Millard C. Noble
The many friends of Millard C. Noble will regret to learn of his death which occurred at an early hour on Sunday morning at the D. S. O. R. Hospital, West St. John. Mr. Noble was only a young man, being in his twenty-fifth year, and had seen long service at the front, having crossed with the first Canadian contingent as a member of the No. 1 Field Ambulance under the late Major Duval. While engaged as a stretcher bearer at the front, he injured himself in lifting and, as a result, had to undergo two operations in England. On return to this country he was again operated on and it was thought that he was improving, but about a month ago his condition took a turn for the worse and he entered the hospital, where death came suddenly yesterday morning. He was a son of W. F. Noble, chief operator for the C. P. R. Telegraph Co., and besides his father and mother leaves four brothers. The brothers are Charles, Alexander, Gordon and Stewart, all at home. Another brother, Donald, was also at the front, but as a result of his service died in Wales some time ago. The death occurred yesterday morning of Louis C. LaBrack, a former well known resident of this city after a long illness. He is survived by his wife and one son, Charles, a former member of the C. E. F. who returned home lately. The funeral will take place from 50 Clarence street on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Murphy was seventy-two years of age, and is survived by a son, James J. of this city; three daughters, Mrs. J. J. McNamee, of Colbrook; Mrs. M. J. O'Keefe, of Montreal, and Miss Nellie at home; a brother, Mrs. Catherine Donovan, and two sisters, Mrs. Catherine Driscoll and Mrs. Helen O'Leary, all of St. John. The funeral will be held on Wednesday morning from her late residence at 8:30 o'clock to the cathedral for a high mass of requiem.

The death of Mrs. Sarah Parry took place Saturday morning in this city from heart failure. She was a native of Wales and her husband coming to Canada when young people. She leaves two sons and two daughters, the Misses Sarah and Kate Parry of this city.

Frederick N. Clarke, aged forty-five years, organist of St. Paul's Anglican church, Halifax, died yesterday.

Mother Mary Philomena of the Sisters of Charity died at St. Vincent's Convent Saturday afternoon. She was born at Frenchville, Me., in 1840, and for fifty-six years has been a member of the community. She was general superior of the order after the death of Mother M. Augustine. When the Mater Misericordiae Home was founded about thirty years ago she was made superior there.

William Harrison died at his home in New Jerusalem, Queens county, Sunday morning in the eighty-fourth year of his age. He leaves his wife, one son, A. P. Harrison, at home, one daughter, Mrs. Wesley Smith and one brother, Samuel J. Harrison, of 30 Stanley street, St. John.

Corbett, who was accidentally killed at the Union Depot, Friday evening, was conducted at his late residence, 84 City Road, last evening by the Rev. Canon H. A. Armstrong. The body was taken to Welsford on the early train this morning for burial.

SIMS CONTINUES

HIS BOMBARDMENT.
A letter was placed before a sub-committee of the United States senate on Saturday in Washington by Rear-Admiral Simms entitled "certain naval lessons of the great war." He said that before leaving for London he had been told "not to let the British pull the wool over his eyes," that the States "would soon fight the British as the Germans." It was not brought out who issued these instructions but it was said to have been a high official. Admiral Simms said that for the first six months after their entry the States had not fully co-operated with the Allies but had shown too great a desire to "protect their own coast."

FIRST DEBATE

Arguments in Favor of Eastern Canada Given Decision—The Winter's Programme.

The affirmative speakers, Frederick D. McGuire and Frederick Hazel, representing the Knights of Columbus, were awarded the decision, at the conclusion of the first debate of a series arranged for the season by the St. John Inter-Society Debating Union, held at the Kings of Columbus headquarters yesterday afternoon. Their opponents were John McDonald and Leo H. Dever, of St. Peter's Y. M. A. The subject of the debate was: "Resolved that Eastern Canada offers as many opportunities to the young man as western Canada." That the series of debates is attracting much interest among the young men was indicated by the presence of more than 200 in the audience. President E. P. O'Toole, in his opening remarks, said that the Knights of Columbus, St. Peter's Y. M. A., the Young Men's Catholic Institute, Holy Name Society, Irish Literary and Benevolent Society and the Immaculate Conception Society had formed the debating union and that the one yesterday was the first of what promised to be an interesting series. The aim of the union was to develop the forensic abilities of the young men. A handsome silver trophy has been donated for competition.

His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc is honorary president of the union, Rev. William M. Duke, honorary vice-president; Mr. O'Toole of the Y. M. C. I., president; P. A. Colahan of the Irish Literary and Benevolent Society, vice-president; F. T. Doherty, of St. Peter's Y. M. A., secretary, and William M. Ryan, of the Knights of Columbus, treasurer. The executive consists of two members from each constituent society, as follows: Knights of Columbus, Thomas K. Sweeney and William M. Ryan; St. Peter's Y. M. A., J. Dever and F. T. Doherty; Y. M. C. I., E. P. O'Toole and B. J. McCafferty; Holy Name Society, George McDermott and James Emery; Irish Literary and Benevolent Society, P. A. Colahan and James Barry; Immaculate Conception Society, Joseph Melliday and J. McNulty.

Among the subjects of the coming debates are: Capital punishment, commission government, harbor commission and nationalization of this port, trades union, maritime union, municipal ownership and a third party in politics. Each speaker yesterday had fifteen minutes in which to present his views, with five minutes allowed each side for rebuttal. The judges were Joseph Harrington, W. J. Mahoney and W. P. Shea.

ITCH! ITCH! ITCH!

It Seems Sometimes As If You Would Fly Out of Your Skin.

Eczema, or salt rheum not only itches, but it also burns, oozes, dries and scales over and over again. Sometimes it covers the whole body and causes intense suffering. You have found that local applications have no lasting effect, and you want permanent relief. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, give it a good fair trial, because you must thoroughly purify your blood or the eruption will continue to annoy, perhaps agonize you. This great medicine has been successfully used in thousands of cases. To make and keep the bowels normally active, take Hood's Pills, they are gentle and thorough.

ST. JOHN'S GREATEST MERCANTILE EVENT
Great Volume at Minimum Profit the Motto For This Final Week.

The interest shown by the purchasing public in Oak Hall's anniversary sale this year far exceeds that of any previous year and one reason is that they are realizing more and more the actual meaning of the Oak Hall motto—Large Volume at Minimum Profit—they know that any successful business house must show a certain net profit at the end of the year and that the more business the house does the less it can mark its merchandise and still realize its profit, so that the phase adopted by Oak Hall means exactly what it says—Large Volume at a very Minimum Profit—the larger the volume the lower can the merchandise be priced, and so this large volume in reality brings a benefit directly back to Oak Hall's customers.

Another reason that has tended to make the Oak Hall anniversary sale the greatest mercantile event in St. John is that they are a sale in every sense of the word. Not only are the odds and ends of the season's selling offered at tremendous reductions, but thousands of dollars worth of new merchandise are bought at bargain prices and offered to the public at a very minimum of profit and further, every piece of merchandise in the great Oak Hall store is offered at a substantial reduction every day. Oak Hall know that it will be necessary for them to go into the market and replenish their stock at considerably advanced prices.

These are the chief reasons why Oak Hall's anniversary sale is undoubtedly St. John's greatest mercantile event and Oak Hall consider it the very best of advertising to set aside these ten days whereby the buying public reap the benefits of these many money-saving opportunities. It consolidates and widens their wide connections throughout the city and province; it tends to increase the volume of the sale to a close Saturday evening at 10 o'clock so that there is still ample opportunity for everybody to take full advantage of the great offering.

Use The WANT AD. WAY

THE FATALISTS.

She had blue eyes—that ancestress of mine,
But with a flash of gray, of wind-lashed brine
(The gray-blue eye—look for the Seer, always!);
While mine were brook-brown, faintly
shot with gray.

We sat before the fire on the hearth of stone,
She told old stories of gone times—her own.
Of hardships that had fallen in her lot,
Of trusts, not proof! Of wrongs—not one forgot!

Then I, soft-hearted, laid a small rough hand
In hers, and yearned that she might understand!
Oh, did she! While she spoke, I never knew;
Straight in the fire she gazed, with eyes
gray-blue.

Or, if my touch at all availed, it was
To link conclusion with the primal cause,
As in the fire she looked—and not at me!

And mused: "It was to be! It was to be!"

These words some comfort brought her
—or so seemed,
For, after them, upon the fire we dreamed.

We two, together; while a gentler hand Touched mine with something I could understand.

With very human-love, half-pity, still:
As though for one who could not have the skill
To read the Open Book, because its lore
Was in a script on which one yet must pore!

She had blue eyes, with gray shot through and through,
Mine were brook-brown, yet had their gray shafts, too.
Far later, to that script I have the key,
And now could cry with her: "It was to be!"

TURKS PROTEST

Want Empire Kept Intact with Constantinople Capital.

Constantinople, Jan. 19.—Protests against "the reported intent" of the peace conference to dismember the Turkish Empire and to internationalize this country, were voiced at a great mass meeting held here.

Resolutions were adopted declaring Constantinople should be maintained as the capital of Turkey and the seat of the government, demanding the evacuation of Smyrna and adjacent region by the Greeks, asking for an immediate conclusion of peace, asserting the integral sovereignty of the Turkish nation should be maintained over territories in which the majority of the inhabitants are Turks, and giving assurance that the rights and interests of Christian or Turkish minorities would be safeguarded.

Many meetings have been held in Anatolia under the auspices of Turkish national leaders.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Jan. 19.—Admiral Jellicoe, accompanied by Sir Robert Borden, arrived here on Saturday on the battleship New Zealand, and were given an enthusiastic reception. The party has planned to sail on Wednesday.

WAS TEN BELOW THIS MORNING

This Winter Vieing with 1917 for Low Record—Greatest Snowfall of Season on Saturday.

The winter of 1919-1920 is striving to hang up a record for low temperature, and although it has yet to "go some" to eclipse the winter of 1917-1918, its efforts are at least commendable. Already it is well on the way towards being an outstanding winter in the total number of hours of zero weather experienced, but the extreme low temperatures which prevailed two winters ago established such a low average that it will take considerable beating.

Starting at thirty degrees above on Saturday evening, the thermometer started a descent which continued all day on Sunday and this morning about nine degrees reached the minimum of ten points below the cipher. The mercury passed the zero mark on its trip to the lower regions about last midnight. The highest at which the thermometer stood on Sunday was thirteen above. Hampton reported eighteen below this morning.

The snow fall on Saturday amounted to five and three-quarter inches, the greatest amount of snow that has fallen here at one time during the season. A twenty-mile breeze this morning accentuated the intensity of the cold snap.

Elsewhere.

Reports from other places are: St. Stephen—Fair; 13 below. Woodville—30 below; fine and cold. Grand Falls—30 below; clear and cold. Moncton—5 below; heavy northwest winds; fine.

Halifax—Fine; lowest 2 above; five above at 10 a. m.

Sydney—Fresh west wind; clear and cold; lowest 6 above.

Edmundston—30 below at 7.30 a. m.; clear; northwest winds.

Fredericton—Clear and cold; 13 below early this morning.

TEN CASES OF WHISKEY STOLEN

One Arrest in Matter of Theft From North End Vendors.

In the police court this morning appeared Thomas Ramsey, who was arrested on Saturday by Sergeant Detective Power and Detective Biddiscombe on suspicion of acting together with others in the theft of ten cases of whiskey, valued at $800. No evidence was taken and the case was postponed and the accused remanded.

The case against William Webber, who was charged with having liquor in his possession for sale, was determined last Wednesday and a judgment given in favor of the defendant, but on motion of W. M. Ryan, counsel for the prosecution, that the liquor be destroyed, the magistrate postponed the case until this morning and intended to give judgment in that connection. However, the defence expressed themselves as not being satisfied with the judgment and stated that it would not be taken up for review on certiorari, but they had prepared no affidavits to present to the magistrate this morning. In view of this the magistrate postponed the case until Thursday and said if affidavits were not filed he would make an order for the destruction of the liquor. E. S. Ritchie appeared for the defence.

The case against Dr. F. X. Morris, it is understood, will be taken up tomorrow morning.

Two men, charged with drunkenness, were disposed of, one being remanded to jail while the other was in such condition that it was necessary to send him to the General Public Hospital.

HORSES OF ST. MARK ARE BACK IN VENICE

Priceless Bronze Group Was Sent to Rome for Safety—Welcomed by People.

The Horses of St. Mark are back in their old place. Removed for fear of destruction by Austrian bombs, on May 27, 1918, to Rome, the priceless group of the four bronze horses was carried back to Venice in a veritable procession of triumph on November 12 last and replaced, amid the enthusiastic ovations of the Venetian people, on its old pedestal just above the portal of the Basilica of San Marco. The ceremony was described as "the greatest event in Venice since the beginning of the war."

So the peregrinations of the famous horses have come to an end for the present, at any rate. For these horses seem to display a strange wanderlust—an inclination to change their habitat every few centuries or so. They have been described as the oldest and, at the same time, the most traveled animals in the world. How old are they? Nobody knows for certain. Their story reaches back into some uncharted tracts of Greco-Roman antiquity. Legends and hypotheses concerning their origin there are plenty; certainly there is not.

stantine the Great on the transfer of the imperial capital to Byzantium. There they survived, for eight centuries, alike the ravages of plunder-mad barbarians and the religious fury of iconoclasts—survived even the decree of Theodosius ordering the destruction of all pagan monuments and symbols.

Napoleon's Loot.
In the beginning of the thirteenth century they were carried by the victorious Latin conquerors of Constantinople to Venice, where they remained until 1797. In that year Napoleon included them in his copious Italian loot sent back to Paris. Eighteen years afterward they were restored to Venice, there to stay unmolested for exactly 100 years. Between May, 1915, and November, 1918, once again, after a lapse of 1400 years, their abode was Rome; and now they are back in the place, which, after all, can be considered as their proper home—the city of St. Mark, Venice.

From Classic Hellas to Rome, thence to Byzantium, Venice, Paris—the line of travel described by the four bronze horses symbolizes, in a sense, the shifting of the European centre of gravity, political and cultural. Their flight westward during the war before the ravages of the Teuton is, perhaps, equally symbolic; and their replacement heralds that once more Latin civilization is safe from the wrath of northern barbarians.

However, as regards the earliest history of the group, scholarly opinion is still unsettled. That it had been brought to Venice from Constantinople in the course of the so-called Latin crusade early in the 1200s seems assured; but nothing certain is known about its previous history. As a matter of fact, its first authentic mention occurs in A. D. 1384. On June 4 of that year, Petrarch, the poet, standing on the right of the Doge of Venice, on a platform overlooking the piazza of St. Mark, watched the triumphant procession commemorating the great Venetian victory over the rebellious Cretans. Describing the event, the poet mentions, "among those presents," as it were, the "wonderful gilt horses of St. Mark," so lifelike that they "almost neighed and stamped with their feet."

According to Venetian tradition which has an inherent probability, the four horses were brought to the City of the Lagoons from Constantinople by the Duke Enrico Dandolo in the year 1204, with other notable treasures captured on the conquest of the Eastern capital by the Latin crusaders. For the next twenty-five years, however, the horses seem to have been forgotten; in 1229 the Duke Pietro Ziani placed them above the portals of St. Mark's Basilica. The early hypothesis that the horses were of Roman origin is assailed by A. Dall'Acqua Giusti, the Italian historian. He attributes this tradition to the ignorance of Venetian chroniclers, who associated the horses with the triumphal arch of some Roman emperor, probably Nero. Dall'Acqua Giusti points out that the quadriga, or triumphal chariot drawn by four horses, was by no means a Roman invention, but had been copied from a Greek model. It is actually identical with the vehicle of the winner in the Olympic chariot races held every five years. According to the testimony of antique coins, such statues of a team of four horses had existed in various places in ancient Greece. Thus, Pliney speaks of one, executed by Lysippus and standing in the Isle of Rhodes. Papias, the Byzantine historian, mentions another group of four bronze horses brought from Chios to Constantinople by the Emperor Theodosius, who reigned in the years 378-395. It is likely that the Horses of St. Mark are actually identical with the latter group, in which the theory of Roman origin and the transfer to Byzantium by Constantine the Great may be discarded. The story quoted by Sanudo, the Venetian writer, that the horses had been found in Persia is, of course, a pure myth.

Symbol of the Republic.
Ever since their arrival to Venice the horses have been regarded as symbolic of the destiny of St. Mark's Republic. Thus in the year 1378, when Venice was besieged from the land side by the Paduans and from the sea by the Genoese, the leader of the latter, Pietro Doria, said to a Venetian envoy asking for a truce: "Upon my honor, you shall not have peace until we have bridled those unbridled horses of yours that stand on the palace of your evangelist, St. Mark."

Notwithstanding the threat of the Genoese admiral, the horses of St. Mark remained unbridled for another four centuries; but, strangely, the prophecy implied in Doria's words came true in 1797. In that year the ancient Venetian Republic was destroyed by Napoleon, then First Consul of France; and the event was marked by the "bridling," as it were, of the four bronze horses, which were taken by the conqueror and carried away to his distant capital. On conquering the city, Napoleon demanded, among other things, the cession of twenty paintings, mostly by Titian and Veronese, adorning the ducal palace and the churches of Venice. The city council, however, petitioned him to content himself with sixteen paintings and offered to substitute for the other four pictures the four horses of St. Mark. The latter, it was said, will "be in Paris a monument worthy of the achievements of these days, so famous in the annals of the world."

Napoleon accepted the compromise, and the horses were taken. Napoleon planned to hitch the four bronze horses in front of a quadriga which was to hold his own statue, crowned with a wreath of laurel, after the manner of the Roman Caesars. In 1805 the team was actually placed upon triumphal arch erected in front of the imperial residence in Paris. A distich on the side of the arch, commemorating the procession of 1798, said, referring to the horses:

"Greece ceded them,
Rome has lost them,
Their fate changed twice,
It will change no more."

This prophecy was not fulfilled. In 1815, after the fall of Napoleon, the horses were removed from their Paris location at the order of Emperor Francis of Austria and carried back to Venice, which then formed the most highly prized gem among the Hapsburg possessions. It is a strange irony of fate that the same Austrians should have restored the Horses of St. Mark to their ancient home, whose barbarian methods of warfare necessitated, just one hundred years later, the removal of the priceless statues to the comparative safety of Rome. During the late war, when raids of the Austro-German airmen menaced the art treasures of Venice, the horses were first covered up with sandbags, like the rest of the public monuments. However, it was thought that the great weight of the group might, in case of an explosion, imperil the facade of St. Mark's itself, and so the horses were hoisted down and taken to Rome, where they found accommodation in the Baths of Diocletian. There they remained until last November—Eugene S. Bagger in New York Tribune.

"THE MIRACLE MAN"

Verses in Appreciation By Russell Mitcheltree

No miracles today?
Say, bo! Where d'ya get that bunk?
See that girl there—the one with the big, clear eyes?
A few months back, her berry, leering lips
Burned the souls of the men that crushed them.
Her wanton's face, red-painted,
Twisted with sin as if the devil had stepped on it,
Was a brazen sign of a life that reeked,
And now she is good! Her smile's as sweet
As the smile of your mother in those first tender years,
When you were just a little, toddling kid,
And she was young and fair.

No miracles? That handsome devil standing at the front,
Once had a heart as black as the hair his victims loved to stroke.
One of those cynical, sneering guys, lurking, shark-like,
In the under-tow of life, to pull down human souls.
Look at him! What's that they say about God's image?
Foster ... 83 75 82 2.0 73-1-3
One night, last April, down in Clancy's place,
I saw him kiss that girl, after they'd trimmed a rube—

No miracles? Say, bo! Where d'ya get that bunk?

Boston Globe.—Speaking of welterweights reminds the writer that right here at home we have one of the best men of this weight in action today in the person of Bridson Greene. By right he is today the world's champion, as a result of his match with Louis Nelson, Adams a year ago. In that match Greene scored the first fall in one hour and fifteen minutes, the first time Nelson had ever been scored against. On resuming the struggle they battled for nearly five hours more, when the contest was stopped and wrongly called a draw. By all the rules of the game Greene was entitled to the verdict because of winning the only fall scored. The men have never met since that time, although Greene has always been willing to have it out.

As an outfielder he has shown commendable form. Last season he topped all American League left fielders, an extraordinary achievement for one of his ample physique and unfamiliarity with outfield play.
