

IMAGE EVALUATION
TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic
Sciences
Corporation

23 WEST MAIN STREET
WEBSTER, N.Y. 14580
(716) 872-4503

CIHM
Microfiche
Series
(Monographs)

ICMH Collection de microfiches (monographies)

Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions / Institut canadien de microreproductions historiques

© 1993

Technical and Bibliographic Notes / Notes techniques et bibliographiques

The Institute has attempted to obtain the best original copy available for filming. Features of this copy which may be bibliographically unique, which may alter any of the images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of filming, are checked below.

L'Institut a microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués ci-dessous.

Coloured covers/
Couverture de couleur

Coloured pages/
Pages de couleur

Covers damaged/
Couverture endommagée

Pages damaged/
Pages endommagées

Covers restored and/or laminated/Couverture restaurée et/ou pelliculée

Pages restored and/or laminated/Pages restaurées et/ou pelliculées

Cover title missing/
Le titre de couverture manque

Pages discoloured, stained or foxed/
Pages décolorées, tachetées ou piquées

Coloured maps/
Cartes géographiques en couleur

Pages detached/Pages détachées

Coloured ink (i.e. other than blue or black)/ Encre de couleur (i.e. autre que bleue ou noire)

Showthrough/
Transparence

Coloured plates and/or illustrations/
Planches et/ou illustrations en couleur

Quality of print varies/Qualité inégale de l'impression

Bound with other material/
Relié avec d'autres documents

Continuous pagination/Pagination continue

Tight binding may cause shadows or distortion along interior margin/
La reliure serrée peut causer de l'ombre ou de la distorsion le long de la marge intérieure

Includes index(es)/
Comprend un (des) index

Title on header taken from: / Le titre de l'en-tête provient:

Blank leaves added during restoration may appear within the text. Whenever possible, these have been omitted from filming/
Il se peut que certaines pages blanches ajoutées lors d'une restauration apparaissent dans le texte, mais, lorsque cela était possible, ces pages n'ont pas été filmées.

Title page of issue/
Page de titre de la livraison

Caption of issue/
Titre de départ de la livraison

Masthead/
Générique (périodiques) de la livraison

Additional comments: / Various pagings.
Commentaires supplémentaires:

This item is filmed at the reduction ratio checked below/
Ce document est filmé au taux de réduction indiqué ci-dessous.

10X	12X	14X	16X	18X	20X	22X	24X	26X	28X	30X	32X
					✓

The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

National Library of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Bibliothèque nationale du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

CÆSAR—GALLIC WAR.

BOOKS IV., V.

A BESIEGED TOWN.

Morang's Educational Series

CÆSAR—GALLIC WAR

BOOKS IV, V.

BY

ST. J. BASIL WYNNE WILLSON, M.A.

ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE; ASSISTANT-MASTER AT RUGBY SCHOOL; JOINT-EDITOR OF ÆSCHYLUS, 'PROMETHEUS VINCTUS'

WITH

IMITATIVE EXERCISES

FOR RE-TRANSLATION

BY

W. L. GRANT, M.A.

UPPER CANADA COLLEGE, TORONTO

TORONTO

GEORGE N. MORANG & CO., LIMITED

All Rights reserved

A BESIEGED TOWN.

PA 6. 27

A 4

W 5

Entered according to Act of the Parliament of Canada, in the year 1900, by GEORGE N. MORANG & COMPANY, LIMITED, at the Department of Agriculture.

In
to
of lit
Ca
I tran
yea
As stud
of s
the
In
adde teach
he cl
In
notes

PREFACE.

IN preparing this edition for schools, I have endeavoured to induce the reader to regard his translation as a means of learning Latin prose. If a boy is content with a bald literal translation, he loses half the benefit of reading Cæsar.

I have emphasised this point in a few elementary hints on translation which are undoubtedly trite, but which some years' experience in teaching has shown me to be necessary. As analysis of language is one of the chief purposes of the study of classics, I make no apology for noting small points of syntax, and for dwelling with monotonous reiteration on the uses of the subjunctive.

Instead of giving exercises in an appendix, I have added a list of military and naval phrases, from which the teacher can compile sentences illustrating any construction he chooses.

In the earlier part of the book I have given more minute notes than in the later.

No edition of so well edited an author as Cæsar can claim originality. I have consulted Allen and Greenough, Peskett, Bond, and Walpole, Stock, Rheinhard, Fügner, Kraner, and Moberly.

The first section of the Introduction has been written by my colleague, Mr J. M. Hardwich, who is preparing Books I.-III. in this series, and who will in turn probably make use of some of my work.

I have to thank Mr E. E. Sikes, Fellow and Lecturer of St John's College, Cambridge, for reading the proof-sheets and giving me the advantage of his criticism. Mr Haydon, Head-master of Tettenhall School, has supplied me with some valuable grammatical suggestions.

RUGBY, Sept. 1899.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
INTRODUCTION—
I. The Celts	vii
II. Britain—
(a) Early mentions of the country	xi
(b) Later history	xiii
(c) Its inhabitants	xiii
III. Life, works, and character of Cæsar	xiv
IV. The Roman army	xxi
V. Elementary hints on translation	xxvii
TEXT	1
NOTES	66
APPENDICES—
I. Index of proper names	139
II. Scheme of subjunctive	149
III. Lists of phrases and idioms	150
INDEX (English)	154
" (Latin)	157
IMITATIVE EXERCISES	159
VOCABULARY

ILLUSTRATIONS AND MAPS.

	PAGE
MAP OF GAUL.
A BESIEGED TOWN	Frontispiece
BUST OF CESAR	xx
WEAPONS	xxv
ARRANGEMENT OF COHORTS	xxvii
ROMAN SOLDIERS	xxviii
ROMAN CAMP (PLAN)	81
CESAR'S BRIDGE (1)	85
" " (2)	87
ROMAN WARSHIP	90
HARBOUR	93
TORMENTA	96
MAP OF SOUTH BRITAIN	101
ESSEDUM	102
TESTUDO ARIETARIA	110
COWAY STAKE	117
MAP OF ROMAN CAMPS IN GAUL	120
CAMP WITH TOWERS	130
TESTUDO	131

THE
from some in c natio
O
right way prese
temp

Indian
Sanskrit

PAGE
iece
xx
xxv
xvii
viii
81
85
87
90
93
96
101
102
110
117
120
130
131

INTRODUCTION.

I.—THE CELTS.

NAME AND ORIGIN.

THE European races of the present day trace their descent from one common stock. The original Aryan family at some prehistoric date broke up into groups, which settled in different parts of Europe, and developed individual national characteristics.¹

One of these groups was the Celtic. The Celts passed right across to the shores of the Atlantic, and made their way over the Pyrenees into Spain. Much later, finding their present homes too narrow for them, they made various attempts with more or less success to cross the Alps into Italy.

Their wanderings were finally checked, and their power broken, by the hero of the Gallic War, Julius Cæsar.

Their name was given variously by the Romans as Celtae and Galli; and the country, which they occupied so completely that it was named after them, was called Gallia. Gallia Ulterior, or Transalpina, was bounded on the north and west by the English Channel (Fretum Gallicum) and the Atlantic (Oceanus); on the south by the Pyrenæi montes; on the north-east by the Rhine (Rhenus), Lake Geneva (Lemannus lacus), and part of the Rhone (Rhodanus); and on the south-east by a line drawn through the towns of Toulouse (Tolosa), Vienne (Vienna), and Geneva (Genava).

RELATIONS WITH ROME.

These may be conveniently given in the form of a skeleton outline.

A. Gallia Cisalpina.

Invasions across the Alps at an early period resulted in the final occupation of all Italy north of the river Po (Padus), hence called Gallia Cisalpina.

B.C. 396-350. The Gauls press hard on Etruria and Umbria, even sacking Rome itself in 390. Rome gradually comes to be regarded as the bulwark of Italy against Gallic invasion, and her armies at last are able to hold their own. (Cp. the stories of Torquatus and Corvus.)

B.C. 284-222. Rome occupied in the subjection of the Gauls of N. Italy, who, however, continue to give trouble till, after the completion of the Second Punic War, fresh colonies are founded in the disaffected country.

B. Gallia Transalpina.

B.C. 125. The Roman conquest of Transalpine Gaul begun by M. Fulvius Flaccus. N.B.—It was most important for Rome to secure the land-route between Italy and Spain.

B.C. 121. A great defeat of the Arverni results in the establishment of the Roman province of Gallia Narbonensis.

B.C. 79-77. The country suffers greatly from the war with Sertorius, and the burden imposed by the presence of the Roman army. N.B.—Down to 61 the Roman boundary did not advance. But the province was of great value from its position and the commercial prospects it offered. Consequently it was soon crowded with Roman merchants and farmers; and before long the Celts there became almost entirely Romanised.

Mommsen points out that to this blend of Celt and Roman we may trace the modern French type of character.

THE FREE GAULS IN THE TIME OF CÆSAR.

Between the boundaries of Roman Gaul, the sea, and the Rhine lived a great number of Celtic tribes. These differed in many respects, such as language and customs, but had the same religion; and when not at war with one another, they kept up a constant intercourse for purposes of trade. The instinct for trade was one of the most remarkable of the Celtic characteristics. Roads and bridges opened out communication with every part of the country; river navigation was practised to a considerable extent; and the Gauls were among the first people who braved the dangers of the great ocean, and proved the superiority of the sailing vessel not only for commercial but also for fighting purposes. The merchants of Gaul crossed over into Britain to get the tin for which Cornwall was famous; so that a regular trade-route was established between Britain and Gallia Narbonensis.

The Celts disliked agriculture, and preferred town to country life. We find everywhere towns, surrounded by walls, or undefended villages.

The unit of their organisation was the "clan-canton." In this the supreme power lay, with the general assembly of freemen, presided over by its prince, or else by a chief-magistrate (vergobretus). This system did not tend towards development or strength; and the only attempt at unification was made by the nobles of different cantons, who gave one another mutual support, in order to secure their own pre-eminence. We can see how the mediæval knight grew into being, when we consider such a case as that of Orgetorix, who, to save himself from the sentence of his canton, surrounded himself with 10,000 "members of his family." To this origin may be traced the bands of armed retainers which in feudal times were attached to the service of every powerful knight. Again, the bearing of arms was the qualification of a Celtic citizen, while such occupations as that of agriculture were not regarded as becoming to a gentleman. Military duels of dangerous character were practised even in times of peace; and lastly, the cavalry, recruited from the ranks of the nobility, formed the main strength of the army—the foot-soldier occupying a position comparatively unimportant.

The weapons of the Gauls were chiefly a long lance and a large shield. The army was accompanied by a long train of baggage waggons, which were used in a primitive sort of way to fortify the camp at the end of the march. Though brave, the Gaul was not able to cope with a better disciplined enemy; and even in point of courage he was inferior to the German.

To the want of unity exhibited by the Celts in their political and military organisation there was one great contrast—the same religion prevailed over the whole people, including those who inhabited the British Isles.

This religion was called Druidism. The Druids, or priests, could claim a distinctly representative national character. They had privileges of their own; they met together at fixed times, and, generally speaking, exercised a strong influence over the people, who obeyed them with unquestioning faith; and they even interfered in civil affairs, putting pressure on the local government, or giving decisions in judicial cases.

(J. M. H.)

II.—BRITAIN.

(a) EARLY MENTIONS OF THE COUNTRY.

Before Cæsar's invasion little was known of Britain. References in Greek literature are scanty. Herodotus (iii. 115) mentions the Κασσιτερίδες, or Tin Islands, from which the Phœnicians obtained that metal, only to plead ignorance of them; and indeed it is now believed that these islands, of whose whereabouts the Phœnicians maintained such secrecy, were not the Scilly Isles and Cornwall, but islands in the bay of Vigo.

Pytheas, the Greek explorer of Massilia (Marseilles), of whose date nothing more definite can be said than that it was before 285 B.C., visited Britain, in the course of an extensive journey in Europe, and published the results obtained in two works, Τὰ περὶ τοῦ Ὀκεανοῦ and Ὁ Περίπλους, from which quotations are made by Strabo and Pliny. He represented Britain as being about 2300 miles in length, and Kent as being several days' sail from Gaul, and stated that the inhabitants lived on coarse grains, roots, berries, and a liquor concocted from corn and honey.

The first mention of the country¹ in an extant Greek writer before the time of Cæsar is in Polybius (204-122 B.C.), but the book in which he described it has not come down to us.

Of later Greek writers, Diodorus Siculus, a contemporary of Cæsar and Augustus, describes the inhabitants as indigenes, living a simple life in huts of reeds or wood, and mentions the friendliness and comparative civilisation of the people of Cornwall (Βελέριος), who traded in tin with Gaul.

Strabo (54 B.C.—24 A.D.), the geographer, describes the island as being thickly wooded and producing gold, silver, iron, corn, cattle, and slaves, and the men as being taller than the Gauls, badly built, and bandy-legged. Less civilised than the Gauls, they inhabited thickets as towns, and surrounded them with logs of wood. Their climate was rainy and foggy.

Plutarch (born about 80 A.D., date of death unknown), in his Life of Cæsar, Appian (middle of second century A.D.), and Dion Cassius (end of second and beginning of third century A.D.) refer to the invasion of Britain.

Of Latin writers, the poet Lucretius (about 95-52 B.C.) briefly mentions the Britons; Pliny (23-79 A.D.), in his 'Natural History,' supplies considerable information; and Tacitus (61-117 A.D.), in his Life of Agricola, the governor of Britain, gives a full description of the country.

Suetonius (born about 70 A.D.), in his 'Lives of the ¹ (1) The work 'De Mundo,' in which reference is made to Britain, which has generally been ascribed to Aristotle (384-322 B.C.), is now believed not to be his, and is assigned to a much later period.

(2) In Greek Britain is called ἡ Βρεττανία, ἡ Βρετανική (sc. νῆσος), αἱ Βρετανικαὶ νῆσοι, Ἀλβιον, Ἀλουίων; also Πρετανία.

Cæsar's—a writer not wholly trustworthy—misrepresents the object of Cæsar's expedition to Britain as being greed for pearls; whereas Cicero, whose brother Quintus was with Cæsar, asserts in a letter (ad Fam. vii. 7) that there was no chance of booty in Britain.

(b) LATER HISTORY.

After Cæsar's departure from Britain in 54 B.C., no attempt was made to occupy the country till the reign of Claudius (43 A.D.) Then the region south of the Thames was permanently brought under Roman sway. The work of conquest was carried on in 61, during the reign of Nero, by Suetonius Paulinus who subdued the revolt of Boadicea, and was completed by Agricola (78-84 A.D.) The Roman occupation of the island lasted till 407 A.D., when, on the decline of Roman power and the inroad of the Picts and Scots, all troops were withdrawn.

(c) ITS INHABITANTS.

The earliest inhabitants of Britain were dark-haired people of the Iberian stock, of whom traces may still be seen in Cornwall, Wales, and Scotland. In Cornwall the people, who are popularly believed to be descendants of Spaniards that came over in the Armada, are probably of this race. The Iberians gave way before Celts (Gaels) from Gaul, and they in their turn were succeeded by migrations of other Celts called Brythons from Belgium. This accounts for the resemblance that Cæsar noticed between the inhabitants of Britain and Gaul, and the existence of similar names in both countries—e.g., Atrebatæ, Parisii, Belgæ.

For a description of the condition of the inhabitants at this time, Cæsar's own account will suffice.

III.—LIFE, WORKS, AND CHARACTER OF CÆSAR.

Caius Julius Cæsar was born July 12, 100 B.C., six years after the birth both of Cicero and Pompey. He was closely connected with the democratic party by his sympathies as well as by his aunt's marriage with Marius, the great chief of the party. In 83 he married Cornelia, daughter of L. Cinna, who had succeeded to the leadership of the popular party on the death of Marius. Sulla, the leader of the Optimates, on his return from the war in the East against Mithridates became master of Rome, and showed his distrust of the young democrat by bidding him put away his wife. Cæsar refused, and with difficulty escaped death by flying from Rome. By dint of hard intercession his friends obtained his pardon from Sulla, who remarked "that that boy would be the ruin of the aristocracy, for there was many a Marius in him." He returned to Rome, but, feeling insecure, went to Asia, where he had his first experience of campaigning, and served with distinction, winning the "civic crown" for saving a comrade's life at the capture of Mytilene.

In 78 B.C. Sulla died, and Cæsar returned to Rome, where in the following year he gained a great reputation as an orator by his prosecution of Cn. Dolabella for extortion in his government of Macedonia.

Pursuing the study of oratory, he set out to become a pupil of Apollonius Molo at Rhodes, but on his way was captured by Cilician pirates. He was ransomed by his friends for fifty talents (£10,000), and immediately obtaining some vessels at Miletus, fell upon his captors in the island of Pharmacusa, off the Carian coast, whilst they were dividing the spoil, carried them off to Pergamus, and crucified them, thereby fulfilling a threat which he had made to them in sport whilst he bu

par
ach
del
I
qu
cen
Cic
suffi
may took curre
to h Ulte
M terra
the I
army.
withi
the fi
had I Cor
found
and fo
an opp
and C class, a was str
these th
have th should tax-farm

he was in their power. This done, he proceeded to Rhodes, but soon returned to Rome, bent on championing the popular party and winning the people's favour, an object which he achieved by lavish expenditure, regardless of accumulating debt.

He rapidly rose up the ladder of office. In 68 b.c. he was quaestor; in 65, aedile, winning popularity by the munificence of his shows; in 63, pontifex maximus. In that year Cicero crushed the conspiracy of Catiline, in which, on insufficient grounds, Caesar was suspected of complicity. He may have sympathised with the movement no doubt, but he took no active part in it. In 62 he was praetor, and incurred the undying hostility of Cato by strenuous opposition to him. In 61 and the following year he went to Hispania Ulterior as propraetor, where he conquered the Lusitanians.

Meanwhile, between 70-60 b.c., Pompey purged the Mediterranean of pirates, broke the power of Mithridates, pacified the East, and returned to Rome at the head of a devoted army. The supremacy that Caesar afterwards gained was within Pompey's reach, but he had not the nerve to make the final effort and grasp it. By constant trimming he had lost the confidence of both parties.

Consequently, when in 60 Caesar returned to Rome, he found Pompey with all the possibilities of power, but isolated and forceless. Unlike Pompey, Caesar never failed to grasp an opportunity. He entered into a coalition with Pompey and Crassus, the wealthy leader of the Equites or merchant class, and this First Triumvirate, as the coalition is called, was strong enough to defy all opposition. It was agreed by these three masters of the Roman world that Pompey should have the land he wanted for his veteran soldiers, that Crassus should obtain easier terms for the Equites in the matter of tax-farming, and that Caesar should get the consulate for

As consul in that year Cæsar passed measures putting the terms of this agreement into effect. On the motion of a tribune Vatinius (Lex Vatiniæ), he was granted the provinces of Cisalpine Gaul and Illyricum, with three legions, for five years. The Senate added Transalpine Gaul and another legion. Cæsar's object was now obtained. He foresaw the conflict that was imminent in the State; and in view of it, it was necessary that he should have an army trained by himself and devoted to his interests.

In 58 he entered on his provincial command.

The task that lay before him was that of securing Italy from attack in the north. For centuries Gallic invasions had been the great danger to the State. Up to this time only the southern part of Transalpine Gaul was known to the Romans. Stretching from the Alps to the Pyrenees lay Gallia Narbonensis, the only Roman province at this time in Transalpine Gaul, and hence called by Cæsar Provincia, or The Province (Provence). The following is a summary of his operations in Gaul:—

Bk. I. 58 B.C. The peace of the Province was threatened by a movement among the Helvetii, a people occupying Switzerland, who, finding their confines cramped, wished to migrate to Western Gaul in a body, under Orgetorix. Cæsar saw the danger of letting so large a mass of people traverse the Province, and drove them back with great slaughter. The great battle took place at Bibracte (Autun). He then turned his attention to Ariovistus (see Index of Names), a German chief who had crossed the Rhine, and defeated him.

Bk. II. 57 B.C. The scene of action is now transferred to Belgium in the N.E., where Cæsar crushed a strong combination of tribes under the powerful Nervii, whom he almost exterminated in a desperate battle. He also reduces towns on the coast of Brittany to submission.

Bk. III. 56 B.C. The campaign of this year was for the most part directed against the Veneti, a tribe on the coast of Brittany, who were the head of the states known as the Civitates Aremoricæ. It was chiefly a naval campaign.

Bk. IV. 55 B.C. The Usipetes and Teneteri, German tribes, under pressure from the powerful Suebi, crossed the Rhine and settled in the territory of the Menapii, and were encouraged by the Belgic Gauls. Cæsar refused their request to be allowed to remain, the main point of his policy being to keep the Germans on their own side of the Rhine, but offered them a settlement in the territory of the Ubii. A second embassy, asking for time to consider this proposal, he detained, an action which is open to criticism. Instead of the three days which they asked for, he granted them twenty-four hours, mistrusting the object of their request. During this time a strong force of 5000 German cavalry fell upon 800 cavalry of Cæsar's advance-guard, and he, not sorry to find a pretext for hostilities, marched rapidly upon the main body, who were unprepared for action, and massacred them, not sparing the women and children. Wishing to create an impression of his power in Germany, he hastily built a bridge across the Rhine and showed himself in German territory.

Then followed his first invasion of Britain, which was rather a visit of exploration than an attempt at conquest.

Bk. V. 54 B.C. In the winter Cæsar built a fleet for the second invasion of Britain, and assembled it at Portus Itius (Boulogne). Before starting, he decided to support Cingetorix, in his struggle for the chieftainship of the Treveri, against Indutiomarus, and captured and killed Dumnorix the Hæduan, who refused to accompany him to Britain, and was fomenting disaffection. Crossing to Britain, he met with most opposition from Cassivellaunus, over-lord of the tribes north of the Thames. After the capture of his "town" (St Albans) he submitted, and the opposition of the Britons collapsed. Cæsar could not remain to secure his conquest, but hurried back to Gaul.

He distributed his winter camps widely over Northern Gaul, as is related in ch. xxiv. The Eburones, under Ambiorix, attacked the camp of Sabinus and Cotta, and practically annihilated fifteen cohorts. The example of the Eburones was followed by the Nervii, who assaulted the camp of Cicero, but without the same success; for he held out sturdily till relieved by Cæsar. Unsuccessful, too, was an attack of the Treveri, under Indutiomarus, on Labienus. "After this," says Cæsar, "Gaul was a little quieter."

Bk. VI. 53 B.C. Cæsar crossed the Rhine and conducted another brief campaign against the Germans, and pacified Northern Gaul.

Bk. VII. 52 B.C. Vercingetorix, head of a confederacy in the south, fostered a general rising, but after a stubborn resistance was compelled to surrender.

Bk. VIII. (written by Hirtius, Cæsar's friend and confidant). 51 B.C. A general pacification of Gaul.

The rest of Cæsar's life must be briefly told. During the Gallic War his relations with Pompey, who from a growing fear of his increasing power was trying in every way to thwart him, were becoming more and more strained, and in 49 he crossed the Rubicon and the Civil War began. Pompey fled to Greece, and was defeated at Pharsalus, 48 B.C. He escaped to Alexandria, where he was assassinated. The hopes of the Pompeian or Senatorial party were finally crushed at Thapsus in Africa (46 B.C.) and Munda in Spain (45 B.C.) From this time Cæsar was dictator—emperor in all but name. In 44 B.C. he was murdered by several friends—amongst them Marcus and Decimus Brutus, and C. Cassius. His murder was the last protest against autocracy.

Cæsar was one of the most versatile men that ever lived. He had many sides to his character, and in every sphere of life he achieved pre-eminent success. As a general he ranks among the greatest of the world's history. With a keen eye to the necessities of a situation, he never lost a chance, and always struck his blow with dexterity and swiftness. His task in Gaul was a very arduous one, against strenuous foes—no effete Asiatics, like those of Alexander—and attended with great engineering difficulties—the building of bridges, fleets, and the fortification or the capture of towns—all of which he encountered with consummate skill. He was a commander whose mere presence aroused enthusiasm and confidence, and whose personality commanded the devotion of his staff and troops. Labienus alone failed him.

As a statesman he was the foremost of his day—tactful, resourceful, conciliatory. Opponents like Cicero, who disliked his political principles, had an almost undisguised regard for the man. Sturdy old bigots like Cato alone he failed to win over. Though not emperor in name, he paved the way for the imperial power of Augustus, and his supremacy was achieved with the minimum of civil bloodshed. No reign of terror attended his predominancy in Rome such as had disgraced the power of Marius and Sulla.

As a man of letters he has left work that lives as a standard of clear, forceful, military history. His extant works are—

1. The *Commentarii de Bello Gallico*¹ in eight books, the eighth being composed by Aulus Hirtius. The work, as the name implies, was not intended by Cæsar as an elaborate history, but rather as material for a fuller work. Yet as Cicero² (Brutus, § 262) says, "in wishing that others who meant to write history might have matter at hand to take from, he has perhaps conferred a favour upon fools who may try to curl and crimp the bare beauty of his style; but he has deterred men of sense from writing, for there is nothing more delightful in historical composition than a plain and luminous brevity."

¹ Commentarii. The meaning of this word is (1) "notebook"; (2) "sketch," "memoirs." It is an adjective—sc., libri; Greek, ἐπισημειώσεις.

² Stock's Cæsar, Introduction, p. 13.

It is uncertain whether Cæsar wrote his Commentaries in the midst of his operations piecemeal, or whether he composed the whole at one time. Probably they were written concurrently with events and published as a whole. The probable date is 50 B.C., though all that is known for certain is that they were published before 46 B.C., as Cicero refers to them in his Brutus.

2. Commentarii de Bello Civili. Three books. A history of the war with Pompey and his followers up to the beginning of the Alexandrine War. The histories of the Alexandrine, African, and Spanish wars were probably not written by Cæsar, but by Hirtius.

His lost writings include—

1. De Analogia, a treatise on Latin Grammar, written whilst he was crossing the Alps.
2. Libri Auspicioꝝ.
3. De Astris.
4. Apophthegmata, a collection of bon-mots.
5. Poemata, consisting of Laudes Herculis, and Œdipus, a tragedy.

This list shows his versatility as a writer. As an orator he was esteemed next to Cicero.

Thus Cæsar was general, statesman, historian, poet, scholar, mathematician, engineer.

To discuss his personal character would be impossible here. It can only be briefly summed up. In appearance he was distinguished—tall, fair, with dark keen eyes, and bald. Of his dress he was very careful, almost to dandyism. He have matter at ed a favour upon are beauty of his from writing, for rical composition

Commentaries in whether he com-
they were written
s a whole. The known for certain as Cicero refers to books. A history

up to the beginnings of the Alex-
ere probably not

Grammar, written

ots.
ilis, and Ædipus,

er. As an orator
rian, poet, scholar,

be impossible here.
appearance he was
n eyes, and bald.
o dandyism. He

JULIUS CÆSAR.

po
an
of dit po
fri
of wa
ful
into in v
and ishe
W
the force

The
of Ca 102 r prop
three
He al includ
pilum,
the ma

¹ E.g.
Dumnor
² The cedence

possessed great physical energy, and was a skilful horseman and swimmer, with great powers of endurance.

Fired with high ambition, he let nothing stand in the way of his advancement, with the result that his lavish expenditure left him constantly in debt. He possessed a great power of winning affection and inspiring devotion among friends and subordinates. In humanity he was in advance of an age which knew little mercy. Towards barbarians he was ruthless¹ if policy demanded severe measures, but merciful if expediency allowed. Always careful of his troops, and interested in their welfare and comfort, he had no difficulty in winning their enthusiastic affection. Loyalty he rewarded, and of small faults he was tolerant; but treachery he punished with terrible swiftness.

With such powers and such qualities he forms wellnigh the most interesting figure in history, appealing with special force to Englishmen, whose history he began.

IV.—THE ROMAN ARMY.

The constitution of the Roman army as it was in the time of Caesar dated from the beginning of the first century (106-102 B.C.), when Marius remodelled it, abolishing the old property qualification and the division of the legion into three lines—Hastati,² Principes, and Triarii or Pilani. He also did away with the velites—who were previously included in the legion—armed all the legionaries with the pilum, and made the cohort the tactical unit in place of the maniple.

¹ E.g., in his treatment of the Usipetes and Tencteri, and of Dumnorix.

² These names still survived in the regulation of the order of precedence amongst the centurions. See note on p. xxiv.

The Legion was constituted as follows :—

Two centuries (prior and posterior) made one maniple	120 men
Three maniples made a cohort	360 "
Ten cohorts made a legion	3600 "

If a century included 100 men, the full legion would have numbered 6000, but probably (there is considerable variation of authority and opinion on this question) under Cæsar it contained on an average 60 men, making the normal strength of a legion 3600.

The cohorts took precedence according to their number, the first being the chief.

Besides the legionary soldiers there were—

The Cavalry, consisting of foreign troops—Gauls, Spaniards, Germans. The division was as follows :—

Three decuriæ made one turma	33 men
Ten turmae made one ala	330 "

The Auxiliaries, also consisting of foreign troops, levied or enlisted from the provinces, or contributed by subject states. Slingers (funditores) came from the Balearic Isles; archers (sagittarii) from Crete and Numidia. These were called milites levis armaturæ, levis armatura, or simply leves, and displaced the velites which, in pre-Marian days, had been attached to the legion. These were also called alarii, as they were posted on the wing (ala). N.B.—Both the cavalry and the auxiliaries were branches of the service distinct from the legionaries.

The Engineers or fabri, under a praefectus fabrum.

OFFICERS.

These were—

1. The Dux, or commander-in-chief, who, according to custom, received the title of Imperator after his first victory. Cæsar was so hailed after his success over the Helvetii.

2. The Legati, who formed the commander's "staff." They were men of senatorial rank, and were assigned to the emperor by the Senate. Cæsar had ten. Under his authority they commanded the various armies, and took his place in his absence.

3. The Quæstores, or paymasters, who were annually elected by the people in the comitiâ centuriata, and assigned, one to each commander, by lot. Their duties were to administer the finances of the province, to supervise the soldiers' pay, equipment, clothing, lodging, &c. Occasionally, in the absence of the imperator and legatus, they took the command. Cæsar's quæstor was M. Crassus.

4. The Tribuni Militum, six to each legion, of equestrian rank, partly appointed by the commander, partly elected. In earlier times they had control of the legion, but under Cæsar their powers were considerably curtailed, and they merely formed a channel of communication between the superior and the lower officers, and assisted the quæstor in his administrative duties. They also took part in councils of war and judicial proceedings. They were generally young men of family, "cadets" of great houses.

The Præfecti—also of equestrian rank. This term was loosely applied to the commanders of auxiliary cohorts, who were not necessarily Romans.

The Centurions, or sergeants, of plebeian rank. One was in command of each century. They were, like the lower officers, men of experience, influence, and courage. To them the wonderful efficiency of the legion was mainly ) made one 120 men

360 " 3600 " legion would have siderable variation

y) under Cæsar it
he normal strength

to their number,

ops—Gauls, Span-llows :—

33 men
330 "

oreign troops, levied ributed by subject
he Balearic Isles ; idia. These were natura, or simply pre-Marian days,
were also called
g (ala). N.B.— e branches of the jectus fabrum.

due. They ranked according to the cohorts. The six centuries of the first cohort were called centuriones primorum ordinum,¹ and were admitted to the councils of war. The chief was the centurion of the centuria prior, of the first maniple of the first cohort, and was called primipilaris, or primus, or primipilus.² He had charge of the eagle, though it was actually carried by an aquilifer.

The centurion's symbol of authority was a staff of vine-wood (vitis).

Also attached to the army there were exploratores, scouts (in bodies); speculatores, individual spies; mercatores, traders; lixæ, sutlers; calones, camp-followers, servants, grooms, drivers.

DRESS AND ARMOUR.

The ordinary soldier (miles manipularis or gregarius) wore a tight sleeveless tunic (tunica), fastened by a belt (cingulum) round his waist, and over this a lorica of leather or mail. On his head he wore a leathern helmet (galea) with a removable badge (insigne). The cavalry helmet (cassis) was metal. On his right side, suspended by a balleus or belt, he

¹ Called in brief primi ordines.

² Distinguish between pilum, the weapon, and pilus, the division.

The centurion of each legion had rank according to the precedence of the century and maniple to which he was attached. Of the two centuries in a maniple, the centuria prior ranked above the centuria posterior. In denoting the order of the thirty maniples of each legion, the old names for Triarii (or Pilani), Principes, Hastati (in this order of precedence) were used. Hence the names of the sixty centurions were as follows:—

TRIARI	{ 1st. Primipilaris .
	{ 2nd-10th. Secundus, tertius, &c., to decimus, pilus prior .
	{ 11th-20th. Primus, &c., to decimus, pilus posterior .
PRINCIPES	{ 21st-30th. Primus, &c., to decimus, princeps prior .
	{ 31st-40th. Primus, &c., to decimus, princeps posterior .
HASTATI	{ 41st-50th. Primus, &c., to decimus, hastatus prior .
	{ 51st-60th. Primus, &c., to decimus, hastatus posterior .

The six cen-
s primorum
 of war. The
 of the first triplicaris, or angle, though

aff of vine-

es, scouts (in res, traders;
 ts, grooms,

arius) wore (cingulum) er or mail.
 with a re-cassis) was or belt, he

e division.
 e precedence
 Of the two
 the centuria
 each legion,
 in this order
 y centurions

pilus prior.
terior.
prior.
posterior.
prior.
posterior.

1, 5, Aquila.
 2, 4, Cassis.
 8, Fugio.

6, Litus.
 7, Parma.
 8, Funda.

9, 13, Gladius.
 10, Arcus, Sagitta.
 11, Scutum.

12, Clipeus.
 14, Pilus.
 15, Tragula.

carried a short sword (gladius), two feet long, adapted for stabbing rather than slashing, and on his left arm a curved oblong shield (scutum), four feet by two, made of wood, linen, and leather, with an iron rim and a metal boss (umbo). The outside was adorned with a device, such as a winged thunderbolt.

He also carried a pilum or "spear" six or seven feet long, with a wooden shaft, and barbed iron head weighing about three pounds, and capable of being hurled 100 feet. His right leg was guarded by a greave (ocrea), and his feet covered with heavy boots (caligæ).

His private "kit" (sarcina) he carried tied on a forked pole invented by Marius, and called molus marianus.

STANDARDS.

General term signa. That of the legion was an eagle (aquila) of metal on a wooden pole in charge of the primitivus, but carried by the aquilifer. It might have a small banner attached, inscribed with the designation of the legion.

The standard of the cohort was called specially signum, that of the cavalry, vesillum.

ORDER OF BATTLE.

Each legion was usually drawn up in three lines (triplex acies), arranged like the figure $\cdot \cdot \cdot$ on a die (in quinquecentum), four cohorts in the front rank and three each in the second and third. The three maniples of each cohort stood side by side, and the two centuries of each maniple the one behind the other. As soon as the trumpet sounded the charge was made, the men first hurling their pila and then closing with their short swords. When the front line was wearied, the second marched through the gaps in front and took its place. The third was kept in reserve in case of the failure of the other two. On the wings were the auxiliaries and cavalry, ready to pursue the enemy when routed by the legionaries.

Arrangement of cohorts.

V.—ELEMENTARY HINTS ON TRANSLATION.

It may not be out of place to add a few words on the manner and method of translation. Several years' experience of form-work tells me how needful such hints are, however trite and obvious they may seem.

1. Above all, realise that Cæsar is a great historian, writing consecutive sense, and not a series of Latin sentences to be used by modern school-boys as a Delectus. As you read, think of what he is talking about: unless you do this, you cannot possibly translate. Never read without realising the narrative or following the train of thought.

2. When you have made out the drift of a passage, put it into English words that an English writer might use. Avoid 'translationese,' a jargon which always makes fides, "faith"; res, "a thing" or "affair"; gerere, "wage"; certior factus, "having been made more certain," &c.

3. Translate from Latin idiom into English idiom, and then you will learn to do idiomatic Latin prose, the reverse process; e.g., quibus auditis Cæsar, NOT "which things having been heard, Cæsar," NET, "Cæsar, hearing this." Thereby you will avoid Cæsar, audiens hæc in your own Latin prose; urbem captam incendit, NOT "he burnt the captured city," NET "he took and burnt the city."

4. Always read a chapter straight through once, making out as much as you can of it. Then return and translate carefully. You will thus get the drift of the passage. If you cannot make out the meaning of one sentence, go on to the next: it will very likely explain it.

5. Notice the order. Much of the force of Latin prose lies in this. It is not a Chinese puzzle, or a jumble of words arranged in kaleidoscopic patterns.

6. Be careful of et. Whenever you see it, look to see whether it means "and," "also," or "even." So with quod, either the relative or "because."

7. Never pass a subjunctive without finding out why the mood is used. Do not think "may" and "might" will translate every subjunctive.

8. Always read the Latin with a view to translating English into Latin. Store up a vocabulary gradually by trying to remember each new word.

9. Be careful of the relative. Whenever it comes first word in a sentence, look on to the end carefully to see whether it is a real relative introducing a subordinate clause, with the principal verb following—e.g., quæ ab illo accepi, (illa) ad te mittam, "I will send you what I have received"; or whether it is merely the very common connective relative, equivalent to et is, ea, id, &c., often introducing the principal sentence—e.g., qua re nuntiata discedunt, where qua = et ea.

hearing this."
in your own
he burnt the city."

once, making and translate passage. If once, go on to

f Latin prose
mble of words

, look to see
." So with out why the

"might" will

o translating gradually by

it comes first efully to see
ordinate clause,
ab illo accepi,
ve received";
relative,
the principal
where qua =

1. Slinger. 2. Light-armed soldier. 3. Soldier of the legion. 4. A soldier's kit.
5. Signiferi. 6. Bucinator. 7. Tubicen. 8. Vexillum. 9. Aquila.

T

I Ma mag
non quod
et a S orum quot educ
hi ru
Sic n
Sed
ius a mult
vivun

CÆSAR'S GALLIC WAR.

BOOK IV.

CHAPTER I.

The Usipetes and Tencteri, hard pressed by the Suebi, cross the Rhine—Manners and customs of the Suebi.

Ea, quae secuta est, hieme, qui fuit annus Cnaeo Pompeio, Marco Crasso consulibus, Usipetes Germani et item Tencteri magna cum multitudine hominum flumen Rhenum transierunt non longe a mari, quo Rhenus influit. Causa transeundi fuit, quod ab Suebis complures annos exagitati bello premebantur et agri cultura prohibebantur. 1 5

Sueborum gens est longe maxima et bellicosissima Germanorum omnium. Hi centum pagos habere dicuntur, ex quibus quotannis singula milia armatorum bellandi causa ex finibus educunt. Reliqui, qui domi manserunt, se atque illos alunt; hi rursus in vicem anno post in armis sunt, illi domi remanent. Sic neque agri cultura nec ratio atque usus belli intermittitur. Sed privati ac separati agri apud eos nihil est, neque longius anno remanere uno in loco colendi causa licet. Neque multum frumento, sed maximam partem lacte atque pecore vivunt, multumque sunt in venationibus; quae res et cibi 15

genere et cotidiana exercitatione et libertate vitæ, quod a pueris nullo officio aut disciplina adsuefacti nihil omnino contra voluntatem faciunt, et vires alit et immani corporum 20 magnitudine homines efficit. Atque in eam se consuetudinem adduxerunt, ut locis frigidissimis neque vestitus præter pellis haberent quicquam, quarum propter exiguitatem magna est corporis pars aperta, et lavarentur in nummibus.

CHAPTER II.

Manners and customs—Continued.

1 Mercatoribus est aditus magis eo, ut, quæ bello ceperint, quibus vendant, habeant, quam quo ullam rem ad se importari desiderent. Quin etiam iumentis, quibus maxime Galli
 5 delectantur quæque impenso parant pretio, importatis non utuntur, sed, quæ sunt apud eos nata, parva atque deformia, hæc cotidiana exercitatione, summi ut sint laboris, efficiunt. Equestribus proeliis sæpe ex equis desiliunt ac pedibus proeliantur, equosque eodem remanere vestigio adsuefecerunt, ad
 10 quos se celeriter, cum usus est, recipiunt; neque eorum moribus turpius quicquam aut inertius habetur quam ephippiis uti. Itaque ad quemvis numerum ephippiatorum equitum quamvis pauci adire audent. Vinum omnino ad se importari non patiuntur, quod ea re ad laborem ferendum remollescere homines atque effeminari arbitrantur.

CHAPTER III.

Boundary policy of Suebi—Their relations with the Ubii.

1 Publice maximam putant esse laudem, quam latissime a suis finibus vacare agros: hac re significari, magnum nuvitae, quod a

nihil omnino
mani corporum
consuetudinem
s praeter pellis
em magna est
is.

bello ceperint,
m ad se imports maxime Galli importatis non atque deformia,
laboris, efficiunt.
ac pedibus proe-
dsuefecerunt, ad
; neque eorum
ur quam ephip-ppiatorum equi-omnino ad se em ferendum re-
tur.

with the Ubii.

quam latissime a
ari, magnum nu-

merum civitatum suam vim sustinere non posse. Itaque una ex parte a Suebis circiter milia passuum centum agri vacare dicuntur. Ad alteram partem succedunt Ubii, quorum fuit 5 civitas ampla atque florens, ut est captus Germanorum; ii paulo, quanquam sunt eiusdem generis, sunt ceteris humani-ores, propterea quod Rhenum attingunt, multumque ad eos mercatores ventitant, et ipsi propter propinquitatem Gallicis sunt moribus adsuefacti. Hos cum Suebi, multis saepe bellis 10 experti, propter amplitudinem gravitatemque civitatis finibus expellere non potuissent, tamen vectigales sibi fecerunt ac multo humiliores infirmioresque redegerunt.

CHAPTER IV.

The Usipetes and Tencteri surprise and overcome the Menapii, and settle in their country.

In eadem causa fuerunt Usipetes et Tencteri, quos supra 1 diximus; qui complures annos Sueborum vim sustinuerunt, ad extremum tamen agris expulsi et multis locis Germaniae triennium vagati ad Rhenum pervenerunt, quas regiones Menapii incolebant. Hi ad utramque ripam fluminis agros, 5 aedificia vicosque habebant; sed tantae multitudinis adventu perterriti ex iis aedificiis, quae trans flumen habuerant, demigraverant et cis Rhenum dispositis praesidiis Germanos transire prohibebant. Illi omnia experti, cum neque vi con- 10 tendere propter inopiam navium neque clam transire propter custodias Menapiorum possent, reverti se in suas sedes re-gionesque simulaverunt et tridui viam progressi rursus revert-erunt atque omni hoc itinere una nocte equitatu confecto inscios inopinantesque Menapios oppresserunt, qui de Ger- 15 manorum discessu per exploratores certiores facti sine metu trans Rhenum in suos vicos remigraverant. His interfectis navibusque eorum occupatis, prius quam ea pars Menapiorum, quae citra Rhenum erat, certior fieret, flumen transierunt atque omnibus eorum aedificiis occupatis reliquam partem 20 hiemis se eorum copiis aluerunt.

CHAPTER V.

Cæsar, knowing the unstable and fickle character of the Gauls, determines not to trust them.

1 His de rebus Cæsar certior factus et infirmitatem Gallorum veritus, quod sunt in consiliis capiendis mobiles et novis plerumque rebus student, nihil his committendum existim-avit. Est enim hoc Gallicae consuetudinis, uti et viatores 5 etiam invitos consistere cogant et, quid quisque eorum de quaque re audierit aut cognoverit, quaerant, et mercatores in oppidis vulgus circumstiat, quibusque ex regionibus veniant quasque ibi res cognoverint, pronuntiare cogat. His rebus atque auditionibus permoti de summis saepe rebus 10 consilia ineunt, quorum eos in vestigio paenitere necesse est, cum incertis rumoribus serviant et plerique ad voluntatem eorum ficta respondeant.

CHAPTER VI.

His suspicions are realised—The Gauls invite further advance of the Usipetes and Tencteri—He conceals his mistrust, and summons a council of Gallic chieftains—Determines to make war on the encroaching Germans.

1 Qua consuetudine cognita Cæsar, ne graviori bello occurreret, maturius quam consuevit ad exercitum profiscitur.
 Eo cum venisset, ea, quae fore suspicatus erat, facta cognovit:

missas legationes ab non nullis civitatibus ad Germanos invitatosque eos, uti ab Rheno discederent: omnia, quae post-ulassent, ab se fore parata. Qua spe adducti Germani latius iam vagabantur et in fines Eburonum et Condrusorum, qui sunt Treverorum clientes, pervenerant. Principibus Galliae evocatis Caesar ea, quae cognoverat, dissimulanda sibi existimavit eorumque animis permulsis et confirmatis equitatuque imperato bellum cum Germanis gerere constituit. 5 10

CHAPTER VII.

He is met by a deputation from the Germans, who proffer friendship if allowed to remain in Gaul, but are ready to fight if refused.

Re frumentaria comparata equitibusque delectis iter in ea loca facere coepit, quibus in locis esse Germanos audiebat. 1 A quibus cum paucorum dierum iter abesset, legati ab iis venerunt, quorum haec fuit oratio: Germanos neque priores populo Romano bellum inferre, neque tamen recusare, si lacessantur, quin armis contendant, quod Germanorum con- 5 suetudo sit a maioribus tradita, quicumque bellum inferant, resistere neque deprecari. Haec tamen dicere, venisse in-vitos, eiectos domo; si suam gratiam Romani velint, posse iis utiles esse amicos; vel sibi agros attribuant vel patiantur 10 eos tenere, quos armis possederint: sese unis Suebis concedere, quibus ne di quidem immortales pares esse possint; reliquum quidem in terris esse neminem, quem non superare possint.

CHAPTER VIII.

Cæsar answers that he cannot allow them to remain in Gaul, but will let them settle in the territory of the Ubii.

- 1 Ad hæc, quæ visum est, Cæsar respondit; sed exitus fuit orationis; Sibi nullam cum iis amicitiam esse posse, si in Gallia remanerent; neque verum esse, qui suos fines tueri non potuerint, alienos occupare; neque ullos in Gallia vacare
- 5 agros, qui dari tantæ præsertim multitudini sine iniuria possint; sed licere, si velint, in Ubiorum finibus considerare, quorum sint legati apud se et de Sueborum iniuriis querantur et a se auxilium petant: hoc se Ubiis imperaturum.

CHAPTER IX.

The envoys ask two days for consideration—Cæsar, knowing that this request is made merely to allow time for their cavalry to join them, refuses it.

- 1 Legati hæc se ad suos relatores dixerunt et re deliberata post diem tertium ad Caesarem reversuros; interea ne propius se castra moveret, petierunt. Ne id quidem Cæsar ab se impetrari posse dixit. Cognoverat enim, magnam partem
- 5 equitatus ab iis aliquot diebus ante prædandi frumentandique causa ad Ambivaritos trans Mosam missam: hos exspectari equites atque eius rei causa moram interponi arbitrabatur.

CHAPTER X.

Description of the Meuse and Rhine.

- 1 Mosa profluit ex monte Vosego, qui est in finibus Lingonum, et parte quadam ex Rheno recepta, quæ appellatur

BOOK IV.

Vaalus, insulam efficit Batavorum, neque longius inde milibus passuum LXXX in Oceanum influit. Rhenus autem oritur ex Lepontiis, qui Alpes incolunt, et longo spatio per fines Nantnatum, Helvetiorum, Sequanorum, Mediomatricum, Tribocorum, Treverorum citatus fertur et, ubi Oceano adpropinquavit, in plures diffluit partes multis ingentibusque insulis effectis, quarum pars magna a feris barbarisque nationibus incolitur,—ex quibus sunt, qui piscibus atque ovis avium vivere existimantur,—multisque capitibus in Oceanum influit.

CHAPTER XI.

Caesar advances—More parleying and requests for delay—Caesar is suspicious, but orders his cavalry to abstain from hostilities.

Caesar cum ab hoste non amplius passuum XII milibus abesset, ut erat constitutum, ad eum legati revertuntur; qui in itinere congressi magnopere, ne longius progredere, orabant. Cum id non impetrassent, petebant, uti ad eos equites, qui agmen antecessissent, praemitteret eosque pugna prohiberet, sibi que ut potestatem faceret in Ubios legatos mittendi; quorum si principes ac senatus sibi iureiurando fidem fecisset, ea condicione, quae a Caesare ferretur, se usuros ostendebant: ad has res conficiendas sibi tridui spatium daret. Haec omnia Caesar eodem illo pertinere arbitrabatur, ut tridui mora interposita equites eorum, qui abessent, reverterentur; tamen sese non longius milibus passuum IV aquationis causa processurum eo die dixit: huc postero die quam frequentissimi convenirent, ut de eorum postulatis cognosceret. Interim ad praefectos, qui cum omni equitatu antecesserant, mittit, qui nuntiarent, ne hostes proelio lacesserent et, si ipsi lacesserentur, sustinerent, quoad ipse cum exercitu propius accessisset.

CHAPTER XII.

The German cavalry treacherously attack the Romans, and rout them—Heroism of Piso and his brother.

- 1 At hostes, ubi primum nostros equites conspexerunt, quorum erat v milium numerus, cum ipsi non amplius octingentos equites haberent, quod ii, qui frumentandi causa ierant trans Mosam, nondum relierant, nihil timentibus
- 5 nostris, quod legati eorum paulo ante a Caesare discesserant atque is dies indutiis erat ab his petitus, impetu facto celeriter nostros perturbaverunt; rursus his resistantibus, consuetudine sua ad pedes desiluerunt, subfossisque equis compluribusque nostris deiectis reliquos in fugam coniecerunt atque
- 10 ita perterritos egerunt, ut non prius fuga desisterent, quam in conspectum agminis nostri venissent. In eo proelio ex equitibus nostris interficiuntur IV et LXX, in his vir fortissimus Piso Aquitanus, amplissimo genere natus, cuius avus in civitate sua regnum obtinuerat, amicus a senatu nostro appellatus.
- 15 Hic cum fratri intercluso ab hostibus auxilium ferret, illum ex periculo eripuit, ipse equo vulnerato deiectus, quoad potuit, fortissime restitit; cum circumventus multis vulneribus acceptis cecidisset atque id frater, qui iam proelio excesserat, procul animadvertisset, incitato equo se hostibus
- 20 obtulit atque interfectus est.

CHAPTER XIII.

Cæsar decides on prompt and vigorous action—A large and influential deputation arrives from the Germans to apologise for the treachery—Cæsar detains them and advances.

- 1 Hoc facto proelio Cæsar neque iam sibi legatos audiendos neque condiciones accipiendas arbitratur ab iis, qui per dol

exp
reve
Gall lio a capi
rebu quen
quod
fidia que
diec tum si qui Cæsa
castr
esse e

The

Acie
fecto p Germa
riti et consili bantur,
ere, an fremitu perfidia
arma c

Romans, and rother.

conspexerunt,
amplius octin-
entandi causa
hil timentibus
re discesserant
etu facto celerentibus, consue-
equis compluri-
iecerunt atque
sisterent, quam eo proelio ex
his vir fortissicuius avus in nostro appella-
uxilium ferret, leiectus, quoad
multis vulneri-
um proelio ex-
to se hostibus

A large and mans to apolo-
and advances.

atos audiendos
b iis, qui per

dolum atque insidias, petita pace, ultro bellum intulissent; expectare vero, dum hostium copiae auferentur equitatusque reverteretur, summae dementiae esse iudicabat, et cognita Gallorum infirmitate, quantum iam apud eos hostes uno proelio auctoritatis essent consecreti, sentiebat; quibus ad consilia capienda nihil spatii dandum existimabat. His constitutis rebus et consilio eum legatis et quaestore communicato, ne quem diem pugnae praetermitteret, opportunissima res accidit, quod postridie eius diei mane eadem et simulatione et perfidia usi Germani frequentes omnibus principibus maioribusque natu adhibitis ad eum in castra venerunt, simul, ut dicebatur, purgandi sui causa, quod contra, atque esset dictum et ipsi petissent, proelium pridie comississent, ut si quid possent, de indutiis fallendo impetrarent. Quos sibi Caesar oblatos gavisus illos retineri iussit; ipse omnes copias castris eduxit equitatumque, quod recenti proelio perterritum esse existimabat, agmen subsequi iussit.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Germans, surprised, offer but little resistance—Caesar sends cavalry in pursuit of the women and children.

Acie triplici instituta et celeriter viii milium itinere confecto prius ad hostium castra pervenit, quam, quid ageretur, Germani sentire possent. Qui omnibus rebus subito perterriti et celeritate adventus nostri et discessu suorum, neque consilii habendi neque arma capiendi spatio dato, perturbantur, copiasne adversus hostem ducere, an castra defendere, an fuga salutem petere praestaret. Quorum timor cum fremitu et concursu significaretur, milites nostri pristini diei perfidia incitati in castra inruperunt. Quo loco, qui celeriter arma capere potuerunt, paulisper nostris restiterunt atque inter carros impeditaque proelium commiserunt; at reliqua multitudo puerorum mulierumque—nam cum omnibus suis domo excesserant Rhenumque transierant—passim fugere coepit; ad quos consecutandos Cæsar equitatum misit.

CHAPTER XV.

The Germans are slain or drowned—Bloodless victory of the Romans—Cæsar offers to allow the deputation that he had detained to depart, but they prefer to remain.

1 Germani, post tergum clamore audito, cum suos interfici viderent, armis abiectis signisque militaribus relictis se ex castris eiecerunt, et cum ad confluentem Mosae et Rheni pervenissent, reliqua fuga desperata, magno numero inter-
5 fecto, reliqui se in flumen praecepitaverunt atque ibi timore, lassitudine, vi fluminis oppressi perierunt. Nostri ad unum omnes incolumes, perpaucis vulneratis, ex tanti belli timore, cum hostium numerus capitum cccxxx milium fuisset, se in castra receperunt. Cæsar iis, quos in castris retinuerat, 10 discedendi potestatem fecit. Illi supplicia cruciatusque Gallorum veriti, quorum agros vexaverant, remanere se apud eum velle dixerunt. His Cæsar libertatem concessit.

CHAPTER XVI.

Cæsar determines to cross the Rhine into Germany—His reasons: (a) non-compliance of the Sugambri with his demands; (b) urgent request from the Ubii for aid against the Suebi.

1 Germanico bello confecto multis de causis Cæsar statuit sibi Rhenum esse transeundum; quarum illa fuit iustissima, quod, cum videret Germanos tam facile impelli, ut in Galliam amiserunt; at rem-

nam cum omnibus
nt—passim fugere
tum misit.

ess victory of the ation that he had main.

um suos interfici
ous relictis se ex
Mosae et Rheni
o numero inter-
atque ibi timore, Nostri ad unum
anti belli timore, ilium fuisset, se
astris retinuerat,
ia cruciatusque
emanere se apud
concessit.

Germany -- His
bri with his defor aid against

Caesar statuit
fuit iustissima,
, ut in Galliam

venirent, suis quoque rebus eos timere voluit, cum intellegerent, et posse et audere populi Romani exercitum Rhenum 5 transire. Accessit etiam, quod illa pars equitatus Usipetum et Teneterorum, quam supra commemoravi praedandi frumen-tandique causa Mosam transisse neque proelio interfuisse, post fugam suorum se trans Rhenum in fines Sugambrorum receperat seque cum iis coniunxerat. Ad quos cum Caesar 10 nuntios misisset, qui postularent, eos, qui sibi Galliaeque bellum intulissent, sibi dederent, responderunt: Populi Romani imperium Rhenum finire: si se invito Germanos in Galliam transire non aequum existimaret, cur sui quicquam esse imperii aut potestatis trans Rhenum postularet? Ubii 15 autem, qui uni ex Transrhenanis ad Caesarem legatos mis-erant, amicitiam fecerant, obsides dederant, magnopere orabant, ut sibi auxilium ferret, quod graviter ab Suebis premerentur; vel, si id facere occupationibus rei publicae prohiberetur, exercitum modo Rhenum transportaret: id sibi 20 ad auxilium spemque reliqui temporis satis futurum. Tan-tum esse nomen atque opinionem eius exercitus Ariovisto pulso et hoc novissimo proelio facto etiam ad ultimas Germanorum nationes, uti opinione et amicitia populi Romani tuti esse possent. Navium magnam copiam ad transportandum 25 exercitum pollicebantur.

CHAPTER XVII.

Description of Cæsar's bridge across the Rhine.

Caesar his de causis, quas commemoravi, Rhenum transire 1 deceverat; sed navibus transire neque satis tutum esse arbitrabatur, neque suae neque populi Romani dignitatis esse statuebat. Itaque, etsi summa difficultas faciendi pontis proponeretur propter latitudinem, rapiditatem altitudinemque 5

- fluminis, tamen id sibi contendendum aut aditer non traducendum exercitum existimabat. Rationem pontis hanc instituit. Tigna bina sesquipedalia paulum ab imo præcæuta dimensa ad altitudinem fluminis intervallo pedum duorum inter se
- 10 iungebat. Hæc cum machinationibus inmissa in flumen defixerat fistucisque adegerat, non publicæ modo directæ ad perpendicularum, sed prone ac fastigate, ut secundum naturam fluminis procumberent, iis item contraria duo ad eundem modum iuncta intervallo pedum quadragenum ab
- 15 inferiore parte contra vim atque impetum fluminis conversa statuebat. Hæc utraque insuper bipedalibus trabibus inmissis, quantum eorum tignorum iunctura distabat, binis utrimque fibulis ab extrema parte distinebantur; quibus disclusis atque in contrariam partem revinctis tanta erat
- 20 operis firmitudo atque ea rerum natura, ut, quo maior vis aquæ se incitavisset, hoc artius inligata tenerentur. Hæc directæ materia iniecta contexebantur ac longuriis cratibusque consternebantur; ac nihilo setius publicæ et ad inferiorem partem fluminis oblique agebantur, quæ pro ariete subiectæ
- 25 et cum omni opere coniunctæ vim fluminis exciperent, et aliæ item supra pontem mediocri spatio, ut, si arborum trunci sive naves deiciendi operis essent a barbaris inmissæ, his defensoribus earum rerum vis minueretur, neu ponti nocerent.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Cæsar leads his army across—Deputations arrive from many states seeking peace and friendship—Retreat of the Sugambri.

- 1 Diebus x, quibus materia coepta erat comportari, omni opere effecto exercitus traducitur. Cæsar ad utramque partem pontis firmo præsidio relicto in fines Sugambrorum contendit. Interim a compluribus civitatibus ad eum legati ven

resp eo t hort
habe
sequ

Cæsar
Su
de fo
th

Cæ
ædific
Ubi
Suebis
quam concilio oppidis
deponer
locum gionum
adventu
Quod u
quarum
Germani
Ubios ob
consump
arbitratu

veniunt; quibus pacem atque amicitiam petentibus liberaliter respondit obsidesque ad se adduci iubet. At Sugambri ex eo tempore, quo pons institui coeptus est, fuga comparata hortantibus iis, quos ex Tencteris atque Usipetibus apud se habebant, finibus suis excesserant suaque omnia exportaverant seque in solitudinem ac silvas abdidérant.

5
10

CHAPTER XIX.

Caesar devastates their country—Learns from the Ubii that the Sugambri in their forest retreat are determined to offer desperate resistance—But having accomplished the objects for which he crossed the Rhine, recrosses it and destroys the bridge.

Caesar paucos dies in eorum finibus moratus omnibus vicis aedificiisque incensis frumentisque successis se in fines Ubiorum recepit atque his auxilium suum pollicitus, si a Suebis premerentur, haec ab iis cognovit: Suebos, postea-quam per exploratores pontem fieri comperissent, more suo concilio habito nuntios in omnes partes dimisisse, uti de oppidis demigrarent, liberos, uxores suaque omnia in silvis deponerent, atque omnes, qui arma ferre possent, unum in locum convenirent: hunc esse delectum medium fere regionum earum, quas Stabi obtinerent; hic Romanorum adventum expectare atque ibidem decertare constituisse.
 Quod ubi Caesar comperit, omnibus iis rebus confectis, quarum rerum causa traducere exercitum constituerat, ut Germanis metum inieceret, ut Sugambros ulcisceretur, ut Ubios obsidione liberaret, diebus omnino xviii trans Rhenum consumptis, satis et ad laudem et ad utilitatem profectum arbitratus, se in Galliam recepit pontemque reseidit.

I

5

10

15

iter non traducen
 tis hanc instituit.
 rariocuta dimensa
 duorum inter se
 mmissa in flumen
 ae modo derecte
 e, ut secundum
 contraria duo ad quadragenam ab
 luminis conversa
 bus trabibus im-
 a distabat, binis ebantur; quibus
 metis tanta erat
 , quo maior vis
 merentur. Haec
 uris cratibusque
 et ad inferiorem
 ariete subiectae is exciperent, et ut, si arborum
 rbaris immissae.
 etur, neu ponti

ive from many rest of the Su-

mportari, omni
 ad utramque Sugambrorum
 ad eum legati

CHAPTER XX.

Cæsar determines to invade Britain—His reasons: (a) because help had come thence to the Gauls; (b) desire to explore unknown regions.

- 1 Exigua parte aestatis reliqua Cæsar, etsi in his locis, quod omnis Gallia ad septentriones vergit, maturæ sunt hiemes, tamen in Britanniam proficisci contendit, quod omnibus fere Gallicis bellis hostibus nostris inde subministrata auxilia 5 intellegebat et, si tempus ad bellum gerendum deficeret, tamen magno sibi usui fore arbitrabatur, si modo insulam adisset, genus hominum perspexisset, loca, portus, aditus cognovisset; quæ omnia fere Gallis erant incognita. Neque enim temere præter mercatores illo adit quisquam, neque 10 his ipsis quicquam præter oram maritimam atque eas regiones, quæ sunt contra Gallias, notum est. Itaque vocatis ad se undique mercatoribus, neque quanta esset insulæ magnitudo, neque quæ aut quantæ nationes incolerent, neque quem usum belli haberent aut quibus institutis ute-15 rentur, neque qui essent ad maiorum navium multitudinem idonei portus, reperire poterat.

CHAPTER XXI.

Cæsar sends Volusenus on to explore—Assembles fleet and army at the coast of the Morini—Envoys come from Britain offering submission—Cæsar sends them back with generous promises and with them Commius—Volusenus returns and reports.

- 1 Ad hæc cognoscenda, priusquam periculum faceret, idoneum esse arbitratus C. Volusenum cum navi longa præmittit. Huic mandat, ut exploratis omnibus rebus ad se quam

primu
 profici
 traicet
 quam
 classen
 per me civitati
 dare at auditis,
 perman
 quem ip
 et virtu arbitrab
 habebat hortetur
 celeriter
 bus, qua
 se barbar
 revertitu

The M

Dum in ur, ex ma te de supe barbari et Romano f erentur. I quod nequ
 belli geren

primum revertatur. Ipse cum omnibus copiis in Morinos proficiscitur, quod inde erat brevissimus in Britanniam 5 traiectus. Hinc naves undique ex finitimis regionibus et, quam superiore aestate ad Veneticum bellum fecerat classem, iubet convenire. Interim consilio eius cognito et per mercatores perlato ad Britannos, a compluribus insulae civitatibus ad eum legati veniunt, qui polliceantur obsides 10 dare atque imperio populi Romani obtemperare. Quibus auditis, liberaliter pollicitus hortatusque, ut in ea sententia permanerent, eos domum remittit, et cum iis una Commium, quem ipse Atrebatibus superatis regem ibi constituerat, cuius et virtutem et consilium probabat et quem sibi fidelem esse 15 arbitrabatur, cuiusque auctoritas in his regionibus magni habebatur, mittit. Huic imperat, quas possit, adeat civitates horteturque, ut populi Romani fidem sequantur, seque ecleriter eo venturum nuntiet. Volusenus perspectis regionibus, quantum ei facultatis dari potuit, qui navi egredi ac 20 se barbaris committere non auderet, quinto die ad Caesarem revertitur, quaeque ibi perspexisset, renuntiat.

CHAPTER XXII.

The Morini apologise and submit—Caesar's arrangements before crossing.

Dum in his locis Caesar navium parandarum causa mora- 1 tur, ex magna parte Morinorum ad eum legati venerunt, qui se de superioris temporis consilio excusarent, quod homines barbari et nostrae consuetudinis imperiti bellum populo Romano fecissent, seque ea, quae imperasset, facturos pollic- 5 erentur. Hoc sibi Caesar satis opportune accidisse arbitratus, quod neque post tergum hostem relinquere volebat neque belli gerendi propter anni tempus facultatem habebat neque has tantularum rerum occupationes Britanniae anteponeudas 10 iudicabat, magnum iis numerum obsidum imperat. Quibus adductis eos in fidem recepit. Navibus circiter LXXX onerariiis coactis, quot satis esse ad duas transportandas legiones existimabat, quod praeterea navium longarum habebat, quaes-15 tori, legatis praefectisque distribuit. Huc accedebant XVIII onerario naves, quae ex eo loco a militibus passuum VIII vento tenebantur, quo minus in eundem portum venire pos-sent: has equitibus distribuit. Reliquum exercitum Quinto Titurio Sabino et Lucio Aurunculeio Cottae legatis in Mena-pios atque in eos pagos Morinorum, a quibus ad eum legati 20 non venerant, ducendum dedit; Publium Sulpicium Rufum legatum cum eo praesidio, quod satis esse arbitrabatur, portum tenere iussit.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Cæsar reaches the British coast in advance of his cavalry transports—Finds the cliffs lined with the enemy—Waits for the other vessels—Instructs his officers on the nature of their task—Reaches an open beach.

1 His constitutis rebus nactus idoneam ad navigandum tem-pestatem tertia fere vigilia solvit equitesque in ulteriorem portum progredi et naves conscendere et se sequi iussit. A quibus cum paulo tardius esset administratum, ipse hora 5 diei circiter quarta cum primis navibus Britanniam attigit atque ibi in omnibus collibus expositas hostium copias armatas conspexit. Cuius loci haec erat natura, atque ita montibus anguste mare continebatur, uti ex locis superior-ibus in litus telum adigi posset. Hunc ad egrediendum 10 nequaquam idoneum locum arbitratus, dum reliquae naves eo convenirent, ad horam nonam in ancoris expectavit. Interim legatis tribunisque militum convocatis, et quae ex

Voluseno cognovisset et quae fieri vellet, ostendit monuitque, ut rei militaris ratio, maxime ut maritimae res postulerent, ut quae celerem atque instabilem motum haberent, ad nutum et ad tempus omnes res ab iis administrarentur. His dimissis et ventum et nestum uno tempore nactus secundum, dato signo et sublatis ancoris circiter milia passuum septem ab eo loco progressus, aperto ac plano litore naves constituit. 15

CHAPTER XXIV.

Opposition of the natives to his landing—Difficulties of the Romans.

At barata, consilio Romanorum cognito, praemisso equitatu et essedariis, quo plerumque genere in proeliis uti consuerunt, reliquis copiis subsecuti nostros naves egredi prohibebant. Erat ob has causas summa difficultas, quod naves propter magnitudinem nisi in alto constitui non poterant, militibus autem ignotis locis, impeditis manibus, magno et gravi onere armorum pressis simul et de navibus desiliendum et in fluctibus consistendum et cum hostibus erat pugnandum, cum illi aut ex arido aut paulum in aquam progressi omnibus membris expeditis, notissimis locis audacter tela coicerent et equos insuefactos incitarent. Quibus rebus nostri perterriti atque huius omnino generis pugnae imperiti non eadem alacritate ac studio, quo in pedestribus uti proeliis consueverant, utebantur. 10

CHAPTER XXV.

Caesar's tactics—Bravery of a standard-bearer.

Quod ubi Caesar animadvertit, naves longas, quarum et species erat barbaris inusitatio et motus ad usum expeditior, 1 paulum removeri ab onerariis navibus et remis incitari et ad latus apertum hostium constitui atque inde fundis, sagittis, 5 tormentis hostes propelli ac submoveri iussit; quae res magno usui nostris fuit. Nam et navium figura et remorum motu et inusitato genere tormentorum permoti barbari constiterunt ac paulum etiam pedem rettulerunt. Atque nostris militibus cunctantibus, maxime propter altitudinem maris, 10 qui decimae legionis aquilam ferebat, obstatus deos, ut ea res legioni feliciter eveniret, Desilite, inquit, commilitones, nisi vultis aquilam hostibus prodere: ego certè meum rei publicae atque imperatori officium praestitero. Hoc cum voce magna dixisset, se ex navi proiecit atque in hostes aquilam ferro 15 coepit. Tum nostri cohortati inter se, ne tantum dedecus admitteretur, universi ex navi desiluerunt. Hos item ex proximis navibus cum conspexissent, subsequuti hostibus adpropinquarunt.

CHAPTER XXVI.

A hard struggle—Danger of the Romans—At last they effect a landing.

1 Pugnatum est ab utrisque acriter. Nostri tamen, quod neque ordines servare neque firmiter insistere neque signa subsequi poterant, atque alius alia ex navi, quibuscumque signis occurrerat, se adgregabat, magnopere perturbabantur; 5 hostes vero, notis omnibus vadis, ubi ex litore aliquos singulares ex navi egredientes conspexerant, incitatis equis impeditos adoriebantur, plures paucos circumstebant, alii ab latere aperto in universos tela coiciebant. Quod cum animadver-tisset Caesar, scaphas longarum navium, item speculatoria 10 navigia militibus compleri iussit et, quos laborantes con-spexerat, his subsidia submittebat. Nostri, simul in arido constiterunt, suis omnibus consecutis in hostes impetum fecerunt atque eos in fugam dederunt, neque longius prosequi potuerunt, quod equites cursum tenere atque insulam capere non potuerant. Hoc unum ad pristinam fortunam Caesari 15 defuit.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Submission of the Britons—They apologise for their treatment of Commius—Caesar answers graciously—More tribes submit.

Hostes proelio superati, simul atque se ex fuga receperunt, statim ad Caesarem legatos de pace miserunt, obsides daturus, quaeque imperasset, facturos sese polliciti sunt. Una cum his legatis Commius Atrebas venit, quem supra demonstraveram a Caesare in Britanniam praemisum. Hunc illi e navi egressum, cum ad eos oratoris modo Caesaris mandata deferret, comprehenderant atque in vincula coniecerant; tum proelio facto remiserunt et in petenda pace eius rei culpam in multitudinem contulerunt et propter imprudentiam ut ignosceretur, petiverunt. Caesar questus, quod, cum ultro in continentem legatis missis pacem ab se petissent, bellum sine causa intulissent, ignoscere imprudentiae dixit obsidesque imperavit; quorum illi partem statim dederunt, partem ex longinquioribus locis arcessitam paucis diebus sese daturus dixerunt. Interea suos remigrare in agros iusserunt, principesque undique convenire et se civitatesque suas Caesari commendare coeperunt. 10 15

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The eighteen cavalry transports are driven back by a storm.

His rebus pace confirmata, post diem quartum, quam est in Britanniam ventum, naves xviii, de quibus supra demonstratum est, quae equites sustulerant, ex superiore portu leni vento solverunt. Quae cum adpropinquarent Britanniae et ex castris viderentur, tanta tempestas subito coorta est, ut nulla earum cursum tenere posset, sed aliae eodem, unde erant profectae, referrentur, aliae ad inferiorem partem insulae, quae est propius solis occasum, magno suo cum periculo deicerentur; quae tamen ancoris iactis cum fluctibus complerentur, necessario adversa nocte in altum provectae continentem petierunt.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Further disasters to Cæsar's ships—The Roman troops in a dangerous position.

Eadem nocte accidit, ut esset luna plena, qui dies maritimos aestus maximos in Oceano esse cere consuevit, nostrisque id erat incognitum. Ita uno tempore et longas naves, quibus Cæsar exercitum transportandum curaverat quas in aridum subduxerat, aestus complebat, et onerarias, quae ad ancoras erant deligatae, tempestas adflictabat, neque ulla nostris facultas aut administrandi aut auxiliandi dabatur. Compluribus navibus fractis reliquae cum essent funibus, ancoris reliquisque armamentis amissis ad navigandum inutiles, magna id quod necesse erat accidere, totius exercitus perturbatio facta est. Neque enim naves erant aliae, quibus reportari possent, et omnia deerant, quae ad reficiendas naves erant usui, et, quod omnibus constabat, hiemari in Gallia oportere, frumentum his in locis in hiemem provisum non erat.

CHAPTER XXX.

The critical position of the Romans tempts the British chieftains to conspire to renew hostilities.

Quibus rebus cognitis principes Britanniae, qui post proelium ad Caesarem convenerant, inter se conlocuti, cum et equites et naves et frumentum Romanis deesse intellexerent et paucitatem militum ex castrorum exiguitate cognoscerent, quae hoc erant etiam angustiora, quod sine impedimentis Caesar legiones transportaverat, optimum factu esse duxerunt rebellionem facta frumento comneatuque nostros prohibere et rem in hiemem producere, quod his superatis aut reditu interclusis neminem postea belli inferendi causa in Britanniam transiturum confidebant. Itaque rursus coniuratione facta paulatim ex castris discedere ac suos clam ex agris deducere coeperunt.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Cæsar suspects their designs and prepares to meet them.

At Caesar, etsi nondum eorum consilia cognoverat, tamen et ex eventu navium suarum et ex eo, quod obsides dare intermiserant, fore id, quod accidit, suspicabatur. Itaque ad omnes casus subsidia comparabat. Nam et frumentum ex agris cotidie in castra conferebat et, quae gravissime adflictae erant naves, earum materia atque aere ad reliquas reficiendas utebatur et, quae ad eas res erant usui, ex continenti comparari iubebat. Itaque, cum summo studio a militibus administraretur, XII navibus amissis, reliquis ut navigari commode posset, effecit.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Britons make a sudden attack on the seventh legion whilst foraging—Cæsar to the rescue.

- 1 Dam ea geruntur, legione ex consuetudine una frumentatum missa, quæ appellabatur septima, neque ulla ad id tempus belli suspicione interposita, cum pars hominum in agris remaneret, pars etiam in castra ventitaret, ii, qui pro portis 5 castrorum in statione erant, Caesari nuntiaverunt, pulverem maiolem, quam consuetudo ferret, in ea parte videri, quam in partem legio iter fecisset. Cæsar, id quod erat, suspicatus, aliquid novi a barbaris inimum consilii, cohortes, quæ in stat-ionibus erant, secum in eam partem proficisci, ex reliquis 10 duas in stationem cohortes succedere, reliquas armari et confestim sese subsequi iussit. Cum paulo longius a castris processisset, suos ab hostibus premi atque aegro sustinere et conferta legione ex omnibus partibus tela coici animadvertit.
Nam quod omni ex reliquis partibus demesso frumento pars 15 una erat reliqua, suspicati hostes, huc nostros esse venturos, noctu in silvis delituerant; tum dispersos depositis armis in metendo occupatos subito adorti, paucis interfectis reliquos incertis ordinibus perturbaverant, simul equitatu atque essedis circumdederant.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

British use of war-chariots.

- 1 Genus hoc est ex essedis pugnæ. Primo per omnes partes perequitant et tela coiciunt atque ipso terrore equorum et strepitu rotarum ordines plerumque perturbant, et cum se inter equitum turmas insinuaverunt, ex essedis desiliunt et 5 pedibus proeliantur. Aurigæ interim paulatim ex proelio excedunt atque ita currus conlocant, ut, si illi a multitudine hostium premantur, expeditum ad suos receptum habeant. Ita mobilitatem equitum, stabilitatem peditum in proeliis praestant, ac tantum usu cotidiano et exercitatione efficiunt, uti in declivi ac praecipiti loco incitatis equos sustinere et brevi moderari ac flectere et per temonem perecurrere et in iugo insistere et se inde in currus citissime recipere consuerint. 10

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Caesar relieves his hard-pressed troops and retires—The Britons gain confidence and approach the Roman camp.

Quibus rebus perturbatis nostris novitate pugnae tempore opportunissimo Caesar auxilium tulit: namque eius adventu hostes constiterunt, nostri se ex timore receperunt. Quo facto ad lacessendum hostem et committendum proelium alienum esse tempus arbitratus suo se loco continuit et brevi tempore intermisso in castra legiones reduxit. Dum haec geruntur, nostris omnibus occupatis, qui erant in agris reliqui, discesserunt. Secutae sunt continuos complures dies tempestates, quae et nostros in castris continerent et hostem a pugna prohiberent. Interim barbari nuntios in omnes partes dimiserunt paucitatemque nostrorum militum suis praedicaverunt et, quanta praedae faciendae atque in perpetuum sui liberandi facultas daretur, si Romanos castris expulissent, demonstraverunt. His rebus celeriter magna multitudine peditatus equitatusque coacta ad castra venerunt. 15

CHAPTER XXXV.

Defeat and pursuit of the Britons.

Caesar etsi idem, quod superioribus diebus acciderat, fore videbat, ut, si essent hostes pulsus, celeritate periculum effugerent, tamen nactus equites circiter xxx, quos Cominius Atrebas, de quo ante dictum est, secum transportaverat, legiones 5 in acie pro castris constituit. Commisso proelio diutius nostrorum militum impetum hostes ferre non potuerunt ac terga verterunt. Quos tanto spatio secuti, quantum cursu et viribus efficere potuerunt, complures ex iis occiderunt, deinde omnibus longe lateque acedificiis incensis se in castra 10 receperunt.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Their submission—Cæsar's terms—He sets sail—Safe arrival in Gaul—Two transports separated from the rest.

Eodem die legati ab hostibus missi ad Cæsarem de pace venerunt. His Cæsar numerum obsidum, quem ante impera-verat, duplicavit eosque in continentem adduci iussit, quod propinqua die æquinoctii infirmis navibus hiemi navigationem 5 subiciendam non existimabat. Ipse idoneam tempestatem nactus paulo post mediam noctem naves solvit; quæ omnes incolumes ad continentem pervenerunt; sed ex iis onerariæ duæ eodem portus, quos reliquæ, capere non potuerunt et paulo infra delatæ sunt.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

The two detached transports are suddenly attacked by the Morini—Help sent by Cæsar—Defeat and flight of the enemy.

Quibus ex navibus cum essent expositi milites circiter ccc atque in castra contenderent, Morini, quos Cæsar in Britanniiam proficiscens pacatos reliquerat, spe prædæ adducti primo non ita magno suorum numero circumsteterunt ac, si sese interfici nollent, arma ponere iusserunt. Cum illi orbe 5 facto sese defenderent, celeriter ad clamorem hominum cir-citer milia vi convenerunt. Qua re nuntiata Caesar omnem ex castris equitatum suis auxilio misit. Interim nostri milites impetum hostium sustinuerunt atque amplius horis iv fortissime pugnauerunt et paucis vulneribus acceptis com- 10 plures ex his occiderunt. Postea vero quam equitatus noster in conspectum venit, hostes abiectis armis terga verterunt, magnusque eorum numerus est occisus.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Subjugation of the Morini and Menapii.

Caesar postero die Titum Labienum legatum cum iis legion- 1 ibus, quas ex Britannia reduxerat, in Morinos, qui rebellionem fecerant, misit. Qui cum propter siccitates paludum, quo se recipere non haberent, quo perfugio superiore anno erant usi, omnes fere in potestatem Labieni venerunt. At Q. 5 Titurius et L. Cotta legati, qui in Menapiorum fines legiones duxerant, omnibus eorum agris vastatis, frumentis succis, aedificiis incensis, quod Menapii se omnes in densiss-imas silvas abdiderant, se ad Caesarem receperunt. Caesar in Belgis omnium legionum hiberna constituit. Eo duae 10 omnino civitates ex Britannia obsides miserunt, reliquae neglexerunt. His rebus gestis ex litteris Caesaris dierum xx applicatio a senatu decreta est.

BOOK V.

CHAPTER I.

Caesar goes to Italy—Has a fleet built—Goes to Illyricum—Deals with the Pirustæ.

1 L. Domitio, Ap. Claudio consulibus discedens ab hi-bernis Caesar in Italiam, ut quotannis facere consuerat, legatis imperat, quos legionibus praefecerat, uti, quam plurimas possent, hieme naves aedificandas veteresque refici-5 endas curent. Earum modum formamque demonstrat. Ad celeritatem onerandi subductionesque paulo facit humiliores, quam quibus in nostro mari uti consuevimus, atque id eo magis, quod propter crebras commutationes aestuum minus 10 magnos ibi fluctus fieri cognoverat; ad onera ac multitudinem iumentorum transportandam paulo latiores, quam quibus in reliquis utimur maribus. Has omnes actuarias imperat fieri, quam ad rem multum humilitas adiuvat. Ea, quae sunt usui ad armandas naves, ex Hispania adportari iubet. Ipse conventibus Galliae citerioris peractis in Illyricum proficiscitur, 15 quod a Pirustis finitimam partem provinciae incursionibus vastari audiebat. Eo cum venisset, civitatibus milites im-perat certumque in locum convenire iubet. Qua re nuntiata Pirustae legatos ad eum mittunt, qui doceant, nihil earum rerum publico factum consilio, seseque paratos esse demon-20 strent omnibus rationibus de iniuriis satisfacere. Percepta oratione eorum Caesar obsides imperat eosque ad certam diem adduci iubet; nisi ita fecerint, sese bello civitatem persecutorum demonstrat. Iis ad diem adductis, ut imperaverat, arbitros inter civitates dat, qui litem aestiment poenamque constituent.

25

CHAPTER VI.

Caesar returns to Gaul, January 54 B.C.—Finds fleet built—Orders it to assemble at Portus Itius—Marches into the territory of the Treveri.

His confectis rebus conventibusque peractis in ceteriorem Galliam revertitur atque inde ad exercitum proficiscitur. Eo cum venisset, circumitis omnibus hibernis singulari militum studio in summa omnium rerum inopia circiter sescentas eius generis, cuius supra demonstravimus, naves et longas xxviii invenit instructas, neque multum abesse ab eo, quin paucis diebus deduci possint. Conlaudatis militibus atque iis, qui negotio praefuerant, quid fieri velit, ostendit atque omnes ad portum Itium convenire iubet, quo ex portu commodissimum in Britanniam traiectum esse cognoverat, circiter milium passuum xxx a continenti: huic rei quod satis esse visum est militum, relinquit. Ipse eum legionibus expeditis iv et equitibus dccc in fines Treverorum proficiscitur, quod hi neque ad concilia veniebant neque imperio parebant Germanosque Transrhenanos sollicitare dicebantur.

15

CHAPTER III.

Struggle for the chieftainship among the Treveri between Indutiomarus and Cingetorix—Indutiomarus makes a false submission.

Haec civitas longe plurimum totius Galliae equitatu valet magnasque habet copias peditum, Rhenumque, ut supra demonstravimus, tangit. In ea civitate duo de principatu inter se contendebant, Indutiomarus et Cingetorix; ex quibus 5 alter, simul atque de Caesaris legionumque adventu cognitum est, ad eum venit, se suosque omnes in officio futuros neque ab amicitia populi Romani defecturos confirmavit, quæque in Treveris gererentur, ostendit. At Indutiomarus equitatum peditatumque cogere iisque, qui per ætatem in armis esse 10 non poterant, in silvam Arduennam abditis, quæ ingenti magnitudine per medios fines Treverorum a flumine Rheno ad initium Remorum pertinet, bellum parare instituit. Sed postea quam non nulli principes ex ea civitate, et auctoritate Cingetorigis adducti et adventu nostri exercitus perterriti, 15 ad Caesarem venerunt et de suis privatim rebus ab eo pet-ere coeperunt, quoniam civitati consulere non possent, ver-itus, ne ab omnibus desereretur, legatos ad Caesarem mittit: Sese idcirco ab suis discedere atque ad eum venire noluisse, quo facilius civitatem in officio contineret, ne omnis nobili-20 tatis discessu plebs propter imprudentiam laboretur: itaque civitatem in sua potestate esse sequæ, si Caesar permitteret, ad eum in castra venturum, et suas civitatisque fortunas eius fidei permissurum.

I

CHAPTER IV.

Cæsar demands hostages from Indutiomarus, but supports Cingetorix—Disgust of Indutiomarus.

1 Caesar, etsi intellegebat, qua de causa ea dicerentur quæ-que eum res ab instituto consilio detereret, tamen, ne aestatem in Treveris consumere cogeretur omnibus rebus ad Britannicum bellum comparatis, Indutiomarum ad se cum ducentis 5 obsidibus venire iussit. His adductis, in iis filio propinquisque eius omnibus, quos nominatim evocaverat, consolatus Indutio-marum hortatusque est, uti in officio maneret; nihilo tamen setius principibus Treverorum ad se convocatis hos singillatim Cingetorigi conciliavit, quod cum merito eius ab se fieri intellegebat, tum magni interesse arbitrabatur eius auctoritatem inter suos quam plurimum valere, cuius tam egregiam in se voluntatem perspexisset. Id factum graviter tulit Indutiomarus suam gratiam inter suos minui, et, qui iam ante inimico in nos animo fuisset, multo gravius hoc dolore exarsit.

CHAPTER V.

All assemble at Fortus Itius.

His rebus constitutis Caesar ad portum Itium cum legionibus pervenit. Ibi cognoscit, LX naves, quae in Melis factae erant, tempestate reiectas cursum tenere non potuisse atque eodem, unde erant profectae, revertisse; reliquas paratas ad navigandum atque omnibus rebus instructas invenit. Eodem equitatus totius Galliae convenit numero milia quattuor principesque ex omnibus civitatibus; ex quibus perpaucos, quorum in se fidem perspexerat, relinquere in Gallia, reliquos obsidum loco secum ducere decreverat, quod, cum ipse abesset, motum Galliae verebatur.

CHAPTER VI.

Episode of Dumnorix the Hæduan—His refusal to accompany Cæsar to Britain—His disaffection.

Erat una cum ceteris Dumnorix Haeduus, de quo ante a nobis dictum est. Hunc secum habere in primis constituerat, quod eum cupidum rerum novarum, cupidum imperii, magni animi, magnae inter Gallos auctoritatis cognoverat. Accedebat huc, quod in concilio Haedunorum Dumnorix dixerat, sibi a Caesare regnum civitatis deferri; quod dictum Haedui graviter ferebant, neque recusandi aut deprecandi causa legatos ad Caesarem mittere audebant. Id factum ex suis hospitibus Caesar cognoverat. Ille omnibus primo precibus 10 petere contendit, ut in Gallia relinqueretur, partim quod insuetus navigandi mare timeret, partim quod religionibus impediri sese diceret. Posteaquam id obstinate sibi negari vidit, omni spe impetrandi adempta, principes Galliae sollicitare, sevocare singulos hortarique coepit, uti in continenti 15 remanerent; metu territare: non sine causa fieri, ut Gallia omni nobilitate spoliaretur; id esse consilium Caesaris, ut, quos in conspectu Galliae interficere vereretur, hos omnes in Britanniam traductos necaret; fidem reliquis interponere, ius iurandum poscere, ut, quod esse ex usu Galliae intellexissent, 20 communi consilio administrarent. Haec a compluribus ad Caesarem deferebantur.

CHAPTER VII.

Flight and death of Dumnorix.

1 Qua re cognita Caesar, quod tantum civitati Haeduae dignitatis tribuebat, coercendum atque deterrendum, quibuseunque rebus posset, Dumnorigem statuebat; quod longius eius amentiam progredi videbat, prospiciendum, ne quid sibi ac
 5 rei publicae nocere posset. Itaque dies circiter xxv in eo loco commoratus, quod Corus ventus navigationem impediabat, qui magnam partem omnis temporis in his locis flare consuevit, dabat operam, ut in officio Dumnorigem contineret, nihilo tamen setius omnia eius consilia cognosceret; tandem 10 idoneam nactus tempestatem milites equitesque conscendere in naves iubet. At omnium impeditis animis Dumnorix cum equitibus Haeduum a castris insciente Caesare domum dis

 tio
 tat
 fac
 san Ille
 que
 erac
 hon
 omni

Labi
 s
 c

Hi
 bus et rei fr cognos cum c contin Africo
 sum ne Britan
 tatione caperet
 erat.
 qui vec
 labore l ad Brit neque i captivis

discedere coepit. Qua re nuntiata, Caesar intermissa profec-tione atque omnibus rebus postpositis magnam partem equi- 15 tatus ad eum insequendum mittit retrahique imperat; si vim faciat neque pareat, interfici iubet, nihil hunc se absente pro sano facturum arbitratus, qui praesentis imperium neglexisset.
 Ille autem revocatus resistere ac se manu defendere suorum-que fidem implorare coepit, saepe clamitans, liberum se lib- 20 eraeque esse civitatis. Illi, ut erat imperatum, circumsistunt hominem atque interficiunt; at equites Haedui ad Caesarem omnes revertuntur.

CHAPTER VIII.

Labienus left in Gaul—Caesar, with five legions and cavalry, sets sail for Britain—Natives, in alarm, retreat from the coast.

His rebus gestis, Labieno in continenti cum tribus legioni- 1 bus et equitum milibus duobus relicto, ut portus tueretur et rei frumentariae provideret, quaeque in Gallia gererentur, cognosceret consiliumque pro tempore et pro re caperet, ipse 5 cum quinque legionibus et pari numero equitum, quem in continenti relinquebat, ad solis occasum naves solvit; et leni Africo provectus, media circiter nocte vento intermisso, cursum non tenuit et longius delatus aestu orta luce sub sinistra Britanniam relictam conspexit. Tum rursus aestus commutationem secutus remis contendit, ut eam partem insulae 10 caperet, qua optimum esse egressum superiore aestate cognov-erat. Qua in re admodum fuit militum virtus laudanda, qui vectoris gravibusque navigiis non intermisso remigandi labore longarum navium cursum adaequarunt. Accessum est 15 ad Britanniam omnibus navibus meridiano fere tempore, neque in eo loco hostis est visus; sed, ut postea Caesar ex captivis cognovit, cum magnae manus eo convenissent, multitudine navium perterritae, quae cum amotinis privatisque, quas sui quisque, commodi causa fecerat, amplius octingentae 20 uno erant visae tempore, a litore discesserant ac se in superiora loca abdiderant.

CHAPTER IX.

The Roman army lands and advances against the natives—Crosses a river in spite of resistance—Captures a forest stronghold.

1 Caesar exposito exercitu et loco castris idoneo capto, ubi ex captivis cognovit, quo in loco hostium copiae condisissent, cohortibus decem ad mare relictis et equitibus trecentis, qui praesidio navibus essent, de tertia vigilia ad hostes contendit, 5 eo minus veritus navibus, quod in litore molli atque aperto deligatas ad ancoram relinquebat, ei praesidio navibusque Quintum Atrium praefecit. Ipse noctu progressus milia pas-suum circiter XII hostium copias conspicatus est. Illi equi-tatu atque essedis ad flumen progressi ex loco superiore nos-10 tros prohibere et proclium committere coeperunt. Repulsi ab equitatu se in silvas abdiderunt, locum nacti egregie et natura et opere munitum, quem domestici belli, ut videbatur, causa iam ante praeparaverant: nam crebris arboribus succisis omnes introitus erant praecclusi. Ipsi ex silvis rari propugn-15 abant nostrosque intra munitiones ingredi prohibebant. At milites legionis septimae testudine facta et aggere ad munitionem adiecto locum ceperunt eosque ex silvis expulerunt paucis vulneribus acceptis. Sed eos fugientes longius Caesar prosequi vetuit, et quod loci naturam ignorabat, et quod 20 magna parte diei consumpta munitioni castrorum temporis relinqui volebat.

CHAPTER X.

Great damage to the fleet from a storm.

Postridie eius diei mane tripertito milites equosque in 1 expeditionem misit, ut eos, qui fugerant, persequerentur.
 His aliquantum itineris progressis, cum iam extremi essent in prospectu, equites a Quinto Atrio ad Caesarem venerunt, qui nuntiarent, superiore nocte maxima coorta tempestate 5 prope omnes naves afflictas atque in litore eiectas esse, quod neque ancorae funesque sustinerent neque nautae gubernatoresque vim tempestatis pati possent: itaque ex eo concursu navium magnum esse incommodum acceptum.

CHAPTER XI.

Cæsar returns to the coast—Takes energetic measures to remedy the disaster to the fleet, and returns—Cassivellaunus is elected by the Britons as commander-in-chief.

His rebus cognitis Cæsar legiones equitatumque revocari 1 atque in itinere resistere iubet, ipse ad naves revertitur; eadem fere, quae ex nuntiis cognoverat, coram perspicit, sic ut amissis circiter XI navibus reliquae tamen refici posse 5 magno negotio viderentur. Itaque ex legionibus fabros de-ligit et ex continentis alios arcessi iubet; Labieno scribit, ut, quam plurimas possit iis legionibus, quae sint apud eum, naves instituat. Ipse, etsi res erat multae operae ac laboris, tamen commodissimum esse statuit omnes naves subduci et 10 cum castris una munitione coniungi. In his rebus circiter dies X consumit, ne nocturnis quidem temporibus ad laborem militum intermissis. Subductis navibus castrisque egregie munitis easdem copias, quas ante, praesidio navibus relinquit, ipse eodem, unde redierat, proficiscitur. Eo cum venisset, maiores iam undique in eum locum copiae Britannorum con-15 venerant summa imperii bellicae administrandi communi consilio permissa Cassivellauno, cuius fines a maritimis civitatibus flumen dividit, quod appellatur Tamesis, a mari circiter milia passuum LXXX. Huic superiore tempore cum reli-20 quis civitatibus continentia bella intercesserant; sed nostro adventu permoti Britanni hunc toti bello imperioque praefecerant.
 C

CHAPTER XII.

Customs of Britain—Resources of the island.

1 Britanniae pars interior ab iis incolitur, quos natos in insula ipsa memoria proditum dicunt, maritima pars ab iis, qui praedae ac belli inferendi causa ex Belgio transierunt—qui omnes fere isdem nominibus civitatum appellantur, quibus
 5 orti ex civitatibus eo pervenerunt—et bello inlato ibi remanserunt atque agros colere coeperunt. Hominum est infinita multitudo creberrimaeque aedificia fere Gallicis consimilia, pecoris magnus numerus. Utuntur aut aere aut nummo
 10 nummo. Nascitur ibi plumbum album in mediterraneis regionibus, in maritimis ferrum, sed eius exigua est copia; aere utuntur importato. Materia cuiusque generis ut in Gallia est praeter fagum atque abietem. Leporem et galinam et anserem gustare fas non putant; haec tamen alunt 15 animi voluptatisque causa. Loca sunt temperatiora quam in Gallia, remissioribus frigoribus.

CHAPTER XIII.

Geographical description of the British Isles.

Insula natura triquetra, cuius unum latus est contra Gal- I liam. Huius lateris alter angulus, qui est ad Cantium, quo fere omnes ex Gallia naves adpelluntur, ad orientem solem, inferior ad meridiem spectat. Hoc latus tenet circiter milia passuum D. Alterum vergit ad Hispaniam atque occidentem 5 solem; qua ex parte est Hibernia insula, dimidio minor, ut existimatur, quam Britannia, sed pari spatio transmissus, atque ex Gallia est in Britanniam. In hoc medio cursu est insula, quae appellatur Mona; complures praeterea minores obiectae insulae existimantur; de quibus insulis non nulli scripserunt, 10 eo continuos xxx sub brumam esse noctem. Nos nihil de eo percontationibus reperiebamus, nisi certis ex aqua mensuris breviores esse quam in continenti noctes videbamus. Huius est longitudo lateris, ut fert illorum opinio, dcc milium.
 Tertium est contra septentriones; cui parti nulla est obiecta 15 terra, sed eius angulus alter maxime ad Germaniam spectat.
 Hoc milium passuum DCCC in longitudinem esse existimatur.
 Ita omnis insula est in circuitu vicies centum milium passuum.

CHAPTER XIV.

Superior civilisation of Kent—Customs of the Britons.

Ex his omnibus longe sunt humanissimi, qui Cantium in- 1 colunt, quae regio est maritima omnis, neque multum a Gallica differunt consuetudine. Interiores plerique frumenta non serunt, sed lacte et carne vivunt pellibusque sunt vestiti.
 Omnes vero se Britanni vitro inficiunt, quod caeruleum efficit 5 colorem, atque hoc horribiliores sunt in pugna aspectu; capil-loque sunt promisso atque omni parte corporis rasa praeter caput et labrum superius. Uxores habent deni duodenique inter se communes, et maxime fratres cum fratribus parent-10 esque cum liberis; sed, qui sunt ex iis nati, eorum habentur liberi, quo primum virgo quaeque deducta est.

CHAPTER XV.

Fight on march with the Britons, who are repulsed. Renewed attack on the Romans, who are taken unawares—At last the enemy are driven off.

1 Equites hostium essedarii que acriter proelio cum equitatu nostro in itinere confluxerunt, ita tamen ut nostri omnibus partibus superiores fuerint atque eos in silvas collesque compulerint; sed compluribus interfectis cupidius insecuti non
 5 nullos ex suis amiserunt. At illi intermisso spatio, imprudentibus nostris atque occupatis in munitione castrorum, subito se ex silvis eiecerunt impetu que in eos facto, qui erant in statione pro castris conlocati, acriter pugnaverunt, duabus 10 legionum duarum, cum eae perexiguo intermisso loci spatio inter se constitissent, novo genere pugnae perterritis nostris per medios audacissime perruperunt seque inde incolumes receperunt. Eo die Quintus Laberius Durus tribunus militum interficitur. Illi pluribus submissis cohortibus repelluntur.

CHAPTER XVI.

Their mode of fighting.

1 Toto hoc in genere pugnae, cum sub oculis omnium ac pro castris dimicaretur, intellectum est, nostros propter gravitatem armorum, quod neque insequi cedentes possent neque ab signis discedere auderent, minus aptos esse ad huius generis hostem, equites autem magno cum periculo proelio dimicare, 5 propterea quod illi etiam consulto plerumque cederent et, cum paulum ab legionibus nostros removissent, ex essedis desilirent et pedibus dispari proelio contenderant. Equestris autem proelii ratio et cedentibus et insequentibus par atque idem periculum inferebat. Accedebat huc, ut numquam conferti, 10 sed rari magnisque intervallis proeliarentur stationesque dispositas haberent, atque alios alii deinceps exciperent integ-riq̄ue et recentes defatigatis succederent.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Britons again routed.

Postero die procul a castris hostes in collibus constiterunt 1 rarique se ostendere et lenius quam pridie nostros equites proelio lacessere coeperunt. Sed meridie, cum Caesar pabulandi causa tres legiones atque omnem equitatum cum Caio Trebonio legato misisset, repente ex omnibus partibus ad 5 pabulatores advolaverunt, sic uti ab signis legionibusque non absisterent. Nostri acriter in eos impetu facto reppulerunt neque finem sequendi fecerunt, quoad subsidio confisi equites, cum post se legiones viderent, praecipites hostes egerunt, 10 magnoque eorum numero interfecto neque sui colligendi neque consistendi aut ex essedis desiliendi facultatem dederunt.
 Ex hac fuga protinus, quae undique convenerant, auxilia discesserunt, neque post id tempus umquam summis nobiscum copiis hostes contulerunt.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Cæsar forces a passage of the Thames.

- 1 Caesar cognito consilio eorum ad flumen Tamesim in fines Cassivellauni exercitum duxit ; quod flumen uno omnino loco pedibus, atque hoc aegre, transiri potest. Eo cum venisset, animadvertit, ad alteram fluminis ripam magnas esse copias 5 hostium instructas. Ripa autem erat acutis sudibus præfixisque munita, eiusdemque generis sub aqua defixæ sudes flumine tegebantur. His rebus cognitis a captivis perfugisque Caesar præmisso equitatu confestim legiones subsequi iussit.
Sed ea celeritate atque eo impetu milites ierunt, cum capite 10 solo ex aqua exstarent, ut hostes impetum legionum atque equitum sustinere non possent ripasque dimitterent ac se fugæ mandarent.

CHAPTER XIX.

Cassivellaunus' harassing tactics.

- 1 Cassivellaunus, ut supra demonstravimus, omni deposita spe contentionis, dimissis amplioribus copiis, milibus circiter quattuor essedariorum relictis, itinera nostra servabat paulumque ex via excedebat locisque in editis ac silvestribus 5 sese occultabat atque iis regionibus, quibus nos iter facturos cognoverat, pecora atque homines ex agris in silvas compellebat et, cum equitatus noster liberias prædandi vastandi-que causa se in agros effunderet, omnibus viis semitisque essedarios ex silvis emittebat et magno cum periculo nostro-10 rum equitum cum his conflegebat atque hoc metu latius vagari prohibebat. Relinquebatur, ut neque longius ab agmine legionum discedi Caesar pateretur, et tantum agris vastandis incendiisque faciendis hostibus noceretur, quantum labore atque itinere legionarii milites efficere poterant.

CHAPTER XX.

Submission of the Trinovantes.

Interim Trinovantes, prope firmissima earum regionum civitas, ex qua Mandubracius adulescens Caesaris fidem 1 secutus ad eum in continentem venerat—cuius pater in ea civitate regnum obtinuerat interfectusque erat a Cassivellauno, ipse fuga mortem vitaverat—legatos ad Caesarem mittunt 5 pollicenturque, sese ei dedituros atque imperata facturos; petunt, ut Mandubracium ab iniuria Cassivellauni defendat atque in civitatem mittat, qui praesit imperiumque obtineat.
 His Caesar imperat obsides quadraginta frumentumque exer- 10 citui Mandubraciumque ad eos mittit. Illi imperata celeriter fecerunt, obsides ad numerum frumentumque miserunt.

CHAPTER XXI.

Submission of other tribes—A British "town"— Cassivellaunus' "town" stormed.

Trinovantibus defensis atque ab omni militum iniuria pro- 1 hibitis, Cenimagni, Segontiaci, Ancalites, Bibroci, Cassi legationibus missis sese Caesari dedunt. Ab his cognoscit, non longe ex eo loco oppidum Cassivellauni abesse silvis paludibusque munitum, quo satis magnus hominum pecorisque 5 numerus convenerit. Oppidum autem Britanni vocant, cum silvas impeditas vallo atque fossa munierunt, quo incursionis hostium vitandae causa convenire consuerunt. Eo proficiscitur cum legionibus: locum reperit egregie natura atque opere 10 munitum; tamen hunc duabus ex partibus oppugnare contendit. Hostes paulisper morati militum nostrorum impetum non tulerunt seseque alia ex parte oppidi ciecerunt. Magnus ibi numerus pecoris repertus, multique in fuga sunt comprehensi atque interfecti.

CHAPTER XXII.

Cassivellaunus urges the four Kentish kings to attack the naval camp—The attack is foiled—Cassivellaunus, disheartened, submits.

1 Dum haec in his locis geruntur, Cassivellaunus ad Cantium, quod esse ad mare supra demonstravimus, quibus regionibus quattuor reges praeerant, Cingetorix, Carvilius, Taximagulus, Segovax, nuntios mittit atque his imperat, uti coactis omni-
 5 bus copiis castra navalia de improvise adoriantur atque oppugnent. Hi cum ad castra venissent, nostri eruptione facta multis eorum interfectis, capto etiam nobili duce Lugotorige suos incolumes reduxerunt. Cassivellaunus hoc proelio nuntiato, tot detrimentis acceptis, vastatis finibus, maxime etiam
 10 permotus defectione civitatum, legatos per Atrebatem Commium de deditioe ad Caesarem mittit. Caesar, eum constituisset hiemare in continenti propter repentinos Galliae motus, neque multum aestatis superesset, atque id facile extrahi posse intellegeret, obsides imperat et, quid in annos 15 singulos vectigalis populo Romano Britannia penderet, constituit; interdicat atque imperat Cassivellauno, ne Mandubracio neu Trinovantibus noceat.

v
n
d ac
ho
po
ad
et pa
Qu
tem
erat
quil
luce

o
Sub
peract angust exercit
tates d
Fabio
in Esuv

CHAPTER XXIII.

Cæsar returns to Gaul.

Obsidibus acceptis exercitum reducit ad mare, naves invenit refectas. His deductis, quod et captivorum magnum numerum habebat et non nullae tempestate deperierant naves, duobus com meatibus exercitum reportare instituit. Ac sic accidit, uti ex tanto navium numero tot navigationibus neque hoc neque superiore anno ulla omnino navis, quae milites portaret, desideraretur, at ex iis, quae inanes ex continenti ad eum remitterentur, prioris com meatus expositis militibus et quas postea Labienus faciendas curaverat numero LX, paucæ locum caperent, reliquæ fere omnes reicerentur. Quas cum aliquamdiu Cæsar frustra exspectasset, ne anni tempore a navigatione excluderetur, quod equinoctium suberat, necessario angustius milites conlocavit ac, summa tranquillitate consecuta, secunda in ita cum solvisset vigilia, prima luce terram attigit omnesque incolumes naves perduxit.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Owing to scarcity of corn, Cæsar distributes his forces widely in winter quarters.

Subductis navibus concilioque Gallorum Samarobrivae peracto, quod eo anno frumentum in Gallia propter siccitates angustius provenerat, coactus est aliter ac superioribus annis exercitum in hibernis conlocare legionesque in plures civitates distribuere. Ex quibus unam in Morinos ducendam C. Fabio legato dedit, alteram in Nervios Q. Ciceroni, tertiam in Esvios L. Roscio; quartam in Remis cum T. Labieno in confinio Treverorum hiemare iussit; tres in Bellovacis conlocavit; his M. Crassum et L. Munatium Plancum et C. Trebonium legatos praefecit. Unam legionem, quam proxime trans Padum conscripserat, et cohortes v in Eburones, quorum pars maxima est inter Mosam ac Rhenum, qui sub imperio Ambiorigis et Catuvolei erant, misit. His militibus Q. Titurium Sabinum et L. Aurunculeium Cottam legatos praesse iussit. Ad hunc modum distributis legionibus facillime inopiae rei frumentariae sese mederi posse existimavit. Atque harum tamen omnium legionum hiberna praeter eam, quam L. Roscio in pacatissimam et quietissimam partem ducendam dederat, milibus passuum centum continebantur.

20 Ipse interea, quoad legiones conlocatas munitaque hiberna cognovisset, in Gallia morari constituit.

CHAPTER XXV.

Murder of Tasgetius the Carnutian, a friendly chief, by his fellow-tribesmen—L. Plancus sent to winter there.

1 Erat in Carnutibus summo loco natus Tasgetius, cuius maiores in sua civitate regnum obtinuerant. Huic Caesar pro eius virtute atque in se benevolentia, quod in omnibus bellis singulari eius opera fuerat usus, maiorum locum restituerat. Tertium iam hunc annum regnantem inimici palam multis ex civitate auctoribus interfecerunt. Defertur ea res ad Caesarem. Ille veritus, quod ad plures pertinebat, ne civitas eorum impulsu deficeret, L. Plancum cum legione ex Belgio celeriter in Carnutes proficisci iubet ibique hiemare, quorumque opera cognoverat Tasgetium interfectum, hos comprehensos ad se mittere. Interim ab omnibus, quibus legiones tradiderat, certior factus est, in hiberna perventum locumque hibernis esse munitum.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Revolt of Ambiorix and Catuvolcus—They attack the camp of Sabinus and Cotta—The Gauls ask for a parley.

Diebus circiter quindecim, quibus in hiberna ventum est, initium repentini tumultus ac defectionis ortum est ab Amborige et Catuvelco; qui, cum ad fines regni sui Sabino Cottaeque praesto fuissent frumentumque in hiberna comportavissent, Indutionari Treveri nuntiis impulsos con- citaverunt subitoque oppressis lignatoribus magna manu ad castra oppugnanda venerunt. Cum celeriter nostri arma cepissent vallumque ascendissent atque una ex parte Hispanis equitibus emissis equestri proelio superiores fuissent, desperata re hostes suos ab oppugnatione reduxerunt. Tum suo more conclamaverunt, uti aliqui ex nostris ad conloquium prodiret: habere sese, quae de re communi dicere vellent, quibus rebus controversias minui posse sperarent.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Ambiorix makes a false show of friendship, representing himself as an unwilling agent in the hands of his people, and treacherously advises Sabinus and Cotta to join the camp of Cicero or Labienus, offering them a safe passage.

Mittitur ad eos conloquendi causa C. Arpineius eques Romanus, familiaris Q. Titurii, et Q. Iunius ex Hispania quidam, qui iam ante missu Caesaris ad Amborigem ventitare consuerat; apud quos Ambiorix ad hunc modum locutus est: Sese pro Caesaris in se beneficiis plurimum ei confiteri debere, quod eius opera stipendio liberatus esset, quod Atuaticis, finitimis suis, pendere consuesset, quodque ei et filius et fratris filius a Caesare remissi essent, quos Atuatuçi obsidum numero missos apud se in servitute et catenis tenuissent; 10 neque id, quod fecerit de oppugnatione castrorum, aut iudicio aut voluntate sua fecisse, sed coactu civitatis, suaque esse eius modi imperia, ut non minus haberet iuris in se multitudo, quam ipse in multitudinem. Civitati porro hanc fuisse belli causam, quod repentinæ Gallorum coniurationi resistere non 15 potuerit. Id se facile ex humilitate sua probare posse, quod non adeo sit imperitus rerum, ut suis copiis populum Romanum superari posse confidat. Sed esse Galliae commune consilium: omnibus hibernis Caesaris oppugnandis hunc esse dictum diem, ne qua legio alteri legioni subsidio venire posset.

 20 Non facile Gallos Gallis negare potuisse, praesertim cum de recuperanda communi libertate consilium initum videretur.
 Quibus quoniam pro pietate satisfecerit, habere nunc se rationem officii pro beneficiis Caesaris: monere, orare Titurium pro hospitio, ut suae ac militum saluti consulat.
 25 Magnam manum Germanorum conductam Rhenum transisse; hanc adfore biduo. Ipsorum esse consilium, velintne prius, quam finitimi sentiant, eductos ex hibernis milites aut ad Ciceronem aut ad Labienum deducere, quorum alter milia passuum circiter quinquaginta, alter paulo amplius ab iis 30 absit. Illud se polliceri et iure iurando confirmare, tutum se iter per suos fines daturum. Quod cum faciat, et civitati sese consulere, quod hibernis levetur, et Caesari pro eius meritis gratiam referre. Hac oratione habita discedit Ambiorix.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Romans debate the question—Cotta speaks strongly against Ambiorix' proposal.

1 Arpineius et Iunius, quae audierant, ad legatos deferunt.
 Illi repentina re perturbati, etsi ab hoste ea dicebantur, tamen non neglegenda existimabant, maximeque hac re permove-bantur, quod civitatem ignobilem atque humilem Eburonum sua sponte populo Romano bellum facere ausam vix erat cred- 5 endum. Itaque ad consilium rem deferunt, magnaque inter eos existit controversia. L. Aurunculeius compluresque tri-buni militum et primorum ordinum centuriones nihil temere agendum neque ex hibernis iniussu Caesaris discedendum 10 existimabant; quantavis copias etiam Germanorum sustineri posse munitis hibernis docebant: rem esse testimonio, quod primum hostium impetum multis ultro vulneribus inlatis fortissime sustinuerint; re frumentaria non premi; interea et ex proximis hibernis et a Caesare conventura subsidia; postremo quid esse levius aut turpius, quam auctore hoste de 15 summis rebus capere consilium?

CHAPTER XXIX.

Sabinus is strongly in favour of going whilst there is the chance.

Contra ea Titurius sero facturos clamitabat, cum maiores 1 manus hostium adiunctis Germanis convenissent, aut cum aliquid calamitatis in proximis hibernis esset acceptum.
 Brevem consulendi esse occasionem. Caesarem se arbitrari profectum in Italiam; neque aliter Carnutes interficiendi 5 Tasgetii consilium fuisse capturos, neque Eburones, si ille adesset, tanta contemptione nostri ad castra venturos. Sese non hostem auctorem, sed rem spectare: subesse Rhenum; magno esse Germanis dolori Ariovisti mortem et superiores 10 nostras victorias; ardere Galliam tot contumeliis acceptis sub populi Romani imperium redactam, superiore gloria rei militaris extincta. Postremo quis hoc sibi persuaderet, sine certa spe Amborigem ad eius modi consilium descendisse? Suam sententiam in utramque partem esse tutam: si nihil esset

- 15 durius, nullo cum periculo ad proximam legionem perventuros; si Gallia omnis cum Germanis consentiret, unam esse in celeritate positam salutem. Cottæ quidem atque eorum, qui dissentirent, consilium quem habere exitum? in quo si non præsens periculum, at certe longinqua obsidione fames 20 esset timenda.

CHAPTER XXX.

In answer to the strong opposition of Cotta and his party, Sabinus adds a few hot words, throwing all the responsibility of remaining on Cotta, and appeals to the soldiers.

- 1 Hæc in utramque partem disputatione habita, cum a Cotta primisque ordinibus acriter resisteretur, Vincite, inquit, si ita vultis, Sabinus, et id clariore voce, ut magna pars militum exaudiret; neque is sum, inquit, qui gravissime ex vobis mort- 5 is periculo terrear: hi sapient; si gravius quid acciderit, abste rationem reposeunt; qui, si per te liceat, perendino die cum proximis hibernis conjuncti communem cum reliquis belli casum sustineant, non reiecti et relegati longe a ceteris aut ferro aut fame intereant.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The soldiers try to restore harmony between their leaders—Cotta gives way—Preparations for departure.

- 1 Consurgitur ex consilio; comprehendunt utrumque et orant, ne sua dissensione et pertinacia rem in summum periculum deducant: facilem esse rem, seu maneant, seu proficiscantur, si modo unum omnes sentiant ac probent;
 5 contra in dissensione nullam se salutem perspicere. Res disputatione ad mediam noctem perducitur. Tandem dat Cotta permotus manus: superat sententia Sabini. Pronun- tiatur, prima luce ituros. Consumitur vigiliis reliqua pars noctis, cum sua quisque miles circumspiceret, quid secum portare posset, quid ex instrumento hibernorum relinquere cogere- tur. Omnia excogitantur, quare nec sine periculo maneatur et languore militum et vigiliis periculum augeatur.

 Prima luce sic ex castris proficiscuntur, ut quibus esset per-suasum, non ab hoste, sed ab homine amicissimo consilium datum, longissimo agmine maximisque impedimentis.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Romans are caught in an ambush.

At hostes, posteaquam ex nocturno fremitu vigiliisque de protectione eorum senserunt, conlocatis insidiis bipertito in silvis opportuno atque occulto loco a milibus passuum circiter duobus Romanorum adventum expectabant, et cum se maior pars agminis in magnam convallem demisisset, ex utraque parte eius vallis subito se ostenderunt novissimosque premere et primos prohibere ascensu atque iniquissimo nostris loco proelium committere coeperunt.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Sabinus loses his head—Coolness and energy of Cotta—He orders the men to form into a circle, which turns out to be a great mistake.

Tum demum Titurinus qui nihil ante providisset, trepidare et concursare cohortesque disponere, haec tamen ipsa timide atque ut eum omnia deficere viderentur; quod plerumque iis accidere consuevit, qui in ipso negotio consilium capere coguntur. At Cotta, qui cogitasset, haec posse in itinere accidere, atque ob eam causam profectionis auctor non fuisset, nulla in re communi salutis deerat : et in appellandis cohortandisque militibus imperatoris et in pugna militis officia præstabat. Cum propter longitudinem agminis non facile 10 per se omnia obire et, quid quoque loco faciendum esset, providere possent, iusserunt pronuntiare, ut impedimenta relinquerent atque in orbem consisterent. Quod consilium etsi in eius modi casu reprehendendum non est, tamen incommode cecidit : nam et nostris militibus spem mimit et 15 hostes ad pugnam alacriores effecit, quod non sine summo timore et desperatione id factum videbatur. Præterea accidit, quod fieri necesse erat, ut vulgo milites ab signis discederent, quæque quisque eorum carissima haberet, ab impedimentis petere atque arripere properaret, clamore et 20 fletu omnia complerentur.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The battle—Bravery of the Romans and skill of Ambiorix.

1 At barbaris consilium non defuit. Nam duces eorum tota acie pronuntiare iusserunt, ne quis ab loco discederet : illorum esse prædam atque illis reservari, quæcumque Romani reliquissent : proinde omnia in victoria posita
 5 existimarent. Erant et virtute et numero pugnandi pares. Nostri tametsi ab duce et a Fortuna deserebantur, tamen omnem spem salutis in virtute ponebant, et quotiens quæque cohors procurrerat, ab ea parte magnus numerus hostium cadebat. Qua re animadversa Ambiorix pronuntiarum iubet, 10 ut procul tela coiciant neu propius accedant, et quam in partem Romani impetum fecerint, cedant : levitate armorum et cotidiana exercitatione nihil his noceri posse ; rursus se ad signa recipientes insequantur.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Brave but futile efforts of the Romans—Cotta wounded.

Quo praecepto ab iis diligentissime observato, cum quaequam cohors ex orbe excesserat atque impetum fecerat, hostes 1 velocissime refugiebant. Interim eam partem nudari necesse erat et ab latere aperto tela recipere. Rursus, cum in eum locum, unde erant progressi, reverti coeperant, et ab iis, qui 5 cesserant, et ab iis, qui proximi steterant, circumveniebantur;
 sui autem locum tenere vellent, nec virtuti locus relinquebatur, neque ab tanta multitudine coniecta tela conferti vitare poterant. Tamen tot incommodis conflictati, multis vulneribus acceptis resistebant et magna parte diei consumpta, 10 cum a prima luce ad horam octavam pugnaretur, nihil, quod ipsis esset indignum, committebant. Tum T. Balventio, qui superiore anno primum pilum duxerat, viro forti et magnae auctoritatis, utrumque femur tragula traicitur; Q. Lucanius, 15 eiusdem ordinis, fortissime pugnans, dum circumvento filio subvenit, interficitur; L. Cotta legatus omnes cohortes ordin-esque adhortans in adversum os funda vulneratur.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Sabinus seeks an interview with Ambiorix to ask for terms, but Cotta refuses to accompany him.

His rebus permotus Q. Titurius, cum procul Ambiorigem 1 suos cohortantem conspexisset, interpretem suum Cn. Pom-peium ad eum mittit rogatum, ut sibi militibusque pareat.
 Ille appellatus respondit: Si velit secum conloqui, licere; sperare, a multitudine impetrari posse, quod ad militum sal- 5 utem pertineat; ipsi vero nihil nocitum iri, inque eam rem se suam fidem interponere. Ille cum Cotta saucio communicat, si videatur, pugna ut excedant et cum Ambiorige una conloquantur: sperare, se ab eo de sua ac militum salute 10 impetrari posse. Cotta se ad armatum hostem iturum negat atque in eo perseverat.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Treacherous murder of Sabinus—The Romans are attacked and routed—Cotta dies fighting—The rest retreat to the camp and then in despair kill themselves—A few escape to Labienus.

1 Sabinus, quos in praesentia tribunos militum circum se habebat, et primorum ordinum centuriones se sequi iubet et, cum propius Ambiorigem accessisset, iussus arma abicere imperatum facit suisque, ut idem faciant, imperat. Interim,
 5 dum de condicionibus inter se agunt longiorque consulto ab Ambiorige instituitur sermo, paulatim circumventus interficitur. Tum vero suo more victoriam conclamant atque ululatum tollunt impetuque in nostros facto ordines perturbant. Ibi L. Cotta pugnans interficitur cum maxima parte militum, 10 Reliqui se in castra recipiunt, unde erant egressi. Ex quibus L. Petrosidius aquilifer, cum magna multitudine hostium premeretur, aquilam intra vallum proicit, ipse pro castris fortissime pugnans occiditur. Illi aegre ad noctem oppugnationem sustinent; nocte ad unum omnes desperata salute 15 se ipsi interficiunt. Pauci ex proelio elapsi incertis itineribus per silvas ad T. Labienum legatum in hiberna perveniunt atque eum de rebus gestis certiore faciant.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Ambiorix, elated with his victory, stirs up other tribes to rebellion.

Hac victoria sublatus Ambiorix statim cum equitatu in Atuatucos, qui erant eius regno finitimi, proficiscitur; neque noctem neque diem intermittit peditatumque se subsequi iubet. Re demonstrata Atuatucisque concitatis, postero die in Nervios pervenit hortaturque, ne sui in perpetuum liberandi atque ulciscendi Romanos pro iis, quas acceperint, iniuriis occasionem dimittant: interfectos esse legatos duos magnamque partem exercitus interisse demonstrat; nihil esse negotii, subito oppressam legionem, quae cum Cicerone hiemet, interfici; se ad eam rem profitetur adiutorem. Facile hac oratione Nervii persuadet. 10

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Several tribes make a sudden attack on Q. Cicero's camp.

Itaque confestim dimissis nuntiis ad Ceutrones, Grudios, Levacos, Pleumoxios, Geidumnos, qui omnes sub eorum imperio sunt, quam maximas possunt manus, cogunt et de im-proviso ad Ciceronis hiberna advolant, nondum ad eum fama de Titurii morte perlata. Huic quoque accedit, quod fuit necesse, ut non nulli milites, qui lignationis munitionisque causa in silvas discessissent, repentino equitum adventu in-terciperentur. His circumventis, magna manu Eburones, Nervii, Atuatuci atque horum omnium socii et clientes leg-ionem oppugnare incipiunt. Nostri celeriter ad arma concurrunt, vallum conscendunt. Aegre is dies sustentatur, quod omnem spem hostes in celeritate ponebant atque hanc adepti victoriam in perpetuum se fore victores confidebant. 10

CHAPTER XL.

Cicero takes energetic measures for defence.

1 Mittuntur ad Caesarem confestim a Cicerone litterae, magnis propositis praemiis, si pertulissent; obsessis omnibus viis missi interceptiuntur. Noctu ex materia, quam munitionis causa comportaverant, turres admodum cxx excitantur in-
 5 credibili celeritate; quae deesse operi videbantur, perficiuntur. Hostes postero die multo maioribus coactis copiis castra oppugnant, fossam complent. A nostris eadem ratione, qua pridie, resistitur. Hoc idem reliquis deinceps fit diebus. Nulla pars nocturni temporis ad laborem intermittitur; non 10 aegris, non vulneratis facultas quietis datur. Quaecumque ad proximi diei oppugnationem opus sunt, noctu comparantur; multae praestitae sudes, magnus muralium pilorum numerus instituitur; turres contabulantur, pinnae loricaeque ex cratibus atroxuntur. Ipse Cicero, cum tenuissima vali-15 tudine esset, ne nocturnum quidem sibi tempus ad quietem relinquebat, ut ultro militum concursu ac vocibus sibi parcere cogereetur.

CHAPTER XLI.

The Nervii offer Cicero terms, which he sturdily refuses.

1 Tum duces principesque Nerviorum, qui aliquem sermonis aditum causamque amicitiae cum Cicerone habebant, conloqui sese velle dicunt. Facta potestate eadem, quae Ambiorix cum Titurio egerat, commemorant: omnem esse in armis
 5 Galliam; Germanos Rhenum transisse; Caesaris reliquorumque hiberna oppugnari. Addunt etiam de Sabini morte; Ambiorigem ostentant fidei faciundae causa. Errare eos dicunt, si quicquam ab iis praesidii sperent, qui suis rebus diffidant; sese tamen hoc esse in Ciceronem populunque Romanum animo, ut nihil nisi hiberna recusent atque hanc 10 inveterascere consuetudinem nolint; licere illis per se in-columibus ex hibernis discedere et, quae in partes velint, sine metu proficisci. Cicero ad haec unam modo respondit: non esse consuetudinem populi Romani accipere ab 15 hoste armato condicionem: si ab armis discedere velint, se adintore utantur legatosque ad Caesarem mittant; sperare se pro eius iustitia, quae petierint, impetraturos.

CHAPTER XLII.

The Nervii invest the camp.

Ab hac spe repulsi Nervii vallo pedum x et fossa pedum 1 xv hiberna cingunt. Haec et superiorum annorum consue-tudine a nobis cognoverant et quosdam de exercitu nacti captivos ab his docebantur; sed nulla ferramentorum copia, 5 quae essent ad hunc usum idonea, gladiis caespites circum-cilere, manibus sagulisque terram exhaurire cogebantur.
 Qua quidem ex re hominum multitudo cognosci potuit: nam minus horis tribus milium passuum xv in circuitu munitionem perfecerunt. Reliquis diebus turres ad altitudinem valli, fulcees testudinesque, quas idem captivi docuerant, 10 parare ac facere coeperunt.

CHAPTER XLIII.

A critical day for the Romans—The camp is set on fire and fiercely attacked, but they resist stubbornly.

Septimo oppugnationis die maximo coorto vento ferventes 1 insiles ex argilla glandes fundis et fervefacta iacula in casas,

IMAGE EVALUATION
TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic
Sciences
Corporation

23 WEST MAIN STREET
WEBSTER, N.Y. 14580
(716) 872-4503

0
11
E5 28
E6 32
E7 36
E8 40
E9 45
18
16

11 10
E10 50
E11 56

quae more Gallico stramentis erant tectae, iacere coeperunt.
 Hae celeriter ignem comprehenderunt et venti magnitudine 5 in omnem locum castrorum distulerunt. Hostes maximo clamore, sicuti parta iam atque explorata victoria, turres testudinesque agere et scalis vallum ascendere coeperunt.
 At tanta militum virtus atque ea praesentia animi fuit, ut, cum undique flamma torrerentur maximaque telorum multi-10 tudine premerentur suaque omnia impedimenta atque omnes fortunas conflagrare intellegerent, non modo de vallo deced-eret nemo, sed paene ne respiceret quidem quisquam, actum omnes acerrime fortissimeque pugnarent. Hic dies nos-15 tris longe gravissimus fuit; sed tamen hunc habuit eventum, ut eo die maximus numerus hostium vulneraretur atque interficeretur, ut se sub ipso vallo constipaverant recessumque primis ultimi non dabant. Paulum quidem intermissa flamma et quodam loco turri adacta et contingente vallum, tertiae 20 cohortis centuriones ex eo, quo stabant, loco recesserunt suos-que omnes removerunt, nutu vocibusque hostes, si introire vellent, vocare coeperunt; quorum progredi ausus est nemo.
 Tum ex omni parte lapidibus coniectis deturbati, turrisque succensa est.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Emulation in bravery of two centurions, Pullo and Vorenus.

1 Erant in ea legione fortissimi viri, centuriones, qui iam primis ordinibus adpropinquarent, T. Pullo et L. Vorenus.
 Hi perpetuas inter se controversias habebant, uter alteri anteferretur, omnibusque annis de loco summis simultatibus 5 contendebant. Ex his Pullo, cum acerrime ad munitiones pugnaretur, Quid dubitas, inquit, Vorene? aut quem locum tuae probandae virtutis expectas? hic dies de nostris contro-versiis iudicabit. Haec cum dixisset, procedit extra munitiones, quaeque pars hostium confertissima est visa, inrumpit. Ne Voreus quidem sese tum vallo continet, sed omnium veritus existimationem subsequitur. Mediocri spatio relicto Pullo pilum in hostes immittit atque unum ex multitudine procurrentem traicit; quo percusso et examinato, hunc scutis protegunt hostes, in illum universi tela conieciunt neque dant progrediendi facultatem. Transfigitur scutum Pulloni et verutum in balteo defigitur. Avertit hic casus vaginam et gladium educere conanti dextram moratur manum, impeditumque hostes circumsistunt. Succurrit inimicus illi Voreus et laboranti subvenit. Ad hunc se confestim a Pullone omnis multitudo convertit; illum veruto transfixum arbitrantur. Gladio comminus rem gerit Voreus atque uno interfecto reliquos paulum propellit; dum cupidius instat, in locum deiectus inferiorem concidit. Huic rursus circumvento subsidium fert Pullo, atque ambo incolumes compluribus interfectis summa cum laude sese intra munitiones recipiunt. Sic fortuna in contentione et certamine utrumque versavit, ut alter alteri inimicus auxilio salutique esset, neque diiudicari posset, uter utri virtute antefendus videretur.

CHAPTER XLV.

The means adopted of conveying to Caesar the critical condition of Cicero.

Quanto erat in dies gravior atque asperior oppugnatio, et maxime, quod magna parte militum confecta vulneribus res ad paucitatem defensorum pervenerat, tanto crebriores litterae nuntiique ad Caesarem mittebantur, quorum pars deprehensa in conspectu nostrorum militum cum cruciatu necabatur. Erat unus intus Nervius nomine Vertico, loco natus honesto, qui a prima obsidione ad Ciceronem profugerat suamque ei cooperunt.

gnitudine
s maximo
ia, turres
cooperunt.
i fuit, ut,
um multi-ue omnes
llo deced-
quam, ac
dies nos-
eventum, ur atque
essumque
sa flamma
n, tertiae
unt suos-
i introire
est nemo.
turrisque

Voreus.

qui iam
Voreus.
er alteri
ultatibus munitiones
on locum
s contro-
ca muni-

fidem præstiterat. Hic servo spe libertatis magnisque persuadet præmiis, ut litteras ad Cæsarem deferat. Has ille 10 in iaculo inligatas effert et Gallus inter Gallos sine ulla suspicione versatus ad Cæsarem pervenit. Ab eo de periculis Ciceronis legionisque cognoscitur.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Cæsar sends messages to his legati to join him in going to the relief of Cicero.

1 Cæsar acceptis litteris hora circiter undecima diei statim nuntium in Bellovacos ad M. Crassum mittit, cuius hiberna aberant ab eo milia passuum xxv; iubet media nocte legionem proficisci celeriterque ad se venire. Exit cum nuntio Crassus.
 5 Alterum ad C. Fabium legatum mittit, ut in Atrebatium fines legionem adducat, qua sibi iter faciendum sciebat. Scribit Labieno, si rei publicae commodo facere posset, cum legione ad fines Nerviorum veniat. Reliqua partem exercitus, quod paulo aberat longius, non putat expectandam; equites 10 circiter quadringentos ex proximis hibernis cogit.

CHAPTER XLVII.

Crassus arrives at Samarobriua, and on his approach Cæsar sets out—Fabius joins him en route—Labienus deems it advisable not to stir.

1 Hora circiter tertia ab antecursoribus de Crassi adventu certior factus eo die milia passuum xx progreditur. Crassum Samarobriuae præficit legionemque si attribuit; quod ibi impedimenta exercitus, obsides civitatum, litteras publicas frumentumque orne, quod eo tolerandae hiemis causa devexerat, relinquebat. Fabius, ut imperatum erat, non ita multum moratus, in itinere cum legione occurrit. Labienus, interitu Sabini et caede cohortium cognita, cum omnes ad eum Treverorum copiae venissent, veritus, ne, si ex hibernis fugae similem profectionem fecisset, hostium impetum sustinere non posset, praesertim quos recenti victoria efferri sciret, litteras Caesari remittit, quanto cum periculo legionem ex hibernis educturus esset, rem gestam in Eburonibus perscribit; docet, omnes equitatus peditatusque copias Treverorum tria milia passuum longe ab suis castris consedissee. 15
 5

CHAPTER XLVIII.

Cæsar makes a forced march to the relief—Manages to communicate with Cicero—Joy in the camp.

Caesar consilio eius probato, etsi opinione trium legionum deiectus ad duas reciderat, tamen unum communi saluti auxilium in celeritate ponebat. Venit magnis itineribus in Nerviorum fines. Ibi ex captivis cognoscit, quae apud Ciceronem gerantur quantoque in periculo res sit. Tum eundem ex equitibus Gallis magnis praemiis persuadet, uti ad Ciceronem epistulam deferat. Hanc Graecis conscriptam litteris mittit, ne intercepta epistula nostra ab hostibus consilia cognoscantur. Si adire non possit, monet, ut tragulam cum epistula ad amentum deligata intra munitiones castrorum abiciat. In litteris scribit, se cum legionibus profectum celeriter adfore; hortatur, ut pristinam virtutem retineat. Gallus periculum veritus, ut erat praeceptum, tragulam mittit. Haec casu ad turrim adhaesit neque a nostris biduo animadversa tertio die a quodam milite conspicitur, dempta ad Ciceronem defertur. Ille perlectam in conventu militum recitat maximaque omnes laetitia adficit. Tum fumi incendiorum procul videbantur, quae res omnem dubitationem adventus legionum expulit.

CHAPTER XLIX.

The Gauls raise the siege and turn to meet Cæsar—Cicero warns him of his danger—Cæsar, by contracting his camp, deludes the enemy into underestimating his force.

- 1 Galli re cognita per exploratores obsidionem relinquunt, ad Caesarem omnibus copiis contendunt. Haec erant armata circiter milia LX. Cicero data facultate Gallum ab eodem Verticone, quem supra demonstravimus, repetit, qui litteras
- 5 ad Caesarem deferat; hunc admonet, iter caute diligenterque faciat; perscribit in litteris, hostes ab se discessisse omnemque ad eum multitudinem convertisse. Quibus litteris circiter media nocte Caesar adlatis suos facit certiores eosque ad
- 10 castra et circiter milia passuum quattuor progressus trans vallem et rivum multitudinem hostium conspicatur. Erat magni periculi res tantulis copiis iniquo loco dimicare; tum, quoniam obsidione liberatum Ciceronem sciebat, aequo animo remittendum de celeritate existimabat: considit et, quam
- 15 aequissimo potest loco, castra communit atque haec, etsi erant exigua per se, vix hominum milium septem, praesertim nullis cum impedimentis, tamen argenti viarum, quam maxime potest, contrahit, eo consilio, ut in summam contempionem hostibus veniat. Interim speculatoribus in omnes partes
- 20 dimissis explorat, quo commodissime itinere vallem transiri possit.

CHAPTER L.

Cavalry skirmishes—Caesar feigns fear in order to entice the enemy to fight on the spot of his own choosing.

1 Eo die parvulis equestribus proeliis ad aquam factis utrique sese suo loco continent : Galli, quod ampliores copias, quae nondum convenerant, expectabant, Caesar, si forte timoris simulatione hostes in suum locum elicere posset, ut citra 5 vallem pro castris proelio contenderet; si id efficere non posset, ut exploratis itineribus minore cum periculo vallem rivumque transiret. Prima luce hostium equitatus ad castra accedit proeliumque cum nostris equitibus committit. Caesar consulto equites cedere seque in castra recipere iubet; simul 10 ex omnibus partibus castra altiore vallo muniri portasque ob-strui atque in his administrandis rebus quam maxime concursari et cum simulatione agi timoris iubet.

CHAPTER LI.

The Gauls fall into the trap and attack the camp—Caesar sallies and routs them.

1 Quibus omnibus rebus hostes invitati copias traducunt aciemque iniquo loco constituunt, nostris vero etiam de vallo deductis propius accedunt et tela intra munitionem ex omnibus partibus coiciunt praeconibusque circummissis pronunti-5 ari iubent, seu quis Gallus seu Romanus velit ante horam tertiam ad se transire, sine periculo licere; post id tempus non fore potestatem; ac sic nostros contempserunt, ut, obstructis in speciem portis singulis ordinibus caespitem, quod ea non posse introrumpere videbantur, alii vallum manu 10
 scindere, alii fossas complere inciperent. Tum Caesar omnibus portis eruptione facta equitatuque emisso celeriter hostes in fugam dat, sic uti omnino pugnandi causa resisteret nemo, magnanque ex iis numerum occidit atque omnes armis exiit.

CHAPTER LII.

Cæsar abstains from pursuit and reaches the camp of Cicero—He learns the history of the defence, and congratulates the heroes of it.

1 Longius prosequi veritus, quod silvæ paludesque intercedebant neque etiam parvulo detrimento illorum locum relinqui videbat, omnibus suis incolumibus eodem die ad Ciceronem pervenit. Institutas turres, testudines munitionesque hostium admiratur; producta legione cognoscit, non decimum quemque esse reliquum militem sine vulnere: ex his omnibus iudicat rebus, quanto cum periculo et quanta cum virtute res sint administratæ. Ciceronem pro eius merito legionemque conlaudat; centuriones singillatim tribunosque militum appellat, quorum egregiam fuisse virtutem testimonio Ciceronis cognoverat. De casu Sabini et Cottæ certius ex captivis cognoscit. Postero die contione habitam rem gestam proponit, milites consolatur et confirmat: quod 10 detrimentum culpa et temeritate legati sit acceptum, hoc æquiore animo ferendum docet, quod beneficio deorum immortalium et virtute eorum expiato incommodo neque hostibus diutina lætitia neque ipsis longior dolor relinquatur.

CHAPTER LIII.

News of Cæsar's victory reaches Labienus—Indutiomarus abandons his contemplated attack on him—On account of the disturbed condition of Gaul, Cæsar determines to winter there.

Interim ad Labienum per Remos incredibili celeritate de 1 victoria Caesaris fama perfertur, ut, cum ab hibernis Ciceronis milia passuum abesset circiter l.x, eoque post horam nonam diei Caesar pervenisset, ante mediam noctem ad portas castrorum clamor oreretur, quo clamore significatio victoriae gratulatioque ab Remis Labieno fieret. Hac fama ad Treveros perlata Indutiomarus, qui postero die castra Labieni oppugnare decreverat, noctu profugit copiasque omnes in Treveros reducit. Caesar Fabium cum sua legione remittit in hiberna, ipse cum tribus legionibus circum Samarobrivam trinis hibernis hiemare constituit et, quod tanti motus Galliae extiterant, totam hiemem ipse ad exercitum manere decrevit. Nam illo incommodo de Sabini morte perlato omnes fere Galliae civitates de bello consultabant, nuntios legationesque in omnes partes dimittebant et, quid reliqui consilii caperent atque unde initium belli fieret, explorabant nocturnaue in locis desertis concilia habebant. Neque ullum fere totius hiemis tempus sine sollicitudine Caesaris intercessit, quin aliquem de consiliis ac motu Gallorum nuntium acciperet. In his ab Lucio Roscio, quem legioni tertiae decimae praefecerat, certior factus est, magnas copias earum civitatum, quae Aremoricae appellantur, oppugnandi sui causa convenisse neque longius milibus passuum octo ab hibernis suis afuisse, sed nuntio adlato de victoria Caesaris discessisse, adeo ut fugae similis discessus videretur. 25

CHAPTER LIV.

Caesar's efforts to stay the spread of disaffection—The Senones expel the king he had established—Scarcely a state can be relied upon except the Haedui and Remi—Reflections.

- 1 At Caesar principibus cuiusque civitatis ad se evocatis alios territando, cum se scire, quae fierent, denuntiaret, alios cohortando magnam partem Galliae in officio tenuit. Tamen Senones, quae est civitas in primis firma et magnae inter
- 5 Gallos auctoritatis, Cavarinum, quem Caesar apud eos regem constituerat, cuius frater Moritasgus adventu in Galliam Caesaris cuiusque maiores regnum obtinuerant, interficere publico consilio conati, cum ille praesensisset ac profugisset, usque ad fines insecuti regno domoque expulerunt et, missis ad
- 10 Caesarem satisfaciendi causa legatis, cum is omnem ad se senatum venire iussisset, dicto audientes non fuerunt. Ac tantum apud homines barbaros valuit, esse aliquos repertos principes belli inferendi, tantamque omnibus voluntatum commutationem attulit, ut praeter Haeduos et Remos, quos
- 15 praecipuo semper honore Caesar habuit, alteros pro vetere ac perpetua erga populum Romanum fide, alteros pro recentibus Gallici belli officiis, nulla fere civitas fuerit non suspecta nobis. Idque adeo haud scio mirandumne sit, cum compluribus aliis de causis, tum maxime, quod qui virtute belli
- 20 omnibus gentibus praeferebantur, tantum se eius opinionis deperdidisse, ut populi Romani imperia perferrent, gravissime dolebant.

CHAPTER LV.

Indutiomarus aggressive—His intrigues.

- 1 Treveri vero atque Indutiomarus totius hiemis nullum tempus intermiserunt, quin trans Rhenum legatos mitterent, civitates sollicitarent, pecunias pollicerentur, magna parte exercitus nostri interfecta multo minorem superesse dicerent 5 partem. Neque tamen ulli civitati Germanorum persuaderi potuit, ut Rhenum transiret, cum se bis expertos dicerent, Ariovisti bello et Teneterorum transitu: non esse amplius fortunam temptaturos. Hac spe lapsus Indutimarus nihilo minus copias cogere, exercere, a finitimis equos parare, exsules 10 damnatosque tota Gallia magnis praemiis ad se adlicere coepit. Ac tantam sibi iam his rebus in Gallia auctoritatem comparaverat, ut undique ad eum legationes concurrerent, gratiam atque amicitiam publice privatimque peterent.

CHAPTER LVI.

He is joined by other tribes, and holds an armed council—Determines to attack Labienus.

Ubi intellexit, ultro ad se venire, altera ex parte Senones 1 Carnutesque conscientia facinoris instigari, altera Nervios Atuaticosque bellum Romanis parare, neque sibi voluntarium copias defore, si ex finibus suis progredi coepisset, armatum concilium indicit. Hoc more Gallorum est initium belli: 5 quo lege communi omnes puberes armati convenire coguntur; qui ex iis novissimus venit, in conspectu multitudinis omnibus cruciatibus affectus necatur. In eo concilio Cingetorigem, alterius principem factionis, generum suum, quem supra demonstravimus Caesaris secutum fidem ab eo non discessisse, 10 hostem iudicat bonaque eius publicat. His rebus confectis in concilio pronuntiat, arcessitum se a Senonibus et Carnutibus aliisque compluribus Galliae civitatibus; huc iturum per fines Remorum eorumque agros populaturum ac, priusquam id faciat, castra Labieni oppugnaturum. Quae fieri velit, 15 praecipit.

CHAPTER LVII.

Labienus makes cautious preparations.

1 Labienus, cum et loci natura et manu munitissimis castris sese teneret, de suo ac legionis periculo nihil timebat, ne quam occasionem rei bene gerendae dimitteret, cogitabat.
 Itaque a Cingetorige atque eius propinquis oratione Indutio-5 mari cognita, quam in concilio habuerat, nuntios mittit ad finitimas civitates equitesque undique evocat: his certum diem conveniendi dicit. Interim prope cotidie cum omni equitatu Indutiomarus sub castris eius vagabatur, alias ut situm castrorum cognosceret, alias conloquendi aut territandi 10 causa; equites plerumque omnes tela intra vallum coiecibant. Labienus suos intra munitionem continebat timorisque opinionem, quibuscumque poterat rebus, augebat.

CHAPTER LVIII.

Indutiomarus, beguiled into despising his enemy, attacks the camp—He is routed and slain—Pacific effect on Gaul.

1 Cum maiore in dies contempione Indutiomarus ad castra accederet, nocte una intromissis equitibus omnium finitimarum civitatum, quos arecessendos curaverat, tanta diligentia omnes suos custodiis intra castra continuit, ut nulla ratione ea res 5 enuntiari aut ad Treveros perferri posset. Interim ex con-suetudine cotidiana Indutiomarus ad castra accedit atque ibi magnam partem diei consumit; equites tela coeiciunt et magna cum contumelia verborum nostros ad pugnam evocant.
 Nullo ab nostris dato responso, ubi visum est, sub vesperum 10 dispersi ac dissipati discedunt. Subito Labienus duabus portis omnem equitatum emittit; praecipit atque interdicit, proterritis hostibus atque in fugam coniectis — quod fore, sicut accidit, videbat — unum omnes petant Indutiomarum, ne quis quem prius vulneret, quam illum interfectum viderit, quod mora reliquorum spatium nactum illum effugere volebat; magna proponit iis, qui occiderint, praemia; submittit cohortes equitibus subsidio. Comprobat hominis consilium Fortuna, et cum unum omnes peterent, in ipso fluminis vado deprehensus Indutiomarus interficitur caputque eius refertur in castra; redeuntes equites, quos possunt, consecantur atque occidunt. Haec re cognita omnes Ebarorum et Nerviorum, quae convenerant, copiae discedunt, pauloque habuit post id factum Caesar quietiorem Galliam.

15

20

NOTES.¹

BOOK IV.

CHAPTER I.

1. Ea hieme, abl. of time, "when."
qui. The pronoun is attracted into agreement in gender with the predicate: cf. Bk. v. ch. xlix. 2, and contrast Bk. v. ch. xl. 18.
annus, 55 B.C.
2. Germani an adjective.
3. transierunt. Caesar almost invariably uses this form of the 3rd plur. perf. act., and very seldom the alternative form in -ere.
4. non longe—inluit, "not far from the mouth of the Rhine."
quo. Latin is essentially an accurate language. Here quo, "whither," is used, and not ubi, "where," because of the idea of motion in inluit.
causa, nom., "the reason of their crossing was that . . ."
When causa in abl. is used as a preposition, it always follows its case.
5. complures annos, acc. of duration of time.
bello. In Latin, ideas are expressed very definitely. In English we should merely say "hard pressed." So "pain" = dolor corporis (mentis), "nature" = natura rerum, "crushed" (heart-broken) = fractus animo: defining words being used in Latin.
6. agri cultura, abl. of separation.
8. Hi, the Suebi.

¹ For all Proper Names, see Index of Names. Unless the number of the Book is stated, the reference is to the Book in which the note occurs.

8. centum pagos. Tacitus describes the Semnones, a section of the Suebi, as being divided into a hundred "cantons" (term., ch. xxxix.) The division probably took place in each fresh settlement.

9. quotannis, sometimes written in two words. It is a shortened expression for the full "tot annis quot sunt"; cf. quot mensibus, "every month."

singula milia, distributive, "a thousand each year."

10. reliqui—remanent. Horace gives the same account of the Scythians—

Nec cultura placet longior annua, Defunctumque laboribus Aequali recreat sorte vicarius.

—Od. iii. 24.

manserunt. The pres. and pluperf. indicative are used with cum, si, ubi, quoties, of iterative or repeated action in primary and secondary sequence respectively.

11. in vicem, "in turn"; distributive use of in; cf. Bk. v. ch. xxx. 1.

12. ratio atque usus, "science and practice." The two nouns form one idea, contrasted with agri cultura. Hence atque, and not ne, and the singular verb intermittitur.

13. agri, partitive gen., dependent on nihil. We might say "private landed property."

15. maximam partem, "for the most part"; adverbial accusative, variously classed under acc. of extent and acc. of reference or respect; cf. multum in the same sentence. Similar uses of the acc. are cetera, "as for the rest"; id temporis, "at that time"; id genus, "of that kind"; secus virile, muliebre, "of the male" or "female sex." See L. P.,¹ § 213.

lacte atque pecore, abl. of means.

16. res, "this fact." Beware of translating "res" always by "thing" or "affair." It is a general word constantly used where we should employ a special term. It takes its meaning from the context. It has been compared to a blank cheque to be filled in at pleasure. "Considerations," "circumstances," "aim," "juncture," "result," are common meanings that it bears.

17. genere—faciunt, "owing to their diet, daily exercise, and freedom of life (for from boyhood, not having been schooled by duty and training, they do nothing at all against their will)"; the cum clause is explanatory of libertate vitae.

18. a pueris, so in Greek, ἐκ παιδῶν, "from boys."

¹ L. P. refers to Kennedy's Revised Latin Primer.

19. immani . . . magnitudine, abl. of description or quality; like the similar genitive, never used without an epithet or the equivalent of an epithet. The phrase here is predicative.

20. Atque, "and further," introduces a new and important fact or idea.

eam se consuetudinem. In English, when we wish to emphasise words, we are sometimes compelled to resort to the clumsy method of italics. In Latin, emphasis is effectively given by order. A very common way is to take some unimportant word like est, se, esse, is, &c., and place it between words which naturally go together. Here se, by its position between eam and consuetudinem, adds emphasis to them. Examples are very numerous: e.g. below, magna est corporis pars; ch. iii. 9, Gallieis sunt moribus assuefacti; ch. v. 9, de summis sæpe rebus. Trans.: "they have so thoroughly inured themselves."

21. locis frigidissimis, abl. abs. with concessive sense, "though the climate be extremely cold."

neque . . . et, "not . . . and besides"; cf. ch. xxix. 11.

vestitus, partitive gen. with quicquam.

22. haberent . . . lavarentur, irregular sequence after adduxerunt, which clearly here has a perfect and not an aorist force; habeant . . . laventur would have been more natural. The probable explanation of this and any similar irregularity is that as the Latin perfect so constantly had an aorist force, the imperf. subjunct. was used after it occasionally, when it had its strictly perfect meaning.

CHAPTER II.

1. Mercatoribus—desiderent. "Access (or perhaps 'an open door') is granted to traders rather with a view to having purchasers (or a 'market') for the booty they have taken in war than from a desire of any import trade."

quæ . . . quibus, supply as antecedents ea governed by vendant, and eos governed by habeant.

ceperint, subjunct. due to quæ, generic or restrictive (see App. II.), "such things as."

2. vendant, final subjunct. quibus = ut eis (see App. II.)

quam quo . . . desiderent, virtually oblique subjunct. of alleged cause. The reason given is not the real one, but one that might be attributed (see App. II.)

quam and the comparative are equivalent in sense to a negative, so that the phrase is virtually the same as the ordinary non quo, "not because." On the same principle quisquam, which is only used after a negative, can follow quam and a comparative.

3. desider here means merely "desire." Another and more common meaning is "feel the loss of," "miss."

Quin etiam, "nay more." Sometimes quin is used alone in this sense.

Galli. Many of the words in Latin connected with horses are Celtic—e.g., essedum, corinus, "war-chariot"; petorritum, raeda, "a travelling-carriage," and others. In some of them we can detect common Celtic words lurking. Petorritum, which means "four-wheeled," contains the Celtic word for "four": Welsh, pedwar; Cornish, perwar; Breton, perar.

4. impenso, lit. "profusely expended"; hence "lavish," "great."

6. ut sint . . . efficiunt, "they render them."

summi ut . . . laboris. Summi, by being placed before ut and separated from laboris, is made very emphatic. The genitive is that of quality or description (see on ch. i. 19, for the ablative). The genitive is used rather of general qualities, the ablative of special characteristics and personal features. Both are used of mental qualities.

7. Equestribus proeliis, in omitted, as often; cf. eodem vestigio below, and more often than not with locus.

pedibus, "on foot." The ablative is instrumental.

8. eodem . . . vestigio, "in the same spot."

10. moribus, "according to their customs." Mores, the plural, also means "character," because "habits" form "character."

habetur, "is held," "considered."

ephippiis, a Greek word (ἐφίππια), "horse-cloths," "housings."

11. ad, "against."

quemvis, like quilibet, "any you please." Distinguish these from quisquam and ullus, which mean "any" after a negative or the equivalent: non quis hoc facere potest = "not every one can do it"; non quisquam hoc facere potest = "no one can do it."

12. quamvis pauci, "however few." Quamvis is used thus with an adjective, and also as a relative adverb ("although"), with the subjunct.

Vinum—arbitrantur. Caesar records the same of the Nervii, a warlike Belgic tribe (Bk. ii. ch. xv.)

omnino . . . non patiuntur, "altogether refuse to allow."

CHAPTER III.

1. Publice, "as a nation."
quam — agros, "that as wide a tract of country as possible, stretching from their borders, should be waste land."
4. a Suebis, "in the direction of the Suebi"; a very common use of a, ab; cf. the phrases a tergo, a latere, a fronte, ab occasu, ab oriente, a septentrionibus, a meridie, &c.
centum. Some editors read sescenta, an incredible statement, as this distance would comprise the whole of Southern Germany.
agri, nom. plur., subject of dicuntur.
5. succedunt, "come close up." For this use of sub, cf. sub noctem, "at nightfall"; sub vallum, "close up to the rampart."
6. ut est captus Germanorum, "as far as the capacity of the Germans allows." Captus is a noun.
7. eiusdem generis, the German race.
8. multum, adverbial, as in ch. i. 15. Below we have multo. The difference is that multum is used with verbs, multo with comparatives (an abl. of measure).
10. moribus, abl., as officio in ch. i. 13.
cum, concessive, "although."
13. humiliores infirmioresque, predicative, "reduced them to a state of far greater dependence and weakness."

CHAPTER IV.

1. causa, "case," "position." It is from this use of causa that the French chose, which is derived from it, gets its meaning.
supra. Ch. i. 2.
2. diximus. Notice the transitive use of dico with accusative in sense of "mention." It may be well here to give a warning about verbs which in grammars are said to "take a dative." No verb really "takes a dative." Either the verb is transitive in English and intransitive in Latin, as noceo tibi, "I hurt you"—lit. = "I am hurtful to you" (so parco, "I am sparing"; parco, "I am obedient"), or, more frequently, what in English seems the direct object is in Latin the indirect. For instance, impero is a transitive verb, and as such takes an accusative—impero obsides, "I demand hostages"; impero hoc, "I order this"; but, as usual, the indirect object is in the dative—impero tibi, "I order [this to] you." So credo me tibi, "I entrust myself to you"; credo tibi, "I trust [to] you." Hence "hostages are demanded" = obsides imperantur; "hostages are ordered" = obsidibus imperatur, because only the acc. of the active construction can become the subject of the passive.

2. complures annos, acc. of duration of time. Do not be misled by the English word "during," which does not always imply duration, but sometimes time "within which," expressed by the ablative: e.g., duos annos aeger erat = "during two years he was ill (i.e., the whole time); duobus annis bis aeger erat = "during two years he was ill twice" (i.e., in the course of two years). Cf. una nocte, below.

sustinuerunt. An action, however long its actual duration, is put into the perfect (or rather aorist) in Latin, if it is regarded as a whole or point of time, without stress being laid on its continuance. The aorist can be compared to a point, the imperfect to a line.

3. agris, abl. of separation.

multis locis, in omitted; see on ch. ii. 7.

4. triennium, duration of time: so biennium.

quas. Whenever you see a relative at the beginning of a new sentence, look to the end to see whether it is the "connective" relative (= "and he, she, it"), as here, connecting two clauses together, or whether it is the ordinary relative introducing a subordinate clause, with the principal clause, containing an antecedent expressed or understood, coming after.

regiones. See map.

9. prohibebant, "tried to stop." When prohibeo is used without a negative, the usual construction is the infinitive, as here; when it is negated, it is followed by quominus, ne, quin, with the subjunct. See App. II.

11. custodias. Custodiae consisted of sentinels put to guard a particular point; vigiliae, small outposts of three or four men for night watches; stationes, larger detachments.

reverti se . . . simulaverunt. Simulo is constructed with the acc. and infin., not with the prolativum infinitive: e.g., "I pretend to be good" is simulo me esse bonum, not esse bonus.

12. tridui, gen. of definition, "consisting of," to be distinguished from the gen. of quality or description.

reverterunt. Just above the verb is deponent. It is only active in the perfect and the tenses formed from it.

13. una nocte, "during one night"—i.e., "within the limits of," which is always expressed by the abl. It is not duration of time. See note on complures annos above.

equitatu, "by riding," instrum. abl. This is a rare verbal use of equitatus.

13. confecto, abl. abs. with omni hoc itinere.
 17. occupatis, "seized." Occupo does not mean "to occupy."
prius quam and antequam, like dum, quoad, are often used with the subjunct., even of a fact that is past, because of the idea of purpose lurking in them (see App. II.)
 20. se eorum. Se is put out of its natural order for the sake of emphasising the contrast between the two pronouns.
copiis, "by means of their supplies."

CHAPTER V.

1. infirmitatem, "instability."
 2. in consiliis capiendis mobiles, "impulsive."
novis . . . rebus, "change." Generally the phrase means "revolution." Notice the emphatic order.
 3. nihil . . . committendum, "ought to place no reliance on them."
 4. Est — consuetudinis, "there is also this point in Gallic custom." Consuetudinis is partitive gen. Cf. id temporis, "at that time."
uti. Besides the ordinary final and consecutive uses of ut with the subjunct. there are two others, (a) substantival, as here, introducing a clause that is practically equivalent to a substantive; (b) concessive, "granted that," a comparatively rare use.
 The Gauls were like the Athenians (Acts xvii. 21), who "spent their time in nothing else but either to tell or to hear some new thing." For an example of this credulity see Bk. vi. ch. xx. Martial (v. i. 10) uses Galla (= Gallica) credulitas as a proverbial expression.
 5. quid . . . audierit . . . cognoverit, indirect questions. Some editions read quod. In this case the clause would be relative, "whatever each may have heard."
 6. quaque. Always look carefully to see whether such a form is a part of quisque, as here, or the pronoun with que attached, as quibusque, quasque, just below.
quaerant . . . circumstiat . . . cogat, constructed with uti.
 7. quibusque . . . quasque, indirect questions dependent on pronuntiare.
 8. pronuntiare. Remember that cogo is constructed with the infinitive, and not with ut and subjunct.
His — respondeant. "Under the excitement of these facts and rumours they often form decisions on matters of the highest importance, of which they are compelled to repent on the spot: for they are the slaves of unconfirmed reports, and in most cases people invent answers to suit their wishes."

9. auditionibus, "hearsay."

10. eos, governed by the impersonal paenitere.

paenitere necesse est. Necesse est has three alternative constructions—

$$\text{necesse est} \left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{ut eas} \\ \text{eas} \\ \text{tibi ire} \end{array} \right\} = \text{you must go.}$$

11. plerique, i.e., most of the traders.

12. ficta, acc. after respondeant (see on ch. iv. 2).

CHAPTER VI.

1. ne — occurreret, "that he might not find the war more serious" or "a more serious war." Notice this latter way of translating the predicative adjective.

2. consuerat = consueverat.

3. Eo — cognovit, "on his arrival he found his suspicions realised."

facta, sc. esse, as with missas and invitatos below.

4. missas = missas esse, dependent on the idea of cognovit continued.

5. discederent—i.e., farther into Gaul.

omnia, quae postulassent, ab se fore parata. The Gauls said to the Germans, "Omnia quae postulaveritis erunt parata." Contrast the laxity of our English tense-usage in temporal sentences with the accuracy of the Latin. When the Romans said "shall have asked," we should say simply "ask." Postulassent is suboblique subjunct. See App. II.

6. fore parata, fut. perf. infin. pass. The infinitive is dependent on some verb of "saying" understood from invitatos, "had been invited to . . . and assured that all," &c.

Qua spe, English idiom, "hope of this."

8. clientes, a dependent state, supplying soldiers and paying tribute in return for protection.

9. cognoverat. The fact that this is not in the suboblique subjunct. shows that it was not a part of Caesar's thought at the time, but was added by him when writing to explain ea.

dissimulanda, sc. esse. Remember the difference between simulo and dissimulo: quod non es, simulus; dissimulasque quod es.

10. equitatu imperato, "cavalry having been demanded" (see note on ch. iv. 2).
11. gerere constituit. Notice that the usual construction of constituo is the prolativè infinitive.

CHAPTER VII.

1. in ea loca . . . quibus in locis. Cæsar is fond of this somewhat stilted kind of repetition. It merely = "these places where."
2. Germanos—venisse. Trans. into or. rect.: "We Germans are not aggressively attacking the Romans, yet at the same time we do not, if provoked, shrink from fighting, as it is a traditional custom with us to offer resistance to aggression and not to beg for peace. But what we do say is this, that we have come," &c.
4. priores . . . inferre. Cf. ultimus veni, "I was the last to come"; primus abii, "I was the first to go."
5. recusare . . . quin, "shrink from fighting." Quin is made up of qui, old abl. = quo, and n=ne, negative. See App. II.
6. armis contendant. See on bello, ch. i. 5.
8. deprecari, "cry off," "beg for mercy."
10. utiles esse amicos, emphatic order (see on ch. i. 20: "We can be useful friends to you").
- attribuant*, jussive subjunct. All through this piece of or. obl. the primary sequence is used for sake of vividness.
11. possederint. There are two cognate words, possideo, "I am master of," and possido, "I become master of," both of which make perfect possedi. The tense here shows that the word in the text is from possido.
13. reliquum . . . neminem, emphatic order, "there was absolutely no one else."

CHAPTER VIII.

1. quæ visum est, sc. respondere, "what it seemed good to him to answer," "made an appropriate reply"; visum est = Greek $\epsilon\delta\omicron\lambda\epsilon$. As to the speeches in Cæsar, Stock (Intro., p. 13) says: "The speeches in ancient writers are not supposed to be genuine. They constitute the dramatic element in history. Their merit is not to say what was actually said, but to say what was appropriate to the occasion."
- exitus*, "the conclusion."

3. verum, "fair."
remanent . . . potuerint . . . possint, &c., a mixture of strict with vivid sequence.
5. praesertim, "which could be given (to any people), particularly to so great a horde."
7. sint . . . querantur . . . petant. These subjunctives are purely suboblique, whereas possint, above, would have been subjunctive even in direct speech, owing to qui consecutive; see App. II.
8. hoc . . . Ubiis. See on ch. iv. 2.

CHAPTER IX.

1. re deliberata, "after deliberation."
 2. post diem tertium, "two days after." The Romans reckoned inclusively.
reversuros. See on reverterunt, ch. iv. 12.
propius se. Propius and proxime, being degrees of comparison of prope, are often used with the acc., as though they were themselves prepositions; cf. ch. xxviii. 8.
3. Ne—dixit: "even this request, Cæsar said, could not be obtained from him." Remember that the phrase ne . . . quidem never varies; the ne cannot be changed into any other form of negative.

CHAPTER X.

[The text of this chapter is very uncertain.]

1. Mosa . . . Vosego. As a matter of fact, the Meuse rises from the plateau of Laugres, which was probably included in the ancient Vosegus. The modern Vosges mountains are N.E. of the Lingones, whose name survives in Laugres.
3. insulam, formed by the Rhine, Waal, Meuse, and Ocean—i.e., the Rhine delta.
neque longius=et non-longius, the negative belonging only to longius.
inde—i.e., from the Ocean, the North Sea.
millibus=quam millibus. After amplius, plus, minus, with numerals, quam is idiomatically omitted. Millibus here is not abl. of comparison but abl. of measure. Cf. ch. xii. 2, where non amplius octingentos=non amplius quam octingentos.

5. Lepontiis. The name of the people is treated as that of a place.

longo spatio, "for a long distance"; the abl. of measure is here used for the acc. of extent, as not unfrequently, the two being akin in meaning. "The town is ten miles distant" can be translated either by decem milia or decem milibus, abest, according as either the intervening space or the measure of distance is considered.

7. citatus, "with a fast current."

Oceano. The dative is due to the idea of "nearness" in adpropinquavit, and is not the dative expressing "motion to," which is common in poetry but rare in prose.

8. multis—effectis, "forming many large islands." One of the great deficiencies in Latin is that it has no perfect participle active. The pass. part. in abl. abs. has to be used to express the idea, but in translating use the English idiom. Notice, too, that in English we loosely use the present where the more accurate Latin uses the past tense. There is another difference in idiom between the two languages to be observed in this sentence, multis ingentibusque = "many great."

9. nationibus, "tribes," a much smaller division than our "nations."

10. piscibus atque ovis, abl. of means, "on fish and eggs."

11. existimantur, "to whom belong those (well-known people) who are thought," &c.; Cæsar has definite people in his mind, and uses the indicative. Sunt qui, meaning "some" (i.e., "there are such as"), is used with the subjunctive.

capitibus, "mouths," more generally used of the "source."

CHAPTER XI.

1. non amplius . . . milibus. Quam omitted, as in last chapter. However, it is possible to regard milibus as abl. of comparison = quam milia (see note on longo spatio in ch. x. 5).

2. ut erat constitutum. In ch. ix., so far from making any "arrangement" with the envoys for their return, Cæsar seems to have discouraged them.

5. antecessissent, subblique subjunct.
pugna, abl. of separation.

6. sibi, emphatic position, with special force. In ch. viii., Cæsar had promised to send to the Ubii, but the Germans ask that they themselves may have the opportunity.

legatos mittendi. With transitive verbs Cæsar generally uses the gerundive construction, and not the gerund; but he employs the gerund here to avoid the ugly sounding legatorum mittendorum; cf. ch. xiv. 5.

7. quorum — ostendebant, "if their chiefs and senate gave them full assurance on oath, they intimated that they would accept the terms that were offered by Cæsar." Carefully compare the differences between English and Latin idiom and phraseology in this sentence.

8. fecisset, singular, in agreement with the nearer of two subjects.

9. tridui spatium, gen. of definition.

10. daret, jussive subjunct., "let him give," representing direct da.
eodem illo, "tended the same way," adverbs.

14. quam frequentissimi, "in as large numbers as possible."
convenirent, jussive subjunct., "let them come," representing convenite of the direct speech.

16. mittit . . . ne. We should say "sends them a message ordering them not to."

nuntiant. An historic present, like mittit, can be used with either primary or secondary sequence.

17. quoad . . . accessisset, "until he himself came," English idiom for "should have come."

CHAPTER XII.

1. hostes ubi, English idiom, "when the enemy saw . . . they . . ." In Latin, the subject is put with the principal verb, and the pronoun supplied with the subordinate. The principal verb, of which hostes is subject, is of course perturbaverunt. The whole of this long sentence is a good example of the beautiful clearness of the Latin arrangement of sentences, with strict regard to the proper sequence of events and ideas.

ubi primum, "as soon as."

2. V milium, gen. of definition.

cum, "though."

amplius octingentos. See note on milibus, ch. x. 3.

4. timentibus nostris . . . nostros. As a general rule, if the participial construction can be brought into the construction of the sentence, the abl. abs. is not used. Here nostris might have been omitted and timentibus have been put in agreement with nostros. The variation from the general rule here is accounted for by the separation of timentibus nostris from perturbaverunt. Cf. Bk. v. ch. xlv. 13.

6. indutiis, "for a truce," dat. of purpose or work contemplated. his—i.e., the Romans.
8. compluribus nostris, "our men in many cases," instead of the more natural compluribus e nostris, "several of our men." noster is used by Caesar as an equivalent for Romanus; cf. ch. xxii. 3.
9. atque, "and further."
10. ita perterritos egerunt, "so terrified and routed."
fuga, abl. of separation.
11. in conspectum, "in sight." Wherever there is any idea of motion, in must be used with the acc. Here again Latin is more accurate; see on ch. xviii. 10.
venissent, subjunct., due to idea of purpose in prius quam; see on ch. iv. 17, and App. II.
13. Piso had probably received his Roman name when he obtained his citizenship.
14. obtinerat, "had held."
amicus. Amicus populi Romani was a title granted by the Roman Senate to a foreign prince or chieftain for services rendered, or with a view to secure fidelity. In Bk i. ch. iii. we hear of Catamantaloedis, chief of the Sequani, mentioned as an amicus; in Bk. i. ch. xxxv., Ariovistus; and in Bk. vii. ch. xxxi., Ollivio of the Nitobroges. The title was evidently valued, as Ptolemy Anletes, King of Egypt, spent considerable sums of money in trying to obtain it.
16. eripuit . . . restitit. In order to make a narrative more graphic and vivid, or to emphasise an antithesis, a connecting particle is often omitted. This omission is called asyndeton.

CHAPTER XIII.

2. qui . . . intulissent. Even had the verb not been suboblique, it would have been in the subjunct., owing to qui causal = "inasmuch as they."
3. ultra, "unprovoked."
4. expectare—iudicabat, "he thought it was the height of madness to wait until the enemy were reinforced and the cavalry returned." Notice again the difference in English and Latin idiom in tense usage of the italicised words.
augerentur . . . reverteretur. See on ch. iv. 17.
5. summae dementiae, lit., "a sign of the highest madness"; gen. of possession used as predicate.
6. infirmitate—i.e., the instability of character described in ch. v.

6. quantum . . . auctoritatis, partitive gen.; so spatii, below. Trans., "how much prestige."
 9. legatis et quaestore. For the quaestor's usual duties, see Introduction, p. xxiii. Here, as in Bk. v. ch. xxiv, he is associated in military command with the legati. Caesar's quaestor was M. Crassus.

ne quem, quis indefinite, "that he might not let a day slip." Remember that quis indefinite is rarely used, except with ne and si. This clause is explanatory of consilio, "his plan not to."

10. pugnae, defining gen., but trans., "a day for battle"; cf. ch. xiv. 5, consilii habendi . . . spatium.

11. quod explains res.

postridie eius diei, a pleonastic phrase.

12. usi, with present rather than past meaning, a fairly common use of the perf. deponent participle; cf. arbitratus, ch. xxiii. 10; com-moratus, Bk. v. ch. vii. 6. This is due to the Latin avoidance of the pres. part. (except in the oblique cases, as equivalent to a relative clause or noun—e.g., pugnantium modo). English idiom is exactly contrary to the Latin.

13. adhibititis, "bringing all their chiefs and elders"; see note on multis effectis, ch. x. 8.

ad eum in castra. In English we should say "came to him in the camp," where "in the camp" qualifies "him." In Latin, a prepositional or adverbial phrase is rarely used by itself to qualify a noun. For some exceptions, see on ch. xvi. 15.

simul . . . simul, "partly . . . partly."

14. purgandi sui causa. As sui is plural, strict grammar would require purgandorum sui, but purgandi is made to agree with the form of sui; cf. ch. xxxiv. 13.

quod . . . commisissent, virtually suboblique subjunct., because it expresses their own confession, "excuse themselves for having, as they admitted, engaged;" cf. ch. xvi. 19. This makes dictum esset and petissent suboblique.

contra atque esset dictum, "contrary to what had been agreed." At, atque are used after adverbs, pronouns, and adjectives implying similarity (e.g., simul, idem, alius, similis) to express the comparison or contrast.

15. petissent = petissent, petivissent. The Germans themselves had begged for a truce, and yet had treacherously commenced hostilities by attacking the Roman cavalry.

ut—impetrarent, "to gain whatever they could, by treacherous negotiation (fallendo) for a truce." Indutiis, according to this translation, refers not to the truce already broken, but to a further truce that they hoped to obtain. Another translation is possible, "by a misrepresentation of (the infringement of) the truce."

16. si quid, lit., "if anything"—i.e., "whatever." So si quando, "whenever"; sicubi, "wherever"; sicunde, "from whatever place"; si qua, "by whatever way"; si quo, "in whatever direction."

Quos . . . illos. Quos is connective relative=et illos; illos is therefore unnecessarily inserted.

18. equitatumque—perterritum. The cavalry had some reason for fear, inasmuch as (ch. xii.) 5000 of them had been routed by 800 of the enemy.

CHAPTER XIV.

1. Acie triplici, see Introduction, p. xxvi. Acies is the fighting order of troops, agmen the marching order. Apparently here they marched in fighting order.

2. prius . . . quam . . . possent. See on ch. iv. 17.

5. consilii habendi . . . spatio, "time for taking counsel." See on diem pugnar, ch. xiii. 10. Notice the difference of construction, consilii habendi gerundive, arma capiendi gerund. For explanation, see on ch. xi. 6.

6. copiasne—praestaret, "whether it were better to lead the troops against the enemy, or to defend the camp, or to seek safety by means of flight"; three alternative indirect questions, dependent on perturbantur, "are thrown into a state of perplexity."

7. Quorum, connective relative: cum is a conjunction, not a preposition.

8. pristini diei perfidia, "by yesterday's treachery."

9. Quo loco, in omitted, as so frequently with loco, locis; cf. ch. ii. 7.

12. puerorum mulierumque, "consisting of women and children," gen. of definition. Notice the significance in the difference between English and Latin order; cf. ch. xix. 7, liberos, uxores.

13. fugere coepit. With an active infinitive, the active perfect, coepi, is used; with a passive infinitive, the deponent, coeptus sum: e.g., coepi fugere, but coeptus sum fugari.

Undoubtedly Caesar's treatment of the Usipetes and Tencteri is one of the least satisfactory episodes of his career. Even if entire credence be placed in Caesar's charge of treachery against them (and there is at least one very doubtful point in his account), he was not justified in detaining a deputation that had come with apologies, in surprising the enemy at a time when they believed there was truce, and in sending cavalry to massacre the women and children. So strongly did his old enemy Cato (a stern, bigoted, uncompromising enemy, it must be admitted) feel, that when a supplicatio, or public thanksgiving, was proposed to celebrate his achievements in Gaul and Britain, he proposed as an amendment that Cæsar be handed over to the Usipetes and Tencteri. In palliation of his conduct, it may be urged that, supposing there was any treachery on the enemy's part, it was in accordance with the spirit of the age (of which, as a rule, Cæsar seems in advance) to take ruthless vengeance, and that the fickle nature of the Gauls rendered a stern lesson necessary.

CHAPTER XV.

2. signis militaribus. These were figures of animals on poles. se . . . eiecerunt, "they hurried."

3. confluentem Mosae et Rheni. This must mean the confluence of the Mosa with the Vaalus (Waal), which Cæsar has in ch. x. referred to as the Rhine (in Rhenam influit). But there is a difficulty, because Cæsar crossed the Rhine far higher up, and there is no record of the march southwards. Accordingly, some authorities would read Mosellae for Mosae here. But it seems very unlikely that Cæsar is referring to any other confluence than that mentioned in ch. x. Probably the march southwards to the place of crossing is omitted, as lacking incident.

3. confluentem, used as a substantive, like continens, profuens, some noun like locus being understood.

4. reliqua fuga desperata, "despairing of further flight."

6. ad unum, "to a man."

7. ex . . . timore, "recovering from their fear." Ex often has the meaning of "after."

8. cum—fuisset explains timore. We should put the sentence in a parenthesis ("for the number," &c.)

capitum depends on miliū, which is gen. of definition.

9. iii, the deputation.

10. potestatem fecit, "gave the opportunity."

12. His—concessit. This acquiescence on Cæsar's part is more in accordance with his general character than the rest of his treatment of the Usipetes and Tencteri.

CHAPTER XVI

2. quarum—transire, "of these the most valid was that, as he saw the Germans were so easily persuaded to cross into Gaul, he wished they also should have some anxiety for their own position at home by being made to understand that the army of Rome had both the power and the courage to cross the Rhine."

4. quoque—i.e., they, as well as the people whose land they were invading.

6. Accessit . . . quod, lit., "there came also the fact that," i.e., "besides." A similar expression is additum est quod; accedo is used in this phrase as the passive of addo.

8. transisse = transisse, transirisse, proelio, dative.

11. qui postularent, final subjunct., "to ask" (see App. II.)
qui intulissent, subjunct. due to qui, restrictive, "such as" (see App. II.)

sibi. Remember that the reflexive pronoun in a subordinate clause can refer to the subject of the sentence on which it depends, as well as to the subject of its own clause. Here, of course, sibi = Cæsar. There seems to be no strict rule as to the use of the reflexive pronoun in a relative or rel. adverb clause when the pronoun refers to the subject of the principal verb, but generally it is employed if the verb of the subordinate clause is in the subjunctive.

12. dederent, jussive subjunct. in semi-dependence on postularent (see App. II.)

12. responderunt. Caesar puts into the mouths of the Germans a speech that from their point of view is convincing.

13. se invito, "against his will," abl. abs.

14. non aequum, "unfair."

sui . . . imperii, partitive gen. with quisquam. Sui refers to the Germans; quisquam and ullus are only used in negative or virtually negative sentences. Questions often have the force of a negative. See also on ch. ii. 2.

15. potestatis trans Rhenum = potestatis transrhenanæ. Here, contrary to general usage, a prepositional phrase qualifies a noun, like an adjective, without being "bracketed" to it by a participle or adjective. In English, this is the ordinary idiom. In Latin, any unattached prepositional phrase as a rule must be taken with the verb of the sentence. For this attributive use of a phrase, cf. ch. xxxiii. 1, ex essedis pugnae; Bk. v. ch. xxvii. 2, ex Hispania quidam; Bk. v. ch. xl. 14, loricæ ex cratibus. When the noun is verbal and expresses motion, it is not uncommon—e.g., ch. xxi. 5, in Britanniam praectus; Bk. v. ch. liv. 6, adventu in Galliam.

postularet represents direct cur postulas. The right rule for questions in or. obl. (there is a discrepancy between the rules given in various grammars) seems to be that questions which in or. rect. are (a) in the 1st and 3rd person, are in or. obl. put into the acc. and infin., unless they were in the subjunct. in or. rect., in which case they remain in the subjunct.; (b) in the 2nd person, are put in the subjunct. in or. obl.

16. uni, "alone."

miserant . . . fecerant . . . dederant—asyndeton (see on ch. xii. 16).

19. premerentur, virtually oblique subjunct., implying that it was the reason they gave; cf. ch. xiii. 14. Remember quia, quod causal are used with the indicative normally.

facere. See note on ch. iv. 9.

occupationibus rei publicae. If occupationibus has a passive force here, rei publicae is objective gen., "engagements in state affairs"; if an active, the gen. is subjective, "the engrossing demands of the state"; cf. ch. xxii. 9.

20. modo, "just," "only." Distinguish between modo (1) noun, dat. or abl. of modus, "limit," "manner" (modo, "after manner of," is used as a preposition; see ch. xvii. 11); (2) adverb, (a) "now," (b) "only," especially in phrase non modo; (3) relative adverb with subjunct., "provided that," either by itself or joined with dum.

transportaret, jussive subjunct.

20. id—futurum, "that for (as regards) assistance and hope for the future, that would suffice." The gen. (temporis) is objective.

22. nomen atque opinionem, "reputation and prestige."

eius, "his," dependent on, not agreeing with, exercitus.

Ariovisto pulso. We should say, "owing to the defeat of Ariovistus." The defeat of Ariovistus is recorded in Bk. i. ch. xxx. onwards.

23. etiam ad, "even in the eyes of."

24. opinione. "prestige," as above.

tuti esse. Note that the predicate of the prolative infinitive is always in the same case as the subject of the verb on which it depends.

CHAPTER XVII.

2. sed—statuebat, "but crossing by ships (abl. of means or instrument), he decided, was neither quite safe nor worthy of the prestige of himself or Rome." For the gen., cf. ch. xiii. 5.

5. proponebatur, "presented itself to him"—the "middle" use of the passive; cf. ch. xxxii. 10.

6. id—aliter, "that he must aim at this, or else . . ."

7. Rationem—iungebat. "This was the plan of the bridge that he adopted. At an interval of two feet he braced together pairs of piles a foot and a half thick, sharpened a little way from the bottom, measured in accordance with the depth of the stream." Study the illustration.

8. dimensa, deponent used passively, as not uncommonly in the participle.

10. Haec—statuebat. "When, by his machinery, he had lowered these into the stream and fixed them, and had driven them in with rammers, not quite perpendicularly, like (an ordinary) pile, but sloping and slantwise, so as to incline with the current, he then set opposite to these two other piles braced in the same way, at a distance of forty feet lower down stream, sloping against the force and rush of the current."

machinationibus, explained by illustration.

11. defixerat . . . adegerat. Cum, with the pluperfect indie., implies frequency (see on ch. i. 10). Here the operation was repeated on many pairs of piles, probably about sixty, as the breadth of the Rhine at Bonn, where he probably crossed, is about 530 feet.

modo, "after the manner of" (see note on ch. xvi. 20).

12. ad perpendiculum. The preposition, as in ad eundem modum below, has the force of "according to."

ce and hope for
is objective.
tigue."
exercitus.
the defeat of
Bk. i. ch. xxx.

ative infinitive
b on which it means or iny of the pres-

"middle" use

..."
e bridge that together pairs ray from the
the stream."

monly in the

he had low-
ven them in linary) pile,
ent, he then
e way, at a ast the force

fect indie.,
ion was re-
the breadth
t 530 feet.
20).

d eundem

A A, ligulae,
B B, trabes,

C C, fibulae (? see note), D D, materia.

E E, sulliones (oblique artus),
F F, sulliones (defensores),

G fastuca.

14. intervallo, "at an interval," practically adverbial. It is difficult to classify this abl. It may originally have been either abl. of measure, or locative abl., or abl. abs. ("there being an interval").

quadragenum, distributive, because of the several pairs of piles. The imperfect, iungebat, is due to the same reason.

ab inferiore parte, either "lower down stream" (lit., "sloping from a lower part of the stream") or "at the lower end of the piles" (lit., "measured from the lower end"). If it is taken in the former sense, Cæsar does not say whether the forty feet distance lay between the upper end of the sloping piles or the lower. It would, of course, make a difference of several feet in the breadth of the roadway of the bridge. In either case notice the accurate use of the preposition ab; cf. ab extrema parte, and ab imo.

16. Haec utraque—tenorentur. "Beams two feet thick having been let in from above to the width of the fastening between these piles (i.e., each member of the pairs), the two (opposite) pairs were held apart by two braces on either side."

utraque. Uterque, in the sing., is used of individual things or persons; in the plural, of sets. So with quisque, alius, alter.

17. quantum—distabat means that the trabs on which the roadway rested just filled the space between the two piles, which, Cæsar says above, were two feet apart.

binis utrimque fibulis. There is great divergence of opinion as to the meaning of this phrase. Fibula is variously interpreted as (1) a "brace" joining the two piles, nailed on (Heller and Cohausen); (2) a "pin" running through the two piles (Kraner); (3) "cross-stays" between the pairs of piles, cutting one another vertically, the centre of each arch (Emperor Napoleon III.) Most authorities incline to (1) or (2), as better suiting the meaning of fibula ("a brooch" or "brooch-pin"); but (3) is more suitable to distinebantur, "were kept apart," and the bridge needed some such support. It is difficult to see how this verb applies either to (1) or (2); for it would be the trabs, not the fibulae, that would hold the pairs of piles apart. There is some small MS. authority for destinabantur ("were fixed"), which would make good sense with (1) and (2). On the whole, as there is no authority for fibulae=cross-stays (3), it is best to take them in their natural meaning, (1) or (2), and to explain distinebantur to mean that the fibulae, by securing the trabs (which really held the pairs of tigna apart) at each end between the tigna, are said themselves to keep them apart. (1) and (3) are represented in the first illustration, (1) and (2) in the second.

adverbial. It is
 have been either
 there being an

several pairs of the reason.

" (lit., "sloping
 lower end of the
 is taken in the y feet distance
 or the lower.
 feet in the case notice the ma parte, and

t thick having between these
 (ite) pairs were

Individual things
 us, alter.

which the road-
 which, Cæsar

ce of opinion interpreted as and Cohausen);
 ; (3) "cross-
 ertically, the t authorities of fibula ("a distineban-
 ch support.
 or (2); for it
 pairs of piles ntur ("were
 2). On the 3), it is best to explain rabs (which the tigna,
 represented

ANOTHER VIEW OF CÆSAR'S BRIDGE.

A A, tigna.
 B B, trabes.

C C, fibulae (? (see XVI. 17 (2)).
 D D, madria.

E E, sublice (oblique actae).
 F F, sublice (diffusores).

G G, fibulae (?) or possibly instructae.

cc

17. binis utrimque. If we take fibulae as "braces" (1), utrimquo may mean, (a) on either side (inside and outside) of the pairs of piles, in which case there would be four each side of the bridge, eight in all at each arch; or (b) on either side of the bridge, in which case there would be only four at each arch; or (c) on either side of the arch, in which case there would only be two at each arch.

18. quibus disclusis—tenerentur, "and these piles being held apart and clamped in opposite directions, so great was the strength and nature of the structure, that the more strongly the volume of water dashed against it, the more tightly they were bound together."

quibus, connective rel. referring to haec utraque—i.e., the pairs of tigna.

21. incitavisset. The subjunct. is due to attraction to tenerentur, hence it=incitaverat; and for this pluperfect of indefinite frequency, see note on defixerat above.

Haec—consternebantur. "This framework was connected by timber placed lengthwise, and was strewn with poles and hurdles." Haec is neuter plur., used loosely of the framework generally.

22. derecta materia—i.e., resting on the trabes at right angles, whilst the longurii were placed across, on the top of the materia.

23. ac nihilo—nocerent, "and nevertheless (i.e., although the bridge was strong already) piles were driven in slantwise at the lower part of the river also, in order that, being set as a buttress and united with the whole structure, they might bear the force of the stream; and others also were set a little way above the bridge, that, if trunks of trees or ships were sent down by the natives to destroy the work, the shock of them might be lessened by these 'protectors,' and that they might not damage the bridge."

sublicae. In this passage distinguish carefully the two kinds of piles: (1) those driven in slantwise on the lower side of the bridge, acting as buttresses (E), and (2) those driven in above, and separate from the structure, as protectors against ships or timber floating down on to the bridge (F).

24. quae, final=ut eae.

pro ariete. A "ram" is generally an engine of offence; here, a means of defence.

26. mediocri spatio. See on ch. x. 5.

27. deiciendi operis, gen. descriptive of naves, "ships for the purpose of."

CHAPTER XVIII.

1. Diebus x quibus, abl. of "time within which."
coepta erat comportari. See on ch. xiv. 13.
5. quibus, connective.
7. fuga—iis. The second abl. abs. depends on the first: "taking to flight at the exhortation of those."
10. in solitudinem. Latin accuracy uses in and acc. because of the idea of motion in se abdiderat (see on ch. xii. 11).

CHAPTER XIX.

5. comperissent, suboblique subjunct.
6. uti depends on idea of "ordering" in nuntios dimisisse.
7. liberos, uxores. See on ch. xiv. 12.
8. possent would have been subjunct. (qui= "such as"), even had it not been suboblique.
9. hunc, "this spot had been chosen almost in the centre of."
10. obtinerent, suboblique subjunct.
hic . . . ibi. Both imply the same place.
12. rebus . . . rerum. For the repetition, cf. ch. vii. 2.
13. ut . . . ut . . . ut, the three purposes he had achieved (rebus confectis). The ut is repeated for giving greater clearness in enumeration.
15. obsidione, "from pressure."
16. satis—profectum, "that enough had been accomplished as regards both honour and expediency."
profectum, from proficio.

CHAPTER XX.

1. Exigua—reliqua, "as a small part of the summer remained."
4. Gallicis bellis. Help was sent from Britain to the Veneti the year before.
6. magno . . . usui, dat. of purpose. It is seldom used with any adjective except maguus.
si modo adisset. We should say, "only to have approached."
8. Neque temere, "not lightly."
9. illo, adv., "thither."
11. Gallias, plur., because divided into three parts.

12. neque quanta — portus. There are here four indirect questions dependent on reperire poterat, of which the second and third are subdivided by aut.

Roman Warship.

14. usum belli, "usage in war," or it may mean "skill in war." The former suits the context slightly better. Caesar's expedition to Britain was in reality due to love of adventure and exploration rather than to the necessity of conducting a punitive expedition. The assistance sent to Gaul from Britain seems to have been insignificant.

CHAPTER XXI.

1. priusquam periculum faceret, "before making the attempt." For the subjunct., see on ch. iv. 17.
2. navi longa, "man-of-war."
5. brevissimus . . . traiectus. All Caesar seems to mean is that from the territory of the Morini (modern Departments of Pas de Calais and Nord) the crossing is shortest. We need not press inde to mean the harbour in that district, which is, in strict accuracy, by a mile or two the nearest. This territory includes the harbours of Boulogne (which the Romans also called Gesoriacum), Ambleteuse, Wissant, and Calais. It is probable that Caesar embarked at the same harbour as in his second expedition (Bk. v. ch. ii.)—i.e., Portus Itius; and whether this was Boulogne or Wissant cannot be definitely decided, but it was probably the former, in spite of the fact that it bore also another name (Gesoriacum). Several indications point to Wissant, but unless the harbour was bigger then than it is now, it would not have afforded sufficient accommodation for Caesar's fleet.

5. in Britanniam traiectus. For the form of the expression, see on ch. xvi. 15.

7. superiore aestate—i.e., 56 n.c.

Veneticum bellum, a naval war with the Veneti, N.E. of modern Brittany.

10. qui polliceantur, final.

polliceantur . . . dare . . . obtemperare. The pres. infin. is a variation from the usual future.

12. liberaliter pollicitus, "having made generous promises."

13. Commius quem . . . constituerat. No previous mention is made of his appointment.

16. arbitrabatur. Caesar advisedly uses this verb, for Commius was disloyal (see next note). For the result of Commius' mission, see ch. xxvii. and Index of Names.

ciusque—habebatur. Another tribe of the name Atrabates, who were probably kinsmen of this Gallic people, lived in modern Berkshire. Hence Commius might be supposed to have influence with the Britons. However he abused Caesar's trust, for he took an active part in the revolt of 52 n.c. (Bk. vii. ch. lxxv.)

magni, locative: so quanti, tanti, pluris, maioris, parvi, maximi, minimi, flocci.

17. possit, subjunct., owing to quas generic = "such as" (see App. II.) It is also suboblique.

adeat . . . horteturque . . . nuntiet, jussive subjunct. in semi-dependence on imperat (see App. II.)

18. fidem sequantur, "to seek the protection of."

20. qui . . . auderet, subjunct. due to qui causal = "since he."

22. quaeque—perspexisset, indirect question.

CHAPTER XXII.

2. qui—fecissent, "to make excuses for their conduct in the past, inasmuch as, owing to the fact that they were barbarians and had no experience of our usage, they had made war on the Roman people." For the subjunct., fecissent, see on ch. xiii. 2.

3. superioris temporis. Late in the summer of 56 B.C. they had given Caesar trouble by remaining in arms after the pacification of the rest of Gaul (Bk. iii. ch. xxviii.)

ere four indirect
h the second and

skill in war."
expedition to d exploration pedition. The insignificant.

ie attempt."

to mean is ents of Pa
d not press
strict acen-cludes the esoriacum),
Caesar em-
Bk. v. ch.
or Wissant
er, in spite

4. barbari . . . imperiti are the emphatic words. The want of a present participle of sum is often felt.
nostras = Romanæ, though here used by Gauls, not Romans.
populo Romano, dative.
5. quæ imperasset, suboblique subjunct. = quæ imperaveris of the direct speech (see on ch. vi. 5).
9. has . . . occupationes. See on ch. xvi. 19.
Britanniae, a condensed expression (compendious comparison or brachylogy) for "the expedition into Britain."
10. Quibus adductis eos. This is not a variation from the general rule in Latin, that the abl. abs. is only used when the phrase cannot be worked into the construction of the sentence; for quibus and eos do not refer to the same people; quibus refers to the hostages, eos to the whole tribe.
11. in fidem recepit, "took them under his protection."
Navibus . . . onerariis, "transports," "troopships."
12. ad duas . . . legiones. If we reckon Caesar's legions at 3600 men each, this would give 90 men to each transport. In ch. xxxvii. we find 300 men disembarking from two ships. The two legions were vii. and x.
13. quod—navium longarum, "all the ships of war that he had"; lit., "what of ships," &c., partitive gen.
quaestori. See on ch. xiii. 9.
14. legatis praefectisque. See Introduction, p. xxiii.
Huc = ad has.
accedebant, "there were in addition"; cf. ch. xvi. 6. Besides the eighty transports which Caesar collected at Boulogne (if Boulogne was the place of his embarkation), there were eighteen which were weather-bound at a port a little way higher up the coast, called in ch. xxiii. portus ulterior, and in ch. xxviii. superior. This may be identified with Ambletense. If Wissant be taken as the place of embarkation, the portus ulterior would be Calais. It was on these eighteen transports that his cavalry embarked, but, owing to stress of weather, they never landed in Britain.
15. a milibus passuum viii, "at a distance of eight miles." A, ab are not generally used in this sense if the place from which the distance is reckoned be mentioned, as here (ex eo loco).
16. vento tenebantur quo minus, "were weather-bound (and prevented) from."
20. ducendum dedit. Cf. the construction of the gerundive with curo—e.g., curavit filium docendum, "he had his son taught"; cf. ch. xxix. 3.
22. portum tenere, here = "to occupy the port." Another meaning of the phrase is "to make for port."

s. The want of

, not Romans.

superiority of the

ous comparison

from the general phrase cannot quibus and eos
the hostages, eos

on."

ships."

ns at 3600 men
xxxvii, we find
were vii, and x,
war that he

.

xvi. 6. Be-

Boulogne (if

were eighteen

up the coast,

terior. This

as the place

was on these

ng to stress les." A, ab

ich the dis-

d (and pre-

ndive with ught"; cf.

ther mean-

Harbour.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1. tempestatem, as often simply "weather."
2. tertia fere vigilia, between midnight and 2.30 A.M. The time between sunset and sunrise was divided into four equal periods—vigiliae—which, of course, like the hora, varied in length according to the time of year. It was now the end of August, and it has been calculated from the fact that three days after the arrival in Britain (August 31, 3 A.M.) there was a full moon (ch. xxix. 1), that Cæsar reached the British coast on August 27. Accordingly he left France about midnight of August 26. solvit, sc. ancoram, "he weighed anchor."
ulteriorem portum. See note on ch. xxii. 14.
4. hora diei circiter quarta. The Roman day was divided into twelve equal periods (horæ) between sunrise and sunset. On August 27 sunrise would have been about 5.6 A.M., and sunset about 6.54 P.M. A hora on that day would be about 1 hour 18 minutes. Thus the fourth hour would be from about 8.33–9.42 A.M.
6. collibus, the cliffs of Dover.
10. dum . . . convenireat. See on ch. iv. 17.
eo, usual Latin accuracy for English "there."
11. ad horam nonam. The ninth hour would have been 2.18–3.2 P.M.
13. monuitque — administrarentur. Trans., "gave injunctions that all things should be executed at the slightest sign and at the right moment, as the science of war required, and especially service on board ship, inasmuch as it entailed swift and unsteady motion." This sentence must be carefully studied. Ut, in the first two places—"as," and the subjunct. postularent is suboblique. The third ut goes closely with quæ, lit. "as being things which"—i.e., seeing that they (or "it," as res maritimæ—"naval service"). Ut qui, like quippe qui, is used with the subjunct. (haberent), qui being generic or restrictive. Administrarentur is jussive subjunct. in semi-dependence, without an ut, on monuit.
15. ad nutum, lit., "at a nod."
16. tempus, like Greek καιρός—"the right moment."
17. ventum . . . secundum, a west wind, which brought him round the South Foreland.
19. aperto ac plano litore, the open beach between Walmer and Deal. The phrase is abl. abs.

CHAPTER XXIV.

2. essedariis. For the method of fighting from chariots, see ch. xxxiii. The essedum was a two-wheeled chariot.
quo . . . genere, English idiom, "a kind of fighting which."
conserunt = consueverunt, "they have become accustomed"
 —i.e., "they are accustomed."

3. reliquis copiis. With military terms—e.g., exercitu, equitatu, peditatu, legione, copiis, navibus, navissimo agmine, and similar phrases, the abl. is used alone without cum. Some authorities classify this abl. as instrumental.

prohibebant, "tried to prevent."

5. in alto, "in deep water"; the neuter adj. used as a noun;
 6. ex arido, below.

6. militibus, dat. of agent (so called) with desiliendum. This dat., used with the gerund, past part. pass., and parts of the verb formed from it, originally had no force of agency, but was simply dat. of possession: euulum est mihi, lit., "there is to me a going"; factum est mihi, "it is to me a thing done." However, its use was extended by analogy, when its original meaning became lost, and in poetry it is occasionally used of the agent with other parts of the passive verb.

ignotis locis, impeditis manibus, abl. abs.

7. pressis agrees with militibus.

9. cum, "whereas."

13. pedestribus uti proeliis, emphatic order.

CHAPTER XXV.

2. ad usum, "for handling" or "for manœuvring"

5. tormentis, engines for hurling missiles, worked by twisted (torquco) ropes. The term is a general one, including catapultae, which discharged darts, and ballistae, which hurled stones.

6. remorum motu . . . permoti. They were amazed at the strange sight of large ships controlled by rudders.

8. pedem rettulerunt, "withdrew."

Atque, "and so."

10. decimae, Cæsar's favourite legion.

aquilam ferebat. See Introduction, p. xxiv.

ea res, "his effort."

12. meum, emphatic position.
 15. cohortati inter se, "with mutual encouragement."

TORMENTA.

Ballista.Catapulta.

16. universi, "in a body."
Hos—navibus, placed before cum for emphasis.

CHAPTER XXVI.

2. firmiter insistere, "to gain a foothold."
signa subsequi. The signa here would be those of the maniples. See Introduction, p. xxvi.
 3. alius alia ex navi, "out of the several ships," "one out of one ship, another out of another."
quibuscumquo signis, dat. governed by occurrerat.
 4. occurrerat, iterative pluperf. See on ch. i. 10. So conspexerant, below.
 5. singulares, "individuals," opposed to universos, below.
 7. ab latere aperto, "on their exposed side"—i.e., the right. The shields were held on the left arm. Notice the accuracy of the Latin prep.
 9. scaphas (σκάφη from σκάπτειν, "to hollow out"), small rowing-boats, carried by larger vessels.
speculatoria navigia, swift boats for reconnaissance. A Roman writer says they were painted sea-green (colore vegeto) to escape detection.

10. conspexerat. For tense see above. So submittebat, "he kept sending."
 11. simul = simul atque.
in arido. Cf. ex arido, in alto (ch. xxiv. 5).
 13. neque, "but not."
 14. equites, who had embarked in the eighteen weather-bound transports at Ambletense (see ch. xxii. 14). For their fate, see ch. xxviii. capere, "to make the island"; cf. ch. xxxvi. 8, portus capere.
 15. Hoc unum . . . defuit. Cæsar shared, with many other great men, "the absurd presumption in their own good fortune." Like Sulla, who styled himself Felix and his son Faustus, he believed in his "star"; cf. Bk. i. ch. xl.; ib., ch. liii. He seems to have believed in fortune as a supreme power coequal with the gods, if not above them, in the guidance of events.
ad, "in regard to."

CHAPTER XXVII.

2. miserunt . . . polliciti sunt, asyndeton.
 3. imperasset. See on ch. vi. 5, and ch. xxii. 5.
 4. quem . . . demonstraveram . . . praemissum. Notice the difference between Latin and English idiom: "who, I pointed out, had been sent."
 6. oratoris modo, "in the character of an envoy" (see on ch. xvi. 20).
 7. in vincula. Commius' subsequent disloyalty (see note on ch. xxi. and Index of Names) makes it not improbable that this imprisonment was at his own desire. In that case he intended to await the result of the British resistance to Cæsar. On the submission of the Britons he was sent back to Cæsar (Bk. v. ch. xxii.)
 9. in multitudinem. There seems to have been a certain amount of popular control amongst the Britons.
 10. ignoscetur may be either impersonal, or personal with hoc supplied as subject, for aliquid alicui ignosco ("I pardon a thing to a person") is used. The acc. of the thing pardoned is used mostly with pronouns and simple adjectives like omnia, multa, and, with very rare exceptions, only when the dat. of the person is expressed. The dat. of the thing pardoned is the usual construction with nouns (cf. imprudentiæ, below); but in this case the dat. of the person is not used as well—

Ignoscit { meae } stultitiæ; not { mihi } stultitiæ.
 { eius }
 { ei }

10. quod . . . intulissent, virtually oblique, "because, as he said, they had," &c. Cæsar's accusation is scarcely just. The Britons may well be excused for not grasping the fact that Cæsar, with his two legions and large fleet, came merely as "an emissary of civilisation."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1. post diem quartum quam, "three days after," Aug. 27 (see note on ch. xxiii. 2). We should expect post (adverb) die quarto quam, "on the fourth day after that," but by attraction to post (as a preposition) the acc. is written. This is natural, for "after four days" = both quarto post die and post quartum diem. For a similar attraction, cf. the idiom in the Calendar, ante tertium diem Nonas, Feb. = tertio die ante Nonas Feb. Here ante, and in the text post, are made to do double duty.

2. supra. Ch. xxiii.

3. ex superiore portu. See note on ch. xxii. 14.

5. viderentur. The transports were sighted somewhere off the North Foreland by Cæsar in his camp near Deal.

7. inferiorem partem, the south coast to the west of Deal, near Sandgate.

8. propius. See note on ch. ix. 2.

cum, "attended with," or "to their great peril."

suo. Sui which many read here would be objective gen., "with great danger to themselves."

9. tamen goes closely with ancoris iactis: "since these, in spite of anchors being cast, were being swamped with the waves."

10. adversa nocte, abl. abs. concessive, "although the night was stormy."

CHAPTER XXIX.

1. Eadem nocte. The night is that of Aug. 30. The moon was full at 3 A.M. of Aug. 31, which, according to Roman reckoning (the day began at sunrise), would still have been 30th.

ut, substantival (see on ch. v. 4).

qui dies, English idiom, "a day which."

2. aestus maximus, the spring tides, rising twenty or thirty feet. These high tides would naturally be remarkable to Cæsar, who was accustomed to the Mediterranean, which, being an inland sea, has practically no tide.

nostrisque id . . . incognitum. Yet the Romans had had opportunity of studying the tides the year before, on the west coast of Gaul, in the war with the Veneti; and also lately at Boulogne, where the tide rises twenty-five feet.

3. quibus—curaverat. In ch. xxii. Cæsar states that he embarked his troops on the eighty onerariæ naves; whilst, as the text here stands, he states that he conveyed them across in the men-of-war. Either, as some think, Cæsar did not write the words quibus—curaverat, or he wrote them carelessly. In Meusel's text they are bracketed.

quibus, instrumental abl.

4. transportandum curaverat, "he had had the army conveyed across." For the use of the gerundive expressing a purpose, cf. ch. xxii. 20.

in aridum, "on to the dry" (see on ch. xxiv. 5).

8. reliquæ, emphatic position outside the cum clause.

11. Neque . . . et, "not . . . and besides"; or, more strongly, "not only not . . . but also"; cf. ch. i. 21.

13. quod—oportere, "because all were agreed as to the necessity of wintering in Gaul."

omnibus, dative.

CHAPTER XXX.

5. hoc . . . angustiora, "all the narrower." Hoc, eo, tanto, quo, quanto, with a comparative, are abl. of measure, "by this much," &c. However, hoc and eo are often called causal abl. "for this reason"; but tanto and quanto could not be so classified, and they are probably all the same kind.

6. factu, supine in -u only used with adjectives, mostly with adjectives in -bilis—e.g., mirabile dictu, "wonderful to relate."

duxerunt, "considered."

rebellione, not a "rebellion," but a "renewal of war."

7. commeatu, abl. of separation; so reditu, below.

rem, "the campaign."

CHAPTER XXXI.

2. ex eventu navium, "after the fate of his ships."

ex eo quod . . . intermiserant. We should say in English, "after their failure."

3. fore id—susplicabatur, "began to suspect that what did actually happen would be the case."

3. ad omnes casus, "for all emergencies."
5. quae . . . naves. In Latin, when the relative clause comes first, the antecedent frequently is placed in it.
6. aere, "bronze," used largely instead of iron.
8. summo studio, "with a will."
9. administraretur, impersonal.
amissis, concessive.
reliquis—effecit, lit., "he brought it about that by means of the rest it should be suitably sailed"—i.e., "made the rest seaworthy." reliquis (emphatic position) is abl. of means or instrument.

CHAPTER XXXII.

1. frumentatum, supine in -um after verb of motion, as always to express purpose.
2. neque . . . interposita, "no suspicion of war up to that time having arisen."
3. pars . . . pars, asyndeton, making a stronger contrast.
5. statione. See on ch. iv. 11. It generally consisted of a cohort (one-half relieving the other) at each of the four gates of the camp.
6. ferret, "than was usual": the subjunct. is suboblique. In direct speech it would be indie.—e.g., Bk. vi. ch. vii., maiore strepitu . . . quam . . . populi Romani fert consuetudo.
in ea parte . . . quam in partem. See on ch. vii. 1.
7. fecisset, suboblique.
8. novi, partitive gen. of neuter adjective used as noun; cf. in alto, in aridum. Remember, aliquid novi, but aliquid novum.
10. in stationem . . . succedere, "to go on duty."
armari, middle use of pass., "to arm themselves;" cf. ch. xvii. 5.
12. conferta—coici. We might say, "that the legion was crowded together and was being subjected to a cross-fire."
16. delituerant, delitescō.
tum dispersos—perturbaverant. The language in this sentence is extremely condensed. Our English idiom would run somewhat as follows: "Our men were scattered, and, having dropped their arms, were busy in cutting the corn, when the enemy had suddenly attacked them. A few had been killed; the rest, with wavering ranks, had fallen into confusion, and had at the same time been surrounded by cavalry and chariots." This is far from being a literal translation.

18. equitatu atque essedis, abl. of means or instrument.
 19. circumdederant. The word has two constructions: (a) circumdare (to surround) oppidum muro (abl.), as here; and (b) circumdare (to throw round) oppido (dat.) murum.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1. ex essedis pugnae. See on ch. xvi. 15.
 3. cum insinuaverunt, iterative (see on ch. i. 10).
 5. pedibus. See on ch. ii. 7.

Essedum.

proeliantur. Tacitus, in his book on Britain (Agricola, xii.), remarks, that of the two men in each chariot the man of noble birth drove, and the dependant fought. This arrangement is the reverse of the old Greek style in Homeric days.

8. mobilitatem . . . stabilitatem, asyndeton, to increase the force of the contrast.
 10. incitatos . . . sustinere, "check their horses at full speed."
 11. brevi = brevi tempore, "along."
 12. consuerint = consueverint. The perfect is used with a present meaning.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

3. constiterunt . . . receperunt, asyndeton.
se receperunt, "recovered." Remember the two meanings of this phrase, "retreat" and "recover."
 5. alienum, "unfavourable."
 8. continuos complures dies, "for several days continuously."
 9. quae, consecutive.
a pugna. Elsewhere in this book we have the simple abl.
 13. sui liberandi. See on ch. xiii. 14. si . . . expulissent, "if they drove." The Latin tense, as usual, is more accurate.

CHAPTER XXXV.

2. ut . . . effugerent. Ut is substantival. celeritate, abl. of means or instrument, not, of course, abl. of manner, which would require an epithet.
7. tanto spatio. See on ch. x. 5.
- quantum . . . potuerunt*, lit., "as much as they could accomplish by running and strength"—i.e., "as far as their running powers allowed."

CHAPTER XXXVI.

3. continentem, Gaul.
4. propinqua die aequinoctii, "the next day [being the day] of the equinox"—i.e., September 24.
- infirmis*—subiciendam, "as his ships were not strong, the voyage ought not to be exposed to stormy weather."
8. eosdem quos, often eosdem ac.
- portus capere*. Cf. insulam capere, ch. xxvi. 14.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

1. Quibus—i.e., the two detached transports.
4. non ita magno, "not very great."
5. orbe, a formation in a circle corresponding to the modern hollow square. The officers, wounded, non-combatants, &c., remained in the centre. This formation was usually adopted in case of emergency; cf. Bk. v. ch. xxxiv. 12.
8. auxilio, dat. of purpose or predicate.
9. amplius horis, abl. of comparison, representing quam horas, acc. of duration. The more idiomatic phrase is amplius horas, as amplius is used with numbers without quam or abl. of comparison; cf. ch. xii. 2, amplius octingentos.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

2. rebellionem. See on ch. xxx. 6.
3. quo se recipent, "to retreat to."
4. quo perfugio. The antecedent is paludum, but quo is attracted to perfugio.

5. in potestatem . . . venerunt, "submitted to."
 Q. Titurius et L. Cotta. See ch. xxii. 18.
13. supplicatio. The supplicatio was a public service of intercession or thanksgiving at times of great national peril or joy. As a rule it only lasted three or four days, but at the end of his second campaign Cæsar had a fifteen days' supplicatio decreed, and now even this was exceeded. Obviously the crossing of the Rhine and the invasion of Britain struck the Roman imagination, for a twenty days' supplicatio seems out of all proportion to his real achievements this year. See note at the end of ch. xiv.

BOOK V.¹

CHAPTER I.

1. L. Domitio, Ap. Claudio. 54 B.C. discedens, "when in the act of departing."
2. in Italian—i.e., Italy north of the Rubicon, or Gallia Citerior. He could not enter Italy proper without losing his imperium. He went to this part of his jurisdiction every year to hold the assizes (see note on conventus, below), and also to keep in touch with home politics.
- quotannis*. See on Bk. iv. ch. i. 9.
3. legatis, eight in number, in command of one legion each.
4. aedificandas . . . curret. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxii. 20. Notice the mixture of strict and vivid sequence.
5. modum, "build."
6. subductiones, governed by ad. Ancient ships were beached, and not left at anchor. The disaster to his fleet on the British coast had taught Cæsar the necessity of making this process easier.
- humiliores*, "lower" in the bulwarks and "shallower" in the hold. The word, of course, agrees with naves, understood.
7. nostro mari, the Mediterranean.
id. Sc. facit.
8. minus magnos . . . fluctus refers to the short choppy waves of the English Channel. These are here attributed to the "changing currents." Cæsar's statement here as to the comparative size of the waves in the Channel and the Mediterranean is criticised as incorrect.

¹ Unless another book is mentioned, the reference is to this book.

11. actuarias, predicative, "able to be rowed"—i.e., not dependent on sails alone.

feri. Notice the construction of impero with a passive verb.

13. ex Hispania—i.e., metals, and "esparto" grass for ropes.
conventibus. These were proconsular courts or assizes, that the governor of a province held every year towards winter, for the administration of justice. It was to a conventus that the town-clerk of Ephesus referred (Acts xix. 38): "But if ye inquire anything concerning other matters, it shall be determined in a lawful assembly."

15. Pirustis. They had many years before aided Rome, and had been rewarded with freedom from taxation.

16. civitatibus milites imperat, "levies soldiers on the states."

18. nihil . . . publico factum consilio, the usual excuse.

20. omnibus rationibus, ablative.
satis.acere, absolute use, "to give satisfaction."

24. arbitros, "arbitrators."
litem aestiment, "to assess the damage."
poenam, "compensation."

CHAPTER II.

2. revertitur—i.e., from Illyricum.

4. in, "in the midst of," "in spite of."

5. culus. We should expect quod. Either this is a case of relative attraction, which is very rare in Latin, or naves must be supplied with culus as object of demonstravimus.

6. neque—possint, "and were within a few days of being launched." In this construction abesse is impersonal, multum adverbial, ab eo refers to the quin clause. For quin, see on Bk. iv. ch. vii. 5. Instead of quin, we should logically expect ut substantial here, the negative idea in quin being redundant.

9. portum Itium. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxi. 5. commodissimum . . . traiectum. He had found it the best by experience the year before.

10. circiter milium passuum xxx—i.e., in English mileage, 27 miles, 1020 yards. The Roman mile was 1618 yards.

12. militum, partitive gen. with quod.

14. neque . . . que. See on Bk. iv. ch. i. 21; xxix. 11.

concilia. These were assemblies convoked by Cæsar for discussion and passing of laws. They are to be distinguished from the concilium totius Galliae, or council of all Gaul, a purely native institution, where every city of Gaul was represented. Some authorities think that the word is here used in its common sense of "council of war," which was attended by the commander, staff, and chief centurions, and held before the praetorium or headquarters of the Roman camp.

CHAPTER III.

2. supra. Bk. iv. ch. x.
4. Indutiomarus et Cingetorix. Indutiomarus was father-in-law of Cingetorix.
5. alter, Cingetorix.
6. in officio, "in allegiance."
7. quaeque — gererentur, indirect question, or, according to others, a relative clause in which the subjunct. is suboblique, due to ostendit, the clause being part of Cingetorix's assertion.
15. privatim, owing to its position, becomes practically an adjective. Livy, vi. 39, 6, is generally quoted as a parallel, maximo privatim periculo, nulli publice emolumento.
16. civitati, opposed to privatim.
possent, suboblique.
17. mittit—i.e., Indutiomarus.
18. Sese — laberetur, a plausible excuse, which Cesar saw through.
20. discessu, causal ablative.
laberetur, "should fall away," i.e., "revolt." 23. fidei, "protection."

CHAPTER IV.

8. principibus . . . convocatis . . . hos. See on Bk. iv. ch. xii. 4; xxii. 10.
9. cum . . . tum, "both . . . and."
10. magni, locative used of price, "it was of great importance."
interesse, impersonal infinit. of interest; to be distinguished from the personal use of interesse, "to be present at"; cf. Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 8.
11. suos, of course, refers to eius—i.e., Cingetorix.
cuius . . . perspexisset, subjunct. due to cuius causal, "since his."

12. graviter tult, "took it ill."
 13. suam—minui, explanatory of id. The sentence is unnecessary to the sense, and is bracketed in Meusel's text.
gratiam, "popularity."
qui . . . fuisset, concessive, "though he had been."
 14. inimico in nos animo, abl. of description.
hoc dolore, "owing to resentment at this."

CHAPTER V.

6. numero, "in number," abl. of respect; cf. loco in obsidum loco below, modo in oratoris modo.
 8. in se fidem. See on Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 13; xvi. 15. With in se, erga se, the construction is common.
 9. loco is practically a preposition; cf. modo, Bk. iv. ch. xvii. 11; xxvii. 6.

CHAPTER VI.

1. Dumnorix. The name is said to be the Latinised form of Domun-rig, which means King of the World.
ante, Bk. i. chs. iii., xviii.-xx., where we find Cæsar pardoning Dumnorix—who is described as popular, active, and unscrupulous—at the intercession of his brother, Divitiacus. Cæsar always kept a watchful eye upon him afterwards, and never trusted him.
 3. cupidum . . . cupidum, emphasis gained by repetition (see on Bk. iv. ch. xix. 13).
magni animi, magnae . . . auctoritatis, gen. of quality or description; sc. esse.
 4. Accedebat huc quod. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxii. 14.
 6. regnum d' erri, "that the kingship was being offered." This may have been true, as Cæsar may have wished to win Dumnorix' loyalty by kindness, and appointed him as a dependent sovereign, like Commius (Bk. iv. ch. xxi. 16), and Cavarinus (ch. liv. 5, below). But Cæsar seems to imply that it was a fiction on Dumnorix' part.
 7. neque, "and yet . . . not."
 11. navigandi, gen. with insuetus. This genitive was perhaps originally the locative (e.g., Lucretius and Vergil use animi, "in mind"), which afterwards became identified with the genitive and extended in use.
timeret. The virtually oblique subjunct. here is specially expressive, as Cæsar clearly saw the alleged cause to be a mere excuse.

12. diceret is a common and natural, but not strictly logical, expression for ut dicebat, impediretur. The alleged cause is really contained not in diceret but in impediri. What is meant by religionibus is not stated—probably omens and sacrifices.

14. hortari coepit. This is not a violation of the rule given in note on Bk. iv. ch. xiv. 13, as hortari is active in meaning.

15. metu territare, historic infin., with Dumnorix as subject. The terseness of the language expresses passion.

fieri breaks off into or. obl., dependent on the idea of "saying in territare"; cf. ch. xxxi. 3.

ut, substantival.

18. traductos necaret, "to take across and kill."

interponere, a return to the historic infin. Trans., "he gave assurances to the rest."

19. ex usu, "to be in accordance with the interest of"; sc. esse.

CHAPTER VII.

Cæsar has been criticised for his harsh treatment of a patriot chief, but if we can believe Cæsar's record of the facts, Dumnorix, by constant intrigues, rendered his execution a necessity. It would have been very unwise to permit the loyalty of the Haedui to be tampered with.

4. quid, cognate acc.

sibi, Cæsar.

6. commoratus = commorans (see on Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 12).

Corus, Caurus or Chorus, N.W. wind.

8. dabat operam, "took care."

11. impeditis, "being occupied."

15. retrahi. See on ch. i. 11.

16. pro sano, masc., "like a sane man."

17. arbitratus. See on Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 12.

qui, causal.

18. suorum fidem, "the protection of his friends."

19. liberum se liberaeque civitatis. The Haedui were, it is true, "allies of Rome," but scarcely "free" from the Roman point of view. Anyhow, it was impossible for Cæsar to tolerate Dumnorix' intrigues. If we condemn his execution, we must condemn the whole conquest of Gaul.

20. ut erat imperatum. Cæsar frankly takes the responsibility for the act.

CHAPTER VIII.

1. Labieno. He was left as the most trusted of the legati.
 4. pro tempore et pro re, "as time and circumstances demanded."
 5. pari . . . quem = eodem . . . quem.
 6. ad solis occasum. The time of year is fixed by the dates of letters from Quintus Cicero to his brother as the end of July or the beginning of August. Napoleon III., in his Histoire de Jules César, by an ingenious computation of tides based on facts drawn from Cæsar's description, fixes the date as July 20, about 8 P.M.
 7. Africo, S.W. wind.
 8. longius delatus. The fleet was carried too far in a N.E. direction, so as to have the North Foreland on the left. At the change of tide, and by dint of rowing, it reached the spot of the landing in the previous year, probably between Walmer and Deal (see on Bk. iv. ch. xxi. 5).
 11. caperet. Cf. Bk. iv. ch. xxvi. 14; xxxvi. 8.
 13. vectoriis gravibusque navigiis, "with boats built for freight, and so, heavy."
 18. annotinis, "of the year before." For the adjectival termination, cf. crastinus, pristinus, diutinus.
 19. quas sui quisque commodi fecerat, "which they severally had chartered for their own service." Sui commodi, gen. of description; cf. naves deiciendi operis, Bk. iv. ch. xvii. 27, and for the whole sentence, cf. such a phrase as Gallos suae ditionis fecit, "he made the Gauls belong to his own jurisdiction." The genitive forms the predicate.
- quisque, merely used to emphasise sui. Certain of the wealthy officers on Cæsar's staff had private ships for their own special service. Of course quisque must not be taken literally to mean "every man."
- amplius octingentae. See on Bk. iv. ch. x. 3.
20. in superiora loca, farther "up country."

CHAPTER IX.

3. cohortibus decem, not una legione, because the cohorts were taken from different legions.
4. tertia vigilia. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxiii. 2.
5. veritus navibus, "fearing for his ships." For the present use of the perf. part., see on Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 12.

5. molli, "sandy," or "shingly." The adjectives are predicative, expressed in English idiom by "a" instead of "the," "on a sandy and open shore."

8. equitatu atque essedis. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxiv. 3.

9. ad flumen, either the Great Stour or the Little Stour. Landing at Deal, Cæsar would naturally reach the Little Stour first; but this river is now a mere ditch. If it was so then, Cæsar may have omitted to mention crossing it. If Cæsar landed at Romney Marsh, it would be the Great Stour.

ex loco superiore. The Britons were on the north bank, which was higher.

14. rari, "in small parties."

16. testudine facta. There were two kinds of testudo: (1) arietaria, a wooden movable shed or pent-house, covered with hide, to protect soldiers who were working the artillery, the battering-ram, or mining operations; (2) a formation of soldiers, with shields locked above their heads forming a complete covering, under shelter of which the fortification could be approached and demolished, or, as here, earth be brought up, and an agger, or counter-earthwork, formed. See Frontispiece.

Testudo arietaria.

18. fugientes, object of prosequi.

20. munitioni castrorum tempus. An ordinary camp for a brief encampment would be fortified in about three hours.

CHAPTER X.

1. Postridio eius diei mane, simply "the next morning"; eius diei is superfluous.

tripertito does not refer to formation, but implies that they went by three different roads.

3. extremi, the rear of the enemy.

7. sustinerent . . . possent, suboblique.

9. magnum esse incommodum, emphatic order.

CHAPTER XI.

3. sic ut, "to this extent that," a limitative use of the phrase; so ita . . . ut, often with the meaning of "while . . . yet."

4. tamen answers amissis . . . navibus, which is a concessive abl. abs.
5. fabros deligit. Accompanying every legion there was a corps of fabri under the command of a praefectus fabrum; but Caesar does not seem here to be referring to these professional engineers, but to soldiers picked from the ordinary ranks with a skill for engineering. Every Roman soldier was something of an engineer. He was constantly engaged in making camps, forts, bridges, &c.
7. iis legionibus, abl. of means or instrument.
quae sint. Some editions have sunt, but the subjunctive (subjunctive) is required.
8. multae operae ac laboris, gen. of quality or description.
13. eisdem . . . quas ante, "the same as before."
14. eodem—i.e., to the Stour.
16. summa, a noun.
17. Cassivellauno. Latinised form of Caswallon. The name is said to mean "king of the league."
cuius fines, Middlesex.
18. flumen quod . . . Tamesis. The relative here is not attracted to agreement with the predicate as in Bk. iv. ch. i. 1.
a mari, from Deal, where he landed, to the place where he crossed the Thames, near Sunbury.
20. continentia, "uninterrupted."

CHAPTER XII.

1. quos—dicunt. We might say, "whom oral tradition represents as indigenous in the island."
genitos depends upon proditum (esse being understood in each case). As a matter of fact, the Celtic Britons were not the first inhabitants, but were preceded by a black-haired race of Basques or Iberians (see Introduction, p. xiii).
3. qui—pervenerunt, "who are nearly all called by the same names as the states from which they sprang before their migration to Britain." Take as instances the Atrebates (see on Bk. iv. ch. xxi. 16), Belgae, and Parisii, names occurring both in Gaul and Britain. Notice, as often, the principal idea is expressed by the participle orti—lit., "from which having sprung they arrived thither." The whole sentence is condensed for isdem nominibus quibus civitates [appellantur] ex quibus orti, &c.
7. Gallieis consimilia—naturally, as both races were Celtic. These buildings are said by Strabo to have been "large, built of planks and wattled reeds, circular in shape, with a high roof." In ch. xliii. they are said to be thatched (stramentis tectae).

8. aut aere, bracketed in Meusel's text.

nummo aureo. Cicero, in his Letters (Ad Fam. vii. 7, § 1; Ad Att. iv. 16, § 7), says that there was not a scrap of gold to be found in the island. Strabo, however, and Tacitus include gold and silver among the resources of the country. Mommsen states that discoveries prove the existence of a gold coinage in Britain at a date prior to Cæsar's invasion. Silver and copper coinage came in considerably later.

9. taleis ferreis, "iron bars," a common form of primitive coinage. examinatis, "fixed by standard."

10. plumbum album, "tin." In very early times the Phœnicians are said to have fetched tin from Britain; but see Introduction, p. xi. Plumbum nigrum is "lead."

mediterraneis, "inland." This must refer to Cornwall; but, as a matter of fact, the tin mines were on the coast.

11. maritimis, Sussex. The railings round St Paul's Cathedral were made of Sussex iron.

12. aere, "bronze."

Materia, "timber."

13. fagum. A curious statement. Either the fagus, as some believe, was our chestnut, or else Cæsar's statement is based on the accident of his not seeing any beeches in Kent and Middlesex.

abietem must refer to the silver fir, which has been introduced into England in modern times, not to the Scotch pine.

Leporem . . . putant. Primitive religious faiths constantly forbade the use of certain animals as food, a survival of animal worship. The hare was forbidden as an article of food by the Mosaic law.

15. animi voluptatisque causa, "for fancy and pleasure."

Loca, "climate."

16. remissioribus frigoribus, "the seasons of cold being less severe." Tacitus says of Britain, asperitas frigorum abest (Agr. xii.)

CHAPTER XIII.

1. natura triquetra, "triangular in shape."

2. ad, "on the coast of."

4. inferior, sc. angulus—i.e., Cornwall. Cæsar's idea of Britain must have been something of the nature of the diagram on the next page.

5. ad Hispaniam. Like Tacitus (Agr. xxxiv.), Caesar places Spain west of England and Ireland.
6. Hibernia, also Iuverna, Greek Ἰέπρω; hence Erin. dimidio, abl. of measure.
7. pari spatio, abl. of description; transmissus is gen., dependent on it.

pari . . . atque. See on Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 14.

8. In hoc medio cursu, "half-way across."

9. Mona. The name is applied both to Anglesea and the Ile of Man. Caesar's description can hardly apply to Anglesea.

obiectae. These islands, to which Caesar vaguely refers, must be the Hebrides and other islands off the west coast of Scotland.

11. sub brumam, "just at the time of the winter solstice"—i.e., Dec. 21. Bruma is from brevima (an old form of superlative; cf. infimus), sc. dies, and is here used in its original sense.

12. nisi, "save for the fact that," a very compressed form of expression = nisi quod.

ex aqua—i.e., the clepsydra or water-clock, somewhat like an hour-glass with water instead of sand.

13. breviores. In summer, the farther north you go, the longer the days. Pliny says that the longest day in Italy contains fifteen hours, in Britain, seventeen. In Scotland it is over eighteen.

15. est obiecta, "lies opposite."

16. angulus—i.e., the lower end of the northern side (already referred to in line 2 as the eastern angle). The upper end faces only the Ocean.

17. Hoc, sc. latus.

18. vicies centum = 2000. Thus the ugly duorum milium milium passuum is avoided.

milium, gen. of description, with vicies centum qualifying it.

CHAPTER XIV.

1. humanissimi — incolunt. Shakspeare (Henry VI., Part ii. Act iv. sc. 7) has—

Lord Say. You men of Kent,—

Dick. What say you of Kent?

Say. Nothing but this; 'tis bona terra, mala gens.

Cade. Away with him, away with him! he speaks Latin.

Say. Hear me but speak, and bear me where you will.

Kent, in the Commentaries Cæsar writ,
Is term'd the civil'st place of all this isle.

2. maritima . . . Interiores. It is natural that higher civilisation should be found on the coast than in the interior.

6. hoc, abl. of measure, "all the" (see on Bk. iv. ch. xxx. 5). It might be taken in agreement with aspectu.

capillo . . . promisso, abl. of description.

8. Uxores habent deni duodenique inter se communes, "ten or (notice difference of idiom) twelve men have wives in common"—i.e., 10 or 12 men had 10 or 12 wives in common. The distributive numeral refers to the different groups or societies of ten or a dozen men that had community of wives.

10. eorum habentur. The object of the system seems to have been to ensure children for every one.

11. quo, adverb = ad quos.

deducta, the technical word for bringing a bride to her husband's home.

CHAPTER XV.

2. ita . . . ut. See on ch. xi. 3.

3. fuertint . . . compulerint. The perfect subjunct., like the perf. indic., is used as an aorist: (1) as here, in consecutive clauses, laying stress on the actual result rather than on the cause; (2) in prohibitions, ne hoc feceris; (3) in indirect questions with future participle, rogavi quid facturi fuerint, "I asked what they would have done."

5. amiserunt. The Roman cavalry is the subject.
spatio, of time, though, just below, of place.

9. atque his, "and these, too."

primis. The first cohorts contained the best men. All the men had to reach five feet ten inches in height.

10. cum — constitissent, "these having halted a very short distance apart." Inter se goes with intermisso.

12. per medios, between the two cohorts.

13. tribunus militum. See Introduction, p. xxiii.

CHAPTER XVI.

1. Toto—dimicaretur. We should say, "all through a battle like this, which was fought."
2. intellectum, "it was clear to the onlookers"; nostros, "our legionary soldiers."
3. cedentes, accusative.
possent . . . auderent, suboblique subjunct., because dependent on acc. and infin., NOT the common virtually oblique subjunct. in causal clause, "because, as they said."
4. ad, "to cope with."
6. illi, the enemy.
consulto, "purposely."
7. removissent, "drawn off." In order to appreciate this passage, read carefully Bk. iv. ch. xxiii. on the British mode of fighting from chariots. The British chariots charged the Roman cavalry, and having drawn them off a little from the legionary soldiers, the combatants leaped down from their chariots and fought on foot, leaving the chariot with its driver as a means of retreat or pursuit, according to the issue of the fight.
8. dispari, to the Roman cavalry, because the British chariot system combined the advantages of infantry and cavalry.
Equestris — inferebat, bracketed in Mense's text. The meaning is not very clear, but seems to be this: the battle was, as has been said, an unequal contest for the Romans fighting on horse against the chariot system; but (autem) the nature of a purely cavalry engagement (equestris emphatic by position) entailed precisely the same danger (opposed to dispari proelio) for pursuers and pursued—i.e., neither side had the advantage of chariots for pursuit or flight. The statement is general, for the present engagement is not an equestre proelium (see next note).
9. et cedentibus et insequentibus. This sentence, like the rest, seems quite general; other editors, however, make it particular: "to the Romans, when they retreated or pursued," or (abl. abs., sc. illis), "when the Britons retreated or pursued." It would make excellent sense to say that this kind of fighting "brought equal danger to the Romans whether in retreat or pursuit," on account of the superiority which the chariots gave to the Britons; but it is hard to extract it from the Latin. Haec enim ratio proelii would be required to give this sense, instead of equestris autem ratio proelii.
10. Accedebat huc. See on Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 6. The substantial clause, which is practically the subject of a phrase like this,

VI., Part ii.

s.
ks Latin.
n will.

gher civilisa-

xxx. 5). It

ies, "ten or common"— distributive
a or a dozen

ms to have to her hus-

ke the perf.
uses, laying
in prohibi-
pa' iciple,
ve done."

. All the very short

can be expressed either by quod with the indicative or by ut sub-stantival with the subjunctive.

11. stationesque dispositas, "scattered outposts" of chariots with drivers.
12. alios . . . alii, "one party . . . another party." exciperent, "covered."
integrique, "and so fresh." 13. succederent, "relieved."

CHAPTER XVII.

4. tres legiones, an extraordinary number for the purpose.
6. pabulatores, not the whole legions, but parties sent out from them.

sic uti — absisterent, "with such impetuosity as not to shrink from attacking the standards and legions"—i.e., after routing the pabulatores. Others take sic uti as limitative—i.e., "they routed the foragers, and yet at the same time did not leave off attacking the legions." Others would read sicubi and omit non, "whenever they (the pabulatores) quitted their standards and legions."

10. sui colligendi. See on Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 14.
12. auxilia, contingents sent to Cassivellaunus from other tribes.
13. summis . . . copiis, emphatic order, "in full force."

CHAPTER XVIII.

2. uno omnino loco, "only at one place at all." Where this ford was is the subject of dispute. Some have put it as far down the river as Westminster, others as far up as Wallingford. All we gather from Caesar is that it was eighty miles from his landing-place. This distance, by various computations, can be made to suit different places: Wallingford, Coway, Sunbury, Petersham, Kingston, are all set down as the spot. Probably, however, it was above Teddington, where the river ceases to be tidal. The only ford now is at Sunbury, but the bed of the river may have changed. At Coway Stakes, above Walton Lock, below Sunbury, up to the end of last century there were some stakes, of which one is preserved in the British Museum (see next page). The Venerable Bede, in his history,¹ referring apparently to these stakes, which existed in his time (he died 734 A.D.), states that they were the same that "Cassobellaun" drove in to obstruct Cæsar's march. If they existed up to Bede's time, it is not impossible that they continued to exist up to the end of the eighteenth century, and hence the stake in the British Museum may possibly be one of those sunk by Cassivellaunus. It must be added, however, that some authorities believe them to have been part of a fishing weir, and it would be a marvellous thing for wooden stakes to remain in a river so long a time. In support of Coway Stakes being the spot where Cæsar crossed, it may be stated that there is near the place a village called Halliford and the remains of a Roman camp. The question cannot be definitely decided—the data are too few.

¹ "Thence he proceeded to the river Thames, where an immense multitude of the enemy had posted themselves on the farther side of the river, under the command of Cassobellaun, and fenced the bank of the river and almost all the ford under water with sharp stakes, the remains of which are to be seen to this day, each apparently about the thickness of a man's thigh, and being cased with lead, were fixed immovably in the bottom of the river."—Bk. i. ch. ii.

9. ea . . . eo, "such . . . such."

cum, "though." The Roman soldier must have been an expert at fording. To have succeeded in fording at such a depth in the face of an enemy seems almost incredible.

11. dimitterent, "abandoned."

CHAPTER XIX.

1. supra, end of ch. xvii.

4. locis. See on Bk. iv. ch. ii. 7.

10. hoc metu "fear of this"; cf. hoc dolore, ch. iv. 14.

11. relinquebatur, "the only course left to Cæsar was."

13. labore atque itinere, "by means of hard marching," a hendiadys.

CHAPTER XX.

1. Trinovantes, said by Professor Rhys to mean "battle-stabbers" or "battle-spearers." Their surrender to Cæsar destroyed all hopes of British success.

5. ipse, asyndeton, English idiom, "whilst he himself."

6. se is object, with another se understood as subject.

7. ab iniuria Cassivellauni. The gen. is subjective, "from ill-treatment at the hands of Cæsar."

Coway Stake in Brit. Mus.

CHAPTER XXI.

2. Cenimagni—Cassi. The exact position of these small tribes belonging to this part of Britain is uncertain. See, however, Index of Names.

4. oppidum Cassivellauni probably occupied the site of Verulamium (St Albans).

6. Oppidum. The circular entrenchments found in many parts of England are probably old British "towns" from which the forest has disappeared, leaving only the vallum and fossa, though they are generally called Roman camps.

CHAPTER XXII.

3. Cingetorix, not the man of that name mentioned in ch. v.

5. castra navalia, protecting the fleet which had been drawn up on the beach, mentioned in ch. xi.

13. neque multum, et non-multum.

14. extrahi, "wasted." Caesar had also political reasons for wishing to be closer home, as he had just heard of the death of his daughter Julia, who had married Pompey, and was a strong tie between them.

15. vectigalis, partitive gen. The tribute was never paid, as no troops were left behind to enforce it.

penderet, "was to pay," dubitative or deliberative subjunctive, as well as that of indirect question.

CHAPTER XXIII.

4. commeatibus, "crossings" or "relays."

Ac sic—reicerentur, "and so it happened, that out of so large a number of ships in the course of so many voyages, neither in this nor in the previous year was any transport ship at all missing; whilst of such as were sent back empty to him, namely, those belonging to the first relay after the soldiers had been landed and those which Labienus afterwards had had made, a very few made the harbour, and nearly all the rest were beaten back."

5. uti, with desideraretur, caperent, reicerentur.

7. portaret, like remitterentur below, due to relative (generic), "such as."

8. remitterentur properly only applies to the ships of the first relay, and not to those which Labienus had had built in Britain, which were not "sent back."

prioris commeatus, gen. of possession. Written in full, this sentence would run: cae quae prioris commeatus erant et cae quas, &c. It divides ex his quae into two parts.

9. postea, ch. xi., after Caesar had landed in Britain. Caesar wishes to emphasise in this somewhat involved period that he had his usual wonderful good fortune, because, though he had lost ships when beached, and also when returning to Britain empty after landing the first batch of soldiers in Gaul, yet he never lost a single transport with soldiers on board.

12. aequinoctium, September 24. Yet Caesar was still in Britain on 26th, for Cicero (Ad Att., iv. 15, 10) says in a letter that he has just received letters from his brother Quintus, and Caesar dated from the shores of Britain. The equinox must merely mean the season of the equinoctial gales.

13. necessario . . . conlocavit, "he was obliged to pack his men more closely."

14. secunda — vigilia, "having weighed anchor at the beginning of the second watch" (about 9 P.M.); not "the second watch having begun when he had weighed anchor," which would require cum solverat.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1. concilioque Gallorum. See on ch. ii. 14.
2. frumentum . . . angustius provenerat, "the harvest had been somewhat scanty."
5. distribuere. For the positions of these winter camps, study the map carefully.

LEGION.	LEGATE.	TRIBE.	MODERN SITE (approximate).
1	C. Fabius	Morini	St Pol.
1	Q. Cicero	Nervii	Charleroi (or Namur).
1	L. Roscius	Essuvii	Séze.
1	T. Labienus	Remi	Lavacherie.
1	M. Crassus	} Bellovaci	{ Montdidier.
1	C. Trebonius			{ Amiens (Samarobriua).
1	L. Munatius Plancus
1	{ Q. Titurius Sabinus	} Eburones	Tongres.
1½	{ L. Aurunculeius Cotta

MAP III.—ROMAN CAMPS IN GAUL.

Latin Names:— CAMP OF FABIVS, SAMAROBRIUA Modern Names:— (St. Paul.)
 (Author's Name)

8. Bellovacis. This is a correction for Belgia of the MSS. It seems necessary, as three of the tribes previously mentioned were stationed amongst the Belgae, a general name for the tribes on the N.E. of Gaul. Caesar would not, therefore, make special mention of them here.

10. proxime, "recently." This legion was the fourteenth, enrolled in 57 B.C.

16. mederi with d. l., but quare with acc.

19. milibus passuum centum continebantur. This probably means within a radius of 100 miles. If the statement means that no camp was more than 100 miles from another, it is inaccurate.

20. quoad . . . cogovisset, "until he learnt"; lit., "should have learnt" (see on Bk. iv. ch. vi. 5). In ch. xvii. 8, quoad . . . egerunt = "until they drove"; the English idiom uses the same tense to express "until they should have . . ." and "until they actually did . . ."

CHAPTER XXV.

2. Huic, indir. obj. to restituerat, with locum as direct obj.

3. in se benevolentia. See on ch. v. 8.

4. singulari—usus, "had found his services of particular assistance to him."

5. Tertium—regnantem, "who was in the third year of his reign"—lit., "who was reigning already during this the third year."
inimici, "personal enemies."

6. multis . . . auctoribus, abl. abs., "at the instigation of many."

8. impulsu, "influence."

10. quorum—mittere, "and to arrest and send to him the men by whose agency he had learnt Tasgetius was killed."

CHAPTER XXVI.

1. Diebus . . . quindecim, "during the fifteen days," but not duration of time.

4. praesto fuissent, "had presented themselves before." Praesto is an adverb.

5. Indutiomari. For the cause of his hostility, see ch. iv.

9. desperata re, "in despair."

11. aliqui. Aliquis is the usual form when no substantive is used.

Latin Names:—CAMP OF FABIVS, SAMAROBRIVA
Modern Names:—(St. Pol.)
Rhene
Carni
Senones

11. ex nostris—vellent. It is remarkable that these words, by a strange coincidence, form two complete hexameters. As a rule, metrical prose is carefully avoided.

12. habere—sperarent. We should say, "they represented that they had communications to make as regards their mutual interests, from which they anticipated the possibility of an abatement of hostilities."

vellent . . . sperarent, suboblique.

13. posse has no future infinitive; hence the present after sperarent.

CHAPTER XXVII.

2. ex Hispania, adjectival; cf. in se beneficiis, and in se iuris below (see on Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 15).

3. missu, "at the sending"; cf. coactu, iussu, iniussu, vocatu.

5. debere depends on confiteri.

6. stipendio, abl. of separation.

quod Atuatuicis. This quod is relative.

9. numero, abl. = in numero. So obsidum loco.

10. fecerit. Throughout this speech the vivid sequence is often used.

11. suaque—multitudinem, "that his own sovereignty was of such a limited kind that the people had no less power over him than he over the people."

14. quod—potuerit, explanatory of causam.

15. Id se—quod, "this he could easily prove from his own weakness, as . . ."

16. imperitus rerum, "inexperienced" (see on Bk. iv. ch. i. 5).

suis copiis, abl. of means or instrument. Suis is emphatic.

18. oppugnandis, dat. of purpose.

19. alteri. It is as well to state that most texts read here alterae, an old second declension form. Cæsar also uses toto, nullo, as datives. These instances are not sufficient authority for the constant use of these forms in modern Latin prose.

22. Quibus—satisfecerit, "since he had satisfied the claims of patriotism"—lit., "since he had satisfied them on the score of patriotism."

habere . . . rationem, "took account of."

23. officii, "his obligation."

monere, orare. Two verbs of the same meaning are often used in Latin to emphasise an idea, "he earnestly begged"; cf. funderere et fugare, "to rout utterly." The asyndeton here gives additional emphasis; cf. agere ferre, "to plunder."

26. biduo, "in the course of two days."

Ipsorum esse consilium. Caesar said, "The decision lies with you yourselves."

27. eductos . . . deducere, "to conduct them . . . and lead them."

31. Quod cum faciat, "in doing this."

32. hibernis levetur, "relieved of the burden of winter quarters."

33. oratione, a most plausible and seductive speech. In translating, turn it into or. recta. Notice the phrase orationem habere, "to make a speech."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

4. quod, explanatory of hac re.

6. consilium. A council of war contained the commander-in-chief, his legati, military tribunes, and the six centurions of the first cohort.

7. L. Aurunculeius, Cotta.

8. primorum ordinum. See Introduction, p. xxiv.

9. iniussu. See on missu, ch. xxvii. 3.

10. quantasvis, "of any size."

etiam Germanorum, "even" of Germans, who were, as soldiers, considered far more formidable than the Gauls. According to Ambiorix, a large body of them had crossed the Rhine.

11. munitis hibernis, abl. abs., "provided the winter camp was fortified."

rem esse testimonio quod, "the fact that . . . was a proof." Testimonio is the ordinary dative of purpose, like usui, dolori, auxilio, subsilio, &c.

12. ultra, "to boot."

15. quid esse. For questions in or. obl., see on Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 15.

levius, "more undignified."

auctore hoste, "on the advice of an enemy."

CHAPTER XXIX.

1. Titurius, Sabinus.

4. Caesarem se arbitrari, "that he (Sabinus) thought that Caesar . . ." But Caesar had not gone to Italy (Cisalpine Gaul) as usual. It is hard to believe that Sabinus did not know this.

6. fuisse capturos, "would have adopted."
 7. nostri, "for us," objective gen. Remember that the forms nos. trum, vestrum are used as partitive genitives, otherwise nostri, vestri, venturos, "would not now be coming." Notice that, in secondary sequence, si ille adesset . . . venturos (sc. esse) is capable of representing three different conditional clauses of the direct speech:—

- (1) si aderit, venient ("if he be present, they will come").
- (2) si adsit, veniant ("if he were to be present, they would come").
- (3) si adesset, venirent ("if he were now present, they would be coming").

In the text the sense shows that it represents (3).

8. non hostem—spectare, "what he looked at was not the suggestion of the enemy, but the plain fact." Hostem auctorem, like capta urbs, "the capture of the city."

9. Ariovisti mortem. In Bk. i. ch. liii. we read of the flight of Ariovistus from battle, but nowhere is the manner of his death recorded. Presumably he was captured and killed.

10. ardere—extincta, "Gaul, brought under the Roman sway, her military glory of the past extinguished, was blazing with wrath at the insults she had received."

12. persuaderet. See on Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 15. The subjunctive is used with a question in the third person, because in the direct the question was Quis persuadeat? "Who is to persuade?"

13. descendisse, "had resorted to."

14. si nihil esset durius, "if nothing unfortunate happened."

17. Cottae—exitum, "as to Cotta and the malcontents, what did their policy involve?"

19. at certe, "yet certainly." At can be used to mark an apodosis, sed cannot.

longinqua obsidione, abl. abs.

CHAPTER XXX.

This chapter is a good instance of the vivid style of writing.

1. in utramque partem. In has a distributive force (see on Bk. iv. ch. i. 11).

2. primis ordinibus = centurionibus primorum ordinum (see Introduction, p. xxiv).

Vincite, "have it so."

3. et id (sc. dixit). We should say "and then."

4. qui terrear, "to be terrified;" qui consecutive=ut ego. Notice the person of terrear.
gravissime ex vobis, "more than the rest of you."
 5. hi, the soldiers.
si gravius quid, "if anything at all serious happen."
 7. communem—sustineant, "would bear their share of the fortunes of war with the rest."
 8. non, asyndeton, giving considerable force.
reiecti et relegati, "like utter outcasts." For the two verbs expressing one strong idea, see on ch. xxvii. 23.

CHAPTER XXXI.

1. Consurgitur, impersonal.
comprehendunt, by the hand.
 3. facilem esse. See on ch. vi. 15.
 4. si modo, "provided only."
 6. disputatione, abl. of means or instrument; trans., "the question is debated at length."
dat . . . manus, "gives way." This is a metaphor from the formal action of surrender.
 8. vigiliis, "in wakefulness."
 9. cum . . . circumspiceret, "looking round."
quid, "(to see) what."
 11. Omnia—augeatur, bracketed in Meusel's text. The sense is certainly not clear. Two interpretations are possible: (1) "Everything is devised to make it impossible to remain without danger, and, at the same time, by causing fatigue and sleeplessness to the troops, to increase the danger (of departure)." This would be a stricture on the utter incompetency of the generals. The use of quare is unnatural. (2) "All reasons are thought out and discussed why they cannot remain without danger, and why that danger is increased by the fatigue and sleeplessness of the troops." The sentence would then be either (a) an explanation of consumitur vigiliis, &c., or (b) else a description of the efforts of Sabinus' party to reconcile the troops to the decision for departure. Languore et vigiliis would then refer to the anticipated trials of a prolonged siege. This rendering gives a proper meaning to quare, but gives less point to the second half of the sentence. Of these interpretations, 2 (b) seems the best. Perhaps, as some think, the passage is out of place, and should be inserted after perducitur, above, describing the efforts of Sabinus' party in debate.

11. nec . . . et. See on Bk. iv. ch. i. 21; xxix. 11.
 12. maneatur, impersonal.
 13. ut quibus, "as if"; lit., "as men to whom" (see on Bk. iv. ch. xxiii. 13).
 15. datum, sc. esse, dependent on persuasum esset. Remember the two constructions of persuadeo—e.g., persuasum est mihi: (a) ut eam, "to go" (purpose); (b) me ire, "that I am going" (ordinary acc. and infin. of indirect statement).
- longissimo . . . impedimentis*, abl. abs. That in the vicinity of an enemy the march out should be made with a lengthened and therefore weakened line, and with the encumbrance of a large quantity of baggage, shows the credulity and incompetency of Sabinus.

CHAPTER XXXII.

1. ex nocturno premitu vigiliisque, "from the noise and activity during the night" in the Roman camp.
3. a, "at a distance of" (see on Bk. iv. ch. xxii. 15).
5. ex utraque parte, "at each end."

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1. qui, causal, "since he."
trepidare . . . concursare . . . disponere, historic infinitives.
2. haec, governed by facere understood.
3. ut = ita ut.
deficere. We should say, "so that he seemed to be at a total loss." This verb is also used intransitively with a dative in the same sense.
4. in ipso negotio, "in the thick of things."
5. qui, as above.
6. profectionis auctor non fuisset, "had not been in favour of marching."
8. imperatoris, sc. officia praestabat.
10. per se omnia obire, "perform all duties by themselves."
quoque, abl. of quisque.
11. pronuntiare. This is a common idiom in Latin and Greek. Some subject to pronuntiare has to be mentally supplied. English idiom uses the passive, "bade orders to be given." In the next chapter both idioms occur.
12. in orbem consistenter. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxxvii. 5.

14. cecidit, "turned out."
 18. quaeque, "and such things as."
 19. properaret, like contendere, used with a prolative infinitive.
 20. fletu. These tears were due, not to cowardice, but to the emotional nature of the southern temperament.
complerentur, by asyndeton with discederent and properaret, depends on ut. The -que of quaeque connects the first two.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

1. At barbaris . . . defuit, "on the other hand, the natives were not lacking in a plan of action."
tota acie, "along the whole line," locative abl. without in.
 3. illorum. They said "yours is the booty."
 5. erastimarent, jussive.
Erant—pares, bracketed in Meusel's text.
virtute et numero, abl. of reference or respect.
 6. a Fortuna. The preposition shows that Fortune is personified.
 11. levitate—posse, also bracketed in Meusel's text.
 12. nihil—posse, "that no harm can come to them." Noceri is impersonal.
 13. recipientes governs se, and is governed by insequantur.
insequantur, jussive.

CHAPTER XXXV.

1. cum. See on Bk. iv. ch. i. 10; xvii. 11.
 3. nudari necesse erat, "was necessarily exposed." Whenever a cohort left the circle, the enemy feigned flight in that particular part; but the sides of the gap in the Roman circle were necessarily exposed. When the cohort tried to return, it found itself surrounded by those who had fled and quickly returned and by the enemy on either side nearest to the fugitives. Thus sallies were futile. On the other hand, it was equally hopeless to remain in the circle.
 11. horam octavam, about 2 P.M.
 12. Balventio, dat. of reference, where we in English idiom use possessive genitive.
 13. primum pilum duxerat—i.e., primipilaris. The pluperfect implies that he had completed his time of service and was now attached to the legion as an emeritus, "veteran."

13. pilum, from pilus (see Introduction, p. xxiv., note).
15. eiusdem ordinis—i.e., a primipilaris.
17. in adversum os, "full in the mouth."

CHAPTER XXXVI.

5. posse. See on ch. xxvi. 13.
quod—pertineat, "that his request would be able to be granted as far as the soldiers' lives were concerned."
6. ipsi, Sabinus.
ocitum iri, impersonal. With verbs used impersonally, the periphrasis (fore ut) is generally employed instead of the fut. infin. pass.
7. communicat—excedant, "communicates with Cotta with a view to quitting the fight, if he (Cotta) think fit." Ut final is used loosely, dependent on communicat; si videatur, like pugna, being emphatic, is put outside the ut clause. Another way of taking the sentence is, "communicates with him to see if (a common use of si) he agrees to quitting." This would make ut substantival, and dependent on videatur.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

1. quos . . . tribunos. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxxi. 5.
11. aquilifer. See Introduction, p. xxiv.
13. occiditur. Occido (ob-cado) is generally used as the passive of occido (ob-cado).
- Illi*, those who had regained the camp.
15. Pauci, not out of the camp, but out of the battle.
16. ad T. Labienum in hiberna. See on Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 13.
 Suetonius tells a story that when Caesar heard of this disaster—the extinction of one legion and a half—he vowed he would let his hair grow until he had taken vengeance on the Eburones.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

5. sui . . . liberandi. See on Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 14.
6. ulciscendi Romanos. See on Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 6.
7. dimittant, "let slip."
8. nihil—interfici, "it was a matter of no difficulty for the legion wintering with Cicero to be surprised and massacred." We should expect trucidari here instead of interfici, which is mostly used only of killing individuals.

9. negotii, partit. gen., dependent on nihil, our colloquial "nothing of a business."

10. se . . . adiutorem. We should say, "his aid."

CHAPTER XXXIX.

2. qui omnes, English idiom, "all of whom." Contrast these two sentences: nos trecenti sumus parati, "300 of us are prepared"—i.e., 300 out of 300, the whole body; trecenti e nobis sunt parati, "300 of us are prepared"—i.e., 300 out of (say) 500, a fraction of the body.

eorum, the Nervii.

4. nondum . . . perlata. We should say, "before the news reached."

6. qui . . . discessissent. The relative seems here to be used in its simple sense, without any restrictive or consecutive sense. The subjunctive must be due to attraction, being dependent on interciperentur.

CHAPTER XL.

Notice the vividness of this chapter, produced by short sentences, vivid tenses, asyndeton, &c.

2. si pertulissent. There is no expressed apodosis, but it is easily gathered from praemiis propositis. The subject of pertulissent is nuntii, to be supplied. After the historic present mittuntur, Caesar might have written the more vivid pertulerint; but the less vivid tense is used probably because the chance of the despatch getting through was small (see on ch. xvi. 7).

3. missi, "those who had been sent."

4. turres. These were built at regular intervals along the wall, like the modern bastion. They were probably three storeys high, and about ten feet square. Each platform or storey was protected on the side towards the enemy by battlements and breastworks (pinnæ loricaeque). They were open at the back, and ascended by ladders. From the storeys the troops hurled missiles on the attackers. See illustration on next page.

4. admodum, "quite."

cxx. "If we estimate the circumference of the camp of a legion at 4600 feet, then 120 towers would give a distance of about 40 feet from tower to tower" (Moberley).

12. præustae sudes, stakes sharpened at the end, and hardened in the fire, and shot from tormenta.

Camp with towers.

a, vallum.
b, lorica.

c, fossa.
d, turris.

e, pons.
f, porta.

12. muralium pilorum, long heavy javelin used in defence of a wall.
13. contabulantur, "are built in storeys."
pinnae, battlements or palisading of wood.
loricae, "breastworks" of wicker-work, "fascines." 14. ex cratibus, attributive to loricae (see on Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 15).
attexuntur, "are attached" to the turres.
cum, "though."
tenuissima, "very delicate." 16. ut, "to such an extent that."
ultra—cogeretur. We should say, "he was compelled to spare himself by the spontaneous action of the troops, who crowded round him with entreaties (or expostulations)." The adverb ultra is used to qualify concursum, which is a verbal noun.

CHAPTER XLI.

1. sermonis aditum, "access to an interview."
3. Facta potestate, "audience being granted."
4. egerat, "had treated of."
7. faciundae, an old form of the gerundive.
8. qui . . . diffidant—i.e., "who themselves are in a precarious condition."
9. hoc esse . . . animo, "such was their attitude towards."
11. inveterascere, "become established."
per se, "as far as they are concerned."
16. utantur, jussive.
17. pro eius iustitia, "such was Caesar's sense of justice."

CHAPTER XLII.

1. spe. The Nervii had hoped to entrap Cicero with the same plausible arguments as had proved successful to Ambiorix in dealing with Sabinus.

4. nulla . . . copia, ablative absolute.

5. quae, "such as."

gladiis. Notice the order, emphasising "with their swords," The natural order, caespites gladiis circumcidere, would have meant something different—"they cut clods with their swords."

6. exhaurire, "to dig out," strictly goes only with manibus. With sagulis, supply "they carried." This figure is called zeugma.

8. minus horis tribus, "in the course of less than three hours"; quam omitted (see on Bk. iv. ch. x. 3).

milium passuum xv. It is almost impossible to believe that the investing lines were fifteen (Roman, about fourteen English) miles in circumference. Perhaps, with some editors, instead of passuum we should read pedum (the best MSS. have the initial p only), which would be about two and three-quarter miles.

10. valli, the Roman rampart.

Testudo.

falces, murales, also called asserres falcati, hooks shaped like sickles attached to poles, and used for tearing down fortifications. The besieged would endeavour to frustrate these by catching the heads in loops of rope.

testudines. See on ch. ix. 16. Here, movable sheds to protect the storming parties. See illustration on p. 131.

CHAPTER XLIII.

1. ferventes . . . glandes, red-hot balls of clay, hurled from leathern slings.

2. fusiles means that the balls had been moulded when soft. fervefacta can scarcely mean "red-hot," as they could not have been hurled by hand, and presumably the Gauls had no tormenta. Probably they had burning tow attached to them.

casas. Strong wooden huts were used in winter camps.

3. stramentis . . . tectae, "thatched" (see on ch. xii. 7).

6. sicuti, "just as if," with abl. abs. So with quasi, tanquam. This idiom is really elliptic. Here some verb like clamarent is mentally supplied.

parta . . . atque explorata victoria, "a complete victory had been obtained" (see on ch. xxvii. 23).

12. nemo, emphatic position, "not a single man."

paene ne . . . quidem quisquam, "scarcely a man even."

ac tum. We can bring out the force of these words by saying,

"and it was a time when all fought their hardest."

14. gravissimus, "most critical."

15. ut, "since."

16. sub, "close under."

17. non dabant, "refused to give."

18. turri, the enemies'. The Gauls were adopting all the Roman methods of attack.

21. vocare, of course ironically.

22. deturbati, sc. sunt Galli.

CHAPTER XLIV.

A magnificent piece of narrative.

1. qui, with consecutive force. Their bravery was bringing promotion.

9. inrumpit, sc. in eam partem.

10. Ne . . . quidem, gives the force of "nor yet . . . on his part" (Greek, καὶ ἀντὶς . . . οὐ).

vallo, "within the rampart."

13. quo—protegunt. See on Bk. iv. ch. xii. 4.

15. Transfigitur. In vivid narrative, the verb often is placed first in the sentence: so Avertit, Succurrit, below.

16. Avertit . . . vaginam, "turns the sheath away from him," thus causing delay in drawing the sword.

17. conanti. See on ch. xxxv. 12.

18. Succurrit—Vorenius. This is a beautiful example of delicate order. Succurrit has been noticed above. Inimicus gains force by being placed next to succurrit, with which it is contrasted, and by being separated from Vorenius, which occupies an emphatic position at the end.

21. rem gerit, "fights."

26. versavit, "dealt with."

28. uter utri. Our idiom is, "which of the two . . . to the other."

CHAPTER XLV.

in dies, "day by day" (see on Bk. iv. ch. i. 11).

maxime, quod, "chiefly owing to the fact that."

res—pervenerat, "it had come to this, that there was a scarcity of defenders."

8. fidem praestiterat, "sworn fidelity."

9. ad Caesarem, at Samarobriua (Amiens).

10. inligatas, "folded in" the shaft.

CHAPTER XLVI.

3. milia. See on Bk. iv. ch. x. 3.

7. posset, a variation in sequence, with special force, as Labienus, being amongst the unfriendly Treveri, was not likely to be able to come (see on ch. xl. 2).

8. veniat, jussive subjunct., in semi-dependence on scribit.

Reliquam partem, the troops under Roscius and Planus.

10. ex proximis hibernis, presumably those of Crassus at Mont-dulier. In that case the cavalry, travelling rapidly, preceded Crassus and the legion.

CHAPTER XLVII.

2. progređitur. Cæsar, with Trebonius' legion, sets out immediately; the advance-guard of Crassus' army arrives at Samarobriva without waiting for the actual arrival of Crassus, whom he leaves in command.

3. praeficit. Cæsar had already departed, but left word that Crassus was to take the command.

4. litteras publicas, "public records" comprising the rolls of the legions, information collected from spies, accounts, &c.

6. non ita multum, like our colloquial "not so much," means practically "not at all."

8. ad eum, "against him."

9. ne . . . non. Cæsar might have written ut.

11. praesertim quos . . . sciret, "especially as he knew that they."

12. quanto, "(to say) with what."

13. educturus esset represents in the direct educerem, not educam (fut.) He did not mean to set out.

rem gestam in Eburonibus, the disaster to Sabinus and Cotta.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

1. etsi—reciderat, "although he was disappointed in his expectation of three legions, and reduced to two;" opinione, lit., "from his expectation."

2. duas, his own and Fabius'.

7. Graecis litteris, "Greek language," rather than merely Greek characters, with which the Gauls, if we may judge from the Helvetii (Bk. i. ch. xxix.), were acquainted. According to Polyanius, the words were θαρπεῖν, βοήθειαν προσδέχου, "be of good cheer; expect aid." Cæsar frequently used a simple cryptogram, substituting for a letter that which was fourth from it in the alphabet.

10. amentum was a leathern strap which was attached to the centre of the spear, and considerably increased the distance to which it could be thrown by imparting a rotatory movement to the missile.

13. periculum, of being mistaken by the Romans for an unfriendly Gaul.

14. biduo. We should expect the acc. of duration, but Cæsar not unfrequently uses the abl. when the period is so short as to make little difference between point of time and duration.

16. perlectam—i.e., he read it through to himself first: notice that epistolam has to be supplied.

in conventu militum, "on parade."

17. fumi; the plural implies "smoke in different places," but we have no English equivalent.

19. adventus, "about the arrival."

expulit, "dispelled."

CHAPTER XLIX.

1. relinquunt, "raise."

2. Haec, attracted (for hi) to agreement with the predicate (see on Bk. i. ch. i. 1).

armata. The Gauls came omnibus copiis, including camp-followers, &c.

6. faciat, jussive, in semi-dependence on admonet.

8. Caesar. The position of the name inside the abl. abs. is for the purpose of obviating the insertion of ad eum, showing to whom the despatch was brought.

9. animo, abl. of respect, "in mind." English idiom would probably omit it altogether, being less definite than Latin (see on Bk. i. ch. i. 5).

10. trans, not with progressus, but with conspicatur, as Caesar did not cross the valley and river till later (see below).

12. tum, "at the same time."

13. aequo animo, "with a clear conscience."

16. millium septem. There were two legions, which thus contained 3500 men each, a number below normal (see Introduction, p. xxii).

17. angustis viarum, "by narrowing the passages (or streets) of the camp." See plan, p. 81.

19. hostibus. See on ch. xxxv. 12.

speculatoribus, abl. of means or instrument.

CHAPTER L.

2. Galli . . . Caesar, in apposition to utrique.

3. si forte . . . posset, subordinate to the ut clause, and parallel with si id efficere non posset, not "to see if."

CHAPTER LI.

1. invitati, "tempted."

8. in speciem, "merely for show." In order to increase the enemy's opinion of their state of terror, the Romans blocked up the gates with turf, so as to give the impression that no sortie was contemplated, yet with turf only one row thick, so that when the time came, the sortie could be easily made.

quod explains what follows, not what precedes: "because they (the Gauls) seemed (to themselves) unable to force an entry by that way"—i.e., through the gates.

12. sic uti, "to such good purpose that."

13. occidit, occido.

exiit—i.e., compelled them all to throw them away.

CHAPTER LII.

2. neque—videbat, "and because he saw that no chance was left of inflicting even a small damage on them." He had only 400 cavalry. These words are bracketed in Meusel's edition.

neque etiam = et ne . . . quidem.

5. producta, "paraded."

non decimum quemque, "not one in ten."

12. certius. Labienus' letter had given him some information.

13. rem, the disaster to Sabinus and Cotta.

proponit, "describes."

quod—sit acceptum, "that the disaster, which has been received owing to the culpable rashness of a general." The subjunct. is suboblique; so relinquatur below.

14. hoc, either acc. antecedent to quod detrimentum, or abl. of measure with aequiora, "all the more patiently," anticipating quod causal which follows.

CHAPTER LIII.

1. per Remos, "through the territory of." It might also mean "by means of." The Remi and the Haedui were the faithful friends of the Romans.

2. cum, concessive.

5. quo . . . fieret, consecutive.

5. significatio, "intimation."

6. feret, "was conveyed."

10. tribus. Caesar must have been joined by Plancus, because otherwise, after sending away Fabius, he would have only Trebonius' and Crassus' legions, and Roscius did not move from his camp (see below).

trinis, without any distributive force. Nouns that are used in the plural with singular meaning use the distributive numerals instead of the cardinals. The reason is that most of these nouns have a different meaning in the singular, and there is need of some means of distinguishing, for instance, between "two letters" (of the alphabet), duae litterae, and "two epistles," binæ epistolæ; "two forts," duo castra, "two camps," binæ castra.

12. ad exercitum, "at the camp" or "with the army."

15. reliqui is nominative; consilli, partitive genitive. caperent . . . feret, dubitative or deliberative subjunctive.

17. Neque ullum fere, "scarcely any."

18. sine sollicitudine. This is further defined by the quin clause, both going closely with intercessit. Trans., "elapsd without anxiety on Cæsar's part, and without his receiving."

Caesaris, subjective genitive.

22. sui, Roscius.

24. afuisse, "had been," but were no longer.

CHAPTER LIV.

2. cum . . . denuntiaret, "solemnly declaring."

6. adventu in Galliam. The prepositional phrase is attributive (see on Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 15). This use is common with verbal substantives.

11. senatum, assembly of chiefs, called by Cæsar by the Roman name.

audientes, "obedient."

12. esse. This clause is in sense the subject of valuit. It might equally well have been expressed by quod with the indicative.

17. Gallici belli officii, "services in the Gallic War."

18. Id . . . mirandumne sit, lit., "I do not know whether this is so much to be wondered at"—i.e., "perhaps this is not," &c.

cum . . . tum maxime, quod, "for many other reasons, but specially because." Cum . . . tum = "both . . . and."

20. opinionis, partitive gen. with tantum; "prestige."

CHAPTER LV.

2. quin . . . mitterent, "without sending."
 5. persuaderi potuit, "was able to be persuaded." Remember the two meanings of a past tense of possum with the infin.: e.g., potui ire, (1) "I was able to go (and went)"; (2) "I was able to go (and did not)"—i.e., "I could have gone."
 7. Ariovisti bello, in the first campaign, or 58 B.C.
Tencterorum transitu. In Bk. iv. 1.
 8. Hac spe lapsus, "disappointed"; so ch. xlvi. 1, opinionē deiectus.

CHAPTER LVI.

1. ultra, "spontaneously."
veniri. Notice how frequently Cæsar uses the impersonal construction when the stress is laid on the action and not on those who perform it.
Senones. Ch. liv. 4. They had expelled Cavarinus.
 6. coguntur, general, not particular.
 13. huc . . . per fines Remorum. The route from the Treveri to the Senones naturally lay through the Remi.

CHAPTER LVII.

3. quam, indefinite.
 8. sub, "close to."
alias . . . alias, adverb.
 11. Labienus pursued the same tactics of feigned fear as Cæsar had.

CHAPTER LVIII.

11. præcipit atque interdicat. The command is expressed by petant (semi-dependent jussive subjunct.), the prohibition by neu vulneret. This command recalls that of Hazael, King of Syria, who commanded his captains to fight "neither with small nor great, save only with the King of Israel."
 13. petant . . . vulneret, expressive change from secondary to vivid sequence.
neu quis quem, both indefinite.
 15. mora reliquerum, "delay over the rest"—i.e., caused by Romans pursuing the rest.

APPENDIX.

I. INDEX OF PROPER NAMES.

A.

Ambiōrix, Bk. v. chs. xxiv., lii. Chief of the Eburones, who, with Catuvolcus, raised a revolt against the Romans, and destroyed the fifteen cohorts under T. Sabinus and Cotta—after treacherously inducing them by a show of friendship to quit the camp—and nearly succeeded in capturing the camp of Cicero, who was relieved, after a heroic resistance, by Cæsar. He was never captured.

Ambivariti, Bk. iv. ch. ix. A tribe in Belgium on the Mosa (Meuse). (Map I., Af.)

Ancalites, Bk. v. ch. xxi. A tribe in Britain, probably in Berkshire, south of Windsor. (Map II., Ba.)

Arduenna Silva, Bk. v. ch. iii. The modern Ardennes, a forest in south of Belgium. (Map I., Af.)

Arēmōricæ Civitates, Bk. v. ch. liii. States in north of Brittany and Normandy; said to be derived from Celtic are = "on," and mori, muir = "sea" (= ad-mare). (Map I., Bb.)

Ariovistus, Bk. iv. ch. xvi.; Bk. v. chs. xxix., lv. A German chief who, at the invitation of the Sequani, crossed the Rhine to aid them against the Haedui. However, after conquering the Haedui, he appropriated territory of his allies the Sequani, who thereupon became reconciled with the Haedui and begged help of Cæsar. The Romans defeated him in a big battle (58 B.C.), but he escaped, and was subsequently killed, though the manner of his death is not recorded.

Arpineus, Caius, Bk. v. chs. xxvii., xxviii. Sent as envoy with Q. Junius to negotiate with Ambiorix.

Atrebātes, Bk. iv. ch. xxi.; Bk. v. ch. xlvi. A Belgic tribe south of Portus Itius (Boulogne). See Commius. (Map I., Ad.)

Atrius, Quintus, Bk. v. chs. ix., x. Put in command of the fleet by Caesar in the second invasion.

Atuatūci, Bk. v. chs. xxvii., xxxviii., xxxix., lvi. A powerful Belgic tribe, roused to revolt by Ambiorix. Chief town, Tongres. (Map I., Af.)

B.

Balventius, Titus, Bk. v. ch. xxxv. A brave veteran, primipilaris, killed with the troops of Sabinus and Cotta.

Batāvi, Bk. iv. ch. x. A Celtic people who inhabited the insula formed by the Rhine, Vacalus (Waal), and Mosa (Meuse). (Map I., Af.)

Belgae, Belgium, Bk. iv. ch. xxxviii.; Bk. v. chs. xiii., xxv. One of the three great divisions of Gaul. The Belgae were of German origin: they occupied the NE. of Gaul. The chief Belgic tribes were the Nervii, Bellovaci, Remi, Morini, Menapii, Suessiones, Atuatuci, Atrebates, Eburones.

Bellovāci, Bk. v. chs. xxiv., xlvi. A Belgic tribe, SW. of Belgium. Three winter-camps were placed by Caesar amongst them in 54 B.C. —i.e., those of M. Crassus, Munatius Plancus, C. Trebonius. (Map I., Be.)

Bibrōci, Bk. v. ch. xxi. A tribe perhaps on south coast of Britain (Surrey and Sussex). Other authorities place them in Hertfordshire. Together with the Cenimagni, Segontiaci, Ancalites, and Cassi, submitted to Caesar during second invasion. (Map I., Ac; Map II., Ba or Aa.)

Britanni, Britannia, Bk. iv. chs. xx.-xxiii., xxviii.-xxxviii.; Bk. v. chs. ii.-xxii. See Introduction, p. xl.

C.

Caesar, Caius Julius. See Introduction, p. xiv.

Cantium, Bk. v. chs. xiii., xiv., xxii. Modern Kent. Described as the most civilised portion of Britain. It was divided into four small principalities under Cingetorix, Carvilius, Taximagulus, Segovax, whom Cassivellaunus persuaded to make an unsuccessful attack on Caesar's naval camp during the second invasion. (Map I., Ad.)

Carnūtes, Bk. v. chs. xxv., xxix., lvi. A Gallic tribe on the Liger (Loire); capital Cenabum. Caesar set Tasgetius on the throne, whom they rose against and killed. They also intrigued with Indutiomarus. (Map I., Ed.)

- Carvilius, Bk. v. ch. xxii. See Cantium.
- Cassi, Bk. v. ch. xxi. A British tribe north of the Thames, in Middlesex and Hertfordshire. Their name is said to survive in the modern Cassiobury, near Watford. See on Bibroci. (Map I., Ac; Map II., Aa.)
- Cassivellaunus, Bk. v. chs. xi., xviii., xxii. A powerful prince of the Cassi, holding sway over a large district north of the Thames. He tried to obstruct Caesar's passage of the Thames without success; thereupon he adopted harassing tactics, until his "town" (St Albans) was taken by storm, when he submitted. The name is a Latinised form of Cadwallon or Caswallon.
- Catuvolcus, Bk. v. chs. xxiv., xxvi. With Ambiorix, was chief-tain of the Eburones, but does not appear to have taken so energetic a part in the rising against Sabinus and Cotta. See Ambiorix.
- Cavarinus, Bk. v. ch. liv. Set up by Caesar as king of the Senones, but driven out by them.
- Cenimagni, Bk. v. ch. xxi. A British tribe (probably of Gallic origin), placed by some in Norfolk and Suffolk, and identified with the Iceni, Boadicea's tribe; and by others in Bedfordshire and Cambridgeshire. See Bibroci. (Map I., Ad.)
- Centrônes, Bk. v. ch. xxxix. A small Belgic tribe in the N.E. of Belgium, who, together with other small tribes of the district—the Grudii, Levaci, Pleumoxii, Geidumni—were under the sway of Ambiorix, and persuaded by him to attack Cicero's camp. (Map I., Af.)
- Cicero, Quintus, Bk. v. chs. xxiv., xxxix.-lii. Brother of the great orator, Marcus Tullius Cicero; born about 102 B.C., and brought up with his brother. From 61-59 B.C. he was proprætor of Asia. In 58 B.C. he went to Gaul as legatus to Cæsar, and in 54 showed great courage and military skill in defending his winter camp against the attack of the Nervii. Subsequently he sided with Pompey in the Civil War against Cæsar, but was pardoned by his old chief after the battle of Pharsalia (48 B.C.) He was proscribed by the Second Triumvirate, and put to death in 43 B.C.
- Cingetôrix, (1) Bk. v. chs. iii., lvii. Son-in-law of Indutiomarus, chief of the Treveri, and his rival for the chieftainship. He remained loyal to Cæsar, by whom he was made chief of the tribe. (2) Bk. v. ch. xxii. See Cantium.
- Claudius, Aa. Bk. v. ch. i. Consul in 54 B.C. with L. Domitius.
- Commius, Bk. iv. chs. xxi., xxvii., xxxv.; Bk. v. ch. xxii. Set up by Cæsar as king of the Atrebates, and, owing to his influence in Britain, where there was another branch of the tribe, sent thither by him with the British envoys on the eve of the first invasion. He was (possibly at his own connivance; see on Bk. iv. ch. xxvii.)

thrown into prison by the Britons, and not released till the end of the second invasion. Subsequently he abused Cæsar's confidence in him by rendering active assistance to the Gauls in the revolt of 52 B.C.

Condrüsi, Bk. iv. ch. vi. A Belgic tribe between the Mosa (Meuse) and the Rhine. (Map I., Af.)

Cotta, Lucius Aurunculeius, Bk. iv. chs. xxii., xxxviii.; Bk. v. chs. xxiv., xxvi.-xxxvii. A legatus of Cæsar, associated with Sabinus (1) in command of an expedition against the Menapii and Morini on the eve of the first invasion of Britain, and (2) in command of the winter-quarters at Tongres among the Eburones. The Eburones under Ambiorix revolted, and, in spite of Cotta's strenuous resistance, Sabinus' advice was followed, and the fifteen cohorts made an attempt to quit camp, which resulted in their being caught by Ambiorix in an ambush and cut to pieces. Cotta, after doing all that was possible to retrieve the position, and showing great energy—in marked contrast to the incompetence of Sabinus—died fighting. Sabinus also fell.

Crassus, (1) Marcus (Bk. iv. ch. i.), with Cæsar and Pompey, made up the unconstitutional coalition of 60 B.C. known as the First Triumvirate. He was consul in 55 B.C. with Pompey. He was killed at the battle of Carrhæ, 53 B.C., whilst conducting the war against the Parthians.

(2) Marcus, son of the above. He went to Gaul with Cæsar as quaestor. In 55 B.C. Cæsar put him in command of one legion in winter-quarters at Montdidier, amongst the Bellovaci, and on quitting Samarobriua (Amiens) to relieve Cicero, summoned him to that town and left him in command there. Subsequently Crassus remained loyal to Cæsar in the Civil War, and held the command of Cisalpine Gaul.

D.

Domitius, Lucius, Bk. v. ch. i. Consul with Ap. Claudius in 54 B.C.

Dumnorix, Bk. v. chs. vi., vii. A chief of the Haedui. He had conspired unsuccessfully against the Romans, with a view to obtaining the kingdom, in 58 B.C. Owing to the entreaties of his brother Divitiacus, Cæsar pardoned him; but in 54 B.C. distrusted him too much to leave him behind in Gaul at the time of the second invasion of Britain. Dumnorix refused to accompany Cæsar to Britain, and tried to foster revolution. He was captured and killed. The disloyalty of Dumnorix does not imply the disaffection of the Haedui as a whole.

Durus, Quintus Laberius, Bk. v. ch. xv. A military tribune, who was killed in Britain during the second invasion.

E.

Eburōnes, Bk. iv. ch. vi.; Bk. v. chs. xxiv., xxviii., xxix., xxxix., lviii. A Belgic tribe, dependants (clientes) of the Treveri. Under Ambiorix they destroyed the fifteen cohorts of the winter camp under Sabinus and Cotta (54 B.C.) Subsequently (in 53 B.C.) they were annihilated by Cæsar (Bk. vi. chs. xxxiv., xxxv., xliii.), but Ambiorix escaped. (Map I., Af.)

Essuvii, Bk. v. ch. xxiv. A tribe in Normandy. L. Roscius was quartered amongst them at Séez in a winter camp in 54 B.C. (Map I., Bc.)

F.

Fabius, Caius, Bk. v. chs. xxiv., xlvi., xlvii., liii. One of Cæsar's legati. He was put in command of the legion in winter camp at St Pol amongst the Morini. He joined Cæsar on his way to relieve Cicero.

G.

Geidumni, Bk. v. ch. xxxix. A Belgic tribe, clients of the Nervii. See Centrones. (Map I., Af.)

Germani. The chief German tribes mentioned in these two books are—

1. Suebi, Bk. iv. chs. i., iii., iv., vii., xvi., xix., where their manners and customs are described. The name is a generic one for a large confederation of tribes occupying a large tract of territory east of the Rhine, and is sometimes used almost as a synonym for Germans. It remains in the modern Suabia. (Map I., Ah.) As their name is believed to imply, they lived a nomadic life. The more settled peoples were called Ingævones, to whom belonged the Usipetes and Tencteri. Tacitus uses the term Suebi to denote all the inhabitants of northern Germany. He describes them as distinguishable from other Germans by their top-knot of hair, which they wore to increase their height and the terror of their appearance. It was owing to pressure from the Suebi that the Usipetes and Tencteri crossed the Rhine.

2. Ubii, Bk. iv. chs. iii., viii., xi., xvi., xix. A friendly tribe on the east bank of the Rhine, their chief town being the modern Cologne. They had been made tributary by the Suebi. To render them assistance was one of the reasons that induced Cæsar to cross the Rhine. (Map I., Ag.)

3. Sugambri, Bk. iv. chs. xvi., xviii. On the east bank of the Rhine, north of the Ubii. They harboured the flying cavalry of the Usipetes and Tencteri after their defeat, and refused to surrender them. It was partly to punish them that Cæsar crossed the Rhine. He left a strong garrison among them. (Map I., Ag.)

4. Usipètes and Tenctëri, Bk. iv. chs. i., iv., xi.-xvi., xviii. Tribes on the east bank of the Rhine, north of the Sugambri. Forced by the Suebi to cross the river, they invaded Gaul and occupied territory belonging to the Menapii, but were defeated and nearly destroyed by Cæsar. (Map I., Ag.)

Grudii, Bk. v. ch. xxxix. A Belgic tribe, clients of the Nervii. See Ceutrones. (Map I., Af.)

H.

Haedui, Bk. v. chs. vi., vii., liv. A powerful tribe in the centre of Gaul, who with the Remi remained loyal to Cæsar during the general uprising of 54 B.C. In 58 B.C., at the appeal of Divitiacus, Cæsar had assisted them against Ariovistus and his invading German hordes. Subsequently, in 52 B.C., they wavered in their allegiance, and joined the revolt of Vercingetorix, but were mercifully treated by Cæsar. See also Dumnorix. Their capital was Bibracte (Autun). (Map I., Cf.)

Helvetii, Bk. iv. ch. x. A Celtic tribe who inhabited modern Switzerland. In 58 B.C., under Orgetorix, they migrated into Gaul, but were defeated and driven back by Cæsar. (Map I., Cg.)

Hispania, Bk. v. chs. i., xiii. Spain, represented by Cæsar as being west of Britain. From Spain Cæsar obtained esparto grass for the rigging of ships, and cavalry.

I.

Illyricum, Bk. v. ch. i. A province extending along the east coast of the Adriatic. Together with Gallia Cisalpina, it formed the provincia assigned to Cæsar by the Lex Vatinia (59 B.C.) At the beginning of 54 B.C. Cæsar went there to check a rising of a small tribe called the Pirustæ, who, on his approach, immediately submitted, denying the responsibility of the whole tribe for the incursion.

Indutiomārus, Bk. v. chs. iii., iv., xxvi., liii., lv. A chief of the Treveri, who, in 54 B.C., was contesting the chieftainship with his son-in-law, Cingetorix, who was loyal to Rome, and who consequently was supported by Cæsar. He raised a conspiracy in the winter of 54 B.C., and attacked the winter-camp of Labienus, who defeated and killed him.

Iunius, Quintus, Bk. v. chs. xxvii., xxviii. See Arpineius.

L.

Labienu, Titus Atius, Bk. iv. ch. xxxviii. ; Bk. v. chs. viii., xi., xxiii., xxiv., xxvii., xxxvii., xlvi., xlvii., liii., lvii. Caesar's most trusted legatus. In 55 B.C. he was intrusted with the command of an expedition against the Morini, and with the charge of Gaul during Caesar's absence on the second invasion. He was put in command of the winter camp amongst the Remi at Lavacherie, and successfully resisted Indutiomarus' attack. Subsequently, on the outbreak of the Civil War, he deserted Caesar and fought for Pompey against him at Pharsalia, Thapsus, and Munda, where he fell (45 B.C.)

Lepontii, Bk. iv. ch. x. An Alpine tribe. Caesar states that the Rhine rose in their territory. (Map I., Ch.)

Leváci, Bk. v. ch. xxxix. A Belgic tribe, clients of the Nervii. See on Centrones. (Map I., Af.)

Lingónes, Bk. iv. ch. x. A tribe in centre of Gaul. The name survives in Langres. (Map I., Bf.)

Lucanius, Quintus, Bk. v. ch. xxxv. A Roman centurion (primipilaris) who fell whilst rescuing his son, fighting under Sabinus and Cotta.

Lugotórix, Bk. v. ch. xxii. A Kentish leader who fell in the attack on the naval camp.

M.

Mandubracius, Bk. v. ch. xx., xxii. A young prince, son of a king of the Trinovantes, who, on his father being put to death by Cassivellaunus, had fled to Caesar in Gaul. At the request of the Trinovantes, Caesar restores him, and compels Cassivellaunus to abstain from injuring him.

Mediomatrices or -i, Bk. iv. ch. x. A Gallic tribe in the district of Metz. (Map I., Bg.)

Meldi or Meldae, Bk. v. ch. v. A Gallic tribe on the Matrona (Marne), near Paris. Here Caesar had ships built. (Map I., Be.)

Menapii, Bk. iv. chs. iv., xxii. A Belgic tribe on the Mosa (Meuse), driven out of their homes by the Usipetes and Tencteri. (Map I., Af.)

Mona, Bk. v. ch. xiii. The ancient name both of the Isle of Anglesea and the Isle of Man. Caesar probably refers to the latter.

Morini, Bk. iv. chs. xxi., xxii., xxxvii., xxxviii. ; Bk. v. ch. xxiv. A Belgic tribe on the coast. Their capital was Portus Itius or Gesoriacum (Boulogne). On Caesar's return from the first invasion they attacked his troops, whereupon Labienus led a punitive expedition against them. (Map I., Ae.)

Mosa, Bk. iv. chs. ix., xii., xv., xvi.; Bk. v. ch. xxiv. The Mouze or Maas. It rises among the Lingones, and, flowing through Silva Arduenna (Ardennes), joins the Vaalus (Waal), and with the Rhine forms the Insula Batavorum. See note on Bk. iv. ch. xv. (Map I., Af.)

N.

Nantuâtes, Bk. iv. ch. x. A Gallic tribe on the upper reaches of the Rhine. (Map I., Cg.)

Nervii, Bk. v. chs. xxiv., xxxviii., xxxix., xli., xlii., xlvi., lvi., lviii. A powerful Belgic tribe, holding the tribes round in dependence. Urged on by Ambiorix, they attacked Cicero in his winter camp. See Cicero. (Map I., Ae.)

O.

Oceanus, Bk. iv. chs. i., xxix. The North Sea.

P.

Padus, Bk. v. ch. xxiv. The river Po, in Cisalpine Gaul. (Map I., Di.)

Petrosidius, Lucius, Bk. v. ch. xxxvii. A brave standard-bearer who died fighting in the disaster of Sabinus's camp.

Pirustae, Bk. v. ch. i. See Illyricum.

Piso, Bk. iv. ch. xii. An Aquitanian prince in Cæsar's army. He died in a fight with the Uspetes and Teneteri, whilst going to his brother's rescue.

Plançus, Lucius Munatius, Bk. v. chs. xxiv., xxv. A legatus and close friend of Cæsar, who was placed by him in charge of one of the three legions wintering among the Bellovaci. His camp was probably at Champlien. On the murder of Tasgetius by the Carnutes, Cæsar transferred him to winter-quarters there. Subsequently he served under Cæsar in the Civil War, and after Cæsar's murder went as governor of Gaul, according to an arrangement made by Cæsar before his death. At this time he founded the colony of Lugdunum (Lyons). In 42 B.C. he was consul (Horace, Odes, iii. 14, 28). In the political struggles of the time he "trimmed" between Antony and Octavian, but finally threw in his lot with the latter, who on his proposal received the title of Augustus (27 B.C.).

Pleumoxii, Bk. v. ch. xxxviii. A Belgic tribe, clients of the Nervii. See Centrones. (Map I., Af.)

Pompeius, Cnaeus, (1) Bk. iv. ch. i. Consul with Crassus in 55 B.C.; the great Roman statesman and general. (See Introduction, pp. xv-xix.)

(2) Bk. v. ch. xxxvi. The interpreter whom Sabinus sent to negotiate with Ambiorix.

Portus Itius, Bk. v. chs. ii., v. (see note on Bk. iv. ch. xxi.) It was probably Boulogne, also called Gesoriacum, and subsequently Bononia. (Map I., Ad.)

Pullo (or Pulio), Titus, Bk. v. ch. xlv. A centurion (primipilaris), whose rivalry in valour with Lucius Vorenus, another centurion of the same rank, led to deeds of great heroism on the part of both during the siege of Cicero's camp by the Nervii.

R.

Remi, Bk. v. chs. iii., xxiv., liii., liv. A powerful tribe in the south of Belgium; like the Haedui, loyal to Caesar. The name survives in Rheims. (Map I., Bf.)

Roscius, Lucius, Bk. v. chs. xxiv., liii. One of Caesar's legati, who was placed in command of the winter camp at Sées amongst the Essuvii.

Rufus, Publius Sulpicius, Bk. iv. ch. xxii. A legatus of Caesar, left in charge of Portus Itius on his first invasion of Britain.

S.

Sabinus, Quintus Titurius, Bk. iv. chs. xxii., xxxviii.; Bk. v. chs. xxiv.-xxxvii. See Cotta.

Samarobriva, Bk. v. chs. xxiv., xlvii., liii. A town in the west of Belgium, now Amiens, on the Samara (Somme). Briva="bridge." Headquarters of Caesar and the legatus Trebonius in the winter of 54 B.C. (Map I., Be.)

Segontiaci, Bk. v. ch. xxi. A tribe in South Britain, probably Hampshire. (Map I., Ab.)

Segōvax, Bk. v. ch. xxii. See Cantium.

Senōnes, Bk. v. chs. liv., lvi. A powerful Gallic tribe on the Seine, SE. of Lutetia Parisiorum (Paris). In 54 B.C. they attempted to kill Cavarinus (q.v.), and joined the conspiracy of Indutiomarus. (Map I., Be.)

Sequāni, Bk. iv. ch. x. A Gallic tribe, capital Vesontio (Besançon), south of Vosegus Mons (Vosges). (Map I., Cg.)

Suebi, Bk. iv. chs. i., iii., iv., vii., xvi., xix. See Germani.

Sugambri, Bk. iv. chs. xvi., xviii. See Germani.

IMAGE EVALUATION
TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic
Sciences
Corporation

23 WEST MAIN STREET
WEBSTER, N.Y. 14580
(716) 872-4503

0
1.5 2.8
2.0 3.2
3.6 4.5
5.0 6.3
7.5 9.0
11.2 14.0
18.0 22.5

10
1.5 2.8
3.6 4.5
5.0 6.3
7.5 9.0
11.2 14.0
18.0 22.5

T.

Tamésis, Bk. v. ch. xviii. The River Thames, crossed by Cæsar, probably at Sanbury.

Tasgetius, Bk. v. chs. xxv., xxix. See Carnutes.

Taximagulus, Bk. v. ch. xxii. See Antium.

Tencteri, Bk. iv. chs. i., iv., xi., xv., xvi., xviii.; Bk. v. ch. lv. See Germani.

Trebonius, Caius, Bk. v. chs. xvii., xxiv. A legatus of Cæsar. He was surprised by the Britons in the invasion of 54 B.C., when in charge of three legions and the cavalry on a foraging expedition. He commanded the legion in winter-quarters at Samarobriua (Amiens).

Trevēri, Bk. iv. ch. x.; Bk. v. chs. ii.-iv., xxiv., liii. A Gallic tribe on the banks of the Mosella (Moselle); the name survives in Trier or Treves. See Cingetorix, Indutiomarus. (Map I., Bg.)

Tribōci or -es, Bk. iv. ch. x. A German tribe on the west bank of the Rhine, near Strasburg. (Map I., Bg.)

Trinovantes, Bk. v. chs. xx., xxii. A powerful British tribe in East Anglia, chief town Camulodūnum (Colchester). Their submission to Cæsar caused Cassivellaunus' rising to collapse. (Map I., Ad; Map II., Ab.)

U.

Ubii, Bk. iv. chs. iii., viii., xi., xvi., xix. See Germani.

Usipetes, Bk. iv. chs. i., iv., xi., xv., xvi., xviii. See Germani.

V.

Vacālus, Bk. iv. ch. x. The river Waal, which flows from the Rhine into the Mosa (Meuse). (Map I., Af.)

Vertico, Bk. v. chs. xlv., xlix. A Nervian who took refuge in Cicero's camp and assisted him in communicating with Cæsar.

Volusenus, Caius, Bk. iv. chs. xxi., xxiii. Sent by Cæsar with a man-of-war to gather information about Britain, on the eve of the first invasion.

Vorenius, Lucius, Bk. v. ch. xlv. See Pullo.

Vosēgus, Mons, Bk. iv. ch. x. A range in east of Gaul, the modern Vosges. (Map I., Bg.)

II. SCHEME OF SUBJUNCTIVE.

The subjunctive in Latin may be classified under two main heads, with subdivisions: (I.) its use in Principal clauses chiefly, forming a sentence by itself; (II.) its use in Subordinate clauses, with relatives and relative adverbs.

These may be subdivided—

I.

(a) Potential: veniam, "I would come"; venirem, "I would be coming"; venissem, "I would have come."

(b) Jussive: veniam (veniat), "let me (him) come"; venias, "come"; ne veneris, "do not come." This subj. may be used in semi-dependence: mando eas, "I bid you go."

(c) Optative: with utinam, veniam (venirem, venissem), "would that I may come (were now coming, had come)."

(d) Deliberative or Dubitative: veniam (venirem)? "am I (was I) to come?"

II.

(a) Final, end or purpose—

(1) ut, qui, quo (with comparatives).

(2) antequam, priusquam, dum, quoad, "until," when any idea of purpose is implied: e.g., manebis dum scias, "you will stay till you know." Also with quominus, quin, ne after verbs of preventing (when negative or interrogative): e.g., non te prohibebo quominus venias, "I will not prevent you from coming."

(b) Indirect command (oblique petition): rogo ut venias, "I ask you to come."

(c) Consecutive, result—

* (1) ut, qui: e.g., non sum is qui veniam, "I am not the man to come."

(2) quin after verbs of doubting (negated): non dubito quin faciat, "I have no doubt he will do it."

(d) With qui Restrictive (Generic), limiting the relative and involving the idea of class or character: sunt qui dicant, "there are some who (such as) say"; omnium quos cognoverim, "of all whom (such as) I know."

(e) Concessive: $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{cum} \\ \text{quamvis} \\ \text{qui} \end{array} \right\}$ sciret, "although he knew."

(f) Causal: $\left. \begin{array}{l} \text{cum} \\ \text{qui} \end{array} \right\}$ sciret, "since he knew." See also (g) 2.

(g) Suboblique—

(1) Merely a kind of label marking the verbs of relative and relative adverb clauses dependent on an indirect statement or question: e.g., dixit se quoniam ille vellet, venturum, "he said that he, since he wished, would come." This is the subj. of subordinate clauses in or. obl.

(2) Virtually oblique, with quod, quia, showing that the cause is the alleged, and not necessarily the real, one. A boy writing "lines" might say, haec scribo quod ignavus fuerim, "I am writing these because, as he said, I was idle." If he admitted he was idle, he would use the indicative.

(h) Indirect Question: rogo quis celsit, "I ask who is there."

(i) Conditional: in the protasis of some hypothetical clauses, si oboediam (oboedirem, oboedissem), "if I were to listen (were now listening, had listened)." The apodosis to these would be the potential subjunctive (see I. (a)).

(k) Iterative or Indefinite: ubi venirem, "whenever I came." This subj. is not used in Cicero, is rare in Caesar, but frequent in Livy and later writers.

III. LIST OF PHRASES AND IDIOMS OCCURRING IN THESE BOOKS,

Intended for learning by heart or as material for exercises.

I. MILITARY.

Under arms, in armis.

The science and practice of war, ratio atque usus belli.

Dismount, ex equis, ad pedes, desilire.

Fight on foot, pedibus proelium.

Retreat, se recipere, pedem referre, cedere; an unimpeded retreat, expeditus receptus.

Place garrisons, praesidia disponere.

Fight, vi, armis contendere, proelium, pugnare, dimicare.

A three days' march, tridui iter.

Surprise, inopinantes hostes opprimere.

Obtain supplies, rem frumentariam comparare.

Make war, bellum inferre, bello civitatem persequi bellum parare.
 Military occupation, armis possidere.

Conquer, superare, vincere.

Advance (on march), progredi, castra movere.

Precede the main body, agmen anteedere.

Get water, corn, forage, firewood, materials for fortification, aquandi, aquationis, frumentandi, pubulandi, lignationis, munitionis causa.

Armistice, seek an, diem indutiis petere.

Charge, impetum facere, se hostibus offerre.

Rout, perturbare, fundere ac fugare, in fugam conicere, praecipites agere.

Unhóse, deicere.

Put in command of, praeficere (dat.); be in command, praeesse.

Raids, incursiones.

Levy troops on a state, civitati milites imperare.

Winter-quarters, hiberna (neut. plur.)

Light infantry, legiones expeditae.

Make preparations for war, ad bellum res comparare.

To protect, praesidio (dat.) esse.

Stop the advance of, prohibere.

A strong position, locus et natura et opera munitus.

Civil war, bellum domesticum.

In three divisions, tripertito.

The supreme command, summa imperii bellique administrandi.

Hot engagement with, proelio acriter cum . . . configere.

Lose (men), amittere.

On guard, in statione.

Send relief, subsidio (dat.) mittere, cohortes submittere.

Halt, consistere.

Loose formation, rari magnisque intervalis.

Recover, se colligere.

Auxiliary troops, auxilia.

Draw up troops, copias instruere.

Sustain the charge, impetum sustinere, ferre.

Disband, dimittere.

Cut off, intercludere.

Receive wounds, vulnera accipere.

Quit the field, proelio, acie, excedere.

Spur on a horse, equum incitare.

Give battle, proelium, committere, facere.

- A triple formation, aciem triplicem instituere.
 Pursue, consectari, consequi.
 In the rear, post tergum.
 Throw away arms, arma abicere.
 Fire, tela conicere.
 Artillery, fuodi, sagittae, tormenta, catapultae, ballistae.
 Stubbornly contested battle, pugnatum est ab utrisque acriter.
 Keep the ranks, ordines servare.
 Follow the flag, signa subsequi.
 Open flank, latus apertum, nudatum.
 Wavering ranks, incerti ordines.
 Squadrons, turmae.
- Collect a large force of infantry and cavalry, multitudinem peditatus, equitatusque cogere.
 Fly, fugere, terga vertere, se fugae manulare.
 Surrender arms, arma ponere, disponere.
 Surrender, se dedere.
 Storm, oppugnare.
 Take in flight, in fuga comprehendere.
 Attack (camp), adoriri, (army) impetum facere in . . . , (person) petere, (town) oppugnare.
 Make a sally, eruptionem facere.
 Treat of surrender, de deditioe mittere, agere.
 Enrol, conscribere.
 A rising, tumultus; revolt, defectio.
 In great force, magna manu.
- Inflict wounds, vulnera inferre.
 Post an ambush, insidias conlocare.
 Column, agmen.
 Form a hollow square, in orbem consistere.
 Receive fire on an exposed flank, ab latere aperto tela recipere.
 Raise a cry of victory, victoriam conclamare, ululatum tollere.
 Battlements and breastworks, pinnae loricaeque.
 Iron tools, ferramenta.
 Bullets, glandes.
 Flushed with victory, victoria recenti elati.
 Intercept a despatch, epistolam, litteras intercipere.
 Send out scouts, exploratores dimittere.

II. NAVAL.

- Seize ships, naves occupare.
 Man-of-war, navis longa.
 Form a fleet, classem efficere, naves parare, naves aedificare, naves instruere.
 Guard the harbour, portum tenere.
 Transports, naves onerariæ, vectoriæ.
 Weatherbound, vento teneri.
 Weigh anchor, (ancoram) solvere, (ancoram) subferre.
 Embark, naves conscendere.
 Reach shore, attingere.
 Disembark (trans.) exponere, (intrans.) (navibus) egredi.
 At anchor, in ancoris.
 Row, remis incitare, remis agere.

 On dry land, in arido.
 Keep a course, cursum tenere.
 Light wind, lenis ventus.
 Cast anchor, ancoram incere.
 Put out to sea, in altum provehi.
 Beach, subducere.
 Launch, deducere.
 Tackle, armamenta.
 Wreck, alijere.
 Repair ships, naves reficere.
 Make seaworthy, efficere ut navigari commode possit.
 Make (i.e., reach) the port, island, portum, insulam capere.

 Changes of tides, æstum commutationes.
 Rowing vessels, naves actuariæ.
 Equip (ships), armare (tackle, armamenta).
 Crossing, traiectus.
 Obtain fair weather, idoneam tempestatem navisci.
 Wind dropping, vento intermisso.
 Leave on the left, sub sinistra relinquere.
 Equal the speed of men-of-war, longarum navium cursum ætæquare.
 Sandy or pebbly beach, litus molle.
 Held at anchor, ad ancoram deliyatae.
 Storm arose, coorta est tempesta.
 Cast on the shore, in litore victæ.
 Prevented from sailing, a navigatione exclusi.

INDEX (ENGLISH).

The references are to chapters in the Notes.

- ablative—
absolute, Bk. iv. chs. i. 21, x. 9, xii. 4, xiii. 13, xviii. 7, xxii. 10, xxviii. 10.
description, Bk. iv. ch. i. 19; Bk. v. ch. iv. 14. instrument or means, Bk. iv. chs. i. 15, ii. 7, x. 10, xxxii. 18.
measure, Bk. iv. ch. xxx. 5; Bk. v. ch. xiii. 6. respect, Bk. v. chs. v. 6, xlix. 9. separation, Bk. iv. chs. i. 6, xxx. 7.
accompaniment (without cum), Bk. iv. ch. xxiv. 3. accuracy of Latin, Bk. iv. chs. i. 4, vi. 5, xii. 11, xvii. 14, xviii. 10, xxiii. 10, xxvi. 7, xxxiv. 13.
accusative—
adverbial, Bk. iv. chs. i. 15, iii. 8. cognate, Bk. v. ch. vii. 4. duration. See Time.
adjective as predicate, Bk. iv. ch. iii. 13.
adverb as adjective, Bk. v. chs. iii. 15, xl. 16.
aoist, Bk. iv. ca. iv. 2; Bk. v. ch. xv. 3.
apodosis omitted, Bk. v. ch. xl. 2. assizes, Bk. v. ch. i. 13.
asyndeton, Bk. iv. chs. xii. 16, xvi. 16, xxxii. 3; Bk. v. chs. xx. 5, xxvii. 23.
attraction, Bk. iv. chs. i. 22, xviii. 1, xxxviii. 4; Bk. v. chs. ii. 5, xlix. 2. brachylogy, Bk. iv. ch. xxii. 9. bridge, Bk. iv. ch. xvii.
Britain—
early inhabitants of, Bk. v. ch. xii. 1.
shape of, Bk. v. ch. xiii. 4.
British tribes of same name as Gallic, Bk. iv. ch. xxi. 16; Bk. v. ch. xii. 3.
Caesar. See Intro. xiv-xxi. alleged harshness, Bk. iv. chs. xiv. 13, xv. 12; Bk. v. ch. vii. 1. belief in fortune, Bk. iv. ch. xxvi. 15; Bk. v. ch. xxiii. 9. estimate of his achievements, Bk. iv. ch. xxxviii. 13.
love of adventure, Bk. iv. ch. xx. 14.
Celtic words, Bk. iv. ch. ii. 3. chariot, British, Bk. iv. ch. xxiv.; Bk. v. ch. xvi.
charioteers, Bk. iv. ch. xxxiii.
conditional clauses, Bk. v. ch. xxix. 7. council, Bk. v. chs. ii. 14, xxiv. 1, xxviii. 6.
Coway Stakes, Bk. v. ch. xviii. 2. currents, Bk. v. ch. i. 8. dative—
agent, Bk. iv. ch. xxiv. 6.
reference, Bk. v. ch. xxxv. 12.
verbs governing, Bk. iv. ch. iv. 2.
days, length of, Bk. v. ch. xiii. 13.

- engines, Bk. iv. ch. xxv. 5.
- Gauls, character of, Bk. iv. ch. v. 4.
- genitive—
 definition, Bk. iv. chs. xi. 9, xii. 2, xiii. 10, xiv. 5.
 description, Bk. iv. ch. xvii. 27;
 Bk. v. chs. vi. 3, viii. 19, xi. 8.
 objective, Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 19.
 partition, Bk. iv. chs. i. 13, xiii. 6, xxxii. 8.
 possession as predicate, Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 5.
 with adjective, Bk. v. ch. vi. 11.
- gerund and gerundive, Bk. iv. chs. xi. 6, xiii. 14, xxii. 20, xxix. 4.
- gold in Britain, Bk. v. ch. xii. 8.
- Greek letters, Bk. v. ch. xlviii. 7.
- hendiadys, Bk. v. ch. xix. 13.
- Iberians, Bk. v. ch. xii. 1.
- idiom, English and Latin, Bk. iv. chs. vi. 5, x. 8, xi. 7, xii. 1, xiii. 13, xv. 8, xx. 6, xxiv. 2, xxvii. 4, xxxviii. 28, xxxi. 2, xxxii. 16; Bk. v. chs. ix. 5, xxiv. 20, xxxix. 2, xlv. 28.
- infinitive—
 pres. for fut., Bk. iv. ch. xxi. 10;
 Bk. v. ch. xxvi. 13.
 protative, Bk. iv. chs. iv. 11, xvi. 24; Bk. v. ch. xxxiii. 19.
- Ireland, Bk. v. ch. xiii. 6.
- iterative tenses, Bk. iv. chs. i. 9, xvii. 11, xxvi. 4, 10, xxxiii. 3.
- Kent, civilisation of, Bk. v. ch. xiv. 1.
- Latin, accuracy of. See Accuracy.
- legion, number of, Bk. v. ch. xlix. 16. See also Intro. xxii.
- legionaries as engineers, Bk. v. ch. xi. 5.
- locative, Bk. iv. ch. xxi. 16; Bk. v. chs. iv. 10, vi. 11.
- middle use of passive, Bk. iv. chs. xvii. 5, xxxii. 10.
- mile, Roman, Bk. v. ch. ii. 10.
- order, emphatic, Bk. iv. chs. i. 20, ii. 6, v. 2, vii. 10, xi. 6, xxiv. 13, xxv. 12, xxxi. 9; Bk. v. chs. xvii. 13, xliii. 5, xlv. 18.
- participle, past as present, Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 12; Bk. v. chs. vii. 17, ix. 5.
- people, name of, for place, Bk. iv. ch. x. 1.
- pleonasm, Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 11; Bk. v. ch. x. 1.
- prepositional phrase, Bk. iv. chs. xvi. 15, xxi. 5; Bk. v. chs. v. 8, xl. 14, liv. 6.
- pronoun, reflexive, Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 11.
- quaestor, Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 9. See also Intro. xxxiii.
- questions in Or. Obl., Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 15; Bk. v. chs. xxviii. 15, xxix. 12.
- relative, connective, Bk. iv. chs. iv. 4, xiii. 16, xiv. 7.
- repetition, Bk. iv. chs. vii. 1, xix. 13, xxxii. 6; Bk. v. ch. vi. 3.
- sequence, Bk. iv. chs. i. 22, viii. 3, xi. 16; Bk. v. chs. i. 4, xxvii. 10, xl. 1, xlvi. 7.
- Spain, position of, Bk. v. ch. xiii. 5.
- speeches, Bk. iv. ch. viii. 1.
- subjunctive (only a few instances of each given)— attracted, Bk. iv. ch. xvii. 21.
 indirect question, Bk. iv. chs. v. 5, xx. 12.
 jussive, Bk. iv. ch. xi. 14; (semi-dependent), Bk. iv. chs. xvi. 12, xxi. 17.
- qui causal, Bk. iv. chs. xiii. 2, xxi. 20; Bk. v. chs. iv. 11, xxxiii. 1.
- consecutive, Bk. iv. ch. xxxiv. 9.
- concessive, Bk. v. ch. iv. 13.
- final, Bk. iv. chs. xvi. 11, xxi. 10.
- generic (restrictive), Bk. iv. chs. xvi. 11, xix. 8, xxi. 17.
- suboblique, Bk. iv. chs. viii. 7, xi. 5.
- sunt qui*, Bk. v. ch. x. 11.
- virtually oblique (alleged cause),

- Bk. iv. chs. ii. 2, xiii. 14, xvi. 19, xxvii. 10; Bk. v. ch. vi. 12 (irregular).
 with "until," Bk. iv. chs. iv. 17, xii. 11, xiii. 4. supine in -um, Bk. iv. ch. xxxii. 1.
 " in -a, Bk. iv. ch. xxx. 6.
- tides, Bk. iv. ch. xxix. 2; Bk. v. ch. viii. 6.
- time—
 duration, Bk. iv. chs. i. 5, iv. 2.
 "when," Bk. iv. ch. 1. 1.
 "within which," Bk. iv. chs. iv. 2, xviii. 1; Bk. v. ch. xxvi. 1.
- Roman reckoning, Bk. iv. chs. xxiii. 2, 4, xxviii. 1.
- town, British, Bk. v. ch. xxi. 6.
- trees, British, Bk. v. ch. xii. 13.
- verbal substantive, Bk. iv. ch. iv. 13.
- verbs, two, expressing one idea, Bk. v. ch. xxvii. 23.
- wives, community of, Bk. v. ch. xiv. 8.
- zeugma, Bk. v. ch. xlii. 6.

ning, Bk. iv. chs.
xxviii. 1.
Bk. v. ch. xxi. 6.
Bk. v. ch. xii. 13.
ative, Bk. iv. ch.
essing one idea, Bk.
23.
ty of, Bk. v. ch.
ch. xlii. 6.

INDEX (LATIN).

The references are to the Notes.

- accedit, Bk. iv. ch. xvi. 6; Bk. v.
ch. xvi. 10.
alterae (dat. fem.), Bk. v. ch. xxvii.
19.
amicus populi Romani, Bk. iv. ch.
xii. 14.
annotinus, Bk. v. ch. viii. 18.
atque (ac), Bk. iv. ch. xliii. 14.
capere, Bk. iv. chs. xxvi. 14, xxxvi. 8. captus, Bk. iv. ch. iii. 6.
causa, Bk. iv. ch. i. 4.
coepi, Bk. iv. chs. xiv. 13, xviii. 1. concilium, Bk. v. chs. ii. 14, xxiv. 1.
conventus, Bk. v. ch. i. 13.
Corus, Bk. v. ch. vii. 4. custodiae, Bk. iv. ch. iv. 11.
dissimulare, Bk. iv. ch. vi. 9.
equitatus, Bk. iv. ch. iv. 13.
fibulae, Bk. iv. ch. xvii. 17.
fusilis, Bk. v. ch. xliiii. 1.
hora, Bk. iv. ch. xxiii. 4.
ignoscere, Bk. iv. ch. xxvii. 10.
in (distributive), Bk. iv. ch. i. 11.
lepus, Bk. v. ch. xii. 13.
litum aestimare, Bk. v. ch. i. 24.
litterae publicae, Bk. v. ch. xlvii. 4.
modo, Bk. iv. chs. xvi. 19, xvii. 11.
monere orare, Bk. v. ch. xxvii. 23.
murales pili, Bk. v. ch. xl. 12.
" fulces, Bk. v. ch. xlii. 10.
necesse, Bk. iv. ch. v. 10.
neque (nec), Bk. iv. chs. i. 21, x. 3, xxix. 11.
noster, Bk. iv. chs. xii. 8, xxii. 3. occupationes, Bk. iv. chs. xvi. 19, xxii. 9.
oppidum, Bk. v. ch. xxi. 6.
orbis, Bk. iv. ch. xxxvii. 5. portum capere, Bk. iv. ch. xxxvi.
8.
portum tenere, Bk. iv. ch. xxii.
22.
possidere, Bk. iv. ch. vii. 11.
post diem quartum quam, Bk. iv.
ch. xxviii. 1.
primi ordines, Bk. v. ch. xxx. 2.
See Intro. xxiv.
primum pilum ducere, Bk. v. ch.
xxxv. See Intro. xxvi.
prohibeo, Bk. iv. ch. iv. 9.
properare, Bk. v. ch. xxxiii. 19.
quam omitted, Bk. iv. chs. x. 3, xi.
1, xii. 2.
quin, Bk. iv. ch. vii. 5.
quisquam, Bk. iv. ch. ii. 2.
quisque, Bk. v. ch. viii. 19.
quisvis, Bk. iv. ch. ii. 11.
quotannis, Bk. iv. ch. i. 9.
rebellio, Bk. iv. ch. xxx. 6.

res, Bk. iv. chs. i. 16, xxx. 7.
reverti, Bk. iv. ch. iv. 12.

si quis, Bk. iv. ch. xiii. 16.
sic uti, Bk. v. ch. xvii. 6. simulare, Bk. iv. ch. iv. 11.
subductio, Bk. v. ch. i. 6.
sublicae, Bk. iv. ch. xvii. 23.

testudo, Bk. v. chs. ix. 16, xlii. 10.
tormenta, Bk. iv. ch. xxv. 5. turres, Bk. v. ch. xl. 4.

ut, Bk. iv. ch. v. 4.

vigiliae, Bk. iv. ch. xxiii. 2.

v. chs. ix, 16, xlii, 10.
iv. ch. xxv, 6.
ch. xi, 4.

v. 4.

v. ch. xxlii, 2.

IMITATIVE EXERCISES ON CÆSAR.

BOOK IV.

CHAPTERS I TO XXV.

CHAP. I.

(1) In the following year a vast throng of Germans crossed the Rhine, and began to harass the tribes of Gaul. (2) These tribes are all very warlike, and are said to make yearly foreign expeditions. (3) Some go out to fight, the rest remain at home to cultivate the fields. (4) ¹They are lawless and undisciplined, but of great size and ²strength. (5) Although they ³practice agriculture, their custom is to live chiefly on milk and meat. (6) They are so strong that they leave much of their body unclathed, and even in the coldest winter go bathing in the Rhine.

¹Say "although they are," and omit "but." ²Say "strength of body."
Latin loves to be exact. ³Utor.

CHAP. II.

(1) They do not use imported horses, but even in war those of their own country. (2) By daily practice, the Gauls train their horses to remain absolutely still. (3) Among the Germans, to import wine is considered disgraceful, and they do not allow the merchants to sell it. (4) Leaping from his horse, of which he was very fond, Caesar ¹began to fight on foot. (5) A few Germans attacked our baggage-animals, but did not venture to remain ²when they saw our cavalry. (6) So lazy was he that he sold all his ³spoils to procure better trappings for his horse.

¹Use the imperfect tense of the verb "to fight." ²Ablative absolute.
³Use a relative clause: Latin is weak in nouns, but strong in verbs.

CHAP. III.

(1) The Ubii are the most cultured of these tribes, and the most accustomed to ¹receiving merchants. (2) Their long struggle with the Suebi has made this tribe much weaker. (3) ²Although the Suebi could not make them tributary, they drove them out of part of their territory. (4) A great number of states dwell as far as possible from the Rhine, ³to avoid the coming of Gallic merchants. (5) On one side of this river the fields lie waste; the Ubii are said to dwell on the other. (6) They think it the height of glory that all the territory of this people, ⁴once so flourishing, now lies deserted. (7) The Gauls, though the more civilized, are not a match for the Germans in war.

¹Use the gerundive in agreement with "merchants." ²Quum + subjunctive. ³Ut + subjunctive to express purpose. ⁴Olim.

CHAPS. I TO III.

The Germans are men of immense size and great bodily strength. Yet in war they do not fight as infantry, but employ horses. These they do not import from France, although they border upon the Rhine, but use entirely those produced in their own country. ¹Indeed, though the coming of merchants is allowed, it is contrary to the wishes of many, who think that ²the more frequently merchants come to any people, the more they become effeminate. ³Wine is imported and many things which ⁴tend to make men lazy and wicked.

Their diet is largely composed of fish, especially of ⁵such animals as they take while hunting. In this exercise they have trained their horses so well that they will remain without stirring, whenever it is necessary.

¹ Atque. ² Say "by how much the more frequently — by so much the more they become, etc." ³ Put this sentence in Oratio Obliqua, as it expresses the opinion not of the writer, but of the Germans. ⁴ Tend to make = efficio. Use subjunctive. ⁵ Such = is, as = qui.

CHAP. IV.

(1) For three years the horde which we have already mentioned as dwelling ¹ on the far side of the Rhine, proved a match for their enemies. (2) ² They were finally expelled by the Suebi, and wandered for many years in all parts of Germany. (3) ³ Coming to the Rhine, ⁴ they surprised and slew the garrisons which the Menapii had set, but were not able to seize their ships. (4) ⁵ Unable to cross, they made a feigned retreat to their own villages. (5) Then their cavalry ⁶ made a three days march in a single night, ⁷ captured the scouts of the enemy, and crushed all on both sides of the river. (6) The Menapii were so terrified by ⁸ this disaster, that they abandoned all their villages.

¹ Trans + accusative. ² Use the perf. passive participle, and omit the following "and." ³ Quum + pluperf. subjunctive. ⁴ Ablative absolute: "The surprised garrisons having been slain." ⁵ Quum + imperf. subjunctive. ⁶ Ablative absolute. ⁷ Use relative. ⁸ Clades (is), fem.

CHAPS. II TO IV.

Through lack of ships our men were unable, ¹ either by force ² or by stealth, to effect a landing. They would have returned from the banks of the river to those villages where the baggage-animals had remained, ³ had not Caesar been informed by a scout that a number of merchants, who had secretly been importing wine into the country, were willing to sell the ships which they had been using. On the arrival of ⁴ these ⁵ he crossed the river, and sent the cavalry to drive out all the tribes which ⁶ had not returned to their own territories. ⁴This they did in a few days, and informed Caesar that the whole bank had been deserted.

¹ Neque — neque. ² Nisi. ³ Relative. ⁴ Ablative absolute.
⁵ Subjunctive.

CHAP. V.

(1) Caesar was informed that the Gauls had repented of the designs on which ¹they had entered. (2) He compelled the merchants to declare, much against their will, what they had heard concerning this matter. (3) He ²feared the fickleness of the Gauls, and had decided that nothing must be entrusted to them. (4) It is the custom of this people to ask all travellers their ³views on any subject. (5) They are, therefore, the prey of vague rumours, which are often concocted with a view to suiting their wishes. (6) The common people are ^{so} changeable in their opinions that they are in a state of perpetual desire for a revolution.

¹ Subjunctive. ² Participle of "vereor," and omit the following "and."
³ Relative clause "what they think."

CHAPS. III TO V.

Caesar was informed that the custom of the Suebi was to drive from their boundaries all tribes who approached them. ¹On one side the land lay waste for one hundred miles; the Ubii, ²their neighbours on the other, ³once a large and prosperous state, had been wandering through Germany for many years, ⁴while those ²beyond the Ubii were in like case. Thus a great number of warlike tribes were wandering along the banks of the Rhine; they could not, if they wished, return to their own domains; so great a multitude could not support itself on the small resources which they had seized from the Gauls; they were therefore in the greatest want.

¹ Put what follows in Oratio Obliqua. ² Use a relative clause. ³ Olim.
⁴ Et.

CHAP. VI.

(1) ¹After waging a formidable war against several German states, Caesar set out earlier than usual toward the Rhine. (2) ¹He confirmed the ²hopes of the Germans, ³ordered them to supply cavalry, and ¹when this had been accomplished, sent an embassy to the Treveri. (3) When this ⁴had arrived, it found that Caesar's suspicions were correct, ⁵and that the Germans had been induced to extend their wanderings over a wider area. (4) Caesar therefore thought that he must prepare cavalry, and ordered the Treveri to furnish it. (5) On the arrival of their chiefs, the Treveri resolved not to perform his ⁶demands. (6) Summoning their clients, they resolved to wage war upon those states which had abandoned the Rhine.

¹ Ablative absolute. ² Singular. ³ Ablative absolute; "Cavalry having been ordered from them." ⁴ Subjunctive. ⁵ Omit "and that," and use Oratio Obliqua. ⁶ Relative clause.

CHAP. VII.

(1) With a chosen band of cavalry he marched for four days against the Germans. (2) Ambassadors came from them, ¹saying that they had prepared supplies of corn, and would not hesitate to oppose him. (3) It was their custom, ²they said, to be first in attack, and not to yield to the very gods themselves. (4) If ³you wish our gratitude, ²said they, either give us the lands of our ancestors, or allow us to conquer those on which we are waging war. (5) If you ⁴provoke us, we will not be your friends. (6) We came against our will, we have gained this territory by our valour; drive us out, if you can.

¹ Qui + imperfect subjunctive. ² Put this verb first, and the rest of the sentence in Oratio Obliqua. ³ Being in Oratio Obliqua, this will become third person. ⁴ Future perfect indicative.

CHAPS. IV TO VII.

The Gauls are a fickle people, who often enter upon a course of action moved by vague reports. Knowing that this was their habit, Caesar compelled those chiefs whose villages he had seized to tell him ¹their intentions. Finding that his suspicions were correct, and that the Germans had been invited ²to crush his guards and then to cross the river, he judged it best to set out to the army. Having arrived there, he concealed his knowledge and ordered the soldiers to prepare corn. When this had been done he made a secret march, and fell upon the unsuspecting enemy. Before that part of them which he had attacked could make any resistance, he killed them all. The rest of this great body returned home, ³saying that they yielded to the Romans and to them alone.

¹ Use a relative clause. ² "His guards having been crushed." ³ "His verbis."

CHAP. VIII.

(1) Ambassadors came ¹to complain of the injuries ²which the Suebi had inflicted. (2) The conclusion of his speech was that they ³might remain in Gaul if they protected their territories. (3) There are no fields lying waste for those who ⁴cannot protect their own. (4) You may, if you wish, settle in the territory which has asked aid of us. (5) The numbers of the Suebi are so great that there can be no peace between us and them. (6) If your chiefs had laid these commands upon them, they would not have settled among the Ubii.

¹ Qui + subjunctive. ² Simply the objective genitive "Sueborum."
³ Licere. ⁴ Subjunctive.

CHAPS. V TO VIII.

Knowing that the Gauls, and especially the common people, are always desirous of a revolution, Caesar replied to their embassy: ¹Go back to those who sent you, and tell them that there is not a single man upon this earth whom I cannot conquer. Keep the land of your ancestors, if you will; if you settle in the territory of the clients of the Roman people, there can be no peace between us and you. To ²this the Gauls replied: ¹We were expelled from our homes, and came to you seeking aid; land lies waste which we can protect; we can be useful friends to you; but if you harass us unprovoked, we will not yield: we do not wish to beg for mercy; earlier than you suspect, a great multitude is coming to aid us.

¹ In Latin this speech would almost certainly be put in Oratio Obliqua.

² Relative plural.

CHAP. IX.

(1) The ambassadors said that they were awaiting a large part of their cavalry. (2) ¹These, they said, had been sent across the Meuse, ²to prevent the enemy from plundering their camp. (3) The ambassadors thought that ¹they intended to return after two days. (4) But Caesar ³discovered that they were ⁴really sent to announce his coming. (5) After discussing everything, they asked Caesar not to send his men any nearer to the camp to plunder. (6) If we cannot gain even this request, we must interpose delay.

¹ Relative. ² Say simply "lest their enemies might plunder."
³ Cognoverat. ⁴ Re vera.

CHAP. VII TO IX.

Ambassadors came from the Germans and the Gauls, though they knew that there could be no ¹real friendship between Caesar and themselves. ²The former said that they would drive out all who attacked them, but that, while they would not yield even to the Romans, they would allow them to retain possession of all the territory across the Meuse which they were now holding. In reply Caesar asked them to return in four days time. The Gauls, ³whose object was to protect their country against all ⁴invaders, ⁵sought to make Caesar their ally against the Germans by complaining bitterly of the injuries which these had done them, and by ⁶making long speeches about the friendship between their ancestors and the Roman people.

¹ Verus. ² Illi. ³ "Who wished." ⁴ Omit "invaders." ⁵ "Complained many things in order that they might obtain aid from Caesar." ⁶ Multa loquor = I make a long speech.

CHAP. IX AND X.

(1) ¹Rising in the mountains called the Alps, this river flows swiftly through many states. (2) It flows into the ocean by many large mouths, which are called ²by various names. (3) These form many islands, the inhabitants of all of which are barbarians. (4) Their sole food is said to consist of fish and eggs, which they plunder from the birds. (5) These tribes, who are considered the most savage of all Gaul, sent many ambassadors to Caesar, ³asking him to remain at a great distance from their island. (6) ⁴Caesar, who had ascertained their barbarism and savagery, granted their request.

¹ Say "this river rises and flows." Latin suffers greatly from the lack of a present participle. ² Varie. ³ Qui + imperfect subjunctive. ⁴ "Which thing they obtained from Caesar."

CHAP. XI.

- (1) Meeting the ambassadors in the way, Caesar forbade them to come any nearer. (2) They earnestly implored him not to advance any nearer on that or on the next day. (3) Unable to obtain this request, they asked him to send word to the cavalry to return to the main body. (4) These they said, were harassing them, and preventing them from obtaining water. (5) I will give you, replied Caesar, three days to ask the Ubii what are their demands. (6) Return, said he, in as large numbers as possible, in order to tell me the terms which they propose.

¹ Say "commanded them not." Imperavit ne + subjunctive. ² "Which when they were not able to obtain." ³ Oratio Obliqua. ⁴ "To whom Caesar replied that he, etc. ⁵ Volo.

CHAPS. VIII TO XI.

The inhabitants of all the countries through which the Rhine flows sent ambassadors earnestly imploring Caesar not to advance into their territories. Even the inhabitants of the islands at the mouth of the Rhine asked his permission to send their chiefs to him. Caesar, especially as he was awaiting his cavalry, which had not returned from a plundering expedition among the Treveri, pledged himself to this. Nevertheless, he did not ask but commanded them to accept the terms which he proposed, and to send a large part of their cavalry to aid him. Though he knew that there could be no true friendship between himself and these barbarians, he did not wish to provoke them, lest he might not be able to keep them away from the territory lying between the rivers.

¹ Relative clause. ² Asked that they might send. ³ Minime tamen petivit. ⁴ Say "which is."

CHAP. XII.

(1) As soon as their cavalry had returned, they made a fierce attack and put to flight our unsuspecting soldiers. (2) It is the custom of this nation in battle to leap to the ground, and stab the horses from beneath. (3) In this battle ¹they killed many, ¹wounded more, and put the rest to flight. (4) All our men of highest birth, though they resisted bravely, were killed ²in the attempt to aid their friends. (5) Two brothers, who had been given by our senate the title of friends of the Roman people, were cut off by the enemy and fell covered with wounds. (6) We therefore made a truce, and departed, in order that the terrified cavalry might not again be routed.

¹ Ablative absolute. ² Sa; "while they are aiding."

CHAPS. XI AND XII.

When at a distance from the enemy of not more than four miles, Caesar heard from those who had gone on ahead to forage, that the cavalry of the enemy, to the number of five thousand, had, ¹in defiance of the truce, crossed the Meuse, charged, and driven our men into flight. This was a legion which he had sent among the Ubii, and which, having completed all its ²business, was now returning without fear of any attack. On hearing this, Caesar sent word to the Germans that ³since they had again ⁴wantonly attacked the forces of the Roman people, he would at once ⁵begin ⁶to carry out the plan upon which they had so earnestly requested him not ⁶to enter. Let them not request him to hold back his soldiers from the battle; they had slain men whom the Roman people had called friends, whom it had already aided. It was his custom not to cease from fighting ⁷until he had either put to flight or slain all who would not ⁸abide by their oaths.

¹ Contra. ² res (in plural). ³ Quum + pluperfect subjunctive. ⁴ I wantonly attack = lacesso. ⁵ Express "would begin to carry out" by the Future Infinitive of the verb. ⁶ Utor. ⁷ Priusquam. ⁸ Jurejurando teneor = I abide by an oath.

CHAP. XIII.

(1) After taking counsel with his lieutenants, Caesar felt that the affair had fallen out very fortunately. (2) It would be the height of folly to wait till the return of the forces with which the enemy ¹intend to join battle. (3) The enemy have already terrified the Gauls in one battle; we must give them no time for increasing their influence among them. (4) In the morning, therefore, he led out all his forces, ²feeling that not a day must elapse. (5) He kept in the camp the ambassadors, who with German ^{crat}, had come ³to make a lying justification. (6) The cavalry were ordered to bring up the rear, since he knew the Gallic fickleness and feared treachery.

¹ Intend to join = future participle. ² Quum + subjunctive. ³ Me fallendo purgo = I make a lying justification.

CHAPS. XII AND XIII.

Caesar felt that he must bring help to people who had been called friends by the Roman senate, and of whom many had fallen in the recent battle, fighting with the greatest bravery. Covered with wounds their chiefs had still urged their steeds against the foe, and been killed, cut off from all who ¹might have borne them aid. He therefore ordered our men to rejoice that their friends had fallen after so brave a resistance, and that now they knew how great craft and treachery the Germans ²were capable of using. "They are," said he, "advancing in great crowds. Do not fear their numbers. To-morrow morning we give battle. They asked for peace and then of their own accord attacked us. Fight bravely and do not cease from the battle until these men who have employed treachery against us, fall before the eyes of the Gauls whom they have deceived."

¹ Qui potuissent, etc. ² Uterentur, subjunctive in an indirect question.

CHAP. XIV.

(1) Will it be better to take up arms and join battle, or to flee to the Rhine with our wives and children? (2) The Germans drew up their army in line of battle and endeavoured to defend the camp against our men. (3) After defending the camp for a little while, they fell into such confusion that no plan could be formed. (4) Our men, roused by the battle, rushed into the camp with a great din, ¹before Caesar could perceive what was going on. (5) ²So quick was our rush that the Germans in great fear ³began to flee in their waggons. (6) Their wives and children, who had left home with them, began to ⁴flee for safety in all directions.

¹ Priusquam. ² Say. "our men rushed with such speed." ³ Imperfect Subjunctive. ⁴ "Began to seek (imperfect) safety in flight."

CHAP. XV.

(1) Hearing the shouts of the Gauls, the Germans threw down their arms in such fear that ¹not even one remained to harass our troops. (2) At the junction of the two rivers, with every man wounded, and overwhelmed by the weapons of our soldiers, they rushed into the stream. (3) Our men ²went on slaying them till Caesar granted their lives to the very few who were left. (4) Our men returned to the camp, ³overcome with great weariness, since in one day they had slain 430,000 of the enemy without losing a man. (5) Those of the enemy who had fallen in the camp were thrown, ⁴some into the Meuse, ⁴some into the Rhine. (6) He allowed the soldiers to leave in the river those who had been drowned, of whom the number was very great.

¹ Ne unus quidem. ² Imperfect. ³ Say, "with great weariness of body," ⁴ Alii.

CHAPS. XIII to XV.

It was announced to Caesar that the Germans had ¹not only been plundering the lands of the Gauls, ¹but also terrifying them with many tortures. Thinking that the time for granting conditions of peace was already past, and that an aggressive war must be waged, Caesar did not await ²the return of his cavalry, but set out with the troops which he had with him. The Germans, with their wives and children, were rejoicing over the truce which they had obtained after the recent battle, and had no thought of our swift and sudden coming. No time was given them to take up arms; in the very place where they had hurled the Gauls into the Rhine they were themselves overwhelmed. After a brief resistance they fled in all directions, followed by our cavalry, which ³came up in the nick of time.

¹ Non modo . . . sed etiam. ² Say "till the cavalry had returned."
³ Revertor.

CHAP. XVI.

(1) Caesar resolved to demand from the Sugambri those fugitives who had crossed the Rhine, and who ¹refused to surrender. (2) He did not think that he could have a juster cause for crossing this river ²than the determination to drive away those who had, ³unprovoked, made war on him. (3) Another cause was his desire to give aid to the Ubii, and confidence for the future. (4) His defeat of the Germans in this latest battle had carried the Roman name to their furthest borders. (5) The Germans, who had been coming across the Rhine, now feared for their own territory. (6) He thought that if he dared to cross the river, the prestige of the Roman name would aid the Ubii, ⁴even without a battle.

¹ Nolo. ² "than that he might drive away." ³ Ultra. ⁴ Nullo proelio facto.

CHAPS. XIV TO XVI.

The Ubii promised to send an ample supply of ships with which ¹to cross the Rhine. Caesar deliberated whether he dared lead his army among tribes so remote, ²especially as he knew that the Ubii were themselves hard pressed by their enemies, who might crush those whom he left behind, capture the ships, and prevent his return. But the prestige of the Roman people was so great, now that he had defeated those who had attacked Gaul, that he determined to cross. There was added that he wished to see what was being done among them, and to regain the military standards which they had captured, and which they ³offered to surrender if he would come ⁴in person to demand them. He therefore demanded from those ⁵on this side of the river liberty to forage until he reached it.

¹ Subjunctive. ² Praesertim. ³ Volo. ⁴ Ipse. ⁵ Cis.

CHAP. XVIII.

(1) Within ten days of the coming of the ambassadors, the bridge was begun. (2) Timber was collected and the whole work was brought to a successful conclusion. (3) Leaving behind the ambassadors, who had asked him not ¹to begin the bridge, he led the army across. (4) If the Sugambri had asked for peace, they would not now be ²in the seclusion of the woods. (5) They have left their country on the advice of the Teneteri, and are hiding among their friends. (6) The guard of the bridge, exhorted by many German states, ordered the hostages to carry away all their ³goods.

¹ Say "not to begin to make the bridge." ² "In seclusion and in the woods." This is a Latin figure of speech called Hendiadys. ³ Omnia sua. Omit "goods."

CHAPS. XVI AND XVII.

Many states thought that it was unjust for Caesar to build a bridge, since he had promised the Germans ¹after the repulse of Ariovistus, that the Rhine should be the boundary of the Roman Empire. Caesar wished, however, not ²the surrender of the inhabitants of this territory, but to bring aid to the Ubii, who were hard pressed. State affairs had been finished, and he considered that the Roman name, which had already crossed the Meuse, should come to the ears of the furthest nations of Germany. When the bridge was ³actually begun the Sugambri prepared to leave their territory and to hide among the woods. Caesar, however, promised them terms of peace, ⁴on condition that they send him hostages. So great was the prestige of the Roman name that the hostages came within ten days after the bridge was begun.

¹ Post Ariovistum pulsum; or use the ablative absolute, Ariovisto pulso.
² Use the verb dedo, but remember that it is transitive. ³ Re vera. ⁴ S.

CHAP. XIX.

(1) He delayed eighteen days in all, in order to cut down the corn and burn their dwellings. (2) Returning to the confines of the Ubii, he found out from them that the Suebi had promised to aid the Sugambri. (3) In order to aid the Ubii, who had been hard pressed by this nation, he determined not to lead back his army till he had taken vengeance on their enemies. (4) ¹This resolve struck such fear into the Suebi that they sent away their wives and children, and went to the woods, to await the approach of the Romans. (5) They assembled at a spot which they had chosen, and determined ²to fight it out ³in defence of the territory which they held. (6) But Caesar, thinking he had carried out all the ⁴purposes which had led him to cross the Rhine, recrossed the bridge and destroyed it.

¹ "By which resolve (consilium) such fear was struck into the Suebi that."

² Decerto. ³ Pro. ⁴ Res.

CHAPS. XVI, XVIII AND XIX.

Such was the fear of the Germans after this last battle that hearing of the approach of Caesar, they determined to leave their homes, and to place their wives and children in the concealment of the woods. To do this they considered that ten days ¹would be ²enough. Caesar, who had already brought the timber to the appointed spot, completed the whole work in a few days, and led the army across, leaving a strong guard at the head of the bridge. Meanwhile the Suebi were hastening their preparations for flight, and sending messengers to announce to the Sugambri that, after holding council, they had resolved to burn the corn in the fields and to flee to the woods. These, ³in true German style, at once promised Caesar that they would give him hostages and do his commands.

¹ Present infinitive. ² Satis. ³ More Germanico.

CHAP. XX.

(1) ¹After his return from Germany, Caesar rashly resolved to invade Britain during the same summer. (2) Though small time for waging war before winter ²remained, he thought that it would be very useful to visit at least the sea-coast. (3) He knew that the inhabitants had furnished aid and ships to the Gauls. (4) The Gallic merchants whom he called together, knew nothing whatever about the greater part of the island. (5) They could tell him almost nothing about its inhabitants, or their form of government. (6) He hoped, however, to be able to learn from them ³the size and the character of its harbours.

¹ Quum + pluperfect subjunctive. ² Fuit. ³ Use clauses with quantus and qualis.

CHAP. XXI.

(1) He therefore commanded Volusenus to survey the districts opposite Gaul, and to make a report. (2) He himself set out into (the territories of) the Morini, ¹wishing to find a suitable crossing place into Britain. (3) Many States from the island sent ambassadors ²to promise fidelity to him. (4) He exhorted ³them to return to the island, and to perform ⁴their promises. (5) With them he sent Commius, ⁵ordering him to visit all whose influence was considered ⁶especially great. (6) Meanwhile Volusenus had returned, and reported that he had not dared to disembark.

¹ "In order that he might find." ² Qui + subjunctive. ³ Relative ⁴ Relative clause. ⁵ "Whom he ordered." ⁶ Superlative.

CHAPS. XIX TO XXI.

After spending a few days across the Rhine, in which he discovered for the first time the power of the German tribes, Caesar resolved to make a voyage into Britain, to find out what he could about this almost unknown island. Ambassadors had come from many of its tribes, and in our Gallic wars they had sent over forces to our enemies; but ¹he did not wish so much to take vengeance for this as to explore its harbours and coast, and to find out the ²manners and customs of its inhabitants. He sent Cains Volusenus in a man of war by the shortest crossing, but he, though considered faithful by Caesar, returned after four days, and said that he did not dare to trust himself to barbarians who inspired fear even in the merchants who visited them.

¹ Minus voluit—quam. ² Mores.

CHAP. XXII.

(1) The Morini sent ambassadors to Caesar to apologize for what they had done. (2) On account of the season of the year, Caesar did not wish to make war upon them. (3) ¹He therefore levied hostages upon them, and said that he was willing to receive them into allegiance. (4) Caesar collected ²as great a number of merchant vessels and of ships of war as possible, and apportioned them to the legions. (5) Eighteen, which were not able to reach the appointed spot, he apportioned to the cavalry. (6) He ordered his lieutenant to lead them to the harbour, where the ships had been prepared, and to leave a garrison there.

¹ Ablative absolute. ² Quam maximum numerum.

CHAPS. XX TO XXII.

While Caesar ¹was awaiting (the return of) the man of war in which Volusenus had set out to explore the coasts of Britain, ambassadors came to him from many states of the island. Caesar ²made ³them liberal promises, and said that if they gave hostages and submitted to the suzerainty of the Roman people, he would consider it sufficient. He had no ⁴means of crossing into Britain unless those whose influence was considered greatest in the maritime regions were faithful to him, and it had fallen out very fortunately that these embassies came at so suitable a time. Meanwhile Volusenus returned, but what he had seen was ⁵of such small importance that Caesar resolved to leave him behind in Gaul among those cantons of the Morini who had not given their allegiance to the Roman people.

¹ Present indicative. ² Perfect participle. ³ Relative. ⁴ Facultas.
Tantulus.

CHAP. XXIII.

(1) After settling everything which concerned his departure, Caesar set sail at the third watch. (2) The cavalry embarked, and followed him rather more slowly than Caesar wished. (3) When he came within sight of Britain, he was not able to land on account of the hills, from which the enemy could throw darts upon the beach. (4) He therefore summoned his officers, and warned them that he wished everything to be carried out by them at the proper time. (5) ²In these naval matters, said he, everything ³has to be done ⁴as quickly as possible. (6) Having got a favourable wind, he weighed anchor, and proceeded seven miles to a more open beach.

¹ Profectio. ² Oratio Obliqua. ³ Gerundive. ⁴ Quam celerrime.

CHAP. XXIV.

(1) The barbarians ¹had followed our ships, and began to hurl darts ²to prevent us from landing. (2) Our men ³had to spring down from the ships and advance with great difficulty to dry ground. (3) The barbarians, whose limbs were free, and who knew the ground, urged their horses to the attack. (4) ⁴For this reason our men showed less eagerness than was their custom. (5) The barbarians hurled their darts upon the ships, and ⁵especially upon those who were disembarking. (6) Oppressed by the weight of their armour, the Romans could with great difficulty stand firm in the deep water.

¹ Perfect participle. ² Ne + subjunctive. ³ "It had to be sprung (gerundive) by our men" (dat.). ⁴ Qua de causa. ⁵ Praesertim.

CHAPS. XXII TO XXIV.

The Morini, who possessed the harbours, from which he wished to take over his legions, sent hostages, and promised to collect ships. Caesar resolved to transport two legions and a few cavalry. ¹These he thought would be enough to terrify the Britons, ²while ³he would be able to leave the rest of the army among those tribes of Gaul who had not yet been received into the allegiance of the Roman people. When he reached the Island, he found that the forces of the enemy were in arms, and when he proceeded along the shore, they followed him in war-chariots. Our men, altogether unused to fighting from on shipboard against an enemy on dry land, were hard pressed, and did not ⁴show that zeal which Caesar wished. He therefore delayed ⁵until three o'clock for the arrival of the transports, in which the cavalry had embarked; when these did not come, he ordered the soldiers to leap down from the ships, and to fight among the billows.

¹ Relative. ² Omit. ³ Present infinitive. ⁴ Utor. ⁵ "To the ninth hour."

CHAP. XXV.

(1) Caesar ordered the war-ships to charge the enemy on the exposed flank. (2) The barbarians, frightened by our engines, hesitated, halted, and began to retreat. (3) One of our men with a loud voice ¹implored the gods that no disgrace might befall the legion, and then flung the eagle into the water. (4) "Follow me, Comrades," ²said he, "and fulfil your duty to your General." (5) ³With these words, he leaped down into the sea, and began to approach the enemy. (6) This greatly helped our men, for ⁴after mutually exhorting each other, ⁵they did not hesitate, but jumped down.

¹ Perfect participle. ² Inquit. ³ "Which when he had said." ⁴ Perfect participle. ⁵ "No one hesitating." Ablative absolute.

CHAPS. XXIII TO XXV.

¹After awaiting for five hours (²the arrival of) the rest of the ships, ³he summoned the soldiers and ordered them to do at a moment's notice whatever their officers advised. ⁴This is not only demanded by the nature of military science, ⁵he said, but also by that of naval warfare.

The chief difficulty which he found was that the ships could not anchor except in deep water, where the soldiers, if they jumped down, had their hands impeded. Meanwhile the enemy, accustomed to this kind of warfare, advanced boldly, but were driven off by arrows and javelins from the men of war, which were anchored on their exposed flank, and ⁶proved of great assistance. Our men would have hesitated, but followed the eagle-bearer of the tenth legion, who jumped ⁷eagerly down with the eagle (²in his hands).

¹ Quam + pluperfect subjunctive. ² Omit the words in brackets. ³ Ablative absolute. ⁴ Oratio Obliqua. ⁵ Omit. ⁶ Fuerunt. ⁷ Summa alacritate.

, from which he
es, and promised
port two legions
uld be enough to
ble to leave the
ul who had not Roman people.
at the forces of eeded along the
Our men, alto-
ard against an
did not ⁴show
re delayed ⁵un-
ports, in which
d not come, he
e ships, and to

⁵ "To the ninth

e the enemy o' ghtened by our reat. (3) One
e gods that no
ung the eagle
es," ²said he,
) ³With these
an to approach
men, for ⁴after

VOCABULARY.

ABBREVIATIONS.

a.	active.	dep.	deponent.	num.	numeral.
abl.	ablative.	dist.	distributive.	ord.	ordinal.
acc.	accusative.	f.	feminine.	partic.	participle.
adj.	adjective.	freq.	frequentative.	plur.	plural.
adv.	adverb.	impers.	impersonal.	possess.	possessive.
app.	appendix.	indecl.	indeclinable.	rel.	relative.
c.	common.	interrog.	interrogative.	sing.	singular.
card.	cardinal.	irreg.	irregular.	superl.	superlative.
comp.	comparative.	m.	masculine.	v.	verb.
conj.	conjunction.	n.	neuter.

The numerals after nouns and verbs refer to declensions and conjugations respectively.

A

- A or ab, prep. with abl. by, from.
abdo, v.a. 3, abdidi, abditum, hide.
abicio, v.a. 3, abiēci, abiectum, throw away.
abies, 3, f. abiētis, fir.
absisto, v.n. 3, abstīti, stand aloof from, desist.
absum, v.n. abesse, abfui, be absent, distant.
ac (atque), conj. and, and besides.
 See note on Bk. iv. ch. xiii.
 14.
accēdo, v.n. 3, accessi, accessum,
 come near, approach, be added.
 Used as passive of addo:
accedit quod, there is besides the fact that.
accīdo, v.n. 3, accīdi, happen (ad-cado).
accīdo, v.a. 3, accīdi, accīsum, cut into (ad-caedo).
accipio, v.a. 3, accēpi, acceptum, receive, accept, receive news.
accūrāte, adv. carefully, exactly.
ācerīme, adv. superl. of acriter.
ācies, 5, f. line, line of battle, army in battle.
ācriter, adv. of acer, fiercely,
 keenly, stubbornly.
ācrius, adv. comp. of acriter.
actūārius, adj. driven by oars.
ad, prep. with acc. to, towards,
 at, near (special meanings given in notes).
adactus. See adigo.
ādaequo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, make equal to, equal.

- addo, v. a. 3, addīdi, additum, add.
addūco, v. a. 3, adduxi, adduc- tum, lead to; in pass. induce.
ādemptus. See adimo.
ādēo, v. n. 4, adire, adii, aditum, go to, approach.
ādēo, adv. thus, so, so far.
adfēro (aff.), v. a. 3, irreg. ad- ferre, adtūli, adlātum, bring forward, produce, allege.
adficio, v. a. 3, adficere, adfēci, adfectum, influence, affect,
treat (ad-facio).
adfecto, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, keep striking, shatter, damage.
adfligo, v. a. 3, adflixi, adflictum, cast down, shatter.
adgrēgo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, join
to.
ādhaereo, v. n. 2, adhaesi, ad- haesum, stick to.
ādhibeo, v. 3, -ui, -itum, call in,
employ, consult (ad-habeo).
ādhortor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, encourage.
ādicio, v. a. 3, adicere, adiēci, adiectum, add (ad-iacio).
ādigo, v. a. 3, adēgi, adactur, bring to, drive to (ad-ago).
ādimo, v. a. 3, adēmi, ademptum, take away, with acc. of thing,
dat. of person (ad-emo).
ādipiscor, v. dep. 3, adepus sum, obtain.
ādītus, 4, m. approach, access.
adiungo, v. a. 3, adiunxi, adiunc- tum, join to.
adiūtor, 3, m. -ōris, helper.
administer, 2, m. administri, agent, attendant.
administro, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, manage, execute, conduct.
admiror, v. dep. 1, admiratus sum, admire, wonder at.
admitto, v. a. 3, admisī, admis-
sum, admit, commit.
admōdum, adv. much, quite.
admōneo, v. a. 2, -ui, -itum, warn, advise.
ādūlescens, adj. -entis, young,
- the younger; subst. a youth,
boy.
ādōrior, v. dep. 3 and 4 (irreg.), adortus sum, attack.
adpello, v. a. 3, adpūli, adpulsum, drive on, put in (of ships).
adplico, v. a. 1, adplicui, adpli- citum, fasten.
adporto, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum,
bring to, convey.
adprōpinquo, v. n. 1, -avi, -atum, be near to, approach, with dat.
adsīduus, adj. continual.
adsuēfacio (ass.), v. a. 3, adsue- fēci, adsuefactum, accustom.
adsuesco (ass.), v. n. 3, adsuēvi, adsuētum, become accustomed.
adtingo (att.), v. a. 3, adtingi, adactum, touch, border on,
reach to.
adtribuo (att.), v. a. 3, adtribui, adtribūtum, add to, assign.
adventus, 4, m. arrival.
adversus, adj. turned towards,
opposite, contrary to, unfavourable.
advōlo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, fly to, hasten to.
aedificium, 2, n. a building.
aedifico, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, build.
aegre, adv. with difficulty.
aequinoctium, 2, n. the equinox.
aequus, adj. level, equal, fair,
favourable.
aes, 3, n. aeris, bronze.
aestas, 3, f. -ātis, summer.
aestimo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, estimate, reckon, consider.
aestus, 4, m. tide, current.
aetas, 3, f. -ātis, age, life.
afficio. See adficio.
āger, 2, m. agri, land, territory.
agmen, 3, n. agminis, army on march, column.
āgo, v. a. 3, āgi, actum, drive,
do, urge.
ālācer, adj. alacris, alacra, keen,
brisk.
ālacrītas, 3, f. -ātis, keenness, engerness.

subst. a youth,
and 4 (irreg.), ttack.
pñli, *adpulsu*m,
(of ships).
adplicui, adpli-
-avi, -atum,
y.
1. -avi, -atum,
oach, with dat.
tinal.
v. a. 3, adsue-
-m, *acensu*m.
n. 3, adsuēvi,
ne accustomed.
a. 3, *adti*gi,
h, border on,
a. 3, adtribui,
l to, assign.
rival.
ned towards,
ary to, un-
ri, -atum, fly
building.
-avi, -atum,
fficulty.
the equinox.
equal, fair,
nce.
ummer.
-avi, -atum,
consider.
urrent.
e, life.
d, territory.
s, army on
ctum, drive,
alacre, keen,
s, keenness,

allas, adv. at another time, at one time.
aliēnus, adj. belonging to another, foreign, disadvantageous.
ālo, adv. elsewhere.
āliquis (in agreement with noun, aliqui), pron. some one.
āliquot, adv. several.
āliiter, adv. otherwise.
ālius, aliā, aliud, pron. other,
another: alius . . . alius, one . . . another.
ālo, v. a. 3, alui, altum, nourish, foster, maintain, keep.
alter, pron. alterius, one of two,
the other.
altitūdo, 3, f. -inis, height, depth.
altus, adj. high, deep.
āmentia, 1, f. madness, folly.
amentum, 2, n. strap, thong.
āmlōtia, 1, f. friendship.
āmicus, adj. friendly; noun, a friend.
amitto, v. a. 3, amisi, *amissu*m, lose.
amplitūdo, 3, f. -inis, width,
size, power.
amplius, adv. comp. of ample,
more, further.
amplus, adj. large, great, powerful, noble (of birth).
āncōra, 1, f. anchor; an. tollere, weigh anchor; an. iacere, cast anchor; in āncoris, at anchor.
angustia, 1, f. only in plur.
narrowness, narrowing.
angustus, adv. comp. of anguste, more narrowly, within narrower limits.
angustus, adj. narrow.
ānimadverto, v. a. 3, animadverti, *animadversu*m, give heed to,
observe.
ānimus, 2, m. mind, thought,
courage, fancy.
annōtinus, adj. last year's.
annus, 2, m. year.
anser, 3, m. ansēris, a goose.
ante, adv., and prep. with acc.
before.
antēcēdo, v. n. 3, antecessi, ante- *cessu*m, go in front, precede. antēcursor, 3, m. -ōris, forerunner; in plur. advance-guard, scouts.
antēpōno, v. a. 3, antepōsui, an- *tepositu*m, set before, prefer. āpertus, adj. open, exposed.
appello, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, call,
name, call upon by name.
aptus, adj. fit, suitable.
apud, prep. with acc. at, among,
with.
āqua, 1, f. water.
āquātio, 3, f. -ōnis, getting water, watering.
āquilla, 1, f. eagle, standard of the legion.
āquillifer, 2, m. aquiliferi, standard-bearer. See Intro.
p. xxiv.
arbiter, 2, m. arbitri, witness,
judge, umpire.
arbitror, v. dep. 1, -atus sum,
think, judge, consider.
arbor, 3, f. arbōris, tree.
ardeo, v. n. 2, be on fire, be afllame, burn.
*argentu*m, 2, n. silver.
āridus, adj. dry; in n. sing. as noun, dry ground.
āries, 3, m. ariētis, ram, battering-ram, support, buttress.
arma, 2, n. plur. arms, weapons.
armāmenta, 2, n. plur. tackle, gear, rigging.
armātus, adj. armed; noun 2, m.
armed man.
armo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, arm, equip.
ars, 3, f. artis, art, skill. artius, adv. comp. of arte, more closely, more tightly.
ascendo, v. a. and n. 3, ascendi, *ascensu*m, ascend, climb.
asper, adj. aspēra, aspērum, rough, harsh, severe.
ass. See ads.
at, conj. but, yet.
atque. See ac.
attingo. See adtingo.

attribûo. See adtribuo.
auctor, 3, m. -ôris, adviser, instigator.
auctoritas, 3, f. -âtis, authority, influence, weight.
audacter, adv. of audax, boldly.
audeo, v.n. 2, ausus sum, dare.
audiens, adj. -entis, obedient.
audio, v.a. 4, -ivl, -itum, hear, learn, give audience to.
auditio, 3, f. -ônis, report.
augeo, v.a. 2, auxi, auctum, increase.
auriga, 1, m. charioteer.
aut, conj. or, either.
autem, conj. but, moreover.
auxilior, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, help, give aid to.
auxilium, 2, n. help, aid; in plur. auxiliary forces, contingents.
averto, v.a. 3, averti, aversum, turn aside.
âvis, 3, f. bird.
âvus, 2, m. grandfather.

B

Balteus, 2, m. sword-belt.
barbârus, adj. wild, uncivilised; as noun in plur. the barbarians, natives.
bellicôsus, adj. warlike.
bellor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, make war.
bellum, 2, n. war.
bène, adv. well.
bénéficium, 2, n. kindness, favour.
bénévôlentia, 1, f. goodwill, kindness.
bini, dist. num. two each, a pair of.
bipedâlis, adj. of two feet.
bipartîto, adv. in two divisions.
bos, 3, c. bôvis, ox.
brêvis, adj. short, brief.
brûma, 1, f. winter, the winter solstice.

C

Câdo, v.n. 3, cecidi, câsum, fall, be killed.
caedes, 3, f. caedis, slaughter.
caerûleus, adj. blue.
caespes, 3, m. caespitis, turf, sod.
câlâmîtas, 3, f. -âtis, disaster.
câpio, v.a. 3, capere, câpi, captum, take, capture (nautical term), make.
captus, 4, m. capacity, comprehension.
câput, 3, n. capitis, head, mouth (of a river).
câro, 3, f. carnis, flesh.
carrus, 2, m. waggon, cart.
câseus, 2, m. cheese.
castra, 2, n. plur. camp.
câsus, 4, m. accident, chance.
causa, 1, f. cause, reason; in abl. sing. as prep. for the sake of, for the purpose of.
cêdo, v.n. 3, cessi, cessum, yield, retire.
cêler, adj. celêris, celere, swift.
celêritas, 3, f. -âtis, speed, swiftness.
celêriter, adv. swiftly, quickly.
centum, card. num. a hundred.
centûrio, 3, m. -ônis, a centurion. See Intro. p. xxiii.
certe, adv. certainly, exactly.
certus, adj. certain, sure; certior fieri, to be informed, learn.
cêtêrus, adj. the rest; mostly in plur. as noun, the rest, the others.
cibus, 2, m. food.
cingo, v.a. 3, cinxi, cinctum, surround.
circiter, adv. about.
circuitus, 4, m. a going round, compass, circumference.
circum, prep. with acc. and adv. around.
circumcêdo, v.a. 3, circumcisi, circumcisum, cut round (circum. caedo).
circumdo, v.a. 1, circumdêdi, cir-

ii, cāsum, fall,
 is, slaughter.
 ue.
 caespitis, turf,
 tis, disaster.
 ere, cēpi, capture (nautical
 acy, compre-
 s, head, mouth
 lesh.
 on, cart.
 e.
 camp.
 nt, chance.
 on; in abl.
 the sake of,
 f.
 essum, yield,
 elere, swift.
 speed, swiftly, quickly.
 a hundred.
 a centurion.
 , exactly.
 ure; certior
 ed, learn.
 ; mostly in the rest, the
 i, cinctum,
 oing round,
 ence.
 e. and adv.
 circumcisi,
 round (cir-
 mdēdi, cir-

cundatum, put round, surround. See on Bk. iv. ch.
 xxxii. 19.
 circumeo, v.a. and u. 4, irreg.
 circumire, circumivi or circumii, circumitum, go round, visit.
 circumsisto, v.a. 3, circumstīti, stand round, surround.
 circumvenio, v.a. 4, circumvēni, circumventum, surround, cut off.
 cis, citra, prep. with acc. on this side.
 citātus, adj. (perf. part. pass. of cito), at full speed, swift.
 citērior, adj. comp. of citra, -ōris,
 on the nearer side, hither.
 citissime, adv. superl. of cito,
 most quickly.
 civitas, 3, f. -ātis, a state, citizenship.
 clam, adv. secretly.
 clāmīto, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, keep shutting out. Prep. of clamo.
 clāmor, 3, m. -ōris, a shout.
 clārus, adj. clear, loud.
 cliens, 3, m. clientis, a dependant, vassal.
 coactus, 4, m. compulsio.
 coeo, v.n. 4, coire, coivi or coii, coitum, come together, assemble.
 coerceo, v.a. 2, -ui, -itum, compel, restrain.
 coepi, v.n. 3, perfect used as present, coepisse, dep. perf.
 coeptus sum, begin. See on Bk. iv. ch. xiv. 13.
 cōgito, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, consider, reflect on.
 cognitus, perf. part. pass. of cognosco.
 cognosco, v.a. 3, cognōvi, cognī-tum, discover, learn; in perfect and tenses formed from
 it, know.
 cōgo, v.a. 3, cōgī, coactum, collect, compel (co-ago).
 cōhors, 3, f. cohortis, cohort.
 See Intro. pp. xxi-xxiv.
 cohōrto, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, exhort, encourage.
 coficio. See conicio.
 collis, 3, m. hill.
 colligo, v.a. 3, collēgi, collectum, collect, get together.
 color, 3, m. -ōris, colour.
 commēatus, 4, m. journey, relay, supplies.
 commēmōro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, call to mind, relate.
 commendo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, entrust.
 commilito, 3, m. -ōnis, fellow-soldier.
 committo, v.a. 3, commisi, com-missum, bring together, entrust, commit; con, pugnam, proelium, join battle.
 commōde, adv. conveniently,
 suitably, advantageously.
 commōdum, 2, u. advantage.
 commōdus, adj. convenient, suitable.
 commōror, v. dep. 1, -atus sum,
 delay.
 commūnico, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, share with, consult, impart.
 commūnis, adj. common, general.
 commūtatio, 3, f. -ōnis, change.
 compāro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, get ready, prepare.
 compērio, v.a. 4, compēri, comppertum, discover, ascertain.
 compleo, v.a. 2, complēvi, complētum, fill, man (a vessel).
 complūres, adj. plur. very many;
 as nom., a number of.
 comporto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum,
 bring together, collect.
 comprēhēdo, v.a. 3, compre-hēdi, comprehensum, arrest, seize.
 comprōbo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, confirm.
 concēdo, v.a. 3, concessi, concessum, grant, yield.
 concido, v.a. 3, concīdi, fall down.
 concilio, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, reconcile.
 concīlium, 2, u. council, assembly.

- concito, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, arouse, stir up.
conclāmo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, shout together.
concurro, v.a. 3, concurri, concursum, run together.
concurso, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, run together, run to and fro. Freq. of concurro.
concursum, 4, m. rushing together, concourse.
condicio, 3, f. -onis, condition, terms.
condūco, v.a. 3, conduxi, conductum, bring together, hire.
confēro, v.a. 3, irreg. conferre, contili, conlātum (collātum), bring together.
confertus, perf. part. pass. of confercio, crowded, closely packed.
confestim, adv. hurriedly, immediately.
conficio, v.a. 3, conficere, confēcī, confectum, accomplish, finish, exhaust.
confido, v.a. 3, confisus sum, trust, believe in.
confirmo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, make firm, encourage, establish, assert.
confiteor, v. dep. 2, confessus sum, acknowledge, confess.
confliens, 3, m. -entis, confluence.
conficio, v.a. 3, confēcī, coniectum, hurl, fling.
coniungo, v.a. 3, coniunxi, coniunctum, join, unite.
coniuratio, 3, f. -ōnis, a conspiracy.
conlaudo (coll.), v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, praise highly.
conlōco (coll.), v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, set, station.
conlōquium (coll.), 2, n. a conference.
conlōquor, v. dep. 3, conlocūtus sum, converse, confer, parley.
cōnor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, try, attempt.
- conscendo, v.a. and n. 3, conscendi, conscensum, embark, embark on.
conscientia, 1, f. consciousness.
consector, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, follow, pursue. Freq. of consequor.
consentio, v.v. 4, consensi, consensum, agree, sympathise with.
consēquor, v. dep. 3, consecūtus sum, follow closely, attain, gain.
consido, v.a. 3, consēdi, consessum, settle.
consilium, 2, n. plan, scheme, stratagem, counsel, council, deliberation.
consimilis, adv. very like.
consisto, v.v. 3, constiti, stand firm, halt, consist in.
consōlor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, console, comfort.
conspēctus, 4, m. sight, view.
conspicio, v.a. 3, conspicere, conspēxi, conspēctum, behold, desery, observe.
conspīcor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, perceive.
constat, v. impers. it is well known, agreed.
consterno, v.a. 3, constrāvi, constrātum, strew over, cover.
constituo, v.a. 3, constitui, constitūtum, draw up, settle, arrange, place, decide, resolve.
consuesco, v.v. 3, consuēvi, consuētum, grow accustomed; (generally used only in perfect and tenses formed from it) be accustomed.
consuētudo, 3, f. -itinis, custom, habit.
consul, 3, m. consūlis, a consul.
consūlo, v.v. 3, consului, consulūtum, consult, consult for the interest of with dat.
consulto, adv. intentionally.
consumo, v.a. 3, consumpsi, consumptum, use up, spend (of time).

nd n. 3, con-
sum, embark,

consciousness.
1. -atus sum,
Freq. of con-

consensi, con-
sympathise

3, consecutus
sely, attain,

consēdi, con-

plan, scheme,
scl, council,

y like.

constiti, stand
t in.

-atus sum,

ght, view.

conspicere,
um, behold,

-atus sum.

it is well

strāvi, con-
r, cover.

stitui, con-
settle, ar-
, resolve.

suēvi, con-
accustomed;
y in perfect
from it) be

s, custom,

a consul.

ni, consul-
lt for the ally.

nsipi, con-
spend (of

consurgo, v.n. 3, consurrexi, con- surrectum, arise, rise up.
contābūlo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, cover with planks.

contemno, v.a. 3, contempai, con- temptum, despise.

contemptio, 3, f. -ōnis, contempt.

contendo, v.n. 3, contendi, con- tentum, make for, hasten, strive, struggle; a. aim at.

contentio, 3, f. -ōnis, rivalry.

contestor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum,
call to witness.

contexo, v.a. 3, contexui, con-
textum, bind, hold together.

continens, 3, f. -entis, mainland;
adj. unbroken, continuous.

contineo, v.a. 2, continui, con- tentum, restrain, contain.

contingo, v.a. 3, contigi, contac- tum, touch, reach.

continuus, adj. continual, continuous, unbroken.

contio, 3, f. -ōnis, assembly,
parade, harangue.

contra, prep. with acc. against,
contrary to, opposite; adv. on the other hand.

contrāho, v.a. 3, contraxi, con- tractum, draw together, draw in, contract.

contrārius, adj. opposite to, contrary to.

contrōversia, 1, f. contention, rivalry.

contūmēlia, 1, f. insult.

convallis, 3, f. a valley.

convēnio, v.n. 4, convēni, con- ventum, come together, assemble, muster.

conventus, 4, m. assembly, parade.

convertō, v.a. 3, converti, con- versum, turn.

convōco, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, call together, assemble.

coōrior, v. dep. 4 (some forms of 3), coortus sum, arise.

cōpia, 1, f. supply, plenty; in plur. forces, stores.

corpus, 3, n. corpōris, body.

cōrus, 2, m. north-west wind.

cōtidianus, adj. daily.

cōtidie, adv. daily.

crātes, 3, f. plur. wicker-work, hurdles, fascines.

creber, crebra, crebrum, adj.
frequent.

crēdo, v.a. and n. 3, credīdi, credītum, believe, trust, with dat.; entrust, with acc.

cruciātus, 4, m. torture.

crūs, 3, n. crūris, leg.

culpa, 1, f. fault, blame.

cultūra, 1, f. cultivation.

cum, prep. with abl. with; rel.
conj. when, since, though. See App. II.

cunctor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum,
delay.

cūpide, adv. eagerly.

cūpidus, adj. eager for, desirous
of.

cūr, interrog. and rel. adv. why.

cūro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, care for.
See on Bk. iv. ch. xxix. 3.

currus, 4, m. chariot.

cursus, 4, m. course.

custōdia, 1, f. guard, watch, sentinel.

D

Damno, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, condemn.

de, prep. with abl. down from,
from, concerning, owing to.

dēbeo, v.a. 2, -ui, -itum, owe; n.
ought (de-habeo).

dēcēdo, v.n. 3, decessi, decessum, depart.

dēcem, card. num. ten.

decerno, v.a. and n. decrevi, de- cretum, decide, settle, resolve.

dēcerto, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, fight to the end.

dēcimus, ord. num. tenth.

declivis, adj. sloping.

dēdēcus, 3, n. dēdecōris, disgrace.

dēditio, 3, f. -ōnis, surrender.

dēdo, v.a. 3, dedidi, deditum, surrender, give up.

- dēdūco, v.a. 3, deduxi, deductum, launch, withdraw.
dēfātīgo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, weary, exhaust.
dēfectio, 3, f. -ōnis, revolt, defection.
dēfendo, v.a. 3, defendi, defensum, ward off, defend, protect.
dēfensor, 3, m. -ōris, defender, protector. See on Bk. iv. ch. xvii. 23.
dēfēro, v.a. 3, irreg. deferre, defūli, delātum, carry down, bring down, bring to hand, report.
dēfīcio, v.a. and n. 3, deficere, defēci, defectum, a. fail, with acc.; n. run short, revolt.
dēfīgo, v.a. 3, defixi, defixum, fix down.
dēfīto, v.n. 3, defluxi, defluxum, flow down.
dēfōrmis, adj. misshapen, deformed.
dēīcio, v.a. 3, deicere, deīci, deiectum, cast down, unhorse, drive down, disappoint (de-iacio).
dēinceps, adv. in succession.
dēlecto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, please, delight.
dēlīgo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, fasten.
dēlīgo, v.a. 3, delēgi, delectum, choose.
dēlītesco, v.n. 3, delitui, lie in ambush.
dēmētia, 1, f. madness, folly.
dēmēto, v.a. 3, demessui, demessum, reap.
dēmīgro, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, move away, retire, evacuate.
dēmīto, v.a. 3, demisi, demissum, send down, let down.
dēmo, v.a. 3, dempsi, demptum, take away (de-emo).
dēmonstro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, point out, mention.
dēnum, adv. at length, at last.
dēni, dist. mm. ten each.
densus, adj. thick, dense.
- dēnuntio, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, announce, declare.
dēperdo, v.a. 3, deperdidi, deperditum, lose utterly.
dēpēreo, v.n. 4, irreg. deperire, deperii, be utterly lost, be wrecked, perish. Used as passive of deperdo.
dēpōno, v.a. 3, depōsi, depositum, put down, lay aside, lay apart.
dēprēcor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, beg off, cry off, beg for mercy.
dēprēhendo, v.a. 3, deprehendi, deprehensum, catch, seize.
dērecto, adv. straight, perpendicularly.
dērectus, partic. of derigo, lengthwise.
descendo, v.n. 3, descendi, descensum, descend, have recourse to, dismount.
dēsēro, v.a. 3, deserui, desertum, abandon, desert.
dēsīdēro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, need, desire, require.
dēsīlīo, v.n. 4, desilui, desultum, leap down (de-salio).
desisto, v.n. 3, destīti, leave off, stop from.
despērātio, 3, f. -onis, despair.
despēro, v.a. and n. 1, -avi, -atum, despair, despair of.
dēsūm, v.n. deesse, defui, be wanting.
dēterreo, v.a. 2, deterrui, deterritum, frighten greatly, deter.
dētrīmentum, 2, n. loss.
dēturbo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, rout, dislodge.
dēus, 2, m. god.
dēvēho, v.a. 3, devexi, devexum, carry away, down.
dexter, adj. dextra or dextera, dextrum or dextērum, on the right-hand side, right.
dico, v.a. and n. say, tell, mention, agree upon.
dictum, 2, n. word, command.
dies, 5, in sing. c., in plur. m. day.

- différo*, v.a. and n. 3, irreg. différre, distūli, dilatūm, bear in different directions, differ (différo).
- difficultas*, 3, f. -ātis, difficulty.
- diffido*, r.n. 3, diffisus sum, distrust.
- dignitas*, 3, f. -ātis, worth, dignity, position.
- diidico*, r.a. 1, -avi, -atum, decide between, determine.
- diligens*, adj. -entis, careful.
- diligentia*, 1, f. carefulness.
- dimensus*, partic. of dimētior, measured. See on Bk. iv. ch. xvii. 8.
- dimico*, r.n. 1, -avi, -atum, fight.
- dimidium*, 2, n. half.
- dimitto*, r.a. 3, dimisi, dimissum, send different ways, let go, let slip, dismiss.
- discēdo*, r.n. 3, discessi, discesum, depart.
- discessus*, 4, m. departure.
- disciplina*, 1, f. training, discipline.
- disclūdo*, r.a. 3, disclūsi, disclūsum, keep apart (disclaudo).
- dispar*, adj. dispāris, unequal, unfair.
- dispergo*, r.a. 3, dispersi, dispersum, scatter (dis-spargo).
- dispono*, r.a. 3, dispōsui, dispositum, distribute.
- disputāto*, 3, f. -ōnis, discussion, dispute.
- dissensio*, 3, f. -ōnis, disagreement.
- dissentio*, r.n. 4, dissensi, dissentium, disagree.
- dissimūlo*, r.a. 1, -avi, -atum, disguise, conceal.
- dissipo*, r.a. 1, -avi, -atum, scatter.
- distineo*, r.a. 2, distinui, distentum, hold apart (dis-teneo).
- disto*, r.n. 1, be apart, be distant.
- distribuo*, r.a. 3, distribui, distributum, divide, distribute, assign.
- dū*, adv. for a long time, long.
- diūtīnus*, adj. lasting for a long time, enduring.
- diūtius*, comp. of diu, longer.
- divido*, r.a. 3, divisi, divisum, divide.
- do*, r.a. 1, dēdi, dātum, give.
- docēo*, r.a. 2, docui, doctum, teach, inform.
- dōleo*, r.n. 2, dolui, grieve.
- dōlor*, 3, m. -ēris, grief, pain.
- dōlus*, 2, m. craft, guile.
- dōmesticus*, adj. internal, intestine.
- dōmus*, 2 and 4, f. house, home; domi (locatīre), at home; domum, homewards, home; domo, from home.
- dūbitāto*, 3, f. -ōnis, doubt, hesitation.
- dūbito*, r.n. 1, -avi, -atum, doubt, hesitate.
- dūcenti*, card. num. two hundred
- dūco*, r.a. 3, duxī, ductum, lead, bring, hold, consider.
- dum*, rel. conj. whilst, until.
- dūo*, duae, duo, card. num. two.
- dūōdēni*, dist. num. twelve each.
- duplīco*, r.a. 1, -avi, -atum, double.
- dūrus*, adj. hard.
- dux*, 3, m. dūcis, leader, general, chief, guide.

E

- E*, ex, prep. with abl. out of, from, according to.
- ēduco*, r.a. 3, eduxi, eductum, lead out.
- effēmīno*, r.a. 1, -avi, -atum, make effeminate, weaken, enervate.
- effēro*, r.a. 3, irreg. efferre, extūli, elātum, bring out, publish; in pass. be elated.
- efficio*, r.a. 3, efficere, effeci, effectum, make, accomplish, render, cause.
- effūgio*, r.a. and n. 3, effugere, effūgi, escape.

- effundo, v.a. 3, effūdi, effūsum, pour forth.
ēgo, pers. pron. I.
ēgrēdiōr, v. dep. 3, egredi, egres-
sus sum, go out, disembark.
egrēgie, adv. excellently.
egrēgius, adj. excellent.
egressus, 4, m. landing, disembarkation.
ēicio, v.a. 3, ei cere, ei cīci, ieic- tum, cast out, drive out; with se, rush out (e-iacio).
ēlābor, v. dep. 3, elapsus sum, escape from.
ēlicio, v.a. 3, elicere, elicui, elic-
tum, entice forth.
ēmitto, v.a. 3, emisi, emissum, send out.
ēnim, conj. for.
ēnuntio, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, announce.
ēo, v.n. 4, irreg. ire, ivi or ii, itum, go.
ēo, adv. thither; with comparatives,
by so much.
ēodem, adv. to the same place.
ephippiātus, adj. furnished with trappings, caparisoned.
ephippium, 2, n. trappings.
ēpistōla, 1, f. letter, despatch.
ēques, 3, m. equitis, horseman.
ēquester, equestris, equestre, adj.
of horse, of cavalry.
ēquitātus, 4, m. cavalry.
ēquus, 2, m. a horse.
erga, prep. with acc. towards.
ēripio, v.a. 3, eripui, ereptum, snatch away from, rescue.
erro, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, make a mistake, wander.
ēruptio, 3, f. -ōnis, a sally.
essēdārius, 2, m. charioteer.
essēdum, 2, n. war-chariot.
et, conj. and, both, also, even.
ētiam, conj. also, even.
etsi, rel. conj. even if, although.
ēvēnio, v.n. 4, evēni, eventum, turn out, result.
ēventus, 4, m. result.
ēvōco, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, call forth, summon.
- ex. See e.
exāgīto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, harass.
exāmino, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum,
weigh in the balance.
exānimo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, kill.
exardesco, v.n. 3, exarsi, exar-
sum, be inflamed.
excēdo, v.n. 3, excessi, excessum, leave, withdraw.
excipio, v.a. 3, excipere, excepti, exceptum, receive, sustain, relieve.
excito, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, raise,
erect, arouse, incite.
exclūdo, v.a. 3, exclusi, exclu-
sum, shut out from, cut off (ex-claudo).
excōgīto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, think out, contrive, devise.
excūso, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, excuse.
exeo, v.n. 4, irreg. exire, exivi or
exii, exitum, go out.
exerceo, v.a. 2, -ui, -itum, employ, exercise, drill.
exercitatio, 3, f. -ōnis, exercise, practice, training.
exercitus, 4, m. army.
exhaurio, v.a. 4, exhausi, ex-
haustum, draw out, empty.
exiguitas, 3, f. -ātis, smallness.
exiguus, adj. small, scanty.
existimatio, 3, f. -ōnis, opinion.
existimo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, think, consider (ex-aestimo).
existo, v.n. 3, exstiti, exstitum, arise.
exitus, 4, m. result, issue, end,
close.
expecto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, await, expect.
expeditio, 3, f. -ōnis, foray, in-cursion, expedition.
expeditus, adj. unhampered, free,
ready.
expello, v.a. 3, expūli, expulsum, drive out.
expērior, v. dep. 4, expertus sum,
try, experience.

- explo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, atone for, make good.
explorator, 3, m. -ōris, scout, spy.
exploro, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, search out, spy out; with vic-toriam, assure victory.
expōno, n. a. 3, expōsui, expōsi-tum, display, disembark.
exporto, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, carry out, export.
existo. See existo.
expecto. See expecto.
extinguo (ext.), v. a. 3, extinxi, extinctum, destroy. exto (ext.), v. n. 1 (no perf. or sup.), stand out, project.
extra, adv., and prep. with acc. outside.
extrāho, v. a. 3, extraxi, extrac-tum, draw out, waste.
extrēmus, adj. superl. farthest, last.
exul (ex.), 3, m. exūlis, exile.
exto, v. a. 3, exui, extūm, strip off, make to throw away.
- F
- Fāber, 2, m. fabri, a smith.
facile, adv. of facilis, easily.
facilis, adj. easy.
facinus, 3, n. -ōris, crime, guilt.
facio, v. a. 3, facere, fēci, factum, do, make, act; pass. fi, feri, become.
factio, 3, f. -ōnis, faction, party.
factum, 2, n. deed, act.
facultas, 3, f. -ātis, opportunity, means, chance.
fāgus, 2, f. beech-tree.
fallo, v. a. and n. fēfelli, falsum, deceive, escape notice of, play false.
falx, 3, f. falcis, sickle, grappling-hook (for destroying fortifica-tions).
fāma, 1, f. report.
fāmes, 3, f. (abl. famē, as of 5th decl.), hunger, famine.
fāmiliaris, 3, m. close friend.
- fas, n. (indecl.), right, lawful.
fastigāte, adv. sloping.
fēliciter, adv. of felix, happily, successfully.
fēmur, 3, n. femōris or feminis, thigh.
fēra, 1, f. wild animal.
fēre, adv. almost, nearly.
fēro, v. a. 3, irreg. ferre, tūli, lātum, bear, carry, endure; in pass. are borne, rush.
ferrāmentum, 2, n. iron tool.
ferrum, 2, n. iron.
fertilis, adj. fertile.
fērus, adj. wild, savage.
fervēfacio, v. a. 3, fervefacere, fervefēci, fervefactum, make red hot.
ferveo, v. n. 2, ferbui or fervi, be red hot.
fībūla, 1, f. brace, tie. See on Bk. iv. ch. xvii. 17.
fidēlis, adj. faithful, loyal.
fides, 5, f. faith, word (of honour), credit, loyalty, protection.
figūra, 1, f. shape, build.
filius, 2, m. son.
figo, v. a. 3, finxi, factum, invent.
finio, v. a. 4, -ivi, -itum, end, be the limit of.
finis, 3, m. (rarely f.), end, limit, boundary; in plur. territory.
finitimus, adj. bordering, neighbour-ing; as noun, neighbour.
fio, v. n. irreg. (used as pass. of facio), fiēri, factus sum, be made, become, happen.
firmiter, adv. firmly.
firmitudo, 3, f. -inis, strength, stability.
firmus, adj. strong.
fistūca, 1, f. rammer.
flamma, 1, f. flame.
flecto, v. a. 3, flexi, flexum, bend, turn.
fletus, 4, m. weeping.
fo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, blow.
florens, partic. used as adj. -entis, flourishing.
fluctus, 4, m. wave.
flumen, 3, n. -inis, river.

forma, 1, f. shape.
 forte, adv. by chance; with ne, si, perchance.
 fortis, adj. brave, strong.
 fortissime, adv. superl. of fortiter, most bravely.
 fortuna, 1, f. fortune, success.
 fossa, 1, f. ditch, trench.
 frango, v.a. 3, frēgi, fractum, break.
 frāter, 3, m. fratris, brother.
 frēmītus, 4, m. noise, uproar.
 frēquens, adj. -entis, in large numbers (used in plur.) frigidus, adj. cold.
 frigus, 3, n. frigōris, cold.
 frūmentārius, adj. belonging to corn supply; res frumentariae, commissariat.
 frūmentor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, get corn, forage.
 frūmentum, 2, n. corn; in plur. crops.
 frustrā, adv. in vain.
 fuga, 1, f. flight.
 fugio, v.u. 3, fugere, fugi, fugitum, flee.
 fūmus, 2, m. smoke.
 funda, 1, f. sling.
 funis, 3, m. rope, hawser.
 fūsilis, adj. molten, liquid. See on Bk. v. ch. xliii. 2.

G

Gallina, 1, f. hen.
 gaudeo, v.u. 2, gāvīsus sum, rejoice.
 gēner, 2, m. genēri, son-in-law.
 gens, 3, f. gentis, race, nation.
 gēnus, 3, n. genēris, kind, class, family.
 gēro, v.a. 3, gessi, gestum, perform, carry out, wage.
 glādius, 2, m. sword.
 glans, 3, f. glandis, acorn, bullet, ball. See on Bk. v. ch. xliii. 1.
 glōria, 1, f. glory, renown.
 grātia, 1, f. favour, goodwill, influence; gratiam referre, return thanks.

 grātūlātiō, 3, f. -ōnis, congratulation.
 grāvis, adj. heavy, serious, dangerous.
 grāvitas, 3, f. -ātis, weight.
 grāviter, adv. of gravis, heavily, severely; graviter ferre, take ill, be annoyed at.
 gūbernātor, 3, m. -ōris, helmsman, pilot.
 gusto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, taste.

H

Hābeo, v.a. 2, -ui, -itum, have, hold, consider.
 haud, adv. not.
 hiberna, 2, n. plur. winter quarters.
 hic, haec, hoc, pron. this.
 hic, adv. here.
 hiēmo and hiēmōr, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum or atus sum, winter.
 hiēmis, 3, f. hiēmīs, winter.
 hōmo, 3, c. homīnis, a human being, man.
 hōnestus, adj. honourable, noble.
 hōnor, 3, m. -ōris, honour, position.
 hōra, 1, f. hour.
 horridus, adj. shaggy, dreadful.
 hortor, v. dep. -atus sum, encourage, exhort.
 hospitiūm, 2, n. friendship.
 hostis, 3, m. enemy.
 huc, adv. hither.
 hūmānus, adj. civilised, human.
 hūmīlis, adj. lowly, small, shallow.
 hūmilitas, 3, f. -ātis, shallowness.

I

Iācio, v.a. 3, iacere, iēcī, iactum, throw, hurl.
 iāctūlum, 2, n. javelin.
 iam, adv. now, already.

- ibi, adv. there.
- idcirco, adv. for that reason.
- idem, eadem, idem, pron. the same.
- idōneus, adj. suitable.
- ignis, 3, m. fire.
- ignōbilis, adj. unrenowned, obscure, lowly.
- ignōro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, be ignorant of.
- ignosco, v.a. 3, ignōvi, ignōtum, pardon. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxvii. 10.
- ignōtus, adj. unknown.
- ille, illa, illud, pron. that, he, illo, adv. thither.
- immānis, adj. huge, immense.
- immitto, v.a. 3, immiſi, immiſum, drive in, let in.
- impēdimentum, 2, n. in plur. baggage.
- impēdio, v.a. 4, -ivi or -ii, -itum, hinder, impede.
- impēditus, adj. encumbered, entangled.
- impello, v.a. 3, impūlli, impulſum, urge on.
- impensus, adj. lavish, great.
- impērātor, 3, m. -ōris, commander, general.
- impērātum, 2, n. command.
- impēritus, adj. unskilled with gen.
- impērium, 2, n. command, sovereignty.
- impēro, v.a. and n. 1, -avi, -atum, demand, command, order. See on Bk. iv. ch. iv. 2.
- impētus, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, gain a request, obtain.
- impētus, 4, m. rush, onset, attack, charge, force.
- implōro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, entreat, invoke.
- importo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, import.
- imprōvisus, adj. sudden, unexpected; de imprōviso, unexpectedly.
- imprūdēns, adj. -entis, unaware.
- imprūdētia, 1, f. want of foresight, imprudence.
- imus, adj. superl. of infra, lowest.
- in, prep. with acc. into, against, in (of motion); with abl. in, among, on.
- inānis, adj. empty.
- incendium, 2, n. fire, conflagration.
- incertus, adj. uncertain, doubtful, unknown, groundless, wavering.
- incipio, v.a. 3, incipere, incēpi, inceptum, begin (in-capio).
- incito, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, excite, spur on; with se, rush; with remis incitare, row hard.
- incognitus, adj. unknown.
- incōlo, v.a. 3, incolui, incultum, inhabit.
- incollūmis, adj. safe, unharmed.
- incommōde, adv. unfortunately.
- incommōdum, 2, n. mishap, injury, disadvantage, trouble.
- incrēdibilis, adj. incredible.
- incursio, 3, f. -ōnis, raid, foray.
- inde, adv. thence, next.
- indico, v.a. 3, indixi, indictum, appoint, declare.
- indignus, adj. with abl. unworthy.
- indūtiæ, 1, f. in plur. only, +ruce, armistice.
- inco, v.a. and n. 4, irreg. inire, inii or inivi, inītum, enter, enter on, adopt.
- iners, adj. inertis, lazy, unskilful.
- infērior, adj. comp. of infra, -ōris, lower.
- infēro, v.a. 3, irreg. inferre, intūli, inlātum, wage (war).
- inficio, v.a. 3, inficere, infēcī, infectum, dye (in-facio).
- infinītus, adj. unbounded, unnumbered.
- infirmītas, 3, f. -ātis, weakness, instability.
- infirmus, adj. weak, feeble, unseaworthy.
- inflūo, v.n. 3, influxi, influxum, flow into.
- infra, prep. with acc. and adv. below.

- ingens, adj. ingentis, huge, vast.
ingrādior, v. dep. 3, ingressus sum, go into, enter (in- gradior).
inīcio, v. a. 3, inīcere, inīēci, in- iectum, lay upon, inspire (in- iacio).
inimīcus, adj. unfriendly, hostile; as noun 2, m. rival, enemy (in-amicus).
inīquus, adj. unequal, uneven, unfair, disadvantageous (in- aequus).
inītiūm, 2, n. beginning.
inīūria, 1, f. harm, injury, wrong, injustice.
iniussu, adv. without order.
inīlgo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, bind on.
inōpia, 1, f. want, scarcity.
inōpinans, adj. -antis, not expecting, surprised, off guard.
inquā, v. defect. inquit, say.
inrumpo, v. n. 3, inrūpi, inrup-
tum, burst in, dash in.
insciens, adj. -entis, unaware.
insciū, adj. ignorant, unawares.
insequor, v. dep. 3, insecūtus sum, pursue, follow.
insīdiae, 1, f. plur. ambush, treachery.
insinuo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, with se, work one's way into.
insisto, v. n. 3, instīti, stand on,
 get firm foothold.
instābilis, adj. unsteady, fickle.
instīgo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, stir up, incite.
instītuō, v. a. 3, instītui, instītū- tum, form, build, begin, set about.
instītūtum, 2, n. custom, mode of life.
insto, v. n. 1, instīti, press on.
instrūmentum, 2, n. furniture, stores.
instruo, v. a. 3, instruxi, instruc-
tum, draw up, equip.
insuēfactus, adj. accustomed, trained.
insuētus, adj. unaccustomed.
insūla, 1, f. island.
- insūper, adv. above, on top.
intellēgo, v. a. 3, intellexi, intel- lectum, perceive, learn, understand.
inter, prep. with acc. among,
 between.
intercēdo, v. n. 3, intercessi, inter- cessum, come between, intervene, pass.
intercipio, v. a. 3, intercēpi, inter- ceptum, cut off, intercept (inter- capio).
interdico, v. a. 3, interdixi, inter- dictum, forbid.
intērea, adv. meanwhile.
interficio, v. a. 3, interficere, in- terfēci, interfectum, kill (inter- facio).
intērim, adv. meanwhile.
intērmo, v. a. 3, interēmī, inter- emptum, kill, destroy (inter- emo).
intērior, adj. -oris, comp. of intra, inner, interior.
intērītus, 4, m. death.
intermittō, v. a. 3, intermīsi, in- termissum, send between, let fall, stop, forego, interpose.
interpōno, v. a. 3, interposui, in- terpositum, interpose.
interpres, 3, c. interpētis, negotiator, interpreter.
intersum, v. n. irreg. interesse, interfui, be between, be present at, intervene, take part in;
impers. interest, it interests.
intervallum, 2, n. space between,
 interval.
intra, prep. with acc. within.
introeo, v. n. 4, irreg. introire, introivi or -ii, introitum, go within.
introitus, 4, m. entrance.
intrōmitto, v. a. 3, intrōmīsi, in- tromissum, bring within, introduce.
intrōrumpo, v. n. 3, intrōrūpi, intrōruptum, burst in.
intus, adv. within.
inīfīlītātus, adj. strange, unaccustomed.

- inutilis*, adj. useless, worthless.
invēnio, v. a. 4. invēni, inventum, find, discover.
invētērasco, v. n. inveteravi, grow old, become established.
invito, v. a. 1. -avi, -atum, solicit, tempt, urge, invite.
invitus, adj. unwilling.
ipse, ipsa, ipsum, pron. self.
is, ea, id, pron. he, she, it, that.
ita, adv. so, thus.
Itaque, adv. and so, therefore.
Item, adv. also.
iter, 3, n. itinēris, journey, way, route, march.
iubeo, v. a. 2. iussi, iussum, order, bid.
iudicium, 2, n. judgment, decision, opinion.
iudico, v. a. 1. -avi, -atum, judge, deem.
iugum, 2, n. yoke.
iumentum, 2, n. beast of burden, baggage animal.
iunctura, 1, f. joining.
iungo, v. a. 3. iunxi, iunctum, join.
ius, 3, n. iūris, right, law, power.
iusiurandum, 2, n. iurisiurandi (both parts declined), oath.
iustus, adj. just.
- L
- Lābor*, 3, m. -ōris, work, toil.
lābor, v. dep. 3. lapsus sum, fail, slip, be disappointed in.
lāboro, v. n. 1. -avi, -atum, labour, toil.
labrum, 2, n. lip.
lac, 3, n. lactis, milk.
lācesso, v. a. 3. laccessivi, laccessitum, harass, provoke, attack.
laetitia, 1, f. joy.
languor, 3, m. -ōris, weariness, listlessness.
lāpis, 3, m. lapidis, a stone.
lassitudo, 3, f. -inis, weariness, fatigue.
lāte, adv. widely, broadly.
- lātītudo*, 3, f. -inis, breadth.
lātus, adj. broad, wide.
lātus, 3, n. latēris, side, flank.
laudo, v. a. 1. -avi, -atum, praise.
laus, 3, f. laudis, praise, glory.
lāvo, v. a. 1. lāvi, lotum, or lautum, or lavātum, wash.
lēgātio, 3, f. -ōnis, embassy.
lēgātus, 2, m. envoy, ambassador, officer. See Intro. p. xxiii.
lēgio, 3, f. -ōnis, legion. See Intro. p. xxii.
lēgiōnārius, adj. belonging to a legion.
lēnis, adj. mild, gentle.
lēniter, adv. mildly, gently.
lēpus, 3, m. lepōris, hare.
lēvis, adj. light, weak, feeble.
lēvitas, 3, f. -ātis, lightness, weakness, fickleness.
lēvo, v. a. 1. -avi, -atum, lighten, relieve.
lex, 3, f. lēgis, a law.
liberaliter, adv. generously.
libēri, 2, m. in plur. children.
libēro, v. a. 1. -avi, -atum, free.
libertas, 3, f. -ātis, liberty, freedom.
licet, v. impers. 2. licuit, it is allowed.
lignātio, 3, f. -ōnis, collecting wood.
lignātor, 3, m. -ōris, wood-cutter.
lis, 3, f. litis, strife, quarrel. See on Bk. v. ch. i. 24.
littēra, 1, f. a letter (of the alphabet); in plur. a letter, despatch.
litus, 3, n. litōris, shore.
lōcus, 2, m. plur. loca, place, spot, district.
longe, adv. far, by far.
longinquus, adj. distant, prolonged.
longitudo, 3, f. -inis, length.
longūrius, 2, m. long pole.
longus, adj. long, distant; navis longa, a man-of-war.
lōquor, v. dep. 3. locūtus sum, speak, talk.

lōrica, 1, f. breast-plate, breast-work.

lūna, 1, f. moon.

lux, 3, f. lūcis, light.

M

Māgis, adv. comp. of magnopere, more.

māgistrātus, 4, m. a magistracy, magistrate.

magnificus, adj. grand, splendid.

magnitūdo, 3, f. -inis, greatness, size, force.

magnopere, adv. greatly, specially.

magnus, adj. great.

maior, adj. comp. of magnus, -ōris, greater; in plur. as noun, ancestors.

mando, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, entrust, commit.

māne, adv. in the morning.

māneo, v. n. 2, mansi, mansum, remain, stay.

mānus, 4, f. hand, band of men.

māre, 3, n. sea.

mār'timus, adj. belonging to the sea, maritime.

mātēria, 1, f. timber.

mātūrus, adj. early.

maxime, adv. superl. of magnopere, chiefly, especially.

maximus, adj. superl. of magnus, greatest.

mēdeor, v. dep. 2, cure, remedy (with dat.)

mēdiocris, adj. moderate.

mēditerrāneus, adj. inland.

mēdius, adj. middle.

membrum, 2, n. limb.

mēmōria, 1, f. memory, tradition.

mensūra, 1, f. measurement.

mercātor, 3, m. -ōris, merchant.

mēridiānus, adj. at noon, mid-day.

mēridies, 5, m. midday, south.

mēritum, 2, n. service, good deed.

mēto, v. a. 3, messui, messum, mow, reap.

mētus, 4, m. fear.

mēus, pron. my.

miles, 3, m. militis, soldier.

militāris, adj. belonging to a soldier, military.

mille, adj. indecl. a thousand; in plur. milia, noun 3, u.; milia (passuum), a mile.

minor, adj. comp. of parvus, -ōris, less.

minuo, v. a. 3, minui, minūtum, lessen.

minus, adv. comp. less.

miror, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, wonder, wonder at.

missus, 4, m. sending.

mitto, v. a. 3, misi, missum, send, hurl.

mōbilis, adj. changeable, fickle.

mōbilitas, 3, f. -ātis, nimbleness, activity.

mōdēror, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, guide, control.

mōdō, adv. only, just. See on Bk. iv. chap. xvi. 20.

mōdus, 2, m. limit, manner; in adv. as a prep. after the manner of.

mollis, adj. soft, shingly (of a beach).

mōneo, v. a. 2, -ui, -itum, advise, warn, remind.

mons, 3, m. montis, a mountain.

mōra, 1, f. delay.

mōror, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, delay.

mors, 3, f. mortis, death.

mos, 3, m. mōris, custom, habit; in plur. character.

mōtus, 4, m. movement, motion, rising, disturbance.

mōveo, v. a. 2, mōvi, mōtum, move.

mūlier, 3, f. muliēris, woman.

multitūdo, 3, f. -inis, multitude, mass, popular assembly.

multo, adv. by far.

multūm, adv. greatly, to a great extent.

multus, adj. much; in plur. many.

is, soldier.
 belonging to a
 y.
 a thousand; in
 m 3, n; milia
 ile.
 of parvus, -ōris,
 inui, minūtum,
 less.
 l, -atus sum,
 r at.
 ing.
 missum, send,
 geable, fickle.
 is, nimbleness,
 l, -atus sum,
 just. See on
 t. 20.
 t, manner; in er the manner shingly (of a
 -itum, advise,
 , a mountain.
 tus sum, de-
 death.
 stom, habit;
 ent, motion,
 e.
 ōvi, mōtum,
 s, woman.
 s, multitude,
 emibly.
 y, to a great
 ; in plur.

mūnio, v.a. 4, -ivi or -ii, -itum, fortify.
mūnitio, 3, f. -ōnis, fortification.
mūnialis, adj. belonging to a wall.
 See on Bk. v. chs. xi. 12, xlii.
 10.

N

Nam, namque, conj. for.
nanciscor, v. dep. 3, nactus or nactus sum, obtain, get, find.
nascor, v. dep. 3, nātus sum, be born.
nātio, 3, f. -ōnis, tribe.
nātūra, 1, f. nature, character.
natus, 4, m. birth, age, only used in abl. sing.
nauta, 1, m. sailor.
nāvālis, adj. belonging to ships, naval.
nāvīgātio, 3, f. -ōnis, sailing, navigation.
nāvīgum, 2, n. ship, boat.
nāvigo, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, sail.
nāvis, 3, f. ship.
nē, conj. lest, in order that . . .
 not; ne . . . quidem, not even.
-nē, interrog. particle joined to first word of a direct or indirect question, whether.
nec, neque, conj. neither, nor.
necessārio, adv. necessarily.
nēcesse, n. indecl. with est, there is necessity, it is necessary;
adv. necessarily. See on Bk.
 . . . ch. v. 10.
nēco, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, kill.
neglēgo, v.a. 3, neglexi, neglec-tum, omit, neglect, disregard.
nēgo, v.a. and n. -avi, -atum, refuse, deny, say no.
nēgōtium, 2, n. business, affair, task.
nēmō, m. neminem (for gen. and
abl. nullius, nullo are used), no one.
nēque. See nec.
neq, nēve = et ne, conj. and that not.
nihil, nil, indecl. n. nothing;

nihilo, adv. by nothing, none
 the . . . (with comparatives).
nisi, conj. if not, unless, except.
nōbilis, adj. of good birth, noble, renowned.
nōbilitas, 3, f. -ātis, nobility.
nōceo, v.n. 2, -ui, -itum, injure, hurt (with dat.)
noctu, adv. by night.
nocturnus, adj. belonging to night, nocturnal.
nōlo, v.n. irreg. nolle, nolui, be unwilling (non, volo).
nōmen, 3, n. nominis, name, fame.
nōminātim, adv. by name, personally.
non, adv. not.
nondum, adv. not yet.
nonnullus, adj. some.
nōnus, ord. num. ninth.
nostr, nostra, nostrum, possess.
pron. our. See on Bk. iv. chs.
 xii. 8, xxii. 4.
nōvem, card. num. nine.
nōvitas, 3, f. -ātis, newness, strangeness, novelty.
nōvus, adj. new, fresh; novae res, revolution; novissimus, last.
nox, 3, f. noctis, night.
nōdo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, strip, lay bare, expose.
nullus, adj. nullius, no.
nūmērus, 2, m. number.
nummus, 2, m. coin.
nunc, adv. now.
nunquam, adv. never.
nuntio, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, announce.
nuntius, 2, m. messenger, message.
nūtus, 4, m. nod, sign.

O

Ob, prep. with acc. on account of.
ōbeo, v.a. and n. 4, irreg. obire, obivi or obii, obitum, go to,
 meet.

- obſicio, v. a. 3, obicere, obiſci,
 obiectum, put in the way,
 hinder (ob-lacio).
oblique, adv. ſlantwiſe.
obſervo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, heed, obſerve, keep.
obſes, 3, c. obſidis, hoſtage.
obſideo, v. a. 2, obſēdi, obſeſſum, beſiege, inveſt.
obſidio, 3, f. -ōnis, ſiege, inveſt-
 ment.
obſtināte, adv. perſiſtently.
obſtrūo, v. a. 3, obſtruxi, obſtructum, build up, barricade.
obtempéro, v. n. 1, -avi, -atum, obey, ſubmit to (with dat.) obtimeo, v. a. 2, obtinui, obten-tum, hold (ob-teneo).
occāſio, 3, f. -ōnis, chance, opportunity.
occāſus, 4, m. ſetting (of ſun).
occidens, adj. -entis, ſetting; as noun, weſt.
occido, v. a. 3, occidi, occiſum, kill (ob-caedo).
occido, v. n. 3, occidi, occiſum,
 fall, die (ob-cado).
occulō, v. a. 3, occultui, occultum, hide, conceal.
occulō, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, hide, conceal Freq. of occulo.
occūpo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, ſeize;
 in paſſ. be occupied in.
occurro, v. n. 3, occurri, occurſum, meet, encounter (with dat.)
octāvus, ord. num. eighth.
octingenti, card. num. eight hundred.
octo, card. num. eight.
octōginta, card. num. eighty.
ocūlus, 2, m. eye.
offéro, v. a. irreg. offerre, obtūli, oblātum, preſent; with ſe,
 meet (ob-fero).
officium, 2, n. duty, ſervice.
omnino, adv. altogether (in abl.)
omnis, adj. all, every.
ōnērārius, adj. of burden; naves
 on. transports, merchantmen.
ōnēro, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, burden, load.
- ōnus, 3, n. onēris, burden, load.
ōpēra, care, attention.
ōpinio, 3, f. -ōnis, belief, reputation, preſtige.
ōportet, v. impers. 2, -uit, it behoves.
opportūne, adv. happily, oppor-
 tunely.
opportūnus, adj. ſuitable, fortunate, opportune.
opprimo, v. a. 3, oppreſſi, oppreſſum, ſurpriſe, overwhelm, crush.
oppugnatio, 3, f. -ōnis, aſſault, ſiege.
oppugno, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, attack, aſſault, ſtorm, beſiege.
optimus, adj. ſuperl. of bonus, beſt.
opus, 3, n. opēris, work.
opus, n. incl. need, neceſſity.
ora, 1, f. coast, region.
ōratio, 3, f. -ōnis, ſpeech, harangue.
ōrator, 3, m. -ōris, ſpokesman, ambador.
orbis, 3, m. circle, a military formation. See on Bk. iv. ch.
 xxxvii. 5.
ordo, 3, m. ordinis, rank, row.
ōrior, v. dep. 4 (ſome forms of 3), ortus ſum, ariſe, take riſe.
ōro, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, beg, entreat.
os, 3, n. ōris, mouth, face.
ostendo, v. a. 3, ostendi, ostentum or ostensum, ſhow, make known.
ostento, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, diſplay. Freq. of ostendo. ōvum, 2, n. egg.

P

- Pābūlātor, 3, m. -ōris, forager.
pābūlor, v. dep. 1, -atus ſum, forage.
pāco, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, pacify, ſubdue.
paene, adv. almoſt.

- paenitet, v. impera. 2, paenituit, it repents; me paenitet huius, I repent of this.
 págus, 2, m. canton, district.
 pálam, adv. openly.
 pálus, 3, f. páldús, marsh, morass.
 par, adj. páris, equal, fair.
 parco, v.n. 3, peperci, parsum (rare), spare (with dat.) párens, 3, c. -entis, parent.
 páreo, v.n. 2, -ui, obey (with dat.) pário, v.a. 3, parere, pépéri, partum, bring forth, acquire.
 páro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, make ready, prepare.
 pars, 3, f. partis, part, share.
 partim, adv. partly.
 parvulus, adj. very small.
 passim, adv. in all directions, everywhere.
 passus, 4, m. a pace, step (about 5 ft.); mille passuum, a Roman mile (of 1018 yds.)
 páteo, v.n. 2, -ui, lie open, stretch.
 páter, 3, m. patris, father.
 pátientia, 1, f. endurance.
 pátiór, v. dep. 3, pati, passus sum, suffer, allow.
 paucitas, 3, f. -átis, fewness.
 paucus, adj. (mostly as plur.) few.
 paulátim, adv. gradually.
 paulisper, adv. for a short time.
 paulo, adv. by a little, somewhat.
 paulum, adv. a little, slightly.
 pax, 3, f. pácis, peace.
 pécúnia, 1, f. money.
 pécus, 3, n. pecóris, cattle.
 pédes, 3, m. pedítis, foot soldier; mostly in plur. infantry.
 pédester, -tris, -tre, adj. on foot, on land.
 péditátus, 4, m. infantry.
 pellis, 3, f. skin, hide.
 pello, v.a. 3, pépúli, pulsum, drive, rout.
 pendo, v.a. 3, pépendi, pensum, weigh, pay.
 per, prep. with acc. through, by means of, along.
 pérágo, v.a. 3, pérégi, peractum, complete, finish.
 percípío, v.a. 3, percipere, percépi, perceptum, perceive, consider.
 percontátio, 3, f. -ónis, inquiry, question.
 percurro, v.n. 3, percurri, percursum, run along.
 percútio, v.a. 3, percutere, percussi, percussum, strike through, pierce through (perquatio).
 perdiscó, v.a. 3, perdidíci, learn thoroughly, learn by heart.
 perducó, v.a. 3, perduxí, perductum, lead through.
 péreo, v.n. 4, irreg. perire, perii, perítum, perish.
 pérendinus, adj. (with dies), the day after to-morrow.
 péréquito, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, drive through.
 pérexíguus, adj. very small.
 perféro, v.a. 3, irreg. perferre, pertúli, perlátum, bring through, bring, announce, endure.
 perficio, v.a. 3, perficere, perféci, perfectum, perform, accomplish, finish.
 perfidia, 1, f. treachery.
 perfúga, 1, m. deserter, refugee.
 perfúgio, v.n. 3, perfugere, perfúgi, flee, desert.
 perfúgium, 2, n. refuge.
 pérícúlum, 2, n. danger, dangerous attempt.
 perlégo, v.a. 3, perlégi, perlectum, read through.
 permáneo, v.n. 2, permansi, permansum, remain, continue.
 permitto, v.a. 3, permisi, permisum, entrust, allow.
 permóveo, v.a. 2, permóvi, permótum, alarm, disturb, influence.
 permulceo, v.a. 2, permulsi, permulsum, soothe, calm.

- perpaucus, adj. very few.
 perpendicularum, 2, n. a plummet; ad perpend., perpendicularly.
 perpētuous, adj. continual; in perpetuum, for ever.
 perrumpo, v.a. 3, perrūpi, perruptum, break through.
 perscribo, v.a. 3, perscripsi, perscriptum, write fully.
 persēquor, v. dep. 3, persecutus, follow, pursue.
 persēvero, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, persist.
 perspicio, v.a. 3, perspicere, perspexi, perspectum, examine, reconnoitre, observe.
 persuādeo, v.a. 2, persuasi, persuasum, persuade of, persuade (with acc. of thing and dat. of person); persuadeo hoc tibi, I persuade you of this.
 perterreo, v.a. 2, perterrui, perterritum, alarm, scare.
 pertimesco, v.a. and n. 3, pertimui, fear greatly.
 pertinācia, 1, f. stubbornness, obstinacy.
 pertineo, v.n. 2, pertinui, stretch, extend, belong, concern (per-teneo).
 perturbātio, 3, f. -ōnis, confusion, panic.
 perturbo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, disturb, harass, perplex.
 pervenio, v.n. 4, pervēni, perventum, arrive at, reach.
 pes, 3, m. pēd- foot.
 pēto, v.a. 3, pēdī or petii, petitum, seek, ask, attack.
 piātas, 3, f. -ātis, filial affection, patriotism.
 pilum, 2, n. javelin.
 pilus, a division of the legion (with primus). See Intro. p. xxiv., and on Bk. v. ch. xxxv. 13.
 pinna, 1, f. battlement, palisade. See on Bk. v. ch. xl. 13.
 piscis, 3, m. fish.
 plāco, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, appease.
 plānus, adj. level.
- plebs, 3, f. plēbis, the common people.
 plēnus, adj. full.
 plērīque, plur. adj. most, for the most part.
 plērūmque, adv. generally.
 plumbum, 2, n. lead; plumbum album, tin.
 plus, adj. comp. of mulum, plūris, more; in plur. several; also adv. more.
 poena, 1, f. penalty, punishment.
 polliceor, v. dep. 2, pollicitus sum, promise.
 pondus, 3, n. pondēris, weight.
 pōno, v.a. 3, pōsui, positum, place, appoint, pitch, lay aside.
 pons, 3, m. pontis, bridge.
 pōpūlor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, ravage, lay waste.
 pōpūlus, 2, m. people.
 porro, adv. moreover, further.
 porta, 1, f. gate.
 porto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, carry.
 portus, 4, m. harbour.
 posco, v.a. 3, poposci, demand, ask.
 possessio, 3, f. -ōnis, possession, property.
 possido, v.a. 3, possēdi, possesum, get possession of, win.
 possum, v.n. irreg. posse, potui, be able, have power.
 post, prep. with acc. and adv. after, afterwards.
 postea, adv. afterwards.
 posteaquam, postquam, rel. conj. (postea, post, are generally separated from the quam), after that, when.
 postērus, adj. next, following.
 postpōno, v.a. 3, postpōsui, postpositum, put behind, esteem less, put off.
 postrēmo, adv. at last.
 postrīdie, adv. on the next day.
 postūlo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, demand, require.
 pōtestas, 3, f. -ātis, power, opportunity.

- praeacutus, adj. sharpened at the point.
- praeceps, adj. praecipitis, steep, headlong.
- praeceptum, 2, n. order.
- praecipio, v.a. 3, praecipere, praecipere, praeeptum, command (prae-capio).
- praecipito, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, throw headlong.
- praecipuus, adj. chief, special.
- praecido, v.a. 3, praecidisi, praecisum, block up, stop, hinder (prae-claudio).
- praeo, 3, m. -onis, herald.
- praeda, 1, f. booty, plunder.
- praedico, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, proclaim, publish.
- praedor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, plunder.
- praefectus, 2, m. an officer. See Intro. p. xxiii.
- praeficio, v.a. 3, praeficere, praefeci, praefectum, put over, put in command of (prae-facio).
- praefigo, v.a. 3, praefixi, praefixum, fix in front.
- praemitto, v.a. 3, praemisi, praemisum, send in front.
- praemium, 2, n. reward.
- praeparo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, prepare beforehand.
- praescribo, v.a. 3, praescripsi, praescriptum, direct, command.
- praesens, adj. -entis, present.
- praesentia, 1, f. praesentia, in praesentia, at hand, on the spot.
- praesentio, v.a. 4, praesensi, praesensum, perceive beforehand.
- praesertim, adv. especially.
- praesidium, 2, n. defence, guard, garrison.
- praesto, adv. at hand, ready.
- praesto, v.a. 1, praestiti, praestitum, display, perform; impers. it is better.
- praesum, v.n. irreg. praesesse, praefui, be over, be in command of.
- praeter, prep. with acc. beyond, besides, except.
- praeterea, adv. besides, moreover.
- praetermitto, v.a. 3, praetermisi, praetermissum, let pass, let slip, lose.
- prauro, v.a. 3, praussi, praestum, burn at the point.
- precem, 3, f. (no nom.), prayer, entreaty.
- premo, v.a. 3, pressi, pressum, press, oppress, crush.
- pretium, 2, n. price, cost.
- pridie, adv. on the day before.
- primo, adv. at first, firstly.
- primum, adv. at first.
- primus, adj. superl. first.
- princeps, adj. principis, first, chief; as noun, a chief, prince.
- principatus, 4, m. chieftainship.
- prior, adj. comp. -oris, former, first (of two).
- pristinus, adj. former, ancient, pristine.
- priusquam (prius is often separated from quam), rel. conj. before that, until.
- privatim, adv. privately.
- privatus, adj. private.
- pro, prep. with abl. in front of, before, instead of, as.
- probo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, prove, show, approve of.
- procedo, v.n. 3, processi, processum, advance.
- procul, adv. at a distance, afar off.
- procumbo, v.n. 3, procubui, procubitum, lean forward.
- procurro, v.n. 3, procurri, procursum, run forward, advance.
- prodeco, v.n. 4, irreg. prodire, prodivi or prodii, proditum, go forward, go forth.
- prodo, v.a. 3, prodidi, proditum, hand down, betray.
- prodico, v.a. 3, produxi, productum, lead forward, prolong.

- proellor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, fight.
proellium, 2, n. fight.
prœfectio, 3, f. -ōnis, departure, start.
prœficiō, v.a. 3, proficere, profēci, profectum, accomplish.
prœficiscor, v. dep. 3, profectus sum, set out, start.
prœfiteor, v. dep. 2, professus sum, promise.
prœflūo, v.n. 3, profluxi, profluxum, flow forth, issue.
prœfugio, v.n. 3, profugere, profūgi, run away.
prœgrēdiōr, v. dep. 3, progressus sum, advance (pro-gradior).
prœhibeo, v.a. 2, -ui, -itum, prevent, hinder (pro-habeo).
prœicio, v.a. 3, proicere, proiēci, proiectum, throw forward (pro-icio).
prœinde, adv. therefore.
prœmissus, adj. long.
prœne, adv. sloping.
prœnuntiō, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, declare, proclaim.
prœpe, prep. with acc. near; adv. nearly.
prœpello, v.a. 3, propūli, propulsum, drive forwards, drive away.
prœpinquus, adj. near, neighbouring; as noun, kinsman.
prœpius, comp. of prope, prep. with acc. nearer to; adv. nearer.
prœpōno, v.a. 3, propōsui, propositum, set before, offer, represent.
propter, prep. with acc. on account of.
propterea, adv. therefore; with quam, because, for this reason that.
prœpugno, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, fight in front, rush forward to fight.
prœsequor, v. dep. 3, prosecūtus sum, follow, pursue.
prospectus, 4, m. sight.
- prospicio, v.a. 3, prospicere, prospexi, prospectum, see ahead, take care.
prôtēgo, v.a. 3, protexi, protectum, guard, protect.
proterreo, v.a. 2, -ui, -itum, frighten away.
prôtinus, adv. forthwith.
prôvêho, v.a. 3, provexi, provec-tum, carry forward; in pass. put out to sea.
prôvênio, v.n. 4, provēni, proven-tum, come forth, grow.
prôvideo, v.a. 2, providi, provi-sum, make provision for, care for.
prôvincia, 1, f. province.
proxime, adv. superl. of prope, most recently.
proximus, adj. superl. of prope, nearest, next.
pūbes, adj. pubēris, adult.
publice, adv. publicly, as a nation.
publico, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, confiscate.
pūer, 2, m. boy; a pueris, from boyhood.
pugna, 1, f. fight, battle.
pugno, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, fight.
pulvis, 3, m. pulvērīs, dust.
purgo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, excuse, exculpate.
pūto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, think, consider, deem.

Q

- Qua, rel. and interrog. adv. by which way, where.
quadrāgēni, dist. num. forty each.
quadrāginta, card. num. forty.
quadringenti, card. num. four hundred.
quaero, v.a. 3, quaesivi, quaesitum, seek, ask.
quaestor, 3, m. -ōris, quaestor. See Intro. p. xxiii.
quam, adv. and conj. how, as, than; with superl. as . . . as possible—e.g., quam celerrime, as quickly as possible.

quamvis, adv. and rel. conj. however, although.
quanto, adv. by how much; quanto . . . tanto, with comp. the . . . the.
quantum, adv. how much, as much as, as far as.
quantus, rel. or interrog. adj. how great, as great as, as much as.
quantusvis, quantavis, quantumvis, adj. as great as you please, however great.
quāre, adv. wherefore.
quartus, ord. num. fourth.
quattuor, card. num. four.
quē, conj. and; que . . . que, both . . . and.
quēror, v. dep. 3, questus sum, complain.
qui, quae, quod, rel. pron. who, which. See Ap. II.
quiscumque, quaecumque, quodcumque, rel. pron. whoever, whatever.
quid? interrog. adv. why?
quidam, quaedam, quoddam, pron. a certain.
quidem, adv. indeed; ne . . . quidem, not even.
quies, 3, f. quiētis, rest, quiet.
quiētus, adj. quiet, calm, peaceful.
quin, adv. nay more. See on Bk. iv. ch. ii. 3; rel. conj. but that, from. See on Bk. iv. ch. vii. 5, and App. II.
quintus, ord. num. fifth.
quindēcim, card. num. fifteen.
quingenti, card. num. five hundred.
quinquāginta, card. num. fifty.
quinque, card. num. five.
quis, quid, interrog. pron. who? what? indef. quae or qua, quid, any, with ne, si. Both interrog. and indef. have forms qui, quod, when in agreement with nouns.
quispiam, quaepiam, quodpiam, pron. some one, any one.

quisquam, quaequam, quidquam or quicquam, any (like ullus, only used with negatives or their equivalents). See on Bk. iv. ch. ii. 2.
quisque, quaeque, quidque, or in agreement with noun, quodque, pron. each, every.
quīvis, quaevis, quidvis, or in agreement with noun, quodvis, pron. any you please.
quo, rel. conj. or interrog. adv. whither; with comp. and subj. in order that; quo . . . eo, with comp. and indic. the . . . the.
quoad, rel. conj. as far as, until.
quod, rel. conj. because, the fact that.
quōminus, rel. conj. by which the less, from; with subj. after verb of hindering.
quōniam, rel. conj. since, because.
quōque, conj. also.
quōtannis or quōt annis, adv. each year. See on Bk. iv. ch. i. 9.
quōties, rel. conj. as often as.

R

Rādo, v. a. 3, rāsi, rāsum, shaved, scrape.
rāpiditas, 3, f. -ātis, swiftness.
rārus, adj. at small intervals, in small bodies, rare.
rātio, 3, f. -ōnis, manner, method, plan, science; habere rationem, have regard to.
rēbellio, 3, f. -ōnis, renewal of war.
rēcēdo, v. n. 3, recessi, recessum, retreat.
rēcens, adj. -entis, late, recent, fresh, new.
rēcēptus, 4, m. retreat, means of retreat.
rēcīpio, v. a. 3, rēcēpi, receptum, take back; se recipere, retreat.

- récito*, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, read out.
récupéro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, recover.
récuso, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, refuse, object to, shrink from.
redeo, v.n. 4, irreg. redire, redii or redivi, reditum, return.
redigo, v.a. 3, redēgi, redactum, bring back, bring to, reduce (red (re), ago).
reditus, 4, m. return.
reddico, v.a. 3, reduxi, reductum, lead back, withdraw.
reféro, v.a. 3, irreg. referre, retulī, relatum, bring back, draw back, repay; referre pedem, retreat.
reficio, v.a. 3, reficere, refēci, refectum, repair (re-facio).
refugio, v.n. 3, refūgi, flee back.
régio, 3, f. -ōnis, district, spot, country.
regno, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, reign.
regnum, 2, n. kingdom, sovereignty.
reicio, v.a. 3, reiēci, reiectum, drive back, repulse (re-iacio).
relego, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, send away, remove.
religio, 3, f. -ōnis, religious scruple.
relinquo, v.a. 3, reliqui, relictum, leave behind, abandon.
reliquus, adj. remaining, additional, rest.
remāneo, v.n. 2, remansi, remansum, remain behind, remain.
remigo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, row.
remigro, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, retire.
remissus, adj. slack, mild.
remitto, v.a. 3, remisī, remissum, send back, let go.
remollesco, v.n. 3, become soft, become enervated.
removeo, v.a. 2, remōvi, remōtum, move back, draw away.
remus, 2, m. oar.
- rēnuntio*, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, bring back news, report.
repello, v.a. 3, reppūi, repulsum, drive back.
repente, adv. suddenly.
repentinus, adj. sudden.
repéro, v.a. 4, repperi, repertum, find, discover.
repéro, v.a. 3, repetīvi or repetīi, repetitum, seek again, reseek.
reporto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, carry back, bring back; victoriam reportare, win a victory.
reposco, v.a. 3, demand back, elaim, exact.
reprehendo, v.a. 2, reprehendi, reprehensum, blame.
res, 5, f. thing, affair. See on Bk. iv. ch. i. 16.
rescindo, v.a. 3, rescidi, recissum, cut down, break down.
reservo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, keep back.
resisto, v.n. 3, restīti, restitum, stand one's ground, resist (with dat.) respicio, v.a. 3, respicere, respexi, respectum, look back, have regard to.
respondeo, v.a. 2, respondi, responsum, answer (with acc. of thing answered and dat. of person).
responsum, 2, n. answer, reply.
respublica, 5, f. reipublicae (both parts declined), the state.
restituo, v.a. 3, restitui, restitutum, restore (re-statuo).
retineo, v.a. 2, retinui, retentum, hold back, retain (re-teneo).
retrāho, v.a. 3, retraxi, retractum, draw back, drag back.
revertor, v.n. 3, reverti, reversum, turn back, return; also dep. revertor. See on Bk. iv. ch. iv. 12.
revincio, v.a. 4, revinxī, revinctum, bind back, fasten, secure.
revoco, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, call back.
rex, 3, m. régis, king.

vi, -atum,
report.
lūli, repul-

repertum,

or repetii,
in, reseek.
um, carry victoriam
ctory.
nd back,

prehendi,

See on

recissum,
n.

um, keep

restitum, sist (with

ere, re-
ok back,

ondi, re-
i acc. of
dat. of

reply.
ae (both
te.

restitū-

entum, neo).

retrac-

back.

versum

so dep.

iv. ch.

revinc-

secure.

m, call

ripa, 1, f. bank.
rivus, 2, m. river.
rōgo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, ask.
rōta, 1, f. wheel.
rūmor, 3, m. -ōris, report, rumour.
rursus, adv. back, again.

S

Saepe, adv. often.
sāgitta, 1, f. arrow.
sāgūlum, 2, n. military cloak.
sālūs, 3, f. salūtis, safety.
sānus, adj. reasonable, sane.
sāpio, v. n. 3, sapere, sapivi or sapii, be wise, have sense.
sātis, adv. enough, quite, fairly;
adj. indecl. sufficient.
sātisfācio, v. n. 3, satisfēci, satis-factum, give satisfaction, satis-fay, make amends (with dat.) Often written satis facio.
saucius, adj. wounded.
scālae, 1, f. plur. scaling-ladders.
scāpha, 1, f. skiff, boat.
scindo, v. a. 3, scīdi, scissum, rend, tear in pieces.
scio, v. a. 4, scīvi, scitum, know.
scribo, v. a. 3, scripsi, scriptum, write.
scūtum, 2, n. shield.
se, sese, reflex. pron. sing. and plur. (all genders), sui, sibi, himself, herself, itself, themselves.
secius, adv. comp. of secus, other wise, less.
secundum, prep. with acc. in accordance with, along.
secundus, adj. second, favourable.
sed, conj. but.
sēdes, 3, f. seat, abode, settlement.
sēmīta, 1, f. path.
sēnātus, 4, m. senate.
sententia, 1, f. opinion.
sentio, v. a. 4, sensi, sensum, perceive, feel.
sēparātus, adj. apart, distinct,
separate.
septem, card. num. seven.
septentriones, 3, m. plur. the seven stars of the Great Bear, the north.
septimus, ord. num. seventh.
sequor, v. dep. 3, secūtus sum, follow, pursue; fidem sequi,
seek the protection of.
sermo, 3, m. -ōnis, conversation, talk.
sēro, adv. late, too late.
sēr, v. a. 3, sēvi, sātum, sow.
servio, v. n. 4, -ivi, -itum, be slave of, serve (with dat.)
servitūs, 3, f. servitūtis, slavery.
servo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, keep,
preserve.
servus, 2, m. slave.
sesquipēdālis, adj. of a foot and a half.
sētius. See secius.
seu, sive, rel. conj. either if, or if, whether; seu (sive) . . .
seu (sive), whether . . . or.
sēvōco, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, call apart, call aside.
sex, card. num. six.
sexcenti, card. num. six hundred.
si, rel. conj. if.
sic, adv. thus.
siccitas, 3, f. -ātis, dryness, drought.
sicut, sicūtī, rel. conj. just as, so
as.
significātio, 3, f. -ōnis, intelligence.
significo, v. a. 1, -avi, -atum, show, express.
signum, 2, n. sign, signal, standard.
silva, 1, f. wood.
silvestris, adj. woody.
similis, adj. like.
simul, adv. at the same time;
simul ac, simul atque (simulac, simulatque), at the same time
as.
simulatio, 3, f. -ōnis, pretence, artifice.

- simûlo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, pretend. See on Bk. iv. chs. iv. 11, vi. 9.
simultas, 3, f. -âtis, rivalry, jealousy.
sin, rel. conj. but if.
sine, prep. with abl. without.
singillatim, adv. singly, one by one.
singulâris, adj. single, individual, remarkable.
singûli, dist. num. one each.
sinister, sinistra, sinistrum, adj. on the left hand.
sinistra, 1, f. left hand.
sino, v.a. 3, sivi, situm, allow, permit.
situs, 4, m. situation.
socius, 2, m. ally.
sol, 3, m. sôlis, sun.
sôleo, v.n. 2, solitus sum, be wont, be accustomed.
sôlîtûdo, 3, f. -inis, desert.
sôllicito, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, tempt, tamper with.
sôllicitûdo, 3, f. -inis, anxiety.
sôllicitus, adj. anxious, disturbed.
sôlus, solfus, adj. alone, only.
solvo, v.a. 3, solvi, solutum, loose; with or without naves, set sail.
spâtium, 2, n. space, distance, interval.
spécies, 5, f. appearance, shape.
spécûlâtôr, 3, m. -ôris, spy.
spécûlâtôrîus, adj. with navigia, spy-boats.
spéro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, hope for, hope.
spes, 5, f. hope.
spôlio, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, strip off, rob, despoil.
sponte, abl. of obsolete word spons, used as adv. voluntarily; sponte sua, of his (their) own accord.
statim, adv. immediately.
statio, 3, f. -ônis, guard, outpost, picket.
stâtuo, v.a. 3, statui, statutum, place, fix, determine.
- stâtus, 4, m. position, circumstances.
stipendium, 2, n. soldier's pay, tribute.
sto, v.n. 1, stëti, statum, stand.
strâmentum, 2, n. straw, thatch.
strêpitus, 4, m. noise, din.
stûdeo, v.n. 2, -ui, be eager for, devote oneself to (with dat.) stûdium, 2, n. zeal, eagerness, enthusiasm.
sub, prep. with acc. of motion (abl. of rest), under, near, close upon, close up to.
subdûco, v.a. 3, subduxî, subductum, haul up, beach.
subductio, 3, f. -ônis, hauling ashore, beaching.
subfôdio, v.a. 3, subfodere, subfôdi, subfossum, stab underneath.
subicio, v.a. 3, subicere, subiëci, subiectum, place beneath, expose (sub-iacio).
sûbito, adv. suddenly.
sublâtus, part. pass. of tollo.
publica, 1, f. pile.
subministro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, supply.
submitto, v.a. 3, submiti, submitsum, send to aid of.
submôveo, v.a. 2, submôvi, submôtum, remove, keep back.
subâsequor, v. dep. 3, subsecûtus sum, follow close up.
subsîdium, 2, n. assistance, reinforcement, resource.
subsisto, v.n. 3, substîti, hold out, stand firm.
subsum, v.n. irreg., subesse, subfui, be close at hand.
subvênio, v.n. 4, subvëni, subventum, come to aid of, succour (with dat.) succêdo, v.n. 3, successi, succesum, come close up, come into the place of, succeed (with dat.) succido, v.a. 3, succidi, succisum, cut down, (sub-caedo).
succurro, v.n. 3, succurri, succur-

- sum, hasten to the aid of, help (with dat.) sūdes, 3, f. stake.
sum, v.n. irreg. esse, fui, be.
summa, 1, f. whole, chief point.
summus, adj. superl. of superus, highest, top, most important, greatest.
sūp̄rior, adj. comp. of superus, -ōris, higher, former.
sūp̄ero, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, overcome, subdue.
supplicatio, 3, f. -ōnis, public thanksgiving. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxxviii. 13.
supplicium, 2, n. punishment.
supra, prep. with acc. above; adv. before, above.
suspicio, 3, f. -ōnis, hint, suspicion.
suspicio, v.a. 3, suspexi, suspectum, suspect.
suspīcor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, suspect, surmise.
sustento, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, support.
sustīneo, v.a. 2, sustinui, sustentum, hold in check, withstand, hold one's ground.
sūus, pron. reflex. his (her, their) own; n. plur. his (her, their) own property.
- T
- Tālea, 1, f. bar.
tālis, adj. such, of such a kind.
tam, adv. so.
tāmen, adv. however, nevertheless, still.
tāmetſi, rel. conj. although.
tandem, adv. at length.
tantūlus, adj. so small.
tantum, adv. so much, only.
tantus, adj. so great, so much.
tardius, adv. comp. of tarde, more slowly.
tēgo, v.a. 3, tēxi, tectum, cover, hide.
tēlum, 2, n. weapon, missile.
- tēmēre, adv. rashly, at random.
tēmēritas, 3, f. -ātis, rashness.
tēmo, 3, m. -ōnis, pole (of chariot).
tempeſtas, 3, f. -ātis, weather, storm.
tempus, 3, n. tempōris, time, season, crisis, emergency.
tēneo, v.a. 2, tenui, tentum, hold, keep, check, keep back.
tento, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, try, attempt. Freq. of tēno.
tēnuis, adj. weak.
tergum, 2, n. back.
terra, 1, f. land, earth.
terreo, v.a. 2, -ui, -itum, frighten, terrify.
terrīto, v.a. 1, frighten, terrify. Freq. of terreo.
terror, 3, m. -ōris, alarm, dread.
tertius, ord. num. third.
testimōnium, 2, n. evidence.
testūdo, 3, f. -inis, tortoise, testudo, a military device. See on Bk. v. chs. ix. 16, xlii. 10, and illustrations.
tignum, 2, n. beam, pile.
timeo, v.a. and n. 2, -ui, fear, dread, fear for (in this sense with dat.)
timīde, adv. timidly.
tīmor, 3, m. -ōris, fear, dread.
tōléro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, bear, endure.
tollo, v.a. 3, sustūli, sublātum, lift up, raise, remove, weigh (anchor), take in hand.
tormentum, 2, n. engine of war. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxv. 5, and illustrations on p. 96.
torreo, v.a. 2, torruī, tostum, scorch.
tot, adj. indecl. so many, as many.
tōtus, adj. totius, whole, all.
trabe, 3, f. trābis, beam.
trādo, v.a. 3, tradīdi, traditum, hand over, hand down.
tradūco, v.a. 3, traduxi, traductum, lead across, convey across (trans-duco).
trāgūla, 1, f. Gallic javelin, lance.
trāiectus, 4, m. crossing, passage.

traicio, v.a. 3, traicere, traieci, traiectum, pierce through, transfix (trans-iacio).
 tranquillitas, 3, f. -atis, calm.
 trans, prep. with acc. across, on the far side of.
 transeo, v.a. and n. 4, irreg. transivi or transii, transitum, cross.
 transféro, v.a. 3, irreg. transferre, transtúli, translátum, bear across, carry over.
 transfigo, v.a. 3, transfixi, transfixum, pierce through, transfix.
 transitus, 4, m. crossing, passage.
 transmárinus, adj. from across the sea, imported.
 transmisus, 4, m. crossing.
 transporto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, convey across.
 Transrhénanus, adj. livi g across the Rhine.
 trécenti, card. num. three hundred.
 trépido, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, be in a panic, be in a hurry.
 tres, card. num. trium, three.
 tribúnus, 2, m. officer, tribune. See Intro. p. xxiii.
 tribuo, v.a. 3, tribui, tribútum, assign, pay.
 tribútum, 2, n. payment, tribute.
 tríduum, 2, n. space of three days.
 triennium, 2, n. space of three years.
 trini, dist. num. three each.
 tripertito, adv. in three divisions.
 triplex, adj. triplicis, threefold.
 triquetrus, adj. triangular.
 truncus, 2, m. trunk.
 tueor, v. dep. 2, tuitus sum, guard, defend.
 tum, adv. then, at that time.
 túmultus, 4, m. disturbance, confusion, rising.
 túmulus, 2, m. a mound.
 turma, 1, f. squadron of cavalry. See Intro. p. xxii.
 turpis, adj. disgraceful, base.
 turris, 3, f. tower.
 tátus, adj. safe.

U

Ūbi, interrog. adv. or rel. conj. where, when.
 ulciscor, v. dep. 3, ultus sum, take vengeance on.
 ullus, adj. ullus, any (after a negative or equivalent of a negative).
 ultérior, adj. comp. -óris, farther.
 últimus, adj. superl. farthest, most distant, last.
 ultro, adv. moreover, of one's own accord.
 ūlúlátus, 4, m. yell, war-cry.
 únā, adv. together.
 unde, interrog. adv. or rel. conj. whence.
 undécimus, ord. num. eleventh.
 undique, adv. from all parts, on all sides.
 úniversus, adj. all together, all, the whole.
 únus, únus, card. num. one, alone.
 usque, adv. continuously; with ad, right up to.
 úsus, 4, m. use, advantage, experience.
 ut, úti, rel. conj. so that, in order that, as. See App. II.
 úter, útra, útrum, útrius, rel. and interrog. pron. which of two.
 úterque, útraque, útrumque, pron. each of two.
 útilis, adj. useful.
 utilitas, 3, f. -atis, expediency.
 útor, v. dep. 3, úsus sum, use, enjoy (with abl.)
 útrimque, adv. on both sides.
 úxor, 3, f. -óris, wife.

V

Vácátio, 3, f. -ónis, exception, freedom from service.
 váco, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, lie waste.
 vádum, 2, n. shallow, ford.
 vágina, 1, f. sheath.

- vāgor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, wander.
- vāleo, v.n. 2, -ui, -itum, be strong, have power.
- vallis, 3, f. valley.
- vallum, 2, n. rampart.
- vārietas, 3, f. -ātis, variety, diversity.
- vasto, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, lay waste, devastate.
- vectigal, 3, n. vectigālis, tax.
- vectigālis, adj. tributary.
- vectorius, adj. for transport.
- vel, conj. either, or.
- vēlōcitas, 3, f. -ātis, swiftness.
- vēlōciter, adv. swiftly.
- vēnatio, 3, f. -ōnis, hunting, chase.
- vēnātor, 3, m. -ōris, hunter.
- vendo, v.a. 3, vendidi, venditum, sell.
- vēnio, v.n. 4, vēni, ventum, come.
- ventito, v.n. 1, -avi, -atum, come often, go to and fro. Freq. of venio.
- ventus, 2, m. wind.
- verbum, 2, n. word.
- vēreor, v. dep. 2, -itus sum, fear.
- vergo, v.n. 3, versi, incline, turn, lie towards.
- vēro, adv. truly, but indeed.
- verso, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, treat, deal alternately with.
- versor, v. dep. 1, -atus sum, be among, go among.
- vērus, adj. true.
- vērūtum, 2, n. javelin.
- vesper, 2 and 3, m. vesperi and vesperis, evening.
- vestigium, 2, n. footprint, trace, spot.
- vestio, v.a. 4, -ivi or -ii, -itum, clothe.
- vestitus, 4, m. clothing.
- vēto, v.a. 1, vetui, velitum, forbid.
- vētus, adj. vetēris, old.
- vexo, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, harass.
- via, 1, f. way, road, journey.
- viātor, 3, m. -ōris, traveller.
- vicem, 3, f. (no nom.), turn; in vicem, in turn.
- vicēni, dist. num. twenty each.
- vicies, viciens, num. adv. twenty times.
- victor, 3, m. -ōris, conqueror; adj. victorious.
- victōria, 1, f. victory.
- vicus, 2, m. village.
- video, v.a. 2, vidi, visum, see; pass. seem; impers. visum est, it seemed good.
- vigilia, 1, f. watch, wakefulness. See on Bk. iv. ch. xxiii. 2.
- viginti, card. num. indecl. twenty.
- vinco, v.a. 3, vici, victum, conquer, prevail.
- vinculum, 2, n. chain.
- vinum, 2, n. wine.
- vir, 2, m. a man.
- virgo, 3, f. virginis, virgin.
- virtus, 3, f. virtūtis, manliness, courage, valour, merit.
- vis, 3, f. force, violence, might; plur. vires, strength.
- vita, 1, f. life.
- vito, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, avoid.
- vitrum, 2, n. woad.
- vivo, v.n. 3, vixi, victum, live, subsist.
- vix, adv. scarcely.
- vōco, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, call, summon.
- vōlo, v.n. 3, irreg. velle, volui, wish, be willing.
- vōluntas, 3, f. -ātis, will, wish, goodwill.
- vōluptās, 3, f. -ātis, pleasure.
- vox, 3, f. vōcis, voice.
- vulgo, adv. commonly.
- vulgus, 2, n. common people.
- vulnēro, v.a. 1, -avi, -atum, wound.
- vulnus, 3, n. vulnēris, wound; in plur. casualties.

INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION SERIES.

12mo. cloth, uniform binding.

THE INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION SERIES was projected for the purpose of bringing together in orderly arrangement the best writings, new and old, upon educational subjects, and presenting a complete course of reading and training for teachers generally. It is edited by WILLIAM T. HARRIS, LL.D., United States Commissioner of Education, who has contributed for the different volumes in the way of introduction, analysis, and commentary. The volumes are tastefully and substantially bound in uniform style.

VOLUMES NOW READY.

1. THE PHILOSOPHY OF EDUCATION. By JOHANN K. F. ROSENKRANZ, Doctor of Theology and Professor of Philosophy, University of Konigsberg. Translated by ANNA C. BRACKETT. Second edition, revised, with Commentary and complete analysis. $1.50.
2. A HISTORY OF EDUCATION. By F. V. N. PAINTER, A.M., Professor of Modern Languages and Literature, Roanoke College, Va. $1.50.
3. THE RISE AND EARLY CONSTITUTION OF UNIVERSITIES. WITH A SURVEY OF MEDIÆVAL EDUCATION. By S. S. LAURIE, LL.D., Professor of the Institutes and History of Education, University of Edinburgh. $1.50.
4. THE VENTILATION AND WARMING OF SCHOOL BUILDINGS. By GILBERT B. MORRISON, Teacher of Physics and Chemistry, Kansas City High School. $1.00.
5. THE EDUCATION OF MAN. By FRIEDRICH FROEBEL. Translated and annotated by W. N. HAILMANN, A.M., Superintendent of Public Schools, La Porte, Ind. $1.50.
6. ELEMENTARY PSYCHOLOGY AND EDUCATION. By JOSEPH BALDWIN, A.M., LL.D., author of "The Art of School Management." $1.50.
7. THE SENSES AND THE WILL. (Part I of "THE MIND OF THE CHILD.") By W. PREYER, Professor of Physiology in Jena. Translated by H. W. BROWN, Teacher in the State Normal School at Worcester, Mass. $1.50.
8. MEMORY: WHAT IT IS AND HOW TO IMPROVE IT. By DAVID KAY, F.R.G.S., author of "Education and Educators," etc. $1.50.
9. THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE INTELLECT. (Part II. of "THE MIND OF THE CHILD.") By W. PREYER, Professor of Physiology in Jena. Translated by H. W. BROWN. $1.50.
10. HOW TO STUDY GEOGRAPHY. A practical exposition of Methods and Devices in Teaching Geography which apply the Principles and Plans of Ritter and Guyot. By FRANCIS W. PARKER, Principal of the Cook County (Illinois) Normal School. $1.50.
11. EDUCATION IN THE UNITED STATES. ITS HISTORY FROM THE EARLIEST SETTLEMENTS. By RICHARD G. BOONE, A.M., Professor of Pedagogy, Indiana University. $1.50.
12. EUROPEAN SCHOOLS: OR, WHAT I SAW IN THE SCHOOLS OF GERMANY, FRANCE, AUSTRIA, AND SWITZERLAND. By L. R. KLEMM, Ph.D., Principal of the Cincinnati Technical School. Fully Illustrated. $2.00.
13. PRACTICAL HINTS FOR THE TEACHERS OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS. By GEORGE HOWLAND, Superintendent of the Chicago Public Schools. $1.00.
14. PESTALOZZI. HIS LIFE AND WORK. By ROGER DE GUIMPS. Authorized Translation from the second French edition, by J. RUSSELL, B.A. With an Introduction by Rev. R. H. QUICK, M.A. $1.50.
15. SCHOOL SUPERVISION. By J. L. PICKARD, LL.D. $1.00.
16. HIGHER EDUCATION OF WOMEN IN EUROPE. By HELENE LANGE, Berlin. Translated and accompanied by comparative statistics by L. R. KLEMM. $1.00.
17. ESSAYS ON EDUCATIONAL REFORMERS. By ROBERT HERBERT QUICK, M.A., Trinity College, Cambridge. Only Authorized edition of the work as rewritten in 1890. $1.50.

THE INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION SERIES. (Continued.)

13. A TEXT-BOOK IN PSYCHOLOGY. By JOHANN FRIEDRICH HERBART. Translated by MARGARET K. SMITH. $1.00
19. PSYCHOLOGY APPLIED TO THE ART OF TEACHING. By JOSEPH BALDWIN, A.M., LL.D. $1.50.
20. ROUSSEAU'S EMILE: OR, TREATISE ON EDUCATION. Translated and annotated by W. H. PAYNE, Ph.D., LL.D., Chancellor of the University of Nashville. $1.50.
21. THE MORAL INSTRUCTION OF CHILDREN. By FELIX ADLER. $1.50.
22. ENGLISH EDUCATION IN THE ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS. By ISAAC SHARPLESS, LL.D., President of Haverford College. $1.00.
23. EDUCATION FROM A NATIONAL STANDPOINT. By ALFRED FOUILLEE. $1.50.
24. MENTAL DEVELOPMENT IN THE CHILD. By W. PREYER, Professor of Physiology in Jena. Translated by H. W. Brown. $1.00.
25. HOW TO STUDY AND TEACH HISTORY. By B. A. HINSDALE, Ph.D., LL.D., University of Michigan. $1.50.
26. SYMBOLIC EDUCATION: A COMMENTARY ON FROEBEL'S "MOTHER PLAY." By SUSAN E. BLOW. $1.50.
27. SYSTEMATIC SCIENCE TEACHING. By EDWARD GARDINER HOWE. $1.50.
28. THE EDUCATION OF THE GREEK PEOPLE. By THOMAS DAVIDSON. $1.50.
29. THE EVOLUTION OF THE MASSACHUSETTS PUBLIC-SCHOOL SYSTEM. By G. H. MARTIN, A.M. $1.50.
30. PEDAGOGICS OF THE KINDERGARTEN. By FRIEDRICH FROEBEL. 12mo. $1.50.
31. THE MOTTOES AND COMMENTARIES OF FRIEDRICH FROEBEL'S MOTHER PLAY. By SUSAN E. BLOW and HENRIETTA R. ELIOT. $1.50.
32. THE SONGS AND MUSIC OF FROEBEL'S MOTHER PLAY. By SUSAN E. BLOW. $1.50.
33. THE PSYCHOLOGY OF NUMBER, AND ITS APPLICATIONS TO METHODS OF TEACHING ARITHMETIC. By JAMES A. McLELLAN, A.M., and JOHN DEWEY, Ph.D. $1.50.
34. TEACHING THE LANGUAGE-ARTS. SPEECH, READING, COMPOSITION. By B. A. HINSDALE, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of Science and the Art of Teaching in the University of Michigan. $1.00.
35. THE INTELLECTUAL AND MORAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE CHILD. PART I. CONTAINING CHAPTERS ON PERCEPTION, EMOTION, MEMORY, IMAGINATION, AND CONSCIOUSNESS. By GABRIEL COMPAYRE. Translated from the French by MARY E. WILSON, B.L., Smith College, Member of the Graduate Seminary in Child Study, University of California. $1.50.
36. HERBART'S A B C OF SENSE-PERCEPTION, AND INTRODUCTORY WORKS. By WILLIAM J. ECKOFF, Ph.D., Pd.D., Professor of Pedagogy in the University of Illinois; Author of "Kant's Inaugural Dissertation." $1.50.
37. PSYCHOLOGIC FOUNDATIONS OF EDUCATION. By WILLIAM T. HARRIS, A.M., LL.D. $1.50.
38. THE SCHOOL SYSTEM OF ONTARIO. By the Hon. GEO. W. ROSS, LL.D., Minister of Education for the Province of Ontario. $1.00.
39. PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICE OF TEACHING. By JAMES JOHANNOT. $1.50.
40. SCHOOL MANAGEMENT AND SCHOOL METHODS. By JOSEPH BALDWIN. $1.50.
41. FROEBEL'S EDUCATIONAL LAWS FOR ALL TEACHERS. By JAMES L. HUGHES, Inspector of Schools, Toronto. $1.50.

GEORGE N. MORANG & COMPANY LIMITED

95 Wellington Street West TORONTO

- Vol. XLII. BIBLIOGRAPHY OF EDUCATION. By WILL S. MONROE, Professor of Psychology and Pedagogy, State Normal School, Westfield, Mass. $2.00
- Vol. XLIII. THE STUDY OF THE CHILD. A Brief Treatise on the Psychology of the Child, with Suggestions for Teachers, Students, and Parents. By ALBERT R. TAYLOR, Ph. D., President of the State Normal School, Emporia, Kansas. $1.25
- Vol. XLIV. FRIEDRICH FROEBEL'S EDUCATION BY DEVELOPMENT. The Second Part of the "Pedagogics of the Kindergarten." Translated by JOSEPHINE JARVIS. $1.50
- Vol. XLV. LETTERS TO A MOTHER ON THE PHILOSOPHY OF FROEBEL. By SUSAN E. BLOW, author of "Symbolic Education," "Mottos and Commentaries of Froebel's Mother-Plays," etc. $1.50
- Vol. XLVI. MONTAIGNE'S THE EDUCATION OF CHILDREN. Selected, Translated, and Annotated by L. E. RECTOR, Ph. D. $1.00
- Vol. XLVII. THE SECONDARY SCHOOL SYSTEM OF GERMANY. By FREDERICK E. BOLTON, Ph. D., Professor of Psychology and Education, State Normal School, Milwaukee, Wis. $1.50

OTHER VOLUMES IN PREPARATION.

THE STUDY OF CHILDREN AND THEIR SCHOOL TRAINING. By FRANCIS WARNER, M.D., F.R.C.P., F.R.C.S., (Eng.) With an introduction by James L. Hughes, Inspector of Public Schools, Toronto. 12mo., cloth, $1.25.

"This volume is written chiefly for teachers, as it deals with the training of children during the period of school life, but interested and intelligent students will find it helpful in its acts and recommendations. All true child study have been written by educators interested in physiological psychology.  Dr. Warner's new book will do great service by revealing to teachers their responsibility for brain training and nerve co-ordination. The culture of the mind, and the improvement of the methods by which culture may be communicated and acquired, are not the highest development of brain cells, for the perfect co-ordination of the sensor and motor brain, and the extension of nerve connections throughout the body. By these methods the race may be made executive and operative, and thus each individual will become a positive agent in a progressive civilization. This is the true educational ideal."—From the Introduction by Inspector James L. Hughes.

MODERN METHODS IN EDUCATION

A Modern English Grammar

By HUBER GRAY BUEHLER

This book is an attempt to present the grammar of modern English in the manner prescribed by modern methods of instruction; and the method adopted cannot fail to commend itself to all progressive teachers as the simplest, most natural, and most conducive to interest in what is apt to be considered the driest of all educational subjects.

PRICE, 75 CENTS

Copies for examination mailed free on receipt of 40 cents.

GEORGE N. MORANG & COMPANY LIMITED
90 Wellington Street West TORONTO

Morang's
20th Century Educational Series

Morang's
Illustrated Classical Series

This new series, prepared by accomplished scholars of great practical experience in teaching, is distinguished by several important features for the first time introduced into Canadian text-books.

Scope.—Each volume is complete in itself, containing biographical, historical, and (where suitable) critical introduction, text, notes, appendices, specimen translations and hints on translation, English exercises for retranslation, and vocabularies.

Introduction.—The great aim is to make the introductions thoroughly readable and interesting.

Illustrations.—The illustrations are mainly authentic drawings from coins, gems, statues, and other objects of ancient art. They are of real value as familiarizing the pupil with results of archæological research. Maps and plans are provided.

Notes.—The notes, besides explaining simply all difficulties in style or allusion, aim at interesting the pupil in the subject matter.

Appendices.—Textual and other criticism beyond the attainments of the average pupil, but useful to the master, is given in appendices.

Translations.—Wherever standard literary translations are available, a specimen is given; this is especially serviceable in the case of poets. In other cases hints on translation are given.

Retranslation Exercises.—Each of the prose books contains exercises for retranslation, carefully compiled so as to practice the pupil in the vocabulary and the constructions of the text.

Vocabulary.—Each volume has a complete vocabulary.

Price.—Each volume is sold at the unprecedented low price of 35 cents.

The following volumes are now nearly ready:

LATIN

Virgil—Æneid. Book I.

Virgil—Æneid. Book II.

Cornelius Nepos. Lives of Themistocles, Aristides and Hannibal'

Cæsar's Gallic War. Book I.

Cæsar's Gallic War. Books IV. and V.

Cæsar's Invasions of Britain,

Cicero—The First Catiline Oration.

GREEK

Xenophon's Anabasis. Book I.

OTHER VOLUMES IN PREPARATION.

Specimen copies mailed free on receipt of price.

Send for Morang's Educational List.

GEORGE N. MORANG & COMPANY LIMITED
90 Wellington Street West TORONTO

Series

3

at practical features for

al, historical,
ces, specimen
retranslation,

a thoroughly

ys from coins,
real value as
t. Maps and

le or allusion,

ments of the
s.

e available, a
of poets. In

ains exercises
pupil in the

i cents.

nnibal'

TED

e 4 f 6 g 8 h 10 i 12 k l 16

A 50
B 48
C
46
D
44
E
42

4 f 6 g 8 h 10 i 12 k 14

N o s t r u m M a r e
C O R S I C A

