The Corn Borer Fight.

Referring to the disastrous ravages of the corn borer in southwestern Ontario, the Blenheim News-Tribune expresses the opinion that all available methods of control or extermination must be classed as haphazard as long as careless farmers are able to ignore precautions. The News-Tribune is entirely right. One lazy or indifferent farmer who refuses to attempt extermination of the corn borer by efficient methods can render futile all the care and expenditure and hope of the farmers surrounding him, and thus of the whole district. If the situation can not be remedied by voluntary co-operation throughout Essex and Kent there should be no hesitation on the part of the government to provide legal means by which proper extermination methods would be rendered general and compulsory. Existing conditions are a grave injustice to the vast majority of conscientious and efficient farmers who have done all in their power to destroy the borer.

The corn borer can be beaten if all growers will co-operate, and Oxford county has proven it. G. R. Green, agricultural representative for the county, stated in Woodstock this week that Oxford is in no danger of severe loss this year because the splendid general campaign waged by all farmers had been successful.

American Isolation Gives Way.

The recent action of the Bank of England in assigning to J. P. Morgan & Co. $75,000,000 of Australia's $100,000,000 bond issue has been interpreted in some quarters of the United States as signifying that New York has replaced London as the "money center" of the world.

Undoubtedly Britain's return to the gold standard influenced the Bank of England in deciding that it could not afford to drain the country of gold to the total extent of the loan, and there is reasonable cause for American satisfaction in the apparent fact that London could not finance the whole Australian issue without disturbing credit conditions.

But the Advertiser believes that New York's handling of the Australian loan has a greater importance than its contribution to the argument between London and New York. The Australian loan represents a new and important step in America's investment activity and it is likely to change the foreign policy to which succeeding governments of the United States have clung in spite of a world war, and even in spite of a peace based on international responsibility. It is difficult to see how America can remain isolated from foreign relations while she is steadily piling up in every quarter of the globe a total of financial investments, some involving the guarantee of her government, attention.

America's foreign investments have now reached the tremendous total of nine and a half billion dollars. According to the American department of commerce these holdings are classified as follows:

1. Government guaranteed obligations:
Canada and Newfoundland	$1,125,000,000
Latin America	915,000,000
Europe	1,665,000,000
Asia and Oceania	442,000,000

Total $4,147,000,000

2. Industrial securities and direct investments:
Canada and Newfoundland	$1,420,000,000
Latin America	3,225,000,000
Europe	450,000,000
Asia and Oceania	280,000,000

Total $5,375,000,000

In total the figures are as follows:
Canada and Newfoundland	$2,545,000,000
Latin America	4,140,000,000
Europe	2,115,000,000
Asia and Oceania	722,000,000

Total $9,522,000,000

Whatever may be the attitude of American statesmen, and however strongly entrenched may be the Monroe doctrine and its complement of isolation, from European affairs, there can be little doubt that the American investor is creating a new state of affairs which must eventually alter America's foreign policy. America which must require American protection and can not remain aloof from the rest of the world when the rest of the world contains interests involving American security. It does not seem unreasonable to believe that such developments as the Australian loan will mean an important modification of international affairs with consequent effect on the preservation of peace.

The Most Pressing Question.

The Montreal Gazette, usually regarded as the leading Conservative paper in Canada, does not agree with Right Hon. Arthur Meighen in limiting the election issue to the tariff. Mr. Meighen, with the applause of other Conservative papers, including our local contemporary, has been busy out west attacking the prime minister for daring to think of the railway problem or any other issue than the tariff. The Montreal Gazette, however, describes the railway situation as "the most pressing of all public questions" and welcomes the recent indication by Hon. P. J. A. Carlin, minister of marine and fisheries, that the government may present a proposed solution to the country.

Mr. Meighen appears to be obsessed with the tariff. It is his only contribution to public discussion and his arguments, repeated so often that they are worn out, are inspired not by a singleness of purpose which one might respect but from an inability to recognize that other issues have developed since the days of Sir John A. Macdonald which equal and at present exceed the tariff in national importance. Very often the real tariff necessity in Canada seems to be less a question of high tariff vs. low tariff than the necessity of having tariff stability. Mr. Meighen's insistence on making the tariff eternally an election issue to the exclusion of all other problems merely adds to industrial uncertainty.

Union of the Maritimes.

The proposal to unite the three maritime provinces under one government is attracting attention and receiving support both in the east and in the west.

The Halifax Herald represents the maritime point of view when it says:

"No informed person will say that we need three lieutenant-governors, three legislative bodies, three governments, and three civil service organizations for these relatively small provinces, and a population of one million three hundred and twenty-eight people. The overhead is altogether out of proportion to our business needs. Why do we persist in the extravagance?"

"It is a sheer waste of money. In fact, we have enough government machinery in Nova Scotia alone to administer the affairs of the three provinces. It might be said that New Brunswick has also enough for this purpose."

This opinion of the economical advantages of amalgamation is supported by Le Canada of Montreal and the Manitoba Free Press.

There is no doubt that this situation is really abnormal, that the extreme east of Canada would gain in economy if it formed only one province, with one government, one administrative system, less expensive since it would be more condensed. The money thus saved and the administrative system thus simplified, the maritime provinces would be able to devote themselves more freely to progressive activities and in the nature of things to ameliorate their economic conditions."

The Manitoba paper says that "Canada has too many governments and too many paid employees," and that the maritime union appears to be "within the realm of practical politics."

It points out, however, that a similar amalgamation would not be feasible in the three prairie provinces, where greater distances and increasing population require separate administrations. Union of the maritimes is to be a question for the three maritime provinces to decide. From this distance, however, they appear to be one natural province, geographically, racially and most certainly economically. The total population of the maritimes is one million and their people have almost identical commercial interests and necessities.

Premier Ferguson's New Taxes.

One of the chief criticisms which Premier Ferguson and his campaign speakers directed against the Drury government as an election issue was the propensity of the latter to introduce new forms of taxation. The public was told by Mr. Ferguson that Mr. Drury was draining the province by every conceivable tax and that the U. F. O. premier should therefore be dismissed from office.

It was not long, however, before the Ferguson government was surpassing Mr. Drury in the discovery of new sources of revenue. The promised economies were soon forgotten in the government's action of voting itself an increased indemnity, and this was followed by new taxes of an ingenuity undreamed of in the U. F. O. regime, chief of which have been the tax on soft drinks and the tax on gasoline.

The tremendous new revenues which the Ferguson government is collecting from the people of Ontario are indicated in the first results of the three-cents-a-gallon tax on gasoline. For twenty days in May the tax totalled $168,000 and for June $340,000—over half a million dollars from one new tax in less than two months, or an apparent collection of over three million dollars a year.

The ability of the Ferguson government to squeeze huge new revenues from Ontario taxpayers must make Mr. Drury blush in his innocence. The unfortunate feature of it is that, apart from paying itself greatly increased salaries, the Ferguson government is accomplishing nothing more than Mr. Drury undertook.

For Mosquitoes

Certain protective mixtures applied to the skin are of great value in warding off mosquitoes, black-flies and similar pests. A number of formulas for such mixtures are given in a pamphlet, just issued by the Dominion department of agriculture. A mixture recommended is composed of 3 ounces of oil of citronella, 1 of spirits of camphor, 1 of oil of tar, ¼ an ounce of oil of pennyroyal and from 4 to 6 ounces of castor oil. Another mixture consists of 2 ounces of oil of citronella, ¼ of an ounce of pennyroyal and 2 ounces of castor oil. When the insects are abundant it is necessary to apply the mixture at least once every half hour, using liberal quantities and rubbing it thoroughly over the hands and face.

To the Editor

The Ku Klux Klan.

Believes Klan's Stated Purpose Comes Under Definition of Sedition—Would Bring Organizers to Court.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir—A leading writer on the criminal law defines sedition as consisting (among other things) of "acts, words or writings intended or calculated under the circumstances of the time to disturb the tranquility of the state by exciting ill-will between different classes of the King's subjects." By section 130 of the criminal code, anyone who is present at and consenting to the administration of any oath or engagement purporting to bind the person taking the same to engage in any seditious purpose, disturb the peace, refuse to give evidence against any association, or who refuses to discover any "unlawful combination or confederacy," or illegal oath or combination, or takes such oath or engagement, is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to seven years' imprisonment. The term "unlawful combination or confederacy" is fully defined, but may shortly be described as any society whose members are bound by oath not required by law, to keep secret its proceedings, members or divisions. The Masonic and Orange orders are exempt from these provisions of the code.

The so-called "Ku Klux Klan," if the declarations of its agents are to be believed, comes within the prohibition of Canadian law. It claims to be seeking incorporation. Nothing but an act of the parliament of Canada could save it or its members from the penalties of the code. Its organizers well know they can obtain no such act.

What place have these people in a Canadian community? They are of alien origin. According to a press notice their organizers state, a chief aim is to secure political domination in the dominion and control affairs at Ottawa. They desire clannishness to "insure economic supremacy of the Gentile" and the elimination of the Jew. One of these "made a strong attack on the dual school system and bilingualism, saying that a nation with a dual school system, one teaching loyalty to the flag and the other teaching loyalty to a potentate at Rome, was doomed to have conflict within its borders." "Unless the English-speaking Canadians band together in a body to prevent it, Canada will fall under the complete domination of the French-Canadians." The press notice naively states the authors of these offensive statements come from "Virginia."

Now, how can any Canadian put up with this sort of stuff? Doubtless our Roman Catholic friends can take care of themselves, but any one who knows anything of the subject is quite aware the papacy makes no claim to their allegiance in temporal or national matters. That idea was exploded long ago. It is not worth discussing.

And our Jewish citizens! Are they not still God's chosen people? Were they not Jewish soldiers in British uniform who led Allenby's victorious column into the Holy City in the late war? Has anyone ever heard of a Hebrew in this community who became a public charge? Are they not law-abiding and industrious? Finally, why should Hebrews be singled out for ostracism? Dare any Christian man wilfully offend or despise the Jew?

I can only hope that officers charged with the enforcement of the law will take proper steps to obtain evidence necessary to bring these alien agitators and their dupes before the courts, when they may be taught something of Canadian justice. Faithfully yours, W. G. CHISHOLM.

Musing At Gloaming

Alone I am musing at shades of the gloaming
O'er the landscape, in the silence, the last beams of light.

And far o'er the landscape, with hill and with valley,
I sadly see spreading the mantle of night.

Alas, that by darkness earth's beauties are stolen!

The forests with mosses, with floweret and tree,
The meadows of clover, the gardens of roses.

And orchards in blossom are stolen from me,
Sometimes disappointments will steal on our pathway.

O'er the landscape, in the silence, our prospects so bright,
And far o'er the landscape which fondly we painted.

We sadly see spreading the mantle of night,
We're robbed of our gardens of beautiful roses.

No longer our forests with flowerets we see!
The buds and the blossoms of promise and beauty

The robber has stolen from you and from me,
Oh, they are not stolen for ever and ever!

They only are hidden a time from our view,
For all that we lose at the fall of the gloaming

The day again giveth to me and to you,
MACK.

Canada Most Wonderful Declares Haig On Return

Would Feel Greatly Honored
If Offered Governor-Generalship.

BUT WANTS A REST

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Aug. 8.—One of the first questions put to Field Marshal Earl Haig on his arrival at Glasgow this morning after his visit to Canada was as to the possibility of his being the next governor-general of the Dominion, which was suggested while he was there.

The field marshal replied that he was now in his 63th year and would like a rest, but after a pause, he added: "I would feel very greatly honored, though, if offered the position."

Earl Haig said that Canada indeed was a most wonderful country, and it offered good prospects to anyone prepared to work hard, as the people certainly did there.

Earl Haig said he greatly enjoyed his visit in the Dominion, particularly the jubilee celebration in Calgary.

Mrs. Timney the Flying Squirrel Loses Her Home In Wind Storm

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.
You should have seen Danny Meadow Mouse scamper across the Laughing Brook on the grassy old log which stretched from bank to bank. He didn't waste any time about it. It just happened that Peter Rabbit was sitting near the other end of that old log and saw Danny when he came skipping across.
For goodness sake, where did you come from?" exclaimed Peter.
"I came from the other side," cried Danny. "Where do you suppose I came from?"
"What are you doing so far from home?" persisted Peter.
"I'm going back home just as fast as my legs will take me," replied Danny and disappeared in the grass.
Peter watched him out of sight and then continued on his way up the Laughing Brook, past the Smiling Pool, along the Laughing Brook again until finally he was in the Green Forest. There he spent the night. It wasn't until daylight and Peter was preparing to go home to the dear old Briar-patch when there came up a sudden storm. It thundered, it lightened and the wind blew. My goodness, how the wind did blow! Peter found a hollow log, where he was very comfortable and very dry and out of which he could peep.
Suddenly there was a dreadful crash close to him. Peter was so frightened that he jumped out of his comfortable, dry hiding place. Then he discovered that a big limb had been broken off of a tall dead tree close by and had fallen close to that old log. Peter looked up to see where that limb had come from. He was just in time to see a small form glide down from the stub of that broken limb high up in the tree. It was Mrs. Timney the Flying Squirrel. She sailed over to another tree, ran up it, sailed back to the dead tree from which the limb had broken, ran up it and disappeared in the end of that stub. "She has a nest there!" exclaimed Peter to himself. "She was living there! My, it is lucky that her nest wasn't in that part of the branch that fell. I wonder if she has babies preparing to go home to the dear old Briar-patch when there came up a up there. If she has, I'm afraid they'll get wet."

"I never was so thankful in my life," said little Mrs. Timmy.
But just then it stopped raining. In a few minutes the sun broke out. Almost at once Peter saw the head of that hollow stub high above his head. She saw Peter almost at once. She glided down, for you know she cannot fly, although she is called a Flying Squirrel, and landed on a stump not far away. There she sat looking at that broken branch beside which Peter was sitting.
"I never was so thankful in my life," said little Mrs. Timmy.
"What are you thankful for?" demanded Peter. "I should think you would be anything but thankful."
"I'm thankful," replied little Mrs. Timmy, "that matters are not worse than they are. I'm thankful that my nest was not in the part of the branch that fell. Oh, dear, what a dreadful wind it was! And now I've got to move."
"Where are you going to make to?" asked Peter.
"I don't know," replied little Mrs. Timmy. "I hope it won't be far, for it will be a dreadful job to move my family very far. Excuse me, Peter Rabbit. I must go look for another house."

STARVED HEARTS

By MILDRED BARBOUR.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND THE CHARACTERS.

STEPHEN LANE, wealthy, middle-aged, despotic, rules with a tyrant hand his young wife, BARBARA, who sold herself into a loveless marriage, and MADEIRA, his beautiful orphaned niece, whose father's marriage he had opposed some twenty years before and whose guardianship now devolves upon him. He broke up her boy-and-girl affair with DJANE FARLEY. Farley turned for sympathy to Barbara, who, unknown to Lane, fell in love with him. Lane, sent abroad, with business and professional ruin as the only alternative, left her with him. Lane, sent abroad, with business and professional ruin as the only alternative, left her with him. Lane, sent abroad, with business and professional ruin as the only alternative, left her with him.

JULIAN BARTON, Madeira's real love, whose suit was sponsored by ANN ORDWAY, life-long friend of Lane, who loved Lane deeply, despite his faults, but whose lack of beauty kept her unnoticed by him. Lane sends Barbara and Madeira to California, where the latter meets HOWARD CHANDLER, fascinating drifter, and marries him to escape Lane's tyranny.

CHAPTER XXXVII.
She saw a rambling, brown, Madeira's heart leapt with pleasure at her first glimpse of her new home, shingled bungalow nestling under a cascade of purple bougainvillea. White casement windows stood ajar, and crisp, sheer curtains fluttered in the warm, scented breeze.

Surrounding the house were sea flowering shrubs and careless flowerbeds ablaze with color. Stately palms shaded the green and the tall hedge made of it a sanctuary as secluded as the cloister of the convent she had left far behind.

On the wide-swing verandas that surrounded the house, she caught glimpses of spacious lounges, deeply cushioned chairs, hanging baskets filled with trailing vines.

She drew in deep breaths of the scented air.

"How lovely it all is," she murmured.

Chandler sprang from the car and reached out an assisting hand.

"I think it's always worth coming half around the world for," he smiled.

"I hope you'll like the interior of the house as well as the exterior," he said.

Not designed for a woman, you'll probably find lots of comforts lacking. A bachelor, you know, can get along with little, so long as he has a comfortable couch, his pipe, and three meals a day.

By the way, my Jap, boy-of-all-work, who has come back to look after us, is worth all your French chefs. You'll find him a bit temperamental though, I warn you.

She looked curiously at the little yellow, slant-eyed man who appeared just then in the doorway.

He made a funny little ducking bow and came padding out to the car, sucking in his breath and blinking quickly as Chandler made known to him his new mistress.

Madeira found the interior of her home as attractive to her taste as the exterior. She liked the cool, empty bareness of the rooms. They reminded her of her little convent room where she had spent so many happy hours dreaming of the world to which she would someday come.

The thought brought a tinge of bitterness to her smile. How different it all was from the life she had dreamed!

She wandered from room to room, inspecting, appreciating, making mental notes of certain slight changes. The room she chose for her own faced the east. The morning sun, which she loved, would shine softly there and waken her to each new day.

After an appetizing luncheon served by the Jap at a charmingly appointed table set behind the vines on the screened side veranda, she set about unpacking and before bedtime she felt as definitely established in Chandler's island home as though she had lived there all her life.

It grew sultry as the afternoon sun slanted across the garden. The palm trees scarcely stirred their sabre-like fronds. The garden flowers seemed to yield up their very hearts to the hot caress of the sun. Across the crest of the Punchbowl, ominous clouds drifted. The heavy roll of thunder came in from the sea occasionally, and the sky held that glazed, coppery hue that presages the storm.

Madeira discarded her frock, and slipping on a sheer negligee, lay down on a couch beside the open window. She slept a little, the first restful sleep she had known in days, and awoke refreshed.

She had a cool tub and made a careful toilet in one of her sheerest, daintiest summer gowns. The warm dampness curled her bright hair in tiny ringlets about her face, and her cheeks and lips were made glowing and soft by the caress of the tropical wind.

GREAT BRITAIN BACKS TANGIER'S NEUTRALITY

London, Aug. 8.—The British government, it was learned today, has become a party to the recent Franco-Spanish agreement, relative to the neutrality and security of the international zone of Tangier. Great Britain, however, has not receded from the position it took in its note of early July to the Spanish government, declining to send additional troops into the zone.

OLD THEATRE NOW SPORTS FAIRYLAND

Magic Wand of Modern Construction Touches Majestic Building and Turns It Into Recreational Paradise—Bowling Palace Will Be Opened On Sept. 5.

THREE AIRY FLOORS REPLACE AUDITORIUM

Touched with the magic wand of modern construction and interior decorating, the old Majestic theatre has within a short space of time become a palace.

On September 5 this recreational fairyland known as the Arcade Recreation Academy will open its doors with a flourish. On Wednesday evening of this week and thereafter, however, visitors will be admitted for inspection. London will enter to see no vestige of the stage and grease-paint, but a number of commodious rooms devoted to indoor sport.

Gone is the box office. In its place is a wall of lockers for the convenience of those who will use the building. The pit has given way to four splendid new bowling alleys. The auditorium proper has been replaced by three large airy floors. The stage has made room for another form of entertainment.

During the past few weeks, John A. Nash has had the doors wide open for visitors who would see how the work had progressed. Many marvelled at the speed and efficiency with which the alterations had been carried out. Place for Real Fun.

Except for cleaning up and placing furniture together with some of the minor details the work has been completed. The finished product leaves nothing to be desired for clean and wholesome fun in fairy land surroundings.

On the night of September 5 the grand opening will see six outside teams battling London's crack players in several series. The building will be open to the public. Every one in London who is interested in sport or the forward movement of good buildings in the city will have an opportunity to inspect the commodious interior.

The program starts at 7 p.m. Besides the bowling series there will be other attractions for the visitors. These, president Nash was not prepared to divulge yesterday.

JOHN A. NASH, president and owner of the Recreation Building, who is proud of the fact that he has lived in London all his life, been educated here, made his money here, and is now putting it back into London's growth.

red tile. The walls up to the alleys are finished in washable silver silk oil cloth paneling. The silver and the white of the walls and ceilings provide a rich and attractive harmonizing of bright finishings. The pillars which divide each two sets of alleys are done the same way. This carried the same decorative scheme throughout.

A Comfortable Floor.

The stairway leading to the second floor is fitted with rubber pads. At the top of the stairs is seen the rubber floor. This is laid without a tack or nail. The large places are glued to the floor. The idea has been to make comfort the first consideration.

Here the visitor is struck with splendid setting for bowling pastime. The whole room tells a story of the infinite pains to make it a choice spot for an afternoon or evening with the five and ten pins.

On this floor is a rest room for ladies and one for men. The opera chairs provide seating accommodation for 75 people. There are several mirrors about the walls.

Back of the alleys is a smaller room. It is known as the committee room. This will be used for officials of sportsmen in athletic circles who wish a place to round out their various programs.

Frank Wilson, secretary-treasurer of the Arcade, said yesterday that the room would be available to clubs and societies who had no other place to formulate plans for their events. The room will be free to such bodies. It may be reserved in advance so that committees will suffer no disappointments. The equipment is made up of two large tables finished in mahogany with chairs to match. It is expected that some time in the future more rooms of that nature will be open for the convenience of men and women who are interested in sports. Mr. Nash states that he has much more space that may be devoted to the same purpose.

Good Ventilation.

An idea of the ventilation system may be gained from the height of the ceilings. In some cases these are 13 feet in height. The windows are large. They can be opened in such a manner as to keep pure air circulating freely throughout the building without causing draft. Along the sides of the outside alleys the hot water radiators take their place. They are finished in silver.

This floor also boasts fine mirrors. The furniture here is stylish and comfortable. Much time was spent in looking over the finest clubroom chairs and tables before a selection was made. Careful thought was given to the effect of the decorative scheme so that the furnishings would not clash with it.

Perhaps the prettiest room is on the top floor. It is known as the ladies' floor. This room will be available for women's clubs, church clubs and girls' league games. It has all the conveniences of the rest of the building plus additional dainty touches for the women players.

The dressing and rest room on the third floor is larger than the others. It is finished in artistic paneling. The furniture is known as ivory and is all that could be desired. The mirrors are generous in number and size. There is a fireplace, which will be surrounded with easy chairs.

No Glaring Lights.

Electrical fixtures of new design will grace all rooms. They were bought because they shed a warm glow over the room. This is advantageous to players and others. No glaring lights on any floor was the slogan carried out.

There will be no shadows on the alleys. Mr. Wilson says that few proprietors are able to get away from shadows. In the Arcade the lights on the alleys are all concealed. The alleys, which number 24, use 150 lamps of 200 watts each.

In the Arcade it will not be necessary for the pin boys to be seen. They have their own dressing room at the rear of the building. A drink-

"Standard" KITCHEN SINKS

When we stop to consider that a woman spends 700 hours a year at the kitchen sink, we realize that nothing should be left undone to make those hours as easy as possible for her.

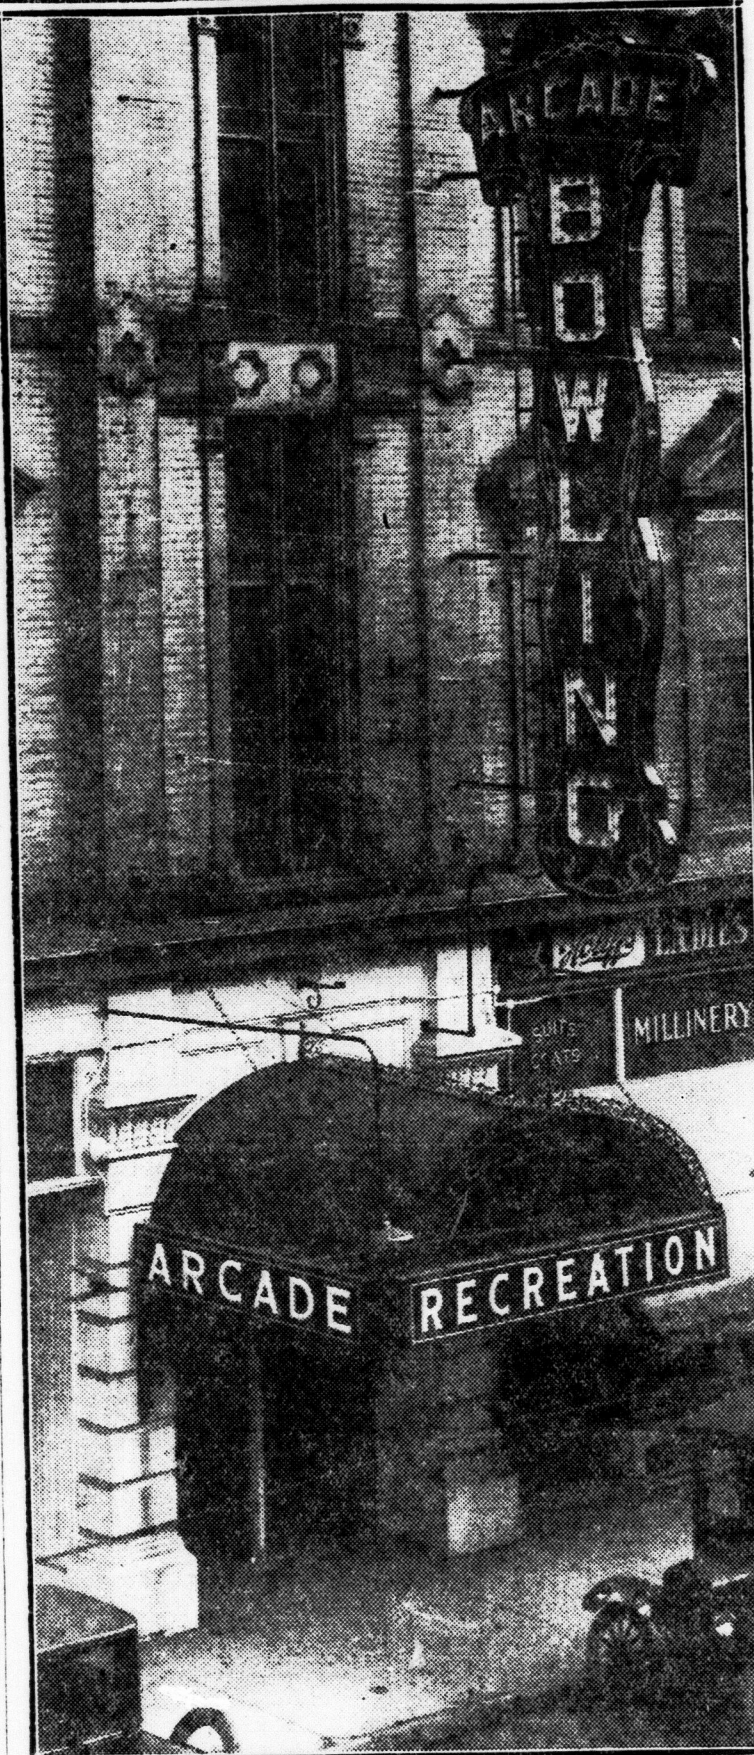

One of the commonest faults with the old-fashioned sink is that a great many of them were installed too low, necessitating constant stooping that results in back-ache.

This can be quickly remedied and we know you'll agree that the result is worth while.

ing fountain for their needs has been placed on every floor. They have their own stairway to the street.

So efficiently have the plans been carried out that the number of employees will not need to be more than one or two on each floor. This leaves the club rooms practically to the players.

All janitor service will be carried out during the night. When the Arcade closes each night, the workers will go over the whole building. No cleaning will be done except at night. The Arcade will be freshened for each day.

John A. Nash is president of the Arcade Recreation Academy. W. E. Whitehall is general manager of the alleys. He comes to the Arcade with several years' bowling experience to use to advantage in the new building. Frank Wilson is secretary-treasurer. He will look after the task of booking the many leagues and assigning alleys to players.

The following contractors are responsible for the beauty of the new building:—R. G. Wilson & Co., general contractor; The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. of Canada, Ltd., bowling alleys; C. E. Marley, Ltd., signs; Wm. Gerry & Sons, interior finish; Bowley Electric Co., electrical work; The Walker Bin and Store Fixture Co., fixtures; W. T. Pace & Son, interior painting; Wright-Teale Plumbing Co., plumbing.

The sandwich counter and check room will be under the personal supervision of H. L. Garner. It will be one of the most modern of its kind in Canada.

The broken glass was discovered by the policeman on the beat, but investigation proved that beyond wrecking the glass, no loss was occasioned.

Not many of the mines will actually mine coal immediately, but most of them will be in a condition to do so in a few days, and in the meantime they will be made ready. Probably some 5,000 men will be back at work within the next few days.

DELEGATES' STAND BACKED BY LABOR

Manitoba Party Claims Canadian Situation Grows Worse Steadily.

Canadian Press Despatch. Winnipeg, Aug. 8.—John Queen, labor member of the Manitoba legislature, who bitterly condemned methods employed in encouraging Britishers to emigrate to Canada, at the recent empire labor conference, has been sustained in his stand by the Independent Labor party of Manitoba.

In a cable sent by the provincial board of the party to the Daily Herald, London, confidence is expressed in Mr. Queen and his criticism of the Canadian government upheld. The cable depicts unemployment conditions in Canada as "getting steadily worse," spreading of false propaganda relating to the country is deplored and characterized as a "gross injustice" to those who otherwise would remain at home.

The Canadian government is taken to task for conducting "subsidized immigration" and the policy is condemned as one that can only lead to disappointment for those who often found themselves unable to make a living after a few months' residence in the country.

The policy of the Independent Labor party, the cable states, is not opposed to a natural influx, but on the other hand welcomed the volunteer settler.

STINNES CONCERN MAY DECLARE BANKRUPTCY

German Interests Face Insolvency Unless Methods Are Altered.

Associated Press Despatch. Berlin, Aug. 8.—The Rheinisch-Westfälische Zeitung at Essen, which is generally regarded as the mouthpiece of the Stinnes family, today expressed the view that unless the group of leading German banks, headed by the Reichsbank, which early in June undertook to support the liquidation program of the Stinnes interests, alters its methods, the great concern left by the late Hugo Stinnes will declare bankruptcy or ask for courts provision of its liquidations.

Associated Press Despatch. New York, N.Y., Aug. 8.—The tank wagon price of gasoline was reduced one cent a gallon today in the territories served by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Gulf Refining Company, and the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana. The Atlantic Refining Company will follow with a similar decrease, Monday.

TORONTO YOUTHS TERRORIZE CITY

Captured by Philadelphia Police After Gun Fight.

Associated Press Despatch. Philadelphia, Aug. 9.—In a running gun battle early today, the police captured two Toronto youths, who are said to have terrorized the eastern section of this city for the last week. The young men, who are alleged to have confessed to a series of hold-ups, described themselves as Frank Clancy, alias Ward, 19, and James Clancy, alias Quinn, also 19.

The said they came here on a vacation, hopping freight trains. Arriving penniless, they confessed they commenced a series of hold-ups, which ended when they took $22 from Joseph Lefevre, a cab-driver, who reported the occurrence immediately to the police, and bandit-chasing cars were despatched to the neighborhood of the hold-up. Bullets flew and police whistles shrieked. But the police gained, finally cornering the fugitives.

Injunction, Chain and Padlocks Hold Nonconcurrents At Bay

Canadian Press Despatch. Kingston, Ont., Aug. 9.—The expected battle between unionists and nonconcurrent Presbyterians did not take place this morning at St. John's church, Pittsburgh township, proceedings having been changed by an injunction taken out late Saturday afternoon. This injunction restrained nonconcurrents from interrupting the church services, or from interfering in any way with any of the church property. The continuing Presbyterians had inserted notices in the local papers on Friday that they would conduct service in the church this morning, a similar notice having been inserted by Rev. D. T. Lancaster, the minister of the church.

On Friday evening some parties, thought to be friendly to the continuing Presbyterian cause, cut out the lock of the church, replacing it by a logging chain and padlocks, which fastened the door in two places.

Uprisings in Syria Now Threaten the Peace of France.

Special Cable to The Advertiser and The Chicago Daily News. Copyright.

Paris, Aug. 8.—The French colonial empire seems to be cracking everywhere. Hardly has the Moroccan situation been stabilized than rumors of uprisings in Syria, which had been circulated in the last few days and strenuously denied in official quarters, become fully confirmed.

It is true that the foreign office, as well as the majority of the press, are inclined to treat the Druse rebellion lightly, calling the sturdy mountaineers "bandits" and "brigands" whose only purpose is looting, and Nassib Bey Atrash, whose family has ruled over the Druse tribes for centuries "a brigand leader."

But similar language was used when Abd-el-Krim started hostilities in Morocco, and today the French are compelled to discuss with him on an equal footing. The Druse uprising causes considerable worry in well-informed quarters who know the difficulties France is going to meet in Syria immediately. From the mass of information reaching Paris from Beyrouth, where a strict censorship prevents the actual news from coming out, the following facts appear absolutely certain:

The Druses are discontented as a result of certain vexatious measures of the French authorities, especially the interdiction upon travellers acquiring hospitality in private Druse homes.

BRITISH ATTACK TRIBESMEN. Beirut, Syria, Aug. 8.—The British authorities in Palestine have devalued a motorized machine-gun contingent to the northern borders of Trans-Jordan to drive a number of the Druse tribesmen who have taken refuge in Trans-Jordan back into French mandated territory in Syria, where the tribesmen have rebelled against the French.

ONE MILLION CAPITALIZATION. Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Aug. 8.—The Ontario Gazette today announces the capitalization of the McKinnon Industries, Limited, St. Catharines, at $1,000,000.

PREDICTS CRISIS FROM COAL TRUCE

Secretary of British Miners' Federation Declares Baldwin Party at Stake.

Associated Press Despatch. London, Aug. 9.—Dispersal of the ministers and members of parliament for a long vacation seems not likely to stop the criticism of the government's method of obtaining a truce in the coal-mining dispute.

A prominent Conservative writer in the Sunday newspapers bluntly accuses the government of having, for prudential reasons, financed a Communist triumph. The writer further declares that Premier Baldwin staked himself and his party upon a prodigious gamble. A J. Cook, secretary of the miners' federation, who by the miners and Laborite extremists generally is being hailed as the hero of the hour for his activities in the mine dispute, speaking today at Crook, County Durham, claimed that labor's victory was the greatest in the history of the labor movement, its lesson was that labor could get only what it is strong enough to take. He predicted a first-class political crisis during the coming nine months, in consequence of the government handling the coal deadlock.

"Premier Baldwin told me," said Mr. Cook, in the course of his speech, "You had us this time, but hereafter we will be prepared." Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill, on the same occasion said, "Remember, Cook, this is not a gift from us, but it is cheaper than a revolution."

Mr. Cook said that in reply to the chancellor he declared: "We don't want revolution. We don't want to destroy one another, for that's what revolution means." What is said to be a moderate statistical estimate of the subsidy granted by the government to the coal miners shows that the loss of £173,000 suffered by the South Wales coal mine owners for the first six months of 1925 will, on the present basis, be changed into a profit of £349,000, and there is a general admission, even by many Conservative newspapers, that the subsidy will be likely to involve the taxpayers in a loss of £20,000,000 and perhaps £40,000,000, thus completely upsetting all Mr. Churchill's calculations for the next budget.

WOMAN, SON DIE AS CANOE UPSETS

Peterboro, Aug. 9.—Mrs. Harry Gabbutt, aged 41, and her son Douglas, aged 11, were drowned at Wallace's Point, near Peterboro, on the Otonabee river, Saturday. The body of Mrs. Gabbutt was recovered fifteen minutes after the accident and that of the boy was recovered this afternoon. Harry Gabbutt, a returned soldier, his wife and his son had gone to the Point with other employees of the Nashua Paper Company for their annual picnic. While canoeing the wife and her son fell overboard. In the boat, but his mother moved at the same time, and the craft overturned. "Mother and son made an attempt to save Mrs. Gabbutt, but her struggles forced them to release their hold. When Mr. Gabbutt recovered his breath, mother and son had disappeared. He swam ashore and called for help.

WOMAN, GIRL INJURED IN AILSA CRAIG CRASH

Badly Cut and Bruised When Two Autos Collide at Intersection.

Special to The Advertiser. Ailsa Craig, Aug. 9.—Florence Dorrmer, 16 years old, and an American woman, were badly cut and bruised when a car driven by Andrew Dorrmer, 7th McClellan, crashed into the side of a Michigan sedan bearing license 105-002 about 1 o'clock this afternoon at the main intersection. Six or seven of its front passengers escaped with slight bruises.

Mr. Dorrmer and three children were returning from the Baptist church, going north. The American car was coming west. Both were going fairly fast, and a collision could not be avoided. Mr. Dorrmer hitting the other car square in the center. The woman in the American car was thrown through the glass door, but escaped with only cuts and bruises. Dr. Anderson attended the injured. The Americans were on their way home to Detroit after the Kitchener old boys' reunion. The Dorrmer car is a total wreck.

RAYON

Its Wearing and Washing Qualities

The wearing qualities of Rayon are equal to any other material of an equal grade used in like manner.

It is well known that wool must be laundered in certain ways and with certain soaps to avoid shrinking. It is also well known that hot water and hot irons are enemies to silk. But the characteristics of Rayon are not so well understood.

No water is too hot or too cold for Rayon, and it will withstand strong soaps better than silk or wool. But it must not be handled roughly while wet. When dry again, Rayon retains its full original strength.

As nearly all Rayon is fast dyed, there is little danger of harmful colors when washing, but a knitted Rayon garment should not be hung up to dry.

It has been found by means of tests that the Rayon garment will outlast a silk garment when subjected to the same use and treatment, while similar tests with cotton show that it wears just as long.

Rayon, therefore, when treated with the same care as silk, will give entire satisfaction.
