General Manager Douglas of the Eastern Car Company has just returned from a business trip to Upper Canada with a contract from the Grand Trunk Railway for two thousand Steel underframe box

The cost of this huge order will be in the vicinity of Two Million Dollars. It means that at least one thousand men will shortly be employed at the Eastern Car Company's big plant at New Glagow, which is being rapidly rushed toward completion.

The heads of the different departments will be in their places within a few days. The whole of the steel work of the main buildings is now in place and a portion is roofed in. The boiler and power house is completed. Practically all the power plant is on the ground and the major part is already installed.

All of this augurs well for the success of the enterprise. You can share in its certain prosperity purchasing the Preferred Stock of the Company, dividends on which are 5 p. c. and cumulative. For a limited time we offer the shares at 90 p. c. of par. netting the handsome yield of 6.66 p. c. You really should not delay an investigation of this desirable investment.

As he entered the room Chilcote rose and came forward, his figure thrown into strong relief, by the double light. He was dressed in a shabby tweed suit; his face looked pale and set with a alightly nervous tension. But, besides the look and a certain added restlessness of glance, there was no visible change. Reaching Loder, he held out his hand.

"Well?" he said quickly. The other looked at him room and began to draw off his coat. Then, as if struck by the incivility of the action, he looked back again. "The scheme has gone extraordinarily." he said. "I could almost say absurdly. There are some things, Chilcote, that fairly bowl a man over."

as well. "No moral lectures!" he said with a nervous laugh. "I was anxious to know if you had pulled it off—and you have reassured me. That's enough. I was in a funk this afternoon to know how things were going—one of those sudden, unreasonable funks. But now that I see you"—he cut himself short and laughed once more-"now that I see you, I'm hanged if I don't want to prolong your engagement." Loder glanced at him, then glanced

You must remember you are dining with the Charringtons to-night. Foung Charrington's coming of age—quite a big business. Come along. I want my clothes." He laughed and, moving closer to Chilcote, slapped him on the shoulder. Chilcote started; then, suddenly be-

"By Jove," he said, "you're right!
You're quite right. A man must keep his feet in their own groove." Raising his hand, he began to fumble with his talk about that. It upsets me to anticipate. I can make out a check to-morrow payable to John Loder." "No. That can wait. The name of Loder is better out of the book. We can't be too careful." Loder spoke with unusual impetuosity. Already a slight, unreasonable jealousy was coloring his thoughts. Already he grudged the idea of Chilcote with his unstable glance and restless fingers opening the drawers and sorting the papers that for one stupendous fortnight had been his without question. Turning aside, he changed the subject brusquely. "Come into the bedroom," he said. "It's half past 7 if it's a minute, and the Charrington's show is at 9." Remember your responsibilities and passage between the rehicles, the re-membrance of Chilecta's voice coming out of the fog on their first night made itself prominent, but he rejected it quickly, guarding himself from even an involuntary glance at the place of their meeting. The Strand, with its un-cessing life, came to him as something almost unfamiliar. Since his identifica-tion with the new life no business had emin contrast to the variableness of mere human nature, which a new environment, a new outlook, sometimes even a new presence, his power to upheave and remold. He paused, then with slower and steadler steps crossed the little court and mounted the familiar stairs of his own house.

As he turned the handle of his own door some one stirred inside the sitting room. Still under the influence of the stones and trees that he had just left, he moved directly toward the sound and, without waiting for permission, entered the room. After the darkness of the passage it seemed well alight, for, besides the lamp with its green shade, a large fire burned in the grate used it as he might use a hotel, and whatever of his household gods had come with him remained, like himself, on sufferance. His entrance into Chil cote's surroundings had been altogeth er different. Unknown to himself, he had been in the position of a young artist who, having roughly modeled in clay, is brought into the studio of sculptor. To his outward vision everything is new, but his inner sight leaps to instant understanding. Amid all the strangeness he recognizes the one essential-the workshop, the atmos away. He felt a quick shame at the

On this first night of return Loder omprehended something of his position, and, comprehending, he faced the problem and fought with it. He had made his bargain and must pay his share. Weighing this, he had looked about his room with a quiet gaze. Then at last, as if finding the object really sought for, his eyes had come round to the mantelplece and rested on the pipe rack. The pipes stood precisely as he had left then He had looked at them for a long time, then an ironic expression that was al-most a smile had touched his lips, and, crossing the room, he had taken the oldest and blackest from its place and slowly filled it with tobacco. With the first indrawn breath of smoke his attitude had unbent. Without conscious determination he had chosen the one factor capable of eas-ing his mood. A cigarette is for the trivial moments of life; a cigar for its fulfillments, its pleasant in good Canadian money will bring to your door a ton of the best grate Coal that ever came into this City. CANNEL COAL has been burned during the past Winter not only alone in grates, cooking stoves and ranges, but it has been mixed with inferior grades of Coal to make the latter burnable. It has also been used to get up quick fires in Furnaces on the few really cold mornings we had during the past Winter. Some of our customers keep a supply of CANNEL COAL on hand to start any fire they may wish to make. It lights quickly and lasts well. A small quantity only is required to start a fire. In fact, it is necessary to observe caution in the use use of Cannel Coal or unnecessary waste will result. Use CANNEL in small quantities and get the best results.

COMMENDABLE ACTION A matter which will have the commendation and sympathy of the public, having been brought to the attention of the carpenters of the town is about to receive attention. Several of the Dartmouth carpenters with the cordial approval of their Union, have volunteered their services free to build a veranda to a cottage on Brenton St., which has been invaded by the white playme. Brenton St., which has been invaded by the white plague.

The case is exceptionally pathetic,—both parents, under 30 years of age, and their two bright, pretty children, aged five and one, being all declared tubercular by the physician in attendance. The urgent need for open-air accommodation having been brought to the notice of the carpenters, they at once generously offered their assistance, and it is believed that the churches interested will provide the materials.

churches interested will provide the materials.

Another worthy case has also been recognized by the carpenters of the town. A subscription was taken up and a fellow carpenter, who has been lil for a long-time, benefited thereby by having repairs made to his house and otherwise. It is a pleasure to record such instances of practical Christianity.

Parish Hall, and an unusually large number of parishioners and friends were in attendance. The tables were laid in the basement of the hall, and were almost oversupplied with good things of all descriptions, with decorations of flowers and potted plants. The attention given the partakers of refreshments, was of excellant order, and the large crowd was supplied with ease. The rything was arranged so well that by 7.45 o'clock all had partaken of tea, and proceeded to the concert hall above, where a varied programme was given. The entertainment opened with a short address by the rector Rev. N. LeMoine, followed by a playlette entitled "The Tempeton Teapot, the large for the angle of the cast being:"

Haven't you a weak spot, a place where cold and inflammation always settles? Whether it is in the neck, side, joints or Whether it is in the neck, side, joints or limbs the cure is simple-a good rub with Nerviline and then apply Nerviline Porous Plaster. These great rubefaciants invariably cure strain, swelling, weakness and muscular pain. There is no mystery about this. Nerviline is the most penetrating liniment known—consequently it zets where the trouble really is. Nerviline Porous Plasters are great healers and draw out congestion. Be sure you get the genuine, substitutes can't do the work.

WILL BE FINISHED THIS YEAR. Pier 2 construction was under consider-ation by Board of Trade Council

uncil of the Board of Trade yesterday afternoon, the principal subjects discussed ere with regard to transportation atternoon, the principal suspects discussed were with regard to transportation.

At several previous meetings, the apparent slowness of the construction of new No. 2 pier had been discussed, and at this meeting Mr. Lindsay, engineer of the Construction Company, and Mr. Dyer, the engineer for the Federal Government, were invited to give some explanations regarding the work. It was explained by them that while the mode of construction being used is new to this section of the country, piers of similar description have been built elsewhere; that it required machinery that each and took upwards of a year to obtain.

The pile driver which is being used is the largest in the world, and planned altogether by Mr. Lindsay; with this driver, as many as twelve piles a day have been driven, which exceeds the number on any of the piers built on the American coast, of similar description. Several accidents to the machinery have delayed the work, but if nothing unforseen happens, both engineers expect the pier to be ready by December. March. 1912.

but intolarly autorseed nappens, out any gineers expect the pier to be ready by December.

It was decided to ask the Department of Railways and Canals to call for tenders, as soon as possible, for the work in connection with the immigration quarters. The natter of dry dock accommodation for the harbour was discussed at length, the need for a second and larger dock was demonstrated during the past winter, and while plans have been in the hands of the government in connection with a larger dock for Hailfax, no definite word has been received regarding its construction. A special committe was named to push this matter agressively.

The matter of the fast mail service was also discussed, and representation will be made to the Government. Complaints have been made to the Board with regard to the inspection of marine boilers, it being pointed out that the present inspector, had too much territory to cover, and the Department of Marine and Fisheries will be asked to appoint an assistant. Humphrey Mellish K. C., will give an address before the members of the Board on Tuesday evening next, subject, "Commercial Law."

Charming Spring Dresses

Serges, Worsteds, Ratines, Panamas

"One is effectively dressed who is dressed just as she should be under the circumstances."

> -And the circumstances that demand dresses such as these, are legion.

The plain serges and Panamas in navy, tan and black, are suitable for the business girl. Collar and cuffs of Roman striped satin, or Dresden silk raise a similar model to the dignity of a pretty little afternoon dress for home or street. The cream serges and striped worsteds and ratines makes smart little calling costumes.

The trimming touches consist of novelty buttons and piping; contrasting messaline, ratine or fancy silk-collar, cuffs and sometimes a girdle; occasionally you will find a touch of lace; all models of style comfort — flat collars, round or square; almost all with three-quarter sleeves.

On a rough estimate, about seven millions of square miles, or one-eighth of the total land surface of the world, are waiting to be discovered. Some 200,000 square miles of this lie in the Arctic regions of the North, but among the frozen tracts that form "Antarctic" in the South, where Scott and his gallant followers were penetrating, nearly 3,000,000 square miles are relegated to the sole use of whales, seals, penguins, petrels, and other animal and bird inhabitants of frozen homes.

Of quite a different character are the enormous mountain-fastnesses of South America, which lie along the Upper Amazon and in the districts of Columbia and Peru. The celebrated treasure of Cuzco lies secreted among the Peruvian heights. Impenetrable forests, mountain jungles, and innumerable fever-spreading rivers hold the most intrepid adventurers at bay, to say nothing of carnivorous ants, malignant snakes, water-moccasins, and those most deadly of serpents, anacondas. During recent years over a dozen expeditions have been either wholly or partially wiped out in their efforts to wrestle with these regions. Although the famous El Dorado which set the sixteenth century ablaze has never been unearthed, the country has never been unearthed, the country generally might fittingly be called El Dorado, from the rich minerals and priceless stones emanating therefrom Strange, wild-eyed men descend occasionally from the mountains, bringing wonderful fragments with them. WHEN THE DUMB SPEAK, of Rapid Recovery After th Doctors Had Given Up.

The recent case of Miss Lily Ourl, of Ashford, Kent, who, after being deaf and denne for twenty-one years, is slowly scot waring both hearing and speech—the shoot of the tragic and of her brother, who discounted himself in the Stour, being regarded as responsible for the miraculana recovery—is by no means an isolated example of shock succeeding where doctors have failed.

Some time ago the parrow escape of a boy from drowning off North Shields Fish Quay had a remarkable sequel. While efforts were being made to restore the apparently drowned boy to consciousness by means of artificial respiration, a man named Thos. Cummings, who had been deprived of speech two years earlier, as the result of an accident, pushed through the crowd merely out of curiodity. As soon as he saw the prostrate boy. or an accident, pushed through the crowd merely out of currosity. As soon as he and the prostate boy, although not in any way related to him, the sight gave him such a shock that his speech anddenly returned, and he fell to the ground in a state of collapse. Upon recovering he continued to speal freely, and has suffered no further impediment since.

One of the most amazing cases was that of Walter Speck, a resident of Houcester (Eng.), who eight years ago lost his power of speech through the shock occasioned by the death of his father. For several weeks his wife was only able to understand him by watching the movements of his lips, and he gave up all hope of ever recovering his speech. Being a football enthusiast, he one day witnessed a Gloucester versus Cheltenham match, and when the city team scored.

One of the medical journals tells how the fear of an accident was once the means of restoring speech to a dumb man. Mr. J. Moore, of Gosport, had been dumb for years, when, on returning home one evening, his bicycle and ded. In his alarm he shout-off and was a startled and supprised and was a startled and supprised. ed, and was so startled and surprised at hearing his voice that he called out again and again, until he was convinced that his long-lost voice had convinced that his long-lost voice had come back to him.

It is not many years since a remarkable case of dumbness excited great interest in medical circles in Germany. Twelve months earlier a Bavarian cattle-dealer had been kicked by a horse, with the result that he completely lost the use of his voice. A year later he was riding a doomed horse to the knacker's yard, when the animal, who clearly had plenty of life left in him, began to kick and plunge in a dangerous manner. The man, in a dangerous manner. The man, we are told, lost his head completely in wild excitement, and after a few minutes began to talk, completely regaining his speech, to the boundless astonishment of his friends.

The Brodrick Cap. The Brodrick Cap.

Viscount Midleton, who celebrated his fifty-sixth birthday recently, is better known to the general public as Mr. St. John Brodrick. He was a member of Mr. Balfour's administration, but his tenure at the War Office was the reverse of happy. The "Brodrick Cap" was ridiculed on all sides, and Mr. St. John Brodrick was for ever in hot water. After his unforcer in hot water. and Mr. St. John Brodrick was for ever in hot water. After his unfor-tunate experience at the War Office, during which he had to face the storm which arose at the conclusion of the South African War, and had to bear the blame not only for his own mis-takes, but also for those of others over whom he had no control, he was appointed Secretary of State for Inappointed Secretary of State for India. He found this a more placid post, but only held it from 1903-1906, when his party was turned out of

Size of Old Kitchens.

The kitchens of olden times seem to have been of extraordinary size, judging from the investigation recently made by an English historical society. At Hurstmonceux, for example, there was a kitchen 28 feet high, with three huge fireplaces and a bakehouse with an oven 14 feet in diameter.

Mr. Bennett Burleigh says the Servian conscripts, as they march to quarters for enrolment or proceed to the railway station to go to the front, occasionally sing on the way. One of the favorite airs is substantially thus: Gaily the Servian goeth to war, He scents the battle from afar. He careth not to pick new quarrels, But joyeth much to pluck green lairels. The cannon's smoke does not affright; To crush the cruel foe is his delight.

should be given to the state of an officer's health as one of the necessary qualifications for promotion involving increase of pay and pension."

The Comptroller says he therefore referred the matter to the Treasury, "who "find it difficult to understand how the officer in question could be regarded as 'fully qualified for promotion'." They have, therefore, suggested to the Admiralty that an officer who, by reason of illness not contracted in the naval service, is on half pay, and unable to return to active service when required, shall not on retirement receive any higher rate of retired pay than he was entitled to at the date of his discharge to half pay or of his failure to return to active service, unless he has subsequently completed a certain specified period of continuous service on full pay.

Another curious item is $2,767, loss due to the condemnation, on Australian and China stations, of pork supplied by a contractor. The total loss was $18,223, but as the warranty only applied to the Australian statien, the firm took exception to the Portion that had been sent to the China station, and the matter was compromised on the advice of the crown solicitor by the acceptance of $15,455,50."

Then there is $5,600, over-issue of pension to an officer's widow. The over-issue arose owing to her failure to record a slight increase of income which disqualified her for the receipt of the pension. In view of the great age and precarious health of the widow, and the fact that her income never exceeded the limit by more than a trifling sum, it was considered that
