purchased by the Americans and carried to these islands, which are paid for in prohibited articles from the United States ; and they in the same manner engross almost the whole of the produce of the fisheries, which is equally paid for in such articles : thus precluding the West India Islands, in a great measure, from receiving those supplies of fish and lumber in British bottoms, and introducing large quantities of contraband goods into the colony, to the serious injury of the manufacturing interests of the mother country. . The situation of these islands also enables their inhabitants to engross a very great proportion of the trade in gypsum, which is now become an object of great demand, and, in some degree, of necessity, in the United States. In 1806, upwards of 40,000 tons were exported from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia ; and, if the contrahand trade in this article in Passamaquoddy Bay was suppressed, the export of it to the United States would annually employ 10,000 tons of British shipping. The United States must also, in a very few years, resort to these provinces for coal, as other kinds of fuel have become scarce and dear in the Eastern States; and in the same memory as the coarging trade in gypsum is intercepted by these islands, would that in the coal be, if they were to continue in the possession of the Americans. It would, therefore, be the height of indiscretion to give up these Islands to the United States, exclusive of the difficulty of approach which it would occasion to the ports of New Brunswick, within Passamaquoddy Bay, the Americans having already erected a battery on one of these islands.

The next important point to be attended to in a treaty of peace with the United States, is a new boundary for the Indians. tak The boundary line which appears best for the protection of Indian rights, and which would add to the security of Canada, would be to run a line from Sandusky, on Lake Erie, to the nearest waters falling into the Ohio ; then down that river, and up the Missisppi, to the month of the Missouri ; thence up the Missouri to its primcipal source, confining the United States to the Rocky mountains, as their western boundary, and excluding them from all the country to the northward and westward of the lines here designated, which, from those lines to that which should be agreed on as the British boundary of Canada, should remain wholly for the Indi as their hunting-grounds. The boundary between the United States and the Indians, as fixed by the treaty of Greenville, before alluded to, would perhaps answer as the new boundary line for the protection of the Indians, if extended so as to run up the Missouri and to the Rocky mountains, provided that all the reservations and conditions in that treaty relative to the various tracts of ground within that line, for the advantage of the United States, and all the other conditions attached to them by it, be wholly done away, and the American government (and probably also reciprocally the British), excluded from having any forts, military ports, territorial jurisdiction, or public property of any kind, within the Indian line : but the bond fide property of white people, in hads within that boundary, where the Indian titles shall have been fairly extinguished Sec. 34. 31 s. A m previous to a new treaty with America, might parhaps be mifely allowed under the territorial jurisdiction of Great Britain. This would of course obviate the necessity of any reservation as to the right of the British to carry on trade with the Indians, whose independence being thus established, they would have the right to admit or interdict whom they please; and we well know to whom they would, both from inclination and interest, give the preference. This is the more desirable, as the intercourse with the Indians of that quarter by the British, being carried on by persistion, as it were, of a jealous and hostile nation, has been the fruitful source of immurerable exactions, continued disputes, and incesant broils.

For men, whose friendship has been recently shown to be of such great importance to us, we cannot do too much. We should are all their wrongs redressed, their territory restored to them, and themselves rendered for ever secure from American encroachiment. But the independence of the Indians cannot be effectually preserved, by the articles of any treaty, which shall provide security for Indian territory or Indian rights, unless, what is indispensible far their due execution, Great Britain become the avoared guaruntee and protector of those rights and that territory, so as to have both the right and the power of instant interference, in case of any uncroachment or violation, and not, as hitherto, be a silent spectator of wrongs and injustice, more immediately injurious to the aborigings, but eventually as ruinous to the security of the Comedas.

In illustration of the injuries the independent Indians have suatained from the Americans, and which have excited those apprehensions of extermination so generally entertained by the natives, we shall give the substance of the speech of the sagacious and brave TROUMSECTR,' at his interview with the lamented GENE-HAS BROCE, whom he came to aid, in his expedition to repel HUEE's invasion of Upper Canada:

This illustrious chief having been wounded in one of the late actions In Upper Canada, was found by the Americans in the field, and afterwards taken to their quarters, and FLAYED.

First, The Americans systematically encroach upon their lan and drive them from their hunting-grounds. Intoit and some live and Secondly, The American government make fraudulent purchases of their lands from Indians who have no right or power to sell, so, for example, by getting a few insignificant members of a village to Thirdly. The American government, in many instances, have paid the Indians only one farthing per acre for lands, which they sold immediately afterwards for six dollars, deriving thus a most productive article of revenue from this unprincipled system ; whilst even the miserable pittance of one farthing per acre they connive at the embezzlement of, by their agents. S ald whit arrent Fourthly, The American government has established what they call trading posts in the Indian territory, under the pretence of supplying them with necessaries instead of money, for their lands. Fifthly, These posts are turned into military stations at the pleasure of the American government, tending to the immediate annoyance, and to the ultimate subjugation, of the Indians. Sixthly, Obstructions and embarrassments of various kinds have been long thrown in the way of the British traders repairing with supplies to the Indians; and finally, those traders were altogether prohibited from bringing their goods, by laws, such as the acts of non-importation, non-intercourse, &c. to which the Indians were no parties ; notwithstanding they were by treaties, made with them as independent nations, and solemnly sanctioned by the United States, entitled to the right of free intercourse with the British traders."

Seventhly, Neither the feelings, the interests, nor the rights of the Indians, were at all considered by the Americans; but, on the contrary, were, on all occasions, studiously outraged and violated.": If this view of the subject be entertained by those whom we are accustomed to call unenlightened savages, how much more readily will the European politician see the evil consequences with which such a system as the Americans pursue is pregnant both to he Indians and to the Canadas Lang many with many detroits bur defeds The next point to be adverted to is, the necessity of excluding the Americans from the fisheries on the coasts of British North America, especially those of Labradore, Newfoundland, and the Gulfoof St. Lawrence. a sher the Bas gernedes at receive units . The third article of the treaty of 1783, which admits them to take and dry fish on the shores of these colonies, ought to be utterly abrogated, and every vestige of its existence taken away. Improvident and impolitic in the outset, experience has shown, that it is much more injurious than might, on a superficial view, be supposed. That the Americans were enabled thereby to carry our own fish to the West Indies, and derive great part of the advantages of a trade which nature points out as belonging to us, is too well known to be more largely insisted on. But the latent evil consists in the encroachments committed, the insults offered, the depraved habits introduced, and the contrabund trade carried on; under the mask of fishery, by the Americans, wherever their feet have been set on shore. That the mode in which the Americans have in this respect conducted themselves, is a systematic preliminary to the ulterior views of their government for the acquisition of territorial power in those parts, is apparent, when it is remarked, that in an article of a treaty concluded between France and the United States within the last twelve years, they mutually guarantee such lands as they may acquire in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and this at a time when neither of them owned an inch of land in the Gulf. Deg of at. A redenition of 1 20 . 10

Not less than twelve hundred sail of American vessels were on those coasts, on real or pretended fishing expeditions, in 1805,<sup>4</sup> and a very extended illicit trade was carried on by them. The evilcomplained of are strongly set forth in the memorial of the inhabitants of Nova Scotia, addressed to Lord Bathurst in Octoberlast, and corroborated by affidavits ; by which it appears, that the Americans have of late years, previous to the present war, far outnumbered the British fishermen, and were very lawless in their manners. They endeavoured to appropriate the bait exclusively to themselves; and frequently, on purpose, passed their boats through the British pets, even at times taking the fish out of them, and going on shore and plundering with impunity." They have frequently landed at the Magdalen Islands, and, hoisting the American flag, have been very abusive and insulting to the inhabitants. On this subject the words of the Memorialists are worthy of quotation : MAmong the evils," they say, " which such an intercourse must inevitably produce, we are convinced, that the sentiments, habits, and manners, both political and moral; of the lower order of the Americans, are dangerous and contaminating in a very great degree. It is our first wish to see these colonies completely British; this will ever be found their surest defence and greatest blessing; but the intercourse permitted by that fatal article of the definitive treaty was detrimental to their duty as subjects, and to every other object of this udires." : a ' - bestimierie a ter telat bean all se strange

By this subject, the attention is collaterally drawn to the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, which we have been in the habit of restoring to France at the conclusion of every war, but which it is to be hoped, will never more be done; for not only is it impolitio to give the French that privilege; but it will afford the Americans an opportunity of treating for the purchase of them from France, which, it is well ascertained, they had on former occasions in contemplation, in order to pursue their favorite plan of aggrandizement, by getting a footing of some kind in the vicinity of the Gulf of St. Lawrence; and we trust that the French will, in future, be totally excluded from Newfoundland—we have much to restore on the return of peace, but we have much that we ought to retain.

The objects hitherto recommended to the attention of the negociators of a treaty with America, are such as tend to secure the integrity of our colonies in that quarter from future encroachment or invasion, and to ensure the permanent enjoyment, both to them and o the mother country, of the advantages in actual or past possession. But another main point remains to be adverted to, and its merits discussed, namely, the improvement and extension of those advantages by the augmentation of the population, agriculture, trade, and falleries of those possessions, removably to be expected from pursuing a true line of policy. It is not enough to know that these territories possess the sources of extended and permanent prosperity, but a is necessary also to give effect and focuality to them by sizeuousing the obstacles, that stand, in the way of their abundant evisflow. An especial, an artificial, and, if the expression may be allowed, a suicidal barrier, has, for years, obstructed and destroyed the blessings which the bounty of Providence put- into our bands. This barrier consisted in allowing the Americans to supply our West India Islands with timber, staves, fish, and provisions. The war, has put an end to this impolitic system, and experience has destroyed the illusions upon which that intercourse was sanctioned, which should never be revived!

that these prosperity,

But it is not only with respect to the prosperity of our Nerth American colonies, that the permitted intercourse of the citizens of the United States with the West Indice is prejudicial, for other and very important branches of British trade have experienced also serious injury. Under the plea of distress in the islands, American vessels, of all sizes, having clandestinely on board East India, European (not British.) and United States manufactures, were admitted during several years, and, till the embargo system took place, almost as freely as if the intercourse had been legally justified." This, however, is only incidentally mentioned.

By the declaration of His Majesty in council of the 27th of December 1783, immediately consequent upon the treaty with America, the first infraction was made in our system of navigation, and the commerce between the United States and the West India which had been completely suspended for eight years, was suddenly revived by public authority. By that hasty and improvident concession we made the United States necessary to the West India, and a system has grown out of it, which has so entangled and beset us on all sides, that it is difficult to convince even rational and unprejudiced minds, that the West India Islands can exist and florish without communication with those States. This renders it therefore necessary to go a little at large into this subject, which is of vital importance to the British settlements in North America. The infallible tendency of the revival of that traffic was to discourage those settlements, which were thereby deprived of a market, which, if they had enjoyed to the present time, would have rendered them as valuable as any of the possessions under the British Crown. Before the American rebellion, the traffic between the continental colonies and the West Indies was so great, that congress, under the idea of ruining the islands, during the war, prohibited all intercourse with them. The experience, however, of eight years, proved that the West India Islands could exist and prosper, even if the United States had been doomed to perpetual sterility. The traders of Great Britain and Ireland seized the opportunity which the enmity of America afforded them, and even during an expensive and consuming war, when vast fleets and armies were fed, beyond the ocean, all those necessaries which the West Indies did not readily procure by their own economy, were sufficiently, and even superabundantly, supplied from the British islands.

It would carry these observations to greater length than intended to give the detailed accounts upon which these assertions are founded; but in illustration of them, the supplies of salted provisions (beef, pork, and fish), those upon which the advocates of a free intercourse with the West Indies lay the most stress, shall here be contrasted, as made by the provincials, ( as they were than called ) in 1775, the last year previous to hostilities, in which their intercourse with the West Indies was uninterrupted, and as made from England in the year 1780, when the war was raging, and in 1785, when peace was concluded.

As to these and other necessaries the West 'india demand was amply answered. The planters also derived ground provisions from the best of all resources, their own industry, and began to learn a lesson, which is of the greatest importance for every people to know, that no community ought to depend upon their neighbours for the necessaries of life, and that the country which is physically dependent upon another runs the greatest hazard of becoming, sconer or later, also politically dependent upon it.

From authentic documents it is undeniably proved, that for the <sup>2</sup> See the Reports of the Privy Council, 1784 and 1791.

Fortunately, many impediments in the way of com of to a direct determination of this question are removed. "The arguments of interest or prejudice, used by those who have espoused the opposite side, have been most ably refuted by the thorough official and parliamentary investigations that have taken place, and have been triumphantly and practicably baffled by the experience of the last seven or eight years, during which time the Americans have, in a great measure, excluded themselves from the West India trade, by embargo systems and actual hostilities. an a handlafie r'agit of 1' in In 1784, the necessity of allowing a free intercourse between the sugar colonies and the United States of America, in American bottoms, underwent a full and thorough investigation by the privy council. In the report of the committee of council of the 31st of May in that year, there is a statement of the allegations and evidence produced, and the opinions of merchants and other persons, both for and against the alleged necessity. The result of this important enquiry was, the satisfactory conviction that by prohibiting or obstructing the intercourse between the United States and the West India Islands, the people of the United States will suffer more than His Majesty's subjects; that their lumber and provisions must perish on their hands ; and that the British West India islands may be furnished with those articles without their assistance. When a fresh investigation took place in 1791, the former opinion of the committee of the privy council, respecting the competency of the British North American colonies to supa hid set & strate & rain ply the Weit littles, and the necessity of confining that traffic to British vessels, was substantially and unequivocally confirmed. The report made upon that occasion, together with the memorials from our colonies in North America, in 1804, and the reports of the Buard of Trade upon them, as well as the orders issued in conmones, by the administration of that day,' form as complete a body of evidence against the expediency of allowing this intercourse between the West India islands and the United States of America, as ever was submitted to the consideration of man. ".". The superabundance of wheat and flour before the present war was so great in Canada, that considerable cargoes were annually shipped to Great Britain, Portugal, and other parts, and it is observed by an intelligent writer on the resources of British North America " That the temporary causes which had checked the cultivation of this province are in some respects removed, and in incremed annual export of flour and wheat may be depended upon, as the culture of wheat and manufacture of flour are rapidly increasing in that settlement, whence have recently been exported in one year, 800,000 bushels of wheat, and 30,000 barreis of flour."" sh' sh and was to to statist of stir contra part

The facts adduced respecting the competency of these colonies, from their progressive improvement, to supply the West India islands, apply with equal or more force to the settlements of Nova Scotis, and New Brunswick ; not only because their geographical situation is more advantageous to Great Britain than any other on the continent of North America, but also from their connection with Canada, the adjacent British islands, and the fisheries, and from the superior excellence and number of their harbours, they can supply, with facility, the British West India islands, with every species of lumber, and the woods abound with all the various kinds of timber to be found in New England. Herrings have hitherto been carried to the West Indice, from these two provinces, at a cheaper rate, than from Great Britain. In short, to expatiate on all the objects of The war in which we are engaged illustrates, and will spe justify all these reasonings. It is no longer in the power of th United States to supply the British West Indies, and it becom daily more evident that those islands can and will be implied .wi out their intervention. . Most incerely is it to be hoped, that the reiterated experience of the fallney of the doctrines of the Ameri can advocates, which has been derived through the medium of war; will open our eyes, and induce us to revive, in all its viger, the nad vigation, and [colonial system of England, to give every species of encouragement to our colonies, and to probibit, in fu all intercourse between the United States and the Britis West India Islande .: + Se . or a coplan agen ( . Though foreign to the more immediate object of these pages, is is equally desirable, that the Americane may be also excluded from trading with our Asiatic persensions. That most absurd anomaly in commercial policy by which foreigners were admitted to trade to British ports in India, from which the Rast India company excluded all other British traders, will now, it is most forwardly to be hoped, from the new aspect which our oriental commerce will assume, by the partial opening of the India trade, be abasdened, never to be resumed ; and this is an object likewise to be attended to in any peace with the United States of America. reache in from the avil consequences of past oversights, it is to be presented, that the British government will not allow Florida to be incorporated with the United States ;--will insist upon the free navigation of the Missisippi, and security for its continuance;--will esposes the cause of our ancient and faithful allies, the Indiana ;--and will require such boundaries, securities, and checks, as will in future keep within their due confines, and curb the ambitious projects of the American republicans. The war may be said to have retrieved our lost ground and to have placed the assertion of-our maritime rights wholly within our own power, unshackled by the embarresement of improvident concessions, or of commercial treaties.

We should accordingly avoid, at the restoration of peace, entering into any commercial treaty with the United States; for we have seen, that almost every article of those which have been concluded with them, has only served to entangle us in fresh negociations, and to encourage the American government to pursue a systematic course of fraud and encroachment, whenever an article unfavorable to their views admitted of contortion or evasion. It being, thus, advisable, that no commercial treaty should be made with the United States, it will be necessary that all the bases that will have reference to the future commercial relations between the two countries, should be defined by the treaty of peace and amity; and these may be fixed in the best and easiest mode, by discharging from the discussion all questions of detail as to countervailing duties, legal or illegal importations, &c. and leaving the trade to be carried on under the municipal regulations of each country.

To conclude. The summary of what we have attempted to show the necessity of, and have warmly recommended to those whom Great Britain may charge with the adjustment of our differences with America, is,

First, a new boundary line, throughout the whole extent of North America, where our possessions and those of the United States come into contact; keeping in view, that Nova Scotia and New Brunswick be restored to their ancient limits, security against aggression and a free communication with Canada be obtained, without passing through the United States, and the islands in Passamaquoddy Bay be resumed by us : That the Americans be excluded from the anvigation of the St. Lawrence, and of all its tributary lakes and waters; and That a navigable part of the Missisippi be brought within our Canadian territorice.

Thirdly, No forts or military posts, to be erected by the Americans in the Indian territory, or on the boundaries, or any territorial or other jurisdiction or public property possessed by them within those limits.

Fourthly, The independence of the Indians, and the integrity of their boundaries to be guaranteed by Great Britain.

Fifthly, The Americane to be excluded from the fisheries on the coasts of British North America, incidentally on this head taking care that it be recommended in negociating with France, by no means to restore the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, or to permit the French to participate in the fisheries of Newfoundland. Sixthly, The Americans to be excluded from all intercourse with the British West India Islands. Seventhly, The Americans to be excluded from trading with our East India possessions, and their protended right to the morthwest coast of America to be extinguished for ever.

Eighthly, The Americans not to be allowed to incorporate the Floridas with their republic; and the cession of New Orleans to be required, in order to ensure to us the due enjoyment of our privilege to navigate the Missisippi : and here it may also be a question, in how far the arrangements made between Spain, France, and America, respecting Louisiana, can come into discussion.

Lastly, No commercial treaty to be entered into with the United States, but the bases upon which trade is in future to be carried on between the two nations, to be defined and schowledged in the treaty of peace and amity, and to be regulated by the municipal laws of each country.

Having thus reviewed and examined these objects, and produced, it is to be hoped, a conviction of the essential nature of them to the prosperity and existence of our colonial possessions in North America, we trust they will not be absorbed in the magnitude, or be suffered to merge in the weight, of those grand questions, whence the war originated,---the respective assertion and denial of our MARI-TIME ARD INMEBENT BIOHTS. In fact, while they are exarcely to be desmed of minor importance, in one point of view they form the bulk of what ought to come under discussion; for as to our maritime rights, we re-assert, that so far from the concession being admitted, even all disquisition relative to them should peremptorily be abstained from.

It is needless to enter into the abstract principle, the moral propriety, or the accepted and acknowledged legality of our claims, though all have been established on grounds, if not always wholly incontrovertible, yet never satisfactorily controverted. It is sufficient to revert to the principle, that God and nature having put the power of the ocean, as the surest and only bulwark of an island against its ambitious neighbours into our hands, we are fully entitled to exercise that power for our complete security, and so as to ensure us the full enjoyment of the naval prosperity consequent upon it. We seek not, we cannot seek, to controul the nations of the earth, whose strength is in armies, and in territories, and in multitudes; but we have a power given to us to wield, by which this our little island can resist the armies, and the wealth, and the multitudes of the assembled world. That power must never depart from us, or we cease to exist as a nation. That power resides in our maritime rights. To them unreserved adberence must be our device, the sword and the rudder our supporters: so shall the shield of our security be blazoned with glory, and our crest be, and remain, the honorable and perdurable dominion of the ocean. "The diplomatic farce they have been acting, in their proposals (impudently demanding therein, as a preliminary, the very object of the contest) for an armistice on your side of the water, whilst they rejected it on this side, must surely convince the most incredulous that their purpose was to lull the nation asleep, in order that their conquest might be prosecuted, without interruption."

"It cannot but make a forcible impression upon all who will impartially reflect upon the past conduct of the American government, that whilst the orders in council were considered likely to be persisted in, they were loudly complained of, as the only bar to accommodation and harmony between the two countries : but no sooner was it found that they would be given up; if that would suffice (see Lord Wellesley's letter to Mr. Pinkney, of 29th December 1810), than the latter, in his answer of 14th January 1811, brings forward the annulment of the blockade of May 1806, as also indispensable. Now, it is notorious, that this blockade was never complained of by America, until she was required so to do by Bomaparte ; for Mr. Mouroe, so far from remonstrating against it, at the time, officially wrote, that he considered it 'as highly satisfactory to the commercial interests;' and the said orders and blockade being at an end, Bonaparte's principles of blockade must also be acknowledged, and impressments from American 'vessels given up; which latter they confound and blind in such a manner, as to leave it equivocal, whether native American seamen be only meant, a point we never claimed, or British seamen naturalized in America be also included, which we can never admit, as it violates fundamental principles of right, and would unman our navy in a few years.

"Further, they insidiously aim at our giving up the right of search for our seamen, and to trust to their prohibitions, (to be hereafter made.) about employing them; but if we ever abandon that right, either as to search for contraband goods or for seamen—or trust to any other security for enforcement of our rights upon these points, then the vigilance of our own navy—then farewell to our independence as a nation. Thus, it is evident, that give up what you will, something more is diways held in reserve by America; to keep up irritation sgainst us; and to promote the purposes of France; and it is further evident, by the conduct of America since her declaration of war, that in drawing the sword she threw navy the scabbard, and yet we remain with ours sheathed.

"The American government will be found inferior only to Buona parte's in the arts of deception, and of framing and circulating false. boods, calculated to give a color to their unprincipled deeds, and to mislead public opinion. F They are ever ready to accuse their enemy of practices which they scruple not to pursue. In nothing is this more manifest, than in their Appeoritical micropresentations about our emson's message to congress, at the opening of its present session. " The truth is, that the Americans have done the utmost to corrupt all the Indian nations, and employ them against us; when, finding their efforts in general fail (although successful in particular instances), they initate the fox in the fable, and ery out sour grapes ;---affecting to wish for Indian neutrality ; although it is notorious that they would, if they could, employ every Indian in desoluting Canada; and it is equally notorious, that they exaggerate the cruelties of Indian warfare, whilst greater are practized by the white savages of the Western Americen States, who are really more incherous than the rod energes of the wilderness, and my pridesie thes dis restates, quangatates

"Of the Indians of North America, the far greater proportion live spithout the British territories, and only a small part within; which latter are chiefly such as were driven from the United States, in the American war, and to whom tracts of land were assigned in Upper Canada. Even these were offered brikes by the Americans to denet us, and being terrified by their gascounde about the power of Americal, and our defenceless situation, at one time balanced, from fear of them, but not from some of affection for us. " Part of the Indians of St. Regis, a few others of the Six Nations, and some Shawanesse who live spithes the American territory, joined them. General Hull's official dispatch proves the efforts he made to procure others; who, he bitterly complains, deceived and deserted him: and the American General Brown's invitation to the St. Regis Indians, whilst he commanded at Ogdensburg; as well as the Indians, generally, being invited to go to Washington and other places, to hold conferences, are further proofs of what I assert. Yet, after all these efforts to acduce the Indians, the American government has the efforitary to talk about Indian assistance to us. The reason why firey do not succeed better in their plans of corruption is, that the Indians have experienced their deceptions and treachery too often to trust them, in any case, but that of necessity. The rule of the United States, respecting the Indians, is, ' that might makes right.' They consider them as an inferior and unprotected class of beings, and act accordingly.

"The Indians, as well as the loyalists of British America, are objects of deadly democratic hate, as the speeches in congress plainly evince : indeed, the views of the Amazican government seem long to have pointed at a systematic plan for exterminating the Indians-if not always by open force, at least by an insidious policy, which must operate to that effect: and the farce of the attempt made to civilize them so much vaunted of in Mr. Jefferson's cant, was merely to deceive, and gain applause from foreign nations, who were ignorant of American practices, and of their Indian land swindling. Of this, the famous chief Tecumsecth, who unites the greatest wisdom with the most determined valor, was co well'aware; that he had been long endeavouring to form a general league, to preserve Indian rights and repress AMERICAN INJUSTICE; but which, previous to the war, OUR government, from good faith and delicacy to the United States, declined giving countenance to, and on all occasions recommended peace ; which sentiment, the British traders, in conformity with the vishes of this government, and in furtherance of their own interests, re-echoed to the interior tribes. But the moment that America declared war against Great Britain, the idea seems almost universally to have flashed upon the Indian mind, like lightning: that the moment was arrived for redress of the deep injuries inflicted upon them by the United States ; and, consequently, they embraced the Britisli cause in the full. persuasion that they had no permanent hope but from British success and justice.-Thus every motive combined to stimulate them to aid in defending THEIR AND OUR lives and properties s. "Under such circumstances, had we, from any abourd or fastidious scruples, rejected their assistance, it would have been holding out a premium for their turning against us; for, as an Indian calef lately oberved, there is no such word in their language as scattered. They undenteed not its meaning—they know only of friend or for. But an unanswerable argument is, that see and the Indiane are not attacking American rights, but defending our own—we seek not the annatural for, but he comes (in many cases above one theseand uniles,) to invedo and evalue both of us. By what law, therefore, of God or man, are, we to be prevented from employing those who have so deep a common interest in our defence 1 and especially as we are at three thousand uniles' distance from the mother country, which unhappily has been temporally blinded by American cunning and hypocrisy, whereby, for a time, the Canadas have been left exposed to the attack of a population of ten times their numbers.

"The Americans affect to reprobate the Indian mode of warfare; but look at their ears practice, which will be seen in General Hull's exterminating proclamation, and in General Smyth's offering a price for the speils of each Indian killed ; and further, in the fact, that the first each, this war, was taken by an American scout, at the river Canard, near Amherstburg. Look also at all the American Newspapers, from Ohio to Georgin, wherein will be seen stated, as mosters of course, the hurning of Indian villages and corn-fields, wherein they boast that sick and wounded Indians were consumed—and that so many scalps were brought array as trophics.—The house of a Kentucky man is generally ornamented with some Indian scalps. The American back-woods men go to hunt Indians, as if they were wild beasts.

"The Americans, in their public capacity, behave with equal injustics. Governor Harrison, in 1811, with an army, went across the Indian line fixed BY SOLEMN TERATY, without any previous notification, to attack the Prophet's town, which he burnt, after, however, being made to pay dearly for his treachery.

Admitting, however, there may be some instances of the managere of a family by Indians, it will be generally found to have been such as had encroached upon their territory, established by treaty :--but what comparison, in point of atrocity, in there between such, and the deliberate purpose of extermination, which is evinced by the burning of Indian villages and corn-fields, and driving tribes from their hunting grounds ? To aim at starving or expatriating a whole people, is surely more beinous than killing a few individuals. American encroachments are not confined to one quarters. They entend to the Floridas, where a scene of peculiar and unbloading villalay has been exhibited. "As to the Americane practicing what they after to reproduce, it might be sufficient to rest the proof thereas upon the fact that scelping knives and tomahanks form part of the supponents of the wederes and litic, and that the cartridges of all their soldiers,' regulars, and others, are made up toils one ball and these back abot. "In their account of the het incursion into Lower Canada by Colonel Pyke,' one of their regular officers,' some of their is term suite, that they burnt a hit occupied as a guard house, at Odle towp, whereis they boast of consuming four or five Indians, whose bones they pretentied to have found amongst the embers. This was false, as the whole escaped; but it proves the American practice, mind, and fashing, an strongly as if if had been true.

"It is a memorable fact, that since the commencement of the war, NO CRUELTY HAS BEEN COMMITTED BY THE INDIANS; but, on the contrary, at Michilianskinse, Detroit, Upper and Lower Causde, they have been confined within the strictest bounds of humanity and moderation, ' although previously threatened by General Hull with no quarter. And nothing can more strongly evince the duplicity and want of candor in the American character than this further fact, that none of those who owed their lives to Indian forbearance, under the galdance of British humanity, have ever had the honesty, publicly to acknowledge the fact, or to publish a contradiction to the barefaced folsebooks daily circulated in the American democratic papers, (including the government paper, the National Intelligencer.) about cruelties committed by Indians, under British excitements. And although thousands of American militia men have, after capture, been suffered immediately to return home; yet, in no instance has a Causdian militia-man, in either <sup>4</sup> It is with peculiar satisfaction we find our Indian allies, notwithstanding the wrongs they have suffered, still pursuing the same line of conduct, in proof of which we quote the letter from Majur-general P. See the London Gayette, 26th February 1814. <sup>4</sup> Lieutenant-Colonel Elliot in this, as well as or other occasions, is entitled to my highest commendations, for his zeal and activity as superintendant of the INDIAN department; and I am happy to add, that through his exertions, and that of his officers, we set of crustity, sa for a I could learn, was committed by the Budiess towards any of their primeters.

Witness the traitor : who had been some years engaged in such practices, but who, unfortunately for us, escaped from Upper Canada, and avoided his merited fate, when Detroit was captured, by escaping in disguise, was one of many, but the proofs of his guilt are the strongest. "Another instance of that efficantery will be found in Hull's pro--ld. clamation, which was coined for him at Washington, wherein is h forth a public invitation to the people of Upper Canada, to rebel against their government. Yet to read the American accusations against the British government, people at a distance would suppose the Americans to be most delicately scrupulous, and possessing the very milk of hum kindness; but it is a duty to unmask and show them in their real character. "It may be asked, what injuries have the Indians who inhabit the country, without the British territory, sustained from the Americans, which can justify the investerate antipathy which has produced so many Indian wars, and which have excited those apprehensions of externistation, so generally entertained by the Aborigines? In the number of those injuries and wrongs are the following, as mentioned in substance by the sugarious Tecumsecth, in his interesting interview with the Insented and brave General Brock, whom he came to see, and aid in his expedition to repel Hull's invasion of Upper Cunda: "Fret, The Americane systematically encrouse mon their lands,

<sup>44</sup> Siath, Obstructions and embarrassments of various kinds had been long thrown in the way of British traders coming to them with supplies; and finally, those traders were altogether prohibited from bringing their supplies, by laws (namely, the non-importation, nonintercourse, dc.) to which the Indians serve as parties r notwithstanding they were, by treaties made by them as independent nations (and solemnly sanctioned by America), maintained is their right of intercourse with the British traders. <sup>44</sup> Second, Thist nether the feelings, interests, or rights of Indians, are at all considered by the American's but, on the contrary, are

"I fear that I am becoming tiresome, and must conclude, but not before submitting to you these questions, after a perusal of the foregoing observations.

" Can there be a doubt about the practical as well as abstract right of emplo ing the Indians in our and their defence ; and is there not now an imperious necessity for manifesting to America, by every practicable means, our power of compelling her to do them and us justice 7

" Can there be a Briton now so lost to all feeling and sense of national honor, as not to be roused to indignation, when the metive, the time, and all the circumstances of the American declaration of war, as also their practice under it, are taken into consideration ?

" Can America, as a nation, be at present considered in any other light than a parricide, deliberately aiming at the life of her parent; and that, to promote the triumph of the MERCILESS USURPER who is desolating continental Europe ? Surely Heaven will punish, even in this world, a conduct so superlatively unnatural.
