PARIS, Oct. 30 .- In the Cabinet Council at the Elysee today the Ministers considered the case of M. To Revolutionize Naval Warfare. MELBOURNE, Oct. 30 .- Mr. Allan, resident of Melbourne, has invented a new electric submarine torpedo boat which, he claims, can be sunk to any depth and can be run as fist as a surface boat. It can be kept submerged, he says, for three days. A successful experiment with Allan's model was made last week in the presence of the Earl of Hopeton and many naval and military officers. After seeing the experiments, Rear Admiral Bowden-Smith said that if the boat was what Mr. Allan claimed, it was destined to revolutionize naval warfare. Peculiar Postoffice Practice.

London, Oct. 30 .- A detail of the postoffice usage here which seems to have escaped Postmaster Dayton's lynx-like scrutiny has just been revealed by chance correspondence. It seems that the department has a rule by which, if any of its women typewriters, after six years' contimuous service, marries, she gets a gratuity equivalent to half a year's salary. This discovery has started up an energetic demand of the female telegraph operators to be put on the same basis, but, as they outnumber the typewriters by about 500 to 1, it is presumable that the Treasury will make a long and stout resistance. Economy and Direct Taxation.

MELBOURNE, Oct. 30 .- The Earl of Hope town, governor of Victoria, opened Parliament today. He said that the session would be devoted to the work of placing the colony's finances on a sound basis. Stringent economy would be observed in all departments and direct taxation would be used to keep the proper balance of the budget. The emoluments of the governor, judges, agents and generals would be reduced, a tax on the improved value of land would be introduced and an absentee land tax would be enforced. Efforts would be made also to secure the federation of the Salisbury Replies to Rosebery.

London, Oct. 30 .- Lord Salisbury, speaking in Edinburgh this evening, replied to Lord Rosebery's speech against the House of Lords. The Frime Minister, he said, had drawn a big herring in the way of home rule, but it was evident that during his Bradford address he mentally, it not actually, held his tongue in his cheek. Lord Rosebery had no more power than anybody else to determine the subject which would be referred to the electors at the next election. To submit a detailed measure for the decision of the electors was certainly an honest proceeding, and in the form in which it existed in the States was decidedly advantageous to good government and the stability of the country. However, Lord Rosebery had not stated his project, but had merely asked that a blank check be drawn in favor of his instruments in the House of Commons. It was ridiculous to suppose that the English and Scotch electorate would place their necks under the feet of men in the west and the south of Ireland who had sent the battalions of Archbishop Walsh to Westminster. If the Liberals would only drop this rumous Irish policy, the parties in the House of Lords would be found more evenly balanced than ever before. He must warn the people earnestly against an unrestrained representative chamber. Urging new theories prompted new cowardice.

In closing his address Lord Salisbury expressed confidence that Joseph Chamberlain's domestic proposals would receive the hearty support of the Unionists of all

Gazette has a dispatch from Yokohoma which says that the second Japanese army has landed at Talien Wan Bay, and is now marching upon Port Arthur. The total number of Chinese troops at Port Arthur and Kin Chow is 13,000, of which 4,000 are new recruits. A dispatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from conveyed by 19 warships, are landing troops on the main land north of the Eliot

A Washington dispatch says Secretary Gresham today received the following cablegram from Minister Denby at Pekin: "Chinese forcethave been defeated at Chinlien Cherg; have retreated to Moukden. The Japanese have taken one fort at Port Arthur." A copy of Minister Denby's dispatch was sent this afternoon to the Japanese legation. The legation has received additional information that some other forts are expected to fall into the hands of the victorious Japanese tomorrow. Minister Kurino has also received a report that upon the landing of the Japanese troops at Ta Len Wai last Saturday the Chinese war vessels at Port Arthur imme diately took flight, and did not stop until they had arrived at Wei Hai Wei, another strong point, which, like Port Arthur, guards the entrance to the Gulf of Pe Chi Li. The report states that this sudden departure of the Chinese vessels was made without the firing of a gun, and at a time when the Japanese army under Marshal Oyama was still a number of miles distant. The Japanese Minister says the capture of Port Arthur from a hardly be overestimated. Moreover, it will doubtless throw into the hands of the Japanese a number of splendid Chinese warships. The capture of Port Arthur, Minister Kurino adds, is a part of the Japanese movement upon Pekin, and when effected will make the march to the Chinese capital a matter of more easy accomplish-

It is still asserted at the Chinese legation that the fall of Pekin would not end the war. They are not prepared to believe that Pekin can be captured by the Japanese, but should such an event occur the Emperor, it is said, will betake himself and his household to a more remote point in the interior, and hostilities will continue as before. The legation officials still cling to the belief that the severity of the approaching winter will compel a cessation of hosforces will be better organized and more him and inflicting injuries so serious as to capable of opposing the invading bosts of cause death.

THE ST. CLAIR CANAL.

An Essex Enthusiast Upholds the Pro-

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER: I saw in the editorial comments of the ADVERTISER of last week a criticism of the St. Clair and Eric Canal scheme, based upon a report of a report of an engineer. The so-called report is undoubtedly a roorbach started by some interested parties to injure if possible the canal scheme. The figures quoted in that said report are false and misleading. First, the total distance to be saved would be about 115 miles instead of 140, and heavily-ladened boats do not make an average run of fourteen miles an hour. Many of them do well if they on the large craft, that are now doing the make eight or top miles an hour. The length of the canal between Lakes St. Clair and Erie would be thirteen or fourteen miles. Now, suppose it took three hours to go through the canal they would save 10 or 11 hours in time as well as $75 to $100 in coal and working expenses freighting on the Great Lakes, but this is the smallest point to look at. The scheme must be viewed from another financial point as well as a humanitaran one. In the report of loss of life and property on the great lakes last year, the loss of property ran up into millions and upwards of 200 lives were lost, and the report showed that about one half the loss of property occurred between the Lime Kiln Crossing on Detroit River and a line across Lake Erie a few miles east of Point Pelee on Lake Erie and west of the canal entrance on Erie shore and about one-third of the loss of life occurred between these points. Now by the opening of this canal vessels could avoid the most dangerous piece of navigation on the great lakes. That is between Lime Kiln Crossing on Detroit River, Colchester Reefs and the dangerous channel between Pelee Island and Pelee Point on the mainland, where collisions and disastrous wrecks of all kinds occur. As to cost, that expert engineer's figures $15,000, 000 (he only lives in fancy) is laughed at by all the school boys in Essex and Kent. That canal is already built by nature for about two miles of the fourteen, and with a slight expenditure of money, they will have one of the finest natural harbors in the world on the Lake Erie shore at Wheatley. The land between the lakes on the proposed route is almost level, there being a fall of only 4 to 6 feet from St. Clair to Lake Erie, and the deepest cut in any place will be about 35 feet. And instead of a canal with a lot of costly locks to impede navigation, they will have an artificial river with probably only one lock to control the flow of water into the canal from St. Clair. They will not have a rock to blast, as the soil is heavy clay, with scarcely a stone in or on it. A canal upon the proposed route can be built with the 000,000. If the scheme is carried to cominterest on their capital and such a change locality been in the United States we would have had a canal here long, long ago. PETER THOMPSON. A REGISTRATION COMPLAINT

Public Convenience Sacrificed in No. 2 Ward-Through a Fence and Up a Lane to Register.

Many complaints have reached this office about the shortcomings of the City Council in choosing the registration place for No. 2 ward. When Sheriffs Glass and Cameron chose the polling booths they personally inspected the places. But when the registrars handed over the selection of registration places they must have chosen them without inspection - at least this is the inference with regard to the place for No. 2 ward. Instead of using Tripp's livery, which was in every sense adapted for the purpose, the registration place has been put in a private house near by. Citizens desiring to register have to crawl through a hole in the fence, then grope their way down a parrow lane, to a side door of a dwelling. The room in which the registration officer, his clerk, and the party agents sit is only about ten feet equare, and all cannot sit at the table or the door cannot be shut. The law with regard to spectators cannot be carried The livery stable has a commodious street entrance; it is empty; it is in every way adapted for the purpose; but citizens wishing to register have to be piloted through the fence to the side-lane cubby-hole, or they would never know it existed. The other places are said to be suitable.

THE PRISON SYSTEM OF GREAT BRITAIN.

The prison system of Great Britain is very different from the prison system of Canada. There are two classes of prisons, namely, the local prisons and the convict prisons. In the local prisons the prisoners may be confined for any period from two days to two years, while in the convict prisons the prisoners or convicts may be confined for any period from five years to twenty, or for life. Each prisoner in a local prison spends the entire time of his sentence, even if for two years, in a separate room or cell, whereas in the convict prisons only the first nine months is spent in separate confinement. During this nine months the convicts both work and sleep in their rooms. At the end of nine months they work in association, but they are not allowed to speak to each other.

In the local prisons the prisoners are taken into the exercise yard for half an hour each day where they are put through a sort of military drill, but they are not allowed to speak. The industries in which they are occupied is bootmaking, weaving, mat-making and picking oakum, and in some of the prisons they still have the tread-mill. On the tread-mill the prisoners work for 20 minutes and then rest 20 minutes, and so on. This system is called the separate system simply because the prisoners are kept separate. A prisoner has no means of becoming acquainted with other prisoners. As there is no intercourse, there can be no contamination and the prisoner leaves the jail at least no worse than when he entered it. It is a very great mistake some writers make in confounding the English 'separate system'' with what is called

"solitary system." The English separate system can in no way be called the "solitary system." separation is merely from bad company. The prisoner is visited by his relatives, by the school master, by the chaplain, by the magistrates, besides the daily visits of the jailer or his assistants. He has work, he has exercise in the open air, he has instruction from his teacher, he has books and he can earn various privileges by good conduct. It is found that this system facilitates reflection and religious counsel and it promotes reformation. The reformatory tendency of the system is indeed so marked that, except for juvenile offenders, special reformatories in England are considered quite unnecessary. Since the adoption of the separate system in Great Britain in 1877, there has been a large diminution in the volume of crime in the United Kingdom, and much of this satisfactory result is believed to be due to this cause. At that time there were about 20,000 prisoners in the local prisons, whereas now there are only about 14,000, although the population has largely increased during that time. More than this the number of convicts has decreased during the same period from 10,000 to something like 4,000. It should be added that this system of separate confinement is by no means confined to Great Britain. It is in Belgium, however, that the system has its best exemplification. To sum up, we may say that the separate sysem is both deterrent and reformatory, and although the prison buildings are more costly, the system in the end is by far the most economical, as apart from the great gain from the reformation of the prisoners and fewer recommittals, it is found that there is great deterrence, even in short sentences, and as a matter of fact, shorter sentenses are now imposed in consequence.

PRETTY ROADSIDES. A Wide-Awake Woman Offers Several

Sinsible Suggestions.

Now that the newspapers are agitating the subject of good roads, would it not be advisable to say a word in regard to roadsides? The city people advocate good roads, especially the bicycle element which is rapidly increasing. What shall we do with those who disfigure our roadsides by dumping all the refuse of their back yards and pantries, consisting of broken crockery, old tinware, tin cans, etc., by the country roadside without leave or license? One of the beautiful mountain roads leading from the neighboring city, which has been widened and improved at considerable expense to the town, as it is a popular and pleasant drive, has been made such a dumping ground that, although the trees grow beautifully on either side, one can hardly find a spot of ground which is not covered with back yard refuse. If these people who consider the whole country free, would dig a hole and bury and jumped at the conclusion that such refuse out of sight, or dump it in burglars were in the house. I also jumped a hole and shovel a little earth over it, doubtless nature would soon conceal their broken treasure. But at present, it is not a pleasant sight for country people or anyone else, and this practice should be discontinued. There is very little to encourage country people to beautify their roadsides. For instance, there is a case very near home of a farmer having about half a mile of land fronting a public street, who has taken a certain amount of pride in picking up land by the roadside so that it is green | figure." and level. Too level, in fact, so that people will turn down on to it and drive right straight up through past the front and district are given in the last War Cry: gate, cutting deep ruts, not only during the springtime when the roads are muddy, but in the warm weather if the roads are a trifle dusty. Of course the duties and responsibilities in connection people who do this have their own road- with the office of the West Ontario Provcart soil to the barnyard, or covered with heaps of stone picked up from the farm. Alice E. Pinney, in Rural New Yorker. Roads in Europe. To an American visiting Europe there is nothing more impressive than the general excellence of the roads. Their climate is more rainy than ours, and their roads, under the same conditions, would probably be even worse than those usually met with in America. But in England, in France, in Germany, and in Switzerland, everywhere one goes, the excellence of the roads is a constant source of surprise to one visiting those countries. During the last long drive in the Alps. The party was made up of six persons. A coach was employed for the whole trip. We were thirty-three days in the coach, and during that time we went over four of the great passes and traveled ter of chief significance to those interested in good roads is the fact that, although we drove from twenty-five to fifty miles a day for more than a month in these mountainous regions, the whole trip was done with one team of horses. No change was made, and none was needed. More than that, it was our opinion that the horses were in better condition at the end of August than they had been at the beginning of the trip, a little after the middle of July. Could there be any more significant commentary on the quality of the roads? What would be the condition of a team of horses in midsummer in America which had been driven over mountain roads at the rate of twenty-five to fifty miles a day for six days in a week?-C. K. Adams, President of Cornell Uni-

The Queen's Highway. It is well known that for soft or sandy ground the broad tire is much better than the narrow one. It does no sink so deeply, for which reason the same load can be drawn with less horse power. On all soft roads and soft stretches the owner of the vehicle would find the tire proportioned in width to the weight of the load to be decidedly to his own advantage in traction force to be expended, while on the hard roads he would be no worse off, though abstaining from the commission of a great injury on the street payaments. On all jury on the street pavements. On all kinds of pavements the narrow tire works so much mischief that its extent is out of all proportion to the amount of money necessary to make the change in the wheels. It is a moderate estimate to place the shortening of the life of a payement by narrow tires at one-third.

A very great improvement in the choir is noticeable under the leadership of Prof. Birks, who now has it in charge."

Wanted to Go to Jail. A week ago an aged man named Gordon Hueston stood up in the box at the Police Court and asked to be sent down to jail as a shelter for the winter. Thinking he might change his mind the magistrate remanded him for a week. This morning he was up again, and he could not give a very clear account of himself. He still wished to be sent down for the winter, however, and Mr. Parke granted the old man's request and sentenced him to five months. The only other occupant of the cage was the rag peddler, Daniel McArthur. Two charges were entered against his name, one of drunkenness and another of cruelty to his horse, an account of which appears in another column. He was discharged on the first count and the horse was ordered to be killed and so end its misery. He was let

The Alderman Was Sensitive. "Say," said an alderman this morning to the ADVERTISER, "I'll tell you a good story if you don't publish my name." the assurance being given that his name would not be used, and that the ADVER-TISER would not state that he was small of stature, or that he was a recent aspirant to the colonelcy of the Seventh, or had an electric light on his corner, he went on to say: "The other morning at 2:30 I was awakened by a noise downstairs, out of bed and hastily put my shotgun together and loaded it. I did not stop to dress and on the way downstairs I heard dishes rattling. 'My, what a bold burglar,' I thought. 'He is actually helping himself to a meal.' When I got downstairs I saw a light under the kitchen door and advancing into the room I challenged the occupant to surrender. I heard a shriek and found that the servant girl had made a mistake in time and was up and starting the day's wash. She went to bed again, but could hardly sleep for laughing. I wouldn't have minded the joke only I all the stones and smoothing off the know very well she was laughing at my

There has just been erected in the Chapel Yard burying ground, Inverness, says the Inverness Courier, a beautiful mural memorial to the memory of the late Dr. Donald Fraser, of Marylebone Presbyterian Church, London, and formerly of London, Ont. The memorial, which is of handsome proportions, is made of polished gray summer it was my fortune to take a granite, the greater portion of which came from the famous Rubislaw quarries at Aberdeen. It is of Gothic design, having a double base course and three panels containing the inscription. These are surmounted by moulded arches and coping, which are supported by piers and double columns of polished Kinsteary nearly a thousand miles. But the mat- granite, and the bosses being also of the same material, produce a pleasing effect. The final is across trefflee with ring, and the whole looks very massive and original in character, and is a fitting memorial for one of the most popular and most widely known clergymen of his day. The center panel contains the inscription, which is as follows: "In memory of DONALD FRASER, A.M., P.D.,

Born at Inverness, 15th January, 1826.
Minister of the Gospel For seven years at Montreal,
For eleven years at Inverness,
And for 22 years in London.

Under the usual contracts it has been he custom of life insurance companies to defer payment of claims under their policies for 60 or 90 days, thus withholding from the beneficiaries or heirs the immediate protection which in very many cases is so essential. Since the introduction by the North American Life Assurance Company, of Toronto, Ont., of the immediate payment of death claims upon satisfactory proof being furnished, most of the regular life companies have adopted the "prompt payment" motto of the North American. The following is but one of the many thankful acknowledgments received from the beneficiaries and heirs of deceased policy-holders.

DIVER REID'S MISHAP.

Tells of His Terrible Predicament in 100 Feet of Water. DETROIT, Oct. 30.—This is what Captain Jim Reid tells of his recent escape from the arms of death while at work in 100 feet of water off Muskegon: "When the air hose blew off the coupling above the water level I heard the crack plainly and thought it the result of a break in one of my cuffs. In an instant the air in my diving suit left me and I felt as though I had been squeezed in a powerful vice. The blood flowed from my nose and was forced into my month from my ears. For a moment I was blind, but at no time unconscious. In an instant it flashed through the mind of the engineer that something was wrong, and placing the hose on the coupling he held it there while the boys pulled me to the surface. They

A correspondent describes their use as follows: The storm of bullets from them cut the water like the rain on the advancing edge of a tropical squall. With one of these guns a gunner of very moderate skill can, at 500 yards range, cut down an ordinary park paling almost as well as a workman can do the business on the spot with an ax, and it is, therefore not astonishing that most of the targets recently, small as they were, quickly disappeared. To the horrible noise made by a Maxim the correspondent knows of nothing that is comparable, except perhaps the sound made by steam blowing off at enormous pressure from the salety valve of a big boiler .ondon Times.

These were valued at $250,000. Besides this there were estates in California valued at $65,000 which deceased stipulated should go to Mrs. Van Vaulkenburg and Mrs. Beaumglam, of Oxford county. The will had been sustained, and that Benjamin Kenyon would be entitled to the property amounting in all to $230,000—the California estate going to Mrs. Van Vaulkenburg and Mrs. Beaumglam.

Anniversary services were held last Sab bath in Centenary Methodist Church, Bryanston circuit. Rev. W. W. Shepherd, president of London Conference, preached morning and evening, and addressed an open session of the Sabbath school in the afternoon. The day was exceptionally fine, and the afternoon and evening congregations tested the seating capacity of the church to the utmost. The addresses of Mr. Shepherd were an inspiration to all, and fully sustained his reputation as an able expositor of divine truth. The customary tea meeting was dispensed with, and a special offering was asked for to wipe off the debt on a shed nearing completion. The response was a liberal one, making these anniversary services eminently successful in every respect.

The special religious services which have been in progress at Ebenezer for several weeks still continue with unabated interest.

Annual Meeting of St. Andrew's Society.

Last Year Was Successful-Good Work Done - Officers Elected-Anniversary Celebration.

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Society was held in Somerset Hall last night, and in spite of decidedly stormy weather there was a large attendance of members. President J. D. Clarke occupied the chair, and among those present were: Col. Macbeth, Ald. J. W. Jones, Robt. Henderson, Donald McDonald, George Angus, Andrew Templeton, R. K. Cowan, Dan Donaldson, W. J. McIntosh, John Fairgrieve, Wm. Howie, O. J. Stevenson, R. A. Gray, D. Fraser, Dr. Gardiner, R. Reid, sen., O. Leslie, A. Tytler, T. H. Purdom, J. G. Jones, Dr. MacLaren, A. Sharp, A. J. G. Henderson, T. Johnson and James Milne. Mr. James McSween, the veteran secretary, was unable to attend on account of illness and Mr. J. W. McIntosh was chosen to act as scribe. The meeting was an exceedingly enjoyable one, and the members have just cause for congratulation. The report presented showed the condition of the society to be in a condition which may well be envied by any charitable institution in the city.

President Clarke opened the meeting career of the society during the year. He hoped that the work to be carried on in the ensuing term would be even more suc-

read. Secretary McSween's report gave a review of the work of the year. It afforded that St. Andrew's Society had been in the work by anyone, and also that the whole membership had always been found willing to help in any and every way to make whatever was undertaken a success. The society expected a large increase in membership this year, as Mr. McDonald, the old collector, had taken hold of that branch of the work, which he hitherto carried through with such good results. The entertainments had surpassed anything of the kind that had ever taken place in the city. The celebration of St. Andrew's Day was acknowledged, not only by the Scotchmen present, but those of every nationality, to be the best held in London. Burns' anniversary concert was greatly enjoyed, and it was hoped it would be one of the standard annual celebrations of St. Andrew's. The joint picuic of Clan Fraser and the society was a delightful day's outing. The Scotch poor and many of the other nationalities had been well looked after by the relief committee. "We are very thankful," continued the report, "to Mrs. A. E. Cooper, who has done so much in the past to make everything belonging to St. Andrew's a success, for the handsome donation of $10. Mrs, Cooper has always been a friend to the society, but this last act makes us more than ever grateful to her." It was with deep regret that the society thought of the death of one of its esteemed chaplains, Rev. J. Allister Murray, who had always been a warm friend of St. Andrew's, ever ready to do any work imposed on him. Mr. Robert Reid moved the adoption of and crying lustily. The inhuman monsters had been disturbed in their labors and made the report. Mr. Purdom seconded, and the The treasurer, Ald. J. W. Jones, presented an encouraging statement for the year.

The balance on hand at the end of 1893 was $76 43. Members' dues amounted to $157. Mrs. Cooper made a donation of $10, Rev. E. W. Sawers another of $5, while entertainments had netted $461 23, making the total receipts $709 66. The disbursements were $489 74-$183 57 for relief and $306 17 on general account. This left the society $219 92 on which to begin the work of another year.

Mr. Jones stated after the report had been read that the balance, including the receipts of the evening, was $362 63.

The report was a surprise to many of the members. "I did not think the society was so wealthy, after the work that it has carried on," remarked one member. The report was adopted.

The relief committee's chairman, Mr. Alex. Tytler, stated that the amount spent in charitable ways was about $184. A well filled basket, containing bread, oatmeal, flour, meat, tea, sugar, raisins and currants had been distributed at the New Year to 100 families, giving a good day's pleasure to over 500 men, women and children.

This report was disposed of in the same way at the others.

Mr. Reid brought the attention of the society to a communication he had refrom Wallace Bruce, the re nowned Scottish lecturer. The communication also contained press notices, some of which classed Mr. Bruce as superior to Talmage and other leading lecturers. Mr. Bruce volunteered to come to London about Dec. 18, for $75.

The idea of bringing Mr. Bruce to the city was favorably received by several of the members. The date was considered too close to the annual celebration, and the communication was filed. The president, in introducing the business of electing officers, said that one year in the presidency was enough for him. It was all right to have an old war-horse like and Switzerland. The Field memorial Mr. Reid who occupied the chair with such credit during years when the society was not in such good standing as at present. Now, however, it was better that the office should go around. It was a highly honorable position, and every member should aspire to it. The elections were unanimous in every instance, except for that of second vicepresident and secretary. Dr. McLaren and Mr. Geo. Taylor had a close run for the former, and Messrs. O. B. Leslie and Dan Donaldson for the latter. The greatest goodwill prevailed, and many good jokes were cracked at the expense of the aspirants and other members as well. Mesere. Robert Reid, sen., and Thos. H. Purdom were appointed scrutineers, and announced

was, their dinner. Ald. Jones wanted a social in the City | them. 95 and 97 King street.

Votes of thanks were passed to the retiring president and secretary, Mr. Clarke replying. President Cowan, First Vice-President Macbeth and Secretary Leslie thanked the gathering for honors bestowed, and the meeting adjourned.

THE LADY AND THE CHECK.

How She Alarmed the Bank of Hamilton's Staff. (Monday's Hamilton Times,)

The officials and clerks of the Bank of Hamilton were considerably agitated yesterday over the disappearance of a Postoffice Department check for no less a sum than $1,727 88, which had been deposited by Mrs. Catharine Postle. The latter resides on the Beach road, and came to the city yesterday morning to arrange for the transfer of a portion of her bank account to a mortgage. Armed with a check for the above mentioned amount, which she had secured at the postoffice savings bank, she went to the Bank of Hamilton, in company with a friend, Mr. D. J. Campbell, of the Canada Life, and had an interview with Cashier Stevens, of the bank. As the result of the interview her check was entered up as a deposit, and she was given a check on the Bank of Hamilton for $1,500 and $277 88 in cash. After calling on her solicitor, Mr. with a short reference to the prosperous J. N. Waddell, with whom she left the $1,500 check, she started for home. Before many hours had passed Cashier Stevens and Mr. Campbell called on the solicitor cessful. The secretary's report was first with the startling information that the postoffice check was missing. The lawyer and bank cashier started out on what looked like a hopeless search for the check. him great pleasure to be able to report In the meantime advertisements were inserted in the city papers, all city banks in good order during the whole notified that the check was "wanted," and year and that there had been no lagging payment also stopped at the Bank of Montreal, Ottawa, by telegraph. After exhausting every other source of information the cashier, with Mr. Waddell, drove to Mrs. Postle's house. The lady was not at home, but on the way back they met her, and in response to the gentlemen's anxious inquiries as to her knowledge of the missing check, Mrs. Postle drew out her reticule, saying in astonished accents, "Why, yes, I've got it! I did not know you wanted to keep it." Needless to say the cashier completed his homeward drive with a much lighter heart than when he started. In explanation of the affair Mrs. Postle stated that when the check, with the deposit slip, was tossed over to the teller, she picked it up and put it in her purse, not thinking that the bank had any further use for it.

MONTREAL, Oct. 30 .- In the Superior Court this morning Judge Doherty dismissed with costs the suit for $50,000 brought by proprietors of the Canada Revue against his Grace Archbishop Fabre, in connection with the archbishop's mandament which had the effect of suppressing that paper's publication. This case arose out of criticisms of the Canada Revue newspaper upon alleged irregularities claimed to exist among the clergymen of the diocese.

The Mystery of Westwood's Death. TORONTO, Oct. 30 .- "You can't pump me." "Mum's the word." "I was fooling with him in the hall"-these were the admissions made by Frank Westwood to County Attorney Curry the day before he died from the effects of a bullet wound inflicted by some unknown hand, and with the death of the victim of the murder, all expectation of ferreting out the mystery was abandoned by the police, although they have been working on the case. The remark of the dying boy to Mr. Curry that he had "fooled" with his slayer in the hall might point to the fact that he knew who his assailant was.

Accident to a G. T. R. Brakeman.

HAMILTON, Oct. 30 .- An accident occurred on the Grand Trunk near Burlington this morning. Wm. McMillan was employed as brakeman on a lumber train running through Burlington from the north. About a mile north of Burlington McMillan went out on top of a car to put on brakes, and when the train arrived in Burlington he was missed. Conductor O'Donnell boarded the locomotive and a search was commenced, which resulted in the finding of McMillan lying unconscious in the ditch beside the track with his skull crushed. He had evidently fallen from the train. He was brought to the city and taken to the hospital. Although he was resting easily the doctors hold out but little hope of his recovery. He resided in Allandale.

REMINISCENCES REVIVED WHICH VITALLY AFFECT THE PRESENT CITY ELECTION-NO WASHBILL INQUIRIES OR DELAYS IN THE REGISTRATION NOW IN PROG-

The Free Press has strongly opposed the perfecting of the voters' lists by registration. It argues that it would be a very proper thing to deprive hundreds of young men voters of their right to go to the polls. It mattered not to Mr. Hobbs' opponents if these voters were robbed of their cherished rights. In the opinion of the newspaper advocate of Mr. Essery the old voters' list is good enough, and all the new voters should go without votes. Our contemporary has even taken the view of a legal adviser-we wonder who he iswho asserted that there are grave doubts as to whether the city has a right to the benefits of registration under the act of the Legislature! There are no doubts on the subject in the mind of anyone who carefully read the act or who followed the discussion which preceded its adoption.

Let us call the attention of the electors to the fact that the opponents of Mr. Hobbs through their newspaper exponent have taken the stand that registration on the eve of an election is wrong-that it is better to have an election on an incomplete list give to every man 21 year of age ample opportunity to have his name put on the lists without trouble or expense to him. This opposition to registration has rightly been interpreted as fearfulness that the young men of the city are determined to support Mr. Hobbs in the present contest, and therefore, it is argued, they should have been disfranchised. We recommend the young men to remember this fact on election day.

But the Free Press says that there should have been no registration because of the expense. On the same plea, there should be no voters' list at all, because its compilation costs money, and there should be polling booths on election day, because they have to be paid for It is true that the registration will cost some money. But will our contemporary tell us how the work could be done more cheaply? The law only makes it imperative that four registration places shall be provided; but the registrars, in their wisdom, resolved that there should be one for each of the six wards. Surely no reasonable man will oppose the change if it makes the work of a complete registration less difficult of accomplishment. The city pays the cost of registration. Why not? Londoners are self-respecting. They never object to pay for services that are purely for the benefit of the whole people of the contrast, but we tell it that the memories of the mass of the people of this city are sufficiently long to remember how very inferior, costly and grossly unfair the Dominion Franchise Act is when compared with the simple, effective, fair, inexpensive Ontario Manhood Suffrage Act, with its "one man, one vote" provision and registration on the eve of an election.

By the Dominion measure many a good citizen is robbed of his franchise; by the Ontario law, every citizen, 21 years of age, can register now and vote on Nov. 20 without either trouble or expense.

-Registration is in progress in every ward in London today. Young man, have you registered? If you have not, you cannot vote in the election on Nov. 20.

THE TAIL CAN'T WAG THE DOG. The idea that Mr. Marter and his following of 25 can defeat the Mowat Government when the Legislature meets is laughed at by sensible men everywhere. Why, Mr. Marter has but 25 followers in a total House of 94 members. The tail would certainly wag the dog if the leader with 25 at his back could take control of a House in which the membership is 94.

If Mr. W. R. Meredith, with his ability and experience, was unable to upset the veteran Premier, Mr. Marter will have to terry at Jericho for a considerable time before he effects much.

The Mowat Government is in power to stay for another four years at least, and no amount of declamation to the contrary by foolish persons will change the situation.

-A novel industry has been started in the San Joaquin Valley, California, by Chicago tanners, who will cultivate a weed from whose roots they can tan better leather than from anything else. The weed is canaigre, of the yellowdock family. This vegetable contains 23 to 33 per cent of tannic acid, which can be extracted by chemical process at small expense and large profits to the producer. Two hundred carloads of twelve tons each have been ordered from the mountains of New Mexico, where it abounds. The producers expect to get about 500 carloads of the concentrated canaigre acid a year, amounting to something like 6,000 tons. This will be shipped to Chicago for tanneries near the stock yards. In addition to growing the plant, there will be extensive works for reducing the roots into pulp, composed mostly of tannic acid. The growth of this weed may revolutionize the leather industry of the continent. Can it be cultivated in British Columbia ?

He is the pink of courtesy, but, I should say, somewhat given to perseverance. All parties esteem him highly. At the Normal College, in which the Provincial Minister of Education has his office, there are many things to attract attention, and a specially fine collection of paintings and statuary. In front of the imposing buildings stands a life-size bronze statue of that great Methodist Minister, the late Dr. Egerton Ryerson. Flour, such as is used by bakers, is now bought in the Eastern States at not over $4 a barrel. This would make the cost of the flour in a pound of bread about 11 cents. Feet Sore and Thumbs Useless. Doctors and Medicine no Avail. Terrible Suffering. Cured in Four Weeks by CUTICURA.

I have a boy, fifteen years old, who had the eczems so offensive that I could not stay in the room with him. The poor boy suffered terribly. His feet were terribly sore; he could not wear any shoes, and had therefore to stay at home from school. When he put on dry stockings in the morning, they would in one hour be saturated with moisture, and very offensive even in the coldest weather. The disease began to spread over his body, especially his hands and fingers. The thumbs on both his hands would have the sticks of wood. It would be the safe to spread over his body, especially his hands and singers.

the thumbs on both his hands became stiff and as useless as two withered sticks of wood. It would be useless afor me to try to tell the suffering this boy endured. I took him to two different doctors; both gave him lots of medicine, but all to no use. He grow worse. I therefore despaired of ever having him eured. Buffalo, Oct. 30.-John S. The electric timing device was in operation. This sounded a bell at the start, the quarter and the finish as the rider passed hem, so that the timekeepers could catch the time at all places. The watches nearly all agreed as to the time.

The Commandant Explains His Aids to the Homeless.

The Workingmen's Castle Open Today-The Regiments of the World and How the Army Deals With Them.

"It is no use backsliding in London and skipping out to the Pacific coast. The army will reach you there. You cannot run away to Australia without hearing the beat of the army drum 24 hours after your arrival in Melbourne. You cannot hide in South Africa, for the army has penetrated even into Mashonaland. The army is every-

The speaker was Commandant Booth, the son of General Booth, and who, fresh from the presence of his illustrious parent, detailed in the First Congregational Church last night the work that the army is doing among the poor and the needy. The service marked the occasion of the opening of the Workingmen's Castle, which takes place at 5 o'clock today at Salvation Citadel. From that time until 7 p.m. the first meal will be served. From 9 to 11 the kitchen will be open again. Breakfast can be had from 6 to 8 a.m., and dinner from 12 noon until 2 p.m. The sleeping apartments and other facilities will also be thrown open during the night.

It was regrettable that the attendance was not larger at last night's meeting, but with the kind of weather that prevailed it could not be wondered at. There was no lull in interest or enthusiasm during the entire service, from the opening singing of "Oh, that with yonder sacred throng, to the tune of "Ella Rhea," until the scattering volley that followed the benediction. The band occupied the choir loft, and in the pulpit were seated Commandant Booth, Mayor Essery, Brigadier Holland, Toronto. Brigadier Margetts, London, and Mr. George Robinson, city, who donated $250 to the enterprise.

Mayor Essery presided and regretted that more citizens had not turned out to do honor to the occasion. If ever an occasion deserved a large attendance it was the present. He recounted his experience in the army's history in London, and spoke of the persecution that the pioneers of the scheme had met with when women were run into jail because they dared to beat a drum to call the meek and the lowly and the blind and the sick to listen to their story of the Saviour. He paid tribute to Wm. Booth, the father of the Salvation Army, and an uncrowned king among the sovereigns of the world. The work of the army among the outcast, the poor, and the fallen largely reminded him of the beautiful picture windows of Christ reaching the multitude. He predicted a prosperous future for the army in Canada.

Commandant Booth said that considering the great downpour of rain it was not a matter of much surprise that the attendance was not larger. He went on to speak of the Salvation Army in relation to the social problem of the present day. He gave the credit of the army's success to God. There was only one explanation of the power that had made the army such an Referee of a single wicket match, played engine for good or the influence of wealth that had built up in 27 years the great army that now covered Sussex celebrities. Neither cared about world and had established itself in 42 what each hit was worth, fixing up the claiming his love to the heathen by more value by mutual agreement. By the time missionaries than any other religious organization. There was, he said again, only one explanation which could be given for its existence, and that was nothing short of the power of God. He gave the Christian churches credit for the work they were doing, and asked that the army be given equal consideration. Continuing, Commandant Booth said that in the first place he would speak of the Salvation Army and in the second of the Damnation Army. In order to fully appreciate the work of the army it was necessary to understand the nature of the work which they were opposing. When they had to deal with the degraded and vile and rejected of men it was not to be expected that they would employ the same means as were employed in the large churches. They had to adapt themselves and adapt their machinery to the character of the people they were endeavoring to deal with.

The first regiment that he wanted to speak about was the homeless regiment. He had never been able to find a country where there were more homes and where people lived in greater social content and happiness than in Canada. And yet there were those in Canada who had no "Home, Sweet Home," no home to call their own, not even a garret at the top of a rickety staircase with a pallet of straw for their heads to rest on. There were 54 shelters in existence, and all had been established during the last four years. The commandant went over the history of the shelter movement as origiof the Green Grocery Company. Loss, nated by his father to relieve the homeless of great London. In three years 2,447,000 men had found shelter and ledgings for a penny each in that great city, and at that very minute there were 10,000 men seeking the cover of the shelter. There were four such establishments in Canada, and another was to be opened tonight in this city.

Then the speaker turned his attention to the regiment of the starving. There was nothing left to the average hungry man but to steal. Their cheap food depots, 56 of which had been established, had proved to be the poor man's friend. At these a child could get a bowl of soup for one half cent, and an able-bodied man could get a bowl of soup and a large "haunch" of bread for 1 cent. In three years 9,213,000 meals had been dealt out at these depots, and at this date 15,000 meals were handed out per day. This was what they were doing for the regiment of the hungry.

Then Mr. Booth spoke of the regiment of the vicious, or criminal classes. He told of the general's late visit to Kingston, and detailed the army's plan of reclaiming criminals who were released from jail and had no place to go. Society set her heel upon such persons and they would have drifted back into crime were they not taken into prison gate homes and given shelter until they had been found employment. There were 86,000 prisoners in Canada and fourteen prison gate homes. Eighty per cent of the criminals who passed through these homes were reclaimed and reformed. The army wanted to gain access to the prisons themselves, and hoped in future to make them more like Salvation Army barracks than they are at present. Of the great regiment of the unemployed he had not time to say more than that the army was trying to get at least temporary employment and temporary relief for the unemployed. In two years they had gotten temporary employment for 12,193 men. In connection with the shelter to be opened tonight there was a woodyard in which men who had not the necessary money could earn an entrance to the shelter and thus gain temporary employment. The regiment of the hopeless, the regiment of the prostitute and the drunken regiment all occupied the commandant's attention in turn, and in conclusion he read the following list of donations: Geo. Robinson, $250; Thos. McCormick, $250 (in addition to the $500 towards pu the citadel) City Conneil, $200; a friend, $100; Prisoners' Aid Association, $60; John Labatt, $25; John Ferguson, $20; Thomas Kent, $10; John McClary, $10; Chas. S. Hyman, M.P., $5; J. W. SIR HENRY'S DEFENSE.

He Discusses Grand Trunk Affairs at Great Length

And Points to the Numerous Things Militating Against Business - A Brighter Outlook-The Oppressive Coal Duty.

London, Oct. 30 .- Sir Henry Tyler, in continuing his remarks at the meeting of Grand Trunk Railway shareholders today, said he felt that his duty was in London during the time of the crisis, and he consequently had remained there. He was, he asserted, in daily attendance at his office and devoted himself to discovering and making use of the best means of mitigating the results of the disasters referred to. Al knew, he said, that the business depression in the United States during the past two years was owing to the difficulties encountered in the solution of the silver and tariff questions, followed by the great coal strike and the Pullman strike, which had a strong tendency to cause a decrease in Grand Trunk traffic. Sir Henry said that the low rates had caused a decrease in freight earnings of 1-100th of 1 per cent. making a difference in the total revenue from transportation of freight of £20,000. He believed that now that the fiscal policy of the United States and Canada was settled trade would revive, but the wheat business was still a great trouble. During the coal strikes, he said, the New York Central Railroad had seized for their own use coal which they were carrying over their line for the Grand Trunk. Mr. Tyler said that the expense had been kept as low as possible. The Grand Trunk's cost per train per mile was 34 pence, whereas other American roads cost 45 to 49 pence. He again referred to the coal strike and the Pullman affair, describing the latter as the most senseless labor outbreak ever organized. Behind these circumstances he said there was a general economic condition which was depiorable, in proof of which he quoted several authorities,

At this state several of his listeners requested him to come to the point. Sir Henry continued that the directors saw no reason to oppose the proposals made by the committee of shareholders, which includes Messrs. Liversedge, Harnison, Prince, Girdlestone and others, and they therefore had arranged that the committee should make a complete and independent investigation of the books and affairs of the company. The directors, he declared, had nothing to conceal, and he only hoped the result of the inquiry would prove as satisfactory to the shareholders as the directors were confident it would prove to the board. He expressed the thanks of the board to those shareholders who, by sending a number of proxies, are supporting the directors, while the latter are striving to see the company through the most serious crises in its history. Sir Henry expressed the belief that the Dominion of Canada would be obliged before long to reduce the coal duty to the same level as the United States. In such event it would mean an annual saving to the Grand Trunk of £35,000. Mr. Heygate, a shareholder, seconded the remarks of Sir Henry Tyler. Mr. Jos. Price, manager of the Association of American Bondholders, acting as the spokesman of the committee to which Mr. Tyler had referred, said the company proposed to intrust their inquiry to M. R. S. Barker, formerly manager of the Northern Canada Railway, who had consented to act. Mr. Barker, a shareholder, made an attack upon the management of the

Mr. Whinney, anditor of the company. said that if a committee were appointed they should consider the question whether it was desirable that all of the accounts should be kept in England.

Sir Henry Tyler, replying to further remarks, said the Grand Trunk's affiliated lines had done very badly of late. The shareholders, he said, numbered 26,000, and the board intended to defend itself against attacks by taking all the proxies they could get. The officials the company were conducting the affairs of the road with the strictest economy, and the directors were trying to preserve its credit in order that it might emerge from the present crisis with its resources unimpaired.

A shareholder asked: "Is the credit of the company in doubt?" Sir Henry replied that he hoped it was not, but the position of the company was too serious to admit of any dissenions among sbareholders.

Mr. Baker called attention to the fact that the annual salary of General Manager Seargeant was £4,000, whereas the Premier and judges of the Dominion of Canada received only one-third of that sum, TYLER WINS. London, Oct. 31 .- The result of the rebailet in the Grand Trunk meeting last night to decide the question upon Mr. Zell's amendment whether the adoption of the report and accounts of the company be postponed until after the investigation of the company's affairs in Canada was as follows: Sir Henry Tyler's 41 share. holders, representing themselves, polled 15,223 votes, and 2,384 other shareholders, represented by prexies polled 271,458. Total 286,681. Votes against the amendment: Mr. Zell's 43 shareholders representing themselves polled 4,382 votes, and nine shareholders represented by proxy polled 6,756 votes. The Essick telegraph machine is cominto actual service. These instruments, called "tickers" for the sake of convinience, have been placed in various places where men are wont to congregate, and from each of them there will roll until nearly midnight an endless page of typewritten "copy" containing news of the day and night from all over the world.

A man may stroll into his favorite resort, whether club, hotel or cafe, and by glancing over the neat manuscript unfolded before him by the new "ticker" find out what has happened, what is happening and what is likely to happen during the day. He may learn that Li Hung Chang has lost another battle and more peacock feathers; that wheat has gone up or down; that the Chicagoes have won another game (which is not probable); that certain stocks are high or low-and so on to the will be clicked off by the instruments as soon as it is received through sources that are the best and most reliable. From a central point the news is sent out to the "tickers" and is duly recorded by them in as perfect typographical shape as one could wish.

The paper ribbon that comes from the Essick machine is not the narrow and tender tape turned out by the old stock "tickers" that print one continuous line; it is thick white paper, nearly half a foot in width, and the matter printed on it is in either paragraph or tabular form, according to the nature of the news. A section clipped from an Essick machine roll could not be distinguished from a sheet of the same size that had been run through a regular typewriter. The manner of its operation only will be outlined here.

At headquarters a young woman sits at a keyboard exactly like that to be found in the ordinary typewriter. This is electrically connected with the "tickers," each of which has a metal wheel bearing the letters of the alphabet, numerals, etc. When the young woman at the transmitter thumps the letter A, or any other letter, the wheel, which is inked automatically, promptly prints that letter on the white roll, And so it continues, the lines being printed as they are to be read, from left to right, as in a newspaper. The shifting of the paper is done automatically, and one person, the one plays that on the keyboard at headquarters, operates all the "tickers" simultaneously may number a thousand and some of them may be twenty miles or more away, but all record the events of the day at one and the same moment. The machine is about for feet high and occupies floor space about a foot square.

No extended account of any event, unless of the greatest importance, will be sent out by the company. The information will be in the shape of bullethas containing the pith of the news. On momentous occasions, such as a general election, fuller reports will be furnished the "tickers" and they will be operated all night, or until most people have gone

Special attention will be devoted to stock and bond transactions on the Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, London and Liverpool exchanges; to grain trading in the primary and seaboard markets of America and Europe, and to current financial and commercial

The new "ticker" may be seen in operation next Tuesday at the Union League Club and at all the leading hotels of the city. They are being put into many places and are bound to attract a great deal of attention not only on account of their novelty, but also because of their practicability. Chicago is the first city in the country to have such an elaborate system of "tickers." New York has some 350 in use, but they furnish little news of interest outside of the commercial and financial world. The local machines are to furnish information for the benefit, or edification, of everybody. The charge made for the use of one of the Essick "tickers" is a very moderate one. - Chicago Herald.

Queen Elizabeth's Wardrobe. The wardrobe of Queen Elizabeth must have been about the most varied and extensive ever recorded in royal annals, to judge from a list of her wearing apparel recently gathered from the state papers. When the maiden queen was 68, and might therefore have been supposed to have outlived some of her youthful vanity, she possessed ninetynine complete official costumes, 102 French gowns, 100 robes with trains and sixty-seven without, 126 antique dresses. 136 bodices, 125 tunics, not to mention such trifles as ninety-six mantles, eightyfive dressing gowns and twenty-seven fans. With all these dresses, however, it is curious to note that Queen Bess only owned nine pairs of shoes. When she died in 1603, 3000 articles of apparel were found in her wardrobe duly catalogued.-Newcastle Chronicle.

Queer Marriage Ceremony. A curious marriage ceremony is that observed by the Negritos. These people are said to be the remnants of a race of ancient pygmies, and still exist in the interior of the Phillipine Islands, where they live after their primitive fashion. and preserve their ancient customs and traditions unmolested and unnoticed. When two Nigritos are united, the whole tribe is assembled, and the affianced pair climb two trees growing near to each other; the elders then bend the branches until the heads of the couple meet. When the heads have thus come into contact, the marriage is legally accomplished, and great rejoicings take place, a fantastic dance completing the ceremony.

SOMETHING ABOUT LIVADIA.

The Pictures que Crimean Retreat Where

Pittsburg this year.

Russia's Czar Lies Dying. The attention of the world is at present directed towards that picturesquely situated castle in the southeastern part of the Crimea, where Alexander III. is battling against death.

Yalta, a small town formerly unknown, has become a prominent winter abode for the Russian aristocracy since Czar Alexander II. bought the neighboring castle and estate of Livadia, which is altered and rebuilt to suit his imperial taste. The town ies picture quely on the shore of the Black Sea, surrounded by mountains which protect it against the north winds. A beautiful road, bordered on one side by vineyards, fig and olive trees, and on the other side by the dark blube sea, lead to a number of magnificent estates owned by Russian magnates. There is the Orianda estate, the property of Grand Duke Constantin, whose buildings are almost lest in an immense forest of gigantic oaks; Aloupka, the gem of this coast, built by Prince Woronzow, and containing not less than 200 rooms, and there is also Livadia, the present abode of the Emperor.

The park, which surrounds the imperial palace, covers a large territory. It spreads on one side over the mountains and stretches on the other side down to the shore. Alexander II. himself had planted here the most magnificent vineyards, orchards and flower beds. The Empress is a lover of flowers, and the rarest roses of the world can be found in Livadia. There are two palaces, or, rather, two picturesque and gigantic villas, on the estate. The first was built by Alexander II., and creates the greatest interest on account of the memories which it recalls. Its salou, decorated in white and gold, is adorned with the rarest Chinese fayences. The room of the late Czarina contains the finest pictures of the Russian school-The second palace was built by the present Czar, and its interior has no special attractions. The rooms are of moderate size and plainly but tastily furnished. The charm of Livadia lies mainly in its picturesque situation and in its sun, under the rays of which, even in winter time, the ice melts rapidly away.

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c. bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 31.

Today's session closes one of the quietest weeks this season, there being only two days that were worth calling days. They were Thursday and Saturday. It rained all day Tuesday and that put a stop to receipts and the attendance as well.

The trade in wheat was not heavy, but the inquiry was sufficiently strong enough to quiet.

inquiry was sufficiently strong enough to quietly absorb all offerings, and no doubt would have made away with double the quantity had have made away with double the quantity had it offered. The range was from 80c for poor to 90c for Democrat white, with the bulk of transactions made between 85c and 87c for both red and white.

Oats opened weak at 78c on Thursday. The receipts did not come up to expectations and Oats opened weak at 78c on Thursday. The receipts did not come up to expectations, and the demand increased, if anything. The consequence was a much better feeling soon took hold and the price gradually stiffened until today, and yesterday found all offerings being taken at 80c. A few odd cases were reported at 81c. The present outlook is that until the roads improve cats will remain at about this price.

Peas came forward in considerable quantity and sales of all good samples were easily effected at 80c to 85c. Some poor lots sold at

Corn was scarce and brought $1 for every-thing that was half good. Damp sold at 90c. Barley was firm and in good demand, particularly bright samples. Sales ranged from 85c to 90c for bright; 70c to 78c for poor and

No rye offered; the price given for it is based on latest trades.

Buckwheat came in sparingly and sold at 87c to $2c for good quality. Some loads of damaged were sold at 75c.

Beans scarce and no change in prices.

Beans scarce and no change in prices.

Butter has been a little easer and at present looks as though it would keep that way. For a time pound rolls led as usual at 18c to 21c in basket lots, according to quality. Crocks were quiet at 17c to 20c.

Eggs were again higher. The demand seemed to be endless and had prices been a trifle lower the trade would have been very large.

As it was nearly every line was kept pretty

"You'll come in, won't you, Bessy!" said Mr. North as she rose. "Miss Field and Matilda were sitting in the hall just now; it is the coolest place in the house."

She hesitated for a moment, and then wa ked on by his side. Mrs. Rane's visits to the Hall were rare. Madam had not been cordial with her since her marriage; and she had never once condescended to enter Bessy's home.

The hali was empty. Bessy was about to enter the drawing-room in search of Matilda, when the door opened and madam appeared. Madam started haughtily, stepped back, and shut the door in Bessy's face. Next moment, a hand was extended over Bessy's shoulder, and threw it wide.

"By your leave, madam," said Richard North calmly. "Room for my sister." He marshalled her in as though she were a duchess. Madam, drawing her lace shawl round hershoulders, swept majestically out, vouchsafing neither work nor look. It was nothing more than the contempt often dealt to Bessy; but Richard's blood went up in a

That the trustees' refusal to part with the funds of the tontine was irrevocable, there could be no doubt; nevertheless, Oliver Rane declined to see it. The matter got wind, as nearly everything else seemed to do in Dallory, and many people took his part. It was a frightful shame, they thought, that a man and his wife could not enjoy together the money that was their due, but must wait for one or the other's death before they received it. Jelly's tongue made itself particularly busy. Dr. Rane was not a favorite of hers on the whole, but she es-

"In what way?" retorted Jelly with scorn. "Why in the way of stealing the money, if it's to be got at; or of punching those two old bankers' heads. When a man's kept out of his own through nothing but some crotchet, it's enough to make him feel des-Perate, Tim Wilks."

CHAPTER 1X.

The summer was slowly passing. At a small and obscure sea-side place on the East coast Mrs. Cumberland was located. She had engaged part of one of the few good houses there-houses that let at an enormous price in the season to visitors—and lived in it with Ellen Adair, and her maid instantaneously removed if, after exercisto wait on her. Not Jelly this time, but ing, the muscles are thoroughly rubbed the housemaid Ann. The interior of Mrs. Cumberland's own house at Dallory was being painted during her absence. She had deemed it well to leave Jelly in charge; and brought Ann instead.

They had been in this place, Eastsea, for some weeks now; and Ellen privately believed that this sojourn was never coming to an end. Anything more wearisome than it was to her, could not have been found. Arthur Bohun was in London at his uncle's, where he had been staying for some time. It was several weeks since he and Ellen had met; to her it seemed as many months. James Bohun was still iil, but fluctuated much; at one time appearing to be beyond recovery, at another as if he were almost well again. He would not part with Arthur; Sir Nash said he must not think of leaving, and feel entirely cured. In fact I feel like Under the circumstances, Arthur did not see his way clear to getting away.

Another person was fluctuating. that was Mrs. Cumberland. Her complaint, with the heart, was one of those that may snap life suddenly, or allow it to be prolonged for years. That she was gradually growing worse, was undoubted; but it was by almost imperceptible degrees. No change could be noted from day to day; it was only by comparing her present state with what it had been three, six, or twelve months befere, that the change could be seen. Some-times, for days together, she would feel very ill, be quite unable to quit her room; and egain she would have an interval of ease, almost of seeming recovery, and walk and drive out daily. Dr. Rane had come over twice to see his mother; staving on each occasion only a few hours. His opinion was, that she might yet, with care, live for years; and probably many years. At the same time, he knew that there could be no cer-

It was during this sojourn at Eastsea that Mrs. Cumberland received news from Mr. Adair. He wrote in answer to Mrs. Cumperland's letter-the first of the two letters already alluded to-wherein she had spoken of the probability of Ellen's being sought in marriage by a gentleman in every way desirable, but in which she had omitted, probably from inadvertence, to mention the gentleman's name. Mr. Adair's answer, now received, was to the effect that-fully relying on Mrs. Cumberland's judgment-he could not desire better for his daughter than that so suitable marriage should be entered into; and accorded it his cordial consent. But this involved a most unhappy contretempts; of which no one as yet was, or could he, conscious. That first letter of Mrs. Cumberland's had alluded to Mr. Graves; she imagined this consent to apply to Arthur Bohun. It takes time, as every one knows, for a letter to reach Australia from ingland and an answer to be returned. Whether, during those intervening weeks, Mrs. Cumberland actually forgot that her first letter had applied to Mr. Graves; or whether in her invalid state, memory had grown confused, and she remembered only the last letter, must ever remain a question. Certain it was, that she accepted this present approbation of Mr. Adair's as applying to Arthur Bohun. It might be, that she had altogether forgotten having written about Mr. Graves.

With her usual reticence, she said nothing to Ellen Adair. Not a word. Time enough for that when Arthur Bohun should speak-if he exer did speak, She held the consent ready for use if necessity ever required it; and was at ease. (To be Continued.)

The Cause of Fevers.

Few people fully appreciate the effects of malaria on the human system. Residents of low-lyiny districts are daily storing away in their bodies the inhaled germs of disease which permeate the air, and even where the location is elevated, too often to fill the position held by Miss E. Rogers, sanitation is imperfect and emanations whose certificate expires at Christmas. The from decaying vegetable matter render the air poisonous. The result is a train of bilious disorders, agues, intermittent, and bilious fevers. A good plan is to take a few doses of a mild but thorough and searching cathartic whenever an attack is Local Union of Christian Endeavor, a threatened. For this purpose Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are unequaled. They depurate the liver, cure constipation, improve digestion, and often ward off dangerous fevers. Earthquake. SAN JUAN, Oct. 30 .- Advices from the outlying districts affected by the earthquake confirm the reported magnitude of the disaster, and the great misery of the population. Heavy rains are falling and add greatly to the people's sufferings. There were not so many persons killed and injured at San Juan as was at first sup posed, but the sufferers are greatly in need of assistance.

The reports from La Rioja are more serious. In the capital the damage done by the shocks is very great. The Governor reports that in that city 200 houses have been wrecked. All the outlying towns suffered severely. The only structure in La Rioja that remains uninjured by the earthquake is the Church of San Dominge. Sunday night several shocks were felt. Both at San Juan and La Rioja the ground opened in many places, through which big streams of water burst forth.

It appears that as Miss Wheeler was going to bed one night last week she laid her hand on the pillow and felt something like a needle prick her wrist. During the night it became painful and next day so much worse that the doctor was sent for with the above result. The pieces range all the way from one-fourth to three-fourths ef an inch long, and many of them were found to be badly bent. How so many not more than two inches square is a mystery. An examination of the pillow revealed an empty needle case, and it is possible that in her sleep Miss Wheeler's wrist came in contact with the bunch of

'Williams' Royal Crown Remedy Saved John Weir's Life,"

May be seen in large letters on the covers of the horses that precede the handsome Royal Crown Remedy wagon at Toronto and Western Fairs. To a Globe reporter, Mr. Weir said: "This is a most marvelous cure. I became pale as a corpse: my blood seemed to be turned to water. I had dizziness and a ringing noise in my head; my hands and feet were cold all the time, and my limbs were completely swoolen up to the body. Some doctors called it consumption of the blood. I got so weak that I could not walk, and finally took to my bed." Mrs. Weir says: "All M. Weir has told you is true, At times he lay for days unconscious and unable to take nourishment of any kind, and was reduced to a mere skeleton of 84 pounds; and I fully believe that if we had been one day later in getting Williams' Royal Crown Remedy he would be in his grave to-day. So it may well be said 'Williams' Royal Crown Remedy saved John Weir's life. The best druggists keep Royal Crown Remedy, but if your dru ggist does not, remit direct to Isaac Williams Company.
