NINE LIVES ARE LOST

Howe Made Launch Overturns In Toronto Bay

One Lone Survivor of Boatload of Pleasure Seekers

Toronto, July 26.—By the capsizing of a gasoline launch, during a violent thunder storm last night nine young men, all residents of Toronto Junction, lost their lives in Lake Ontario, and the one lone survivor of the awful disaster is in such a condition at present that he can give no connected story of the affair.

The dead are: Joe Irwin, 20. Jack Irvine, 20. Walter Dundas, 20. Frank Kyle, 18. Glen Daly, 19. Frank Daly, 18. Dawson Neibrojan, 21. Rudge Miller, 19. Gordon Leroc. George Shields, aged 19, is the survivor.

The young men are well known residents of Toronto Junction, Gordon Leroc being the trainer of the Junction Shamrock lacrosse team. They left the harbor early in the evening with the idea of sailing up the lake sufficiently far that they might get back about midnight. For the trip they had secured a gasoline launch, and all started out in the best of spirits. The weather was clear during the early part of the evening, and gave no signs of a coming storm.

NARROW ESCAPE

A hod carrier working on Hogan & Hoy's new hotel on King street west, had a narrow escape from a serious injury this morning. He had reached the landing with a hodful of bricks, when he lost his balance and reeled backwards. A fellow-workman jumped to the rescue just in the nick of time, and gripping him by the arm steadied him just as he was about to topple over the side of the wall. The drop of 15 feet along with the impetus which the hodful of bricks would have given him, would have probably resulted in some broken bones or worse.

A BIG BILL

"Great Scott, this is awful!" Such was the exclamation of Warden Somers, of Wallaceburg, when he saw the registrar's bill for making out the list of county sales for the past four years. This list was made out by order of the Senior Judge, and is to be used in the county assessment appeals. The bill was for $1,442.00. And this is not the end of the expense in connection with this case. The lists will have to be printed, or at least a portion of them. "Wallaceburg is bound the appeal shall go on," the Warden told his conferees this morning, as he looked gloomily at the Registrar's account. The County Council are now debating on how they can possibly get out of printing the list.

HER SHOULDER DISLOCATED

Mrs. Alexander Holmes, wife of Fireman Holmes, Adelaide street, was seriously injured in a lamentable accident on St. Clair street last evening. As a result she is today confined to her home in quite a critical condition. Mrs. Holmes had been down to Dolsen's grocery, and it was on her way home, while she was attempting to cross the C. W. & L. E. tracks on St. Clair street, that she met with the mishap. She was on the tracks before she noticed a car coming towards her. She made a quick movement to get out of the way and, in doing so, stepped directly in front of a horse which George Rayment was driving down street. The whole thing happened so quickly that Mr. Rayment did not have time to stop the animal, and Mrs. Holmes was knocked down, both the horse and rig passing over her. Mr. Rayment had the injured woman hurriedly taken into the Aberdeen Hotel and called in a physician. It was found that her shoulder was dislocated, and she received a severe gash in the forehead. She was also considerably bruised up. The unfortunate lady was afterwards taken to her home.

The case of Brodie, the transient trader, which was dismissed in the Police Court by Judge Houston, has been appealed by the civic authorities, and will be taken before Judge Dowlin, in the Division Court. This decision was the result of a conference between the Mayor, Chairman of Finance, and the City Solicitor yesterday.

Chathamites Do Not Know What a Hot Day Means!

J. F. Coleman who is Summering Here Thinks the Maple City is one of the Prettiest Places He has Ever Visited

J. F. Coleman, a New York millionaire, is summering in this city. He is a guest at Hotel Garner. It was rumored that Mr. Coleman represented large New York capital, and that his business here was to make big investments in Tilbury and Romney oil leases. "I have been out to the fields," he told an interviewer yesterday afternoon. "I cannot say, however, that I have made any investments in the field, or that I intend to. I came here for the purpose of looking it over, but I have so far made no definite decision. "I must say that you have one of the prettiest cities here that I have ever been my pleasure to visit. Nice clean paved streets, fresh air, trees, green grass, and a happy, healthy, well-dressed people, whose case of bearing shows that they are not on the ever-lasting tension for the almighty dollar. I only intended to stay here a short time, but now I have come to the conclusion that I would like to live in this beautiful spot, which while it enjoys the fresh air and freedom of the small city, has all the dash and go of the metropolis. I have decided to stay here for awhile, anyway."

Mr. Coleman has a copy of a New York paper in his hand at the time. Pointing to an editorial on the "hot wave," he said: "It does me good to read this and think I am away from that sweltering city. Why, Great Scott, you don't know what heat is here. I have been here three weeks, and so far I have not experienced what we would call a hot day in New York."

Mr. Coleman's business is mining. He is interested to some extent in mines in California, where he at one time lived.

The Fruit Crop in Kent Is Almost Complete Failure While the Grain Looks Fair

Mr. Jarvis of Harwich Says Farmers will Have to Spray Their Oats Next Year—San Jose Scale is Killing Orchards—Mr. Malcolmson's View of Fruit Situation

License Commissioner Jarvis of East Kent was a welcome caller at The Planet editorial rooms during a visit to the city this week. Mr. Jarvis is a resident of Harwich and in an interesting conversation, he gave some valuable facts concerning the prospects for the crops in the township in which he lives. "The frost didn't do as much damage as was at first thought," said he, "but I cannot say that the outlook for many of the crops is very bright at present. The late potatoes will be affected more than any other crop, and the damage to them will be very great and a serious item to many of the farmers. "Wheat, I think, will be a fair crop, although the acreage is quite small—much smaller than in previous years. "Early barley has suffered to some extent, but it looks now as if it will turn out a very fair crop. "Hay is a light crop, although what there is seems to be a good sample. "Beans all over are good and looking well. The acreage, unfortunately, is not very large. Many farmers are regretting that they did not go more extensively into bean growing this year. "Oats are very bad, and this is the one crop which is generally looked upon as almost a complete failure. They are all affected by the rust, and although they are now commencing to head out, it is going to hurt the yield. It will be a very short time now—possibly next year—before the farmers will all have to spray their oats like they do in the West. The oat crop is a failure all through the country. I have only seen one field of oats this year that I would say was worth anything, and that was a field where the farmer sprayed his field to rid the ground of mites. The blue-stone in the spray killed the rust, and the crop was saved. The farmers will find also that they will have to spray their barley fields with blue-stone the same as the oats if they expect to get any kind of a crop in the future. "Corn is coming along very fast and it will be a good crop. The acreage is very large, and if we have good weather now until September, corn will be a good yield.

"Fruit in Kent is a failure all through. Apples are completely gone, and the only places where there is any fruit at all is where there has been careful spraying. Where there is no spraying there is no fruit this year. In a few years more there will be no orchards in Kent County. The farmers do not take immediate steps to protect and preserve their trees from the present ravages of the San Jose scale. This scale is doing more damage in the orchards than is generally known, and the trees which are left without any spraying are all dying off at a remarkable rate. The scale is also spreading very fast, dealing death and ruin wherever it goes. "There will not be a plum or a pear in Harwich County this year, and the reports from the other townships all indicate a failure in this fruit. The grape crop is very fair, and is the one ray of sunshine in the consideration of the fruit crop of Kent."

The state of affairs reported by Mr. Jarvis in Harwich exists in a great degree generally through the whole County. Occasionally good fields of grain are noticed. Wheat on the whole is fair, corn is good, beans are looking fair also, but barley and oats are very poor. The farmers state that much depends upon the weather which will come this fall. If the weather for the rest of the season is good and favorable, the yield of farm produce will be nothing to complain of seriously. If the weather is severe it will mean ruin to many. In reference to the fruit crop, Mr. Hugh Malcolmson, who is probably one of the most prominent canners in the Dominion, said the other day that the season for canning fruit should at the present time be just opening up. The canners should be just commencing to get busy. Instead of this the factories in which Mr. Malcolmson is interested have about 40 per cent. of their work already done for this year. The strawberry season is over and the canners can see the end of the season coming pretty close. This year, Mr. Malcolmson has 340 acres of field corn, however, which is looking the very best, and which will give a good and satisfactory yield.

THE ROPE IS NEEDED

A number of young ladies at Erieau were bent upon having a good time the other evening, and the form of the amusement decided upon was a bonfire. The next thing to do was to get the wood, and as there was none in sight they immediately set out to find some drift wood. After going some distance along the shore on the Eau side, they found a nice lot of wood and prepared to bring it up the beach to the proposed scene of the festivities. Here another difficulty presented itself, but the resourceful ladies finally secured a piece of rope with which to tie the wood together, and everything looked lovely again. When they got the wood tied up, they found that they were not yet able to get the wood to a place where it would be convenient to burn it, and finally the scheme was abandoned altogether. As far as this goes it is all right, but the person from whom they got the rope would be glad if they would return the same, as it is needed for the purpose of drying clothes.

DIDN'T CLOSE THE DEAL

A southern stranger made his appearance in the city a few days ago with a patent churn, and proceeded to demonstrate the advantages of his improvement on the old method of making butter. He was seen mostly around the Garner House, trying to interest Chatham capital in the purchase of his Canadian rights in the patent. Several local men of capital went into the proposition thoroughly and concluded not to purchase at present. It was admitted, however, that the machine had a great deal of merit, but for some reason the inducements offered were not deemed sufficient to warrant a closing of the deal in the Maple City. The man left town yesterday.

The I. O. F. excursion train from Galt and Woodstock to Detroit passed through here this morning. There were eighteen coaches and all were packed to the doors with excursionists.

Ex-Ald. Scullard Attains to Position of Unique Distinction

Gets Damages From Railway Co. Without Pressing Law Suit

Ex-Ald. Thomas Scullard is one of the very few men who ever had the distinction of getting the best of a railway company. Mr. Scullard was in Tilbury about a month ago, accompanied by P. H. Coate and others. The evening M. C. R. train which was to carry them to Fargo pulled out some minutes before time, and though by fast sprinting Mr. Scullard's companions were able to catch the last coach, the genial ex-alderman was left behind, and had to hire a livery to take him home. Mr. Scullard at once filed a complaint with the general manager of the M. C. R. of Chicago, and told him the circumstances, notifying him that he would give the company ten days to make matters right. Recently Mr. Scullard received a lengthy document from the head offices of the railway setting forth his claims and embellished with the signatures of the officers of the road. The document was accompanied with a check for $1—Mr. Scullard's livery expenses—and a profuse apology from the general manager. Mr. Scullard proudly showed the document to a Planet reporter this morning, and gave out the information that he intends to have this rather extraordinary piece of paper framed, and placed in a conspicuous spot in his offices.

TESTED THE FILTER

The new waterworks filter, built by Park Bros. of this city, was tested yesterday under the supervision of Superintendent E. B. Jones. The new filter tested 170 pounds to the square inch. This is ten pounds over and above the necessary capacity called for, and is deemed to be quite satisfactory by the members of the Water Board.

HOUSE NUMBERING

"Nothing done so far," was Ald. Austin's reply to a Planet reporter's query about the proposed house numbering this morning. Ald. Austin says that the City Engineer has not had time to get out the plans for the work so far, but as soon as it is possible for him to get at the work he will do it. In the meantime, other Ontario cities are getting in shape to have the new up-to-date mail delivery. Chatham should not allow this dangerous delay to continue.

ST. THOMAS WRECK

St. Thomas, July 26.—Engineer Dennis Patterson and Front Brake-man Louis Norton, both of this city, are dead, and Fireman Fred Calvert is probably fatally injured as the result of the blowing up of Wabash engine No. 1894 a mile and a quarter east of Simcoe station last night at 6:30 o'clock. The engine was attached to fast freight No. 82, bound from Detroit to Niagara Falls, over the Wabash. At Simcoe the train stopped to get water and at the time of the accident was proceeding at a high rate of speed.

BLenheim

Blenheim, July 27.—Miss Genevieve Shillington, of Blenheim, was an Erieau visitor yesterday. Mr. L. A. Livingston received the sad news of the death of his mother yesterday. Miss Alida Ridley, of Ridgetown, was a Blenheim visitor yesterday. The Band Concert at Erieau was largely attended from Blenheim last night. Miss Margaret Ardagh returned to Erieau to-day, where she is staying with friends after spending a few weeks in Blenheim. Mrs. Gibson and two grandchildren, of Toronto, are visiting with her brother, Mr. W. H. Stephenson, Blenheim. Mrs. Hanks chaperoned a party of young ladies from Blenheim at the Band Concert at Erieau last evening. The Misses Colborne and a number of their friends are occupying Mayor Shillington's cottage, Genevieve, at Erieau, and are having a merry time.

DEATH IN ICE CREAM

Sturgis, Mich., July 27.—After eating a quantity of ice cream, Mrs. Daniel Berger was attacked by neuralgia and died last night. Mrs. Berger was a pioneer resident of Sturgis, moving here 42 years ago. She was married underneath an American flag, while her husband was home from the civil war on a furlough.

Those Who Have Failed Will Be Many This Year

The Provincial Education Department will, The News is officially informed, take into consideration at an early date, in connection with the work of reorganizing the educational system, the whole question of the appointment of examiners to prepare the departmental papers.

Considerable dissatisfaction has been caused in the past by the appointment of University professors to do the major portion of this work. Public and High school teachers have claimed that these men are largely out of touch with the school work, and see only with an eye single to their own academic halls. This sentiment has grown to an extent which is inaugurating a movement to have some protest laid before the Advisory Council by the teachers' representatives on that board.

SOME BRAIN-TWISTERS.

In the recent examinations protests were made notably against the "Written Reading" paper in the entrance examination, and the ancient history, chemistry and two physics papers in the highest departmental examinations.

The number of students failing in these subjects is unusually large this year. One of the examiners now engaged in reading the papers, told The News reporter this morning that there was some alarm over the large number of candidates who, it is apparent, will fail to secure a pass. "While there have been informal complaints," said Mr. Houston, registrar, when questioned about the matter, "no formal protest has been received."

Dr. John Seath, Superintendent of Education, when interviewed, said: "The situation is not generally understood. The appointment of examiners rests with the Advisory Council of Education. What is done is that the president of the University and the Superintendent of Education make out a list of men available, and from this list the Council makes a selection. No one has anything to say regarding the character of the papers, but the examiners themselves, but they are instructed to set fair papers."

SEEKING FOR A REMEDY.

The Education Department has several important plans under consideration to remove any ground for complaint. The plan of having a paper over the maximum of 100 per cent, say 150 per cent.—and giving the student an option or choice of questions has been considered and abandoned as unsatisfactory. Some attention is being devoted to the system in vogue in New York State, where a permanent Board of Examiners is selected, men of tried efficiency and experience. This is considered better than the three-year system.

The trouble in Ontario seems to have been appointment to the Board of Examiners has been hindered round, it is alleged, as a sort of patronage business among the staff of the universities.

"We must have men of undoubted scholarship," said the superintendent, "and we should have men not engaged in the active teaching of classes for the examinations. Outside of the universities the number at the disposal of the Department is very small."

AGRICULTURAL CLASSES

The Ontario Department of Agriculture has taken another step in connection with the work of agricultural instruction. Courses of agriculture have been established in the High schools or Collegiate Institutes at Galt, Morrisburg, Collingwood, Perth, Essex and Lindsay, as previously announced. In addition to the High school work, offices are being established at these points, which will be in charge of the agricultural teachers, where, at stated hours, farmers may meet this representative of the department for consultation. The offices, it is expected, will become the agricultural headquarters for each of the districts. The reports and bulletins of the department will be procurable at these offices.

MAN'S PICTURE IS HIS OWN

Newark, N. J., July 27.—That a man's picture as well as his name is his own and cannot be used without his consent, has been laid down as a point in equity law by Vice Chancellor Stevens. The picture in dispute is that of Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, and a firm making a picture of the defendant. Mr. Edison was given an injunction restraining the use of a picture of him, accompanied by a recommendation of the medicine, purporting to have been written by him.

Mr. Edison contended that he never authorized the use of his picture, never wrote or authorized any recommendations, and objected to the use of both.

LET THE COURT SELECT JURY IN ALL THE MURDER CASES SAYS JUSTICE VERNON DAVIS

London, July 27.—Justice Vernon Davis, of the New York supreme court, who presided at the second trial of Nan Patterson for the murder of Caesar Young, the turkman, sat on the bench here with Justice Darling during the trial yesterday of "Chicago May" Churchill and John Smith for the attempted murder of "Eddie" Guerin, of Devil's Island fame. At the end of a six-hour trial Smith was sentenced to life imprisonment and "Chicago May" to 15 years.

The woman was Guerin's former mistress and Guerin refused to live with her here after his escape from Devil's Island. She got Smith, her latest lover, to shoot him, Guerin escaping with a wound.

Justice Davis was asked if he thought such a speedy trial would be possible in America. He replied: "Not under present circumstances. In the selection of the jury American

Chatham Will Have The Cheapest Light in Canada

New Municipal Plant to be Installed by Colonial Engineering Company of Montreal Will be Money Saver—Mr. Read Expresses Thanks

The following letter is self-explanatory:
 Montreal, July 25, 1907.
 To the Editor of The Planet:
 Chatham, Ont.

Dear Sir—I have just read your issue of the 23rd inst. and am certainly indebted to you for your very kind endorsement of the final action of your City Council in accepting our tender on the new electric light plant.

My reasons for making concessions to the city in the matter of time of acceptance and in the matter of the character of the bonds to be issued, and in other smaller details, were inspired solely because of my desire to obtain a municipal contract in the Dominion in some city of moderate size which owns its own lighting plant. The benefits which will accrue to my company are obvious for the reason that dealings with municipal corporations are always public and naturally attract the interest. It will, therefore, attract the attention of other municipalities to the very low cost of street lighting and will, I am confident, be the means of a large volume of very desirable business for our company. It will be the first plant of the kind in the Dominion, and the councilmen of Chatham will have the credit of not only taking the initiative in a character of equipment which is comparatively new to Canada, but will have the great credit of doing municipal lighting at a lower rate of cost per year per arc lamp than any other city in the Dominion and, perhaps, any other city on this continent.

To my knowledge there is not another city in America which, either by contract or otherwise, is lighting its streets at a cost even as low as $30.00 per annum per lamp—exclusive of pole line maintenance.

At one of the meetings of the Council Alderman Austin made, in my opinion, the most effective argument in stating that even after adding the fixed charges on the present electric light plant to those of the new electric light plant, it would then only bring the cost per year per lamp up to $30.50. In other words, $30.50 would cover all of the central station operating costs plus five per cent. interest and seven per cent. depreciation on the entire new equipment and plus interest and depreciation on the old equipment to be discarded.

This must be a point of great interest and satisfaction to your ratepayers.

I wish also to take this occasion to express my appreciation of the many courtesies shown me by your citizens and to assure them that we shall make every endeavor to prove our appreciation by actual results.

Faithfully yours,
 COLONIAL ENGINEERING CO., Limited.

L. G. READ,
 Managing Director and Chief Engineer.

DIED OF LOCKJAW

Walter Winkelmann, 10 years old, 376 Chestnut street, Detroit, died on Tuesday of lockjaw, which developed from a cut in his foot.

As the lad was playing about his neighborhood on July 16 he accidentally stepped on a broken pop bottle with his bare foot. A long, deep gash was inflicted and eight stitches were necessary to bring the wound together. The injury healed and Walter was apparently all right until last Monday, when his jaws suddenly set firmly together, and he was seized with convulsions.

THE AUSTIN ADDITION

The work on the brick addition to the Austin store is being rapidly rushed to completion. Contractors Moore & Stevens have had the Market street lot story front torn out, and their men have completed the first two stories of the addition to the rear. They are now working on the third story. The addition extends back to the Fire Hall property, and the store space, when the addition is completed, will be equal to that of a building 100 feet by 70 feet.

The addition will mean more space for all the departments of the Austin store, but will be a benefit to the house furnishing and haberdashery departments in particular.

VEGETABLE CROP

Toronto, July 26.—The vegetable crop in Ontario is late, but is looking well, according to reports of correspondents of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association.

Frost in the south-western part of the province did some damage. The demand for green truck from Essex county exceeds the supply and many new greenhouses soon will be built for cucumbers and other crops. All kinds of truck are looking well in the vicinity of Toronto and Hamilton.

The potato crop of the province promises to be only fair. Table roots, including turnips, parsnips, carrots and beets, are doing well and will be plentiful. The celery prospects are bright. It is probable that there will be a large crop of celery.

The onion crop will be quite late, but it is expected that the yield will be fair to good.

Corn will be medium. Melons promise to yield an average crop.

Worthy occupation is the best moral policeman.

THE TRANS-CANADA LIMITED.

The C. P. R. New Fast Trans-Continental Service.

The new fast service to be inaugurated by the Canadian Pacific Railway, Tuesday, July 2nd, will carry passengers across the continent in a little over three days and a half, the quickest time made by any railway in America. The new trains will consist of two or more sleeping cars and a diner—of latest pattern—with baggage car, and will rank amongst the most luxurious in the world. No day coaches will be attached, and the trains will be exclusively confined to holders of first-class tickets who desire sleeping car accommodation. These "Trans-Canada Limited" trains will leave Montreal every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 12.30 noon during the months of July and August. Connecting trains leave Toronto for North Bay at 1.45 p.m. on the same day. Close is made at Moose Jaw with the new fast train for Spokane, and other western American points.

"How I Got My Husband"

Chicago Tribune's Synopsis on this all Important Subject—The Prize Winners.

The Chicago Tribune offered several prizes for the best bona-fide stories from women as to their courtship experiences. The first prize went to Mrs. Jennie Neff. Some of the contributions are appended.

FIRST PRIZE $20.00 — ROMANCE OF MRS. JIMMIE.

We both worked for a furnace manufacturing firm. I was an ordinary stenographer. He was their crack traveling salesman. Before I saw him I heard his praises.

"Jimmie has a golden tongue," said one of the firm. "I believe he could sell blue sky." "Better than that," said another, "he could sell furnaces in Central Africa or in Hades, he's a wonder."

When the "wonder" came into the office I observed him closely. He was keen-eyed, pleasant-faced, well made, and active. One envied the well-fitting comfort of his clothes. Every word and movement was decisive and businesslike. In her heart every woman cherishes an ideal, and in "Jimmie" mine was realized. But he took little notice of me or any other woman.

"Jimmie," said one of the men one day, "You're the highest salaried man here. Why don't you get married?"

Jimmie answered, "If I ever find a woman who can keep her appointments and catch a train, I'll marry her if she'll have me."

His joke set me thinking, for I was known in the office as Miss Punctuality, because I never kept anyone waiting a second and often had boasted of never having missed a train.

One day I was called into a private office to write some letters for him. At the end of the dictation he began hesitatingly.

"I'm afraid I'll make an awful blunder, I'm new at this kind of business, but — I love you and I want to ask you to marry me. You're the first girl I ever said this to in my life."

My heart was beating a happy tattoo, but woman's perverseness prompted my answer, "Thank you," said I, "but I prefer to marry a man who sees something more in me to admire than an ability to catch trains and keep appointments."

Jimmie flushed, and I knew it was that made me notice you first," he answered, "but now I like you well enough to wait all day for you and to think it all right if you missed every train that leaves Chicago."

"O well—Jimmie may have been 'new at the business,' but he had a golden tongue, and a willing heart is easily persuaded; so to-day, I am

MRS. "JIMMIE" NEFF.

MAN MAY "LOOK HER UP." A girl may do no violence to her modesty by making the first advance toward interesting a certain man, but she invariably can attract his attention by having him hear — through a friend — a bit of flattery expressed by her. To express a desire to form his acquaintance would in nearly every case be fatal to her ends, but if she can in a few selected words comment on his style of clothes or his figure or the manner in which he is conducting his work or business, he will lose no time in "looking her up." She must try more than once or twice before admitting defeat. Having made his acquaintance, infinite tact, a keep your distance" demeanor, will hold his attention. She must not be too indifferent — for a man can change his coat — but she must at proper times decline proffered favors. She must have one set of manners, be dainty as to person, and she must resent all familiarity. This defines the "nice" girl, the kind that men want for wives, and though men may seem attracted more readily toward the beautiful butterfly type of woman, they marry the sensible girl who can appreciate a pleasant home and a congenial husband.

S. R.

HOLD THE MAN'S INTEREST.

I was a working girl. I enjoyed teaching school, but find more pleasure in keeping house. The ambition of the average working girl is a home of her own. To realize this ambition she must marry. To marry she must meet the right man. That comparatively a simple undertaking, the difficult problem is to find, to interest, to keep the man, when she finds him.

I want to tell, briefly and plainly, some of the things I have heard men say on this subject.

There are two reasons why men do not care to marry. First, the financial reason. The average man on a moderate salary finds that his pay envelope contains barely enough to gratify his own tastes. He wants to live well, and feels that he would have to forfeit his bachelor luxuries for the responsibilities of a household. Women demand too much; they want to "legit" life where their parents left off. A man of pride hesitates to ask a woman to marry who is earning a salary equivalent to his own.

Second — The social reason. When a man desires an evening to a girl he wants to be entertained. Her company must take the place of the "club" or the theatre. If he enjoys the play he will go again; the same is true of the girl's society. A man invariably will go where he has the pleasantest time. If a girl's company is more to him than anything else he will seek it for life.

Judging by the two reasons why men do not marry, a working girl might safely assume that she would find a deserving husband by observing the following rules:

1. Help a man to save his money by not suggesting expensive outings or entertainments or accepting gifts. If you see a pretty cottage mention it, and don't point to a mansion as your "ideal home." Never boast of the amount of your salary or your ability to earn money.

2. Dress prettily and, above all, neatly, but be unconscious of your clothes. Buy more late books and fewer dresses.

3. Spend more time learning chess, cards, tennis, games of all sorts, and music, if possible, than in doing up your hair or fancy work.

4. Find out what he likes, take an interest in it, and give him a chance to talk about it. Every man likes to be appreciated.

5. Never gossip or giggle or talk shop or moralize. Avoid sentiment and jealousy. Speak well of other girls and of men you have "gone with."

6. If you can, cook him something good to eat, and say the pleasant things in a pleasing way.

7. Speak to the workman when he isn't dressed up, stand by the man in trouble.

MRS. G. C. WAREHAM.

HAPPY IN "DEAR LITTLE FLAT."

In answer to "Juliette's" query of "How did you get your husband?" let me say the chief fault of more girls not marrying lies with the girls themselves. By that I mean the majority of the working girls expect too much in a financial way from the men they would marry and so frighten them away.

There are two distinct types of girls. One who loves all the little vanities that money can buy, nine cases out of ten is living at home with no board to pay; or, if any, perhaps $5, with the balance to spend as she pleases. The other, paying at least $5 or $6 at a respectable boarding place, together with laundry, and often a mother or someone at home to help out, has little or nothing left for herself.

The former girl would not marry unless she could have the same amount of money to spend on herself, keep a servant, entertain, etc., while, on the other hand, the latter girl would, if given an opportunity, marry a man on a moderate salary, keep up his home without the aid of help other than perhaps a washerwoman, wash his clothes, economize, save and be happy.

But the opportunity! That is the stumbling block put in the way by the more selfish type of girl, airing her ideas to the male sex of "what she must have when she marries," and so scaring the man away.

A spendid young man of my acquaintance told me of a girl friend of his expressing her unwillingness to marry on less than $1,800 a year and so he was afraid to marry.

Girls, there are hosts of just such men afraid to let their money off their small salary, and there are few young men of to-day making more than $100 a month, and many young couples start on less and are comfortable and happy.

So those of you who want a real home with love and happiness and are willing to make a few sacrifices in order to economize and save for a better future do not be afraid to let your male acquaintances know of your ideas, and I am confident you will gain favor — and more.

I have a kind and loving husband, a dear little flat and am happier than when I was working.

MRS. H. P.

GETS HUSBAND IN NEW JOB.

I got my husband through change of occupation. After twelve years of the hardest kind of work, that of a nurse, I decided to get employment where I could have regular meals and regular sleep, also have part of my wages. I secured a situation as cook in a country club. I had learned to be a scientific cook along with my work, gathering information in every home where I was employed from the cook or housewife. At the end of six months in my new position I had a raise in wages, had gained a better knowledge of the work, and, best of all, had learned that the old adage, "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," was true.

While the soft coal fire was necessary to cook the food, the cool, breezy winds of Old Canada the spirit of love until the sea of matrimony became the soothing draft. I now have a real home different from the described bachelor girl's flat. Girls stay so long in one position that they take it for granted they are married to it and think it useless to propose.

MRS. D. H. BEAN.

MANY WAYS TO WIN HEARTS.

Man, a marriage, a home, and a go-cart! O, what bliss! What joy in reaching that end and aim of a woman's life! But what a great question mark sometimes confronts us when the prize is won!

My father says I began trying to win hearts when I was four years old, and that the way I went about it was to be especially liberal with hugs and kisses whenever I sighted pennies.

Now I am 22, my childish efforts, of course, seem crude, but I think man is just as susceptible to womanly tenderness and flattery to-day as ever, and while, of course, we cannot hug him, even if we think he is the right man, we easily and graciously can let him see that his attentions are welcome and his company appreciated.

I wouldn't like to say how sweet man is when he thinks he may need a little moral support, because in the first place she always is sweet, and in the second, both he and she read The Tribune — but it's a winning way.

Seriously, I think the man who is altogether worth while, the man who does things, likes to win better than to be won; he is a man who has met his fate, and he does not seem fully to recognize the fact, I would say, get acquainted with some really nice widow and take lessons.

IRENE GOODMAN.

LIST TO THE WORDS OF A WIDOW.

How I got my first husband is hardly to the point, since we were boy and girl then, and ours was surely stumbling into love and marriage. My second marriage occurred when I was past 35. When I met this man I was settling up business connected with my first husband's estate. I had no thought then of marrying, but the man was so sympathetic and attentive that I sat and took notice.

I noticed that it was my personality which first attracted him. I saw that from the nature of his business as well as his social standing he had some experience in the world of women and that he was discriminating in his choice of them. The woman whom he would marry must be one he could be proud of. She must be womanly and refined. I noticed that he paid strict attention to every little detail of dress and manners in his business, as well as his social hours, and I realized that the woman who would neglect the least of these little amenities would have no show in his serious attentions.

Then I began to look for his little weaknesses — they all have them. His was business. I found that he liked to be known as a man who sacrificed himself to business. If he pleaded business cares for an excuse I warned him against sacrificing his health to work. I was sincere in this, and my sincerity was flattering. A man likes to have a sensible woman interested in him. I found that he was falling in love with me because I had the good sense to be so much interested in him. I catered to all his tastes.

This I found easy since our tastes are so much alike one another. When I found any fixed habit of his which I had a decided antipathy for I looked at it this way: Doubtless I have some weakness which he is too polite to show his aversion for, and so we balanced matters.

I do not think it unwomanly to meet a man half-way in courtship. To be too independent or modest throws a cold blanket on a man's best intentions. A little friendly solicitation with just the right show of independence is necessary to encourage him. And some encouragement is due, if we want a man's attention.

ratepayers, requesting that a new union school section be formed out of portions of four sections named, and that the Council take the necessary steps to procure the same.

John W. Drury filed a petition signed by 47 ratepayers, asking that a public watering trough be established at Kent Centre—Bridge End—the cost not to exceed $35 per annum.

S. B. McCully and A. Huffman filed their report on the audit of the accounts from January 1 to June 30th.

The Treasurer, John Whittington, filed a guarantee bond for $2,500, as per by-law.

The Reeve reported that a preliminary hearing re Howard appeal on Taff Creek drain assessment had come before the Drainage Referee on Saturday, June 15th, with the result that the decision was given in favor of Howard with costs.

Moses Scott and Barchiel addressed the Council re some road work in front of Mr. Scott's place.

G. Griffith asked for repair of roadway.

Joseph Cooper asked concerning certain drainage.

All of which carried, were: Clark and McColl, accepting the bond of the Treasurer.

Clark and McColl, instructing the Clerk to notify the Maple City Oil Co. that the terms of their agreement were satisfactory to the Council.

Corlett and McColl, that in the opinion of this Council it is deemed advisable to accept and adopt the plan with concrete floor of F. W. Flater, C. E., for a bridge over the Howard drain on the Harwich and Raleigh Townline; and whereas the Council of the Municipality of Raleigh have taken no action re the said plan, resolved that a committee of the Reeve and Deputy Reeve be appointed to meet a committee from Raleigh Council and confer together and if possible arrive at conclusions whereby the work of construction may be commenced as soon as possible.

McColl and Corlett, that a special grant of $20 be made to each of the 4th and 8th concession roads on condition that the commissioner expend $10 on each of said roads for repair of same.

Clark and McColl, that the Reeve and Counsellor W. J. Corlett be appointed a committee to meet a similar committee from Raleigh Council to consider the best means of repairing and improving the W. T. Lins opposite or near the property of A. Huff.

Clark and McColl, that the report of S. Fagan, Tile Drain Inspector, on Gardner drains, be accepted.

On motion of Clark and Corlett, the petition of W. R. McGregor was accepted, and the Clerk instructed to notify the engineer, F. W. Flater, to make survey, etc., and report to the Council.

On motion of Walters and Corlett, the application of John Johnston was accepted, and the Clerk instructed to have the engineer, F. W. Flater, make the necessary survey, etc., and report to this Council.

Moved by McColl and Clark, that whereas a petition presented by Wm. Muckle and 27 other ratepayers in Harwich requesting that a new union school section be formed out of portions of sections named in said petition, resolve that the Clerk notify the owners and ratepayers of the various lots and parts of lots as named in said petition, also the trustees of the different school sections affected by the proposed new union section, that this council will consider the said petition at the next regular meeting, August 12, at four o'clock p. m.

Moved by Clark and McColl, that the auditors' report from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1907, be adopted and entered in the minutes of this meeting.

To the Reeve and Council of the Township of Harwich:

Gentlemen.—We are pleased to report to your honorable body that acting under your appointment of the 10th of June we have completed our audit. This audit consists of two parts. First, from the 1st of Jan., 1907, to the 31st of May of the present year, comprising the time when Mr. James Leslie, deceased, your late treasurer, was acting; second, the interim the month of June, during which time the Reeve and Clerk have been carrying on the work of treasurer jointly under two resolutions of the council, namely, the 27th of May and the 10th of June, thus including in the audit all receipts and disbursements made of the corporation by the treasurer up to the 30th of June, the time when your new treasurer will be acting.

We have examined the municipal cash book, bank books, treasurer's orders, vouchers and cheques of the late treasurer with care and diligence from the 1st of Jan. to the 23rd of May, the last payment under his hand. The receipts and payments of all monies for and in behalf of the corporation during that time we hereby certify to be correct and all properly accounted for and paid to the credit of the township in and through the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Further, that the small amount of cash on hand mentioned in the last annual auditors' report has been deposited to the credit of the township, and there remains to the credit of the late treasurer a balance of salary. The interim the month of June we have examined all receipts and disbursements and find the same to be all correctly made and accounted for. Also we report that we have examined the ledger, debt-nature book, etc., pertaining to the treasurer's office and find the work all brought forward and correctly entered up to the 30th of June.

Attached hereto will be found a short certified schedule showing monthly balance with outstanding cheques taken from the municipal cash book; also a certified monthly balance sheet prepared and certified to by the Bank.

In conclusion, we may say we appreciated the courteous assistance of the Clerk where information and explanation was necessary.

All of which we respectfully submit to your honorable body for your consideration.

Dated this 8th day of July, 1907.

S. B. McCULLY,

A. HUFFMAN,

By-laws were finally passed, signed and sealed, granting the franchise as per agreements, forming part of said by-laws, to Wm. R. De Gruy to lay gas and oil pipe lines.

The Blenheim and South Kent Telephone Company to construct a telephone system in Harwich.

A loan as per statute was made to S. S. No. 2 1-2 of $2,000 for four years, first debenture to be due Dec. 1, 1908.

A by-law was finally passed, signed and sealed, repealing and annulling all former proceedings for the repair of the Taff Creek drain, and engineer George A. McCubbin was instructed to make a new survey, etc., and report to the council. Mr. W. Hamilton having filed a new application.

There were a number of accounts ordered paid.

Couldn't Be a Purer Flour Than "Kent Mills" Gold Medal

ONLY the best Manitoba and Ontario Red Winter Wheat are used in the production of "Kent Mills" Flour.

Before being ground the grains of wheat are thoroughly cleaned, dusted and scoured by special machines.

All the sand, dust, light grains, seeds and other foreign substances, which are always present to a more or less degree when wheat is delivered at the mill, are left behind when the wheat starts on its journey to be crushed into flour.

By our improved process of milling the hard, fibrous bran and cellulosic coats are so carefully removed from the starch and gluten cells, which are crushed into flour, that there's not the remotest possibility of a single atom of these impure and indigestible substances remaining in "Kent Mills" Flour.

Just as careful to keep every particle of the germ out, too. It may be useful in a breakfast food, but it impairs the keeping qualities of the flour.

And to make absolutely sure of every impurity being removed the flour is sifted through the finest silk cloths, which costs more dollars a yard than you would probably think of paying for even a ball dress.

It is because we are so careful in every step of the selecting of the wheat, the milling and the blending that we are able to produce a flour so immensely superior to all others.

A flour that is absolutely pure, always uniform, that will not dry out soon, but will keep fresh longer than any other.

A flour that will make more and better bread and pastry to the barrel than the best Manitoba patent.

Every bag or barrel "Kent Mills" Flour guaranteed by both the manufacturer and dealer.

OIL BOUNTIES.

Kent farmers are very much dissatisfied with the law which makes the payment of oil bounties to them dependent on the government. They have no guarantee that the bounty will be paid.

The above comment from the London Free Press clearly states in a few words the condition of affairs in Tilbury. As was stated a few days ago in The Planet, Mr. H. S. Clements, M. P., introduced legislation in the Dominion House, which, had it passed, would have protected the farmers and would have made it compulsory by law to pay all of the farmers these oil bounties. This bill, however, was thrown out and another introduced which left the power to grant oil bounties with the Governor-in-Council. The difficulties in connection with such legislation is apparent. The farmer is not protected and has no legal guarantee that he shall receive what is rightly coming to him.

WOOL.

Long & Bisby, Canada's great wool merchants, are just now scattering a part of their wealth among the farmers of Ontario in return for the wool grown on Canadian sheep backs. An old English farmer once said that every farmer should raise at least one sheep for every acre of land he owned, for the clip of wool brought him money while his crops were ripening for the harvest. Sheep are great scavengers on a farm for they keep it clean from noxious weeds and enrich the land. It does not pay to raise poor sheep, for it costs just as much to feed one of inferior breed, and then the wool is inferior and of short weight. Even though the price of wool goes down now, and then, take the clip on an average and the farmer is well paid for his work and the money invested in his flock. Today Long & Bisby shipped to New Hampshire a carload of fine wool, valued at $5,549, on which the United States customs receive a draft of $2,541 for duty. Canadian manufacturers ought to be able to use this wool at home instead of allowing it to leave the country, to be returned in a manufactured condition. There is something seriously wrong with the wool trade, or in the manufacture of woollen goods in Canada. The farmer gets, we think, the lowest price ever paid for wool in Canada, and those who buy Canadian tweeds, blankets, carpets, or other woollen goods, pay, we think, the largest price at which such goods were ever sold. Are we sending our wool to the United States, there to be manufactured and returned to us—Hamilton Spectator.

Sheepless farms and closed woollen mills are too common in this part of Ontario, adds the Galt Reporter. What is puzzling the Hamilton Spectator has puzzled others. The wool trade should be booming in this Province. Our woollen mills should be humming, as mills are in the neighboring Republic. There's something wrong somewhere, and it is, we may be sure, not in England where woollen manufacturers, practically shut out of the United States by the Dingley tariff, are making extra efforts to take advantage of the Preferential Tariff to gorge this market with their products.

BILL-BOARD ADVERTISING.

The comparative worthlessness of bill-board advertising is reported to have been discovered during the recent strike in Butte, Montana. For weeks no newspaper was published there, and the merchants had to depend for publicity upon bill-boards and "dodgers." The result was that business fell off from twenty to fifty per cent, which was attributed by the business men solely to the fact that they had no newspapers to act as advertising mediums. Whereat the Montreal Witness remarks: "We read that the theatres—usually the most active supporters of bill-board advertising—suffered even more than the merchants from loss of patronage. This experience is being largely drawn upon to point the moral to advertisers that the loss of the bill-board would be no great sacrifice of prosperity, while it would be a considerable aesthetic gain. The doom of the bill-board has been proclaimed in many enlightened cities, and, unless saved by some remarkable aesthetic development, it must in time be abolished by all cities which aspire to good taste."

Doing nothing for others is the doing of ourselves.

Not being allowed to maul each other in England, Mac and O'Baldwin, the "Irish giant," have agreed to cross the Atlantic in order to indulge their propensities. The latter arrived in New York on Wednesday, accompanied by some comrades. They were duly received by a delegation of the sporting community and were at once "introduced to the elephant," as it is known in the Broadway regions. O'Baldwin stands six feet five inches high, and has had various successes in the rope fenced field. Mac, who is under heavy bonds not to fight in England, is expected by the coming steamer.

ELOPING WIFE FORGIVEN.

Husband Secures Her Release and Takes Her Back Home.

Seattle, July 26.—Despite the fact that his wife eloped with Y. Saganuma, his Japanese servant, and was arrested in his company in the Japanese quarter, the Rev. E. C. Robinson, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church, has forgiven her. He has signed her bail bond, secured her release from prison and taken her back to his home.

The scandal has almost wrecked the church, in which she was a leading worker. Saganuma was even more than usual Japanese politeness. It is said it was the manner of the slant-eyed Chesterfield which won Mrs. Robinson's heart and caused her to desert her home.

The Rev. Mr. Robinson was formerly assistant pastor of Grace Church, Chicago. She and her husband came originally from Canada.

Hall Destroyed Crops.

Lyleton, Man., July 26.—The most disastrous hailstorm ever witnessed in this locality completely destroyed crops in a strip many miles wide, especially to the north. The hail was accompanied by a terrific wind, which overturned many barns and granaries. The largest losses by hail are: Gould, 1,200 acres; Fenlon, 800; Boyle, 400; Maitland, 400; Seelye, Murray, Scott, Walton, McKish, McCormick and Brown, who are insured. Murray & Sons, 500 acres, and Gardner 400 acres, who had no insurance. All the above are total losses.

ANXIOUS MOMENTS

Thousands of Little Ones Die During the Summer Months.

Every mother of small children knows how fatal are the summer months. Dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera, infantum and stomach troubles are alarmingly frequent at this time and too often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours' illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of Baby's Own Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes unaware the Tablets will bring the little one through safely. Mrs. Geo. Robb, Aubrey, Que., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach and bowel troubles with the best results. I feel quite safe when I have the Tablets in the house." On the forenoon of Friday last a young married man by the name of Joseph Hoag, residing at Thamesville, met his death in the following manner. He and his brother were logging in the bush, each having a pair of horses and sleighs, and were distant from each other about 100 yards. Deceased was loading a log which was considerably bent in the middle and was seen by his brother to put it on the sleigh, but it afterwards rolled off. Again he put it on and for some time following his brother's attention was directed to his own loading. When he looked around again deceased was not to be seen. His brother immediately went over and found him under the log, his body being in the hollow of the bent part and his legs and head crushed beneath the ends. Though not quite dead when found, he died in about fifteen minutes afterwards.

THE CONVENTION SIGNED.

The Resident-General Becomes Real Ruler of Korea.

Tokio, July 26.—The new convention between Japan and Korea was signed after no small opposition by the Korean court. The provisions are briefly as follows:

Article 1. The Government of Korea shall follow the direction of the resident-general in connection with the reform of the administration.

2. Korea shall not enact any law or ordinance or carry out any administrative measure unless it has previous approval of the resident-general.

3. Judicial affairs of Korea shall be kept distinct from ordinary administrative affairs.

4. No appointment or dismissal of Korean officials of high grade shall be made without the consent of the resident-general.

5. Korea shall appoint to official positions such Japanese as are recommended by the resident-general.

6. Korea shall not engage any foreigner without the consent of the resident-general.

7. The first clause of the agreement between Japan and Korea dated Aug. 22, 1904, is hereby abrogated.

The agreement abrogates the advisor system, especially affecting the finance department, under Adviser Metaga, who now becomes a Korean official.

Satisfies Japan.

It is felt among the well-informed that Japan might have been more exacting in her terms, curtailing even the Korean imperial authority by suggesting the rescript, subject to the approval of the Japanese resident-general. The avoidance of such a demand, it is believed, was purely out of consideration for the prestige of the Korean court. The extension of the power of the resident-general so that he may appoint his nominees to responsible positions in the Korean Government is especially welcomed in Japan as one of the surest means of preventing the adoption of any measure hostile to the Japanese or detrimental to the interests of Korea.

The Palace Looted.

Seoul, July 26.—A wave of great excitement swept over the whole peninsula yesterday when the new agreement with Japan was announced and the Emperor's proclamation published in the provinces.

All the privileged old ladies attached to the court arrived in crowds at the palace, condoling, weeping, wailing and incidentally carrying away in their customary loose clothing everything detachable and portable. The palace was looted of all possible souvenirs.

The ex-Emperor wept, saying that his efforts for many years had been a mistake, and that he should himself have taken the proposed course and was unable to continue his speech.

Most people would fall short if measured by the golden rule.

G.T.R. NEW ROLLING STOCK.

Sixty Passenger Coaches, 100 Engines and 4,500 Freight Cars.

Montreal, July 25.—With the daily delivery of engines, passenger coaches and freight cars, the Grand Trunk Railway is rapidly approaching the day when the last of nearly $7,000,000 worth of rolling stock will have been received by them during the present year. There were in all about 60 passenger coaches ordered, costing about $12,000 each, laid down in Montreal, which makes a total of $720,000. Thirty of these have already been delivered.

There were 100 engines ordered, and of these 60 have been received. The average cost is $15,000 each, or an aggregate of $1,500,000.

The tremendous increase in freight traffic may be imagined by the delivery of 4,500 new freight cars. The average cost is $3,200, and the average cost is $350 each, so that the great sum of $4,420,000 is being spent for freight cars alone.

THE CONSERVATIVE WINE.

Mayor McKeown of Orangeville Elected to Legislature by 100 Majority.

Orangeville, July 25.—Mayor C. R. McKeown (Conservative) was yesterday elected to the Legislature for the County of Dufferin, by a majority of 100 over J. R. Woods (Independent).

Three of the polling places gave the latter the significant majority of 23. The majority of the late Dr. Lewis was 252.

The result was in doubt until the last returns were received, and as a consequence the excitement ran high. The mayor addressed the electors from the balcony of the Queen's Hotel, when his election was assured. He promised impartial representation.

The prohibition end of the fight was lost sight of in the campaign, which was "the lawyer against the farmer, and the cry became a serious one in the county."

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Fools are born, not made, and some of our friends have their life work cut out before them to suppress the evidence.

The more important a man is the less time or occasion he has to appear so.

No woman likes to look old, but all women like to assume the wisdom of the ages.

Being a fool is no disgrace, because it is so fashionable.

Time may be money, but you can't mortgage unadorned time for ready cash.

It really seems as if it were a mean trick for a woman to save a man and then marry him.

The man is a hero in the eyes of his tailor who pays on delivery.

It depends upon whether the marriage is the first or the 'tenth' for the contracting parties whether there is any romance about it.

No man is a failure who really has hopes to retrieve his losses.

As a rule in hopes and aspiration the woman is a decade or two younger than the man who sneers at her as a has been.

Platonic love is the didn't-know-it-was-loaded kind.

A Popular Song.

There's lots of cash in a popular song. For every one will buy one. And, as we need the green called long, Supposing we just try one.

Two lovers by the garden gate, Engaged, but yet unwedded, And though the hour was growing late, He sought a suspender.

No sign he gave of the mishap, But still his brow was troubled; He thought about the other strap And of his labor doubled.

The maiden saw all was not right Because he acted funny. She said: "What is it, heart's delight? Come, tell your little honey."

CHORUS.

"I will tell you all my dear, Do not ask me now, I pray, Do not think my heart of stone; I must bear it all alone. Some time, dear one, you shall know. Please excuse me, I must go."

These words quite bitter made her life, The dark clouds seemed to thicken; She cut her as a carving knife Cuts up a tender chicken.

Her impulse was at first for flight To see how that would strike him, But then she thought perhaps she might Not get another like him.

So she recovered from the spell, Her voice became more steady, And then she murmured: "Very well, Just tell when you are ready."

He said, "It causes me a tear; My heart it almost crushes To keep a secret from you dear, But I would spare your blushes."

CHORUS.

"I will tell you all," etc.

For the Retreat.

"Will balloons ever be of use in war?"

"Yes, indeed. There are times when a man cannot get away fast enough, even though he has a horse."

Symptoms.

Where the pussy willows Bob the stream beside On the little bluffs Water skaters glide. Dandelions yellow Smile upon the brim; Seem to dare a fellow "Come and have a swim."

Air is cool and bracing, With a little tang; Makes us feel like racing Off without a pang.

From the duties calling, Dusty things and slow; We from grace are falling When the May winds blow.

Profitable Literature.

"There goes old Hippolytus, the astrologer. Wonderful man! The stars are like an open book to him."

"Indeed! What kind of a book?"

"Oh, the regulation kind that the bookmakers at the race track use."

The Sine Qua Non.

"I don't know of anything that Brown needs more than a hair cut."

"I do."

"What is it, pray?"

"A desire to have it cut."

Too Cheap.

Advice is something that we give away. With none on hand, we gladly stop to make it.

As for ourselves, we wouldn't care to take it.

SMALLPOX SHOWS INCREASE.

Fifty-Five Cases Are Reported by the Provincial Board.

Toronto, July 26.—The report of the Provincial Board of Health for June, just issued shows that there were 1,023 cases of contagious diseases, with 240 deaths, as compared with 885 cases and 262 deaths in the same month last year.

Smallpox shows an increase, the number of cases reported being 55, with no deaths, against 30 cases a year ago and no deaths.

Other infectious diseases reported were: Scarlet fever 195, 10 deaths, against 98 cases and 3 deaths a year ago; diphtheria, 125 cases, 20 deaths, a decrease of 65 cases; measles, 376 cases, with 35 deaths, against 206 cases and 6 deaths; whooping cough, 105 cases, with 5 deaths, against 78 cases and 15 deaths; typhoid, 51 cases, with 17 deaths; consumption, 171 deaths, against 143.

GREAT SPECIALISTS IN STOMACH CATARRH.

Though often they fail to give even temporary relief, Mr. W. Seymour, of Huntsville, Ont., cured himself with Ferrozone. "My trouble," he says, "was chronic catarrh of the stomach. There was constant bad taste in my mouth, I was constipated and usually nauseated before and after meals. I also had a growing sensation in the stomach. Ferrozone gave me great relief, and I also used Catarrhoxone, which is good for catarrh. Although it took a number of boxes of Ferrozone, I got back my health and to-day am quite well, and my stomach catarrh, indigestion and kindred disorders nothing excels Ferrozone. In a thousand cases it has proved a wonderful success. Try it yourself, 50c. per box at all dealers.

Smallpox in Toronto Jail.

Toronto, July 26.—Smallpox has broken out in Toronto Jail. Dr. Sheard made the discovery yesterday afternoon that one of the inmates of the Chateau Chambers had developed symptoms, after a stay of 12 days, and removal to the Swiss Cottage followed.

Dr. Sheard stated that the jail being an entirely isolated community, the disease could not travel far and an epidemic could be more easily checked at the outset.

It will not be necessary to quarantine the jail, at least not yet.

WHOSE SAY-SO IS BEST?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Medical Colleges, Chicago, Prof. Hale, of the same city; Prof. John M. Reid, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Grover Cox, of New York; Dr. Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others equally eminent, men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-known medicines.

Amongst these writers we find such medical lights as Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Boston; Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Hale, of the same city; Prof. John M. Reid, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Grover Cox, of New York; Dr. Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others equally eminent, men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-known medicines.

WIRE WOUNDS.

My mare, a very valuable one, was badly bruised and cut by being caught in a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, diluted at first, and then stronger as the sores began to look better, until after three weeks, the sores have healed and best of all, the hair is growing well, and is NOT WHITE as is most always the case in horse wounds.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSON FOR TO-MORROW.

The Golden Age—Exod. 32:1-8, 30-35. Read Exod. 32-35.

Golden Text—Little children, keep yourselves from idols.—1 John 5, 21.

Forty days have passed since the giving of the law, when these people had said, "all that the Lord hath spoken will we do," and now we see them violating this law. Surely the heart in deceitful above all things. There had been no real heart turning to God. They were simply swayed by their fears and by the presence of Moses.

This backsliding in Israel is universal; not even Aaron or the seventy who met God in the mountain protested when the people came to him with their frightful proposals. The people wanted something they could see to worship. A purely spiritual worship is impossible for the natural heart, any supposed worship to God; unless we worship Him in spirit and in truth we are not His worshippers. It is only such worship He seeks.

Aaron demands all their golden ear-rings, perhaps expecting to cool their idolatrous ardor; but people will give up gold and jewels for a false religion even more readily than we do perhaps for the true. They evidently were very earnest and sincere, but neither sincerity nor earnestness nor their false idolatry saved them. Their heathen revel, called a feast unto Jehovah, was a licentious debauch, following their offerings to the calf of gold. All this time Moses was talking with God at the mountain top, while Israel dishonored Him in the vale below reminding us of Jesus at God's right hand, as a high priest and intercessor.

In preparing to return and offer himself for his people in his wonderful love; he did not make little of their guilt, his love was too faithful for that. Here again we see a type of Christ.

Moses took the very best course on behalf of his people—as we all should do—went right to God Himself for those he loved. Moses did not try to belittle the people's sin in seeking their pardon; his confession was definite and ample; his broken prayer, from a broken and contrite heart. He asked if forgiveness was impossible that the penalty might fall on him and not on the guilty people.

Wonderful love, but God will not take an innocent man's life in place of the life of a guilty man. Christ, who "tasted death for everyman," is man, yet the Son of God, the head of our race.

"Surely He hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows away," and "all we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way, and Jehovah hath laid on Him (Jesus) the iniquity of us all."

THE BRITISH ARTILLERYMEN.

Not One of Them Made a Miss—Move In Two Series At Petawawa.

Petawawa Artillery Camp, Ont., July 26.—The British artillerymen have become the marvel of the camp. Never has such precision been seen as was exhibited by the visiting team in its first practice here. The guns used were of 4.7 calibre and the range 6,000 yards.

The men have been trained by the instructors of the Royal Artillery of Great Britain. Not a man made a miss move during the two series fired. The commands were given by the officers in the fewest possible words, just sufficiently loud for the men for whom they were intended to hear.

The guns went into action with their detachments as though the men themselves were a part of the big machine, and were loaded, fired, manned forward, swung into position, etc., with a speed, accuracy and perfection of drill that has never been equalled in Canada.

Nearly everything was done by signal. The series was fired in about one-half the time usually occupied by the Canadian team.

The competitions were against thirty Canadian companies of heavy artillery which have already completed their shell practice before Sept. 15. The actual results of the firing will not be made public until all the competitions are completed.

The British team and Canadian composite field artillery team, commanded by Major F. W. B. Morrison of Ottawa, fired their elementary series yesterday.

TO REGULATE FISHING.

Binding Agreement Between U. S. and Canada Advocated.

Erie, Pa., July 26.—At the closing session of the National Fisheries Society an International Congress was arranged for and the Governor-General of Canada, the Lieutenant-Governor of the province of Ontario, President Roosevelt and the governors of the various states bordering on the Great Lakes will be requested to send delegates.

The congress is to make a binding agreement between the United States and the Dominion of Canada regulating the catch of fish in the Great Lakes.

A resolution was passed authorizing such a congress and the sentiment was unanimous that some steps ought to be taken immediately to bring about more cordial and fairer relations between the two Governments relative to the fishing industry.

A paper bearing directly on the subject was read yesterday afternoon by A. Kelly Evans of Toronto, who maintained that it was absolutely necessary to regulate the size of commercial fish to prevent a possible prohibition of exports of the food varieties. Canada is now contributing 86 per cent. of the lake fish consumed in the United States, he said, and if this supply were cut off he believed it would be a severe blow to this country.

MUCH LUMBER DESTROYED.

Big Blaze at Ottawa Caused Loss Estimated at $300,000.

Ottawa, July 26.—W. C. Edwards' planing mills and sash and door factory in the New Edinburgh section, the factory of the Library Bureau alongside, a mica warehouse owned by the Messrs. Blackburn, No. 6 Fire Hall, the club room of W. C. Edwards Co.'s staff, two million feet of lumber, and several small residences were destroyed by fire, which was started by lightning at 5.30 yesterday morning, with a loss of $300,000, of which $250,000 falls upon the W. C. Edwards Co. about 250 men are out of employment.

The Edwards Co. are covered by insurance to the extent of $200,000. Senator W. C. Edwards of Rockland was the principal owner of these industries, and was also largely interested in the Library Bureau.

Excitement in Georgia.

Atlanta, Ga., July 26.—Rarely have such scenes of excitement been witnessed in legislative halls as has marked the efforts to pass the state prohibition bill by the lower branch of the Legislature. All day the fight was waged, and a filibustering majority prevented action on the bill which was adopted by the Senate more than a week ago.

Hundreds of men, women and children thronged the galleries. Women, singing and waving flags, added to the excitement. Those of several Atlanta churches prepared luncheons for the legislators, and served them in the capitol. Late last night the prohibition bill had not been reported.

Centennial At Ottaville.

Woodstock, July 26.—The centennial jubilee of the founding of the pretty little village of Ottaville, 16 miles from here, was fittingly celebrated. Hundreds of visitors, some from quite a distance.

There were many happy reunions. It is estimated that 2,000 people were on the grounds. An interesting feature was the celebration of the 100th birthday of Mrs. Mahoney.

Two Months For This Man.

Ottawa, July 26.—Frank Lee, who attempted suicide in Labrador, some time ago, and who narrowly escaped with his life, was arraigned before Judge Talbot in Hall yesterday.

He pleaded guilty and was sent down for two months.

Cost of Conference.

London, July 26.—According to an official return the cost of the imperial conference was £10,400. The original estimate was £800.

The Admiralty expenses in conveying the remains of Hon. Mr. Prefontaine from Cherbourg to Halifax was £3,781.

Arrival of 1,200 Japs.

Vancouver, July 26.—Twelve hundred Japanese from Honolulu arrived at Vancouver yesterday on board the British tramp steamer Kumeria. The steamer lay out in the stream all day.

"The Blood Is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It purifies and enriches the blood, thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

Expansion of Commerce.

The customs revenue of the Dominion continues to grow at a marvelous rate, and illustrates the wonderful expansion of commerce which is taking place in Canada.

The receipts for the month of June were: 1907-$5,321,444.83; 1906, $4,063,421.37; increase, $1,258,023.46. For the three months ended June 30 the increase was $2,964,391.40, the figures being: 1906, $12,158,701.03; 1907, $15,123,092.43.

No man's a failure until he's dead, or loses his courage, and that's the same thing.

CHATHAM GAS CO., LIMITED

MARRIED AT EIGHTEEN

The man who marries a girl of seventeen or eighteen years is taking a great risk. The majority of girls at such an age have nothing which they can offer as a safe foundation for life happiness. They are unformed in character, unsettled in their ideas, and in nine cases out of ten are unable to judge correctly as to the state of their own hearts. And at the age of nineteen or twenty a girl has had little time in which to make a study of men. She has her fancies, but is generally incapable of the sincere affection upon which love is based, because she is scarcely old enough to know what the feeling really means.

There is great danger in a girl marrying at an early age the first man with whom she falls in love—or thinks she loves. At twenty-three a girl would not give a second look at a man with whom she would fall in love at sixteen. And should she marry him at eighteen, what must her thoughts and feelings be about him when she is twenty-three?

History makes us some amends for the shortness of life.

WAIT FOR THE RIGHT MAN

Many foolish girls throw away the love of a good man simply because they are uncertain as to whether he is the right man, or fancy that somebody better may come along. Very often, when it is too late, they find that after all he was the right man, and much heart-burning ensues.

The average girl does not take love half seriously enough, she is so used to semi-serious love affairs—"understandings," I believe, they are called—that when the real thing comes her judgment is warped and she finds it difficult to analyse her feelings.

Of course, no well-brought-up girl looks on every man she meets as a possible husband, but the right man is sure to come some day; and with that day in view, I say to every girl, hold yourself in dignified readiness to meet it.

The great difference between men is not in moral judgments, but in moral loyalties.

Few men believe that prosperity makes any difference in their demeanor.

FINE BAND CONCERT

The largest crowd that has visited the band concerts at Erieau this year was the one of last night. The evening was cool and pleasant, and everyone seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves.

On arriving a number went for a stroll out on the pier and viewed with keen interest the various actions and movements of the waves in the refreshing waters of the Eau. On returning to the dancing pavilion a large number were found to be dancing to the sweet music which was being dispensed by the 24th Regimental Band, of this city. The band can be easily heard all over the pavilion and on a calm night can be heard by the strollers on the pier. The floor has been much improved since the opening this season. The managers have taken the trouble and pains to scrape it and wax it so that it now presents a good surface for dancing. The rough part has been taken off and smoothed down, and after being waxed several times it is now in a fine condition. The music is also good and encores are frequently demanded. The floor was not crowded at any time and about seventy couples took advantage of each number.

Erieau is thus a beautiful spot on the shores of Lake Erie, in which the youth of the Maple City, can spend a pleasant evening.

A painted house doesn't show its age, but it's different with a woman.

A CLEAN MILK SUPPLY

The Department of Agriculture, Toronto, is making a special effort to improve the raw material supplied to cheese factories by the patrons. With this end in view, the Department are distributing 55,000 leaflets on the care of milk. The pamphlet impresses on the farmers the necessity for clean milk, and cool milk, to insure good cheese and butter. "Clean milk," says the pamphlet, "implies well cared for cows, careful and clean milkers, and clean utensils."

MUSIC A TOPER'S BALM

Hartford, July 27.—"Banish anything else: you please from the saloon," pleaded Senator McGovern yesterday in the Senate, when the question of adhering or not to formulating a law to abolish the bill which gave local authorities the option as to whether there should be music in saloons, "but leave the music. Music hath power to soothe even a breast somewhat confused by liquor. Leave the music; it's elevating. Some time ago the city of Hartford was about to abolish the band organ and the street piano, but so unpopular was this move that it called it off."

The Senate adhered to rejecting the bill which has been passed by the House.

Coppering
Caverly.

By Benson Graydon.

Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastmont.

"I don't care what it costs," declared Caverly. "This man's father nearly ruined me once with his speculations.
Now comes his son, who not only follows his father's footsteps in the street,
but he clandestinely wins my daughter's heart."

"Those Newtons always were greedy," agreed Tait, fanning the flames of the other's anger. "I don't suppose you want to figure in this matter?"

Caverly shook his head. "Not yet,"
he explained. "Time enough to tell him when he is ruined."

"Trust to me," said Tait confidently.
"We will jolt the young man considerably."

Caverly went out chuckling. The night before Emory Newton had had the audacity to demand Belle Caverly's hand in marriage. He made light of the old enmity that had existed between his father and Caverly and suggested that Kentucky feuds and Corsican vendettas were out of fashion in New York. Caverly had ordered him from the house, and now he was scheming with Tait to ruin the boy.

For a week or two Newton did not suspect that his brokers were betraying him to Tait. Runs of hard luck were common enough on Wall Street,
and he simply seemed to have struck
an unusually bad one; that was all.
It was Belle who gave him the hint
when they met.

"Are you having bad luck with your stocks?" she asked as they sat in the Hargrave conservatory.

"Who told you?" he smiled. "Since when did you busy your pretty head
with stocks and things?"

"I heard father talking over the telephone," she explained. "I don't know just what he meant, but it seemed as

"YOU ASKED FOR THE INTERVIEW," HE EXPLAINED.

though he had hired some one to make your stocks go the way you didn't want them to."

"I see," he said, with a laugh. "I thought it merely a run of luck. I shall have to get even."

"I think it's mean of dad," she went on. "He won't let me marry you, and he wants you to lose your money."

"Don't worry," he replied. "I think I can teach him a lesson. There's the music."

They went back to the ballroom, and Belle forgot the incident. If it bothered Newton so little, it could not be very serious. But it did bother Newton more than a little. It explained to him how it was that when he bought for a rise his stocks fell. When he sold "short" in the expectation of prices being lower, they took an upward move. If it was Caverly behind the scheme, it meant a finish fight
unless he wanted to quit the street.

Newton did not need to speculate.
His income was ample, but he liked
the excitement, and he had inherited his father's stubbornness. He would not be driven from the field. He took his losses placidly and smiled at every fresh blow.

If Caverly found his revenge expensive, he at least found it worth while.
Through Tait he obtained from Newton's broker an accurate account of the losses sustained, and the sum was growing well into seven figures.

But even Caverly almost balked
when Newton went in for P. and N.
This was Caverly's pet stock. For almost a year he had acquired blocks of it here and there until it looked as though at the next election he might gain control.

Newton sold a put at ten points rise.
To depress it some of Caverly's holdings must be offered at a lower price.
It was a stiff fight. Most speculators held off, but there was some one who eagerly bought at the low price. Seven thousand shares were sold before Newton dropped from the market. He had promised to buy it at 97½. It had dropped to 81½. He stood to lose, and Caverly chuckled.

"Can't even win on P. and N.," he jeered to Tait. "I guess that ought to finish him."

"Siegrist & Platt want that P. and N. stock," said the head clerk, interrupting. "We have none."

"Of course not," agreed Tait. "Didn't suppose they wanted actual delivery."

"Well, they do," said the clerk. "Mr.
Siegrist is here himself, and he refused

a check for the profits; wants to know
if we keep a bucket shop."

"Send him in," said Tait in a husky voice. It looked like trouble. After Newton had been trimmed the stock
had been permitted to rise a few points.
Tait had supposed that a check to cover the increase would be sufficient. If Siegrist insisted upon the actual delivery of the stock and he could neither buy nor borrow, he would be expelled from the exchange for "bucketing" the stock. Before the broker entered he turned to Caverly.

"You will have to make good with your stock," he snarled. "If you don't,
I'll tell just how it happened."

Caverly knew that if he offered stock with no intention of letting it go he was in the same boat with his broker,
and in the end he had to send over to his office for the necessary shares.

There was a heated session between the two men after Siegrist left, but that did not bring back the stock. The registry books closed the following day, and Caverly had lost control of some 2,000 shares which he could not possibly replace in time for the meeting.

That evening Belle was surprised to see Emory Newton passing through the hall into the library. Evidently he was expected, for Caverly looked up coldly.

"You asked for the interview," he snapped. "What is it you wish?"

"I wanted to explain something to you," said Newton. "As you are to be my father-in-law some day, I hate to see you lose control of the P. and N.
I bought a put for 7,000 shares at 97½.
In trying to stick me you sold to my agent shares that you were forced to deliver. If you want to purchase them back, they are in the market."

"Your agent," echoed Caverly. "Siegrist your agent?"

"My agent's broker," he explained.
"I knew that my man was selling me out to Tait. By coppering my operation I have won double what I have lost. Siegrist is honest; besides, he didn't know."

Caverly sank back in his chair. He had been happy in the thought that he was ruining Newton. Instead Newton had been informed, and he had really been the gainer. Caverly was an old man, and suddenly he felt very young and feeble.

"I think I'm getting out of the game," he said, with a sigh. "What is your price for this stock?"

"Belle," answered Newton. "She's worth every share and script in the market."

For a moment Caverly hesitated. It was hard to surrender, but in the end he knew that Newton would win in his love affair as he had won in the street. He was the son of Caverly's ancient enemy, but nothing mattered.
He touched a bell, and the butler entered.

"Send for Miss Caverly," he ordered,
and Newton knew that he had won.

A Hunting Dialogue.

"Do you know of a dead sure way to start a good fire with your last match?"
asked a sportsman of his guide.

"Not a dead sure way exactly," answered the guide. "But I know a way that I'd be willing to count on."

"No, but a dead sure way," persisted the sportsman, "a dead sure way to start a fire with your last match."

"Well," inquired the guide, "daring up, what is a dead sure way to start a fire with your last match? That's what I'd like to know."

"Why, let me see—why, you put some powder on a dry piece of birch bark
and start it that way."

"But suppose you ain't got any birch bark nor any powder. How'd you start that fire with your last match?"
demanded the guide, now grown angry.

"Say, what would I be doing starting a fire?" countered the sportsman.
"What would I be starting a fire for?
Just tell me that, will you? What does a man pay a guide $3 a day for?"

"What for? Why, to take along plenty of matches. Who'd expect anybody but a man from the city to go rambling around in the bush with only one match?"

And after the dust had settled it was found that the bag containing the expedition's supply of matches had been lost somewhere on the last portage—Forest and Stream.

Joy in a Tramp's Life.

I have never experienced sufficiently the tramp's disgust at having "to do time" in June. From May till November is his natural roving time, his boxcar vacation. In winter, jail, even the workhouse, is often more of a boon than otherwise. However, even thirty summer days, precious as they are on the "outside," pass away sooner than one at first expects them to, and then comes that glorious moment—thunder, lightning, not even a pouring rain can mar it—when the freed one is again his own master. There may be other experiences in life more ecstatic than this one, but I would willingly trade
them all temporarily for that first gasp
in the open air, and that unfettered
tread on the ground, which the discharged prisoner enjoys.—Joseph Flint in Success Magazine.

A Muddy Day in London.

It has been calculated that the cost of a muddy day in London is something like $25,000. This is not surprising, says Tit-Bits, when one remembers that no fewer than thirty-two tons of mud are carried about from place to place on the wheels of carts and carriages and horses' hoofs.
After a wet day the dry mud brushed from people's clothing amounts to five tons, and a very similar amount is shaken out of the door mats. City mud, however, has its good points.
The shoeblack increases his earnings
in the muddy weather, and new silk bats and dresses and boots and shoes are each and all the direct outcome of its destructive qualities.

King Edward At Work.

The return of King Edward is always particularly welcome to Lord Knollys, and also to the under secretaries employed by His Majesty, this when on a holiday the King does not care about transacting any but the most pressing business, which means that a great deal of extra work falls
on the shoulders of his secretaries,
and also that a large accumulation of correspondence must be worked off
on His Majesty's return.

At each of the royal residences there is a special office fitted up for the King's use, furnished with one of His Majesty's favorite flat-topped writing tables and Morocco leather arm chairs. The King is generally in this office before ten o'clock, when Lord Knollys arrives, and remains until a little before lunch time, provided, of course, there is no function necessitating his attendance before then.

Over 50,000 letters and documents
have to be dealt with during the year,
and a considerable portion of this huge correspondence requires the personal attention of His Majesty.

While working the King smokes constantly, both while writing himself or dictating to his secretary, and boxes of cigars and cigarettes are always placed ready to hand in his office. The King himself writes rapidly when necessary, using ordinary steel pens, but prefers to dictate his correspondence if possible. At the close of each day's work the contents of all waste-paper baskets, etc., are carefully burned, under the personal supervision of Lord Knollys, as, during the reign of the late Queen, several pieces of important news leaked out through carelessness in this direction.

Scottish Town Sinking.

The inhabitants of Motherwell, Lanarkshire, which is undermined by coal and iron fields, have been alarmed by a number of serious subsidences.

A large two-story building in Wellington street was rent from top to bottom.

The occupants rushed into the street
in the wildest alarm.

Buildings in other parts of the town sank about six inches, and the gas pipes are torn and twisted, involving considerable danger from escaping gas.

The damage is spread over an extensive area, and hundreds of building present a hanging and dangerous aspect. Many of them were new.

A Korean Romance.

A romantic little story comes from the Chuksan district. One of the residents having died of illness, his only wife declared her intention of killing herself. Arguing that it was not right for a woman to remain alive
after her husband was dead and that she would be far happier if she followed him, she put her plan into execution and committed suicide the same night. She was only twenty.

London's trouble is her fog.
Tokyo's trouble is earthquakes. In

The mistral is the trouble of Mar-sellies, an east wind that increases the city's death rate 50 per cent.

Calcutta's trouble is cholera, and the bubonic plague is the trouble of Bombay. Each city pays for her trouble an annual tribute of 9,000 souls.

Bagdad's trouble is the "Bagdad button," a sore that attacks practically every resident and visitor, leaving a button shaped permanent scar.

Madrid's trouble is the solano, a summer wind from the southeast. It is exceedingly hot and is accompanied by blinding, choking clouds of dust, so that notwithstanding a temperature of 105 or 110 degrees all windows must be closed.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

STAY BY IT.

Oh, do not be a quitter.
Whatever you may do,
But stick to anything you start
Like some one's floundering glue,
Determined if the skies don't fall
That you will see it through.

Don't dip into a venture
Until you know the ground,
Have given to all its quirks and turns
A study most profound;
Then, after having started it,
Be sort of hanging round.

The man who starts in bravely,
All loaded up for bear,
Then on the job gets weary
And says he doesn't care,
He simply gets just nowhere
And often not quite there.

It isn't in the holier,
The noisier how I do,
You make at the beginning
That runs the project through.
It's being at the finish
That makes your dream come true.

So do not be a quitter;
There's nothing in the game.
By stopping in the middle Results go up in flame.
Stay with the job, my hearties,
And drag out wealth and fame.

Too Unromantic.

Iowa girls have risen to the occasion.
After rising they sat down hard and emphatically on the proposition to tax bachelors.

It is not that the Iowa girl loves the bachelor that she is so solicitous about the taxes he will have to pay. That may be one reason, but she will not admit it, but she objects to having any man marry her except for herself alone.

She does not propose that trading stamps or any other inducement shall be offered mankind to make him propose. The offer must come uninfluenced by commercial reasons, and then she will accept him or not, just as she chooses.

Those Iowa solons, though married men themselves, do not understand women. If they wish to promote matrimony, the thing for them to do is to pretend to be going the other way—
that is, they should make a law forbidding marriage only under impossible conditions, and there wouldn't be a girl in town who wouldn't elope with the first man who asked her to.

Who Killed Tecumseh?

Interesting Information on The Death of Noble Chief who Fought in Chatham

The following article appeared in a recent issue of the Hamilton Spectator:

To the Editor: I noticed in your issue of Saturday, June 8, a reprint from the London Free Press, headed, "Weird Mystery of Tecumseh," and stating that "in the confusion his body alive or dead disappeared as completely as if engulfed in the sea," etc.

Our Canadian historian, D. B. Read, Q. C., in his Life and Times of General Sir Isaac Brock, says of the death of Tecumseh, page 185,—"Tecumseh fell by the fire of the enemy, like Brock, he fell with his face to the foe, a martyr, as some believe, to neglect and mismanagement on the part of General Proctor. The Indians took charge of the body of their leader and deposited his bones no one knows where, no stone marking his grave; a grateful country will get it is hoped, perpetuate his memory by a suitable monument, erected in the western country, somewhere in the neighborhood of his fall, at the battle of the Thames."

American historians state that Tecumseh fell in combat with Colonel Johnson, of the Kentucky volunteers.

The following clipping from the Buffalo News, 1895, gives the most probable account of the death of the great Indian chief:

WAY TECUMSEH WAS KILLED.

"Richard J. Connor, editor of the Peru Sentinel, died in Indianapolis, July 25. Among his private papers was found a detailed account of Tecumseh's death, signed by John A. Deibert, whose father was captured by the Indians in 1785. In this narrative Mr. Deibert says his father lived in Michigan, then in Ohio, and in 1802 settled in Indiana. When the war of 1812 broke out he joined the forces of Gen. Harrison at Fort Meigs, on the Maumee river, and with his brother acted as guide and interpreter for the American general. Mr. Deibert's story contains the settlement of the long-disputed theory that Col. R. M. Johnson was the slayer of the famous Indian chief, Tecumseh, or Tecumseh, as written or pronounced in his early career. The following is the story: "After the battle, late in the afternoon, he was summoned to the headquarters of Col. R. M. Johnson, who stated to him that the great chief, Tecumseh, was among the slain in the battle, and requested my father to take some of his friends and ascertain the fact, and ascertain if it was indeed true. My father immediately took with him four or five Delaware and began the search, which was successful. When they found the body, some of the Indians were not sure that it was Tecumseh. There was a striking resemblance between the two brothers, Tecumseh and the Prophet, but one of them had a spot or defect on one of his eyes. One of the Delaware stooped down and pushed open the eyelid, and it was at once known that the dead man was indeed Tecumseh.

"During the political campaign of 1840 it was universally asserted by the Democrats that Col. Johnson killed Tecumseh. My father often declared that it could not be, that an old Indian warrior and a camp follower of the expedition to Canada, named Wheatly, was probably Tecumseh's slayer. He was a bitter Indian hater and a crank on that subject. He was not enrolled as a soldier, but went to the battle on his own account. He, too, was killed in the fight. Tecumseh was shot through the breast, and the wound plainly showed that he came to his death from the effects of a shot from a small bore rifle, such as the frontiersmen usually carried. A few feet from the body of Tecumseh was found that of Wheatly, who had been killed in the thickest of the fight, at a point to which he had pressed himself, near where the great chieftain fell."

At the time it was the universal belief with the soldiers who participated in the battle and knew Wheatly, that it was he who did the killing. Col. Johnson led a regiment of Kentucky volunteers, and was mounted and armed only with a sword and large horse pistol. Tecumseh was killed by a squirrel rifle, and not by a horse pistol, and the claim that Johnson killed Tecumseh was not made for many years after the battle. Afterward, in 1840, when Col. Johnson was a candidate for vice-president, he said in a speech at Indianapolis that it had been stated that he shot Tecumseh. He said he did not know; that he had been in the thickest of the fight, and had discharged his pistol at the enemy, but he did not know that any of his shots had taken effect.

I have another newspaper cutting, taken, I think, from the Utica Globe, 1890:

RELICS OF TECUMSEH.

His powder horn and a piece of his skin presented to G. A. R. post.

Huff Post, G. A. R., of Lawrenceburg, Ohio, was recently presented with two relics of the great Indian chief, Tecumseh. The first is his powder horn, which he carried across his shoulders in the famous battle of the Thames in 1813. It was presented to the Post by Henry Morris, of Lawrenceburg. He is a son of William Morris, better known to Ohio Valley pioneers as "Indian Bill," who figured in many savage and bloody encounters. After the great fight, 28 years ago, "Indian Bill" found the body of the slain warrior. The powder horn, still attached to the strings around Tecumseh's neck, lay on his breast. The scout removed it, and preserved it as the most sacred of his relics. At his death, a few years ago, he presented it to his son Henry. The horn was cut from the head of the first buffalo Tecumseh killed. He carefully scraped and polished it, and displayed a great deal of skill and ingenuity in fitting a bottom to it and shaping the mouth. The entire surface of the receptacle is covered with Indian characters and legends.

Mr. Morris presented another and more sorry and ghastly trophy of the famous battle. It is a strip of skin cut from the middle of Tecumseh's back. The old settlers felt about the same savage satisfaction in cutting up and mutilating the bodies of their slain red foes, as the Indians did in scalping. After taking the horn off Tecumseh's body, old "Indian Bill" turned the chieftain on his face and with his knife cut a strip of skin several inches wide off the warrior's back down the entire length. This strip was "cur-d," or for the remainder of Bill's life service as a razor stop.

These two newspaper clippings show that the body of Tecumseh was found after the battle by the Americans late in the afternoon. The first is, no doubt, the true account of the manner Tecumseh's death, that is, he was shot at some distance by a small bore rifle, probably that of old Wheatly, the frontiersman camp-follower.

The second clipping about the powder horn and razor stop may have some truth in it; and it might be worth while if some of our historical societies would take the matter up and correspond with Huff Post, G. A. R., of Lawrenceburg, Ohio, and ascertain if such relics are really in their possession.

As to the disappearance of the body, it is reasonable to suggest that the Delaware (having known Tecumseh well enough to identify the body for Colonel Johnson), would greatly secure the corpse of so great a chief and hide it away, safe from any further indignities at the hands of the half-savage white scouts and frontiersmen, who accompanied the American troops.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for so much valuable space in your great family journal.

Yours sincerely,

E. D. MARSHALL.

JUMPING WITH NERVE PAIN.

That's how you feel with neuralgia. But why lie awake at night, grumble or complain—get busy with a bottle of Nervine. It does act like magic, seeks out the pain and destroys it. Harmless and certain, instant in effect, nothing is so popular as Nervine for the relief of all kinds. Try it for lumbago, test it in rheumatism, prove it in neuralgia, pluriar or colds. You'll soon acknowledge that Poison's Nervine beats them all. Sold everywhere in large 25c. bottles.

GREAT ENGINEERING VENTURE.

Immense Bridge Now Being Built Over St. Lawrence.

Very few Canadians are aware of the tremendous character of the operations which are now being carried out in the construction of the gigantic cantilever bridge over the St. Lawrence river, some six and a half miles west of Quebec City.

This bridge—in some respects the most remarkable in the world—will have a total length of 3,300 feet. In addition to the sub-structure of a couple of main piers, the bridge will consist of two 500-foot side spans, extending from the anchor piers to the main piers of the towers; two 562 1/2-foot cantilever arms, reaching out over the river, and carrying between them a central suspended span measuring 675 feet between centres of end piers. This span is one of the most striking features of the bridge, and illustrates well its huge proportions, for it is longer than any simple pin-connected truss span that has ever been erected. Ordinarily, such a span would be supported on masonry towers, and it would form, say, the main channel span of some river crossing; but in this case its abutments are the end piers of two giant arms, each reaching out over half the length of the bridge, and supporting it from its point of support.

The Cantilever Arms.

The cantilever arms and the central span together form a channel span of 1,800 feet in length, and thus furnish the world's record for maximum span of all existing bridges in general, and for the cantilever type in particular. The main spans of the Forth Bridge—hitherto the giant amongst bridge structures—are 1,700 feet long, and 90 feet shorter than the span of the Quebec bridge. As, however, the Forth Bridge has two spans of the great dimension stated, it is well to remember that it will be 2,030 feet longer from end to end than its Canadian rival.

Its Historic Situation

The bold promontory which called forth the astonished shout of "Quebec" from the early French navigators and gave name to the picturesque fortress city of after times, continues to delineate the north bank of the St. Lawrence for many miles by a steep cliff, 150 feet to 220 feet high.

On the opposite shore the heights of Lévis form a similarly abrupt boundary to the river waters. Since the navigation interests required the bridge to be at least 150 feet above high tide, the feature of the topography made it possible to avoid high and long approaches. At this point the St. Lawrence is 1,300 feet wide, and 2,500 feet at extreme high tide, the usual tidal range being 14 feet, and the extreme range reaching 20 feet. The maximum depth of water in the channel is 130 feet, but the river shallows rapidly to a depth of 10 feet at the river piers, yet even at low tide. As before stated, the underside of the channel span is 150 feet above high water of the St. Lawrence river, and the depth of the cantilever trusses over the main piers is 350 feet.

Its Immense Height.

The total height from low water level to the highest point of the cantilevers is 414 feet. The bridge will be formed entirely of rolled steel girders, not a single casting being used anywhere in it, and it will rank as far away and away the most massive trussed structure yet erected for any purpose. The importance of the bridge will be gathered from the fact that the St. Lawrence is at present unspanned until Montreal is reached, and below the city of Quebec the bridging of the river is impossible, as soon after leaving Quebec the St. Lawrence opens out into a wide channel, which at the mouth of the Saguenay river is 25 miles wide, and at its entrance into the Gulf of St. Lawrence it increases to 100 miles.

As the St. Lawrence is navigable for ships of the line as far as Quebec, the "Gibraltar of the West" ranks as one of the three great distributing centres to Britain and the United States of the produce of the Dominion.

The completion of the Quebec bridge is destined to immensely improve communication between Canada and the United States, as it will accommodate two steam railway tracks, two electric tramcar routes, two highways, and two side walks, and link up various routes on both sides of the water. The undertaking, which will involve an outlay approximating upon $500,000, will not be completed for some two or three years.

DARROW'S STRONG PLEA

Denounced Mine Owners in Last Word For Haywood.

Predicts That Labor Movement Will Live Despite Capital's Antagonism—Steuernberg's Actions Declared Unjustifiable—Jack Simpkins' Flight Explained—Tirade Against Orchard—Defence of Workmen.

Boise, Idaho, July 26.—In resuming his address to the Haywood jury yesterday, Clarence Darrow, who is having the last word for the defendant, took up a defence of Jack Simpkins' flight after the arrest of Orchard. Mr. Darrow was very hoarse, the result of his five hours and forty minutes of speaking on Wednesday, and he spoke yesterday only with the greatest effort.

"They say why Jack Simpkins is not here," said Mr. Darrow, "and I will tell you. The reason he is not here is that he is afraid to be here. Hawley tells you that Simpkins' flight proves that he is guilty. If the fact that Jack Simpkins ran away proves he is guilty, then by the same token the fact that Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone did not run away proves that they are innocent."

"I don't know whether Jack Simpkins is guilty or not. Simpkins had reason to harbor hatred against Steuereberg. Orchard might, either rightly or wrongly, harbor hatred against Steuereberg. Simpkins and Orchard had been together in Spokane for a month before they went to Caldwell. If Jack Simpkins went to Caldwell for the purpose of aiding the labor movement, he was doing it, he went away without doing it. He did not raise a hand against Steuereberg."

The Labor Movement.

In a burst of oratory Mr. Darrow said presently: "You men of the prosecution, you men of the Mine Owners' Association, you men who are seeking the life of Bill Haywood, not because he is Haywood, but because he represents a class, don't be so shortsighted, so foolish as to believe that you will strangle the Western Federation of Miners when you tie a rope around Bill Haywood's neck; don't be so blind as to believe that when you make fresh new graves here in Idaho that you have killed the labor movement in this world. When Bill Haywood is gone, millions of other willing hands will carry on his work to victory in the end."

Quitting his tirade against Orchard and McPartland, Mr. Darrow began to discuss some of the evidence in the case, taking up the troubles in the coal mines of Idaho in 1899.

He declared Governor Steuereberg sowed the seeds of more strife than was ever sown by the governor of any state to the present time. "There was no justification for it," he exclaimed. "There is not a man living who can defend it."

Darrow denounced the state's attorneys for allowing William Dewey, who testified that he took part in the mob's attack on the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine, to return to Colorado unhindered after confessing to murder on the witness stand.

When Mr. Darrow reached the Colorado labor troubles he grew eloquent in his denunciation of capital and his defence of workmen.

Clarence Darrow, after speaking for eleven hours, concluded the final plea for Haywood's life at 4:30 p.m., and left the court at 7 o'clock last evening. United States Senator Borah opened the closing argument for the prosecution. He will speak for three sessions, or about seven hours. Judge Fremont Wood will instruct and charge the jury on Saturday morning.

Jap Toasts Roosevelt.

Paris, July 26.—Because of the conclusion of the recent Franco-Japanese entente the official entertainment of Vice-Admiral Sir George Ijima and the other Japanese officers who arrived in this city from Brest yesterday morning is to be one on a somewhat elaborate scale than that which was accorded to the American naval officers last week.

At Brest, in the course of the dinner given by Rear-Admiral Stockton on the American cruiser Washington Wednesday night, Admiral Stockton proposed the health of the Emperor of Japan and of the Japanese navy. In reply, Captain Takanouchi toasted President Roosevelt and the American navy.

Insists Upon Execution.

Paris, July 26.—There is a great and increasing popular clamor for the carrying out of the death sentence imposed last Tuesday upon a man named Soleant for the murder of a little girl under particularly atrocious circumstances, especially as it has been discovered that the Chamber of Deputies has passed an appropriation of $5,300 for public executions.

French-Canadian Treaty.

London, July 26.—The Paris Figaro says that the negotiations connected with the French-Canadian commercial treaty are in an advanced stage.

The treaty ensures advantages to French cod fishers off the coasts of Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, while on the other hand, Canadian products imported into France will be subject to a special treaty.

Woman Falls Two Storeys.

Quebec, July 26.—Mrs. Michael McNeil of Havelock is lying in the Hotel Dieu Hospital in a serious condition. She fell from a two-storey window, and was picked up in a semi-conscious condition, suffering from a fractured limb and serious injuries to her head.

Cheesemen Must Work.

Kingston, July 26.—The Whitney Government gave the cheesemakers permission to work till five o'clock on Sunday morning for this year only, but the cheese board here intend trying to get permission to do so all along.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and salivary complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

DUKE AS COMMANDER.

Impending Changes in Military Administration At Headquarters.

There are very good reasons for believing that the authorities are contemplating at the present moment the removal of the office of Commander-in-Chief of the Army, and the appointment to this position of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught when he retires in May next from his present position of Inspector-General of the Forces and President of the Royal Highness might occupy when he is now understood that the Duke is very averse to accepting this position, which would mean his continued absence from England, and under the circumstances, the military authorities have had to cast about them for some other officer to be selected as his successor.

Should the office of Commander-in-Chief be really revived, it would be found that the duties and responsibilities of the position had been considerably modified, and, to a certain extent at all events, the holder of this position would be under the direct control of the Army Council, whose powers it is not proposed to weaken in any particular.

CORNISH JESTER DEAD.

Eccentric Who Amused King Edward With Curious Letter.

John Burton, the proprietor of a noted curiosity shop at Falmouth, who has entertained kings and statesmen with his drollery, died recently. Lord Rosebery once remarked that Burton was the greatest curiosity in the shop.

When King Edward visited Falmouth he asked Burton to send him a selection of articles, but the proprietor of the curiosity shop declined in the following letter:

Respected Albert Edward—I much regret to find you are indisposed. If I were to bring a wagon-load of samples it would be utterly impossible to convey the remotest idea of my ponderous conglomeration of curios, but if I could possibly prevail upon your Majesty to go through my shanty, I would give you local wit and humor that would throw you into such a state of laughter as would probably counteract your cold—Yours until we meet in the next hotel, John Burton.

The King laughed heartily on reading the letter, and subsequently made purchases from Burton by commission.

Burton started as a hawker of crockery, and died a wealthy man. He tried on one occasion to purchase Smolken's lighthouse at Edystone, when that structure was about to be taken down to make way for the new lighthouse. On another occasion he made an offer for the fire escape which figured in the Parnell-O'Shea episode.

Warrant For the Speaker.

Detroit, Mich., July 26.—Presenting Attorney Robinson announced yesterday, at the inquest into the death from an operation at a local sanitarium, of Miss Edith Presley, professor for the state senate, that he will issue a warrant as soon as it can be prepared for Representative Charles E. Ward, Speaker pro-tem of the House of Representatives, charging him with manslaughter in connection with the girl's death. A warrant had previously been issued for Dr. George A. Fritch of this city.

Painters Elect Officers.

London, July 26.—The painters of Canada concluded their convention yesterday afternoon and officers for the year were elected as follows: President, H. E. Reynolds, Guelph; vice-president, Ald. Richard Booth, London; secretary-treasurer, Alex. Mackenzie, Hamilton. The delegates to the international convention are Messrs. Reynolds, Booth and Mackenzie.

The Virginian's Record.

Montreal, July 6.—The R.M.S. turbine steamer Virginian arrived and landed mails at Rimouski at 2:37 p.m. yesterday.

The time from Liverpool was five days, 19 hours, 37 minutes. This is an Allan Line record.

The new Allan Line steamer, Gramplan, was launched at Glasgow yesterday.

C. N. Railway Stock.

Montreal, July 26.—It was stated in financial circles yesterday that the common stock of the Canadian Northern Railway Company amounting to $40,000,000, will be placed on the market at a very early date or whenever the different stock exchanges of the world are in a better condition to absorb new issues.

THE MOVEMENT GROWS

Universal Two-Cent Rate Discussed by Officials.

Agitation Has Aroused Much Interest and Some Ill-Feeling—Wall Street Is Watching—Views of Management to Be Obtained at Future Conference—The Excursion Question—N.Y.C.'s Position.

New York, July 26.—Representatives of five eastern railroads met in the offices of F. D. Underwood, president of the Erie, and discussed the advisability of a universal two-cent passenger rate.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Underwood announced publicly that the subject under discussion had been that of fall excursion rates in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, where two-cent fare bills have been passed. It had been suggested that, in view of the legislative action in reducing fares, the railroads do away with the customary cheap fall excursions. It is said that, whereas the cutting off of excursion rates had been expected to result in profit, it had been found it would produce loss, in the case of one road amounting to as much as $20,000 a month. It was decided to continue the fall excursions in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio on the same plan on which they have been run for many years.

Mr. Underwood objected to a statement published that a universal two-cent fare would be discussed.

Expressions of opinion on the subject were sought at the meeting. Invitations to participate in such a conference had been sent out by Mr. Underwood, but the Erie's president considered by the Erie's president that he sought to bring into the conference no railroad officers below the rank of senior vice-president. All the eastern roads were asked to participate.

After the discussion of Wednesday it was decided to carry on the conference by correspondence and otherwise until the time was ripe for definite action. It is likely the campaign, with Mr. Underwood in charge, will consume two or three weeks or perhaps more before another personal conference is held.

Among railroad men the agitation for a universal two-cent fare has aroused much interest and some ill-feeling. It was predicted that the consequence of the movement might be the changing of the eastern railroad map, or at least a change of the personnel of at least one road's list of officers.

In Wall street the movement is being watched, and the final result will be looked for with considerable interest. It was freely admitted that such an agitation was in progress. One man said the Pennsylvania's position in the plan is based on the plea that a two-cent rate would be confiscatory so far as that road is concerned.

The New York Central's position in the meeting was one of neutrality, as the charter rate of that road is two cents anyway and it has little to lose or to gain. W. C. Brown, senior vice-president, had been asked to represent that road, but was in Chicago and could not attend. Chas. F. Daly, vice-president, and Warren J. Lynch, traffic manager, represented the system. Mr. Underwood and George W. Cooke, traffic manager, appeared for the Erie. Others in attendance were: Joseph Wood, vice-president in charge west of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania road; George F. Randolph, vice-president, Baltimore and Ohio; D. O. Ives, traffic manager, Wash.

In the conference it was agreed that only that part of the discussion touching the excursion question in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio be given to the public. No date was set for another meeting. The work of bringing the universal two-cent rate question to a head will be taken up immediately by letter and another meeting called when responses are received which set forth with more definiteness the views of the managements.

Warrant For the Speaker.

Detroit, Mich., July 26.—Presenting Attorney Robinson announced yesterday, at the inquest into the death from an operation at a local sanitarium, of Miss Edith Presley, professor for the state senate, that he will issue a warrant as soon as it can be prepared for Representative Charles E. Ward, Speaker pro-tem of the House of Representatives, charging him with manslaughter in connection with the girl's death. A warrant had previously been issued for Dr. George A. Fritch of this city.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1907, by Frederick Diver, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 21.—In this sermon the preacher draws a lesson of universal interest from the life and death of Francis Murphy, the famous temperance evangelist. The text is 1st Timothy iv, 7, "I have fought a good fight."

Even under the brightest and happiest conditions it is a sad sight to see a great man unbuckle his armor and lay down the battleaxe he has wielded in the front of life's struggles. When John Adams was about to be inaugurated President of the United States the assembled multitude had no cheer and vociferations
for the new chief. Their thoughts were with the retiring leader. There were sobs and aching hearts for him who was to lay down the tasks of public life after forty-five years consecrated to his country's service. All eyes were focused upon the tall, commanding figure of him who would thenceforth be known as "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen." When John Adams lifted his hand over the sacred book and took the oath of office George Washington slowly turned to go into the house and efface himself from public notice. The people followed him with moistened eyes and tear stained cheeks. A great mourning went over the assembled hosts,
like the murmuring of many waters.
He turned in the doorway and looked back a moment and then waved a distinct farewell. And all up and down the lines went the valedictory: "God bless him! God bless him! God bless him!"

When Andrew Jackson handed over the reins of Government to Martin Van Buren and started home, his journey to his beloved Hermitage was like a long funeral procession. The people came out from the towns and villages and cities to greet him. Everyone wanted a last look at the face of their late ruler. With his white hair, bald, lithe form and stern features,
he towered above the people who crowded around him. But wherever he looked he saw only men and women who were regretting the day that this nagacious American was no longer to lead them in the councils of peace and of war.

When William E. Gladstone, after half a century in the service of his country, resigned and passed out of the House of Commons
for the last time, all the members arose and uncovered. Those men, no matter to what political party they belonged, knew that a political genius and one of the most sagacious
statesmen the British Empire had ever produced was about to leave the public arena and pass the Indian summer of his earthly life in retirement.
His party knew that there was no one to fill his place and they lamented
his going.

After a great leader of men has been working for the good of his fellow countrymen for twenty or thirty or forty years the world may regret to lose his services, but it has to bow to the inevitable and recognize the rights of the tired worker to rest.
"Not No!" says the world, "though
we may grieve much to see our honored leaders fall out from their places,
they have earned their rest and they have a right to peace." So we look upon the Mount Vernons and the Harmilies and the Howards as the shadows and harbors of life, where tired men can rest and be at peace with those who love them and whom they love.

Now, the true Christian looks upon death as a going home to receive his eternal reward. When Paul said: "I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness," he meant simply this: "Friends, for years I have been engaged in an exhausting struggle. I am physically worn out. I am looking for the reward Christ promised. Let me go and be at peace with Christ, which is far better. So we have a right to look upon death to-day as ascending to a throne of home. It is going to one of the mansions of heaven which Christ has prepared for those that love him."

I was never more impressed with this fact than when I sat by the bedside of the modern apostle of temperance, Francis Murphy. He was one of the great temperance leaders of this country. We mourned his failing strength. His work seemed to be so important. It did seem as though we could not give him up;
but, as the time came for his departure, I visited him and prayed with him. Then after I had finished, with this weak voice he continued my prayer
as follows: "O God, I thank thee that I have not an enemy in all the world. I thank thee that thou could not fill with good people. If it be thy will, let me go back to my work,
but if not, I have so many dear ones
on the other side, take me to them and to thy glory." Yes, Francis Murphy, we know what was in your heart.
Lying upon your sickbed, you could see the dear departed friends coming out to greet you. You could hear the heavenly chorus chanting a welcome
for your celestial advent. Your death was not to be an obliteration. It was to be an ascension. Hail, thou ascended spirit! We today rejoice with thee in thy heavenly rapture. Hail,
O thou enthroned warrior! Hail!

When Stonewall Jackson, the chi-valrous Philip Sidney of the Confederate army, was dying, shot by the bullets of his own men at Chancellors-

ville, he had a beautiful vision of heaven. He saw a smooth flowing river where he could maintain his parched and fevered lips. He saw his loved ones on the opposite bank waving to him in salutation. And in rapture he raised himself and cried out, "Let us pass over to the other side and rest
under the shadows of the trees," and then fell back dead. So Francis Murphy, during his last days of earth,
caught a glimpse of the trees of life
growing by that river which is clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. He wanted to go over and rest. He said:
"There are so many dear ones beyond. O God, if it be thy will, take me to them and to thy glory." Yes, to-day thy prayer is answered. Thou art with thy departed kindred and friends. Thou wilt stay with them until the time comes for us to depart,
and then thou wilt come forth and greet us, as they came to greet thee.

Now, to-day I am not going to preach a funeral sermon. I am not going to sound a dirge or ring a death knell. But I am going to strike up a halleluiah chorus. If the cold lips of our loved friend could speak, I know
he would have me do as I am doing.
There was not a minor key in all his music. And so to-day, instead of talking about how bad we feel at his going, I am going to try to analyze the power of this one of the greatest temperance workers of our time, so that we may be encouraged in our work for the same Master and be stimulated to more vigorous effort by the example of this strenuous leader.

In the first place, I would place my finger upon the greatest source of Francis Murphy's power and tell you that the chief reason why this successful temperance worker won so many trophies for the abstinence cause was because he believed in the nobility of man. He believed that, no matter how flagrant the sins of the social outcast, no matter how low or vile a human being had become, deep down in that human heart were some remains of the image of God. Murphy never despised of any human being, however drunken or degraded
he might be. Here was a man—one of the race Christ came to save—and he believed that Christ could save him. The degrading obstacle of his third or fourth or fifth or sixth or therefore Murphy tried to remove that, so that the power and influence of Christ could reach the poor, helpless creature.

It does not require very much genius to find flaws in a man's nature.
It does not require wonderful erudition to magnify the faults of mankind. Any herd of swine can root out a flower garden, if it is possible for them to squeeze through a gap in the fence. It does not take much of a frost to kill all the fair apple blossoms in the springtime; neither does it take much labor to develop a field of Canada thistles in the place where wheat and corn and barley ought to grow. But it does take the genius of a horticulturist to find latent buds and develop them. It does take artistic skill to put the right kind of fertilizer on the ground after the spring plowing. And it does take the marvelous grace of God to find the latent buds of purity and truth and love and honor in the corrupt heart of the sinner and to develop them arright for God. And this is always the work of a successful evangelist of Christ.
This was the secret of Murphy's success. He believed in Christ and he believed in men.

Parallel to this same line of thought was another fact which inspired Francis Murphy to seek the most depraved of men. He knew that the victim of the intoxicating cup was in many cases a man worth saving.
The very characteristics of the man that had led to his degradation—his geniality, his good fellowship, his friendliness—were the characteristics
that would make him a successful worker if he was delivered from his thralldom. The intensity and zeal that made Saul a persecutor were traits
which made him a successful apostle
when he was converted. And Francis Murphy had arrived at this belief by looking at the history of his own life.
Have you ever heard him describe the tragedy of his wrecked home? When the civil war broke out, he, like other Irishmen, was eager to take part in
it. At the bugle call to arms he shouldered the musket and went to the front. He was not struck by the enemy's bullets, but, like Alexander the Great, he was overthrown by the weight of the camp.

Then after the war was ended in order to make a living for his little family he took charge of a hotel in Maine. In other words, the devil knew the man's weakness and led him into the occupation that would develop it. He put a whisky bottle in his hand and said to him: "Drink until your manhood is gone. Drink until you come home to your wife and babies with the fierce passion of a brute. Drink until the vilest sot in the city is no viler than you." And with that strong personality of his,
he never did anything halfway. He drank until he went down, down,
down into the lowest depths of degradation. When the change came and Murphy "came to himself" like the prodigal he could not forget the pit from which he had been lifted.
As he looked on the sordid, depraved wretches who were brought to his meetings he saw in them the Murphy
of the gutter and said to himself:
"The power that delivered me can deliver even this poor creature," and he went to work with confidence for the man's reformation. Would to God that some of the men whom he was instrumental in saving might take up his work and that men might have ready to say: "The power of Elijah doth rest on Elijah."

But there was another fact about his wonderful life that has made Francis Murphy one of the greatest temperance advocates of his time. He not only believed in man, but he was ready to thank God for all the divine blessings with which he was surrounded. His whole life after his conversion and consecration to the divine Master was a continual service of praise. He always commenced his public services with the coronation hymn, and he always closed with the doxology of "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." Wherever you met him, on the street, or in the home, or in the church, or anywhere, the two words which were most often upon his lips were: "Thank God! Thank God!

Thank God!" Sometimes, like a bashful boy, he would slip into my meetings hoping that I should not see him. He seemed to long sometimes to worship in the audience and not be called to the pulpit. He would come in quietly and stay hidden until some word of Scripture or of prayer touched him. Then, before he knew it, a
"Thank God!" would be ringing from his church pew. Then every one would smile and say: "That's Francis Murphy," because no one could ever say
"Thank God" just as Francis Murphy
did. During all his last sickness, in his delirium, he would keep rubbing
his hands and with a sweet smile
keep murmuring: "Thank God!" Why, do you know, I have heard him say:
"Thank God" so much that I believe he has got me into the same glorious habit of thanking God for everything.
And whereas I used to count my troubles and thank men one by one,
now, under the influence of that ascended spirit, I have begun to count my blessings. And as my blessings are crowding me in multitudinous numbers, I am saying, "Thank God."

But, leaving aside these personal incidents, we would take a step forward and analyze the direct cause of his work as a temperance reformer. How did Francis Murphy win thousands and tens of thousands to the better life? Through continually, emphatic-ly and overwhelmingly driving home
to the sinful heart man's direct responsibility to God. He was saying:
"Christ came to save you. Christ will save you. Christ will save you now.
By his help will you come forward and sign the pledge and make a covenant with Christ." He did not bother much about prohibitive laws. He did not work much through legislative halls. But he tried to bring the sinful heart of man in close touch with a loving and a forgiving Saviour.

Now, we have been hearing a great deal about the temperance work of this day. We have heard about the prohibition movement and the anti-saloon movement and the women's temperance organizations, and they are all good. No one wished all these different movements goodspeed more than did Francis Murphy. But, though Francis Murphy was in sympathy with any movement that would help stop the liquor evil, he put the chief emphasis of his labors upon bringing the individual man in touch with Christ and saving him as an individual and not in the bulk. And Francis Murphy was right. This world will never be saved from the curse of intoxicating drink through the legislative halls of our state and national capitals; if it is to be saved at all, it must be saved by the saving power of Christ and the influence of the pledge.
Do you suppose you could make this a Christian nation merely by passing strict Sabbath laws or by building
new churches on every street corner?

No. Temperance laws are right in themselves. But after all, the mightiest work of the temperance reformers
of the future is to do what John B.
Gough did and Jerry McAuley did and Samuel Hadley did and Francis Murphy did, and that is to bring sinful men by the old-fashioned pledge in touch with the saving grace of our Lord Jesus Christ.

But there is one more thought that forces itself upon us. Francis Murphy became the successful temperance reformer he was because no sooner did he win a convert and get a man to sign the pledge than at once he got that man on his feet and brought him to the platform and made him go to work and save other drunkards. No sooner did Francis Murphy get a Gospel grip upon a man than at once he pulled him upon his feet and made him go to work for temperance. My brother, can we not to-day learn that divine lesson? Can we not learn that we are developing spiritually not more by what Christ does for us than by what we are willing to do for Christ?

How many of those whom Francis Murphy brought to Christ must have been on the other side to greet him!
Perhaps that welcome is best pictured in a dream which his daughter had
the night when he was about to depart. She dreamed she was looking up into the heavens. It was a beautiful, clear night and the twinkling stars seemed to be everywhere. Every star seemed to her to represent the shining face of some immortal whom her father had won to Christ. Oh, there were thousands and tens of thousands of these smiling faces! And right in the centre of all she saw her father's face. It was lighted up with the sweetest of smiles. And there he was, surrounded by a constellation of shining faces, each one a star in his crown.

Have we met here simply to say a few pleasant words about our departed loved one? Nay, if I might not seem irreverent I would say that we should feel in this service as the disciples of old must have felt when they were in the upper chamber in Jerusalem awaiting the coming of the Holy Spirit after the ascension of Christ from Mount Olivet. They were not there to mourn their departed Master.
They were there to get inspiration for their work. So it should be with us, when any successful worker drops
out of the ranks. His labor is finished, but the work is not completed. Who will take it up and carry it forward?
May we consecrate our lives to the great temperance work as never before. May we say, "God helping me, I will live for the purpose of saving men clear down in the mire of sin, as I have never done before." Do you say that? Then, my friends, I think the spirit of Francis Murphy is descending upon us.

Australia's Wealth in Sheep.
The greatest industry of Australia
is sheep-raising, mainly for the sale of the wool, but also in part, of course, for the meat. Australia now ranks second among the great sheep-raising countries. Argentina being first with 92,000,000 sheep, Australia being second with 72,000,000, and Russia
third with 70,000,000. But a few years ago Australia was first, possessing no less than 106,260,000 head of sheep.
That was in 1891. Prolonged droughts were the cause of the destruction of many millions of Australian sheep,
but since 1902 there has been an enormous gain. Yet these sheep were not indigenous to Australia. They were first introduced in 1797, being of the Spanish merino species.

BLACK, ITCHING SPOT ON FACE

Suffering Promptly Allayed and

DREADFUL DISEASE CURED BY CUTICURA

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black spots all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused a great deal of annoyance and suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of . . . After a thorough examination of the disease complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in its worst form. They treated me for the same for the length of one year, but the treatment did me
no good. Finally I became despondent and decided to discontinue their services. Shortly afterwards, my husband in reading a copy of a weekly New York paper saw an advertisement of the Cuticure Remedies. He purchased the entire outfit, and after using the contents of the first bottle of Cuticure Resolvent
in connection with the Cuticure Soap and Ointment, the itching and pain were stopped. I continued the use of the Cuticure Remedies for six months, and after that every spot was entirely gone and the skin was left as clear as ever. I have not felt a symptom of the eczema since, which was three years ago. The Cuticure Resolves not only cured me of this dreadful disease, eczema, but of other complicated troubles as well, and I have been the means of others being cured of the same disease by the Cuticure Remedies. I don't hesitate in saying that Cuticure Resolvent is the best blood medicine that this world has ever known. Mrs.

A WHISTLER STORY.

The Eagle That Was Made to Pose as a Fighting Cock.

Apocryphal of something Whistler once told a cockfight story so vividly that only a man with a sailor instinct could tell it as well, mimic it so keenly and enjoy it so thoroughly. It was a story of a strange species of the American cock, pictured to the smallest detail so beautifully that one forgot that it was a story.

Some American sailors were at a cockfight in a seaport town in England when one of them remarked to the owner of the champion:

"We have got an American cock on board that can whip any bird here."
"Go fetch 'im on," said the champion.
"Chuck 'im in and see. If 'e licks one bird we 'ave plenty more to throw in that can lick any blawsted Hamercan bird you can fetch 'ere."

"All right. We'll bring one," said the sailors. When they got aboard they rigged up an American eagle. After their own manner, they painted, trimmed, spiced and reared fore and aft, transforming the eagle to a cock. When ready they went ashore and put their new American gamecock against all England.

At the pit the sailors chuckled in their cock, which looked around for other surprises as he backed close to the wall.

"Now, bring on your birds!" yelled the sailors. A strutting cock was thrown into the pit and was another surprise to the poor dismantled eagle.
He backed up closer and closer to the wall, wondering what would happen
next. The cock walked three times majestically around the circle, cuffing
at his strange opponent, the eagle pittably abashed and bedrubbled, crouching lower and lower and looking around and above him for an explanation of what it all meant, while the crowd were yelling madly for the English fighter. The eagle made himself smaller and smaller, but at last finding that he could get back no further and thinking that something was expected of him, and, as the cock dashed at him again, stretched out his long claws and took his opponent by the neck.

Here Whistler ended with an imitation by motions of what the eagle did.
He stretched out his arm, shaped his hand like a claw, which by this time looked like a real one, drew it to his mouth and with one bite pulled off
the head as he thought an eagle might do it. Then he looked blandly about the room, as the eagle had done, at the astonished crowd and said, "Now bring on your other birds."—Otto Bacher in

A Dainty Little Hat From Gay Paris
For the Summer Girl.

This jaunty little chapeau of natural colored straw has a very high crown
and narrow, slightly drooping brim
Around the crown is draped brown malines, which is almost concealed by

GOLDEN WHEAT AND BLUE RIBBON,
the sheaf of wheat which surrounds it.
The wheat is in gold and brown, with green leaves, and the stems are caught together with a large bow of soft pale blue ribbon. Another bunch of the wheat is fastened underneath the brim
at the back and hangs down over the hat. The picture of this hat is reproduced from Dress, the artistic fashion magazine.

VINES FOR THE PIAZZA.

Cinnamon, Akabia and Hops Are Favorite Varieties.

Cinnamon vines, with their bright green leaves and spiky blossoms, are a nice thing to mix in with other vines around the house. They endure summer heat very well. The cinnamon vine grows rapidly, and the leaves are glossy and heart shaped. Buy the roots. The name is Dioscorea batatas.
Akabia vine grows well in the mountain regions of the country. It has pretty, small flowers of dark green and fragrant foliage of a violet brown or purple.

Hops are a tough and yet attractive vine. One kind has bright golden yellow foliage. Who that was brought up where Irish servants made the bread does not recall the smell of boiling hops for potato roasts? Now bread mostly comes from the bakery, and the bakers forget even the salt. Fragrant bread made from hops and potato yeast is a thing of the past. We do not have time nowadays. Hop vines
may be grown over any rear building, kitchen porch or trellis and are not troublesome.

Peace Pillow.
On exhibition in a prominent shop in New York is the original of the accompanying illustration, styled "The international peace pillow." The value has been placed at $10,000, the distinctive feature of the decoration being the autographic inscriptions of celebrities in this and foreign countries. President Roosevelt's signature being conspicuous. The linen upon which the autographs are written is a portion of a sheet which was used by Napoleon

before he was banished to St. Helena.
The pillow is fashioned from satin in the colors and design of the national flag. The proceeds from the sale of the pillow will be used to establish a home for young working women on small salaries.

Breakfast on One Burner.
A particularly convenient contrivance
for housekeepers who get their breakfast over one burner stoves is a little toaster which costs 25 cents and holds on its sides four slices of bread.

On top of the invention a pot of coffee can be made or eggs cooked, and it may be stated that an excellent imitation of the poached egg of the chef
may be had by boiling an egg soft,
breaking it on top of a well-buttered piece of toast slightly softened by hot water and sprinkling pepper, salt and tiny bits of butter over the egg, says Gas Logic. It does not look just like a poached egg, but tastes just the same and is far less troublesome.

Care of Brooms.
Brooms dipped for a few minutes in boiling suds once a week will last much longer than they otherwise would.

They should immediately afterward
be plunged into cold water to stiffen
the straw. This weekly bath is an excellent thing, for it so thoroughly
cleans this dust gathering implement.
If a housekeeper will take the trouble occasionally to clip the edges of the straws the cleansing powers will be improved. This is because constant use sharpens the ends, and they do not gather the dust as well as when square, their first condition.

SUNSHINE FURNACE

EASY MATTER TO REMOVE GRATES

If necessity requires, it is an easy matter to remove the grates from the Sunshine.

Just loosen the cotter pin (see the top arrow pointing at it) and the grates on the right can be lifted out. Repeat the operation on the left, and you can do the same with the remaining grates.

Could any operation be easier or simpler?

These four grates are made of heavy cast-iron with the strongest kind of bull dog teeth. Heavy and strong enough to grind up the biggest clinker into particles small enough to sift through the narrow openings between the teeth.

What's left in the ash-pan is not worth sifting.

shine," write direct to us for FREE BOOKLET.

Come and Hear The Unrivalled Nordheimer Tone

A cordial invitation is extended to you to come in and hear the unrivalled tone of the celebrated "NORDHEIMER" Piano.

Run your fingers over the scale or play a selection and listen to the beauty of the "NORDHEIMER" tone.

Piano salesmen may talk about the various mechanica contrivances of a piano until they are "Blue in the face," but all the talk in the world will not alter the tone-quality of a piano.

It is not necessary to take a "NORDHEIMER" piano to pieces and go into ecstasies over its wonderful mechanical features to prove that it possesses an unrivalled tone. It is there in reality. Your own ear tells you it is there—a tone so sweet and sympathetic, so clear and pure, and so rich and powerful—a tone that is of such rare beauty and quality that it hits "NORDHEIMER" pianos above the commonplace and places them on a pinnacle of perfection in the musical world.

In after years you will congratulate yourself on the wisdom of your choice if the piano you buy happens to be a peerless
"NORDHEIMER."

The One Price System assures a safe, satisfactory and square deal to you. Same price to all, and easy terms if you so desire.

Our Mr. R. V. Carter will visit Chatham frequently in our interests and will be pleased to furnish you with any information you may desire. Correspondence addressed to him in care of the Garner House will receive careful attention.

Cheese—Easy feeling, but unchanged; receipts, 100.
Eggs—Steady, unchanged; receipts, 15c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Cattle Are Much Easier at New York.
LONDON, July 26.—Liverpool and London cables are firmer at 12c to 13c per lb. dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 15c to 16c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, July 26.—Receipts of live stock at the city market, as reported by the railways, were 114 carloads, composed of 1904 cattle, 1777 hogs, 2007 sheep and lambs, with about 300 calves.

Exporters.

Few exporters were offered, and those reported sold around 10c to 12c per cwt. But dealers stated that had there been cattle of good enough quality they would have brought 10c per cwt. Export bulls sold at 10c to 12c per cwt.

Butchers.

Cattle picked up at 10c to 12c per lb. loads of good at 10c to 12c per lb. fair to good at 8c to 10c per lb. medium and good cows 7c to 8c per lb. common cows 6c to 7c per lb.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. Murry reports large receipts of stockers this week, chiefly originating from 50 to 80 pounds, and of an inferior quality. These kind sold at low prices, but will go considerably lower yet. The good feeders, 80 pounds up, were not too much in evidence, and they didn't decline so much in price. The shippers will do well to use great caution in their selection of stockers, as the common and medium light stockers will be hard to sell. Murry bought about 100 head to-day at prices ranging from 10c to 12c per lb. to 10c to 12c per lb. for 100 to 120 steers with some quality, and 10c to 12c per lb. for 100 to 120 pounds of good quality.

Milch Cows.

The demand for milkers and springers was a little better today, but not very high. There is a fair demand for springers of good quality that will come in about October. Prices ranged from 10c to 12c per lb.

Veal Calves.

Prices for veal calves were lower, in sympathy with the cattle. Quotations ranged from 10c to 12c per lb. Prime new milk-fed calves would bring 10c per lb.

Sheep and Lambs.

Export ewes sold at 10c to 12c per lb. bucks 10c to 12c per lb. culls 10c to 12c per lb. lambs 10c to 12c per lb. ewes 10c to 12c per lb. culls 10c to 12c per lb.

Hogs.

Prices unchanged at 10c to 12c per lb. for select and 10c to 12c per lb. for lights and 10c to 12c per lb. for hogs.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, July 26.—Cattle—Receipts, 20 head; slow; prices unchanged. Veals—Receipts, 150 head; active and steady; 10c to 12c per lb.

Hog—Receipts, 200 head; fairly active; prices and Yorkers, 10c lower; others steady; heavy, 10c to 12c per lb. pig, 10c to 12c per lb. roughs, 10c to 12c per lb. stage, 10c to 12c per lb. dairies, 10c to 12c per lb.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 200 head; active; sheep steady; lambs 10c higher; hogs, 10c to 12c per lb. culls, 10c to 12c per lb. ewes, 10c to 12c per lb. mixed, 10c to 12c per lb.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Beef—Receipts, 100; feeling weak for all grades; dressed unchanged; exports to-day, 400 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 200; veals weak; no beef demand; a shade lower. Common to choice veals sold at 10c to 12c per lb. culls at 8c to 10c per lb. buttermilk at 10c to 12c per lb. dressed veals at 10c to 12c per lb. country-dressed at 10c to 12c per lb. dressed and buttermilk at 10c to 12c per lb.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 200; sheep steady; lambs 10c higher; hogs, 10c to 12c per lb. culls, 10c to 12c per lb. ewes, 10c to 12c per lb. mixed, 10c to 12c per lb.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Cattle—Receipts, 600; market steady but slow; common to prime steers, 10c to 12c per lb. cows, 10c to 12c per lb. hogs, 10c to 12c per lb. mixed, 10c to 12c per lb. buttermilk, 10c to 12c per lb. dressed veals, 10c to 12c per lb. country-dressed, 10c to 12c per lb. dressed and buttermilk, 10c to 12c per lb.

Hog—Receipts, 2,000; market steady; good to prime heavy, 10c to 12c per lb. medium to good heavy, 10c to 12c per lb. buttermilk, 10c to 12c per lb. mixed, 10c to 12c per lb. buttermilk, 10c to 12c per lb. dressed veals, 10c to 12c per lb. country-dressed, 10c to 12c per lb. dressed and buttermilk, 10c to 12c per lb.

Sheep—Receipts, 1,000; market, sheep, steady; lambs weak and lower; sheep, 10c to 12c per lb. yearlings, 10c to 12c per lb. lambs, 10c to 12c per lb.

Canada's Trade Disputes.

Ottawa, July 26.—The total number of trade disputes reported to have been in existence in Canada during June, says The Labor Gazette, was 41, a decrease of eight compared with the previous month, but an increase of 11 compared with June, 1906.

About 200 establishments, and 5,728 employees were affected by these disputes, those beginning during the month involving about 78 establishments and 3,774 employees.

Alcohol and Motive Force.

Sir Victor Horsley, in a recent address, mentioned an experiment described by Kraepelin, the noted German expert, in which he measured with himself and Dr. Dehio the force with which they would grasp a dynamometer at regular intervals, with and without the stimulus of alcohol. The results showed that there was at first an abnormal amount of work done in a normal state of mind, but that was quickly followed by a depression, and a depression of the motor effect. Kraepelin found in addition that if the person experimented on had received a dose of tea instead of alcohol, there was no lowering effect during the experiment beyond the normal effect of normal fatigue, which has to be discounted in every experiment. Sir Victor says in this regard: "There is no question about the accuracy of the facts, and they have not been obtained merely by Kraepelin, but also by others working on quite different lines. It has been the consistent teaching of the greatest physiological chemist we know on the continent, Professor Bunge, and it cannot be insisted upon too strongly or too often, that the apparent acceleration of the amount of work done is not a real thing and is, in fact, an evidence of the paralyzing and deleterious effect of alcohol. That even dietetic quantities of alcohol produce a harmful change in the nervous system is now established on corroborative evidence not to be disputed."

Piles Cured At Home by New Absorption Method

If you suffer from bleeding, itching, blind or protruding Piles, write to your address, and I will tell you how to cure yourself at home by the new absorption treatment; and will also send some of this home treatment free for trial, with references from your own locality if requested. Immediate relief and permanent cure. Send no money, but tell others of this offer. Write to-day to Mrs. M. Summers, Box P. 4, Windsor, Ont.

Can't Convince a Lyncher.

Charlotte, N.C., July 26.—The efforts of the State of North Carolina to bring to justice the twenty odd citizens of Anson County who took J. V. Johnson from Wadesboro jail the night of May 20, 1906, and lynched him, came to an abrupt termination yesterday when the jury in the case of Zeke Lewis, the second of the lynchings to be tried, returned a verdict of not guilty.

The Highlands of Ontario have always been considered an ideal place to spend a summer holiday, and this year the Muskoka Lakes, The Lake of Bays and the Temagami district are attracting large crowds of tourists, who thoroughly appreciate the wonderful beauties of the North Country. Chatham or Kent County people wanting a delightful holiday could not select a better place to spend it, where they will enjoy pure and cool air, good fishing, bathing and boating, and can obtain full information by calling on W. E. Rispin, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, G. T. R., 115 King St., Chatham, or writing to J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

Still They Drink It.

"I shudder at the taste of whiskey," said a man to his friend. "I dislike it. I don't know why it is I ever drink it."

The other slapped his hand on his knee.

"I am glad to hear you say that," he cried. "If most men would tell the honest truth they would say that they disliked the taste of it, too, and shuddered at it."

"What a lot of shuddering the men must be doing all over New York," remarked the woman who sat quietly listening.

The mother wants a medicine for her children which will cure croup, cramps, diarrhoea, diphtheria, sore throat, toothache, cuts, burns, whooping cough, etc., and which does not contain any poison, alcohol or opiate. She will find this fit bill to perfection by the Victorian Sure Cure.

A trial will prove our claim. Grown people want an absolute cure for rheumatism, backache, sciatica, dyspepsia, kidney and liver diseases, weak heart, and the system generally. A trial will prove that V. S. C. is the cure wanted. It is the cheapest and best home medicine on earth. Price—Mailed anywhere, 35c for 50c; 10c for 50c; 5c for 50c.

MISS ROSA STARR.

At the Head of a Large Newspaper Trade.

She is only twenty-five, but Miss Rosa Starr of Birmingham, Ala., through her own industry, can write her check for $50,000, and it would be cashed by any Birmingham bank.

Rosa was about twelve when her father died. He had been a newsdealer. Bad health ate up all he had. When he died a $1,000 life policy paid funeral expenses, lifted the debt on a small house and lot (now worth $10,000) and left $300 to secure a stock of newspapers and magazines.

Miss Rosa worked day and night. She made the trades; she kept the records; she hired, fired and bossed the newsboys working for her; she did the buying; she knew what kind of five cent and dime novels sold best; she cut the newspaper heads and sent back the returns; she visited the mail trains to get her consignments; she had ever the same buoyant and cheerful greeting for the customer, high or low; she was the baseball fan of the establishment, and she gave her judgment to the family lawyer before savings were invested. Asked to what she most attributed her success, she said: "Work. I love to work. The joy of doing work and seeing it disappear before a cheerful doing is all I ask."

How to Fry.

To fry food properly a deep pan is needed, with a wire frying basket of a proper size to fit it. Fat is also needed in sufficient quantity to allow the articles tried to be completely immersed in it. The success of the process depends upon the temperature and purity of the fat.

In ordinary households a constant supply of the best possible frying medium, properly clarified fat, ought to be always at hand. All fat, cooked or uncooked; all skimmings from soups or gravies, all scraps of fat, must be collected and cut into small pieces. Then, with water in the proportion of a quarter of a pint to each pound of fat, they must be rapidly boiled in a covered saucepan, the lid being removed after boiling point is reached, and the cooking continue till not the faintest bubble is seen. Then only is it free from moisture and ready to be strained through a cloth into a basin, where when cool it will be a firm, compact mass of absolutely pure fat.

When wanted for cooking it must be placed in a deep saucepan quite an hour before it is needed to heat gradually and thoroughly, so that at the right moment it may be raised quickly to smoking point, at which the blue smoke is a signal that it is ready for food to be cooked in it.

The articles to be fried must be placed in the frying basket, a few at a time and not touching each other, and gently lowered into the fat, where they remain until they are a faint lemon color, ready to be drained over a set in the open oven or on the hot plate on paper to drain thoroughly.

When frying articles requiring longer cooking, the pan should be moved to a cooler part of the stove after the first few moments, so that cooking goes on slowly. They are then drained as above. It must be remembered that fat must be raised to smoking point again before fresh articles are placed in it.

All greasiness of fried foods is caused by the fat being below smoking heat. When it is absolutely boiling it causes an invisible crust to form instantly, which not only prevents the fat entering, but the flavor from leaving, the food cooked in it.

Fat may be used again and again, but it must be clarified afresh after each use. A slice of raw potato placed in it will clear it, and it must still be strained through a cloth into a basin again. When it becomes much discolored by frequent use it should be melted, then mixed with water and carbonate of soda (half a teaspoonful to one quart of water) and boiled for half an hour, skimming thoroughly and setting aside till cold. Then cut up, scraping off all impurities, and clarify as before with water, boiling until all has evaporated, when clear fat will remain to be strained off.

Bridal Breakfast.

A simple breakfast, yet one susceptible of ideal treatment, may easily be planned by the young housekeeper for a bridal party and a few intimate friends. Arrange your table, utilizing the polished surface and a complete set of dollies and centerpieces. Drawn work, lace or delicately embroidered linen is excellent. Use for the central decoration a slender crystal vase filled with clusters of bride roses and maidenhair fern, and around the base of the vase place a wreath of white moss rose stems. At the four corners of the table in symmetrical positions may be arranged cut glass candlesticks, fitted with the new candle lamps and empire shades of white silk finished with crystal fringe and adorned with tiny wreaths of pink roses matching in color the delicate tints of the bride roses. This faint shade also should be reproduced in the candied rose leaves, the pink bonbons, the hothouse radishes and the decoration of the wedding cake itself.

Provide as souvenirs of the occasion small satin boxes filled with white bonbons and tied with narrow pink and white ribbon, ornamenting the cover with a dainty satin rose, fastened if possible from the material used in the bride gown. Name cards will be found to assist materially in seating the guests.

Care of Linoleum.

Linoleum, while not an inexpensive floor covering, is a very neat and durable one.

Good linoleum, properly cared for, should wear at least five years on a kitchen or dining room floor, provided of course that the usage is not extremely hard.

In cleaning this floor covering the fact should be borne in mind that the dirt is only on the smooth varnished surface and needs no scrubbing with soap or other strong agent to remove it. Wiping with flannel wrung from warm water or half water and half milk will remove all germs. A mop is not good for wiping floors unless a cloth is used to wipe the baseboard and molding after the mopping. If this is not done, the wood soon becomes streaked and dirty. A good furniture polish applied twice a year will be beneficial to the linoleum.

Caps For Knitting Needles.

These are very useful and very easily made. Take two new corks, cut them down to about an inch in length and round off the tops. Cover them very neatly with flannel or any soft material, taking care not to have any join on the flat end of the cork.

Now take a fairly wide piece of elastic, about half an inch shorter than the knitting needles, and secure it firmly at each end to the corks, with the rounded end of these outward. Make an outside cover for each cap of any pretty material, joining the sides, turning in the raw edges at the bottom and stitching these down to the flannel.

Now gather the ends and finish off with a pretty gold or other fancy bead. The needles are stuck in the flat sides of the corks.

To Clean a Copper Kettle.

Copper kettles and indeed copper utensils of all sorts are often very hard to clean. A good method is to cut a lemon in half and rub over the kettle with it. After a thorough rubbing the kettle should be carefully rinsed in clear cold water and given a final polish with a soft cloth. Never attempt to polish copper cooking utensils with the preparations used for brasses, etc., but simply rub them well with a woolen cloth. Dry them thoroughly after washing, as they gather rust very easily, and it is almost impossible to eradicate it.

To Perfume Underlinen.

A delicate perfume will be given to linen by putting a lump oforris root into the boiler on washing days. The delicious fragrance thus given will last even after ironing, but will at no time be penetrating enough to be disagreeable. Another and even more lasting method is to put a Tokay bean in the drawer in which the linen is laid. This perfume in large quantities is overpowering, but one bean will give just the right odor. It usually requires warmth to bring out the perfume.

To Freshen Window Shades.

When window shades have become cracked, split or ragged at the lower end, they will seem as good as new if turned upside down.

Slip out the stick in the lower edge, remove from the roller and then sew the weight stick in the end which was the top, first cutting off the edge to remove the tack holes. Then tack the other end to the roller. When hung it will look like a new shade.

To Clean Rusty Iron.

Iron pots, kettles, skillets—in fact, any iron pieces—can be cleaned if the pieces are placed on a clear coal fire which has died down to red coals. This prevents smoking the articles. Only one piece at a time should be placed on the coal fire and burned until it is almost red hot. Remove with coal tongs and allow to cool, after which scrape with wet rings and sandpaper, then wash with soapuds.

Flavored butters are much in favor for sandwiches. Fresh, unsalted butter is the foundation. This is first creamed; then the flavoring material is added, and the whole is beaten until thoroughly blended and smooth. Among the popular flavorings are olives, anchovy, sardines, cheese, chives, parsley, paprika, caviare and salmon.

Baby's moccasins can be made out of the long ends of the old mosquito-netting gloves or chamolis skin. They are more durable than yarn moccasins for creeping.

To prevent milk tainting out a lemon in half. Place in the ice chest. It will prevent butter and milk from tasting of vegetables or muskmellons.

J. W. PLEWES IS CONVENOR

He Will Direct Special Committee in Text Book Matter

Toronto, July 24.—Another step has been taken by the Provincial Government in its plans for the early issue of new and improved text books for the Public schools of Ontario.

Hon. Dr. Pyne, the Minister of Education, has asked the Advisory Council of Education to undertake the thorough consideration of the subject matter of the text books at present authorized and in use, and at its earliest opportunity to submit to the department its report of its deliberations.

The council will present to the Minister recommendations as to what material it may deem advisable to retain and insert in the new text books, and what extracts it believes should be dropped. It is also at liberty to make suggestions as to new matter to be inserted in the coming series of readers. The council will further place before the Minister such recommendations as commend themselves to it concerning the compilation and general character of the new series.

Early action is contemplated, as the council has been urged to act with promptitude. It has appointed Mr. J. W. Plewes convenor of a sub-committee to deal with the problems presented, and a special meeting will be called for the purpose early in August.

ERIEAU

Miss Alice McPherson spent Friday with the crowd of girls at Drum-trocity.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Elliot and Mr. W. B. Haines, of Akron, Ohio, who have been at the Bungalow, returned home to-day by Sandusky. The punters took them over to Jerundy Bay for a last evening at their favorite sport—fishing.

Miss Ethel Titus, of Imlay City, Mich., will be a very welcome visitor at Blenheim the next week.

Mrs. W. N. Morley was the guest of Mrs. Manson Campbell yesterday. The Misses Norah and Lou Clark, of Blenheim, are the guests of Mrs. Theo. Pickering at Thelma Cottage.

Mrs. H. D. Smith spent yesterday in town.

Mrs. J. Guttridge is visiting her daughter at the Riddell Cottage.

The high wind which prevailed here yesterday drove several boats ashore.

Dr. Duncan's family leave shortly for Government Park, where they will be guests at Earncliffe Lodge.

Mr. Sam. McCormack is overseeing some work being done on the pier back of the lighthouse.

Miss Clara Morgan has returned from a short stay in Blenheim.

A large party came over the Park to the Friday night dance in the "Farnet," among them being Mrs. Rees and daughter Elaine, Mrs. J. C. Locke, the Misses Locke and their guest, Mr. Ross Stalker of Toronto, Miss Mary Gardiner and the Misses Leach. Several sailed over; Mr. Chas. Locke coming in his yacht, "Hilone."

Mrs. H. y has returned home after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. H. D. Smith.

A delightful two hours was spent by the large crowd at the band concert last night. A bright moon and a fresh breeze blowing across the dancing platform made the hop very pleasant. Some of the evening visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson, Miss Stegman, Dr. F. Hall and Dr. Neil Smith.

Miss Ella Groves was the guest of Eriean friends yesterday.

Dr. Carson was the guest of Mrs. John Park at Laff-a-Lott.

Miss Olive Richards spent the day at the Mushroom, the guest of Mrs. Milton Bogart.

Mrs. Fred. Smith, of Jubilee, was in Blenheim on Friday.

Mr. Sidney Lugsden, of Toronto, is visiting his brother, Mr. W. H. Lugsden, at Ben Oban.

Mr. James E. Gray remained at the Eau yesterday to enjoy the fishing.

Dr. and Mrs. G. J. Gibb and family, of Blenheim, have returned to their home after spending a pleasant holiday at their cottage.

Contractor Wm. Blight and his gang of men are busy at a Government job at the pier.

All the successful fishermen at the Eau these days are not grown men. Douglas Park, the youngest son of J. M. Park, caught a fine small mouthed bass this week, of which he was justly proud. Douglas, though a young lad to begin providing for a table, was able to furnish the major part of the breakfast Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Morley, of Windsor, are to occupy one of the cottages at Centreville the coming month.

Do not allow your conscience to worry you if you see a long, lean white dog with drooping ears and a few black spots on his back wandering about the Eau. Dodson is on his holidays, and so is the dog.

The tug "Gibbert," on which the man was so severely burned this week, was towed to Port Stanley Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Roy Tobey was an Eriean visitor yesterday.

Mr. H. D. Smith launched a new steel row boat manufactured by the Michigan Steel Boat Company, of Detroit.

Through the courtesy of Captain D'Clute and his gonies crew the cottagers from Sandy Knowe, Laff-a-Lot and Beverly Lodge enjoyed a delightful trip on the "City of Dresden" around the Point Aux Pins.

FIRST ELECTRIC CAR

The first electric car that has ever been run south of the C. P. R. track on Raleigh street was run Thursday night. The wires have been strung complete around to where the men are working on William street, and a passenger car and freight car covered the road to that point on Thursday evening. It is the intention of the company to continue the track from the C. P. R. station out William street to meet the one already being laid, thus making a belt line.

LIZARD 314 FEET LONG!

New York, July 27.—A. A. Bagg, Wyo., special to the Sun says: The most important discovery ever made in the great fossil beds of Wyoming is the skeleton of an animal of the lizard type, just found, which shows a length of 314 feet.

It is by far the largest prehistoric animal yet discovered. The skeleton, which was found by an expedition from the Wyoming state university, is in a perfect state of preservation, every bone seeming to have been in place when petrification set in.

One vertebra, which has been removed, weighing more than 1,000 pounds. The skeleton will be placed in the Wyoming state university, which has the greatest collection of fossils in the world.
