CHAPTER XXIII.
A SAD HOME-COMING.

"Yes, she is," she assented, as if the admission cost her an agony. "Oh, yes! And he is going! I thought he would have stayed the night!"

"And I didn't," said the marquis, grimly. "He is a Stoye, and it's not our way to take the loss of our mistresses meekly."

"Did you give him the letter?" she asked.

The marquis uttered an exclamation. "Phew!" he said, with a laugh. "I knew there was something I should forget. I told you and Churchill that you'd better play the game yourselves and that I should bungle it. You see, I am so unused to intrigues of this description, and the great intriguer of his generation smiled grimly."

"Give it to me," said Lady Grace, as she struck by a sudden idea.

The marquis pointed to a cabinet. "It's there somewhere," he said, indifferently.

Lady Grace opened the door sharply.

"Take care, please," he said, with a smothered yawn. "That cabinet is unique, and I have left it to you."

She made an impatient gesture, caught up poor Doris's letter, and glided from the room and up the corridor.

As she did so, Lord Cecil came out of his room, followed by his valet, with a portmanteau in his hand, and wrap on his arm.

"Lady Grace!" said Lord Cecil.

"Why, where are you going?" she exclaimed. "I have only just heard of your return. You are not going again?"

"Yes," he said, trying to speak lightly, and force a conventional smile; "I am as bad as a queen's messenger."

She laid her hand lightly on his arm. "Something's the matter," she said, in a low voice. "What is it? Is it anything you can tell me—anything I can help you in?"

He shook his head as he signed to his man to go on.

"I have learnt bad news, Lady Grace," he said, as coolly as he could;

but his voice shook as he added, "No, you cannot help me, and I fear, no one can!"

She came closer to him, and laid her hand upon his arm, looking up at him with her magnificent eyes softened with womanly sympathy.

"I am so sorry! Can you tell me what it is? Stay! Where are you going?"

"To London," he replied.

"To London!" She leaned over the balustrade and looked at the great clock in the hall. "You have plenty of time. Stay one moment. Lord Cecil, do you remember the first night you came?"

"Yes," he said, gravely.

A faint flush rose to her face.

"And all I said to you? Do you think I should have spoken to you as I did unless—unless I had liked you?"

"I appreciated your candour, Lady Grace," he said, in the same grave tone.

Her hand trembled on his arm.

"Well, then, I am going to be still more candid. I am going to ask you to try and fancy that you had asked me to be your wife and that I had refused."

It was his turn to flush now, and his eyes dropped under her fixed, earnest gaze.

"Do you know why I say that? It is because you may not misunderstand me when I ask you—as I do now—to let me be your friend."

"I am grateful, Lady Grace—" he began in a low voice; but she stopped him.

"Wait. It is no idle, meaningless offer. I will be a real friend, Lord Cecil, if you will let me. I will prove that a woman and a man can be friends without being—lovers! Now, then, trust me, and show me that you trust me by telling me what this trouble is."

Her eyes looked so honest, so eager, so trustworthy, that Cecil—his heart wrung with the misery of suspense and doubt, his brain heavy and bewildered by fatigue and harassing anxiety—fell into the net.

"I will trust you, Lady Grace," he said, and there was a quiver in his voice which was no discredit to his manliness. "In a word, I have lost the girl I love."

"Lost her!" she said, with wide-open eyes. "Ah, yes, I know! Miss Marlowe, is it not?"

"Yes," he said. "Do you know anything? For Heaven's sake tell me everything!"

"I will," she said. "But I have heard nothing more than this: that she has gone to Australia with—a with a man to whom she was engaged before—

"And you believe it?" he said, with grave reproach.

"No," she said, at once, "I do not believe a word of it."

He took her hand and pressed it, all unconsciously, so that the rings almost cut into her delicate fingers.

"How shall I thank you for saying that?" he exclaimed, in a low voice, which showed how deeply he was moved. "They are the first words of comfort, of encouragement! You do not believe it?"

"No, I am certain it is not true. She has left Barton, I know; but as to the rest, why it is too absurd! Shall I tell you why I do not believe it? Because I have something for you which will explain all, I've no doubt," and she held out the letter.

He almost snatched it from her.

"A letter! Why—where—when—how—"

And he stared at her with eager impatience.

"It came while you were away, and I took it. Don't be angry."

"Angry! Has anyone seen it but yourself?"

"No one! No one! I kept it—Of course I felt that its safety was of importance to you. I should have forwarded it to you, but I knew you were moving about, and I feared it might be lost."

"I see, I see!" he said, and already hope was displaying itself in his face and voice.

"Yes, that will tell you where she is, and why she has gone, no doubt," said Lady Grace; and with an affection of delicate consideration she turned to the great oriel window that he might read it undisturbed.

Suddenly he uttered a cry, and, looking round, she saw him leaning against the balustrade staring at the letter, which shook like an aspen leaf in his hands.

"Oh, what is it?" she breathed, and her face went almost as white as his own.

He looked up with a bewildered stare; then, with a working face, seemed to struggle for composure.

"You—I—we were both wrong!" he said, hoarsely. "She—she has gone!"

"Oh, no, no!" murmured Lady Grace; "don't say that! Do not believe it! Oh, Lord Cecil!" and she laid both her hands upon his arms and looked up at him beseechingly, sympathizingly, as a sister might strive to soothe and encourage a brother.

"Yes," he said, almost inaudibly, and with a catch in his voice, "it is true—it is true! Great Heaven! and I loved—I trusted—I—"

He turned his head aside for a second, then faced her, every muscle of his face quivering under the effort to appear unmoved.

"Lady Grace, the letter proves the marquis's estimate of women to be a true one, and mine—Heaven help me!—false! Read it. No, I cannot! It is the only letter she ever wrote me—it is sacred! The first and the last! Great Heaven! to think that she—she—"

and as he recalled the pure and innocent face, the truthful, trustful eyes that had looked up so devotedly, so passionately, with such an infinity of love into his, his voice broke and he could not utter another word.

"No, do not show me the letter!" she said. "It should be sacred to you. And I do not believe it yet. Where were you going, Cecil?"

Her omission of his formal title escaped him at the moment.

"To London," he said. "But where"—and he made a despairing gesture—"it doesn't matter. Nothing matters now!" and he forced a rueful smile.

"Yes, but it does matter," she said. "There may be some mistake—there is, there must be! It is useless to ask you to remain here, I feel that. Go to London, Cecil, and go to the offices of the 'Orion.' Go and see if her name is on the passenger-list. I will stake my faith in the honour and truth of my sex that it is not."

He seized her hand and pressed it again.

"How can I thank you?" he breathed. "Yes! Ah, what woman's wit will do! I will go to the office."

"And you will let me know? You will not forget—your friend?"

"I shall never forget all you have done, all you have been to me this day, Lady Grace," he said, fervently; and with a grave solemnity that might well have become one of the old knightly Stoyes whose pictures looked down on them, he raised her hand to his lips.

A deep red suffused Lady Grace's face, and she drew a quick, sharp breath.

"Go, then!" she said, her hand rest-

New Relief For Constipation, "LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.

So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandra leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DISTEMPER.

Remarkable Growth of Famous Medicine Company.

Mr. W. J. Edmanson, President of the Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., of Toronto, is at present visiting Newfoundland on a business and pleasure trip combined. As Dr. Chase's Medicines are so well and favourably known in this country the present would seem an opportune time to give the public a synopsis of the wonderful growth of these famous household Remedies. Below are given some facts regarding the foundation of these well known goods and the early history of Dr. A. W. Chase, the originator of the famous Recipes.

In view of the many arguments regarding the necessity of Alcohol in Proprietary Medicines it is interesting to note that NO ALCOHOL whatever enters into the manufacturing of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, Kidney Liver Pills, Ointment and Linseed and Turpentine.

Some remarkable cures have been made right here in Newfoundland and it is the intention of the Manufacturers to publish a list of these in the local testimonials in the St. John's papers very soon.

The Interesting Life Story of Dr. A. W. Chase

A Practicing Physician of Remarkable Skill, Whose Well-known Medicines Have Made Him Famous Throughout the Civilized World.

Nature undoubtedly intended Dr. A. W. Chase to be a healer of the sick, and from childhood his efforts were ever bent in this direction. Any crumb of knowledge regarding the human body and its diseases was eagerly grasped and carefully preserved for future use so that by the time he graduated from the Eclectic College of Medicine, Cincinnati, Ohio, and from the State University at Ann Arbor, Mich., he was qualified as few physicians are when beginning the practice of medicine.

Dr. Alvin Wood Chase was born in the county of Cayuga, N.Y., and spent his boyhood in the vicinity of Buffalo, where he received his early education in a log school house. Even then, it is said, he outstripped his fellow students and entertained the wish to study medicine.

After completing his medical education, Dr. Chase travelled throughout the greater part of Canada and the United States, gaining wonderful experience and invaluable information before he settled down to make his home at Ann Arbor, Mich. His success in private practice, his scientific investigations in search of better treatments, his work of collecting all the most successful prescriptions known to the profession, the publication of his now world famous Receipt Book, the discovery of the great family medicines and the perfecting of them by tests made in his own practice, all these are incidents in a busy life of work for the benefit of humanity.

Dr. Chase became one of the most prosperous and well-to-do citizens of Ann Arbor, and was noted for his large gifts to education and benevolent enterprises. News of his remarkable success in treating kidney and liver disorders, nervous troubles and other forms of serious disease soon spread abroad and brought appeals for help from all over Canada and the United States. He began sending medicine to persons at a distance, but soon found it impossible to keep up with the demand on his time, and so resolved to put up his greatest prescriptions in convenient form for home treatment and to place these in the hands of local dealers.

This effort to simplify medical treatment and save the too often unreasonable doctor's bills met with a storm of opposition from members of the medical profession, who feared the effect on their own practice and looked with envy on the wonderful success of Dr. Chase. The many large gifts of Dr. Chase to all worthy objects prove that it was no mere desire for money making that led him to so place on the market his great discoveries. Like a true physician, as he was, he thought most of relieving the sufferings of his fellow men.

As the details of manufacturing and distributing the remedies increased, it was found advisable to form the Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., with offices and laboratories in Toronto, Can., and Buffalo, N.Y. More recently the demand for these medicines in Europe has grown to such an extent that offices have been opened at 21 Cockspur Street, London, England, and at 317 Water Street, St. John's Newfoundland, appointing GERALD S. DOYLE, Sole Representative, and to-day Dr. A. W. Chase's Medicines, as well as his famous Receipt Book, are known wherever the English language is spoken, and orders are received from such far away points as Tasmania, New Zealand, British Guiana, Arabia, Nyassaland, Central Africa, and Assiout, Egypt.

In Newfoundland the demand has increased to such an extent that Mr. Doyle and his staff are continually kept busy looking after city and outport orders. Free samples of Dr. Chase's Medicines can be obtained by writing, and enclosing 2c. postage.

Roumania Must Stay Her Hand.

Austria Will Sign Peace Treaty this Month---No Strike in the Engineering and Shipbuilding Trades ---Rioting in Ireland.

AUSTRIA SOON TO HAVE PEACE.
PARIS, Aug. 16. The end of August will probably see the signing of the Austrian peace treaty, Le Journal declares.

WILL BE SUBMITTED TO ARBITRATION.
LONDON, Aug. 15. (Reuter's)—"There will be no strike in the engineering and shipbuilding trades over the demand of the men for a forty-four week. Representatives of the men have offered to submit the matter to a joint committee of employers and workmen with an independent chairman who would report on the probable economic effect of the forty-four hour week."

ROUMANIA CHECKED.
PARIS, Aug. 15. Roumania will not be permitted to strip Hungary, according to a draft of the Supreme Council's reply to the last note from Bucharest, which was completed at to-day's meeting of the Council. The Bucharest Government is informed that the fixing of the amount of reparation to be made by Hungary as well as its distribution, is a matter under the control of the Allied and Associated Powers, and that until the final decision is reached all war, railway and agricultural material now in Hungary and subject to distribution, will be under the common administration of the Allied Powers.

WANTS OLD POLICY.
LONDON, Aug. 15. Joseph Devlin, Nationalist member of Parliament for Belfast, addressing a meeting of the Nationalists to-day at Blackrock, Ireland, made an appeal for the old Nationalist policy as against the Sinn Fein policy in the matter of the abstention from attendance upon sessions of Parliament. Mr. Devlin contended that the presence of eighty Irish members at Westminster during the Peace Conference would have changed Ireland's fate, because every voice raised for freedom in the House of Commons "resounded through two hemispheres." The Nationalists, Devlin continued, had given Sinn Feiners fair play, but in future must show whether the old policy, so fruitful of results, or the new policy, so prolific in promises, was better for Ireland.

RIOTS IN LONDONDERRY.
LONDONDERRY, Aug. 16. Rioting and looting occurred in this city during last night and early this morning. Troops charged the mobs, but did not fire any shots. The soldiers, however, were met with a volley of stones when they attempted to break up the Nationalist demonstrations. The monetary loss from looting and from damage to property is estimated at thousands of pounds by the police authorities. The trouble began when the Nationalists set fire to a large number of tar barrels which had been collected beneath an arch over which was displayed a picture of Edward de Valera, President of the Irish Republic, and sang the Soldiers' Song. The Unionists responded by singing the National Anthem. A force of troops kept the crowds apart, while other detachments attempted to clear the streets, charging upon the throngs repeatedly. Bricks and stones were hurled at the charging troops, one soldier being seriously hurt. The Nationalists were finally driven back to their own quarters. Windows were smashed and shops looted by the crowds and the city was in darkness the entire night. More rioting is feared to-night. Although several revolver shots were heard during the rioting, no reports of anyone having been injured have been received. The troops declare that none of them fired any shots, and that when they drove back the crowds they advanced with their bayonets raised in the air.

INJURED IN FIGHT.
BELFAST, Aug. 16. Ten Nationalist excursionists were injured during a fight on Friday with Orangemen at Lisburn, county Down. Serious rioting also occurred at Coal Island, county Tyrone. The trouble at Lisburn took place after the Nationalists had attended Lady Day celebrations at Louth. In the rioting at Coal Islands, several policemen and military officers were injured severely.

A WORD OF WARNING.
LONDON, Aug. 16. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—John R. Clynes, former Food Controller, in an address to the National Federation of General Workers at Manchester, said the policy of "direct action" was misnamed because if adopted it would merely bring them after enormous loss to a point where they began. Members of the Federation would have most to lose and least to gain from a movement which would divert the industrial energy of organized workers towards remodeling political or economic conditions of the people of Russia or elsewhere. To strike for a vague ill-defined or alien purpose would be to squander the resources of the workers without permanent industrial improvement.

SOLDIERS WITHDRAWN.
LONDONDERRY, Aug. 17. The soldiers used in suppressing the riots between the Nationalists and Unionists in Londonderry last night and early to-day were withdrawn from the scenes of disorder at 4 o'clock this morning. A number of rioters were injured during the charges by the police and soldiers. A police inspector was knocked down and kicked severely during the battle charge.

To-day's Messages.

BRITAIN TACKLING HOUSING PROBLEM.

LONDON, Aug. 15. (Reuter Ottawa Agency).—The housing problem, which is one of the most difficult with which Britain has had to deal, is now being tackled by the Government in earnest. Tenders have been called for the erection of 3,200 houses costing, in the aggregate, 2,300,000 pounds sterling.

MORE STRINGENT HEALTH INSPECTION.

LONDON, Aug. 15. (Reuter Despatch).—The Minister of Health has drawn up more stringent rules in regard to the medical inspection of aliens by port and sanitary authorities, as well as more thorough inspection of imported goods. The regulations are now being considered by the Home Office.

PLANE RESUMES FLIGHT.

CASABLANCA, MOROCCO, Aug. 15. The airplane, Goliath, which left here Thursday morning for Takar, French West Africa, and was forced to alight at Monador, two hundred miles south along the coast, resumed its flight for Takar this morning.

EUROPE FACING COAL DISASTER.

BERLIN, Aug. 16. That all Europe is facing disaster in the coal situation is the common opinion of industrial and shipping leaders who have been conferring on the subject here for the past few days. Walter Fohling of Hamburg, shipping expert, in discussing the prospects of the coming winter so far as Germany is concerned, declared the fuel situation will positively prove a more potent receiver of acute Bolshevism than food.

GERMANY STICKS BY REFUSAL.

BERLIN, Aug. 15. Germany, in its note refusing Allied demand to recall Gen. Von Der Goltz, German Commander in the Baltic, denies the charge that the German evacuation of Letvian has been delayed purposely, says that it has been proceeding in accordance with the plan arranged at the conference between the German Commander and the British General, Gough, the Allied Commander of July nineteen. Germany, the note adds, cannot meet any demands going beyond article twelve of the armistice.

PRINCE AT HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, Aug. 17. The Prince of Wales attended Divine service on board H. M. S. Dragon this morning at 9 o'clock, before entering Halifax Harbor. His Royal Highness transferred immediately after anchoring to H. M. S. Renown, where he received the commanding officer of the Italian ship Cont di Lavour and of the French sloops Ville D'Is and Somme. H. R. H. then made a short inspection of all three foreign vessels and returned to lunch on board H. M. S. Renown. After lunch H. R. H. landed in civilian clothes at Point Pleasant and walked through Point Pleasant parts to the head of the Northwest Arm, whence he made a detour round the Citadel and embarked from the dock yard at 5 in the evening. H. R. H. gave a small private dinner on board H. M. S. Renown, to which His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, the Prime Minister of the Dominion, Sir Robert Borden, Premier Murray of Nova Scotia, the General Officer commanding the Halifax district, and men were invited. Sir Robert Borden has joined H. M. S. Renown as the guest of H. R. H. till the official landing at Quebec.

ORDERED TO LEAVE MEXICO.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16. William Cummings, British charge d'Archives in the City of Mexico, has been ordered to leave the country by President Carranza. While not specifically stated in the despatches from the Mexicans which have reached Washington, it was understood that Carranza's action resulted from the statement recently made in the House of Commons by the British Under-Secretary that Great Britain had not recognized the Carranza Government and would not do so until there was some guarantee that the Mexican Government was able and willing to protect the lives and properties of British citizens in Mexico.

LOYD GEORGE EXPECTED TO DELIVER IMPORTANT SPEECH.

LONDON, Aug. 16. An important speech on the Government policy, it is expected, will be made by Premier Lloyd George when he moves the adjournment of the House of Commons on Monday. The Premier's anticipated speech is exciting extreme interest in political circles. Among other subjects, the Premier is expected to refer to national finances, the urgent need for national and industrial economy, Ireland and Federal revolution, the unrest in the labor world, and the nationalization of various industries. It is understood in well informed quarters that the Government had decided to reject the idea of the nationalization of the coal mines, at least for the present.

HENDERSON TO TOUR AMERICA.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17. Arthur Henderson, Secretary of the British Labor, former Cabinet Minister, and Privy Councillor, has accepted an invitation of the American Labor Party to visit the United States in October, according to an announcement made yesterday by William Kohn, Chairman of the American Party. Henderson will go on a lecture tour of the principal industrial centres of the country, and all the central labor bodies of New York. Mr. Kohn is stated to have appointed committees to arrange for a great mass meeting here, at which the British Labor Leader will make his first speech. His trip is said to have been approved by the British Trade Unionists and he will appear, according to Mr. Kohn, as their representative.

EXPULSES EXTREMIST LABORITES.

LONDON, Aug. 17. The Australian Labor Party has expelled everyone who participated in forming the new Extremist Australian Socialist Party.

A BIG SHIPPING ENTERPRISE.

LONDON, Aug. 17. Representatives of the French Ministry of Commerce, to a meeting of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, stated yesterday that steps have been taken by France to inaugurate a shipping line to run between Bordeaux, Havre, Dublin, Belfast and Cork. It was decided at the meeting to appoint a committee to develop direct trade between Ireland and France.

SMUTS' APPEAL FOR CO-OPERATION.

JOHANNESBURG, Aug. 16. (Reuter's)—General Botha and General Smuts received a great welcome on their arrival here to-day. In the course of a speech General Smuts appealed for closer co-operation between the Dutch and British sections of the population. He added, "We have learned in the greatest school of the world—the war, that the things uniting us are far greater than those dividing us."

INTERNATIONAL LABOR PROBLEMS.

LONDON, Aug. 16. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—In replying to a question in the House of Commons, Rt. Hon. George Barnes said that the extent to which European countries, including the Japanese, could adopt the principles laid down in article 427 of the League of Nations governing the conditions of Labor, would be worked out at the International Labor Conference. As regards the eight hour day or 48 hour week, the organizing committee, which is preparing for the first conference, in October, had invised the different states mentioned to indicate an equivalent for the limitation of the working hours considered suitable. India is not in the same category as the non-fully-self-governing colonies because she is a full member of the League of Nations and of the labor organizations. Representatives of Indian organized labor, if such organization existed, would be invited to attend the conference. Otherwise, the Indian Government would select representatives. Japanese organized labor would be similarly invited or represented.

AUSTRALIAN WHEAT OPTION.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 17. (Reuter despatch).—The Imperial Government has intimated its intention to exercise its option on half a million tons of wheat.

INFLUENZA IN TASMANIA.

HOBART, Tasmania, Aug. 17. (Reuter despatch).—Hitherto Tasmania has been free of the pneumonia influenza, but the disease is now prevalent. Schools have had to be closed.

N.E.W. FAVORS INTERNATIONALISM.

LONDON, Aug. 17. (Reuter).—At the closing sitting of the National Federation of General Workers, held at Manchester, the Executive was instructed to take steps with a view to the General Workers of all countries being federated internationally, and the General Secretary was instructed to proceed with the necessary preparations for calling together an International Conference, to be held preferably in France or Belgium.

THE ANGLO-PERSIAN TREATY.

LONDON, Aug. 16. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—Details have been issued in connection with the new Anglo-Persian agreement, the general result of which, it is hoped, will contribute largely to the future peace of the coast, as well as to end the foreign intrigues that have caused jealous competition, and give the best chance to Persia to recuperate. After pledging respect for the absolute independence of the country, the agreement undertakes to supply, at cost, to Persia, such expert advisers as are considered necessary for the administration, and also to loan officers for the new military force it is proposed to establish. The British Treasury will advance two million pounds sterling to be shared equally by the India Government. This money will be secured upon the customs revenues. In order to give the necessary reforms the agreement does not mean that Great Britain will assume any fresh costly obligations or that Persia is giving up any part of her liberty. It was Persia that took the initiative in requesting Britain's help in rehabilitating the fortunes of Persia, because it is realized that Britain is the only great neighbor closely interested in her future and able and willing to furnish help. The agreement also includes an undertaking that Britain will co-operate with Persia for the encouragement of Anglo-Persian enterprise to improve the means of communication by railway construction, etc. The Anglo-Persian Committee of Experts will be appointed to revise the custom's tariff, with a view to remodeling it to promote the prosperity of the country.

DIED. Last night after a short illness, John Henry, darling son of Walter and Alice Williams, aged 4 years.

Clarenville Notes.

On the 4th of July, the citizens, while in their daily rush of life's duties, were aroused by a peculiar sound. At first it resembled the noise of a speed-motor boat in the distance, and for ten or fifteen minutes all eyes were turned toward the direction from which the sound came. Those who had witnessed the dread realities of war as well as those who had been abroad where airships were in evidence daily, calculated that it was the sound that emanated from one of Tennyson's prophetic visions of aerial warfare, and while in quest for the right solution of the bone of contention, a cigar-shaped object appeared, which soon brought to bear unusual strain on the occult vision of men, women and children, for it was no less than the august ship, R-34.

The weather, on the whole, has been very changeable during the last two months; "just the right stuff for the gardens," the farmers would say. Judging by the large quantities of caplin that have been procured for fertilizing purposes, there will be abundance of garden produce this season, and bespeaks good crops next year.

Sometime in May, Mr. W. L. Butler, of Shoal Harbor, applied for letters patent for an improvement to the airbrake system, which, when brought to perfection, will minimize the dangers so very prevalent to the derailment of passenger or other railway coaches, by bringing the attention of such derailment to the locomotive engineer. Mr. Butler claims that the train can be brought up before any accident can accrue. He being a graduate in locomotive engineering, we feel sure his efforts along scientific and inventive lines in this direction will be productive of much good.

The stork has paid several visits to this locality within the last three months, some of the homes visited are familiar friends of his, and in passing, nothing more than the ordinary congratulation seems to be in order. One of the homes visited for the first time, was that of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. James, and made a contribution to their matrimonial fruit-basket of a baby girl. Congratulations greeted them from all quarters, even through the telegraph medium. It is said that one of the contracting parties would have rather had the contribution a boy! Cheer up, the future holds glorious possibilities.

Perhaps one of the most surprising visits of the stork was to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tilley. For over eleven years he passed over their home and never made a contribution, but on the 25th of July he presented them with a baby girl, Mr. Tilley being up in his 40's, is very pleased over the newcomer, and greeted the numerous felicitations that were extended to him with his usual loquacious manner, and often cited the prose that Mr. Hallock coined— "Dr. Stork's a peculiar old guy. Though I never could understand why He goes gadding about where his welcome's worn out, Where he's wanted he seldom goes nigh."

Several new buildings are in course of construction which reminds one that we are moving abreast of the times. Messrs. Stanley, Frons and James have made large annexes to their stores which will enable them to cope with the ever-increasing volume of business that seems to be appearing on the commercial horizon.

Mr. W. E. Woolgar, agent of the R.N.R., who was absent on a well-earned month's furlough, resumed duties on the 23rd of July.

Misses James and Pitcher, of the Postal Telegraph Office, have left for a well-earned holiday; the former with her sister at Lewisporte, the latter to her home, Burgoyne's Cove.

On July 29th a public meeting was called for the purpose of arranging for the great Empire peace celebrations of the 4th and 5th insts. CORRESPONDENT. Clarenville, August 1st, 1919.

the utmost value obtained in the Chevrolet Baby-Grand Touring Car with any other car selling many dollars higher than it?

At $2050 this luxurious Touring Car offers value to the Motorist not obtainable from any other source in St. John's.

The Baby-Grand is fully equipped, and upholstered in genuine leather. It is strongly and comfortably sprung. The car is well balanced in weight for the size of the engine, etc. The car weighs about 2500 lbs.

It is unlike many other cars of this size selling in St. John's as regards tire equipment, which supply only 32 x 3 1/2 size. The Baby-Grand Chevrolet is equipped all four wheels with 33 x 4 Goodyear all-weather treads.

Let us demonstrate to you what the Chevrolet Baby-Grand will do. We guarantee it a speedy, vibrationless puller and an exceptionally good hill-climber. For top gear work, we guarantee the car to climb Patrick Street, and we will take you up McBride's Hill, Church Hill and two-thirds up Garrison Hill on Top Gear. What other car at $2050 in St. John's will do this, and do it as comfortably as the Baby-Grand Chevrolet?

LOOK OUT FOR MANNERISMS.

Are you not sometimes a palled, when you stop to think of it, by the absurd, terrible, utterly disproportionate weight of small mannerisms in determining our likes and dislikes, our antipathies and our attractions?

I ought to like a certain old friend of my mother's. She is kind to me, she is a very good woman, she is capable and some people find her interesting. And I've tried my hardest to like her. But ever in the pathway by which I try to send my friendship out to her, stand two mannerisms which drive it back—she has a harsh, pervasive, noisy voice and an almost perpetual noisy laugh. Beside her fundamental goodness, these are small things. I know you are disgusted with me for minding them. But no more disgusted than I am myself. And yet the fact remains, I admire her, I would do a great deal for her, but I cannot find pleasure in her companionship.

Just a Disagreeable Mannerism. Of course, if this susceptibility to mannerism was a personal thing with me, I should not lay any stress on it. But I am sure it is not. Again and again I have heard people, pressed for reasons for their failures to like some person, ascribe it to some disagreeable mannerism. No one thinks it should be so, but since it is, and since the longing to be liked and loved seems to be one of the most fundamental of all human cravings, it certainly does behoove us to look out for our mannerisms.

Think What This Means To Your Children. Watch your children for them. Remember that a disagreeable mannerism may influence their futures almost as much as grave faults. Try to get out of the class of the mothers who are "funny, you know, about their son's beauty, you know."

DRY AS DUST.

The country's dry; some gin and rye in alleys may be peddled, but prison waits the foolish skates who with such trade have meddled. The thirsty sink who seeks a drink of soul destroying bitters, must cast aside all decent pride and herd with low down critters. The country's dry and so am I, but I'm a fan for water; when heated up I want a cup that doesn't make me hotter. The foaming beer, all amber clear, that bears such luring titles, piles useless fat on waist and slet, and superheats men's vitals. The sparkling wine whose bubbles shine like dew upon the clover, heats up one's veins and cooks his brains, and leaves a fierce hang-over. I drink from pools, for water cools my works, by summer heated; I don't regret the era wet, when men each other treated. I drink from pumps and have no dumps when rising in the morning; no stomach throes, and my red nose is not a horrid warning. I drink from brooks whose bends and crooks bisect the smiling valleys; I have no use for serpent juice dispensed in dirty alleys.

Comic Opera "Honors."

Decorations That Don't Count.

If you meet a man whose breast is covered with ribbons, you need not jump to the conclusion that it was really he who won the war. He may be a victim of the gentry who vend more or less spurious "honours."

An early sham of this kind was the silver stripe, which, though often worn, was never authorized. Similar is the "French wounded ribbon" (blue, orange, and white), worn by some men who were wounded in France or Belgium. The British authorities do not recognize it.

Where, again, is there any regulation under which the so-called "Italian ribbon" may be sported by men who took part in the operations in Italy? Actually the ribbon of the Independence Medal, it is authorized by the Government of that country; but British soldiers are not allowed to wear it.

In the same way, the ribbon of the Serbian Medal, though perfectly legitimate in the country of its origin, is ridiculous when worn by Britons.

Perhaps the greatest sham of all is the "Allies' Ribbon," which is a much-coloured product of the real comic-opera order. For it is a fictitious "honour"—an honour created by traders for the purpose of fleecing soldiers and ex-soldiers, who buy it (often at a grossly extortionate price) in the honest belief that they are entitled to wear it.

In addition to a fine show of "decorations" of this kind, some men have a brilliant display of ribbon, etc., which, though equally objectionable from the military point of view, are merely "unauthorized."

When, for instance, it was announced that a silver rosette would be issued as an addition to the 1914 Star, manufacturers rushed out that article immediately.

So, too, in the case of the General Service Medal. Months ago, long before a single regulation concerning it was issued, the appropriate ribbon—or what purported to be such—was on sale, and was largely bought by men who considered they were entitled to wear it.

If dealers who flood the market with such wares are not careful, they will soon find themselves in hot water. The authorities now have power to prosecute them.—Tit Bits.

Massed Emotion of Women.

One day I passed by a Sheffield factory at noon, and there came out of the door of the factory wall a crowd of girls, as though they were borne out on a tide of their own gale. They were dressed in a brown holland of some sort; trousers came to their ankles, and their tunics, rather high above the knee, were belted, and brown caps were on their heads. As they came swinging out in the magnificence of youth their vitality swamped one. Youth marching out to war we are used to, but the massed emotion of women is an unknown quantity. It is as though by inviting women out into the world a force of mighty vitality, whose power no one has yet measured, had been released, something very splendid, a new and rather terrible life; one felt its potentiality in this band of girls that came out running.—Mary Heaton Vorse.

A Queer Summons.

A wig maker in Nice, France, sued the proprietor of the finest and largest hotel in the town on the ground that his light had been spoiled by the height of the hotel, as it had been erected to near his place of business. He claimed that he required a very strong light to properly conduct his trade and the hotel prevented this. The extraordinary thing is that judgement was given in his favor by the local tribunal and the hotel proprietor ordered to take down the building.

A Suggestion.

While the question of the best date and hour of continuing the postponed regatta is under discussion, it may not be out of place to offer a suggestion or two as to the conduct of future regattas here and particularly as to the prevention, as far as possible, of a recurrence of the regrettable tragedy which marked the holiday last week. For that, without question, will be the first consideration in the minds of the Committee and of all interested in this finest of sports.

As long as the length and shape of Quidi Vidi Lake govern the length of the race course, as long, that is, as it is necessary for the boats to turn a buoy and return on their course, it will be impossible altogether to eliminate the risk of accidents, which may easily prove fatal. Even under ideal conditions, there is always great danger, when three or more boats turn the buoys together, of fouling, with the inevitable result, when it is nothing worse, of dispute and disqualification. When there is a stiff wind—as there very often is—the danger is of course much increased, and what in smooth water is merely awkward becomes positively perilous.

It may be doubted if there is another rowing course in the world where the competing boats have to round buoys, at any rate at so sharp a turn. Racing boats are not fitted or intended for such a manoeuvre, which is also objectionable as breaking up the stroke in the middle of the race. Of course, it may be argued that the single stretch, up or down the lake, is hardly long enough to make a race worth while. That is an open question, but in any case it becomes a matter of weighing the points pro and con, and even a short race is preferable to a dangerous one.

But there is another, and very important, consideration. If the course were a straight one, there is nothing, except the lack of a little enterprise, to prevent our carrying on our racing under the real racing conditions, that is, with standard, eight-oared, outriggered boats, with sliding seats. With the present craft a correct and efficient style is impossible: the straight back, quick recovery and other hall-marks of good oarsmanship are conspicuous by their absence. Further, all the other colonies and several foreign countries, with a comparatively small rowing population, send crews annually to Henley Regatta. Though a nation of oarsmen, we are not represented there, and, until we adopt the same apparatus and methods of training, never will be. Of our ability to make a good showing for ourselves, given these conditions, there can be no question. There would be no practical difficulties in the way; probably as many boats as are necessary could be got second-hand for a song in England.

We offer the suggestion for what it is worth. There may be other objections to the idea than those we have mentioned, but they need not be insuperable. And it seems a pity that with our unequalled facilities for rowing this first of all manly sports does not hold a higher place in our athletic life and is not made a part of the training of all our schoolboys. Nothing is wanted but a little enterprise.

Saturday's Cricket

Prospero Makes Record Trip.

The s.s. Prospero, Capt. A. Keen, arrived at noon yesterday, after a record round trip. The steamer made every port of call going and returning to Quirpon, landed a full freight and took on board a large quantity of freight on the return trip. The trip was made in eight days. The following passengers came on the steamer: Messrs. Day, Kinsman, Campbell, Thistle, Gibbons, Ricketts, V.C. Walsh, Parsons, Morris, Tizard, White, Miles, Hefferman, Lockyer, Christian, Carter, Earle, White, Maundjer, Elliott, Rowsell, Taylor, McDonald, Cluett, Lacey, Holmes, Hodder, Fitzgerald; Rev. Automobile Overtaken.

John Ryan, of Casey Street, now lies at the General Hospital precariously ill as a result of injuries received when the automobile in which he was driving along the Petty Hr. Road yesterday evening overturned. In company with four companions, Ryan was proceeding to the Fernalde Garden Party in the car, which was owned and driven by Wm. Albert Thomas of Hayward Avenue. Having passed Forest Pond, the steering gear suddenly gave out and the car swerved to one side, where it stuck in the drain and overturned. Ryan was caught underneath but was extricated as quickly as possible and brought to Walsh's on the Goulds Road by Constables P. Kelly and Burke, who were called from the Garden Party. The former telegraphed to town and in a short while the injured man was visited by Archbishop Roche, Revs. Dr. Greene, Fr. Tierney and Dr. Roberts. The accident occurred at 7 o'clock in the evening, and from then until 10.30 Ryan was unconscious, being then brought to town. The car was badly wrecked but neither of the other occupants was injured.

Saw Northern Lights.

The people of St. John, N.B., saw the brilliant display of Northern Lights seen here on last Monday night, according to papers received from that place. It will be remembered that the Telegram contained an item about the illuminations in last Tuesday's issue, stating that in all probability the Prince had witnessed the display from the Renown at Top-sail. It turned out, later, that he had and was deeply interested in it.

Little Boy Kicked by Horse.

DIES FROM INJURIES RECEIVED. Little John H. Williams, young son of Walter Williams of McDougall St., died at his home last night as a result of injuries received on Thursday last when a horse kicked him in the stomach. In company with a young companion he was playing in a nearby field, and while warning the companion to keep clear of the horse, was kicked himself. A doctor was called but could not prevent the inevitable, and he passed away as mentioned. The people in that district regret very much the sad end of young Jack, for he was well-liked and a general favorite all round. The Telegram extends sympathy to the parents and relatives of the young boy.

Whales Plentiful.

Mr. D. A. Ryan received a message from Hawke's Harbor Saturday, stating that the whaling steamer "Catcher" has secured 20 fish and took three on Friday last. The whales are very plentiful and there is little doubt but that the "Catcher" will secure a record voyage. Unfortunately we cannot give a favorable account of the codfishery on the upper part of the shore, and we fear it is now too late for a good voyage. The "Catcher" did not commence whaling until the 1st of this month.

Potatoes Frosted.

Several of the farmers from the Suburbs inform us that the potatoes suffered last night owing to the frost. This was so in the Valleys where the stalks are turned black, but on the higher ground very little, if any, damage has been done. The farmers feel the loss greatly, and the result will be hard.

Yesterday's Garden Party.

Yesterday's Garden Party at Fernalde was a splendid success and hundreds of visitors from the city, Goulds and Petty Hr. were present. The F.A. Band was present and rendered a delightful programme. Among the visitors was the Hon. J. R. Bennett.

Big French Shore Fishery

The fishery along the French Shore, extending from Piscot Islands to Cape Norman, will be the biggest for half a century, states Capt. Keen of the Prospero. The crews of the schooners in Pistolet Bay have all loaded, and when the Prospero was coming down about 100,000 qts. of fish had been taken.

Popular Sentiment for One Holiday.

There can be no doubt that popular opinion favors one whole holiday instead of two halves, which would have the undoubted result of splitting up two whole days. The trade has lately been asked to give many whole and half holidays, and to expect it to grant two more half holidays this week is certainly unfair. That it is not desired to interfere with the success of the C. of E. Garden Party on Wednesday afternoon is most commendable, but there is no reason why that should happen. The Supplementary Regatta could be held in the morning of Wednesday and the Garden Party in the afternoon, the same as planned. This would have the good effect of making both events a success, and at the same time would prevent the spoiling of two whole days. Everybody would prefer a whole holiday to two halves, and the trade, without doubt, would favor such an arrangement. In any case, the Importers Association is not going to grant a half holiday on Thursday, and the races may not be run off at all, as even some of the rowers may not be able to secure freedom for that afternoon. Even if they do there are no going to be the crowds at the Lakeside so necessary to the success of the races, as it is the presence of those that spurs the rowers to put forth their best efforts. We cannot imagine Thursday being a successful day, and there is absolutely no reason why Wednesday should not be a whole holiday and the two events run off on that day. Both the people and the trade favor the whole holiday idea and they must have it.

Meeting Extraordinary.

An extraordinary meeting of the Regatta Committee was held this morning at the City Hall. A goodly number of the members was present. The matter of holding the Regatta on Wednesday morning was discussed. It was intimated there was some difficulty about getting a half holiday on Thursday. Mr. R. B. Job, who was present, urged on the Committee the desirability of not doing anything on the day set for the Church of England Garden Party. He also stated this was the wish of the Committee in charge of that festival. Many members of the Committee held that if the Races were held on Wednesday morning it would greatly benefit the Church of England Garden Party. The decision of the Committee, however, having in view the wishes of the Church of England Garden Party promoters, was to go on with the Races on Thursday afternoon at 2.30, and not to do anything that would in any way prejudice the interest of the Church of England Garden Party.

Narrow Escape From Death.

While Mrs. Thomas Reardon, an old lady of "Beachy Cove," Portugal Cove, was employed boiling oil in an iron pot on the kitchen stove, by some means the contents ignited and caught her clothing which immediately went in flames. Fortunately her son, who was employed near by, heard the screams for assistance, and running towards his mother, found her clothing enveloped in the fiery element, but she was still holding on to the burning pot and its contents, which she intended throwing into the road. After considerable difficulty, and being considerably burned himself about the hands, the son managed to extinguish the flames. The old lady received very serious injuries, but it is not thought they will prove fatal. The authorities in St. John's were communicated with, and Mrs. Reardon was sent to the General Hospital. She is about 70 years of age.

After 48 Years.

Today's March Through The Arc De Triomphe.

(By Wythe Williams.) The march of the French Army through the Arc de Triomphe in Paris to-day, while it is the climax of the many events associated in the celebration of victory, will have a far greater significance for every Frenchman. Even with the glory of the Marne, of Verdun, and the Rhine, France has waited patiently for this approaching hour. She has waited for almost half a century. It will mark the end of an epoch in the history of the Third Republic. Only when the marshals, followed by the poilus, shall have marched under the arch can the stain of 1871 be obliterated from memory. In 1871 the German army, forerunners of the Kultur so lately vanquished, and it, and it, was vanished from the earth, sought to appropriate the symbol of the Great Emperor, in order to impress their might upon a broken people. German regiments hoped to march under the Arc de Triomphe, but at the very last minute heavy chains were placed around the monument and effectually barred their passage.

Heaps of paving stones and numerous carts were also placed under the arch, so that the Prussians, much against their will, were obliged to march round by way of the Place de l'Etoile. The protection of French regiments that, under imposed terms, lined the way, unhappily saved them from being torn to pieces by an outraged populace.

Since that day the chains have remained around the Arc de Triomphe. No fête, no reception, no parade or spectacle has been sufficiently great or important to secure permission to pass beneath it.

Paris entertained a Czar at a moment full of significance for the future of France and Germany, but even the Czar passed outside the Arc de Triomphe in order to find his triumphal way into the Champs-Elysees. Many Kings and Princes, and even Presidents, have seen their carriages turned left when, after arriving in state in Paris, they have been escorted down the Avenue du Bois into the Place de l'Etoile.

Even in the victory celebrations following the armistice, all the state visitors—King George, King Albert, King Victor Emmanuel, and President Wilson—were led by their outriders of cuirassiers straight up and almost to the portals, but were then passed around on the side.

RAILROAD ENGINEERS OUT WITH STATEMENT

Men in the Cabs From Many States Declare Tanlac Conserves Health of Railroad Men and Makes Them Fit for Responsible Duties in Most Nerve-Racking Service.

No calling demands a clearer brain, steadier nerves, a more perfect state of health than that of a railroad engineer. The safety of thousands depends on guarding his health, which is as important to the public as the efficiency of his engine. Every engineer realizes this enormous responsibility, he dares not take chances with so important a matter. That is why so many of them are using Tanlac,—it steadies the nerves, clears the brain, corrects indigestion, strengthens the arm, insures the safety of the traveler, and keeps him on his job.

Railroad engineers everywhere endorse Tanlac because they have tried it and know. Read what they say.

W. L. Nabers, Atlanta, Ga., engineer Southern Railway, says: "I had lost appetite—liver and kidney deranged—since taking Tanlac haven't had a pain—gained 14 pounds."

L. C. Bowers, 910 First avenue, South, Nashville, Tenn., engineer Tennessee Central, says: "Stomach trouble and nervousness overcome—nothing too good I can say about Tanlac—gained 8 pounds."

D. A. Middleton, 1717 Chenovort Street, Houston, Texas, engineer Southern Pacific, says: "Was in bad shape—couldn't walk—Tanlac built me up like new man—gained 11 pounds."

T. G. Ayers, 107 Raines Avenue, Nashville, Tenn., engineer Louisville and Nashville, says: "Kidney trouble, nervousness, poor appetite—Tanlac put me in good shape—gained 7 pounds."

J. T. Toy, Atlanta, Ga., former engineer Seaboard, says: "Nervous indigestion—kidneys in bad shape—pains in back—am satisfied with what Tanlac has done for me."

R. H. Owens, 2700 Avenue G, Birmingham, Ala., engineer, says: "Run-down indigestion—palpitation of heart—had to give up job—since taking Tanlac eat anything—have gone back to work."

T. G. Burrows, 3915 McKinney avenue, Houston, Texas, engineer St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, says: "Catarrh of head and stomach—headaches—nervous—Tanlac is railroad man's friend—feel like new man."

Lynn Sills, 440 North Bellevue avenue, Memphis, Tenn., engineer Louisville and Nashville, says: "Headache—pains in back and kidneys—strained every nerve to keep up—Tanlac relieved me entirely."

S. T. Watkins, Birmingham, Ala., engineer Southern, says: "Suffered 27 years—stomach troubles—Tanlac has ended my troubles."

G. Geiger, 133 East Linden street, Atlanta, Ga., engineer Georgia Railroad, says: "Tanlac relieved my wife of rheumatism—she gained 25 pounds from using it."

C. J. Weeks, 2139 Lydia street, Jacksonville, Fla., engineer Seaboard, says: "Suffered 20 years from nervous indigestion—Tanlac entirely relieved me—gained 20 pounds."

C. C. C. Parade.

The C.C.C. held their first Church Parade for the season yesterday morning, attending Divine Service at the Cathedral. The Battalion was under command of Capt. J. J. O'Grady, and the parade, which numbered 174, all ranks, were made up as follows: Band, under Capt. Bulley, 28; Cadet Veterans, under Capt. L. Murphy, 46; Drum and Bugle Band, 18; Senior Company, under Capt. W. Clark, 82. Total 174. Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. Greene, D.D., and at the conclusion the Corps returned to the Armoury.

Monkeys in Movies.

We may have forgotten many of our childhood pleasures, but there is a warm spot in our hearts for the circus. But to-day the circus appears much more frequently on the movie screen than it does in the old-fashioned, yet romantic, way.

In a recent production a complete circus outfit was introduced. Horses, prop wagons, tightropes, tents, performers and side-show "barkers"—they were all there to lend "atmosphere," yet the entire outfit only occupied the screen for a few moments. One cannot help but admire a producer who filmed a circus procession after he has been refused the necessary permission from the circus man.

Police Came on in Strength.

The move men in question, before commencing work from their motor lorry, secured police protection, and as the circus appeared down the street the circus magnate was quick to perceive the operator grinding away at the camera. Shouting out instructions to his bunch of cowboys, they lassoed the camera, and were about to smash the celluloid recorder to pieces when the police cautioned them that the producer had a perfect legal right to film the parade.

The spectators ranged themselves on the producer's side, and, fearing they would forcibly intervene, police reserves were dispatched to the place. The circus owner then ordered the parade to zigzag from one side of the street to the other but as the camera possessed a panoramic attachment and was mounted on a platform in the lorry, it was possible to take all the scenes required.

Don't Let Animals Get Behind You.

The zoo at a large Californian studio is in charge of a well-known animal trainer. This trainer is responsible for the twenty-eight lions, fourteen leopards, fifteen polar bears, twelve pumas, six elephants, three camels, five tigers, and several chimpanzees under his control. He also occasionally acts in wild animal productions, and does many stunts which any regular actor would shirk.

Russian V.C. Hero Held for Murder.

Philip Konowal, who by his bravery won the Victoria Cross in France and who for that reason was chosen to lead the procession at the peace celebration at Ottawa, is to-day a prisoner in Hull jail charged with killing William Artick, described as a naturalized Pole.

Stories differ as to the events leading up to the tragedy, but there seems to be no question that Konowal was the slayer and that he stabbed Artick in the breast, killing him instantly.

Konowal himself, says "he struck in self-defence" with a knife which he had taken from Artick. "Fifty-two Germans tried to kill me, but I got them first," the ex-soldier is alleged to have said, "this man tried to kill me, but he could not."

Joseph Ouellette, of Hull, who witnessed the stabbing, tells a rather different tale. He states that Konowal went to Artick's house armed with the knife, broke the glass in the front door and when the door was opened inflicted the fatal wound upon Artick.

Konowal's present predicament is a sad sequel to an enviable military career. On peace celebration day Konowal proudly marched at the head of the Veterans' peace procession, wearing the Victoria Cross and a Russian Order and bearing a Canadian ensign. He was a sergeant-major in the Russian army and served during the Russo-Japanese war.

Corp. Konowal won the highest military honor of all in the fighting after the successful attack on Hill 70 in August, 1917. He was in charge of a mopping up section and single handed, cleaned up three machine gun emplacements, killing the crews, and after an absence of two days from his company, he came back juggling a captured machine gun, and with two prisoners carrying spare parts. He was badly wounded in the face, and returned to Canada in time to have a short rest before joining up with the Siberian Expeditionary Force, from which he returned to Ottawa a short time ago.

Konowal is said to have accounted for fifty-two of the enemy in direct fighting—sixteen of them he is recognized officially as having killed in the action which won him the V.C.—Montreal Weekly Star.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Is Chivalry Dead?

Men rather like to consider themselves chivalrous creatures, but does their chivalry stand the everyday life test?

Take the daily rough and tumble of the Tube railways. What does the chivalrous male do in these scrums? Does he push, bite, and kick his way to victory—and a seat; or does he stand aside until all women and children are safely aboard? If so—unless he is the possessor of a horse, bike, motor, or scooter—it seems fairly certain that he walks home.

What is chivalry exactly? It is merely a word that has no other use than to make the male feel a sense of vast superiority over the female, or it stands for a tender, worshipful, and, above all, a protective regard for woman—with a large "W."

When a man raises his hat to a lady friend, he is, so we are told, showing his respect for Woman. But "Woman" includes every female of the species; why then is it not one in five hundred bares his head to his maid-of-all-work, his washerwoman, or his "char?"

Why does the chivalrous male only exercise his chivalry towards women who are socially his equals or superiors?

Yet his equals, or superiors, probably do not care twopence, one way or the other, whether he raises his hat or not, while the little—and probably overworked—general servant would be genuinely pleased by such attentions. But, apparently, "slaves" (pretty word!) are not included in the code of chivalry.

Listen to the queer kind of joke the gallant male fires off for the entertainment of a waitress, then picture him repelling his friends' sisters with similar witticisms, and one gets a very fair idea of what modern chivalry amounts to!

What a Game.

After hat-raising comes parcel carrying.

The knight-errant of to-day meets some lovely lady of his acquaintance staggering under the load of a pound of chocolates and a reel of cotton. At once his tender regard for Womanhood materialises into action; he relieves her of her burden, and carries it for her to her destination.

Arriving at his own home, glowing with the knowledge of a knight act nobly done, he rings the bell for a scuttle of coal to be brought from the dark depths of the basement by another piece of Womanhood.

In the morning he lies snugly in bed while the same representative of Womanhood struggles with the kitchen fire, and the early-morning cup of tea, the shaving-water, the breakfast, and so on.

Yes, this chivalry is an adaptable virtue!

The chivalrous male will escort the parson's wife all the way back to the vicarage at 3 p.m., and send the maid out at eleven with a letter for the last post.

He will open the drawing-room door for any lady visitor, and will ring the bell for the maid-of-all-work to shut the window.

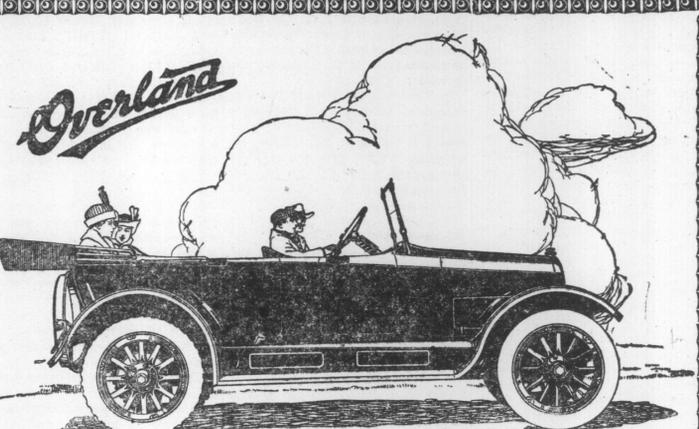

He will hand cake and tea round to his wife's friends, and send the servant out for his beer.

So tender is his regard for Woman, that he will pay her about a third of the wages he would have to give a man for doing the same work.

So deep and powerful this worship of Womanhood that one wonders whether Sir Walter Raleigh, after he had thrown his cloak in the mud for the Virgin Queen to walk on, did not take it home to be scrubbed clean by some other representative of delicate femininity?

But it is a fine thing, this chivalry. If it gets much finer, it will only be found in the new earth about which we heard a good deal about not long ago—or in the reconstructed heaven which was promised at the same time.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Proud Distinction for the Guards.

On August 18, 1793, the Prince of Orange, with his Dutchmen, had attacked the French in an entrenched position at Lincolnes, and at first had gained some advantage. At one o'clock, however, a counterstroke caught him unprepared, and they not only abandoned the ground that had been gained, but left their ammunition and guns behind them. The Prince called to the Duke of York for aid, and Lake was ordered to lead his Guards Brigade of three battalions, with some guns to the rescue. Though the weary Guardsmen were just settling down after a long march, their energetic leader placed them in front of Lincolnes by six o'clock. The unenterprising Dutchmen, however, would neither rally, nor even believe in the possibility of the day being retrieved, and now Lake had to face twelve hostile battalions with his three. The enemy had two strong redoubts on either flank of the village; the road along its front was strongly palisaded, and natural obstacles made the rear of the flanks safe. A rapid glance showed that a quick, audacious blow alone could be successful, and without a moment's hesitation Lake launched his three battalions on the stronghold of the confident foe. Then he sent back word to the Duke of York to tell him how matters stood. He knew that his men were well-disciplined, and reckoned that their onset would be a different thing to face from the half-hearted advance of the Dutch. So it proved. The comparatively raw troops of the French quailed before the impetuosity of the British, and fled from the redoubts precipitately. Nor when they tried to rally round the village would Lake allow them breathing time, but sweeping round their right flank, finally shattered the shaking ranks. Eleven pieces of cannon, a stand of colors, and seventy prisoners were the trophies of the victors' resolution and promptitude. There is no more brilliant little victory in British history, and the misconduct of their Allies enhanced the Guardsmen's triumph.

Picking Up Fortunes.

FABULOUS FINDS IN THE DEPTHS OF THE DIAMOND MINE.

There is scarcely a page of the history of the diamond industry that is not full of romance, as strange as any you will find in books of fiction.

Take, for example, the story of the finding of the famous Excelsior diamond, a stone of the finest water, more than five times as large as the Koh-i-noor itself before that historic gem was re-cut.

The contract of a syndicate of London diamond merchants at Jagersfontein, in the Orange Free State, was about to expire. It had, in fact, come to its very last hour, when one of the Kamr boys turned up with a stroke of his pick an enormous stone, nearly six and a half ounces in weight, two and a half inches long, and two and quarter inches wide.

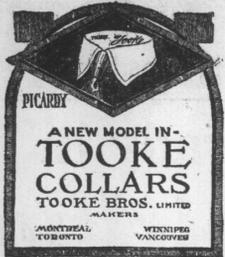

Regardless of the War Overhead. Seizing the stone, the native ran with it hot-foot to headquarters, and was rewarded for his good fortune by a present of a hundred pounds and a horse and cart in exchange for a diamond which, in its rough state, was valued at a million pounds.

A few weeks later another magnificent stone, more than three ounces in weight, and two and a half inches across its major axis, was found in the De Beers Mine by a native boy, who stole it. His illicit ownership, however, was brief, for within three hours it was recovered by a detective.

While war and famine were rioting over the Kimberley Mine, nineteen years ago, the Kafirs were placidly continuing their quest of diamonds 600 feet below the thundering guns. One day, so the story is told, "one of these moles in human form" came upon an irregular pebble, which shone like a moon in water on a crisp October night.

Quickly reporting his find to the overseer, the Kafir was credited with a gem of unusual size and remarkable purity. When the diamond was placed on the scales, it was found to weigh 221 carats, or more than either of those historic gems, the "Regent" and the "Orloff."

Sold For One Frank!
Still more romantic are the stories told of some of the world's historic diamonds. The "Florentine," or "Grand Duke," for example, a stone of 13 carats, valued at £160,000, was picked up by the roadside after the title of Granson in 1476. Its finder, thinking it was a worthless piece of glass, promptly flung it away; but on second thoughts picked it up again, and was glad to part with it for a frank to a priest, who, in turn, was delighted to dispose of it at a profit of a hundred per cent, one two-millionth part of its value.

The "Regent," which is treasured in Paris, and is the queen of all the French national gems, was picked up in 1701 at the Partzel mines on the Kistna, by a slave who, concealing it in a hole cut for its reception in his thigh, escaped with it to the coast. Here he sold it to an English skipper, who, instead of paying the small sum demanded, treacherously killed the slave.

In later years the "Regent" was purchased by Thomas Pitt, grandfather of the first earl of Chatham, who, after having it cut—a process which reduced its weight from 416 to 136½ carats—sold it for £135,000 to the Duc d'Orleans, Regent of France during the minority of Louis XV.

The "Orloff," a magnificent stone of 193 carats, and the chief adornment of the sceptre of Russia, was for centuries one of the eyes of an idol in a temple in Mysore, until a French soldier stole it. After many vicissitudes and changes of hands, it was purchased at Amsterdam by Prince Orloff for his splendid mistress, Catherine the Great of Russia.

Valued at Many Millions.
Still more romantic is the story of the Braganza diamond, a stone of 1,680 carats, and "as large as a goose's egg," which, for more than a century, has been the proudest possession of the Portuguese Crown. This amazing stone, which Mr. Streeter, the great authority on gems, has valued at £8,000,000, was picked up by three Brazilian outlaws in the half-dried bed of the Abate river, in the province of Minas Geraes.

The outlaws took the stone to the nearest village priest, who obtained access for them to the Governor, into whose presence it was given. The diamond, the largest and finest hitherto found, was despatched to Lisbon, with the result that the three outlaws received the Royal pardon and a rich reward, while the padre to whose friendly offices they owed their good fortune was given high preferment in the Church.—Answers.

Literary Lodgers.

Authors and Artists Who Lived Together.

The old proverb which tells us that birds of a feather flock together has often been exemplified in the case of fellow-lodgers, young men who found themselves together in the same "digs."

For instance, in their bachelor days, and before either made any name in the world, Mr. Coulson Kernahan and Jerome K. Jerome lived together, but whether the author of "A Dead Man's Diary" was one of the famous "Three Men in a Boat" we cannot say.

Then it is well known that Sir Hall Caine and the great artist-poet, Dante Gabriel Rossetti, lived together for a time. The author of "The Manxman" was a very young man at the time, but Rossetti was a widower and reaching the end of his remarkable career.

Married Two Sisters.
Southey and Coleridge for a time lived together in the house of Mrs. Fricker at Bristol, and later married her two daughters, who made most admirable and devoted wives.

Coleridge and Wordsworth lived together for a time in a little cottage among the Quantock Hills. Together they concocted the scheme of "The Ancient Mariner" and collected the poems from their little stock which made up that famous book, "Lyrical Ballads," in which "We are Seven," as well as the famous "Mariner," first saw the light.

Two well-known fellow-lodgers of recent years were Theodore Watts-Dunton and Algernon Charles Swinburne, but as they lived at The Pines, at the foot of Putney Hill, as bachelor occupants of the same house, they could hardly be called lodgers.

Holman Hunt and Sir John Millais lived together at Ewell for some months. One was painting his famous picture, "The Light of the World," and the other his fine canvas, now in the Tate Gallery, "Ophelia." The two men once amused themselves by painting the panels of their landlady's cupboard door, and got a good scolding for "spilling" it.

"Sorry, My Mistake!"

CRIMINALS WHO BLUNDERED BADLY.

That cheerful person, Lenin, is reported to have said that he would rather a score of innocent persons were killed than that one of the middle-class should escape.

His state of mind must resemble that of another Russian, the woman calling herself Mrs. Stafford, who shot M. Muller, the wealthy Parisian banker, in the Hotel Jungfrau, at Interlaken.

She fired at her victim as he was reading a newspaper over his luncheon, and killed him on the spot. She had made a mistake. She had taken him for M. Durnovo, a Russian Minister who was not too friendly towards Anarchists. "But," she added, "in such times as the present one life more or less does not matter."

Mistaken Identity.
A similar case occurred more recently in New York. Mr. J. W. Burke, of the Iron Workers' Union, incurred the enmity of a certain political gang of the baser sort because he had accused them of "graft." The gang hired three criminals, known as "Big Shim," "The Dynamite Kid," and "Ernest the Crow," to murder him.

The three went to a saloon, saw there a man whom they evidently thought was Burke, and shot him. Burke was not in New York at all that evening, and the unfortunate victim was Mr. Thomas Conroy, of the Plumbers' Union.

One more victim of blunder on the part of a hired murderer was Mr. Abe, director of the political Bureau of the Japanese Foreign Office, who was stabbed to death on a winter's night in 1913. His features closely resembled those of the famous Chinese reformer, Sun Yet Sen, and, as was afterwards discovered, his murderer mistook him for that person.

If murderers make mistakes thieves do so much more frequently, and sometimes the results are distinctly humorous. A burglar broke into a house at Boston, taking no end of trouble to get in without making a sound. He reached the dining-room without disturbing anyone, collected all the silver, packed it carefully in a bag, and carried this out into the hall. A gleam from his electric torch fell suddenly on a tall figure standing opposite, and the thief, in sudden panic, pulled out his revolver and hazed away.

Two athletic scums of the house came racing downstairs to find that the burglar had emptied his pistol into a life-sized figure which stood in the hall. The blunderer had five years in which to repent of his foolish mistake.

During the last couple of years tobacco has become so scarce and dear as to be well worth even a burglar's attention. But he must surely have been a new hand in the profession who broke into a Braintree tobacconist's and raided all he could carry from the front window.

Unrewarded Energy.
He might have known that in these days the "show" consists of dummy packages. When he discovered his mistake it was too late for useful repentance, so he dumped the whole lot in an alley, where it was found next morning.

Another disappointed criminal was the one who stole a case of shoes from a boot shop in Pittsburg, only to find, when he had conveyed them home, that they were all for the left foot. They were, in fact, a case of samples.

The way in which burglars overtook booty is very odd. It was in the Strand, at no great distance from the offices of this paper, that two men broke into another publishing office, and spent half the night cutting open a large safe in which was nothing but an empty cash-box. They were apparently too weary to start on a smaller safe in the same room, which held a quantity of money; but the oddest part of the whole business is that in a confectioner's shop below, through which they had gained entrance to the upstairs offices, was a safe of which they had taken no notice whatever.—Tit-Bits.

THE NEED OF THE WORLD.
The world is needing you and me. In places where you ought to be. Somewhere to-day it's needing you to stand for what you know is true. And needing me somewhere to-day To keep the faith, let come what may.

The world is needing me and you To share the tasks it has to do; It needs high-minded men to stand Against the thoughtless of the land; Men who will scorn to stoop to wrong To win the favor of the throng.

The world needs honest men to-day To lead its youth along the way. Men who will write in all their deeds The beauty of their spoken words. And spurn advantage here or gain On which deceit must leave its stain.

The world needs men who will not brag. Men who will honor Freedom's Flag. Men, who, although the way is hard, Against the lure of shame will guard. The world needs gentle men and true And calls aloud to me and you.

The world needs men of lofty aim. Not merely men of skill and fame. Not merely leaders wise and grave. Or learned men or soldiers brave. But men whose lives are fair to see Such men as you and I can be.

T. P.'s Men.
"Some twenty years ago a London evening newspaper, the Star, had gathered upon its staff a most remarkable company of brilliant young journalists, all of whom have since risen into high positions," says John O'London's Weekly.

"The editor was Mr. T. P. O'Connor, and under him were Ernest Parker, afterwards himself editor, and James Douglas, who succeeded him; Joseph Pennell, who was art editor; Charles Duguid, now City editor of the Daily Mail; W. J. Evans, afterwards editor of the Evening News; H. W. Massingham, editor of the Daily Chronicle and now of the Nation; Lincoln Springfield, who became news editor of the Daily Mail, and who is now editor and chief proprietor of London Opinion; Richard Le Gallienne, the poet, who was the literary critic, and Clement Shorter, editor of the Sphere, who followed him; Bernard Shaw, who was the musical critic; and A. E. W. Walkley, who was the dramatic critic, as he is now on the Times. And there was also Thomas Marlowe, who for fifteen years has been editor of the Daily Mail. A magnificent 'T.P.' record!"

The Airplane to the Rescue of Storm-Tossed Mariners.

More than a hurricane on the high seas do sailors fear even sixty-mile gales near a rocky coast. To the life savers, also, a rocky coast is most dangerous. In any attempt of theirs to reach a vessel that is doomed, what is to keep their puny shell from being dashed upon the rocks? During the great storms off the coast of Maine, for instance, the experienced guards well know the uselessness of any attempt of reaching ships in rowboats. Rockets or cannons are brought into action immediately and with these the guards attempt to shoot lifelines out to the foundering vessel.

With these lines, it is often possible to carry the sailors off the vessel in hawsers. Notwithstanding this admirable method, there are times when the lines do not reach the sinking ship and crew. Rocket nor mortar is powerful enough to carry the heavy lines against the wind, far off the land. But shall we let the sailors perish, because of that? Not while there is a way out. And that way is with the airplane, the next great servant of man that is coming as soon as the world sees a righteous peace. The airplane is a rider of winds, and sixty-mile gales will never prevent it from carrying a lifeline to the ship! The plan has already been worked out by the United States Coast Guard.

S. MILLEY

A SHIRT-SLEEVE GENERAL.

It was in South Africa that General French earned the title of the "shirt-sleeve General"—a sobriquet that conveys a subtle compliment from "Tommy's" point of view. Actually French was often to be seen walking about in camp during his heavy marches in shirt sleeves, writes Mr. Cecil Chisholm, in his biography of Sir John French.

One afternoon a correspondent rode up to the lines, and, seeing a soldier sitting on a bundle of hay, smoking a dilapidated-looking old briar pipe, asked where the general was. "The old man is somewhere about," coolly replied the soldier. "Well, just hold my horse while I go and search for him." "Certainly, sir," and the smoker rose obediently and took the bridle. "Can you tell me where the general is?" inquired the correspondent of a staff officer farther down the line. "General French? Oh, he's somewhere about. Why, there he is, holding that horse's head!" And the officer pointed directly to the smoker, still tranquilly pulling at his pipe and holding the horse. Needless to say, "Uncle French" and his men hugely enjoyed the correspondent's awakening.

Empire Anthem.

New Verses in "God Save The King."
With His Majesty's approval, two verses have been tentatively substituted in the National Anthem to give it an Empire character. These were sung with the original first verse outside St. Paul's Cathedral at the Thanksgiving Service on Sunday, July 6th:—

God save our gracious King,
Long live our noble King,
God save the King!
Send him victorious,
Happy and glorious,
Long to reign over us,
God save the King!

Our realm of races four,
Best more and ever more,
God save our land;
Home of the brave and free,
Set in the silver sea,
True nurse of chivalry,
God save our land!

Kinfolks in love and birth
From utmost ends of earth,
God save us all!
Bid strife and hatred cease,
Bid hope and joy increase,
Spread universal peace,
God save us all!

When Women Kick.

What should be the extreme limit of a wife's endurance? When is she justified in applying for a separation order? Here are various opinions (noted by a police-court reporter) as expressed by victims themselves to magistrates.

"He did not give me a present on my birthday."
"He said the cake was like—like (sob) lead."
"He keeps on singing the same thing over and over again: 'Tumti-tumti-tum!'"

"He says he's a right to smoke in bed if he likes."
"Took me to Ampstead, your worship, an' never asked me if I had a mouth!"

"Snores something awful. It worries me more than the raids did—an' that's saying something. I give you my word."
"Well, if I must tell you, his feet are that cold!"

"He wants to keep his bike in the front room, and I won't have it."
"Why shouldn't I smoke if he does?"
"Kitchen got on—that is what he said to my face—because he'd sense enough not to get married."
"I've only had two dresses in five years."

Generally, however, an application for a separation order is based on cruelty or, more frequently, meanness, such as refusing to make an allowance sufficient to maintain the household.

In the records of one court the champion mean man is a husband who, during the sugar famine, kept his supply in a separate basin, in which he imprisoned a fly. If the insect was still there when he returned home nobody had tampered with his hoard; if it was not, a lump or two had been taken.

But perhaps the most curious story of meanness was that told recently to a London stipendiary. A woman with three children re-married, taking as her second husband a widower who also had three children. Only a week after the wedding the husband stated that in future the wife must keep herself and her children, and he would keep himself and his children. And, "to prevent mistakes," he added, it would be necessary for each "side" to have a separate larder.—Tit-Bits.

For a joke a film star fooled his director.

Made up as an old farmer he offered himself as a "type." The director hired him along with a number of others, and the "star" proved the most stupid extra the director had ever handled. The disguised super walked to the right when told to walk to the left and so on.

At the end of the day the director offered the extra a humble dollar, which the actor refused, at the same time removing his clever disguise.—Pearson's Weekly.

Countess Scrubs Prison Stairway.

PROLETARIAT OCCUPIES KAROLYI'S PALACE IN BUDAPEST. UNDER KUN'S FANTASTIC RULE.

Conditions in Budapest and the surrounding country under the fantastic government of Bela Kun and his soviet are grotesque. It has just become known the Countess Rada is scrubbing stairways in one of the city prisons. Count Julius Szechenyi, aged 90, formerly master of the King's horse, is one of those who have incurred the displeasure of the ruling forces. In spite of his age, he has been forcibly removed from his home and imprisoned. What disposition will be made of him is not likely to reach the public until it has been ordered and executed.

Every room in the handsome marble palace of Count Louis Karolyi, the former Austrian ambassador to London, is occupied by some one of the vaunted proletariat, with such results as might be expected. Stovepipes stick from the lace-curtained windows, and the silk-covered walls are smoky, grimy and greasy. Protective covers have been torn from rich divans and handsome chairs, to be used for dish rags. Costly bronzes, chipped and mutilated, are being used as playthings by the proletarian children.

It is the same in the handsome residence of Count Andrássy, next door, where squalor and dirt are rapidly replacing the magnificence and polish of a happier day.

Day by day comes the news of increasing violence on the part of those who are in power. The latest instances have to do with Ludwig Nagy, former President of the Hungarian Parliament. He was seized at his country home and while being taken into Budapest, was taken from the train and shot to death by the Red Guard, who gave as an excuse that he was trying to escape.

Neglect of agriculture is one of the outstanding features of the situation. It is estimated that 50 per cent. of the tillable soil has not been plowed, partly due to the disorganization and demoralization occasioned by an order of the Soviet, which forced landowners to raise the wages of farm laborers from 5 crowns to 30 crowns per day, and also to give them butter and milk without any charge and to see that they were properly clothed.

There is something about telegraphy that seems to make operators high-strung and nervous individuals. A stranger stepping into a big operating-room and hearing the tremendous rattle of the instruments would think that an operator would have no difficulty in working, no matter what disturbances were going on about him. On the contrary, seemingly trivial things disturb the gallant knights of the key.

One of the best operators who ever handled a press wire could not endure hearing any one whistle. It would make him so nervous that he could not work. So many operators are affected by whistling that it is forbidden in most big telegraph offices. A whistling small boy can cause greater confusion in an operating-room than an electrical storm.

Music affects other operators in the same way. Those who have a musical ear, singularly enough, are the most influenced when a band goes marching by the office. These same operators would work unperturbed amid the uproar of a political convention, a ball game, or a prize-fight, and hear every tick of their instruments. But let a hand-organ start up and they go to pieces. Somehow or other the swing of the air that is being played gets mixed with the rhythm of Morse and seems to make it unintelligible as long as the music lasts.

Naturally, there never is any music to cheer the key-speeders at telegraph tournaments. In 1904 Joseph P. Gallagher, who held the receiving championship of the world, was defending his title at a tournament held in Madison Square Garden, New York. He was making unusual speed when a band in the street struck up a lively air. Mr. Gallagher lost his stride, and finally fell behind so badly that he was beaten. F. M. McClintic was the winner of this contest. He was one of the few telegraphers whom music does not disturb.

Forty Years in The Public Service—The Evening Telegram.

Sample of Opposition Loyalty (?)

"If the Telegram wants to honor the King and the Prince, it must join the Opposition, and help them in cleaning the King's Cabinet."—Daily Star, Aug. 16th.

For consummate cheek, impudence, and hypocrisy, the Star in its issue of Saturday last takes the foremost place in Newfoundland journalism. Fortunately the true opinions of the Star are indelibly stamped through its columns in printer's ink, and in dealing with the Opposition organ, I shall not enter into any controversy or advance any charges against that paper, but confine myself to his own remarks with regard to the visit of our future King to Britain's Oldest Colony on this side of the Atlantic. The Star would be in its glory if I were to descend to the low and disgusting exhibition of Billingsgate slang that has characterized its utterings for some time past, but more especially previous to and during the visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to our shores. I shall quote his own remarks, word for word, taken from his issue of Aug. 12th, and listen, not to his opinion, contradiction or futile endeavors to extricate himself and his associates from the unenviable position in which they have placed themselves, but to the opinion of the loyal and faithful people of our country, who are true to the Union Jack of Old England and foremost in love and veneration for our beloved King and Queen. Here is a sample of the loyalty of the Star and its masters in the Opposition:

"It is a good thing to have a miniature Windsor Castle on Water Street, because it eliminates the possibility of the Prince getting homesick." I call upon the people of Newfoundland to pass their own opinions upon a newspaper which purports to represent the views of the Opposition in this country. Carried away by its hatred and malice towards the members of the present Government, the Star has launched the poisoned shafts of its malignant sarcasm and insult against even the breast of the son of our beloved Sovereign—the King and Queen of Great Britain. Could any man, woman or child in Newfoundland, sprung as they are from that good old stock of English, Irish and Scotch pioneers, imagine that we had in our midst a man, or a body of men, so degraded, disloyal and lost to all sense of decency and shame as to pen such an insult to no less a personage than His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, whose heroism and valor have been acknowledged upon various occasions during the great war? Whatever love His Royal Highness possesses for his home, he forsook all its comforts and family ties to enroll himself amongst the heroes of King and Country, and fight for the cause of Freedom and Humanity on the battlefields of Europe, receiving not alone the highest approval from the commanders, but the respect and esteem of the rank and file of the different armies who fully appreciated and loved him for his bravery and affability. And the above insult has been offered to our Prince upon his arrival in this country—one who has visited many countries and whose experience is fully equal to any man of his age. Nor is this all. In the same issue (Aug. 12) the Star, to further belittle the efforts of the Government and the people to give a truly loyal and warm-hearted welcome to Britain's future King, sneeringly remarks:

"What will the City Council do if Dr. Neal takes it into his head to lead the procession?"

This is proof positive as to the disloyal and insulting position taken up by the Daily Star during the Prince's visit to St. John's. To treat the occasion with disrespect and contempt, he, in cold blood, drags in the name of an inoffensive, half-witted poor fellow, to whom God has not given that amount of intellectual power as has been given to the Star editor—whose only cause for comment is that he has a craze for attending funerals, and all this is done to belittle the efforts of the numerous committees who had charge of the reception, and throw the demonstration into contempt in the eyes of the people of the outposts as well as the world at large. I must leave my fellow-countrymen and women to form their own conclusions as to the Loyalty (?) of the Daily Star and those responsible for its utterances. The above remarks of that newspaper will remain in print, as long as the records of our country are preserved, and I do not envy the perpetrators all the notoriety they have attained—a notoriety that will make their conduct stink in the nostrils of every true lover of Newfoundland, and every loyal subject of Britain's King and Queen.

And yet this is only a sample of the campaign of slander and abuse that will be carried on by the Opposition during the next two months. We must expect that this is only the beginning of a well-organized movement along the line, and before the end men in public and private life will be made the targets for the poisonous darts of the Opposition scandal mongers. The elements or factors of the most approved outfit for placing a false and bare-faced accusation before the public appear to be: first, some one with baseness and motives sufficient to invent it; second, some one with gullibility and love of notoriety, greedily willing to listen to it and gabble it; and third, a newspaper anxiously willing to publish it. The Daily Star and its associates possess all these qualifications, and now I have done with the Star and its slanders, insults, sneers and sarcasms directed against His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and respectfully and confidently ask my fellow-countrymen, and women also,—is this the class of people to whom you would entrust the destinies of dear old Newfoundland, and are such as the preceding extracts from the Daily Star to be the ground work upon which we are to instill that love and veneration for our beloved King and Queen in the minds of our children? Out ye hypocrites of the Star!

AMICUS.

The Great Disgrace.

"DECENCY" ENDORSES REMARKS OF "BEREFT PARENT."

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—I read with much interest the letter of "Bereft Parent," on the subject of the West End Cemetery, appearing in your issue of last week. I endorse every word that was written in that letter, as I myself have gone through all the experience that is shown up in its publication. I waited, expecting that some one would reply to the charges of neglect, so ably exposed by "Bereft Parent," and as no one has so far come forward, I now enter my appeal, on behalf of your correspondent, with a view to having this subject thoroughly ventilated till the improvements he asks for are taken up. "Bereft Parents" made a strong point when he said that "the foundation of the prosperity of a great many people now driving their Motor Cars and enjoying every luxury was laid by those who now lie in neglected graves in the G. P. Cemetery."

Their consciences must be dead to all sense of gratitude, when they drive by this Cemetery every other day and see the fence tumbling into the road and the disgraceful appearance of the place generally. The Gasolene used on their excursions by those people who have relatives buried there would, in a few weeks, if pooled, pay for the material with which to construct a fence. I notice that none of the Committee have deigned to reply to the charges made by your correspondent. This is, to my mind, a proof that the statements made were correct and unanswerable and they realize that silence is the best policy, and they believe that by saying nothing to stir up a controversy, people would forget their apathy and neglect. However, I am prepared to go further than your correspondent, and have secured a list of the names of the Committee in charge of the Cemetery, and am thinking now that the publishing of the same may have the object of galvanising them into a proper sense of their responsibility. The different Denominations interested should demand that the Committee do something at once in the nature of improvement, or else invite them to resign. The summer is passing, and surely this disgrace ought not to be allowed to exist another year. On the Waterford Bridge Road, near Tor Cottage ground, the embankment of the Cemetery, cut down to widen the road, there is still without a retaining wall, and some time ago the side of one of the coffins was exposed by the foundering of the bank. It remained this way for several days till some of the neighbours made a temporary retaining wall of a goods box in this particular spot, and covered in the coffin with earth. This may founder an day and the coffin be exposed again. I feel that if the Committee would only display a little interest and activity, and make an appeal to the public for funds, that the necessary amount would be quickly collected to erect a good, substantial, fence. If they are unable or unwilling to act then they should resign and let the right men take their places. I confidently believe that there are good men enough among the Congregations in sympathy with the letter of your correspondent, "Bereft Parent," and who only need an appeal to subscribe overwhelmingly to this pressing necessity.

Yours truly,
DECENCY.

Sing Locally Composed Song.

That Newfoundland and Newfoundlanders are taking an active part in letters, art and music is becoming more and more evident, and with the singing, tonight, of Mr. P. J. Kinella's beautiful song, "My Irish Love Asthore," a step will have been taken toward the position in music we must eventually occupy. Mr. Robert Buchanan sings the piece at the Nickel this and to-morrow evening. The words composed by Mr. Kinella, and the music by George Graff, Jr., of New York, "My Irish Love Asthore" will take like "wild-fire," and we venture to predict that in a few days, everybody will be singing, humming and whistling, etc.

George Graff wrote such popular songs as "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," "When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold," and many others.

Forty Years in the Public Service—the Evening Telegram.

Against the Kaiser's Trial.

"The worst of all ways of dealing with the Kaiser is to bring him before a leisured tribunal in London," states the Outlook. "There is no precedent for applying the common law of England to a foreign ruler, and a precedent created might operate very awkwardly in future. But there is a very good precedent for dealing with a European nuisance—the precedent of Napoleon; and that might very well be followed in this case."

The "Law Journal's" Protest.

The Law Journal declares that "the so-called trial of the ex-Kaiser" is a political act pure and simple.

"It possesses no foundation whatever either in the principles common to all the jurisprudence of the world, or in any known body of law, or in any recognized code of procedure. The charge is drawn with that astute vagueness of which only the modern politician with his eye on the electorate, is capable. The offences alleged being 'against humanity and the sanctity of treaties.' In other words, the justice to be administered is at present undefined, unformulated, and adaptable in advance to any conceivable situation. An attempt is being made, by mounting this piece of political play-acting in quasi-legal trappings, to pretend to the world that some questions of law is involved in which some persons holding judicial office will take part, and so give an appearance of legality to the proceedings. It is necessary, therefore, to make it clear that, to jurists and the legal profession generally, the whole of this vote-catching business has no more than a political interest."

Sir Donald Maclean, M.P., leader of the Independent Liberals in the House of Commons, speaking at Birmingham, said he regretted that the Kaiser should be tried in London. He admitted there was nothing too bad for a man of that kind, a miserable, strutting coward on the world's stage, but he doubted very much whether it was in consonance with the dignity and fine attitude of this country to claim the presence of that contemptible wretch in the principal city of the British Empire. By all means try him, but send him to some little neutral State. Give him a fair trial, but send the creature away.

"Notwithstanding the official announcement that the Kaiser is to be granted a fair trial, I can observe no general disposition to treat his case as sub judice," says "Jade" in the New Statesman. "Looking through one newspaper the other day, I found Mr. Tillet calling for his ex-Majesty's removal from the earth, Sir Gilbert Parker demanding his internment in some distant island, and Lady Byron supplementing a plea for a judicial investigation with the palpably biased remark that should the defendant not be condemned to the gallows or the guillotine, then the foulest deeds must be applauded and feral tributes laid on the shrine of Satan. Even an eminent K.C.'s writing on the subject under that designation, is betrayed at one point into speaking of the accused person as 'the greatest criminal in history,' and, indeed, it must be difficult for anybody in these islands to think or speak otherwise. Obviously, however, these are scarcely the terms in which a truly judicial impartiality would express itself."

The World's Most Famous Searchlight.

It Sends Forth a Beam as Brilliant as Fiercest Sunlight.

It is ten feet high, its mirror has a diameter of five feet, and it weighs three tons. Its beam is as brilliant as the sun at eight o'clock in the morning or four in the afternoon, New York latitude, and you can read a newspaper by its light thirty miles away. The heat of its focused beam is so intense that it will set paper afire at a distance of two hundred and fifty feet. It has a candlepower of more than one and a quarter billion.

These are a few astonishing facts about the Sperry searchlight, the invention of Elmer A. Sperry, of Brooklyn, N.Y., who is already known as the inventor of the airplanes stabilizer and ship gyroscope bearing his name and the first electric arc light. When the last big air raid over London was made by Zeppelin, the Sperry searchlights bathed the big dirigibles in beams of light they could not escape. According to some London accounts the Sperry searchlight is the Zeppelin's Nemesis.

One of the most powerful beacons along the coast is the Sandy Hook Lighthouse. But the Sperry searchlight is twenty-two times more brilliant than that light. Were the Sperry lamp substituted for the lighthouse beacon, a ship passing out to sea could be bathed in light until it disappeared below the horizon. By swinging the light back and forth across the sky it has been made visible one hundred and fifty miles away. For Navy use the Sperry lamp illuminates a target ten times more brilliantly than any other projector devised.

Equipped with a carriage that permits the lamp to be turned in a circle and in any direction up to ninety degrees, the giant searchlight is of the greatest value in detecting aircraft. The operator can not control it near at hand; the great heat prevents that. He must stand fifty feet away. At that distance he is able to focus accurately upon any moving object. Because the rays projected by the lamp are nearly parallel, there is no diffusion of light over a wide area. The beam is concentrated.

When the searchlight is being operated, the temperature of the arc is nine thousand degrees Fahrenheit—seven thousand degrees higher than the melting point of the metal holders of the carbons. Consequently, in order to prevent these parts from melting, a current of air is forced, by means of a motor-driven blower, through the carbon supports and discharged through the heat-radiating disks that surround the holders. In the Beck lamp the holders are sprayed with alcohol to prevent them from melting.

The several factors which combine to make the Sperry lamp so powerful are the small electrodes, the special carbons used, the manner in which they burn and the parabolic mirror. A colored glass peepsight enables the operator to watch the arc without being blinded by the glare, or the arc is reproduced by lenses upon a ground glass outside the lamp. An iris diaphragm similar to that used on cameras, regulates the light.

Stand in the beam of the Sperry lamp at any distance closer than three hundred feet and your skin will be burned. At that distance the skin peels. The great heat of the arc is due to the fact that it produces a crater which more nearly approximates the mathematical point of light than does that in other searchlights. The candlepower is more than three hundred and twenty thousand per square inch.

Designed for naval and military purposes, the Sperry lamp, in addition to locating enemy forces on land and in the air, is useful also in throwing a screen of powerful light in front of the enemy. It is impossible to see through its concentrated beam. Allied field forces have mounted the lamp on armored cars and have found it available for signalling at any distance up to one hundred miles.—Popular Science Monthly.
