CHAPTER XLIII.

"That is true, Rick," she murmurs, meekly. "Forgive me. But—but it is so much for you to give up—you who have never known what it is to be poor. Five hundred a year seems so much to me; but to you—"

He gets up and bends over her. "You forget," he says in the half-whisper which Paula loves to hear, "that it is five hundred a year with you—a million without you would be of no use. My darling, I know something of life; you'll admit that? Well, then, if I am not mistaken, I am about to begin life, if to be happy is to live. Up till now I have only existed. I am going now. The carpenter—an awful man, who scratches his head at every other word—is to meet me at the cottage respecting some repairs; and then I am going into the town to look up the man about the furniture. I suppose—wisely—you won't give me any lunch?"

"Certainly not," she retorts, laughing. "We must respect the conveniences. Wait till Alice comes home."

"Very well," he says, resignedly. "At any rate, you will be ready at six o'clock. I'll come up for you. Will you give me a kiss?"

She says "No" emphatically enough; but when he bends down and takes her in his arms, her lips meet his.

He goes, reluctantly enough, and Paula stands, shading her eyes and watching him, till the tall figure vanishes in the distance; then, with a smile of perfect happiness on her face, she turns to enter the house. As she does so a voice speaks her name, and looking back, she sees someone keeping discreetly behind the rose-bush that trails over the verandah.

For a moment she can scarcely believe her eyes; but as the figure comes forward cautiously, she stands, and stares, and exclaims, "Major Vericourt!" in a tone of startled astonishment.

"Hush! My dear young lady, control your surprise!" he says, with a hurried, nervous glance round the terrace. "I am not a ghost, I assure you."

Though he is certainly not a ghost, the exquisite major is scarcely more than a shadow of his former self.

A change, a marvellous change, has come over him. With awed surprise Paula sees that the once upright figure is bent, and that the hand which used to finger the gold-headed cane with juvenile gracefulness, now grasps it as if for support. The wig, the faultless wig, too, no longer hides the ravages of time, and the thin face, formerly so admirably got up, is marked with wrinkles. In short, old age, which the major has kept at bay so long, has refused to remain at arm's length any longer, and has fallen upon him like a relentless enemy upon a beleaguered town. There is no disputing the awful fact: the major is, at last, an old man!

"I—I beg your pardon," says Paula, gently, but still with a fixed stare of astonishment; "but—I did not know you were in Fowls. Will you come and sit down?"

He came slowly, leaning—actually leaning—upon his stick, and sinks into the chair with a sigh, as of one overcome with fatigue.

Paula notices it.

"Have you walked far, Major Vericourt?" she asks.

"No, my dear young lady, no," he replies, wiping his face with a handkerchief; "no, my good friend Lord Hurstley, with whom I am staying, kindly lent me his landau to bring me here. I—I left it at the end of the lane." Then he starts nervously, and adds, with an alarm that is almost comical, "I hope he won't see it."

"He—who?" asks Paula.

"Rick, my dear, my nephew Rick," he answers, with a tremulous mixture of pride and fear. "He has gone, my dear, you are sure he has gone?" gazing nervously about him.

"Yes, oh, yes," says Paula. "He has been gone some moments. Did you want to see him?"

"No, no," he answers, then he begins to whimper. "It's a dreadful thing that an old man can't see his only nephew, the boy he has worked and toiled for all his life. Dreadful!" Then he recovers himself, and turns apologetically. "My dear, I'm an old man; you must forgive me, I didn't want to annoy you."

"You don't annoy me," says Paula, compassionately. "Let me get you some refreshment; you need not be afraid, Sir Herrick is not coming back," for the old man still peers about his apprehensively.

"Thank you, my dear. A glass of water, if you will be so good."

Paula goes in and brings him a glass of weak brandy-and-water, and he takes it from the salver with a faint imitation of his old, courtly air.

"Thanks, my dear; a glass of water from your fair hands is pectar indeed!" he says, piteously, "much changed. This year has—has played the deuce with me. But Rick—my nephew's conduct—has been far worse than this awful climate."

Paula flushes.

"Sir Herrick and I are—are to be married, major," she says, resolutely. "You must not say anything against him to me."

"I know, I know, my dear young lady," he responds, with the eagerness of an old man. "And—and I am delighted it should be so; I am indeed! Not that—I evidently wandering for a moment, and forgetting to whom he is speaking—"not that I hadn't higher views for the boy. But, after all, one must not be too particular; the girl is a lady, and 'pon my honour, sir, she made a grand sensation at that place—Nouville-sur-Mere; appeared

WOMEN WHO NEED STRENGTH

Should Take Advantage of Their Druggist's Guarantee

That Vinol Will Enrich the Blood, Create Strength, Restore Vitality and the Bloom of Health, or Will Return Your Money

Why will women continue to drag around sickly, ailing, tired all the time, nervous, and so energy or ambition to do anything, when we guarantee our non-secret cod liver and iron tonic, VINOL, to make rich, red blood, quicken the circulation and restore strength, vitality and energy to every organ and muscle of the body and impart the bloom of health to the countenance.

If women would just stop and consider that their weakness, sickly, ailing condition is almost always caused by poor, thin, watery blood and sluggish circulation, and how quickly VINOL enriches the blood, increases red corpuscles and restores old time vim, energy and vitality, we would not be able to get enough to supply the demand.

Druggists know what VINOL contains, and that it is a combination of the most successful tonics known to medicine, Iron, Cod Liver and Beef Potatoes and Glycerophosphates. That is why they are so willing to guarantee it to help you or return your money.

mustn't know it. Keep it from him. Don't tell him."

Paula laughs softly. "But I tell him everything, Major Vericourt," she says, gently. "And I—I don't think he would accept your kind offer; and it is kind, very kind, and I am very grateful. You had better let us try love in a cottage," she adds, naively.

The major shakes his head, and wipes his eyes despairingly.

"It's not to be done, my dear," he says. "Love never did exist, for people like Rick, in a cottage. Besides—and his thin voice begins to tremble—"I don't like the state of things. It's very absurd, I know; but I've been used to having Rick for so long that I can't get on without him. I'm an old man, a very old man," and he whimpers—fancy the exquisite Major Vericourt whimpering!—"I've aged a great deal during this last year, and—and things don't amuse me as they used. I don't know why it is the world alters so; people aren't so nice as they used to be. I'm a lonely old man!" and a tear trickles down the wrinkled cheek.

Paula's heart aches for the old man, so utterly changed, so broken and brought to the dust. It is almost incredible that the bent and trembling figure should be that of the only so lately spruce and exquisite man of the world, that this weak, thin, querulous voice should be all that is left of the fascinating tones which, in season and out, were always smooth and heartless.

"I'm a miserable, lonely old man," he repeats, "and there's nothing left for me but the grave. I beg your pardon, my dear, for mentioning such an unpleasant subject, but it is quite true."

"Don't be downhearted," says Paula, laying her hand on his arm. "I'll speak to Rick; he is too kind and good to refuse to be reconciled."

"Do you think he would be friends?" says the old man, with childish eagerness. "Do you really think he would? He was so extremely violent last time we met. Dreadful, really dreadful, and—and—I'm quite afraid of him—afraid of my own nephew, my dear. It's very sad, isn't it?" and he wipes away a tear.

"If—if he was so angry," says Paula, rather tremulously, "perhaps you gave him cause, major? But"—blushing—"we won't go back to that. I'll speak to Rick, and break it to him gently."

"Break it gently, that's it," he says, approvingly. "Don't let him fly into one of his tempers; they are so awful. It isn't that he storms and swears; I could stand that, but it's the hard things he says in that dreadfully cold voice of his. And—and—now I'll go, my dear."

"Won't you stay?"

"No, no," he says, timidly. "He might come back. If you'll send somebody down to the carriage with me—I—there's something the matter with my legs lately; most ridiculous."

"I'll come with you," says Paula, and she helps him to rise, and takes the weak arm firmly within hers.

CONSTANTINOPLE OCCUPIED BY BRITISH TROOPS.

Warships Command Sea Approach to City --- Political Check for Lloyd George---Prince of Wales off for Australian Tour --- No Change in German Situation.

THE ALLIES IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 17. Constantinople was occupied today by the Allied forces under General Sir George Milne, of the British Army. This long looked for military demonstration by the Allies was carried out with only one untoward happening, a serious clash at the war office, where the Turks resisted the Allied troops. An exchange of shots resulted, in which several Punjabi British East Indian forces and a few of the Turks were killed. The excitement caused by the occupation quieted down before darkness, which brought absolute calm.

SHIPS CLEARED FOR ACTION.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 17. Allied troops have occupied this city, and the great guns of the British dreadnought Benbow and other giant Allied warships, moored to the quays or anchored in the Golden Horn, command both sides of the Bosphorus. Every ship is cleared for action. All the Allied Powers participate in the movement, being under orders from the British Commander-in-Chief here. The Italian contingent, including a detachment having Moslems on their rosters, four thousand blue jackets and marines were landed by their warships.

PRINCE OF WALES SAILS.

LONDON, March 16. The Prince of Wales left Victoria

Station this afternoon for Portsmouth, where he will board the cruiser Renown for his tour of Australia. King George, Queen Mary and other members of the Royal Family bade him farewell at the station, where a crowd broke through the police cordon and raced to the station cheering the Prince.

LLOYD GEORGE IN TROUBLE.

LONDON, March 17. Premier Lloyd George's plan of fusing the two wings of the Coalition into a new party met an unexpected check on Tuesday, when he privately addressed the Liberal members of the Ministry, and urged that it was impossible at present to establish a purely Liberal Government, and that if the Liberals were to share in moulding events at this critical time they could only do so in association with others. Such a large proportion of his colleagues, says the Times, objected to the Premier's views that he was obliged to promise that he would go slow when discussing the situation at a meeting of all Coalitionists and Liberal members of Parliament fixed for Thursday.

SOUTH AFRICAN ELECTIONS.

LONDON, March 17. Advice from Cape Town, giving the latest available returns of the elections of March 10th, for the South African House of Assembly, say that the Unionists won 19 seats, the South African Party 24, the Nationalists 21, the Laborites twenty-one, and the Independents 3.

THE GERMAN REVOLUTION.

Tuesday and Wednesday's Cable News. Paris says that Dr. Kapp and General Luetwitz have decided to retire from the direction of German Government affairs, unconditionally, as a result of negotiations with the independent socialists led by Dr. Cohen, who threatened to attack the new Government forces with armed workmen. This report was denied from Berlin, but a despatch timed at Berlin 1 p.m. yesterday confirms it, so far as Kapp is concerned, and a subsequent message says that his resignation has been tendered.

President Ebert, who was driven from Berlin on Saturday, stands firm in his determination to have nothing to do with the new regime at Berlin, says a Stuttgart message.

It is reported that General Ludendorff's confidential adviser has been assassinated.

Holland reports high jinks at Wieringen where little Willie is jubilant over recent events in Germany, but promises to be a good boy and not attempt to escape.

A Berlin despatch says that the independent socialists and communists have commenced a violent agitation in favour of a Soviet republic and an alliance with Soviet Russia.

There have been clashes at Dortmund, Leipzig, Mannheim, Frankfurt and Brunswick. At Chomnitz the Council of Workmen is said to have assumed power. More is to be feared from a revival of the Spartacan movement than from activities of the Kapp faction.

The military movement has resulted in bloodshed in twenty-four German towns. The Spartacans have risen in Dresden, where the casualty lists include 100 dead and 300 wounded. Fighting is reported in Breslau, Hamburg and Kiel.

German officers in Geneva, numbering 320, who are on their way from France where they had been prisoners, jubilant over the overthrow of the Ebert government, relieved their feelings by cheering for the ex-Kaiser. No military men in Switzerland have, as yet, returned to Germany, but they are "watchfully waiting."

Eighteen meetings of Communists and Socialists were held at Leipzig on Sunday night, and a general strike proclaimed. After the meetings, fighting was general. Several people were killed, including two street car conductors. All the car company employees thereupon left the cars as they stood.

Mathias Erzberger, profiteering ex-Minister, is reported to be under arrest.

No world capital, probably, was so suddenly and completely paralyzed as Berlin on Monday, so far as the facilities of living and commerce go. Hotels were deserted by their staffs, and the British, French and American missions with the newspaper correspondents had to forage for themselves, and frock-coated guests carrying brown-paper parcels, oil stoves, etc., were numerous. The water was cut off, at noon, and though baths and washstands had been filled, defective stoppers destroyed that chance, so that the diplomats had to resort to wines and table water.

President Ebert demanded the unconditional surrender of the men in the Kapp Government, and was conducting affairs from Wurtemberg early in the week.

The withdrawal of Dr. Kapp, the momentary Chancellor, is said to have been on the advice of Von Hindenburg.

The Imperial Finance Ministry on Tuesday refused to turn over ten million marks for current expenditure in payment of troops, as demanded by Chancellor Kapp. President Ebert notified all financial departments that honouring Kapp's demands for money would be regarded as treason.

Maximilian Harden was arrested on Tuesday. Helfferich, as well as Hindenburg, is said to have refused to support the Kapp ministry.

The Imperial office for the distribution of cereals issued an ultimatum on Tuesday, demanding Kapp's resignation within 24 hours. Kapp's compliance is since reported.

Kapp believed in advertising. A fleet of airplanes left Berlin on Tuesday to scatter pamphlets. Later Kapp's chances went up in the air.

There was a report on Tuesday that Kiel had been bombarded by the German cruiser Eickernfoe, and that some part of the town had been destroyed. The fire from the Hun ship was especially directed against the quarters of workmen opposed to Kapp and his works.

Ludendorff is said to have attended a meeting of the Kapp cabinet on Mon-

Infant Feeding

All that is needed to prepare Carnation Milk for the infant's use is proper dilution with pure water. Excellent physicians recommend it. Ask your doctor.

Children Like Their Cereals More — Eat More — With This Wholesome Milk

Eager to get out in the air—to play outside—the kiddies are often too impatient to eat a hearty breakfast.

Low-cost, nourishing food—like porridge and other cereals, should be made appetizing for them by using rich, creamy milk. Try them with Carnation Milk.

Serve it as rich as they like it. Part of the water has been evaporated from the milk, giving Carnation a creamy richness. For tea or coffee it is just right. Some also use it as it is for cereals. But for the children's cereal, add water to Carnation Milk.

An equal part of water reduces Carnation to a natural "whole" milk. Even more water can be added for the children's drink.

Imagine the convenience of such a milk supply! No bother with bottles—no delayed deliveries—no uncertainty as to quality, no need to buy cream.

You keep sealed cans of Carnation Milk on your pantry shelves.

Whenever you want "fresh" milk—you open a can of Carnation. You use it as any other milk—adding water of course, unless you wish to serve it as cream.

Nothing has been added to Carnation Milk—no sugar—no preservatives.

The rich "whole" milk is sealed in new clean cans, at our spotless condenseries. It is sterilized to make it safe and keep it pure.

It comes to your table pure, wholesome and rich.

Lusitania's Captain Exonerated.

Not Guilty of Negligence—Lawruit Recalls Wartime Ocean Drama—Captain Turner Gives Evidence.
(Liverpool Weekly Post, Feb. 14.)

Was the Lusitania lost through the negligence of her commander, Captain Turner. The question, which recalls sad memories of our greatest ocean drama, has been debated at Liverpool Assizes, this week, before Mr. Justice Bray and a special jury. The case was an action brought against the Cunard Line by Mrs. Kate Coughlin, of Cork, to recover damages for the loss of her husband, John Coughlin, who sailed from the United States on the Lusitania on her last voyage, and perished on her when she was torpedoed off the Old Head of Kinsale.

The jury found that Capt. Turner, who was in command of the Lusitania, was not guilty of negligence. They also held that the defendants did what was reasonably sufficient to give John Coughlin notice of the conditions of the contract to carry him, and that Coughlin knew that the printing on the ticket issued to him contained such conditions.

Mr. Rigby Swift, K.C., leading counsel for the defendants, invited the jury to say that it had not been proved to them either that Captain Turner, the commander of the Lusitania, was guilty of negligence, or assuming he was, that negligence brought about the disaster. He further submitted that, in issuing a ticket to Coughlin, the company did everything that was reasonable to bring home to his mind the fact that he was being carried on condition that the company should not be answerable for the negligence of their servants or for the acts of the King's enemies. "I ask you to say," concluded Mr. Swift, "that the wickedness and criminality of the Hun alone were responsible for the catastrophe which sent so many brave men and women to their doom."
Captain William Thomas Turner,

commander of the Lusitania, in the course of his evidence, stated that he retired from the service of the Cunard Steamship Company on attaining the age limit of sixty-three in October last. On her last voyage the Lusitania crossed the Atlantic at an average speed of 21 knots. As far as he knew, there was no faster merchant vessel crossing the Atlantic at that time. On the morning of May 7th he reduced the speed of the vessel to 18 knots, with a view to arriving at the Liverpool Bar at 4 a.m. on the following day, and thus avoiding a three hours' wait. At about 8 a.m. speed was reduced for an hour or so to 15 knots, owing to fog. Witness went on to describe the course which the vessel took on approaching the South of Ireland, and said he considered he gave the headlands a very wide berth. As to the suggestion that he did not keep a mid-channel course, he said that prior to the sinking of the Lusitania he had never heard that part of the ocean described as a channel. Asked why he did not zig-zag, Capt. Turner replied: "I did not consider it necessary. I thought the speed of the ship would overcome any danger from submarines." He added that he had not at that time received any assistance from the Admiralty with regard to planning a zig-zag. Later in the war the Admiralty gave such assistance to all masters of ships. In January, 1917, witness was commanding the troopship Ivernia when she was torpedoed while zig-zagging, and with an escort ahead. Zig-zagging did not prove an absolute protection, but it minimized the risk.

Disagreed With Admiralty Instructions.

Capt. Turner was closely cross-examined by Serjeant Sullivan, K.C., for the plaintiff. He said the method of traversing the danger zone was planned shortly after the Lusitania left New York, and this involved passing the South Coast of Ireland at a distance of 20 to 25 miles. With regard to zig-zagging, he was under the impression that it had to be adopted only when a submarine had been sighted. Although he was specifically warned as to the submarine danger off the South Coast of Ireland, he considered that the whole of the Channel up to Liverpool was equally dangerous. He had two reasons for going ashore—first, to take a hearing; and, secondly, to avoid submarines reported as lying further out. He did not agree with the Admiralty instructions as to avoiding headlands and keeping in mid-channel.

In answer to the Judge, witness said he agreed that the Admiralty had greater and better opportunities than he of knowing where the danger was.

A remark by witness as to exercising his own discretion was followed by a question from Serjeant Sullivan: Notwithstanding that 1,800 people were dependent on you, you disobeyed the Admiralty instructions?

Witness.—Under certain conditions, yes. Any man has a right to do that. Re-examined by Mr. Swift, witness said he did not know that he really disobeyed any instructions.

Mr. Swift.—Then why did you just say that you did? In taking the course you did, whatever may have been your views about it, were you obeying or disobeying the Admiralty?—Well, I was trying to obey the Admiralty as far as I possibly could.

Do you call fifteen miles out skirting the coast?—I do not. His Lordship.—Did you realize that it should have been your object to keep as far away from the south coast of Ireland as you reasonably could?—Yes, my lord, according to the Admiralty instructions. I thought I was doing so.

Cunard Chairman.

Sir Alfred Booth, chairman of the Cunard Steamship Company, stated that in November, 1914, with a view to economy in coal and labor, it was decided to run the Lusitania under reduced boiler pressure. Several boilers were put out of commission. This had the effect of reducing the speed to 21 knots per hour.

Serjeant Sullivan.—When it came to a question of saving human lives was the captain limited to any boiler capacity or consumption of coal by your company?—No.

Captain William Heston, retired master mariner, with many years' experience in command of Elder-Dempster vessels; Captain Thomas George Legge, of the Brocbebank Line, and Captain John Montador, assistant superintendent of the Brocbebank Line, stated that they considered that Capt. Turner was giving headlands a wide berth in the course he took.

Mr. Justice Bray, in summing up, said it was suggested for the plaintiff that Captain Turner did not plot out his course beforehand, with due regard to the safest method of traversing the danger zone, and that he took the matter much too lightly.

It was argued by the defendants that there was nothing to show that the vessel would not have been torpedoed before she reached Liverpool. There were undoubtedly dangers, but other ships got to Liverpool perfectly safely about that time, and many hundreds had done so since.

Judge and Jury.
"In all these matters," concluded his lordship, "you must make full allowance for Capt. Turner. You must consider what was reasonable; were the result of a great deal of experience and wisdom. The Admiralty were at it all the time, devising every possible thing. At that time, as far as we know, Captain Turner had had no experience of submarines; he would not know where they were, except so far as the Admiralty told him. Would it not have been the safest thing to follow instructions? That is the suggestion; but you must make fair allowance for Captain Turner in the difficult position he was in, and you must look at it from the point of view of the knowledge at that time, and not the knowledge we have gained since."

The jury having returned their verdict, his lordship entered judgment for the defendants.

WHICH ARE YOU?

I have a friend who is a very successful dentist. He is not a particularly rapid worker. He does not have the great charm of personality that often helps professional men as much as their ability. He is not notably gentle, and his prices are high. And yet people flock to him. He has more work than he can possibly do. Why is it?

either made to answer it or done all over again. Why His Work Lasts. That is why this man's work lasts. That is why the work of other men is often brought to him to do over again. That is why he has more patients than he can attend to. The Authorman read me the "lead" to one of his stories the other day, and I thought it very good. "Don't you think that paragraph could be improved?" he asked. "It might," I said, "but I think it's all right as it stands." "I worked a whole hour over that paragraph," he told me the next day. "I wasn't satisfied with it the way it was."

Do You Blame Him?

His Assistant Was Surprised. He was working over a piece of bridgework. His assistant came into the room and seemed surprised to find him doing that. "Why, I thought that fitted about as well as it could when you tried it in Mrs. A.'s mouth," he said. "If that was as well as it could be," said my dentist friend, "we'll have to start all over again, for it doesn't satisfy me." The last four words were the answer to which I referred. That is the acid test to which this dentist brings all his work—the test of his own satisfaction with it. If any piece of work doesn't answer that test, it isn't passed. It is

People who know the Authorman but slightly, sometimes speak of the luck he has in selling his stories. The Authorman resents their use of the words luck. Do you blame him? Mary Pickford Divorced

OWEN MOORE DESERTS HER.

RENO, Nevada, March 3.—Mary Pickford, motion picture star, was granted a divorce from Owen Moore on Monday evening at Minden, a small town near Carson City, on grounds of desertion. She was accompanied to the court room by her mother, Mrs. SmithSmith, and she wept freely while testifying.

She told the court that Moore had deserted her on several occasions, and had only returned in response to her pleas, but that a year ago he left her and has ever since refused to return. Immediately after obtaining the decree she went back to the Campbell ranch near where she has been living. She said she was seeking a quiet place to live and intended to stay near Minden for a long time and to make it her home.

Owen Moore arrived at Virginia City on Sunday night, with a picture man, saying that he intended to take snow pictures for a coming picture, but he could find no hotel accommodations, so he drove down to Minden in a machine and was served with the papers while at lunch the next day. The ranch where Miss Pickford is staying is on the outskirts of the deserted town of Genoa, first settled by the Mormons, in 1847, but now with scarcely an inhabitant.

ABSENT WILLIE WISE.

This is the tale of Willie Wise, who pompadoured his hair. At Kelly pool, beyond a doubt, he certainly was there. He knew the latest dancing steps; at bridge he was a shark. He wasn't very much by day, but a wonder after dark. It mattered very little what the function or affair. Of Willie Wise it could be said he certainly was there.

He was there with all the line of talk that fills the idle hours. At posing in the limelight's glare he had unusual powers. He wore the latest things in clothes and fell for funny hats. He had a watch upon his wrist and dressed his feet in spats. He wore silk underwear. In dress and manner, I should say, he certainly was there.

You could depend on Willie Wise—he'd tell you so himself. In matters social no one here would leave him on the shelf. He knew convention's rules and laws from A to Z, and then he had some little clever tricks unknown to many men. At tea or dinner, opera, show or church bazaar or fair, he'd shine among the shiniest, for he was surely there!

But when it came to honest toil and duties hard to face, it seemed to us that Willie Wise was sadly out of place. He didn't like the office grind and had no use for work. And wouldn't carry any load which somehow he could shirk. He blundered everything he tried, and didn't seem to care. For when it came to making good—his simply wasn't there.

Dresses and Clothes.

IMPROPER DRESS CAUSES ACHES AND PAINS.

Does your head ache? Do the pains in your back make you bend double? Are your feet always tired? You can trace the cause of these aches and pains in many cases to the improper dress. Miss Iva Cowles, associate professor of domestic art, Kansas State Agricultural college, says:

"One-piece dresses of medium weight which hang from the shoulders are best for the average woman, especially the working woman, whether she works in the shop or in her own home," Miss Cowles said recently. "If the dress hangs from the shoulders the weight is more nearly equalized and there is not so much strain on any one part of the body."

"Headaches often may be traced to hats which are too tight for the head. If they are unequally trimmed, more weight is thrown on one side of the head than the other, causing a strain on one side of the neck. Hats and caps which are too tight, cause dandruff and eventually they will cause falling hair."

"Too much clothing and clothing which is too tight fitting will make your back ache. The clothing should never hinder the movements of the different parts of the body."

"Extremely thin soled shoes should not be worn for street wear by the woman who is seeking good health, for the feet will be damp and wet in cold weather. An abrupt change should not be made from the extremely high heels to the low heel, for broken arches may be the result. The proper care of the feet is essential to good health."

"Because of the present methods of heating houses it will not be necessary for the woman to dress much heavier in winter than she does in the summer, but she should always wrap up well when she goes out in cold winter weather."

A Neglected Industry

In a leading article in the Telegram some days ago, the possibilities of enlarging the canned salmon industry engaged attention, the object being to arouse more interest in packing salmon for export than has hitherto been taken. True the business of canning these fish has been carried on to some extent in the past, but not upon such a scale as its importance and value warranted. In the present reconstruction period thoughts and actions must be co-ordinated and turned toward the best possible method of increasing the output of the resources with which nature has so bountifully endowed Newfoundland. The demand of the world to-day is for more fish. "Eat more fish" is becoming the trade slogan of producers, and to impress this upon the consumers and have them adopt it, as it is meant, it will be necessary to depart from old-time habits, and get into the foreign markets the very best articles of seafood that can be put up. Newfoundland has the supplies, and Newfoundlanders possess the ability to engage in a fish canning industry, which would bring any article bearing the dominion impress into a first place in the markets of the world.

The Board of Trade, in its eleventh annual report, makes brief reference to canned salmon, but it is good to learn from that reference that fair prospects are entertained of an increase in all canned fish products in the near future. The excerpt is here reproduced:

"Canned salmon was not packed in the usual quantity (1919) as the fishery in most places was much below normal. Since seaming machines were introduced here, the packing of salmon has interested many who hitherto found the salmon fishery unprofitable, and as canned salmon brings splendid returns, this industry should be stimulated. We learn that a few days ago, at the request of the Minister of Fisheries, a number of persons closely identified with the canning of salmon, cod and other fish products, came together to discuss methods of encouraging the tinning of all kinds of local food products. The next few years will very likely show such an increase in the quantity of canned products that this feature of the trade will become one of considerable importance."

This recognition of the importance of engaging in the tinned food industry is too valuable to be lost sight of, and it is hoped that every stimulus will be given prospective packers by the Government and the Board of Trade so that instead of the annual export returns of the future showing the insignificant number of twenty-eight cases of canned salmon as did those of 1919, the complement will be increased to as many, if not more, thousands. There is no scarcity of fish: there are plenty of experienced packers. A combination that should make for an industry employing hundreds of people, and added value and benefit to the industries and population of Terra Nova.

Interesting Article.

Mr. H. F. Shortis has again drawn upon his tremendous knowledge of past events, his very latest contribution to local literature being a most interesting and valuable article on the "Rise, Decline and Disappearance of our Great Sailing Sealing Fleet," the first installment of which will be published in the Telegram to-morrow. The information contained in this thoroughly Newfoundland bit of history in connection with a past industry, is gleaned from the most authentic sources, and Newfoundlanders at home, as well as those scattered throughout the cities of Canada, and the United States will revel in reading of the former glories of the square-rigged and fore-and-aft vessels which chased the seal to its northernmost habitat.

Police Successful.

An important case which happened along the railway line, and has engaged the attention of the police for some time, has been successfully solved, and the accused will be brought along shortly for trial.

Magisterial Enquiry.

An enquiry into the cause of the death of widow Power, who was found dead in her bed on Tuesday morning, began in the Magistrate's Court this afternoon. Mrs. Power, it will be remembered, was discovered dead by neighbours, who had to break open her door. A lamp was found lighted on a table near the head of the bed.

Marine Graveyard Claims Another Victim.

S. S. Tewkesbury Crashes on Rocks of Southern Promontory--Passengers and Crew Saved.

At two o'clock yesterday morning, the British steamer Tewkesbury crashed onto the rocks at Gull Island, (a few miles the other side of Cape Pine and a little further into the mouth of St. Mary's Bay than St. Shott's, where the Anton Van Driel went ashore), and within a few hours was rapidly being smashed into chaotic wreckage by the monster waves which raged on the shore, sweeping the hull from stem to stern. Almost simultaneously with the stranding huge seas broke over the fore and after parts, quickly filling the engine room and stoke-holds. No move to leave the ship was made until half-past four, when Capt. Pridoux decided that this would be the best course to pursue. Mad, boiling seas, a howling gale from the S.W., and the presence of dense fog made this venture supremely hazardous and difficult. Two lifeboats were gotten ready,—provisioned and equipped—charts, compasses and papers placed aboard and, after the 41 men and two lady passengers had been comfortably clad and every possible precautionary measure taken, the boats were lowered and put away from the doomed ship. For seven or eight hours they were subjected to the hardship inevitable to open boats and raging seas. At the end of that time they succeeded in reaching Peter's River, some four or five miles still further in the mouth of the bay than Gull Island, not a soul having been lost in the highly dangerous task. The first intimation of the safe landing of the Tewkesbury's crew and passengers at Peter's River, was received at 1.30 p.m. yesterday by the Minister of Shipping. The captain, also, wired Bowring Bros., Lloyd's agents, asking that a steamer be sent for the crew. The latter arranged with Mr. F. H. Ellis & Co., of the Tug Co. to despatch the D. P. Ingraham, Capt. Rose, as soon as the wind went down and the seas subsided somewhat. However, it was unfortunately a fact that the wind and sea did not go down, and the Ingraham did not sail.

The Tewkesbury (a steel steamer built in 1907, gross tonnage 4260, nett tonnage 2707, length 331.5, breadth 46.2, depth 17.6, registered in London, and owned by Capper Alexander & Co., of that port), sailed from London to Antofagasta in Chili, to load nitrates. From there the home journey commenced by way of the Panama Canal. From Colon the course was to Louisburg, and from there the last lap of the long journey was started, with Liverpool and Hamburg as the objectives.

The Ingraham sailed at 2.30 p.m. to-day Peter's River. By her went Customs Detective Tobin. Late messages received in the city state that the steamer Tewkesbury is rapidly breaking up.

Mr. Woodford Resigns.

MEMBER FOR HARBOR MAIN HANDED IN RESIGNATION THIS MORNING.

Mr. W. W. Woodford, member for Harbor Main District, resigned his seat this morning. Interviewed by the Telegram, he would make no statement. Hon. R. A. Squires, Prime Minister, told the Telegram that at 10.15 this forenoon Mr. Woodford tendered him, as Colonial Secretary, his resignation. Mr. Squires declined to accept, referring him to the Governor. Mr. Woodford called on the Governor, having a personal interview and handed in a written resignation. This morning, in the Supreme Court, the counsels for both plaintiff and defendant in the Hr. Main Petition case, agreed to withdraw the case. This was done. That of Dr. Jones, the second member for Hr. Main, was postponed until the 23rd.

Supreme Court.

(Before the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Kent.)

In the matter of the Election Act, 1913, and the Election for the District of Hr. Main, and in the matter of the petition of Richard Kelly, between Richard Kelly and Wm. Woodford.

Mr. Gibbs for the petitioner asks leave to withdraw the petition. Mr. Howley, K.C., for respondent concurs in the application. C. A. V.

(Before Mr. Justice Johnston and Mr. Justice Kent.)

In the matter of the Election Act of 1913 and in the matter of the petition of Charles Hynes and William A. Jones.

Mr. Gibbs, K.C., moves for a postponement of hearing until Tuesday, 23rd March, 1920. Mr. Howley, K.C., for respondent consents. It is ordered accordingly.

Court adjourned until March 23rd.

Held Enjoyable Dance.

A most enjoyable dance was held on St. Patrick's Eve under the auspices of the Ropewalk Recreation Club. Dancing was entered into with a vim until 12 o'clock, when supper was partaken of in the company's dining room. Afterwards dancing was resumed and kept up until the light of another day made itself known, when all wended their way home tired and happy after their pleasant exertions. One and all are to be congratulated on the successful outcome of the affair. The company deserves thanks for the splendid club rooms they have placed at the disposal of their workers, in which the dance was held, and for the help they freely gave towards the promotion of this pleasant evening. To the energetic committee a special word of thanks is due. They were untiring in their efforts in this connection, and particular mention must be made of Messrs. Wm. Dunn, Jas. Fitzpatrick, Wm. McDonald and Thos. McDonald. Mr. James Rogers acted as floor manager in a most acceptable manner.

At the Majestic.

A capacity house—fitting and standing—greeted last night's show at the Majestic when no less than five items constituted the programme. Besides the pictures—drama and comedy—there was singing by Mrs. F. J. King, and her splendid rendition of "The Last Rose of Summer" and "The Minister Boy" was rated her best effort made in the Majestic, and the applause of the audience was most sincere and enthusiastic. A feature of the evening was the Irish music by the orchestra, which just charmed those present with its melody. The show was indeed a great success and the management of the Majestic deserves much praise.

NOTE OF THANKS.—I wish most sincerely to thank all kind friends, who so generously contributed of their time, and sent notes of sympathy and for wreaths and flowers sent to adorn the casket of my dear wife, especially Mr. A. Carnell, who so kindly made all arrangements for the funeral, as I was ill at the time. ALBERT MILLS, 76 Barnes Rd.

Weather and Ice Conditions.

Flower's Cove.—No change in weather: still very cold and Straits blocked with heavy ice: wind northeast.
Griquet.—Moderately south winds, weather fair and mild: ice off shore: no seals seen.
LaSce.—Moderate north winds; Bay full of snow slob.
Greenpond.—Wind south west, strong breeze: no ice in sight.
Bonavista.—Light south west wind, dull: no ice in sight.
Wesleyville.—Wind south with a moderate breeze, weather mild.
Port aux Basques.—Yesterday wind N.W., fresh: ice moved off few miles. To-day wind S.W., light, shifting to S.E., and ice coming back on the land. Some old harps and hoods were seen at Cape Ray yesterday.

Hockey Championship Won by Feildians.

Splendid Game Tuesday Night—Victory Won By Majority of Five Goals Score 9-4.

In a splendid, spirited contest, the Feildian team won the 1920 championship of the Hockey League on Tuesday night, when the Terra Nova team went down to defeat by 9 goals to 4. Practically from the beginning of the game right through the Feildians had things their own way. The first period ended with the score 4-3, Feildians' favor. In the 2nd period they quickly notched the score up to 9, their opponents not managing to get the puck once behind Hunt. In the third period the Feildians did not score at all, and the Terra Novas got one goal. Hunt, in this last period, was put on his mettle and may be said to have saved his team. The line-up was:

goal
Hunt. Rawlins
r defence
Reidall. R. Stick
l defence
Tait. Bob Stick left wing
Ewing. Canning
right wing
Winter. L. Stick
Payne. R. Herder
Alderice, for the Feildians, and Tobin and Trapnell for the Terras, were substitutes. Hon. W. J. Higgins was referee.

The congratulations of all fans and lovers of sport go to the Feildian team in its victory in the 1920 series and that it will follow up its success in winning the first championship since 1915 by winning that of 1921 in the hope of its admirers. To Mr. C. E. A. Jeffrey, its manager, is due praise and congratulations. The Terra Novas, also are entitled to the good-will of every fan, for they played a clean game throughout the season. May they have better luck next year.

Ancient Cairo.
At the dawn of history a city is known to have existed near the site of modern Cairo, called Khoroeh, place of combat, because Horus and Seth, of mythological fame, fought there. Seth found the body of his brother, Osiris, cut into fourteen parts and scattered the pieces; whereupon Isis, wife of Osiris, gathered the fragments so that she might erect a monument for each. That is why so many tombs of Osiris are encountered in Egyptian history. Not until a century before the Norman conquest, a modern period of Egyptian history, was the present Cairo founded by Gohar, leader of the troops of the Fatimite Caliph Mutez, following the Egyptian conquest.

"IRISH REPUBLIC" PARADE.

NEW YORK, March 17. New York had the most impressive St. Patrick's Day parade in its history to-day, when many thousands of Irish sons and daughters marched in review before Eamon De Valera, President of the Irish Republic. It was purely an Irish Republic affair. The green, white and yellow Irish tricolor was in evidence everywhere, while the old Irish flag of green, with the harp of gold was carried by only one delegation, that of the Tipperary Men's Organization. Costumes of green, white and yellow were worn by a battalion of the young women of Friends of Irish Freedom. For the first time in any St. Patrick's Day parade there appeared a large delegation of Protestant friends of Irish Freedom. A delegation of Hindus, representing friends of freedom for India, was another feature.

PURELY PATRIOTIC MOTIVES.

BERLIN, March 17. After holding the reins of power for less than five days, Dr. Wolfgang Kapp, self-appointed Chancellor and dictator, has retired from office and control. He resigned to-day, and an official communication explained that the chancellor considered his mission fulfilled when the old government decided to meet the most essential demands addressed to it. He was also moved to this action by the extreme necessity of the Fatherland, which demanded union against the dangers of Bolshevism.

THE SENATE'S PROPOSAL.

WASHINGTON, March 17. Hastening to clear the way for final action on the Peace Treaty, the Senate to-day choked off a St. Patrick's Day debate on the Irish question by tabling a proposal to declare by reservation that Great Britain should proclaim Ireland free.

SIMS AND THE U. S. NAVY.

WASHINGTON, March 17. Unity of command of the Allied and American naval forces overseas, similar to that which afterwards obtained on the Western Front, was recommended by him to the Navy Department as early as July, 1917, but was not approved. Rear Admiral Sims to-day told the Senate Committee investigating the navy's conduct of the war. The Admiral said that efforts to direct a large force of American ships and men by cable and letter from a point three thousand miles away, gave too many opportunities for misunderstandings of messages, and for their interception by the enemy, whose secret service proved itself to be extraordinarily efficient, he said.

FORTY-FOUR KILLED.

LONDON, March 17. Forty-four persons have been killed in Essen, according to an official British telegram.

OUT OF THE LIMELIGHT.

COPENHAGEN, March 17. The Berlin correspondent of Frankfort Zeitung says that Kapp and Von Luettwitz have declared their unconditional retirement as a result of the negotiations, and have transferred the government to Vice-Chancellor Schiffer. Gen. Von Hulsen has taken over command of the troops.

"TOMMY" ON THE JOB.

THE HAGUE, March 17. Reports received from Heerlen, Holland, which is on the frontier of Allied occupied German territory, says that Spartacans hoisted the red flag and deposed the Mayors at Halle, Westphalia, and Schliga, Rhentish Prussia, but British troops have restored order and reinstated the Mayors.

NOTHING DOING.

BERLIN, March 17. When asked to-day regarding a report that the Kapp Government was negotiating with the Entente, Dr. Kapp, the spokesman, who met the correspondents, intimated that there had been informal discussions, but said there were no "binding negotiations."

THE TURKISH SITUATION.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Mar. 17. The occupation was carried out under the guns of a formidable Allied fleet anchored in the Bosphorus, the British dreadnought Benbow being moored at Galata Quay with her guns trained upon Stamboul. Another man of war faced the arsenal on the Golden Horn, while all other warships in the Bosphorus were standing by with their decks cleared for action. Except in the instances stated, however, there was no resistance to the Allied forces as they carried out orders for the occupation of the historic capital of the Ottoman Empire. The population, in fact, showed little alarm, nor was there any signs of panic except in one section of Stamboul, as the commanders of the Allied troops brought their forces ashore. These forces included four thousand bluejackets and marines from British warships, and contingents from forces of all the Allies represented here and Indian detachments, having Moslems on their rosters, were amongst the troops taking part in the operation. Consequently military and naval palms had been made for carrying out the Allied measures and precautionary steps taken. Last night a number of Turks and other persons, who were regarded as possible disturbers of the peace, were arrested, including the commander of the tenth Turkish division. The walls of Constantinople have been placarded with a proclamation by Major General Henry F. Wilson, of the British troops declaring that anyone committing any act that threatened the safety of the Allied forces, would be tried by court martial and sentenced to death, or such other penalty as the court might fix. A flutter that occurred in Stamboul as the troops marched in was on the part of shopkeepers near the War Office, where a clash occurred. They closed their shops in their first fright, but speedily reopened them. The Allies believe their measures have proved ample for the maintenance of security and order in Constantinople, and consider it questionable whether even the so-called Nationalist forces in Anatolia are in a position to attempt anything serious. The Allied High Commissioner here has issued a statement declaring that the Allies have no intention of destroying the authority of the Sultan, but wish to strengthen his powers. It also says the Allies will adhere to their intention not to deprive the Turks of Constantinople, but that they may be compelled to modify their decision if massacres and disorders continue. The Allies have occupied Ministries of War and Navy, and have assumed control of all posts, telegraphs and telephones, which have been temporarily suspended. Shipping movements have also been suspended.

BREAKING THE MEAT COMBINE.

NEW YORK, Mar. 17. According to the Globe to-night, the British Govt. is now offering New Zealand and Australian sheep in New York at thirteen cents a pound wholesale, against the prevailing wholesale price of twenty-four cents, and is taking orders for lamb at sixteen cents per pound, wholesale as compared with thirty cents a pound the prevailing wholesale prices.

NEW HOME FOR WILHELM.

THE HAGUE, Mar. 17. A Royal decree issued March sixteen, says the place to be allotted to former Emperor William of Germany, as his residence, will form part of the province of Utrecht, and that it will be fixed later by the Government. The decree was in connection with an announcement to the Allied Premiers regarding their recent note concerning the one time monarch.

MAINTAINING THE STANDARD.

LONDON, March 17. Introducing the naval estimates in the House of Commons to-day, Walter Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty said the Government was firmly adhering to the traditional policy that the British navy should not be inferior to the navies of other Powers. Then alluding to the U. S. as the only country whose navy approached that of Britain in strength, he said that the idea of competition in armaments between U. S. and Great Britain was repugnant, adding, "We hope and believe that if there is any emulation between us it is likely to be in the decision of reducing that ample margin of naval strength which we alike possess over other Naval Powers. This is a tradition of British Naval policy."

DEATH RATHER THAN DISGRACE.

LONDON, March 18. Rumors are current in Berlin that Dr. Wolfgang Kapp, Head of the Reactionary Government, set up in Berlin last Saturday, whose resignation was announced yesterday, had committed suicide, according to a despatch to Exchange Telegraph Co. from Amsterdam. The reports were received by telephone in Amsterdam from the German capital.

ARREST ORDERS ISSUED.

PARIS, Mar. 18. Orders for the arrest of Dr. Kapp, who assumed control of German Governmental affairs in Berlin last Saturday, General Von Luettwitz, his military Lieutenant, and other leaders in the Reactionary revolution were issued by Gustave Noske, Minister of Defence in the Ebert Government last night.

AT ALL COSTS.

THE HAGUE, Mar. 18. Dutch correspondents in Berlin say that the railway directors have shown their sympathy for Ebert, by ordering that despite the strikes and other difficulties, deputies must be transported to Stuttgart for the meeting of the National Assembly. Report also states that a bill will be introduced in the Assembly at Stuttgart proposing, not only personal punishment, but confiscation of property in cases of revolutionists in the future. The bill, it is declared, is to be retroactive and will therefore affect Kapp and other conspirators.

HOLDING THEIR OWN.

COBLENZ, Mar. 18. (Associated Press.)—A telephone message received yesterday from an American at Leipzig said the conditions there are very bad. Fighting, in which machine guns are being used, was proceeding, food was growing short and water had been cut off. Government troops were still holding their own against the revolutionists. The message said there were many foreigners in the city attending the fair, but that there had been no casualties among them.

WILLIE IS O.K.

WIJERENGEN, Holland, March 18. The Dutch torpedo boat, which arrived here Monday, presumably to guard former German Crown Prince Frederick William, departed yesterday by order of the Dutch Government. Frederick William, who is thoroughly informed of the progress of events in Germany, is greatly interested and seems nowise perturbed at the falling fortunes of the Kapp Regime. Yesterday he boxed with the son of Burmaster Persorum, who was a good match for him, but much younger. No special guards have as yet arrived here. The former Crown Prince is quite free to move about the Island. He reiterated that he would like to return to Germany sometime but not under the present circumstances.

BUILDING ACCIDENT.

MONTREAL, March 18. Three men were killed, six others were seriously injured, one of whom may die, when a concrete building being erected for the Singer Mfg. Co. at St. John, Quebec, collapsed yesterday afternoon, and buried under the debris about a dozen men.

Some Shooting.

A party of gentlemen at a hotel were telling stories one night of famous shots and how many quail, partridges, ducks, and other birds had been killed at a single discharge. After listening to what seemed a wilful exaggeration by different narrators a stranger who was present volunteered his experience of his only use of the fatal double-barreled gun as follows: "I went into the field one day to try gunning. The only game discovered was an immense flock of crows. I should say there were 10,000 in the flock. Slowly I crawled up to them, and when not more than four rods away the crows rose in a solid mass. I fired both barrels, and how many do you think I killed? Different guesses were made by the party, ranging from twenty to 100. "Not one," said the

General Booth
a Great Man.

A biography of the late General Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, will shortly be published by Mr. Harold Bagby, and in the Book Monthly the author gives an insight into the remarkable personality of the late general.

"When I was a boy," he says, "the name of William Booth came to me on the breath of laughter and sneers. He was a humbug, a mountebank, a fool, a rogue, a coarse-minded, self-seeking, and blasphemous character.

"I saw pictures of him, and disliked him horribly. What a dreadful person—a Svengali of the religious tub! I can see those pictures now. They represent a tall man in a passion, the face pale, the eyes blazing, the oily black hair disordered, the clenched right hand raised furiously above his head, the froged coat flung open, the red jersey shining fanatically. And underneath there was always a text about Hell Fire.

"Later in life, I must have been about eight-and-twenty, I met this extraordinary person. He was a patriarch living in a little red-bricked suburban villa. His manner distressed me. I felt that he was something of an opportunist. I went away and wrote an article which gave a full account of our conversation and my impressions of the man. It pleased me. I felt I had got at the very soul of William Booth. Forgive me, I was eight-and-twenty, and young for my years.

"Instead of being angry with the proofs of that article, William Booth took a fancy to their writer. I began to see him with a fair frequency. I became fond of him. I thought his ideas were ridiculous, but for the man himself it was impossible not to feel a warm affection. I never knew a fanatic so gentle and human.

"Then I saw him on two occasions when he spoke to me intimately of his spiritual passion. On the last of these occasions he was blind. He sat close to me. I could feel the strain of the old man's soul as he struggled to make me realize the agony of God for the salvation of the human race. That day I loved the man, but with no sense of his greatness.

"When it came to writing his life, that is to say, reading his private diaries and his more sacred letters, I found myself in a very different frame of mind. There were days and days when he seemed to me the truest-hearted and the profoundest-minded man of his century. I could not help feeling that he towered above such scratchers of the surface soil as Gladstone, and was infinitely nearer to the tremendous secret of Christ than Newman. I kept asking myself: Suppose every man had done what he demanded? For example, who will deny that this revivalist did not see the uttermost truth of politics when he said, 'You cannot make a man clean by washing his shirt?'

"I began to see more clearly what was his aim. The dogmas which ruled him, and which once had bothered me, slipped out of sight. I saw that he was simply hungering and thirsting for the happiness of humanity. I saw that he had embraced religion because God had flashed into his soul the sublimest truth of human life, and because he knew that without a change of heart, without a new birth of the spirit, no man can be happy. There were moments when a Tolstoyan spirit of self-annihilation almost took possession of me. I had to fight for the discriminating and critical spirit of the biographer; and when I had got it I felt farther from the Kingdom of Heaven, and wonderfully insignificant.

"As I look back on the works of this biography I am struck by two main characteristics of William Booth. First, the passion, the beauty, and the self-sacrifice of his love story—revealing him as one of the tenderest men that ever loved and idealized a woman; and second, the courage of his heart from boyhood upwards.

"Those who read these two volumes will find that it is the story of a valiant spirit as ever lived, perhaps the very bravest man of all time. They will find that his courage was called upon to face fearful issues in boyhood, that his early manhood was almost broken by its load of poverty and neglect, that when love came to him, transposing everything and for the first time creating a passionate hope of joy in his heart, he had the courage to contemplate its abnegation for the sake of his Master; and then they will go on to find how this courage faced the hatred of the world, the desertion of disciples, the disillusion of his dreams. And they will see him wrestling with an inscrutable Providence in what mystics call the dark night of the soul, unable to bear the agonies of his wife's deathbed and the silence of God to all his clamorous cries for mercy. And finally they will see him, a mild and beautiful patriarch, hailed by huzzing millions in every quarter of the globe, consulted by statesmen, entertained by monarchs, adored by his vast army, and neither bitter nor puffed up, but weeping in secret over the sufferings of children.

"I do not know a finer story in all the range of literature. It is a thousand pities, nay a million pities, that it could not have been written by his own hand, for then its immortality would have been as certain as Hamlet's. But even as it is in my telling, full of imperfections and little peddling criticisms, it does at least help to make intimate acquaintance with this great Englishman, one of the strongest and bravest spirits that ever loved humanity and endeavored to serve God."

War and Marriage.

The war has cut off hundreds of thousands of young men who, if they had survived, would have made admirable husbands. Inevitably, therefore, we see young women of charm and refinement marrying men whom we feel, uneasily, to be not quite worthy of them,—says a writer in the London "Times." Like many another social problem, this is seen to be essentially a matter of arithmetic. And this arithmetic leads us to a curious speculation. Will the average British mother be led to modify her traditional objection to the arranged marriage? That institution, as established in most continental countries, is never likely to become officially recognized here. But, the optimistic policy of laissez faire must, one would imagine, be affected by the hard facts of the situation. The arranged marriage has long been traditional among those whom Disraeli used to call the "high nobility," and it obtains also among large sections of the working classes. But the great middle class regard it with a curious kind of prudish horror. They are indeed Romantics, deeming impious any attempt to direct and control the loves of their young. Actually they take more trouble over their daughters' boots than over their daughters' marriages.

Newfoundland DISABLED EX-SERVICE MEN.

You are reminded that March 31st, 1920, is the LAST DAY on which applications for Vocational Training can be considered. Men in Hospital, except for a recurrence of a war disability, will be allowed one month after completion of treatment. All men who still desire to apply for re-training should therefore communicate without delay with the Secretary of the CIVIL RE-ESTABLISHMENT COMMITTEE.

Ex-members of the Newfoundland Forces (Royal Naval Reserve, Royal Newfoundland Regiment or Newfoundland Forestry Companies) whose war disabilities prevent them from pursuing their former occupation and boys who enlisted under the age of 18 and thereby suffered an interruption of their training are eligible for instruction.

EMPLOYMENT.

Each request receives individual attention and every effort is made to secure suitable men for employers. A sincere appeal is now made to employers of labour to receive more returned men into any vacancy they have to offer. Many veterans are out of work and enquiries of the Vocational Officer will be dealt with promptly. 'Phone 333.

Replies to Rev. Dr. Jones.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—In a report of the Prohibition meeting held on Sunday night, I note in the Daily News of Monday that the Rev. Dr. Jones, as a citizen, stated that "those behind the anti-prohibition movement represented those who wished to get all the liquor they liked for their own use and not the decent-minded citizens."

This is so sweeping an assertion that I have waited till the Rev. gentleman had sufficient time to correct this statement if he were quoted in error. As he has made no denial, I take it he made the statement.

The Rev. gentleman said that he attended the meeting "as a citizen," and as such I will deal with his remarks. I want to tell Dr. Jones that as one who is behind the movement to seek a sane, sound common sense law regulating the sale of liquor, that I consider myself just as good a "decent-minded" citizen as any member of the Prohibition Committee, and that I am not trying to get all the liquor I want for my own use. I never drank and perhaps never will, and I strongly object to such public utterances on the part of men who posing as teachers of good morals, avail of every opportunity to misrepresent others who differ from them on the Prohibition question.

Free speech, in my view, is the right of every person in this Colony, and if those of us who have the courage of our convictions, publicly differ from the Prohibition advocates, we have perfect liberty to do so. It seems to me that whilst the Prohibitionists are determined to exercise their rights in the premises, to the fullest, they are equally determined to refuse the same privilege to others.

There are thousands of "decent-minded" citizens with us in our fight for a just and equitable law, and all are just as determined as the writer to support a cause that will enable the people of this colony to regain, to some extent, their rights and privileges.

I for one, refuse to be beaten off the track by unwarranted aspersions and uncalled for insinuations, such as were thrown at me by some of the speakers at the College Hall on Sunday night last.

Yours truly,
JOHN ST. JOHN.

St. John's Man Says He Eats Anything, Now

Gains Ten Pounds and Feels Fine Once Taking Tanlac.

Yet another of the boys who returned from overseas with impaired health, but who has regained health and strength by taking Tanlac, is John LeDrew, of Plymouth Road, St. John's, Newfoundland. While in at M. Connors' Drug Store the other day he told the story of his recovery to the Tanlac representative.

"Ever since coming back from overseas, I have been troubled with a disordered stomach. For quite a year before taking Tanlac I was in a bad way. My stomach was in such a weakened condition that I could not retain anything scarcely in the way of food. I lost weight steadily and was getting very weak. I couldn't do any sort of heavy work, and even light work used to tire me out. I can tell you, my condition caused me a lot of worry. I tried dieting and took many different medicines but they failed to give me any relief."

"Then one day I read in the papers the statement of some one who had been bothered with stomach trouble just about like I was and who had been greatly helped by Tanlac, so I decided to give it a trial. I can't say that I noticed much improvement while taking the first two bottles, but I kept on taking it. After that I began to notice that my appetite was improving and that I could digest my food without difficulty. I can now eat anything that is put before me, even the heaviest kind of food. I have already gained ten pounds in weight and feel altogether better and stronger in every way. I used to be absolutely played out if I did any work at all, but now I am able to do my work with ease. Tanlac has been a godsend to me, and if this statement is the means of helping any one else who suffers as I did I shall feel well repaid for making it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town—adv.

One for "Blue Puttee."

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—I wish to say a few words in answer to a letter which appeared in Tuesday's issue of the Daily Star, signed: "Blue Puttee." I would not think him a soldier, only he signed himself "B.P." which in itself does not class him with "Wellington or Kitchenener," although Pte. Milley, being of a quiet disposition; put to the test, he may be a better soldier than the man who signs himself Blue Puttee.

Regarding the question that soldiers conduct sheets, whether good or bad, should not appear in public; unless the press wants to introduce "Bolshevism" into Newfoundland. Is the same Blue Puttee trying to work a soft job out of the Government, or only "leaning on it," as he states other men are doing.

It is very hard for "every" soldier to be brilliant, when some few have enough "brilliance" for a battalion, and perhaps "energy" may be only a personal friend of "some few." Perhaps this same gentleman was a great example to the Newfoundland Regiment, if so, why not publish his conduct sheet, to show the veterans a good example in "civilian life."

For myself I don't see why Private Milley should not be granted a course as well as men who never crossed the "Herring Pond." Don't let the word B.P. think that I cannot go to a course. I am at present attending the C. H. school, and I may further add that I voice the opinions of the majority of soldiers and sailors attending school. Instead of one soldier going against another, would it not be better for us to say "United we Stand"? Hoping in the future that we will hear no more slander from our brother soldiers, I will close this short note, wishing Pte. Milley every success in the land of the Maple Leaf. Thanking you for valuable space in your paper, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Yours truly,
ONE WHO WENT OVER.
March 18, 1920.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Job, who were on a visit to the Old Country, are expected home by the Kyle due tomorrow.

Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, C.M.G., while in England last month, had conferred upon him the degree of Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons (F.R.C.S.), the highest surgical degree in the Empire. Congratulations.

Sir Robert Jones, the eminent bone specialist, who recently performed a successful operation on Capt. Cyril Carter, intends visiting Newfoundland and the Labrador during the coming summer; he will be the guest of Dr. Grenfell.

Advance Spring Styles

ENGLISH MILLINERY

Every Hat we are showing carries a message of the nearness of Spring. The new styles are not so much the change-of-the-season which always comes with the passing of the Winter as they are a complete change in every feature of model and material. With the war only a far-off echo, and the surety of peace and prosperity growing greater every day, the fashions of the coming season show a re-awakening of the desire for the beautiful, the youthful, and the gaily expressed creations of joyful design to which the makers of this Spring's millinery have responded with lavish use of dainty decorative handwork, and the delightful beauty in colourings and rich materials.

MUTT AND JEFF—

WHAT'S IN A NAME? A GOAT BY ANOTHER NAME WOULD—OH, WELL—

By Bud Fisher.

MUTT, I DIDN'T LIKE IT WHEN YOU INTRODUCED ME TO THE SERGEANT AS "MISTER JEFF."

SHOULD I HAVE SAID "PRIVATE" JEFF, LATE OF THE U.S. ARMY?

NO! I AIN'T SPOOFING, OLD THING. I PREFER TO BE CALLED JUST JEFF!

BUT I WAS QUITE PROPER WHEN I INTRODUCED YOU AS MISTER JEFF!

THAT'S NEITHER HERE NOR THERE. THE POINT IS I DON'T WISH TO BE CALLED MISTER JEFF BY ANYBODY!

YES, BUT LISTEN—

DO YOU EVER HEAR JULIUS CAESAR CALLED MISTER CAESAR? DO HISTORIANS REFER TO NAP AS MISTER NAPOLEON? ANSWER ME THAT?

NO, BUT—

WELL, I'M JUST LIKE JULIUS AND NAP. I'M FUSSY ABOUT THAT WORD MISTER!

Mainly About People.

Arnold Horween, the new Harvard football captain, is 21 and weighs 200 pounds. He is the son of a Russian immigrant and came to Harvard from Chicago. His brother, Ralph, was also famous Harvard football player. "Babe" Horween made record plays in both the Yale and Oregon games.

William Butler Yeats, Irish poet, playwright and founder of the Abbey Theatre in Dublin, "whose verse is not like him; his prose is—and I don't like his prose so well as his verse." He holds the Irish are naturally dramatic. During the past 15 years a hundred Irish plays have been written and he would like to see an Irish national theatre in America in which they might be produced.

Charles M. Schwab is America's greatest optimist. The steel king hasn't any fear of a Bolshevistic overturning. He is so confident of the future that he has and can borrow to build and increase his business. An honest day's work for an honest day's pay will win out all the time. He believes in flaming smokestacks and not marble monuments.

Mrs. Janet Reid of Hubbardston Mass, who is in her 100th year, hopes to attain the age of one of her sisters, who died at 106. Mrs. Reid is in fairly good health. She is a native of Prince Edward Island, and was the youngest of 10 children. Her father was a descendant of the Stuarts.

General Gassouin, who controlled the Paris railroad system for war purposes, had occasion to criticize his cook. He was surprised, and his experience is that of others to find his new cook was a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. She had won the red ribbon decoration as a nurse. The war strangely complicates relations of the people.

General Semenov, the Cossack leader, who is fighting the Reds, is undisciplined, but gifted with executive ability and good daring. He is about 40. He started his war on the Bolsheviks by hiring 200 Chinese to fight with him. He ignores all orders, carries on a guerilla kind of war, makes his enemies furnish him with food and ammunition and strikes so unexpectedly, so determinedly that he has become a terror.

A story is told concerning Father Bernard Vaughan, when he was in America. A boastful American at St. Louis said to him one day, "Look at our Mississippi and Indian Rivers. Why, in comparison with them your Mersey and Severn and Thames are sleepy, sickly streams." "Oh," said Father Vaughan, "I think yours are just as sickly as ours." "How do you make that out?" inquired the American. "Well, they are all confined to their beds," replied Father Vaughan.

The Prince of Wales has collected many souvenirs of his long spell of active service, and these are now in York House. In the hall are placed the bass drum and two side drums of the 1st Battalion of the Grenadier Guards, his regiment which the Prince fought when, in accordance with the usual custom on the purchase of new uniforms for the battalion, the old ones were auctioned. He has also two bugles used by the Grenadiers at the front.

In private life M. Poincare, the French President, who recently paid a welcome visit to London, is a man of singularly simple tastes and homely ways. Before he went to the Elysee he used to live with his wife in a very quiet way at a small but daintily furnished house in the skirts of the Bois. Eminent in a domesticated man, fond of his home, nothing pleases the ex-President better than an evening by his bedside, surrounded by his books and with his favorite four legged companions, a thoroughbred collie and a handsome Siamese cat.

A Cure.

No better presentation of the relation of doctor to patient has been offered than we find in Dr. Osier's addresses collected under the title "Asquinitas." He had small peace with mere hypochondriacs, for one such he kept a secretary half a day nothing minutely her scientific details of her symptoms. Afterward he read the note-book patiently and then he dismissed the patient without a precaution. "But what you going to tell me what to do?" she said, astonished. "Madam," his answer is said to have been, "if you don't know enough to come in out of the rain when it's raining I can do nothing for you." The fee for a bit of common sense was more than $1.00. The shock probably sent part way toward healing a condition. It cost too much to continue to play malade imaginaire.

Sixty Quarts a Year.

Fifteen gallons of wine a year is the maximum quantity a family of Jewish faith may receive for religious purposes, according to a ruling received at Halifax, Conn., by Interior Revenue Collector James J. Walsh. The collector recently asked the department in Washington for a ruling as to the quantity of wine that may be used by Jewish people for religious ceremonies and how the wine may be secured. The ruling just received says that Jewish families, after getting the approval of the Rabbi of their respective congregations, who in turn will secure permits from the office of the prohibition enforcement director, may secure a maximum of 15 gallons of wine a year. Permission is granted the Rabbi in each case to make the wine himself, and it is also provided that not more than the maximum amount may be manufactured in the home for the purpose outlined. The wine may be drunk during the established religious ceremonies only.

M. C. E. L.—Debate to-night: Resolved, "That it is the business of Private Enterprise rather than the duty of the Municipal Council to construct houses to accommodate the citizens of St. John's." Leaders: Messrs. I. R. Curtis and Geo. W. Soper.

He Got It.

The city editor of a Los Angeles paper decided to trust one of the overgrown office boys, with journalistic ambitions, with an assignment. "Go down to the walnut-growers' meeting and get me a typewritten copy of the president's address," he told the boy. Half an hour later the lad returned. "Had some job, but here it is," and he triumphantly laid before the editor a sheet on which was typed "138 West Adams Street."

St. Patrick's Day Parade

B. I. S. HAD BIG PROCESSION.

The annual St. Patrick's Day parade of the B. I. Society held yesterday, was the largest in many years. Accompanied by the C.C.C. and C.L.E. bands, the Society paraded up New Gower Street, along Hamilton Street to St. Patrick's Church, where High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Conway, C.M., with Rev. Fathers Wilson and Sheehan, as Deacon and Sub-deacon respectively. The panegyric was delivered by Rev. Father Conway, who took as his text the 19th verse of the 5th chapter of St. Matthew's Gospel. He gave an exposition of St. Patrick as the great exemplar of prayer and penance, and showed how the teachings of Ireland's patron saint had sustained her people through all the vicissitudes of 1500 years, and predicted that as in the past their faith would sustain them till the dawning of a brighter day. On leaving the church, the society stopped at the Deanery, and through its President, tendered the greetings of the body to the clergy of the parish. Rt. Rev. Mons. McDermott expressed the regret of His Grace the Archbishop in being unable to attend. Rev. Fr. Renouf, Rector of St. Patrick's, and Rev. Bro. Ryan, of the community at Mount St. Francis, returned thanks for sentiments extended. Some appropriate airs were played by the bands, after which the parade proceeded via Water and Cochrane Streets to Government House to extend through His Excellency the Governor their respects to His Majesty the King. The Society was welcomed by His Excellency, Lady Harris and Miss Harris. In his address, President Higgins sustained the claim of the Sons of Ireland, as evidenced in their labors throughout the various branches of the Empire to work out their own salvation, and hoped they would shortly be granted the privileges so long denied them. His Excellency, in reply, was proud of his Irish blood, and looked forward to a happier and more united Ireland in the near future. Cheers were heartily given for His Majesty the King, the Governor, Lady and Miss Harris, after which the parade was continued to the hall, where the President thanked the members for making the parade the success it undoubtedly was, and votes of thanks were passed the bands for their services, and Mr. M. W. Myrick for the use of his horses.

Essex Motors.

You hear much these days about the car of the future. But who describes it other than that it must be light in weight, fine in quality, enduring, reliable and of superior performance. The ESSEX has more than one economy appeal. In gasoline, oil, tires and repair cost it is distinctly ahead. And, of course, its performance is now recognized by all motorists. Many question ESSEX ability to perform other cars that it

Cochrane Street Church Sociable.

A very enjoyable concert and sociable was held in the basement of Cochrane St. Centennial Church last evening when some 600 of the younger people of the Church were present. The Concert programme was: Piano solo, Eleanor Mannel; Recitation, Hilda Small; Solo, Carrie Oldford; Solo, Winnifred Pike; Solo, Frances Lindsay; Piano Solo, Max Lindsay; Solo, Eleanor Mews; Reading, Mrs. Clarke; and Solo by Miss Duder. Each item was well received, some being encored. The recitation of Miss Small, who very cleverly imitated an Irishwoman having a tooth extracted, was particularly good, evoking considerable laughter and applause. After the programme had been finished refreshments were served, after which games and indoor sports were indulged until 10 o'clock, the closing hour.

Cure for Poison Ivy.

Mrs. Evelyn S. Trenbath, wife of the Rev. Robert W. Trenbath, rector of St. James's Episcopal church of Montclair, N.J., has conferred a boon on sufferers from poison ivy by announcing a remedy which those who have tried it say is a most efficacious remedy. It is simply the green leaves of common catnip rubbed on the affected parts until the juice runs. This never fails, Mrs. Trenbath says, no matter how advanced the case may be, and is simple to use, especially in the case of children. The plant grows usually in great abundance behind old barns, and is said to be so antagonistic to the ivy that if planted near it the ivy disappears.

NOTICE TO GAS CONSUMERS.—Until further notice the gas supply will be kept on from seven o'clock in the morning until eleven o'clock in the evening. The gas will be shut off each evening at 11 o'clock and turned on again each morning at 7 o'clock. ST. JOHN'S GAS LIGHT COMPANY.—mar18, 11

The Advent of the Man.

The Goods and the Guarantee.

I AM KEARNEY—THE MAN, the projector of My Store's New Policy. The creator of the iron-bound GUARANTEE that protects every purchaser of my Quality Goods.

FIVE YEARS OF INCREASING SUCCESS IN SELLING QUALITY GOODS!

This is my record. Under my management the old firm of Smyth's earned the reputation of the "QUALITY STORE", a favorite resort for young men. It pleased me to know that I was giving Better Service, Better Value—it pleased me to hear the young men say among themselves, "If it doesn't wear well; if it doesn't bring you back in Quality as much as you paid, bring it back—KEARNEY WILL MAKE IT RIGHT." Yes, I would rather lose than have my customers dissatisfied. And the Young Men who frequent my Store are quick to recognize square dealing. My trade is not the trade of the passing customer. My customers "stick."

BEGINNING MY GREATEST YEAR

I want to make this my First Year of ownership a year filled with great endeavor. I want my young men customers to say of me: "He will make Right; HIS WORD IS HIS BOND." I want the support of every young man who looks for Quality and Style in his Furnishings; and for this I will give Greater Value than any other man in my line—for this I have THE GOODS.

Customers of mine who come often to my Store know how complete my stock is; how critically it is kept.

PONDER OVER THIS: I bought One Year ahead! I bought so heavily, so keenly alive to the probabilities of the future that I have no need to fear that the Spring and Summer Seasons will catch me unprepared; that my customers will have to bear the brunt of any shortsightedness. It is the KEARNEY FIRST spirit again!

AND I HAVE THE WORLD'S BEST GOODS!

Famous Lines of Proven Quality; Latest Styles exploited by manufacturers that Paris Modistes are glad to copy. I have agencies for three Famous Continental Hats. Skeptics who doubt my word—what do you say to this:

BORSALINO'S from Italy, the land of Art and Song.

STETSON'S from America. Stetson Style is Broadway Style.

CHRISTY'S from England. Bond Street welcomes every New Style created by Christy artists.

Each season the same styles that are new in Sicily, on Broadway, on Bond Street, will be shown in my Store; an item of service that enables my customers to wear the world's newest creations.

THE GUARANTEE.

Let me ask you this: Did you ever bring back to any store an article that was defective, when you believed you had reason for being dissatisfied, and had the article taken back without argument, and the matter made "right"? This is the KEARNEY FIRST way. When I guarantee anything I sell; when I give you my word, it is a guarantee that will protect you till the article has given full value for the price paid. Know then that MY WORD IS MY BOND.

KEARNEY.

GRAPELAD SOUFFLE.

- 1 Apple
- Welch's Grapelage
- 1 cup MILK
- 3/4 teaspoonful Vanilla
- Juice of 1/2 Lemon
- 3 tablespoonfuls Butter
- 2 tablespoonfuls Sugar
- 3 tablespoonfuls Flour
- 2 Eggs.

Peel and dice apple, sprinkle with lemon juice and let stand. Melt butter in a saucepan, remove from fire and cool. Then add very slowly balance of milk. When smooth add sugar, vanilla and beaten yolks. Mix thoroughly and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Place apple in baking dish; put spoonful of grapelage roughly over apple and pour over this the souffle mixture. Bake in a hot oven from 15 to 40 minutes. Serve hot with cream or plain. May also be served cold with whipped cream.

If your grocer has not got Welch's Grapelage, tell him he can get it!

Halifax Hockey Team Well Satisfied With Visit.

Great Appreciation of Newfoundland--Splendid Testimony to St. John's Players and Fans.

Halifax, March 12.—After a lot of checking from old mother ocean, Halifax hockey team which played against the St. John's, Nfld. sticklers, arrived Wednesday on the Rosalind. Some of the boys were over enthusiastic on the subject their experiences as sailormen, but were of the same voice when they came to the point of talking of their trip to the Ancient Colony. In fact, it was practically impossible to obtain from them very much the way of "hockey dope." They were satisfied with their showing against the men from St. John's, even though they would have been better off had they been able to return as winners. The Newfoundland hockey men have a good team, a bunch of clean sports is the general verdict.

As to the players, the St. John's men have a splendid bunch of performers, who play hard and clean, and, according to some who made the trip, they would be worthy foemen of any team which could be gathered from this place. Even after they "got going" they could not make any decided impression on the men from old St. John's, and were forced to acknowledge them a fine, hard-playing bunch of stick men, as well as an aggregation which fully appreciated its duty as hosts.

Altogether, the team is well satisfied and hope that it will be their good fortune to be able with the coming of next season to return the courtesy extended to them by everybody with whom they came in contact.

Died Suddenly.

A man named Iwils, employed by the Furness Withy Co., died rather suddenly yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Miller, 124 Water Street. The deceased was a native of Twillingate, and was about 50 years old. He had complained of being ill during the morning, and when the services of a doctor had been secured 4 p.m., it was too late to do anything as he had passed away. A daughter of the dead man resides in the city.

Successful Banquet.

C. C. C. OLD COMRADES RE-UNION DINNER.

The first annual re-union of the C. C. C. Old Comrades took place on Tuesday night in the Cadet Armoury. The rooms were tastefully decorated with hunting and banners of welcome adorned the walls. The various trophies won by the brigade were on display, and the electric lighting made the scene a very attractive one. The catering was under the supervision of Mr. John Robinson and was done in his own inimitable style. The toast list brought forth a flow of oratory that would do credit to the most pretentious of the world's legislators. A fund for the erection of a new armoury was spontaneously inaugurated by the gathering, Hon. R. A. Squires offering $100.00; Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., $100.00; Lt.-Col. Conroy, $100.00; Hon. F. McNamara, $100.00 and the Old Comrades $100.00.

Messages were read from Lord Morris, Hon. President of the Old Comrades, who stated: "Your cable deeply touched me. Will be with you to-night in spirit. Am looking forward with increasing desire for re-union with my old comrades."

Mr. T. J. Foran occupied the chair, and the following was the menu: Tomato soup. Boiled salmon with anchovy sauce. Creamed chicken. Roasted potatoes, green peas. Riced potatoes, coffee, dessert. Rolls, apple tart, coffee, dessert. Cigars, Cigarettes.

TOAST LIST.

"The King"—Prop., the Chairman, Mr. T. J. Foran.
 "The Archbishop and Clergy"—Prop., Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C.; Resp., Rev. Dr. Greene.
 Song—Lieut. A. Summers.
 "The Cadets"—Prop., Hon. R. A. Squires; Resp., Lieut. Col. C. O'N. Conroy.
 Song—Major J. J. O'Grady.
 "The Old Comrades"—Prop., Major J. J. O'Grady; Resp., Mr. T. J. Foran.
 Song—Mr. W. Duggan.
 "The Old Comrades in France"—Prop., Mr. Cyril J. Fox, M.H.A.; Resp., Capt. Leo Murphy, Royal Nfld. Regt.
 Song—Sergt. T. Morrissey.
 "Sister Institutions"—Prop., T. Morrissey; Resp., C. R. Hunt, B.L.
 Song—Mr. M. Smith.
 "Our Guests"—Prop., Lieut. W. Clare; Resp., Lieut. C. McGrath.
 "The Chairman"—Prop., Hon. R. A. Squires; Resp., Mr. T. J. Foran.
 Big Parade.

Yesterday afternoon all the Cadets, to the number of 250, met at the Armoury and were entertained to a most enjoyable impromptu concert, to which the following contributed: T. Morrissey, W. Duggan, M. Smyth, J. Robinson, J. Reardon, J. C. Peters and R. Woods.

The battalion, under command of Major Murphy, and accompanied by the Old Comrades, marched to the Nickel Theatre at 5 o'clock, and they all heartily enjoyed a most attractive programme of moving pictures, whilst a musical setting furnished by drummer D. Oliphant and the bugle band, supplied considerable amusement. On returning to the Armoury, refreshments were served to all ranks, and in this connection the excellent work of Messrs. Hynes, Ceul, Meaney, Moakler, Angel and Jackman should not be forgotten. With cheers for the Old Comrades, the C.C.C., and Major Murphy, a most memorable event in the history of the Cadets terminated at 9 p.m.

Pte. Doran Replies.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir,—I thought that the record publication business had finished, but I see another fellow has appeared on the scene, this time shielding himself under the guise of the "Blue Puttee." He, Sir, like my former accuser is also afraid to come out over his own name. He says in the course of his letter, that Milley, Tracey and myself, have been leaning on the Government, and back pay from the navy, which other sailors and soldiers received as well as myself. When Blue Puttee says that the Star was justified in publishing the conduct sheet of Milley, Tracey and myself, I say right here, that they had no business whatsoever, in publishing them, simply because we were looking for our rights, or for any other reason, and I think the public has judged them in a fair and impartial manner. I wonder Mr. Editor, if Blue Puttee's record was published through the medium of the daily papers, in what way would the public judge it. I can show clean records, since my service, both with the Army and the Navy, just as clean as those who hold a high rank in the Army, or the insignificant rank of a common private. I can show 1st class discharges both from the Canadian Army and the Royal Naval Reserve, and can tell everybody, that I am not ashamed of my record, whilst in any branch of the service. But I would like other records to be shown up, to see how they would look in the public eye. I am going to tell Blue Puttee also, that I am not going to keep out of print, because of him and if he or anyone else, accuses me of something of which I'm not guilty, I am going to get back at them, through the columns of the daily papers. I did not seek sympathy from the public or anyone else, when I published my grievances, regarding to my rights, which I did not get, but had they been given me, there would not have been any cause for my publication. I notice also where Blue Puttee says that Doran and Tracey are both strangers to me, well, Sir, as regards this I am glad that I am, as any fellow, who would try to belittle you while looking for what you were entitled to is no friend of mine. I have made no mistake in writing to the press, but I know that the person who wrote such false accusations against me in the Star, has made the biggest mistake in all his life, as he will know when he is brought before a court of justice to answer his false charges against me.

Yours truly,
M. F. Doran.
