CHAPTER XI.

Kitty looks at his handsome face doubtfully; it is perfectly serene and smiling, and her anxiety is somewhat allayed. "There is a moment's silence, then he says, in a faint voice:

"I wonder if I might smoke one little cigarette? It ought to be a long clay pipe to carry out the characters."

"Of course you may," says Kitty; and then she laughs, for with his right hand he fumbles forgetfully in old Pritchard's blue-coat pocket.

"Let me get them," says Kitty; "Mrs. Pritchard can get them out of your coat."

And, before he can stop her, she jumps up and bounds away. Directly she is out of sight the serene face undergoes a change, becomes white to the very lips, and discovers the pain all evidence of which he has been suppressing so manfully.

"If I could only get her out of the way," he mutters. "I'd rather die than let her see I'm hurt, poor little thing! If I could only get her out of the way!"

But Kitty is not so easily disposed of; in another minute she is back with the cigarette case.

"Quite dry!" she says. "May I light it for you?" she adds, and as he nods she lights the cigarette and hands it to him. He takes it with a sigh of relief. He understands now why the poor fellows in the trenches before Sebastopol clamored for the tobacco beyond anything else in the commissariat!

Then he looks at her.

"Do you know," he says, "I am afraid they will be anxious about you—don't you think you had better go home—ah, no, of course, you cannot in that dress."

"I don't know why not," says Kitty coldly, it is not nice to be told so plainly that your room is more desired than your company. "At any rate, I can go and sit with Mrs. Pritchard."

"Do!" he says heartily, and with something like a groan forcing itself between his clenched teeth.

Kitty surprised, affirmed, rises, but before she can move, the cigarette tumbles from his fingers, and he falls forward.

Without a word, Kitty springs to him and catches him; she is only just in time, if she had been a moment later his head would have fallen on the gravel, instead of being pillowed on her arm.

CHAPTER XII.

LOVE IN THE ABBEY.

FOR a minute Kitty stands with one knee on the seat, her arm thrown round the unconscious form, utterly confounded. Now she understands why he wanted to be alone—that she might not see the full extent of the mischief she had played him; and as she fully realizes it her heart swells and her bosom heaves.

He could smile and talk all this while, and battle with the pain to spare a foolish, wicked, stupid girl's feelings!

She looks down upon the handsome face, that is now as white as her own, and all her heart goes out toward him.

"He bore it all like this to save me!" she murmurs—"to save me! and—and—I hated him!"

These thoughts flash through her brain—one might almost say her heart—with the speed of lightning, and her call for help follows it instantly.

It is answered not only by old Mrs. Pritchard, but by the clatter of horses hoofs and the appearance of Doctor Greene. Doctor Greene is an old man, white-haired, sharp-eyed, one of that school which is dying out. He knows Kitty, and—well, is rather surprised to see her in the position of a nurse, and he shows it.

"God bless my soul, Miss Kitty!" he exclaims, hurrying up. "Fainted! Why on earth didn't you tell me, Pritchard?"

"I—I didn't know, doctor, it was so bad as this!" stammered the old man, fumbling about. "Fetch the brandy, missus."

"No one knew," says Kitty tremulously. "He—he said that he wasn't hurt. It is only just this minute that—that he fainted."

"I see—I see!" says the little doctor taking the brandy and water from Mrs. Pritchard's trembling hand. "Can you hold him a little longer?"

"Yes—yes!" says Kitty, unconsciously pressing the motionless face against her; "I can—I would rather."

"That's right," says the doctor cheerfully. "Now a little brandy and water, so! Sprinkle that water on his face, Mrs. Pritchard; that's it. Ah! he is coming to."

Lord Sterne opens his eyes, and a spasm of pain shoots through him as he does so. But looking up he meets the straight downpour of sweet pity and remorse streaming from Kitty's eyes, and he smiles.

"What, Kitty! This—is this a capital joke! I'm very sorry, doctor," he adds, nodding toward Doctor Greene.

"Would you believe that a man who has come as many croppers in the hunting field as most men, would faint like a woman over a miserable twist of the arm?" "Pon my word, I'm ashamed!"

"Ah!" says the old doctor significantly; "I'll wait a bit before I give my opinion, my lord. Can you sit up?"

—for Lord Sterne had drawn his head from Kitty's arm, slowly and reluctantly enough.

"I—I can hold you a little longer," says Kitty, without a flush; indeed she is too anxious to feel any twinges of maidenly shyness in the matter.

"I can sit up," says Lord Sterne, looking up at her with a strange look in his eyes. "I am all right now—"

"A pair of scissors and a pen knife—thank you!" says the doctor. "We must cut the sleeve away from the arm."

"What! and spoil Mr. Pritchard's best coat! Come, you know!" exclaims Lord Sterne.

"Lord bless 'ee, don'tee mind the coat!" exclaims Pritchard, whereat they all laugh—all excepting Kitty—there is no laughter about her.

"Oh," says the doctor; "ah—hem, Miss Kitty, just rip that seam."

Kitty takes the penknife and does as she is bid, and the sleeve is cut away from the arm.

"Thanks, and now, Miss Kitty, run indoors," says Lord Sterne smilingly. "Eh?" says Doctor Greene, "Miss Kitty nervous? Ah, yes, just so."

But Kitty does not move, she simply shakes her head.

"Not nervous?" says the little doctor. "No, I should scarcely have expected you to be, and I'm glad of it, for I see it is a dislocation, my lord, and—"

Looking round at the trembling old cripple—"I want a strong hand and a steady nerve to help me."

"No!" says Lord Sterne firmly, "no, I won't have it. She—she has had quite enough of it. Let her go in. A young girl is not so strong-nerved as you and I, doctor. Go—Kitty—go!"

But Kitty shakes her head and sets her brows firmly.

"No," she says, looking away from him and at the puzzled face of Doctor Greene. "It was my fault—it was all my fault! and I will stay and help. I am not nervous, and—I will stay!"

Lord Sterne groans.

"Obstinate!" he says.

"Quite right, Miss Kitty," says the doctor; "quite right to help repair any mischief of your own doing, and, after all, it's not a very harrowing affair. The thing is that it must be done at once, it has gone too long, already; upon my word, my lord, I admire your courage. A painful thing like this is not easily borne. Now, then, lean back—can you support this lordship, Miss Kitty? That's it—now."

The replacement of a dislocated joint, when cleverly performed, is a very pretty operation, indeed. But it is about as painful a one as it is possible to go through. Imagine a hollow tooth about the size of a walnut, and with roots as long as a parsnip, being pulled out by a pair of wild horses, and you get some idea of the pleasant sensations which attend the pull, jerk and pull, which the operator gives when he slips the truant bone into its

A GOOD STYLE FOR BUSINESS OR HOME SERVICE.

2636—This is a fine model for slight figures. The skirt and waist may be finished separately. Sain, silk, serge, cotton or wool gabardine, velveteen, chequered or plaid suiting and all wash fabrics are desirable for this model. One could have the dress of satin, with sleeves and belt of crepe.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires 6 yards of 43-inch material. Width of skirt at lower edge is 2 1/2 yards, with plaits drawn out.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A SIMPLE STYLE FOR "ALL THE DAY THROUGH."

2617—This will make a good business dress, or serve for general wear. The right front overlaps the left at the closing. Back and front are arranged to form panels, with plaits at the seams. The design is good for gabardine, jersey cloth, checked or plaid suiting, velveteen and corduroy.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 will require 4 1/2 yards of 44-inch material. Width of skirt at lower edge is 1 1/2 yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Parcel Post for Nfld. Expeditionary Forces!

The attention of the public is drawn to the very urgent necessity of strictly observing the regulations published by this Department from time to time concerning the despatch of parcels to members of the Regiment overseas and the following particulars should be strictly observed:

- (1) Parcels must not exceed eleven pounds.
- (2) Parcels must be addressed with the Regimental number, rank, name and surname of addressee, followed by the last known address of the Unit with which the individual was serving; for example:
No. 0978 Cpl. John J. Kert
2nd Battalion
The Royal Newfoundland Regt., Hazeley Down Camp,
Winchester,
Hant's Camp,
England.
- (3) Parcels should bear the name and address of a second addressee to whom the parcel may be delivered or forwarded, if it should prove impossible to deliver to the first. The Original address should be written on the FRONT of the parcel where the postage stamps and customs declaration are affixed, and the second or alternative address should be written on the BACK of the parcel.
- (4) If second address is not furnished at the time of posting and delivery cannot be effected, the contents of the parcel, unless of exceptional value or of a personal nature, will be turned over to the Military Authorities for distribution.
- (5) Parcels containing articles of personal nature or of special value will be returned if request for their return, in case of non-delivery, is made by the sender, such request to be written on the cover of the parcel at the time of posting.
- (6) The procedure outlined in (4) and (5) is adopted at the suggestion of the British Post Office, to prevent the waste of a large quantity of perishable food stuffs which form the contents of 90 per cent. of parcels sent to soldiers.
- (7) Parcels should be packed securely.
- (8) Attention is drawn to the Notice concerning Christmas parcels recently published by the Postmaster General. All Christmas mail for B. E. F. should be posted in time to arrive at the Pay and Record Office, London, not later than the end of November.

BAVARIAN PREMIER A DANGER.

BERLIN, Nov. 29. Kurt Eisner is beginning to become a tremendous danger to Germany, says the Lokal Anzeiger, in commenting upon the Bavarian Premier in breaking off relations with the German Foreign Office. A similar attitude is taken by the entire Bourgeois Press, and even the Socialist Vorwarts does not believe that Eisner has "taken the right road to assure the unity of the empire and obtain better peace conditions." The Berlin press in general condemns him as an obstinate, impractical dreamer. It is declared that Eisner was born in Galicia and that there is some doubt about his German citizenship, and this intensifies the opposition to him in some quarters.

AGAINST SOCIALIST REPRESENTATION.

PARIS, Nov. 29. A group of members of the Chamber of Deputies representing agricultural interests, have sent a letter to Premier Clemenceau expressing objection to giving special representation to the Socialists at the Peace Congress.

CAMP BORDEN TAKEN OVER.

TORONTO, Nov. 29. Camp Borden with its sixty-four buildings which belong to the Imperial Munitions Board, will be taken over immediately by the department of militia, according to a semi-official announcement at the Imperial Munitions Board offices this afternoon. The land is owned by the militia department and the camp is admirably suited to the purpose of demobilization, hospital or convalescent treatment.

DISCHARGE OF FORTY-YEAR-OLD SAILORS.

PARIS, Nov. 29. The Minister of Marine has ordered the discharge on December 10, unless they prefer otherwise, of all sailors forty years of age or more, or those who are the fathers of at least four children. It is estimated that about 7,000 seamen will thus be released from service in the merchant marine.

STILL THE FINANCIAL CENTRE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29. London is still the financial centre of the world notwithstanding vast loans made by the United States to various countries of Europe, according to a statement issued yesterday by Leopold Frederick, Director of the American Smelting and Refining Co. The bankers of England continue to finance the bulk of the world trade and maintain their supremacy notwithstanding the great financial burden under which the British Empire has been laboring.

HOLLWEGG'S EXPLANATION.

LONDON, Nov. 29. Hollweg admits in the statement that Germany was not surprised at Austria's action regarding Serbia in 1914, but declares he was not aware of the text of the ultimatum before it was despatched, and when he saw it he regarded it too sharp both in its tone and as to the demands made. The former Chancellor says he is anxiously awaiting the day when his case may be judged by an impartial governmental tribunal. "We will admit our errors," he adds, "but will not allow ourselves to be forced to make untrue confessions."

MINISTER'S ACTION APPROVED.

LIMA, Nov. 28. The Cabinet and Senate have approved the action of the Foreign Minister in strongly protesting to Chile against the anti-Peruvian riots at Iquique. It is announced that Peru will demand indemnities for these incidents. The Entente Ministers at Lima called separately upon the Foreign Minister yesterday.

FORMER EMPRESS JOINS HUSBAND.

LONDON, Nov. 29. The former German Empress arrived by train on Thursday at Maarsbergen, Holland, and went by automobile to Amerongen where the former Emperor is staying, according to a Rotterdam despatch to the Daily Mirror. The former Empress seemed in high spirits. She was met at the station by the wife of the German Minister at the Hague. The former Emperor was not at the station and only a few villagers were about. An auto load of baggage was taken to the castle but 20 large trunks were left at the station.

SAYS REVOLUTION MAINPLATED.

LONDON, Nov. 29. The former German Emperor contemplates an early return to Germany to claim his throne, according to news received in London through a neutral source of high standing, says the Daily Mail. The newspaper adds that the revolution in Germany is being managed by officers of the German high command with a view to eventually causing its collapse and the triumphant return of the former Emperor to Berlin. Some of these officers are in civilian clothes and have been recognized in the streets of Berlin. Many of them are reported to be dressed as workmen. The officers harangued the crowds as comrades and in every way encouraged the revolutionary movement. It is said, however, that if opportunity offers they will abandon this disguise, and begin a counter revolution. Agents of these officers, it is declared, are furthering this plot by spreading rumors in every way encouraging the revolutionary movement. Freed from Chronic Pains

To those who are afflicted with the agonies of a chronic aching back, loss of strength, weight and vigor, the case of Mr. P. Herbert of Pleasantville will appeal with special significance. Mr. Herbert had suffered with kidney trouble for years and failed to find a prescription that would give him any relief. Finally he tried Gin Pills because he was impressed by the fact that Gin Pills contained the beneficial ingredient of Juniper without any alcohol being added.

Note these extracts from his letter: "I suffered from kidney trouble for several years, and tried numerous remedies without finding any permanent relief. My case appeared chronic. I knew that Juniper without alcohol was excellent for the kidneys, so I decided to try Gin Pills. One box every three days, and after taking four boxes, I find myself completely cured. I am no longer bad-tempered, have increased in weight and am strong and vigorous again."

Here is another case. Mrs. M. B. Gardner, of Richmond, Va., writes: "My husband was taken with severe kidney trouble last winter, and could not work for some time. He heard of Gin Pills, and after taking one box was able to resume his work. Two boxes relieved the pain in his back, and to-day he is well and strong again."

Gin Pills help others—surely they will do the same for you. Try them. Get a box everywhere. The National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Ontario. U.S. residents should address: N. D. Co., Inc., 502 Main St., Buffalo, N.Y. 19

WHITE STAR LOSSES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29. Ten large steamships aggregating 180,379 tons were lost by the White Star Line during the war, it was learned here to-day. Among those was the Britannic, 48,150 gross tons, torpedoed in the Aegean Sea, in 1916, shortly after her completion while in the British Government service as an hospital ship.

THEIR VISIT OVER.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 29. The Telegram says it understands that the members of the former German Emperor's suite who have been staying at Maarn, Holland, will return to Germany to-day.

GOOD NEWS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29. Price restrictions on bituminous coal may be removed by the Fuel Administration within two weeks. Fuel Administrator Garfield said to-day he hoped to cancel the price regulations not later than the middle of December.

A YEAR'S COST.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29. It cost $5,645,000,000 to run the American army during the year ending June 30 last, $1,368,000,000 for the navy and $1,516,000,000 for the civil government proper. The Shipping Board spent $382,000,000 and $181,000,000 was paid in pensions.

MUST LEAVE AUSTRIA.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 29. Former Emperor Charles has been informed by the government at Vienna that he must leave Austria because of the counter revolutionary movement there, according to a Leipzig despatch patch to the Politiken.

SCHER WRECKED; CREW SAVED.

GLoucester, Mass., Nov. 29. The three-masted schooner Harold B. Cousens was wrecked at Bracon Cove, Cape Ann, to-day. Capt. Carey and his crew of eight men were rescued in an exhausted condition by the Gloucester coastguard. The schooner probably will be a total loss. She was bound from St. John, N.B., for New York with a cargo of spruce lumber.

MUST PAY THE COST.

NEW CASTLE, Nov. 29. Germany must pay the cost of the war to the limit of her capacity, Premier Lloyd George declared in a speech here to-day. The submarine pirates must be punished and whoever devastated the land of another country ought to be made responsible for it. Referring to the culpability of the authors of the crimes, Lloyd George said the Government intended that the investigation to be conducted should be a perfectly fair but stern one, and that it should go on to its final reckoning. I mean to see that the men who did not treat our men humanely be made responsible. The Premier declared that he did not wish to pursue a policy of vengeance, but declared "we have got so to act that men in the future who feel tempted to follow the example of the rulers who plunged the world into war will know what is waiting for them at the end."

WILL BE SEPARATELY REPRESENTED.

PARIS, Nov. 29. (Havas.)—Bavaria probably will ask to have separate plenipotentiaries at the peace negotiations and will claim conditions of a separate peace, says the Matin in commenting on the action of the Bavarians in breaking off relations with the government at Berlin.

Railway Accident Enquiry.

Ingram Rose, sworn and examined by Mr. Mews, B. L.—I was assistant steward on the train which left St. John's on Monday, Sept. 23rd last, and was on her Tuesday afternoon, the time of the accident. We had some delay at Topsail until about 8 o'clock that Monday evening. Nothing happened to cause any further delay on the way over up to the time the accident happened. I was finished clearing up after dinner in the dining car about 4.15 Tuesday afternoon. I went from there through the second class car and into the baggage car and whilst I was in the baggage car this accident happened. I was standing up in the baggage car talking to Rooster, the brakeman, near the side door of the baggage car at the time of the accident. After I had been in the car two or three minutes we felt the car beginning to bump along the track. The baggage man was in the car and was standing more to the other side. As soon as we felt the bumping, the brakeman immediately pulled the emergency cord, which brought the train to a standstill within the space of the length of the engine, as far as I could judge. The brakeman and the baggage man immediately opened the end door and went out; I followed them out. Of course the brakeman and the baggage man went; it was their duty to look after the train more than mine. When I looked out from the end of the baggage car, the second-class car was over the embankment and lying on its side. I did not see it go over the embankment or see it turn over, nor did I see any of the other cars turn over, but they were all lying down on their side when I took notice of them. When I left the baggage car I went over the embankment myself, to the second-class car, as I knew a lady passenger who was on board it, and I went to see if any assistance was required by the passengers on that car. I first saw a soldier who seemed to be in trouble outside the car at the rear end, who seemed to be caught between the car and a tree stump. I don't know his name. I went to him and called another soldier who was near by and we got him clear from the tree which seemed to bind him. As it happened that man was not injured. As the soldiers on board the car were rendering all the assistance required, I went to the dining car. As I passed through the dining car to the baggage car, I did not notice any passengers standing on the platform of any of the cars. There might have been passengers standing outside, but I cannot recall or remember if there were or not. The only thing remaining on the road bed was the leading truck of the second class car. It was off the rails and standing on the ties. Two side wheels of the truck were between the rails and the other side wheels were outside the rails. I don't remember now whether the outside wheels were on the lower or upper side of the track. I did not take much notice of the truck. I noticed the ties were all loose together. I saw the marks of the wheels on the ties for two or three yards. The marks that I took notice of were on the inside of the upper rail. I did not see any marks made by the other wheels. In the meantime I had gone to the dining car to report myself to the steward, as I had left the dining car just before the accident, and then I helped to put out the fire in the dining car which was caused by the stove. I then assisted in moving the luggage up to the house which stood by the track, and generally helped to do anything that was wanting to be done for the passengers. I stood by the dining car all that night. The section men arrived that night and immediately began to repair the track. The next morning Mr. Moore and I walked to Curling. I joined the express service about the first of July and have been working with the Company since then.

Clark-Urban Co.

"The Shepherd of the Hills" dramatized from Harold Bell Wright's novel, was presented by the Clark-Urban Co. last night. The hall was filled and the acting was of the usual standard, and judging by the applause the same was appreciated by the audience. The same play will be repeated at this evening's matinee and again to-night. During the intervals the C.C.C. band rendered suitable music.

Objective Reached.

The Whirlwind Campaign launched to raise ten thousand dollars towards the reduction of the debt on Cochrane Street Methodist Central Church closed to-morrow, when the offering of a grateful and loyal people will be received at the Thanksgiving Services to be held in the church. The canvassers have met with a splendid reception, and the final shot was fired last evening, when Messrs. Mews, Salter and Peters held a meeting at the Battery School House and talked over the campaign and the work of the church. The men present received the deputation kindly and promised the Whirlwind Campaign fund their hearty support.

$6,025 for a Colt

Was the price paid by Mr. Walter Cox for a yearling colt in New York last week, the largest amount paid for so young an animal in the memory of the writer. Probably there never was so valuable collection of baby horses brought to the auction block, for 16 of them brought $38,000. To those who raise good horses in this country, the $6,000 colt is of the most interest, because the half brother "Howard Mann" 2:17 is right here in the city at Westerland. What a value the Americans place on this breed of horses, $6,025 for a colt that would fit in your vest pocket. In 1917 I saw personally another baby half brother of "Howard Mann" 2:17 bring $2,200. A more richly bred horse than "Howard Mann" is scarcely obtainable in the world, and there is no class of horses but would be greatly improved through him.

The Christian Brothers.

To-morrow the Christian Brothers' collection will be taken up in all the Roman Catholic Churches in the city, and it will provide the annual opportunity for those who directly or indirectly have benefitted by the work and ministrations of the good Brothers to show practical appreciation of their affection and gratitude. Every year the total contributions show a decided increase, and this year it is anticipated the increase will be proportionately maintained. It will be needed to meet the higher cost of living. It is a privilege once a year to pay tribute to the splendid work of the Christian Brothers. By their methods and devotion to duty they have wrought an educational revolution in the city and indirectly throughout the country beyond; and they have asked no higher honor than to spend and be spent in the work of training the young and preparing them to be good and useful citizens. To this end they have consecrated their lives, and the only reward they have received is the wealth of gratitude and admiration that is poured out by the ever increasing number who owe success in life to their faithful and inspirational teaching. This gratitude has ever found expression in tangible form when the annual collection comes round, and there is no doubt that the necessary support for which the Brothers are looking to-morrow will be forthcoming.

"Oh! This Shopping"

"It certainly gets on my nerves. I come home all fagged out, and nearly always have a splitting headache. "Yes, they say we women always like shopping. But if everybody feels as tired out afterwards as I do, it is no joke. "I wonder if it is my nerves. I never could stand much sightseeing, anyway. The strain on the eyes seems to exhaust the whole system. "I suppose I shall not be able to sleep to-night, and that will put me in fine condition for to-morrow. "Why don't somebody invent a good medicine for the nerves? "But what was that Mrs. Cray was telling me about? I believe it was Nerve Food—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I have heard so many talking about the way this Nerve Food helped them that I must give it a trial. "And this is what Mrs. Cray of 515 Cedar street, Heterboro, Ont., writes about her experience with this well-known food cure: "I was suffering from a rundown condition of the system, nervous debility and sleeplessness. I lost a good many nights' sleep, and sometimes after going to sleep would wake up with a start, and then lie awake for hours. I also had frequent headaches and pains through my back. I got so that I could hardly do any work. I had taken doctor's medicine, but it did not seem to help me. Through reading in the newspapers of the help others had derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I started taking this medicine. The first box helped me, so I continued, taking about five or six boxes. I found that I was a great deal better, able to sleep well and do my work without any trouble. My headaches and nervousness are gone. My mother lives with me, and she has also found great benefit from the use of the Nerve Food. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervous trouble of any kind. "If you could only read the letters which come to this office from day to day telling of what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is doing for women, and men, too, in all parts of Canada, you would not be long in doubt as to the most satisfactory treatment for tired bodies and exhausted nerves. "All we can do is to pass along the good words by publishing an occasional letter. It remains for you to benefit by using this blood and nerve builder to restore energy and vitality to your exhausted system. "Dr. Chase's Medicines are sold by all Druggists and Dealers in St. John's and the Outports. Wholesale quotations from GERALD S. WOYLE, Water St., St. John's, Sole Agent.

The March of the Women

Do you remember the days when a women's club were made fun of? When discussions of Browning and the Ethical Aspect of This or That were supposed to be their chief activities? When the jest or serious dig about the woman neglecting her home to read a paper at the club was one of the best little jests for newspaper or magazine editors? As you look back on these days, you will find that the women of to-day, and the women of to-morrow, are not only taking notice of their own interests, but are also taking notice of the interests of the world. The women of to-day are not only taking notice of their own interests, but are also taking notice of the interests of the world. The women of to-day are not only taking notice of their own interests, but are also taking notice of the interests of the world.

The March of the Women's Club.

By RUTH CAMEBON.

Do you remember the days when women's clubs were made fun of? When a discussion of Browning and the Ethical Aspect of This or That were supposed to be their chief activities? When the jest or serious dig about the woman neglecting her home to read a paper at the best little tables for newspaper or magazine was very easily, and that isn't an admission of advanced age, either. I was once taking notice fifteen or twenty years ago.

the Council for National Defence, for making garments for refugees out of cast-off clothing

Even Men Copy This. The final harvesting of the crop from a model garden in a small plot of public land in the centre of the city. The half-acre devoted to potatoes and beans produced 52 bushels of the former and 40 of the latter. Methods of preparing the ground for another year are now being demonstrated. Sketches and photographs of these gardens have been made for use of many other communities. (And not by women only either)

If space did not fail me, I could go on for some time longer giving you a resume of one month's work and plans of a typical woman's club. As you read them over and then look back in your mind to the time which I indicated at the beginning, don't you think the past fifteen or twenty years, if they had seen no other changes than this educating and organizing and releasing of some of the vast potentialities of the world's women, would be quite the most wonderful in the history of time?

THE HOME TABLE.

I've sat me down with millionaires
On costly fare to dine;
I've met with men of big affairs
And shared their bread and wine;
I've laughed with many a famous wit
Beneath some gilded dome;
But best of all it is to sit
And eat with those at home.

Give me that little dining room
With mother in her place,
And little cheeks whose roses bloom
And smiles of gladness face,
Arranged around the table there
To tell their tales to me,
And you may have the costly fare
And banquet revelry.

Just let me have a little boy
Upon my left at night
To tell with all a youngster's joy,
About some mimic fight,
And then a little girl to add
Her version of the fray;
And you may sit with sages sad
And hear what grown-ups say.

The finest company on earth
Our little table knows;
For there we hear the sweetest mirth
And learn the truest woes;
And there we hear the gladdest tales
That ever tongue has told;
Beside it every banquet pales,
And luxuries grow cold.

Then Nelson and Jones exchanged tobacco pouches and thought long in silence, as supremely happy sailors will.

WALT MASON.

The voice for war was always lifted, as on his futile course he drifted. He promised men, "When I am Kaiser, in war I'll be the early riser." He visioned conquest on the morrow, and gave no thought to tears and sorrow, to all the woe the world should suffer ex-acting such a peaky duffer. They say that Bill, his bonehead father, with bloodshed didn't want to bother, until he saw the kronprinz getting all kinds of glory and of petting; then, jealous of the rat-faced smarty, he went and joined the bloodshed party. I fear the kronprinz more than Billy; he gives me fantods fierce and chilly. No matter who may be acquitted, the kronprinz shouldn't be permitted to dwell in Germany and twitter of war, the bloody-minded critter. It may subdue him and improve him if to some island we remove him, where he may live in cave of coral, and watch the doggone swordfish quarrel. While he's at large, to froth and bubble, there always will be threat of trouble, so let us place him in the cooler, where he can never be a ruler.

THE CHAPPED SKIN.

Chapped skin is very sure to be common in winter and we know from experience how extremely irritating this one grievance can be. The more delicate the skin, the greater the need of precaution against the cold, biting north winds. I have seen some very stubborn cases of chapping render the sufferer most unsightly at the same time cause acute suffering.

The only way to guard against chapped skin is to give it first aid in counteracting the effects of the cold, and rendering it as immune as one of the baby's teeth against the playful tepphays of Old Boreas.

One of the simplest and most effective ways of coming out of the winter months unshamed by the frosty winds is to apply a good cold cream liberally to the exposed parts. This does not necessarily require much time and a woman is amply rewarded for her forethought. Intense cold has a very drying effect on the skin and therefore the use of cream would be advisable for this reason alone.

Apply the cream with the finger tips, using the rotary motion. Go over the complexion, throat, hands and wrists working it well into the pores. Warm the fingers before touching the cream, so as to make it easier to absorb. Then remove all excess cream, save a little film, with a soft cloth. Go over the skin with a little absorbent cotton dipped in pure, scented rice powder, and you have an excellent beauty mask. Leave on enough powder to remove all moisture of the skin.

You may alternate this treatment with an oil rub, which will be very nourishing, filling in the hollows and scaring away any threatening wrinkles. Try almond oil for this with a few drops of any desired scent. Warm the oil and wash the face with warm water and a good soap, or preferably a prepared meal, which is less drying in its effect.

The ancient helmet is revived in some of the new hat shapes. The clear, cold blue known as Alpine is still liked among silks. Smart walking suits have corduroy coats and skirts of velour. A variety of tunic tops may be worn over a slip of black satin.

Beatty's Signal.

The signal made by Admiral Beatty, commanding the Grand Fleet, on November 21st, after the German fleet had surrendered at Scapa Flow, Scotland, sealing the great ceremonial which ended in the lowering of the German flag was as follows: "The German flag is to be hauled down at 3.57, and is not to be hoisted again without permission."

The signal made by Sir Roger Keyes in charge of the blocking operations whereby on St. George's Day, April 23, the enemy ports of Zeebrugge and Ostend were bottled up by the sinking of the old battleship Vindictive and other vessels, was "St. George for Merry England."

Both these signals will go down in history side by side with others of Naval fame and like tenor, the most dramatic one of all being that of Nelson's at Trafalgar, October 21st, 1805. But Beatty's signal had a greater significance than even that of the great Admiral. Nelson's was an inspiration to his men, and the victory off Cadix was the result. Beatty's, spelled, signed and sealed the peace, the peace of the world, the peace of the naval power of Germany. Nelson's signal was made prior to battle. Beatty's was made, not after the shock of fighting squadrons and in the moment of the colours of the enemy fluttering down, but following the handing over, without a shot being fired, of the complete ensamble of ships which made up the battle forces of Germany on the sea. Such a spectacle, as we have before stated, has no historical parallel. Never, since naval history first began, has there been a record of surrender on a par with that of Germany's fleet. And what does the capitulation denote, if not the one great fact in connection with the defeat of the Germans—the might and power of the British Navy. The Boston Transcript says "it is the token of the failure of that relentless, that sublimation of frightfulness, that cruel super-efficiency upon which the Teutonic genius depended to break the power of England, to paralyse the effort of America and to win the war. The submarine surrender typifies the failure of this dark and treacherous means of warfare. It bids farewell to the survival of medieval brutality under the mask of the ultimate resources of civilization. It is the best of super-barbarism, disguised beneath modern mechanical invention had skill, bowing its head before a nobler and manlier conception of warfare. The British Navy has been a prime agency in the winning of the war. It has made possible the provisioning of France and Britain, and the military assistance of America. It shut Germany in upon herself and it spun disaster. The British Navy has been... the chief instrument in the defeat of the Central Empire. It has its triumph to-day (Nov. 21) and the whole world will rejoice with it, and this triumph carries with it no threat against the future freedom of the seas."

This tribute, this fine generous appreciation of the British Navy will be read with interest by every son of the Empire, with a thrill of pride in the achievement of the Senior Service, which numbers in its ship lists to many hundreds of the gallant Reservists of Newfoundland who have so well maintained the traditions of the Navy, and to whom no niggardly praise has been given by officers who ignored it an honor to have Terra Nova's sons under their command. So long as we have men like these, "Britannia will need no bulwarks." No towers along the steep. The mastery of the sea has been maintained and in that maintenance the hardy sons of Newfoundland have had so small share. We do not owe them, and send them our congratulations upon the glorious part they have played in the victorious struggle against the enemy of civilization. Nelson's signal animated them, and in doing their duty to the Empire they have won for mankind the peerless rite of Freedom.

St. Andrew.

St. Andrew the Apostle, and Patron Saint of Scotland, whose festival is celebrated to-day, was born at Bethsaida in Galilee, and was own brother to Simon Peter. He had been a disciple of John the Baptist, and followed Jesus upon the testimony given him by the Baptist. "One of the two which heard John speak and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother" (John 1: 40). Andrew presented to Jesus, Simon Peter, and after passing a day with Christ, they went to the marriage feast at Cana, afterwards returning to their ordinary occupation of fishermen. Some months after this Jesus met them, during their fishing, and called them, saying "Follow me and I will make you fishers of men. And they straightway left their nets and followed him." (Matthew IV: 18, 20).

Andrew was the first disciple. Tradition assigns the field of St. Andrew's ministry to Scythia, Greece and Thrace, and he is said to have suffered crucifixion at Patrae (Patras) on a cross of the form of the letter X (Cruz decussata), now commonly known as St. Andrew's Cross. His relics were afterwards removed from Patrae to Constantinople. St. Andrew as well as being the patronal saint of Scotland, is held in high esteem in Russia, it being held that he evangelized that country, and a Russian order of chivalry to commemorate his name, known as the Order of St. Andrew, was founded in 1698 by Peter the Great. This order is one of the highest of Russia's decorations, and was bestowed only on members and generals who already held other important orders. The St. Andrew's Cross is a diagonal cross of saltire, white on a blue ground, and formed the Scottish national flag from an early date. On the union with England (1707) it was incorporated with the Cross of St. George, and on the union with Ireland (1801) with the Cross of St. Patrick. The Scottish Order of the Thistle is also called St. Andrew.

Octogenarian Clergyman.

REV. H. P. COWPERTHWAITTE. Rev. Humphrey Pickers Cowperthwaite, B.A., M.A., D.D., celebrates his 80th birthday to-day, having been born in Sheffield, N.E., Nov. 30, 1838. Thus, he is the oldest Methodist minister in Newfoundland at the present time. Rev. Mr. Cowperthwaite graduated in Arts at Sackville College in 1867, and on July 19th, of the same year, married Miss Annie S. Buchanan, of Glasgow, Scotland. Miss Buchanan was the youngest daughter of Wm. Buchanan, editor of the "Practical Mechanics" and "Engineers" Magazine, and for some time lecturer on Geology in the Glasgow University. She died in August, 1908, much regretted by a large circle of genuine friends. In 1890, Mr. Cowperthwaite came to St. John's, and was appointed to Gower Street Church, his tenure of office lasting three years. His next church was George Street, which he occupied until '96. From then until 1899 he was in Cambourne, after which he took over Gower Street again until 1903. From then until '07, he very successfully conducted Cochrane St. Church, when he went to Hr. Grace for a year. He was supernumerary from 1908 to '10. In 1911 he was in Gower St. Church for almost a year, and since then has taken services to help out. Before coming to this country, Mr. Cowperthwaite was a minister in New Brunswick for ten years; 14 in Prince Edward Island, and five in Nova Scotia, which, combined with 28 years' faithful service in this country, totals 57 years' service to his Master. He has been a minister of the gospel for the longest period of any in St. John's. Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite's father, Hugh Cowperthwaite, his mother, Elizabeth Ann Hunter, of Scotch descent. His grandfather on his father's side was a United Empire Loyalist, and came from New Jersey to New Brunswick in 1783. His great-grandfather was an officer in the British army, during the American revolutionary war of independence. He has three children living: one daughter, Mrs. W. S. March, trained nurse at Boston; two sons, Dr. Hunter C., of St. John's, and Dr. Walter C., of Sydney, N.S. The Telegram congratulates Rev. Mr. Cowperthwaite on attaining this patriarchal age, and is sincere in wishing him many years yet to enjoy the blessings of peace and the good will of the many friends he has made in his life time of church work.

St. Patrick's Sale of Work.

A sale of work will be held in the C. C. C. Hall on next Tuesday, by the ladies of St. Patrick's Parish, who have been some time in preparing for this event and have spared no pains to make it an artistic success, and would ask the public to endeavour to make it the financial success it deserves to be. St. Patrick's Church has undergone considerable repairs the past year and it is to be seen what an immense improvement those repairs have made. The interior has been especially beautified by pulp and communion rail of splendid design and the whole newly painted. It has also undergone many other desired renovations with regard to its exterior, the grounds around being sodded, a new entrance and vestry being added, and all agree that a vast improvement has been made; well, it cost money—come along with a helping dollar.

Strike Settled.

The coal heavers who went on strike yesterday, returned to work this morning. The American Government agreed to the request of the men in giving them the pay asked, viz. 60 cents per hour for the day and 80 cents by night starting from to-day until the cargo is discharged. It is refused, however, to pay the men the increase from the time they started to unload, and also to pay them for the six hours idleness which they demanded, of which, we understand, they demanded.

St. Andrew's Soc'y Celebrates

ANNIVERSARY OF PATRON SAINT. Last night in their club rooms, Smallwood Building, the members of the N.S. St. Andrew's Society held an enjoyable affair in honor of their Patron Saint. In the regrettable absence of President H. D. Reid, also Past President Browning, Mr. A. K. Lumsden presided in his usual genial manner. The first part of the night's entertainment consisted of a card tournament, the prizes being won by Mrs. Strang, Mrs. Ross, Mr. Taylor and Mr. Forbes. This was followed by solos by Mrs. King, Miss Mitchell and Mr. Karl Trappell, each of whom had to respond to encores. The accompanists were Mrs. Dickle and Miss Robertson. After these delightful numbers had been rendered, refreshments were partaken of, followed by dancing. The special feature of the night was telegraphed greetings from St. Andrew's Society of Montreal, and St. Andrew's Society, St. Stephen, New Brunswick, and the President, H. D. Reid, as follows:

St. Andrew's Society of Montreal, 33rd anniversary greeting. We greet thee once again, our kinsmen true. In days of triumph we rejoice with you. A many fight was fought through all the years. And none were daunted, nor o'erwhelmed with fears. On this, the Natal Day of Saint of memory dear. We send our warmest greetings, all your hearts to cheer. (Signed) GEO. S. CANTLIE, President.

St. Andrew's Soc'y, 1918. Greeting from Avondale. St. Stephen, New Brunswick: Long live Scotia, say it ye needna For Scottish seed world-wide is sown. And Ika Scot in Ika spot will sing And talk her great renown. But just for auld time's sake we'll say Here's tae a' brithers and the day. D. F. MAXWELL, President.

In acknowledgment, the following lines were sent: To St. Andrew's Society, Montreal: Brothers, we thank ye for sic guid greetings As ye ha' sent us this Natal Day, Long may ye flourish, true sons of Scotia, Caledonia for ever, let none gamsay. D. JOHNSON, Secretary.

St. Andrew's Society, St. Stephen, N.B.: Auld Scotia's sons the wide-world o'er. Greetings true this day will send; We answer back the fervent prayer, May Scotland flourish till the end. D. JOHNSON, Secretary.

H. Crawford, St. Andrew's Society. Regret unable to be with you to celebrate St. Andrew's Day. Please convey my members' best wishes and congratulations on part played by Society in the world's war, now happily over. H. D. REID, President.

In the wee sma' hours of the mornin', The gathering dispersed, and to each an' other joyful reunion.

Girls! Have a Mass of Beautiful Hair, Soft, Glossy, Wavy

A small bottle destroys dandruff and doubles beauty of your hair. Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes, but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that all—your surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

Hant's Harbor, November 7th, 1918. Messrs. Cleveland Rubber Co., St. John's. Dear Sirs,—Having bought my second pair of Buddy Boots at Short & Sons, and my first pair at W. R. Goble's in April 1916, and being the second pair in Hant's Harbour, I thought it may be worth while to drop you a line in recommendation, and thereby enter your contest and make my chance in winning one of your prizes.

I may say I have found your Boots to be very comfortable, and of long wearing quality, fully capable of standing the hardships, and produce the comfort that fishermen require.

My first pair of Buddy Boots lasted me over twelve months, with the hardest kind of wear, and suited me so well that I had no hesitation in buying my second.

A condensed report of the session of the German representatives at Berlin early this morning, is given in the German wireless service of Nov. 27. The attacks of Dr. Solf, the Foreign Secy., and of the Erberger are omitted in the report, but it includes an account of Dr. Solf's speech. The Foreign minister is quoted as saying, "among other things, in England, a mighty spirit of victory prevails, the Lord Lansdowne and Arthur Henderson (Labor Party Leader) have been silenced, and Lord Robert Balfour's resignation may presumably be attributed to his attitude towards the League of Nations." Whether it is laudatory or not, Dr. Solf may be said to be correct, when he says that the spirit of victory prevails in England, everyone included. It is true that Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Henderson were rejoiced at the triumphant entry of right over might, which Allied powers have secured for the world against the great German empire, but Dr. Solf's statement regarding Lord Robert Cecil, must be said to be untrue. Dr. Solf stated that Lord Cecil had resigned on no grounds of foreign policy, whatsoever. He expressed himself in full agreement with the whole policy of the Government, with the one exception of its attitude toward the question of the Irish church disestablishment and endowment act.

Hun Changes His Views

AND HOPES THAT HIS PAST WILL NOW BE FORGOTTEN.

Mathias Erzberger, the new German Secretary of State, has circulated through German wireless service a long interview wherein he professes that militarism is dead and attempts to prove the good faith and freedom from guile of himself and his colleagues. The declaration was received in London on the same day the facts were announced of two of the most atrocious crimes committed by German submarines, and in the midst of a period wherein the German army's behaviour maintains all its worst characteristics. Erzberger has always been used as a willing instrument of German authorities in all moods, varied according to expediency, and he is now exercising his ingenuity to convince Germany's enemies that the old spirit is departed, giving place to a new one by which he hopes to create the impression that it so approaches to the Allied demands that Germany may escape some of her just retribution for all horrors she has imposed on the world. He concludes his confession of faith in the following terms:

"The opinions which I have expressed are the same as I have long held and defended when as member of the Reichstag, merely I opposed the regime which has disappeared and I repeatedly voiced these opinions in my writings and speeches so that it is not under any outside pressure or for any other reason that I have become a convert to these views. It goes without saying that I would not have thought of joining the present Government were I not convinced that it shares my views."

This self-righteous claim deserves examination. Erzberger's memory is short and convenient. Erzberger, who to-day poses as the apostle of reconciliation, formerly professed all the worst principles of Prussianism which the Allies are determined to destroy. In an article contributed to "The Tag" early in the war, Erzberger gave expression to the following sentiments:

"War must of necessity be a hard and rough instrument. It must be waged as pitilessly as possible, and that after all is the most humane principle. If we would discover a means of annihilating London in its entirety that would be more humane than to allow a single German to bleed on the field of battle, since such annihilation would lead to a prompt peace. Let Britain send German submarines to the bottom! Rather let our submarines send British ships to the bottom. Let our underwater monsters of the deep harry the commerce and navigation of Britain both day and night. When Germany has destroyed the effects of the blockade of Britain, every British merchant ship must be sunk without pity. Since we are undersea masters, even if not masters above the waves, let us boldly assert our superiority and let our Zeppelins and our airplanes acting in concert with our submarines, strike our perfidious foe without respite. England has taken from us about four hundred merchant ships. Our reply must be

An American Memorial.

(From the Westminster Gazette.)

The monument to the first American soldiers killed on French soil, which was inaugurated after a moving speech the other day by Mr. Sharp, the United States Ambassador in Paris, is situated close to the ruined village of Bathelmont, near Lunerville. I was shown the design, by M. Louis Major-elle, some months ago. It is a Lorraine cross—a cross with double arms carved on the face of an obelisk of Vosges granite. The upper arm bears the word "France" and the lower "Etats-Unis," and there is a long inscription in French concluding with the following passage: "As noble sons of this great and proud nation, they fought for right, liberty, and civilization against German imperialism, the scourge of humanity. They fell on the field of honor." The three names inscribed on the memorial have a distinct historic interest. They are those of Corporal James B. Gresham, Private Thomas F. Enright, and Private Merle D. Hay, all of F Company, 16th Infantry Regiment. All three were killed on November 30th, 1917.

Another German Dodge.

(From the Hartford Courant.)

The Courant has already begun to receive letters urging "sympathy" for the unhappy women and children of unfortunate Germany, and suggesting that a commission of German pleaders for help should be well received in this country. We have no patience with this sickly sentimentality, if it is sincere and not merely put up German propaganda. Our "sympathy" goes out to the countless sufferers of France and Belgium who have no homes, to ravished women, to children who do not know where their parents are, and to parents who do not know where their children are, to families broken up forever through German atrocity and the policy of frightfulness, which that people inaugurated for the purpose not of securing worldwide sympathy but worldwide submission. We do not believe any such commission will be allowed to work its sympathy dodge on this country, and we further believe that if the gigantic farce is undertaken, our returned soldier boys, who have been at the front and know what it all meant, will see that the situation is made clear and will run the commissioners out of whatever town they try to work. Imagine Germany victorious and an American

A Recipe For Good Huns

(From the Worcester Telegram.)

Senator Lodge is a spurt. He does not believe the world will be abolished the Hun. To that end he is in agreement with the Statesmen who are still alive. They persist. The Massachusetts Senator has filed in the Senate a bill which provides that all duties on the United States who sell goods made in Germany or Austria-Gary must display signs indicating the populace that they are dealing in German goods, and put the same information in their published advertisements. That is the most public legislation ever proposed in this country in its class. But the may consider it the best for the benefit. It is emphasis on the famous "Made in Germany" label. They would tell the people of central Europe that American goods are their products so well that they made a law to force their attention, for the benefit of the people of this country. Huns are about telling the dense people over there that the United States called off the war so the Americans might get the goods from Germany. Goods they must have to live. There is no limit beyond which they fear to go, except the limits of that makes them good Huns and they fear it. Another war will be necessary to make the making of Huns good.

Conventions.

Who doubt the war will teach us to many of our old conventions. Top-hat is one of the few outward visible signs that occasionally remind us that there was such a time world of peace. Is it ever likely there are a vogue in future? The stiff collar and starched shirt the bowler hat are other articles of a gentleman's wardrobe that are being in popularity, and when the men take off their puttees there be a revolt against the dawdles.

Air or Rail?

An experienced railwayman, writing in the "Railway Magazine," gives some convincing reasons for his opinion that aerial travel is not likely to take the place of railways in the future.

"The first consideration," he writes, "is speed. For the sake of argument, let us suppose an average of ninety miles an hour, and a passenger-mail (aerial) service from London to Glasgow. The distance, 400 miles, would be covered in four and a half hours.

"But the passenger would first have to travel at least five miles to an aerodrome on the outskirts of London. For this he would have to allow forty-five minutes. Similarly, forty-five minutes would have to be added at the other end. This would bring the time to six hours. If a thirty-mile wind were blowing behind the machine, the speed would be 120 miles an hour, and the journey time reduced one hour; but if this wind were against the machine, the speed would be sixty miles an hour, and the time increased two hours. On the other hand, if you travel by train, the journey is made in eight hours, with little time added at either end because the stations are centrally located.

"As to comfort, it is doubtful if that of a first class carriage could be equalled on an aeroplane. Then, having a meal, such as you do on a train and thereby saving time, would be out of the question on a heavier-than-air machine. And it is obvious a passenger could not be conveyed by air at anything approaching the first-class railway fare.

"Then, aerial post. I presume something like it would be charged for a letter, which, perhaps would beat the train by two hours, and the time saved by sorting mail en route, as in postal vans, would be lost. If, however, it is to be spent, why not send a telegram?

"In winter there are many days when flying would be impossible. Fog may delay trains, but it prevents flying altogether."

Forbidding Men to Marry.

(By J. R. Hannan, Hon. Sec. Bank Officers' Guild.)

We have been called the "cuffs and collar brigade."

What irony, when the men who handle thousands of pounds behind the bank counter each day find a difficulty in paying their laundry bills! To keep an outwardly respectable appearance is the bank clerk's constant worry, while the dream of a comfortable home of his own must remain a dream, unless he is capable and lucky enough to drop into a managerial position, or he has an independent income which ekes out his inadequate pay sufficiently to satisfy the bank managers that he can afford to keep a wife.

Hopelessly Poor Pay.
Many bank clerks never marry because they cannot afford to do so. Usually the bank clerk commences at £50 a year at eighteen years of age, and rises at the rate of £10 a year until he is thirty, when he earns £170 a year.

A bank usually prohibits its employees to marry until they are in receipt of about £275 a year.

Thus, there are two alternatives for the bank clerk who has no sources of income other than his bank pay—enforced celibacy until he is well over thirty years of age, or—if his bank permits it—married life on a hopelessly inadequate income.

There are scores of men over fifty years of age acting as cashiers in banks, or managers of small country branches, whose salaries do not exceed £250 a year to-day. There are branch managers with twenty-five years' experience today earning but £300 a year. Many are without private means and have families to maintain. In normal times it would be a struggle for a man with this income to keep his head above water and live up to his position. To-day it is a worse struggle even with the bonuses, which, after all, only meet a very small percentage of the extra cost of living.

"Prussianism" in Banks.
In spite of increase of salary and war bonuses, bank clerks are relatively worse off than before the war, and there is a danger that this may become a permanent condition. That is why they have felt the necessity of forming an organization to protect their interests and, by obtaining better conditions, to remove the marriage handicap.

There was a time when banks controlled the lives of their clerks to such an extent that they had to get the permission of the board to discard the top hat in favour of a straw hat in summer-time, or to change the morning coat for the alpaca coat. It is almost as bad to-day for many banks, before a man receives sanction to marry, a guarantee is required that his income will be made up to the necessary figures.

"Buckshee."

To possess something that is "buckshee" is the delight of a soldier's existence. But before explaining its quaint joys, let me give a definition of the phrase.

For every unit in the army there is a definite scale of equipment and accessories, and the "quarter-bloke" is responsible that these stores and articles are on the spot for use when required. The quarterly audit "bits" in every regiment to check all equipment, and we betide the section that is short of anything! For whenever a deficiency is reported, a court of inquiry (composed of three officers) pulls up its well-crested standards and deliberates on the matter, so as to assign the blame and land the cost of the missing equipment on the unfortunate Tommy who is responsible.

Suppose twelve field telephones have been issued to the Signal Section and one fine day it suddenly dawned on the harassed signal officer that one of them is missing. Then there is weeping and gnashing of teeth, and a flushed gang of signallers are set hurriedly searching for the missing 'phone. The dread of a court of inquiry urges them to further effort.

On active service I have known a telephone go a-missing. One man was sent to search among the trenches of the battalion on the right, and another man on the left. At nightfall both men returned, grinning. Each bore a telephone!

Then there was joy in the Signal Section, for not only had the lost telephones been replaced—at somebody else's expense—but there was also a spare instrument.

And that was a "buckshee" telephone. It was "surplus to establishment." You may be sure it was hurriedly camouflaged, and hidden away among the signal stores where prying hands from another battalion could not reach it.

Almost instinctively a Tommy delights in collecting these oddments of equipment. He cannot help it. It is in his bones. Moreover, all this "buckshee" bric-a-brac is carefully tended, and kept in flawless condition. Much more pains go in polishing a "buckshee" helio than those helios in normal use "on the establishment." No matter how muddy may be the battalion bicycles, you may be sure, if Tommy has acquired—we won't ask how—a "buckshee" bike, it will be a

"What Phonograph Shall I Buy?"

How many times, when the subject of purchasing a phonograph or talking machine has come up, have you asked yourself this question!

The Edison tone test answers it for you, completely, convincingly.

Over two million music lovers have been present when this test was being made; and they have realized, as you will realize, that the New Edison alone can actually RE-CREATE the human voice and the music of human-played instruments.

It is all-important that you hear

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

because it is the only instrument that RE-CREATES the singer's voice so faithfully that the human ear cannot distinguish the rendition of the artist from that of the New Edison.

The wise way to choose your phonograph is to have the several makes of phonographs and talking machines sent to your home on trial, where you can make direct comparisons among them, and then decide which one you would like to keep—which one you think you would enjoy hearing as much five years from now as you do to-day.

Be your own salesman. Sell a phonograph to yourself. We will gladly send a New Edison to your home for the purpose, without any obligation on your part.

My First Trial Flight.

A THRILLING ADVENTURE.

(By Capt. B. C. Hicks, in Tit-Bits.)
It was more by good luck than good management that my first flight was not almost my last, for I met with the worst accident I ever had on the very second day I went up on my own account.

That was, also, the day I got my pilot's certificate. It occurred at Fley in the year 1911.

When I speak of my first flight, I mean the first time I went up actually on my own account as a pilot, not as a passenger.

I set out for my first independent attempt on a Blackburn monoplane. It was an untried machine, and I was, also, an untried airman; and we were a nice couple, my machine and I. Anyhow, I started off quite cheerfully; and when, at length, I got the engines going—and in those days starting troubles were the rule—it was by no means easy to rise. I had not the least idea what was going to happen—and perhaps that was just as well!

A Bad Crash.

For some time the machine only hopped along the ground; then, to my joy, the hops steadily grew longer and higher. At last I was clearing a couple of miles at each hop, and I got up to about 300 feet above the ground; then I was well satisfied with my performances.

During the afternoon I went up again; and this time I succeeded in making both right and left full turns. This was enough for me, as that was the test for the pilot's certificate; so I wired to York, and asked for Aero Club officials to be sent to witness my flights on the following day.

The next day was a wonderful one, from every point of view. The weather was perfect for flying. The Aero Club judges arrived in good time, and I made an early start on my monoplane. I completed a cross-country flight of sixteen miles without mishap, and I climbed up to 1,400 feet above the earth, and all this was done without a hitch. It was not until I was making the last turn of the "eight" test—which was an obligatory part of the test for the certificate—that I had bad luck.

Touch Wood!

Just as I was coming round the propeller caught the shaft, which snapped and came hurtling through the air at a terrific speed. The machine was left in an almost vertical position; and after a bad side-slip it came down to earth with a crash. Luckily for me, I was only about 50 feet from the ground; but even so, I was very fortunate to escape with my life—or, at least, without a permanent injury.

The monoplane was completely wrecked, needless to say; and some of the spectators had a very narrow escape, for the machine was entirely out of control. But the pilot's certificate had been secured, and that was the main thing.

I sustained a slight concussion, and my leg was rather badly lacerated. But I made a very rapid recovery, and in about five weeks I was able to walk quite well. I am thankful that my nerve was not shattered—though I admit that for a time I was pretty well shaken. That, I think, is all that I can say about my first flight; but it is strange that I have never had such a serious accident as that first one, although I have often been in very great danger. But let me touch wood at once, for I am very superstitious!

When storing cutlery, wipe the blades lightly with a little vasoline. Before using, wash in soda water and clean in the usual way.

wearing the single star of a subaltern came up and gave a message in precise military fashion. When he was through he clicked his heels together, saluted again, and, with a
"Thank you, sir," made off.
"Do you know who that officer is?"
the colonel asked of me.
"No," I replied.
"He is my father."

In this case the father was seventy-one years old, and a country squire; but, like many of his countrymen, he felt that he had to do something.
It is this sort of spirit that will win the war.
What most people do not realize is that Thomas Atkins is probably the best-nourished soldier in the world.
He is fed like the proverbial fighting-cock. The soldiers get the best that the market affords, and lots of it. Officers and men have precisely the same ration. I have eaten at many a Tommy's mess at the Front and behind the lines, and I have always found the food abundant and excellent. Indeed, after courting eternal indigestion with French war-bread—it is one of the real horrors of the war—it is always a luxury to get the field-baked white bread which is part of the British Army ration.

Meat, of course, constitutes an important item in the rationing of the soldier's stomach. The British Tommy is a carnivorous animal, and must have his beef. The normal daily ration for the fighting-man is one pound of fresh or frozen meat. Three days out of every seven he also gets a small portion of the so-called "M and V" ration, which is meat and vegetables, cooked and canned. Four days out of seven, instead of the M and V ration, he gets a similar portion of canned pork and beans. There is also an allowance of four ounces of bacon, which is served at breakfast.
Bread is a very important item. The regular daily allowance is one pound of fresh bread or ten ounces of biscuit. Usually the bread ration is so arranged as to include 75 per cent.
and 25 per cent. of biscuit.
Plenty of Variety.

lowance for the troops at the Front are ten ounces of rice, two ounces of butter, which is served three times a week, three ounces of jam, five-eighths of an ounce of tea (or coffee when desired), two ounces of cheese, two ounces of oatmeal three times a week, three ounces of sugar, one ounce of condensed milk, an ounce of pickles three times a week, two ounces of potatoes, eight ounces of fresh vegetables when obtainable, or two ounces of dried vegetables, and a substitute, salt, pepper, and mustard.
As a luxury, each man gets two ounces of smoking tobacco or cigarettes once a week, and a box of matches three times during the fortnight.
Rum is served at the discretion of the general officer commanding. Its issue depends upon just what the troops are doing. In very cold weather a nip is given out every day, whether the men are in the first-line trenches or behind. Rum is always issued, however, in that ghastly moment, just before daybreak, when the troops "stand to" with ears, eyes, and heart alert, waiting for the enemy attack that sometimes comes and sometimes does not.

The ration that I have described is the regular issue. It has become, however, a sort of elastic institution, adapting itself to season and locality.
Standard Menus.
The British Tommy, unlike the French polu, has two big meals a day. He has his bacon, or tinned meat of some kind, bread-and-jam for breakfast, while at lunch he has stew or "bully beef," potatoes, vegetables, and always a dessert, more often than a pudding of some kind. His evening meal comes under the head of "tea," and includes cold meat, bread and jam. In the trenches supper is always hot. At all meals he has his option of tea or coffee. These are the standard menus, subject always to amendment by reason of the system of substitution that I have mentioned.
Now, if the "Field" and "L of C." rations were the only food issues the task of provision would be comparatively easy. But the British Armies in France today are such a cosmopolitan assemblage that the matter of diet is as complicated as that of a World Food Congress, recruited from all the nations of the universe. It results from the fact that when Britain sent out her trumpet-call throughout the Empire, all the peoples of her dominions came flocking to the standard. They represent every race under the British flag, and this means that white, brown, yellow and black men are geared up to the Great Cause.
You have a conflict of religion, taste, habit, and custom, and every one of these eccentricities, born of climate, temperament, and tradition, must be met and appeased. Hence a separate and distinct ration is issued to every one of these foreign groups.
The meat for the East India troops is obtained in very picturesque manner. The East Indian will only eat goat and sheep meat, and this only when the animal is killed according to native rites. Near one of the British base depots in France is a huge goat and sheep farm, which is conducted entirely for the native troops.
Every day you can see bearded and turbaned priests slitting the throats of the beasts with much Oriental ceremony. When the natives get their meat they know it is not profane.
No British quartermaster would dare to try to deceive them.
German Prisoners' Mess.
Nor must it be forgotten in connection with field rations that there is also a separate diet for the German prisoners of war, who are segregated in camps surrounded by barbed-wire fences. The British have found that it is both practical and expedient to let the German prisoners turn their own mess. The normal daily ration of a captured Hun is nine ounces of bread, six ounces of fresh or frozen meat five days a week, and ten ounces of salt-cured herrings, sprats, or smelts two days a week. He also gets half an ounce of tea or coffee, an ounce of sugar, four ounces of potatoes, two ounces of turnips and peas or beans, three ounces of rice, two ounces of oatmeal, and a little jam and cheese. Recently the British have succeeded in making Schwarzbrot,
the familiar black bread of Germany.
This not only makes the Boche happier, but saves considerable money to the Government.

Fads & Fashions.

Among the dress cottons for spring
volles will be the favorites.
The airplanes have been the model for several of the smartest hats.
Suede-finished cloths are most liked for the finest suits and coats.
Black and blue are claiming a great deal of fashionable attention.
There is no doubt about the new coat being a coat for all occasions.
Passmenterie embroidery has suddenly become very fashionable.
There are still pockets, but few in number and mostly ornamental.
Tucks of all sizes are used, both on shirtwaists and separate skirts.
There is a great deal of steel bead decoration used on the pro-trucks.

SUNLIGHT & SHADOW

"EVERY SOLDIER IS A SON."
So wrote James Douglas in a fitting tribute to Heroic Women. It is equally certain that the homes of our gallant soldiers and sailors are not neglected because war has cast its shadow o'er the threshold. The motto of sweethearts and wives is "Cleanliness as usual" with

SUNLIGHT SOAP.

We see to it that the hardships of the home are not of a physical nature, for the guaranteed purity of Sunlight Soap ensures rest and comfort for all who use it.
£1.000 Guarantee of Purity on every Bar.
The name Lever on Soap is a Guarantee of Purity and Excellence.
LEVER BROTHERS LIMITED, PORT SUNLIGHT, ENGLAND.

When Troops Move.

Of course, you have heard that troops never move. The assertion seems a sweeping one, but literally it is very nearly correct. You see, in the Army the ordinary journey about town or country is always distinguished by the term "Procedure."
Should you be about to travel from, say, the Bank to Charing Cross, the Journey would be alluded to in Orders as "Sergeant So-and-So will proceed" etc.
Now, however, are needed to magnify the importance of a pukka move. Here is no hasty trip to interview an official in Whitehall—no eleventh-hour jaunt to the dental hospital. A move, in fact, is a well-thought-out migration, the details of which concern such trifles as the dis-

Preliminary Preparations.

The intending emigrants are organized in countless fatigues-parties, and spend weary days transferring bed-boards, trunks, tables and all
"barrack furniture" as such articles are called—to a common hut or marquee.
The eventful day draws near. The first indication of the actual date is the withdrawal of mattresses and pillows, or "pallisades and bolsters" —Army terms. Everyone—except, of course sergeants, who never work, and officers, who aren't expected to —picks up one or more beds and walks off to the appointed place for emptying the straw out.
Next morning comes a final dust round—in accordance with scheme for disposal of match-sticks—and soon after "Packs on" is the order.

Burdened with packs, kitbags, and rifles, one endeavours to "march easy" to the train. Arrival there one awaits the pleasure of the officer in charge of entraining. Starting always at the end farthest from you, he painstakingly counts out eight men to each compartment, gradually working towards where you stand, resolving never again so to stuff a pack or a kitbag.
"Seven-eight. In here."
More easily said than done. However, you manage to force your way through the door, fling down kitbag, rifle and equipment.
At last the moment arrives, and with the accompaniment of a very Babel of noises one embarks on the essential stage of a "move."
Dark-colored nets are being used for elaborate blouses.
