'Margaret,'
The GIRL ARTIST, OR,
The Countess of Ferrers
Court.

A month later, the sun, which in England was shining with a sickly affection of geniality, was pouring a flood of warmth and light on every house and street in Naples. Color, warmth, brightness were all there, not in nigardly patches, but in lavish profusion, and in no spot of the enchanted city more profuse than in the palace in which resided the Earl and Countess of Ferrers; for to Naples they had come, and, needless to say, Mr. Austin with them.

But though he had prophesied that Violet should be happier there than she had ever been, his prophecy had not yet fulfilled itself, for even the Naples sun could not thaw Blair's heart, and, as in England, there was still that weary, absent expression in his face which proclaims the man to whom life has become joyless and hopeless.

Of all the noble palaces which the Neapolitans so cheerfully let to the English visitors, the palace Austin Ambrose had chosen was the most sumptuous; and if rooms which emperors might have dwelt in, and surroundings which would have inspired a poet, could have made a woman happy, then Violet, Countess of Ferrers, should have been the most beautified of her sex. But on this glorious evening in spring, she was lying on her couch on the balcony overlooking the bay with the same restless fire in her eyes, the old red fever spots on her cheeks. Leaning over the balcony was Mr. Austin Ambrose, attired in a spotless linen suit, with a cigar between his lips, and his eyes keenly noting the passers by in the street beneath him.

"What are you staring at? Have you become suddenly dumb?" exclaimed Lady Violet, with irritability. "I was looking at the beggars," he said, with a patience in marked contrast to her impatience. "Naples is the paradise of the mendicant. Shall I wheel you nearer the balcony?—you would find them very amusing."

She looked over listlessly. "They are not amusing," she complained, shrugging her shoulders. "At any rate they are a study," he said. "There are beggars of every nationality under the sun, I should think. Strange how easy it is to distinguish them, even through their rags. There is the Neapolitan, for instance, that old man there with the boy; and there is a Spaniard, and there are two Frenchmen, and there is an English girl—" He stopped suddenly, and let his cigar fall to the ground.

"What is the matter?" she asked. "The matter?" he said, turning with a smile, though his face wore a strange expression. "What do you mean?"

"Why did you start as if you had seen a ghost?"
"Oh, come; you are fanciful this evening," he retorted, laughing.
"But you did start!" she persisted, listlessly.
"I never contradict a lady," he said lightly. "But, believe me, the movement was unconscious," and he took out his cigar-case, and languidly chose a fresh cigar, but as he did so, he leaned over the balcony, and keenly scrutinized the crowd beneath; for that which had caused him to start, and drop his cigar, was the form of some one who bore a strange likeness to Lottie Belvoir.

Mr. Austin Ambrose looked in the direction the girl had taken, but she had disappeared, probably up one of the narrow streets, and smiling at the fancied resemblance, he smoked on and devoted his attention to the crowd. Presently a servant came from the room behind them, and handed a card on a salver.

The countess took it languidly. "What a nuisance people are! Did you say that we were not at home?"
"Yes, my lady," said the footman; "but his highness wrote on the card, my lady."

"His highness!" exclaimed Violet contemptuously. "Every second man one meets in Italy is a count or a prince! What is it he has written, Austin? Your Italian is better than mine."

Austin Ambrose took the card. "This is not Italian, it is English," he said. "Prince Rivani begs the honor of the Earl of Ferrers' presence at a conversazione, Palace Augustus, this evening at ten o'clock."

"I thought it was understood that we did not visit," said Violet languidly. "Why do people bother us? Prince Rivani! This is the second time he has left his card."

"His highness is very attentive, at any rate," said Austin, Ambrose. "Shall you go?"

"Seeing that I am not asked," said Violet, "it is not very probable."
"Oh, I expect it is one of those gatherings which the Italians delight in; a little music, a little weak lemonade, and mild tobacco. Blair might like to go."

"Here is Blair to answer for himself," said Violet, as Blair strode on to the balcony.
"What is it?" he said, looking from one to the other.

"Only an invitation," replied Austin Ambrose. "I don't suppose you would care for it. You will be bored to death."

"Prince Rivani! He called the other day," said Blair thoughtfully, as he leant over the balcony. "Would you care to go, Violet?"

"I am not invited," she said impatiently. "Don't you see it mentions you only."

"Ah, yes, a bachelor's party," said Blair. "I may go; it is a lovely day. I have been on the hills, and—Ah!" he exclaimed, and he leant over the balcony.

"What is the matter? Is it anything wonderful?" said the countess, and she rose from the couch and looked over.

Blair bit his lip.
"It is nothing," he said. "I thought I saw someone I knew."

"You are like Austin," she said, coiling herself on the couch again; "he started and dropped his cigar just now."

Blair walked out of her hearing, and beckoned Austin Ambrose.
"Do you know whom it was I saw just now?" he said.
"Couldn't guess," replied Austin.

"It was Lottie Belvoir," said Blair. "Oh, nonsense; it's impossible!" said Austin Ambrose, lightly. "I tell you she is on an English tour at this present moment. How on earth could she be here?"

"I do not know, but I am certain it was she," said Blair, gravely.

"I'll soon convince you," said Austin Ambrose, and he disappeared. He mingled with the crowd for five minutes, then he was back again. "As I thought," he said, with a smile. "She is a Neapolitan girl with a face rather like Lottie's."

"Rather like!" said Blair, with a sigh of relief. "It was an astonishing resemblance, but if you saw the girl closely it is all right."

But the resemblance to Lottie of the girl in rags in the streets of Naples haunted him several times that evening, and on his way to Prince Rivani's rooms, he found himself unconsciously scanning the faces of the women who passed, as if he feared to see the girl.

Of Prince Rivani he had of course heard, but he had not seen him yet, and it was with a languid kind of curiosity that he followed the footman into the salon.

There were about fifteen or twenty gentlemen present, most of them smoking cigarettes, and from their midst a tall, patrician-looking figure came to meet him.

Blair, though he had heard of the prince's popularity and his good looks, was not prepared for so handsome a face; and he was looking at him with interest when he was struck by the expression of the prince's eye. It seemed as if he were regarding Blair with a scrutiny far and away beyond that usual on the part of a host greeting a guest for the first time. The prince's face, too, was pale, and his lips compressed as if by some suppressed emotion. But his courtesy was perfection.

"I am honored, Lord Ferrers," he said, bowing, as he just touched Blair's hand. "Let me introduce you to some friends of mine," and he led Blair round the room, making him known to one and another. There were some Englishmen there—one meets them everywhere, from Kamschatka to the plains of Loos!—and he got into conversation with one and another.

Presently, just as he was thinking of taking his leave, the prince came up to him.

"Are you fond of art, Lord Ferrers?" he inquired, in a grave voice.

Blair shook his head.
"I like a good picture, but I don't know anything about it," he said.

"You have a very fine collection, have you not?"

The prince shrugged his shoulders. "Not so fine as that at Leyton Court, Lord Ferrers," he said, with a bow.

"But I possess one picture which I value above all the others. I am so attached to it that it travels about with me; it is here, in my writing room. Would you like to see it? I think it will repay you for your trouble."

Blair rose at once.
"I should like to very much," he said.

The prince led the way to a small room on the same floor, and stood before a picture, closely curtained.

"You will want plenty of light," he said, turning up the gas as he spoke, "and if you will sit just there, Lord Ferrers, you will be in the most favorable position."

At the same time he himself took up his stand by the curtain, with his eyes fixed piercingly upon Blair's face.

me exactly how this picture strikes you at first sight. You shall examine it closely and criticise it afterward. I ought to tell you that it has made the artist famous."

As he spoke, still keeping his eyes fixed upon Blair's face, he drew the curtain. Blair had not felt much interest in the proceedings, and expected to see some piece of artistic trickery, and so leant back to take it at his ease; when suddenly, as if the veil of the past had been rent asunder, there sprang upon his sight the picture of his Margaret lying on the rocks at Appleford; the exact representation of her death as he had pictured it, alas! how often!

Trembling and almost beside himself, he had forgotten the presence of the prince, who, mute as himself, stood with folded arms regarding him with a stern look.

"Does the picture please you, Lord Ferrers?" he said, and there was something ominous in his voice.

Blair started and turned to him.
"I—I beg your pardon. Yes, it is a marvelous picture. But there is something connected with it; I—"

he sank into the chair and covered his face with his hands.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drew them, I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our show-room and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. Our new RADIO X. Lamp and GASTHEAM Radators fill all light and heat requirements.

LONDON

LONDON, April 3rd, 1916

BRITISH REPRESENTATIVES IN PARIS.
Sir Edward Grey was the only British Minister at the momentous Paris Conference this week who did not take with him his private secretary. Asquith had his son-in-law, Donham-Carter, on whom he always largely depends. Lord Kitchener had Colonel Fitzgerald, who was with him in India and Egypt, and who must not be confused with British Fitzgerald, the well-known stockbroker, who was Lord French's secretary at the front. Sir Edward's chief assistant was O'Beirne, who was officially present as head of the War Department of the Foreign Office. The room in which the conference was held must be familiar to him, for he was there as British representative in 1904 on the Dogger Bank inquiry about Russians firing on our trawlers. Asquith had had two long interviews with O'Beirne, who speaks French fluently, and whose evening have been devoted to diplomatic conversations as important as the most ostentatious discussions at the Conference.

RE-BUILDING AFTER THE WAR
One of the highly-important questions touched upon at the conference of representatives of the Allied Governments at Paris was, I learn, the rebuilding of the devastated areas of Belgium and France after the war. A problem which will come also before the Economic Conference shortly to be held in the French capital. The population of the war-swept areas in Northern France is 7,000,000, while an equal number in Belgium have suffered the wholesale destruction of their buildings, and the effect that reconstruction on such a colossal scale may be expected to produce on the building resources of Europe can only be surmised. Rebuilding on such a scale would at any time tax the resources of the forests of Europe, who do not suffice in normal periods to meet the maintenance requirements of the Continent. There are two ways why after the war European forests will not meet the demand. During the war timber outside of Russia has been cut and destroyed at a rate hitherto unknown in Europe, while elsewhere on the Continent war has obliterated forests. The timber requirements, therefore, will be enormous, and the present is the time to arrange for the supply; but it is probable that, in order to keep down and to systematize the work of reconstruction, the purchases will be made through Government channels.

THE KIND LADY AND THE SOLDIERS.
Some of the incidents at the parties given to the wounded soldiers at Buckingham Palace last week are about the town. One is of a Royal princess asking the soldiers from one hospital and why isn't Miss So-and-So here with you? referring to the lady who had been rather conspicuously zealous at that hospital. "She got the sack," was the unexpected reply, given shyly yet with an unmistakable twinkle. "She used to take the Tommies motor rides in cars lent to us for the purpose, and the rides were her choosing a hat or calling on her lady friends while we waited outside!"

THE STEEL HELMET.
The steel headpieces for protection against shrapnel, which were demanded so dramatically by the officers who jumped from the Strangers' Gallery to the floor of the House of Commons on March 29th, have been very slow in coming to our troops. Although the French reported, as the result of their experiences in the Champagne battles, that they have made reduction in the casualties of almost 50 per cent. Every officer and even soldier in the Champagne offensive wore the steel headpiece. In the Verdun fighting General Pettain is never seen without his helmet. Colonel Churchill has his own helmet, and has been seen yearning it out of as well as in the trenches. One cause of the delay in providing the British helmet has been the number of types with which we have been experimenting. The complaint about the present one is that it is heavy and is worn. It is here, without a proper leather lining. The French helmet is not only serviceable but is also very handsome. Many of the young men at the French front look like statues of Mercury. The Germans have been even slower than ourselves in this matter of helmets.

BRITISH REPRESENTATIVES IN PARIS.

Sir Edward Grey was the only British Minister at the momentous Paris Allies Conference this week who did not take with him his private secretary. Asquith had his son-in-law, Stanham-Carter, on whom he always says he largely depends. Lord Kitchener had Colonel Fitzgerald, who was with him in India and Egypt, and who is not to be confused with Brinsley Fitzgerald, the well-known stockbroker, who was Lord French's secretary at the front. Sir Edward's chief assistant was O'Beirne, who was officially present as head of the War Department of the Foreign Office. The man in which the conference was held must be familiar to him, for he has there as British representative in 1914 on the Dogger Bank inquiry about Russians firing on our trawlers. Asquith has had two long interviews with O'Beirne, who speaks French fluently, and whose evenings have been devoted to diplomatic conversations as important as the more ostentatious discussions at the Conference.

RE-BUILDING AFTER THE WAR.

One of the highly-important questions touched upon at the conference of representatives of the Allied Governments at Paris was, I learn, the rebuilding of the devastated areas of Belgium and France after the war—a problem which will come also before the Economic Conference shortly to be held in the French capital. The population of the war-swept areas in Northern France is 7,000,000, while an equal number in Belgium have suffered the wholesale destruction of their buildings, and the effect that reconstruction, on such a colossal scale, may be expected to produce on the building resources of Europe can only be surmised. There are two reasons why after the war European forests will not meet the demand. During the war timber outside of Russia has been cut and destroyed at a rate hitherto unknown in Europe, while elsewhere on the Continent war has exterminated forests. The timber requirements, therefore, will be enormous, and the present is the time to arrange for the supply; but it is probable that, in order to keep prices down and to systematise the work of reconstruction, the purchases will be made through Government channels.

THE KIND LADY AND THE SOLDIERS.

Some of the incidents at the parties given to the wounded soldiers at Buckingham Palace last week are about the town. One is of a Royal personage asking the soldiers from the hospital "And why isn't Miss So-and-so here with you?" referring to a lady who had been rather conspicuous among the zealous at that hospital. "She used to take us to the motor motor rides in cars lent to us for the purpose, and the rides was her choosing a hat or calling on all her lady friends while we waited outside!"

THE STEEL HELMET.

The steel headpieces for protection against shrapnel, which were demonstrated so dramatically by the officer who jumped from the Strangers' Gallery to the floor of the House of Commons on March 29th, have been very slow in coming to our troops, although the French reported, as the result of their experiences in the Champagne battles, that they have made a reduction in the casualties of almost 50 per cent. Many of the young men at the French front look like statues of Mercury. The Germans have been even slower than ourselves in this matter of helmets.

Mr. Maurice Farqua, whose death in America is announced, was something more than a singer of ditties, for he accomplished a big sartorial development. He it was who, in conjunction with his original colleagues and schoolmaster, Mr. Fisher, introduced on to the stage black silk knee-breeches for evening wear. It was their inspiration which confirmed King Edward in his personal predilection for this garb, and inclined him to make it etiquette for his private parties. Messrs. Fisher and Farqua also wore red evening tail-coats, and King Edward actually had one made, but did not care for it. The color was not satisfactory for a man of robust proportions.

SERBIANS IN LONDON.

Until recently there has been only a handful of Serbians in London, apart from the staff of the Legation. It has been difficult for us to visualise the brave people who held the pass of liberty in the Balkans. This week some hundreds of Serbian soldiers have come over just preceding by a day the arrival here of the Crown Prince of Serbia, and they are already a familiar part of the war pictures of the streets. They are particularly fine looking men, not very tall, sturdy and hard, bright-eyed, and swarthy. The uniform and the graceful cap are sometimes a light-colored khaki, sometimes a grey blue, relieved by touches of color. Some of the most celebrated Serbian professors and writers and the great sculptor Mestrovic are now in London. Claridge's Hotel, where the Crown Prince is staying, will be the Serbian headquarters for the next week. This discreet and elegant hotel has always been the

LEGAL HONOR FOR MR. HUGHES.

The Prime Minister of the Australian Commonwealth has been elected a member of Gray's Inn. He is a lawyer by profession, and it is as a lawyer who has won for himself great distinction in the field of statesmanship that this honor has been bestowed upon him by one of the four legal societies comprising the English Bar. The members of an Inn of Court preside over the regulation of its internal affairs. He is not the first Australian lawyer to enjoy this distinction. Sir Edmund Barton and Mr. Deakin are members of Gray's Inn. So is Sir Alfred Laurier, the late Prime Minister of Canada. Gray's Inn has had a sort of traditional connection with the Colonies. When Mr. Hughes goes to dine in the hall with the members of the society he will find several distinguished men among them. His fellow-benchers include Sir F. E. Smith, the Attorney-General; Mr. Duke, K.C.; and Mr. Campbell, K.C. Mr. Redmond is a member of the Inn. Another honor which is most sparingly given awaits the Australian Prime Minister. He is to be the guest at dinner of the Bench and Bar of England in Lincoln's Inn Hall.

Keep Off the Grass.

The thoughtless fellows blithely pass, and cut a corner here and there, and wear a grass and fill the owner with despair. I try to have a nice lawn, that will do credit to the town; and thoughtless fellows trot thereon, and break the dandelions down. I set out flowers till I go broke—I buy the richest and the best—and bows owned by thoughtless folk come there and knock things gayly west. And thoughtless people let their cows perambulate the town by night, and on the well kept lawns they browse, and make the scenery a sight. And thoughtless people all keep hens, and roosters with destructive feet, which come a-whoooping from their pens, and spoil my flowerbeds and repeat. There's no protection for the jay, who'd make his home a beauty spot; the thoughtless skates will come his way, and climb all o'er his garden plot, and spoil the grass and pluck the flowers, and bark the trees and crush the shrubs; and it will take him nineteen hours to tell just how he views such dups.

Notes From Doyle's.

Since writing you last things in the conversational way have taken on a new turn, fox catching and selling is no longer the absorbing topic, and save for a few rumbles, as a sort of aftermath of the court proceedings of last week nothing is heard but farming talk.

Speaking of rumbles reminds me of an unusual meteorological happening of last Friday afternoon. A large meteor flashed into our atmosphere with loud detonations resembling the discharge of cannon. Many people who heard the sound, but who failed to see the wanderer from space believed it was thunder they heard, and dark masses of cloud in the south west lent belief to the idea. The strange visitor from out remote space was seen travelling across the valley in a northerly direction drawing its tail of fire across the sky. Whence came it and whither it goes? What part of our sphere, if any will arrest the wild career of the shooting star? These thoughts flash themselves on the mind, and lead the thoughts out into the illimitable regions after the charging mass that maybe was launched on its course ere yet this world of ours was an habitable globe.

Turning again to terrestrial affairs your correspondent would like to record the fact that there lives in this valley an aged gentleman, who deserves to have his name enrolled among those who have achieved a great deal in the matter of agricultural endeavour and done much for the good of the country. By patient effort and more than ordinary skill and intelligence he has succeeded in producing a superior variety of potato. Beginning many years ago with his first cultures, he has by careful selection and rejection at length evolved a stable and entirely new variety. The table and keeping qualities of this new potato are of such kind as to recommend themselves to all who have tried them. They are good keepers, hardy and prolific. Nearly all the farmers about here are now growing "Dan's" potatoes. The old gentleman, well past eighty years, is still hale and hearty, and is first to have his seed in the ground.

Donald McIsaac, the successful producer of the new tuber, is the father of Mr. Duncan McIsaac, the enterprising business man of this place, Arch D. McIsaac, the genial postmaster of Upper Ferry and several other sons.

Your correspondent begs to suggest as a mark of appreciation of the old gentleman's successful efforts that the new potato be called Donaldii.

This suggestion is made in this public manner to the Agricultural Society of St. John's. It is also suggested that the Society take some means of ensuring that the fame of Donald McIsaac be made more than a mere local event to be soon forgotten even by those who are most directly benefitted by the production.

New Fish Carrier Purchased.

The two topmast schooner Lucania arrived here last evening from Boston, bringing a cargo of gasoline to Job Bros. & Co. The Lucania was lately purchased by Job Bros. and will be used as a carrier and will be an addition to the local mercantile fleet. The Lucania is 104 tons nett and was built at Gloucester twelve years ago. She is fitted with Bridgeport engines. She was brought here by Capt. A. Norris, son of Mr. J. Norris, of Three Arms. He will remain in charge of her.

Anniversary of Accession.

On May 6th, 1910, King George and Queen Mary came to the throne. This is the sixth anniversary of their accession, and it is the second anniversary which has taken place during the Great War. Although it is not a time of rejoicing, the loyalty and good-will of British subjects will go out to Their Majesties on this day.

The German Reply.

Without the text of the German Reply to the American Note before us, it is difficult to know exactly what the nature of the reply really is. There is a strange conflict of opinion about it. It will be remembered that the brief intimation at first sent by Ambassador Gerard was that the Note was unsatisfactory, but this was afterwards qualified by the statement that this impression had been gathered from the reply before the Ambassador had the opportunity of digesting it. There were also press reports from Berlin which intimated that something further was expected from Berlin, and afterwards there was the publication in Berlin nearly twenty-four hours before its receipt in Washington, giving the impression that the reply was of such a nature that the German people would see that the German Government did not intend to back down from their submarine policy. The messages published this morning make confusion more confounded. The American newspapers read the reply in such a variety of ways, that it is difficult to gather what it really contains. There is no clear and categorical undertaking to abandon the wanton murder of passengers and crews of mercantile ships, as President Wilson demanded. Instead of an absolute undertaking, there is a conditional concession, which will probably mean a concession at all, and an invitation to a prolongation of the discussion instead of an absolute abandonment of submarine warfare against mercantile passengers and crews, and after that a discussion of the limits of submarine warfare so far as belligerent forces are concerned, or in other words, what shall be regarded as a warship and what a mercantile vessel. The reply would appear to be a refusal of President Wilson's demand for the absolute abandonment of this kind of campaign. The German Ambassador, of course, claims the reply is all that the United States can legitimately expect, and it apparently contains enough to make the officials waver as to their original intention of breaking diplomatic relations and this is shown in the improvement in prices of stocks.

C. L. B. CHURCH PARADE.—Tomorrow week, May 14th, the C. L. B. will hold a church parade, attending Divine Service at the C. of E. Cathedral at 2.30 p.m. The recruits now in training, numbering about 60, will be supplied with kit and posted to Companies. A large supply of caps, haversacks, belts and drums have just been received.

FIRST BATCH SICK & WOUNDED.

LONDON, To-day. British official information issued concerning the situation in Mesopotamia says: Lieut. General Lake reports under date of May 3rd, the military situation unchanged; arrival of the first batch of sick and wounded from Kut-el-Amara, recently surrendered by British after long siege, reported by the Corps Commander.

FIGHT WITH SUBMARINES.

LONDON, To-day. The British liner Clan Macfadyn has arrived at Gravesend from Africa somewhat damaged by gunfire from two submarines. The steamer reports first attack on her was made in Bay of Biscay, when the submarine fired 60 shots at her at a range of 50 yards. The steamer immediately brought her big guns into action and hit the submarine several times, and it is believed destroyed it. Three hours later another submarine fired a torpedo, but missed the Clan Macfadyn by a few feet.

DESTROYED AN ZEPPELIN.

ATHENS, To-day. The French flagship Patrie brought down a Zeppelin at 2 o'clock this morning. The airship fell in the Vardar River near Saloniki.

NO SURVIVORS.

LONDON, To-day. The British official statement of the destruction of a Zeppelin during the raid over Saloniki, issued to-day follows: Vice-Admiral De Robeck reports on Thursday morning an Zeppelin approached Saloniki when passing over the harbor sea was fired on heavily and was hit by the fleet and came down ablaze near the mouth of the Vardar River. No survivors.

ACTS OF GALLANTRY.

DUBLIN, To-day. Only one shot has been heard since last night in the city where a house to house search for arms and ammunition is proceeding rapidly. A large quantity of rifles of all calibres have been found by military authorities. Many suspects arrested in all quarters of Dublin will be detained for investigation and trial if the evidence warrants prosecution. Details of fighting during the rebellion reveal many deeds of gallantry; one most striking is that of a young Irish officer who put on the uniform of a captured Sinn Féiner, who mingled several times

IRISHMEN PLAYED ROLE BRITANNIA IN REPLY TO GERMAN'S.
LONDON, To-day. Immediately after the outbreak of the Irish Revolution, German soldiers in the trenches opposite the Irish Division, fighting on the western front, put up signs inviting the Irishmen to join the Germans, according to news received by John E. Redmond, Irish Nationalist leader, from his brother, Capt. William Redmond, now at the front. On the notices were: "Irishmen in Ireland are in revolution." "English guns are firing on your wives and children." "Sir Roger Casement persecuted." "Throw away your guns we give you hearty welcome." Another sign read: "We are Saxons, if you don't fire, we won't." The Irishmen replied by playing Irish airs and Rule Britannia on mouth organs.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR PRYING.

LEEDS, To-day. Albert Bright, from merchant, Sheffield, today was sentenced to perpetual servitude for life. Bright was convicted of collecting and attempting to receive information from workmen employed at ammunition works, concerning the description of war materials. The prisoner pleaded guilty.

SANK TORPEDO BOAT.

ROME, To-day. The French submarine Bernouille sank an enemy torpedo boat at the Lower Adriatic Sea yesterday, says an official communication issued this evening. Five enemy aeroplanes raided Brindisi the same day. The bombs fell on the hospital and four patients were killed and five injured.

AWAITING THE VERDICT.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The German Note has postponed, if it actually has not averted the diplomatic break with the United States. President Wilson will make the decision after he has read the official note which reached the State Department last night. It was said authoritatively that the Cabinet meeting today that if the official text bore out the unofficial version transmitted in today's Berlin news despatch, Germany's assurances undoubtedly would be accepted. Before taking another step the United States would wait fulfillment of her latest promises. In such a case the United States might not reply to the Note and would await the German reply. In the event of Germany's present practices of submarine warfare, which is declared by the German Embassy view, that the United States will not support or delay that it signifies the return to cruiser warfare in the use of submarines of regular naval cruisers intercepting commerce with vindictive search. That inasmuch as it makes no mention of armed ships, the question is that the perplexing feature of the controversy is not involved. Congress took the Note quietly. Although a variety of views were expressed, the general sentiment seemed to be in favor of leaving the situation in the hands of the President. At the State Department, after the situation had been thoroughly discussed at the Cabinet meeting, it was stated that the President would reach his decision before next week.

WAR BUDGET.

NEW YORK, To-day. A gain for Germans north west of Verdun is chronicled both in French and German official communications. North of Hill 304 the Germans gained a footing in French advanced trenches and also occupied French positions west of Avocourt and several trenches southwest of Haucourt. Repeated French attacks against German positions west of Le Mort Homme broke down under German fire. Inclement weather is hampering infantry operations according to latest official communications from Paris and bombardments alone are now taking place. Hill 304 north west of Verdun coming in for bombardment of increased intensity. In the region of Adamell on the Austro-Italian line the fierce fighting which have been in progress for nearly a week continues unabated. Italians heavily shelled the Tullio Bridge head. There have been artillery duels along the Tyrol front. German attempts to dislodge Russians from captured positions south of Olyza station have failed. German attacks on the Russian trenches near Tarnopol. On the Pezera railway near Salsfurt, Asia Minor the Turks again essayed an attack against the Russians but have been repulsed. A night attack by the Turks near Bitlis was also put down. Near Erstigan the Russians captured Turkish trenches, killing, wounding and imprisoning the occupants of them. Two additional Zeppelins have been destroyed, one in the North Sea off the coast of Schleswig, the other at Saloniki. British cruisers destroyed the first, which apparently was out scouting while guns of the Entente Allied fleet at Saloniki brought down the second. Zeppelin wrecked on the coast of Norway several days ago has been blown up by Norwegian soldiers because it was rolling dangerously in strong wind. The Germans on the western front shot down 26 Entente Allied aircraft during April but themselves lost 22 machines, according to Berlin.

ZEPPELIN CRIPPLED.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Rotterdam says Dutch fishing boat reported having sighted Zeppelin L-9 flying extremely low across the North Sea yesterday, apparently badly crippled.

McBRIDE SHOT.

DUBLIN, To-day. It is officially announced that Major John McBride was the eighth leader in the Sinn Fein rebellion to suffer death by sentence of court martial and has been shot. McBride fought throughout the Boer War with the Irish Brigade under General Piet. When the Boers finally surrendered he was his escape and took refuge in Paris. McBride maintained his interest in the Irish political affairs in the extreme or separatist faction of the Nationalist party.

BRITISH COMMENT ON GERMAN REPLY.

LONDON, To-day. The interest with which the German reply to the United States was awaited here could hardly have been exceeded in America. All the evening papers yesterday printed the Note. The greatest curiosity was expressed as to the reception of the Note by the United States. The morning newspapers printed editorials on the Note and express more or less decided opinions of it. The Daily News says: "The essential fact is that America's specific demands are on every point either completely evaded or met by concessions so emasculated by the condition on which it hangs as to be approximately a flat refusal. On a plain reading the German Note is a non possumus, and on the plain reading the American Note foretold a break in the diplomatic relations as a result of the non possumus." The Express characterized the German reply as "insolent, ironical and disingenuous," and declared "it is a ultimatum because it means that unless the United States attempts to force the Allies to raise the siege of German territory, it is likely to be killed at haphazard." "The purpose of the long rigmorole," says the Chronicle, "is simply to gain time. It adorns no fact or argument. It cites no moral or legal principle. It makes no offer to the United States except on terms which render it valueless." The Times says it finds nothing in the German note which is likely to prove satisfactory to President Wilson or American people. The alleged concession contained in it is vague and its scope turns upon a condition which is utterly inadmissible. Moreover, according to the newspaper, there is an evident insidious attempt to embarrass the United States by England and her Allies. "We fancy," the Times adds, "that if Germany wishes to avoid a break in relations, she will have to give us a better and less ambiguous answer to President Wilson's positive demands."

2.00 P.M.

SUSTAINED GREAT LOSSES.

PARIS, To-day. The French evacuated part of their trenches on the northern slope of Hill 304 on the Verdun front west of the Meuse, as a result of unusually violent bombardment by English and German guns. The War Office statement of this morning says, however, that all efforts of the Germans to advance were checked by the trench guns, and that a fresh division of troops which the Germans brought into action sustained great losses.

BREAK AVOIDED TEMPORARILY.

NEW YORK, To-day. Editorial comment of newspapers throughout the country agree generally that the German reply is a compromise that will avert a break with Berlin temporarily, but it is believed that the question of submarine warfare is settled.

DEATH PENALTY COMMUTED.

DUBLIN, To-day. Thomas Hunter and Wm. Cosgrove sentenced to death with Major McBride had their sentences commuted to life imprisonment.

VAGUE HOPE OF PEACE.

LONDON, To-day. The Daily News gives prominent place in to-day's issue to a despatch from Rotterdam, asserting there is strong belief in Holland that peace has been prepared in the hope that it may lead eventually to peace negotiations. The despatch says in part there is a belief here that behind the whole cloud of vague and conditional promises lies the hope that negotiations for peace will be opened with England through the medium of the United States.

MARRIED BEFORE HE WAS SHOT.

DUBLIN, To-day. Joseph Plunkett, one of the leaders of the rebellion, married an hour before he was put to death yesterday. His wife, Mrs. Gifford, widow of Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, sister of one of the first rebels who was put to death.

Electric Cell, Discovered by Chemist, Declared to Renew its Vigor From the Air.
Vienna, April 17.—The Tagblatt says that the Budapest chemist, Dr. Just, who was the inventor of the Wolfgram lamp, has discovered an electric cell with iron and carbon electrodes of an organic substance which renews its vigor completely from the oxygen of the air in a short time. Electrodes having 200 square centimetres surface give a current of 5 to 6 amperes with 25 volt tension. One made was taken from one cell for four hours in succession and the cell was then given half an hour's rest and it was found that its power was completely restored.

British Theatre

Packed Last Ev'ning. The Management of "Creation" Photo-Drama wishes to announce that those who failed to gain admittance last evening will have an opportunity on Friday next, 3 and 5 p.m., to see Part 1 of the Drama. Audiences attending the production of this Drama, which demonstrates the harmony of science history and the Bible, and cultivates love and reverence for the Creator, quickly catch the inspiration which is overtaxing the capacity of the finest auditoriums in our principal cities. Part 2 goes on at 3 and 5 p.m. to-day.

While each part has its distinctive features there is always a blending of the sublime; the pathetic and the dramatic which whets the appetite for the succeeding part. Part two begins with the history of God's typical people, Israel, tracing their national experience down to the Babylonian captivity. A reverential air pervades even the most dramatic features of this great educational programme which is making the Bible a new book to many.

While in the interest of the service it is necessary that children be excluded in the evenings, and accompanied by parents, or guardians in the afternoons, those who have the drama in charge are very desirous that all children have an opportunity to see and hear, and promise that some arrangement will surely be made for them. The feature will be fully announced later.

Please remember the hours, 3 to 5 p.m. daily, except Sundays. All of these entertainments are free.

EARTH SHOCK AT GULL ISLAND.

We learn from passengers that came south on the Fogota that the Lighthouse Keeper at Gull Island—three miles off Cape John—had quite an experience a few weeks ago, when the building in which he lives was shaken by a slight earth shock. The dishes that were on the shelves where thrown to the floor and smashed in pieces and several pictures and ornaments around the house were also broken in a like manner. There was two distinct shocks with about one minute of interval.

The Unexpected Punishment.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON.

"Oh, well, I don't want to live to be old. A short life and a merry one for me." That is the answer a young friend of mine makes when people accuse her of not taking proper care of her health. She cuts down her sleep to five or six hours a night, she doesn't drink half enough water, she doesn't get good enough normal outdoor exercise (dancing doesn't take the place of walking outdoors, you know), and she eats hurriedly and without chewing her food properly.

When people remonstrate with her, she says, "It doesn't do me a particle of harm. When have I been sick? Where do I show it?" Then we tell her that she will suffer for it later, and she laughs and says that she doesn't care if she doesn't live to be old, in fact she doesn't want to.

Old Age is Such a Safe Way Out.

How young people do love to say that! Old age is such a long, safe way off! Who wouldn't barter the years between seventy and eighty for a better time between fifteen and thirty? The young person knows with his mind that some day he will no longer be young, but he doesn't sense it with his heart. "Youth was cheap, therefore we sold it. . . . And to-day we know the fullness of our gain."

By and by when he begins to near thirty, the young person is a little less certain that he wants such a short life. Or perhaps he changes in another way. He doesn't want to live to be old, but he shoves the point at

A New Departure in Grand Falls.

During the past nine months, the Town Hall at Grand Falls has been the scene of crowded public meetings in connection with the war. The meetings in connection with the Aeroplane Fund and the Recruiting Campaign bore splendid fruit, but that held on Tuesday, May 2nd, shows that the community there is not content to work by fits and starts, but is settling down to a period of steady effort. The meeting was called by the Grand Falls Patriotic Association to discuss the following resolution:—

"Whereas it is desirable that a permanent fund be established, this meeting endorses the action of the Patriotic Association in suggesting that a voluntary contribution be collected monthly, the rate to be 1/2% from men earning 18 cents or under per hour, and 1% on all wages above that rate."

Mr. N. Pike, J. P., Deputy Chairman of the Association, occupied the chair, and was supported on the platform by Dr. Chamberlain, Revs. W. Dunn and T. E. Loder, Adjt. Brown, and Messrs. Jos. Goodyear, C. Raines and G. Way. In his opening remarks, the chairman clearly showed to the audience what this proposal meant, and how necessary it was that the Association have a fund to meet any emergency. He quoted figures showing that each man would have to pay, from those at 13 1/2 cents per hour up to the higher paid men at 54 cents per hour.

Dr. Chamberlain then read the resolution, and in proposing it showed how fair it was to all.

Mr. Goodyear seconded the motion, and in a stirring speech drove home to his audience how small after all was the sacrifice asked of them in comparison with the lives of the boys at the front. The insignificance of the monthly contribution was still further emphasized by the statement that many present spent more than at the Nickel.

The other gentlemen on the platform followed up the remarks of the previous speakers, the W. P. A. coming in for a generous share of appreciation, and the amount expected by this systematic method of contribution being estimated at $300.00 per month.

The Chairman now invited discussion by the audience, as it was quite possible that there might have been points left obscure which further discussion would clear up.

Messrs. Dover, Willis, Hobson, J. Hayward, Simmons, Soper, Batstone and Cooper all spoke, but while there were one or two criticisms on details, one and all were heartily in favour of a Permanent Fund being established, and on the vote being taken, the principle was carried overwhelmingly.

Towards the end of the meeting, Mr. William Scott, the General Manager of the A. N. D. Company, moved from the back of the hall, but after hearing the discussion he felt impelled to emphasize that this was to be a purely voluntary effort. If any man present wished to consult him in connection with the matter, he would be pleased to meet him at a convenient time, and after hearing his views, to lay them before the Committee.

During intervals in the proceedings, the Town Band and the Salvation Army Band delighted their hearers with appropriate selections, and congratulations are due both to Bandmasters Kolland and Brewer for the efficiency of the Bandsmen.

The meeting closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

If You Suffer Why Not Write.

MRS. BUTLER WILL TELL YOU HOW SHE FOUND RELIEF.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Have Brought Her Better Health Than She Has Known in Years and She Wants to Tell Others About It.

Colgan, Ont., May 5th. (Special).—Any woman who suffers from kidney trouble should write to Mrs. Alfred Butler, wife of a well known farmer living here. She will tell her what relief is to be found in Dodd's Kidney Pills. For Mrs. Butler is so thankful for the benefit she has received from them that she is anxious to help others.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me a world of good," Mrs. Butler states. "I have taken eight or nine boxes and I am enjoying better health since I began taking them than I have had for years. My troubles were almost too numerous to mention, but I had almost everything that springs from disordered kidneys.

"My heart and nerves still trouble me a little for I work hard. I am a farm woman and do all my own work for six of a family—in and out milking and all such work on a farm.

"I am glad to let anyone know what a splendid remedy I have found Dodd's Kidney Pills to be. Any woman who wishes to write to me I will gladly answer."

"Mrs. Butler feels the gratitude that only those who have suffered and been brought back to health can feel. That's why she is willing to go to so much trouble to let other sufferers know that they can find relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Everyday Etiquette.

"In what cases should a man lift his hat to a strange woman in a street car?" inquired George.

"When he gives his seat to a woman, if he accidentally jostles against her, if he picks up a parcel for her, or if in any way he assists a strange woman in public," said his uncle.

PARIS, May 4. In Argonne our artillery shelled the German works of Chippy Wood and Fille Morte. Mining struggle in this district is to our advantage. West of the Meuse was an exceedingly strong bombardment in the district of Hill 304 and Deadman's Hill. A small German attack on one of our recently captured trenches, was shattered by our curtain of shell fire. East of the Meuse and in Woerve intermittent artillery activity. Nothing to report elsewhere.

Artillery duel was resumed in Dixmude sectors, and north our artillery opened up fire on German batteries and minenwerfers, also on several German lighters moving in the Handzume canal.

South of the Somme an enemy attempt against our trenches of Cappy district completely failed. West of the Meuse, after a very fierce bombardment, the Germans launched yesterday a strong attack on our positions north of Hill 304. This attack was repulsed. East of the Meuse and in Woerve, intermittent artillery activity. Quiet, night on remainder of the front.

THE GERMAN NOTE.

WASHINGTON, May 5. The German note was read by officials with undisguised disappointment. It fails to meet the demands of the United States, charges the States with discriminating against Germany and in favor of Britain, says neutrals cannot expect that Germany, forced to fight for her existence, shall, for the sake of neutral interests, restrict the use of an effective weapon, if the enemy is permitted to continue to apply at will methods of warfare violating rules of international law. The wonder is ironically expressed that the States cannot extend the same sympathy to starving German women and children that it extends to victims of the submarine. The note says the German Government is prepared to do its utmost to confine the operations of war for the rest of its duration to fighting the forces of the belligerents. Some Washington officials fear a break in diplomatic relations.

At the State Department, after a Cabinet meeting, it was stated that no hasty action will be taken on the German note, and that, in view of its length, and the necessity of digesting it carefully, it was improbable that any decision could be reached before next week. Congress received the note quietly, with members expressing a variety of views. The Senators on the Foreign Relations Committee uniformly refrained from comment. Others thought the reply favorable, some doubtful of the conditions apparently attached. Some others thought it has not advanced negotiations towards a settlement at all. On the surface there were no indications of activity by the group which opposed the President's policy in pressing his demands.

Secretary Lansing, this afternoon, said that it was possible that the States might ask Germany for an official copy of the orders to submarine commanders, which has never been communicated to the State Department, so that it might be compared with the new orders described in the note. Lansing would not discuss the note except to say that mistakes in submarine warfare were not admissible, and to reiterate that the States was willing to discuss the conduct of submarine warfare with Germany, after the latter had abandoned the present practices. It was said by the authorities late to-day that if the official text of Germany's note bears out the unofficial copy, transmitted in the news despatches to-day, the States

NEW YORK, May 5. Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, left for Washington early this afternoon, after having received by wireless telegraph at his hotel here the text of the German note. The Ambassador denied himself to interviewers. It is known at the German Embassy that his view is that the note is all for which the States asked, and that it signifies the return of what has been termed cruiser warfare, that is operation by submarines as cruisers, intercepting commerce with visit and search. The Embassy's view is that inasmuch as no mention is made in the note of the question of armament, it is not a complicating feature.

THE PRESS ON THE GERMAN NOTE.

NEW YORK, May 5. Commenting editorially on the German note, the Evening Sun says: We cordially hope that our Government may find in this note a solution of our own difficulties, but as a general indication as respects the prospects of peace, it fills us with gloom. Plainly, Germany is not in the humor yet to heed the counsels of wisdom or of humanity. She is still world-defiant. The Globe says: The reply is thus not to be accepted as a settlement of matters in dispute between the States and Germany. There is no compliance or substantial compliance. The little that it concedes is conceded conditionally. No choice would thus seem open to our Government but to carry out its declared intention and sever diplomatic relations.

The Boston Traveller says: The note is an amusing combination of evasion, denial and irony; in fact it is an invitation to the President to begin a new series of communications; and the services of humanity is dragged in after the President's own quality.

When Rheumatism Strikes the Heart It Kills--"Nerviline" the Cure.

Effect of Nerviline on Chronic Cases is Almost Magical.

Exposure to wet or cold is apt to bring on an attack. The muscles stiffen, the joints swell, and exertion brings on excruciating twinges.

Often the pain shifts from one part to another, and this is dangerous, as the heart is apt to be attacked. Death as a rule follows a heart attack. The pain of rheumatism is quickly rubbed away with Nerviline.

This is a swift, lasting and safe way to cure rheumatism. You can depend on Nerviline. It has the power, the penetrating force, the control over pain that is so essential to a rheumatic remedy.

Lots of testimony to prove Nerviline's certainty to cure.

The following letter is from Mr. E. G. Sautter, Port of Spain, Trinidad: "Last year I was severely troubled with rheumatism. I had it in my arms, shoulders and knees. The pain was at times excruciating, and laid me up so that I couldn't work. I went to Smith Brothers' Drug Store and was advised by the manager to use 'Nerviline.' That was excellent advice. I used Nerviline as directed and was cured, completely cured of every trace of my old enemy."

Once you use Nerviline you'll realize it's different from all the others—that it contains something that gets right "at" the pain the minute you rub it on. The large 50 cent family size is the most economical—get it today, or else the 25 cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere.

fashion, as to make him wonder whether the Kaiser is patting him on the back or poking fun at him.

The Pittsburgh Leader: The latest German note in reply to President Wilson's word on the submarine question, leaves plenty of ground for hope that a working understanding will be reached with lessening friction between the Governments.

Louisville Times: The unofficial text of the German note serves notice on the States that she must either force Britain to end the blockade of foodstuffs, or acquiesce in the continuance of Germany's methods of submarine warfare along the lines already laid down. This means either that the States must recede, or it must break with Germany. The President has announced what his course would be under these conditions, and the country stands with him.

Baltimore News: The States demanded the establishment of a certain status quo. Germany has established it. How long she can or will maintain it is another question, but for the present we are left with nothing to complain of.

Providence Bulletin: The note is a brutal mockery of wounds, again and again inflicted upon us. It is a series of studied insults added to a long inventory of injuries. It amounts to an elaborate and deliberate defiance of the nation whose restraint under persistent provocation has moved half the world to admiration and the other half to scorn. The President must prove that the lofty sentiments he has so often reiterated are not empty words.

Washington Star: If the United States does not obtain from England satisfactory guarantees as to the blockade meeting German rules of warfare, Germany will, it is indicated, re-open the question of submarine warfare in accordance with international law. Thus the apparently unconditional concession it embraced in the orders to submarine commanders, would seem to be in fact contingent for permanent binding force upon the success of future negotiations between the States and England.

Baby's nipple should be washed very carefully. They should be rinsed and dropped into boiling water for a few minutes. They will dry with their own heat when removed, then they should be put away in a glass jar that has also been boiled, covered, and kept out of sight. When handling the sterilized nipple take hold of it by lower rim. Do not touch the part that is to go into the baby's mouth. Never put the nipple in your mouth to test the milk, as the baby might easily be made ill if the mother happened to have a cold or any throat trouble. It will found convenient to have enough bottles, nipples and clean bottle corks for the entire twenty-four hours, and it will be a great saving of time if all the feedings are made up at once. This will also ensure their being of uniform quality.

The exact formula on every can

Even an expert cannot tell by looking at varnish whether it is adulterated. That is why it is so important that you should always buy varnish with a guarantee formula.

DEVOE
VERNOSITE THE LONG LIFE SPAR VARNISH
PALE INTERIOR VARNISH
MARBLE FLOOR FINISH

For outside work and all surfaces exposed to water, use Vernosite. It will not turn white from rain or sleet and the sun will not blister it.

For inside woodwork where extremely transparent varnish is required, use Pale Interior. It preserves the natural beauty of the wood, is hard to mar and won't scratch white.

For all floors use Marble Floor Finish. It waterproofs the wood, and enables it to withstand the severest wear and tear without marring.

We strongly recommend these three varnishes, because the guarantee formulas on the cans prove that they have been properly aged and that they are absolutely free from resin and other adulterants.

Never take chances with varnish. Get Devoe and be sure.

The Bile is an Antiseptic

Everything is good in its place. The bile, which, under certain conditions, causes so much distress, is of the greatest value as an antiseptic and cathartic when it is properly handled by the liver.

The chief function of the liver seems to be the filtering of bile from the blood, where it acts as a poison, and pouring it into the intestines, where it hastens the course of the food mass through the alimentary canal, and by its antiseptic influence prevents fermentation of the food.

When you suffer from biliousness and indigestion and have a coated tongue, bitter taste in the mouth, headaches and loss of appetite, you will do well to look to the condition of the liver. Other symptoms are wind on the stomach, which causes belching, and the formation of gas, which gives rise to dizziness and pains about the heart.

Because the liver has failed, the food in the alimentary canal is fermenting instead of being digested, looseness and constipation of the bowels alternate, the whole digestive system is thrown out of order and the blood is poisoned.

By immediately awakening the action of the liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills affords relief for this condition most promptly. On this account they are generally recognized as the most effective cure for biliousness, liver complaint, indigestion, constipation, and the pains and aches which arise from poisons in the blood. The benefits are lasting because this medicine removes the cause of trouble.

GREATEST FEVER FIGHTER.

Quinine is the greatest fever fighter known to modern science. It is believed to have been discovered by a Jesuit about 1535, and was christened Jesuit's Bark by the Order. Its earliest public use was when the wife of the Viceroy of Peru, the Countess Chinoon, was cured of an attack of fever by the drug. The notoriety given to this valuable drug, through the cure of the countess caused it to be named after its distinguished patient, and the bark was thereafter known as the product of the cinchona tree. This lady brought it to Europe in 1639, and when its value became known it fetched its weight in silver for a certain period. The knowledge of its valuable properties was spread throughout Europe by the Jesuit Brotherhood, and Louis XIV was cured of fever, when Dauphin, through its administration. Sixteen hundred and eighty saw it in general use, and Sir Sans Sloane, the famous Irish physician, introduced it there about 1709. The cinchona plant thrives in India, Jamaica and New Zealand.

From Major Whittaker.

Racecourse, Ayr.
14th April, 1916.
His Excellency the Governor,
St. John's, Nfld.

Your Excellency,
The draft of 153 N.C.O.'s and men under the command of Capt. A. Goodridge arrived all correct on Sunday last 9th April. The men are well up to the standard and already shape well under the drill instructors.

On Wednesday last, 5th April, a reinforcing draft of N.C.O.'s and men with 2nd Lieut. J. Edens as conducting officer, left this station. The conducting officer has returned having handed over the draft all correct at one of the base depots of the British Expeditionary Force. He reports that the base Adjutant stated to him that the drafts of the Newfoundland Regiment were invariably among the best of all the troops who passed through his hands, whether judged by physique, training or discipline.

Last evening, 12th April, a further reinforcing draft of 30 N.C.O.'s and men left with 2nd Lieut. H. K. Goodyear as conducting officer. A nominal roll of this draft is enclosed for Your Excellency's information.

In accordance with the instructions contained in Your Excellency's telegram of 7th April, the following will leave London for St. John's by s.s. Pannonia on Monday next, 17th April: Capt. C. R. Ayre, Lieut. G. Harvey, 2nd Lieut. L. C. Murphy, 2nd Lieut. S. K. Lumsden, Cq. Sgt. Major Watson, Sergt. J. Burns (Musketry Instructor).

I have previously had opportunities of reporting to Your Excellency examples of good work by units of the battalion under my command and I now have the honor to enclose a report voluntarily made by the officer commanding the troopship which conveyed Capt. J. A. Ledingham and 183 other officers and men from this station to Egypt.

Among the enclosures in your Excellency's letters received by the last mail were Warrants for Sergeant Major M. McKay and Bandmaster L. L. Worthington. These have been presented with Your Excellency's congratulations.

Capt. Goodridge also handed to me the Distinguished Conduct Medal awarded to Sergeant Green and Private Hynes. These have been conveyed to O.C. 1st Battalion by the officer conducting the last draft.

In conclusion, I have the honor to report that one of the greatest difficulties with which we were confronted in this battalion appears likely to disappear in a very short while, owing to arrangements that are being made to concentrate the men of the battalion in the buildings of Newton Park School, and the Grand Stand of Ayr Racecourse, where also there is accommodation for canvas quarters adjoining. Until recently there were detachments at Paisley Barracks (distant nearly 60 miles from Ayr), at Galles Camp (12 miles from Ayr), at Glenburn School, Prestwick (5 miles from Ayr), and at Newton Park School and the Racecourse.

An earlier proposal was the transfer of the whole to huts at Bridge of Allan, Strathgairn, but this was countermanded, owing principally to a petition from the Provost and Magistrates of the Burgh of Ayr, who requested that the Regiment might remain with them. This action by the Governing body of the Burgh, is an eloquent testimony to the good behaviour and popularity of the troops from Newfoundland.

I have, &c.
(Sgd.) C. W. WHITTAKER,
Major,
Commanding 21st Nfd. Regiment.

March 21st, 1916.
From O.C. Troops, Caledonia, to O.C. 21st Newfoundland Regiment.

Sir,
I should like to place on record my appreciation of the behaviour of the draft of your regiment on the boat under the command of Capt. J. A. Ledingham.

The men have behaved in an exemplary manner and have been smart on parade and clean and tidy off parade and in their messes.

The officers came under my observation not only in connection with the draft but also on such duties as Orderly Officer, Watch Officer, Submarine Officer and Troop Deck Officer, and in all of these duties I found them not only punctual and efficient, but they also showed common sense in the interpretation of standing orders. I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) J. M. CLUTTON,
Major,
O.C. Troops, H.M.T. Caledonia.

What About Fire Rates

Editor Evening Telegram.
Sir.—The Civic Commissioners may justly feel proud of their work in increasing the water pressure in the city. At Fanning's fire on Sunday night this was fully demonstrated, for so great was the water pressure that it took the crowd by storm, the work of the Commissioners in this respect receiving the praise it so justly deserves.

If Mr. Gosling and his Council did nothing more than this, it would in my opinion be a justification for their appointment. And now, Mr. Editor, seeing that we have the water to cope with their flood, let me ask the Insurance Agents when do they contemplate reducing the premiums on Insurance in this city.

In my opinion now that we have the desired protection there should be no further delay in this matter.
Yours, etc.,
CITIZEN.

Engineer Taken Ill.

Thursday afternoon as Mr. George Buchanan, Engineer of the Court House, was attending to his duties, he was stricken with heart trouble, and for a time it was thought would result in death. Although not feeling well that day he attended work as usual. His wife becoming uneasy visited the basement only to find her husband to all appearances dead on the concrete floor. Hurriedly summoning a cab and with other help she had him conveyed to his residence upstairs and a doctor was immediately summoned. On arrival, Dr. Roberts worked on him and succeeded in relieving the suffer somewhat. Last night, though very weak, he showed signs of improvement, and it is hoped in the course of time to see him at the old stand again.

A RIGHT TO BE HEARD

It is a pity that the man who interrupted the proceedings of the Legislative Council of the House in order that he might state his grievance. He is a more insistent one than Sealing Interests who have the opportunity of protesting at the House last week. It is to be said that the families of the men should be properly notified but the questions are: Who is going to do about it? Who is to pay for it? Who is to pay for the dollars, and not sympathy about them? In addition, Regulations we can supply pay to bring it up to a level we can easily arrange to travel home first class—third class—and we cannot that our men in hospital are plied with a bit of postage that the distinction between moneyed friends and those not be so obvious. These serious questions and solutions. If we want an interest in the war and shall be given for the Country must live for a direct contradiction of the Government to tax the sealing steamers so Excessive profits are the targets for taxation. It is a proposition that falls easier on those who than the taxation on necessary on the man who is struggling two ends meet in these prices. Until Government peoples battles its own ways be trouble. How to Save Your Eyes

Try This Free Prescription.

Do your eyes give you trouble? Do you already wear eyeglasses or spectacles? Thousands of people who are "windows" who might easily dispense with them. You may be one of these, and it is your duty to save your eyes before it is too late. The eyes are neglected more than any other organ of the entire body. After you finish your day's work you sit down and rest your muscles, but how about your eyes? Do you rest them? You know you do not. You read or do something else that keeps your eyes busy; you work your eyes until you are tired to bed. That is why so many have strained eyes and finally other eye troubles that threaten partial or total blindness. Eyeglasses are merely crutches; they never cure. This free prescription, which has benefited the eyes of so many, may work equal wonders for you. Use it a short time. Would you like your eyes troubles to disappear as if by magic? Try this prescription. Go to the nearest optician and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one tablet in 1/2 glass of water and allow it to thoroughly dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. Just note how quickly they become clear up and how soon the inflammation will disappear. Don't be afraid to use it; it is absolutely harmless. Many who are now blind might have saved their eyes had they started to care for them in time. This is a simple treatment, but marvellously effective in multitudes of cases. Now that you have been warned don't delay a day but do what you can to save your eyes and you are likely to thank us as long as you live for letting this prescription. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail. If your druggist cannot, write to them.

A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was submitted, writes: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable eye specialist and widely prescribed by them. I have used it myself and it has cured me of the very few preparations. I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

time when they influence impressionable young minds. However a lot of trouble may perhaps be saved if our Censor-to-be got into communication with the National Board of Censorship in the States, which endeavors to exclude all objectionable pictures. Of course our Censor's decision would be final, but our moving picture companies might save themselves a great deal of trouble if they were sure that his National Board had passed the pictures which they intended to show here. The problems of censorship will be complex. Not only must he (or she?) exclude immoral and objectionable pictures, but must endeavor to raise the standard and encourage the development of pictures which will be educative and of some social service.

Girls! Draw A Moist Cloth Through Hair Double Its Beauty

Try this! Hair gets thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful at once.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain!—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair bath. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine also dissolves every particle of dandruff, cleanses, nourishes and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most, will be after a few week's use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

Historic Table Sold.

At a sale of the fittings and furniture at the old Pall Mall Gazette offices in Newton Street, Kingsway, a mahogany writing table on turned legs, with leather-lined top and a brass plate was sold for £13. The late bore the following inscription: "This is the old starting table of the 'Pall Mall Gazette' and the lineal descendant of Captain Shandon's, the 'first editor of that famous journal, whose beginnings are faithfully recorded by Thackeray in the chronicles of 'Pendennis.' Upon this plain piece of furniture much history has been made. It was used daily from the year 1865 onwards by Frederick Greenwood, John Morley, W. T. Stead, Alfred Milner, E. T. Cook, F. E. Garrett, and J. Alfred Spender, until the year 1892, when, alas! it was found unworthy, and, with revolutionary ruthlessness, was kicked into the cold, a scarred and war-worn veteran, so be sure, but still in robust health."

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS Why Demanded

"Gin Pills did for my husband and me what no other remedy could. I have advised two other parties to use them, one of them being my mother-in-law, who has been a sufferer for upwards of 20 years, and one box cured her, so as to enable her to sleep on her back, something she could not do for many a year. The doctors told her they could not cure her, but could relieve her by an operation for a floating kidney, but on account of her age they did not think it advisable for her to go. Upon my advice she used Gin Pills which cured her and for which she is ever ready to speak in terms of praise."

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

A RIGHT TO BE HEARD.

It is a pity that the Naval Reservist who interrupted the proceedings of the Legislative Council on Wednesday, was not invited to the Bar of the House in order that he might there state his grievance. He has one and a more insistent one than even the Sealing Interests who had an opportunity of protesting at the Bar of the House last week. It is all right to say that the families of these brave men should be properly looked after, but the questions are: What are you going to do about it? How much (in dollars, and not sympathy) do we care about them? In addition to the King's Regulations we can supplement their pay to bring it up to a decent sum—we can easily arrange that they shall travel home first class instead of third class—and we can also arrange that our men in hospital shall be supplied with a bit of pocket money so that the distinction between men with moneyed friends and those without will not be so obvious. These are all very serious questions and need practical solutions. If we want whole-hearted interest in the war and ask that lives shall be given for the Country, then the Country must live for the people. A direct contradiction of this principle was in evidence in the refusal of the Government to tax war profits on the sealing steamers sold to Russia. Excessive profits are the legitimate targets for taxation. It is a reasonable proposition that such taxation falls easier on those whom it affects, than the taxation on necessities falls on the man who is struggling to make two ends meet in these days of high prices. Until Government makes the peoples battles its own there will always be trouble. The people are powerless for instance to fight the Coal Combine unless they organize, and if they do this, they are called revolutionists or some other name. We must make our brave men who fight on land or sea sure that their families are to be protected from excessive war profits, that coal, flour, sugar, tea, molasses and clothing to mention only necessities shall be provided at a reasonable price. It seems to me that the Government should realize that we are living in extraordinary times—should keep in touch with all our supplies of these necessities, so that if an unusual situation arises we shall not be caught in such a predicament as we found ourselves in regard to coal this winter.

It is stated that British shipping made a profit of twenty million pounds in 1914, and a profit of two hundred and fifty million pounds in 1915. The British Government take 50% of this profit, but it still leaves a profit six times that made in 1914. These are startling figures indeed. In our own case increased freight rates account to a great extent for increased prices. The Red Cross Line have thought it necessary to advance their freight rates very considerably since the war. The increase I know amounts to an increase of 150% to 250%. Might not the Government ask them why this is done? Might we not prevail upon the Red Cross Line to give some relief against this unreasonable freight?

THE SAVING OF INSURANCE RATES

The great work of the Civic Commission was the repairing and improving of the water system. This means greater protection in case of fire, and the Commission points out that it should mean reduced insurance rates. Of course we must assume that the first result mentioned was the principal objective. Certainly it should have been, because the saving in insurance rates will affect Water St. firms and the richer class principally—the man in the back street usually carries no insurance. But this same man has to pay his proportion of interest on the amount expended on the new water service, so that it seems reasonable that the amount, or a great part of it, saved by this water service in insurance premiums, should be considered a source of revenue to the City, to be expended either on current account improvements and municipal purposes, or paid into a Sinking Fund to liquidate the loan raised to construct this new water service. It could be raised in the form of a tax of 25% on the Insurance Companies, on the amount received by them in premiums. The latter plan of liquidating loans by the amount of $56,000 each year seems a reasonable one. The heavy interest that the City has to pay will thus be reduced each year, and the result will be a sounder financial standing for the City. I don't think that anyone with the interest of the City at heart can oppose this plan and before the Commissioners decide to ask for a reduction of rates, I think this plan should be considered. The City has borrowed money to make the water service better, so that the benefit of it should be shared in by all. I think the Commissioners persist in their present way the great monetary benefit is going only to the big firms on Water St. and those who can afford to have their houses insured. As a matter of fact there have been few changes for a disastrous fire since the reorganization of the Fire Department after the 1892 fire, and the huge profit of three million dollars that the Commissioners say the Insurance Companies have made here since that fire proves that the Insurance rates are far too high. These Companies have a Union too, and I am very much afraid that it endeavors to keep rates high by thus banding together. In some transactions lately it has been shown that foreign companies were willing to take risks here for less than half the tariff companies here wanted. I should say that at least a tax of 25% could easily be borne by the Insurance people, whilst a further reduction could be made in their rates as well.

TELEPHONE SYSTEM.

I understand that there is still at the disposal of the Government an amount voted for a new telephone system. I seem to remember that the Government Engineer advised against the Colony itself furnishing the system. No one doubts that a new system is needed in the City. The other day I was at a telephone and could not use it because I had to listen to two men talking business and two ladies talking about "calling." They were all talking together! After the war it might be a good thing for the City to take up. With a better system a cheaper rate to households, which would mean eventually bigger revenues, it ought to be a paying thing, and in conjunction with the City Electric Plant make a splendid contribution to the revenues of the City.

CHAIRS, PLEASE!

Most shops provide chairs for their customers, who come in and spend a few minutes making purchases. But it seems to me that in some stores, chairs are more necessary behind the counter. There are girls serving in shops to-day who are practically not permitted to sit down. No chairs are provided for them and they are expected to remain on their feet all day serving or not. I understand that in England there is a law which forces employers to provide chairs for their lady employees, and without further going into the subject and the injury that may be caused by our plea, I think it is time that we had such a law or our Statute Books.

There is another matter which deserves some attention. There are some shops which keep open almost every night in the year and which employ lady clerks who are thus forced to work, without many holidays, morning, noon and night for most of the year. Of course if they were to object they would be told to go, and they cannot afford that. What would be desirable would be some regulation that would give these girls more nights to themselves, and a reasonable time each week to get out in the fresh air. No one is better for working all day and all night, without some change of occupation, and the confinement in some of our dry goods stores is all too evident in the pale faces of the clerks. Some of our stores require lights going all the time, and this is not good enough in this age. We require our factories well ventilated and open to the daylight and we should have our shops equally well looked after.

A CENSOR FOR MOTION PICTURE SHOWS.

I am glad that at last we are to have a Censor to regulate the class of motion pictures that can be shown here. I had expected to see it in the New Charter, but there was nothing there. To my mind we are getting a lot of trashy subjects that are a waste of time to look at, and also a mis-use of

I am about to open a law office in Toronto, where I shall be glad to transact any business committed to my care.

I can be consulted about any affairs here or in Canada, and if it were desired, could take part in the Courts here in any proceedings of which I had sufficient notice.

Toronto is a good centre for investments on mortgage or otherwise. I shall be pleased to make them so as to protect lenders. Those interested in real estate in any part of Canada may consult me.

Until further notice my address will be "502 Kent Building, Yonge Street, Toronto."
