CHAPTER XXVIII.

She shrugged her shoulders, and gazed at him through half-closed lids. The man's misery and rage gave her a kind of satisfaction, pleasure. She was as heartless and cruel as the Phantom of the Opera, and the infliction of pain upon this man whom she hated came as a relief after all she herself had endured.

"It looks like it, doesn't it?" she said. "And if I am—" He put his hand to his head.

"My God!" he said to himself rather than to her. "And you said that you loved me! You promised to be my wife—my wife!"

She laughed, and stretched herself into a still easier and more indolently careless attitude.

"Did I? It was a mistake. I never meant it. If you hadn't been fool enough to lose your head, you'd have seen that."

He looked at her as if he could not bring himself to believe he had heard aright.

"You never—" he gasped.

She smiled up at him.

"My dear fellow, if you mean that I never loved you, you are quite right. I certainly never did."

He struggled for breath.

"Why—why?" he panted.

She raised her head upon her hand, and looked at him coldly, contemptuously.

"Oh, for several reasons," she replied. "One, because Morgan wished me to keep you in tow; another, because—well, you were so mad that night that I was obliged to humor you."

He put his hand to his throat as if he were choking.

"Morgan—" she said.

She nodded.

"Yes, you may as well know the truth. You'd have discovered it sooner or later. You were useful to Morgan, you see."

He did see.

"He—he has robbed me!" he said, hoarsely, staring before him vacantly.

"Well, that's a coarse way of putting it. But it's your way to be coarse; it's your nature, and you can't help it. If you mean that Morgan—with my help—always managed to win, you're right. Don't blame me. I was under his thumb, and had to obey orders. Go and find him, and have it out with him. I don't mind." She laughed carelessly.

"You—you helped him!" he said, as if he were half-stupified.

She nodded and gawped.

"Yes; like the good and faithful sister I am. I've often wondered you haven't detected us. I've seen you look up when I've been bending over you and making signs to him, telling him the cards you held." She laughed.

"My God!" he exclaimed.

"Don't blame me. Go to Morgan and call him to account."

"No," he said. "I don't blame you; you were in his power, under his thumb. But you did it, knowing all the time that I loved you. No," broke from his strained lips, "I won't believe it. Tell me that you are joking, that you are only saying it to tease me. Tell me, Laura."

He hung himself on his knees beside the couch, and tried to take her hand; but she whipped it behind her. He gazed at her pleadingly. He had meant to confront her, charge her with her faithlessness and treachery, and leave her overwhelmed by his scorn; but the sight of her, of the beautiful face, the graceful figure, had dispelled his rage. Even now that he had heard her confess, boast of her duplicity and deceit, of the fact that she had helped to swindle and rob him, he could not resist the fascination of her presence her voice.

"Laura," he said, hoarsely, "I can't believe it. No woman—least of all you—could do it. See, dear, I know you are joking. You are saying it to—to try me." He laughed discordantly. "Well, I haven't risen to it; you can't take me in."

She looked at him with unconcealed contempt.

"You must be mad!" she said.

"I suppose I am," he said, helplessly. "I—I came here—I followed you to have it out with you, to break the engagement, to cast you off; but I can't—I can't! Even though I find you here in Deane's rooms. Where is he?"

He broke off with the abruptness of a man whose mind is in too great a whirl to act consecutively.

"I don't know," she said; "I haven't seen him."

A flash of hope smote across his misery.

"Then—then you did not come to—to meet him?" he said, quickly, with a sharp breath.

"Oh, yes, I did," she said, coolly.

"Then it was by that scoundrel's, by Morgan's orders?" he said, clutching at the hope that she had been forced to come.

She nodded.

"Thank God!" he breathed. "Laura, forgive me—forgive all my doubts of you. I might have known that—that you would not have been so false. Forgive me. I love you, Laura. Come away with me now—come home. I will protect you from Morgan. We will be married at once."

She shrank back from him, and stared with cold amazement.

"Come with you—marry you? Why, didn't I just tell you that I didn't care for you; that I only said what I did, promised to be your wife, because I was obliged? You must be stark, staring mad!"

He put his hand to his hot brow. Indeed her confession of her baseness, her treachery, had been forgotten for the moment.

"You didn't mean it?" he said, with a ghastly smile. "You are spoofing me, Laura. Come!"

He rose and held out his arms, and bent down as if to lift her from the couch. She sat up and pushed him away from her.

"Come with you? Marry you? Not if there wasn't another man in the world! I—hate you!"

He looked at her, the smile dying away on his face, his eyes distending.

"You—hate me?"

"Yes," she said between her teeth.

"I've always hated you from the first. Why, what is there about you to take any woman's fancy? Look in the glass!" She laughed heartily as she pointed behind him. "And you were always a bear and a savage. Many's the time when you've talked about your love and—touched me, that I've had hard work to keep myself from crying out. And even Morgan sometimes found it difficult to stand you. If it hadn't been for your money—and I suppose that's gone now, or most of it."

"Yes, it's gone," he said, dully, mechanically.

He felt and looked like a man in a dream, a hideous nightmare which paralyzed him.

She laughed.

"For Heaven's sake, go! Deane—or—or some one will come in, and there will be a scene."

He did not move, but gazed down at her with his under lip drooping, his eyes vacant and expressionless.

"Do you hear? Why don't you go? I've answered you plainly enough. I've told you that I hate you, and that nothing would induce me to marry you."

"Nothing—would—induce—you?" he said, after her.

"No! Besides—she yawned and stretched out her arms and looked at the bracelets upon them—"besides, if I were ever so fond of you, I couldn't marry you."

"Why—not?" he asked, thickly.

She laughed.

"Because I happen to be married already."

He stared at her, and his lips moved. He was repeating her words again, striving to grasp, to realize, their meaning.

"Married—already?"

She nodded.

"Yes."

"To—to whom?"

She looked round the room.

She laughed. It amused her to mystify, deceive him.

"Yes—to him," she said.

"Secretly?" he breathed.

"Yes, yes, of course," she answered, impatiently.

"All—the time; even when you said that you loved me—promised to be my wife?"

She made a gesture with her hands, as if she were utterly weary of his questions, his presence.

"Yes, yes! Oh, for Heaven's sake, go, and leave me alone! What's the use of staying and worrying me? I never want to see you again!"

She rose, and went past him toward the fire-place. Her movement seemed to break the spell, to release him from its benumbing influence.

With a low snarl, like that of a wild beast, he caught her by the arm and swung her round to him.

"You—devil!" he hissed.

She struggled and uttered a cry.

He covered her mouth with his hand, and forced her on her knees. As he did so, his foot struck against the Persian dagger which lay among the other things which had been overturned.

He caught it up, jerked the blade from its sheath, and raised it above his head. His hand still covered her mouth; but if it had not, her tongue would have refused its office, for she was paralyzed by terror. She fought and struggled with him, but in vain. He held her in the grip of a vise; his bloodshot eyes stared into hers, his hot breath scorched her cheek.

The shining blade was poised above his head for an instant or two, then it gleamed downward. There was a low, gurgling cry; then, as he released the blade, the body fell away from him in a ghastly heap on the floor.

He knelt beside it, looking at the dead face, at the tiny stream of blood which had already ceased to run. For a moment he did not realize what he had done; then, with a groan and a shudder that shook him from head to foot, he bent over her and moaned her name.

"Laura, Laura, Laura!"

Time moved down the fatal moments with its relentless scythe. It seemed to tick "Murder, murder!" as they fell.

Trevor remained on his knees, staring vacantly at the dead, white face for full five minutes, listening to the accusing clock; then he rose, and staggered backward to the fire-place; his eyes still fixed on the face, as if they were chained there.

Another five-minutes passed before he realized that he was in danger. Some one—his, her husband—her husband—might come in at any moment. He must fly!

With the instinct of self-preservation, the mechanical desire to conceal his deed, even for a time, he went to the body slowly, fearfully, and hitting it carefully, laid it on the couch. His eye caught Gaunt's fur coat, and he took it up and covered the body with it. As he drew it over the beautiful face—never more beautiful than it was now in the calmness, the placidity of death—he shivered as if with cold, and a low moan broke from his livid lips. He drew his eyes away slowly, and taking up his hat, went slowly—and still backward—to the door, and opened it.

There was no one in the corridor. A servant was singing in the servants' room. He closed the door softly, very softly, as if to avoid waking the woman on the couch, and passed quickly and on tiptoe down the stairs and into the street.

And it was not until he had reached the crowded thoroughfare at the end that he remembered that no one had seen him enter the house or leave it.

Decima found herself standing on the pavement outside the Mansions. She was scarcely conscious of how she had got there. She had put on her things mechanically, hurriedly, and fled from the house with uncertain feet.

As mechanically, hurriedly, she went up the street, and at the edge of the larger and busier thoroughfare, stood gazing vacantly before her.

A passing cabby hailed her, and she got in. But she did not think to tell the man where she wished to be driven, and he had to ask her twice through the window in the roof before she could reply.

At Lady Pauline's door she stood a moment, looking up and down the street, with the same expression in her eyes; for she was asking herself whether it was really she, Decima Deane, who was standing there.

She rang at last, and the charwoman let her in.

"Oh, it is you, miss!" she said, gurglingly. "I've lighted a bit of a fire in your room, thinking it would be more comfortable. Would you like to go up now, or can I get you anything?"

"I will go up now," said Decima.

Something in the girl's voice rather startled the woman, and she turned and looked at her.

"You seem tired, miss?" she said.

"Yes—that is it; I am tired," said Decima, dully.

A Set Time for Practice Hour.

What because of your practice hour to-day? Did it have to stand aside for other things? Did you push it further on in the busy day, because something else clamored to be done? And, finally, as you tumbled into bed, did you remember with a pang that the convenient moment had not arrived to begin it?

It is all very well for you to tell yourself that to-morrow that magic day that never comes—you will practice two full hours to make up for it. You won't—and you know it! For this is a battle that must be fought every single day. You will find it no easier to-morrow than it was yesterday, or the day before.

Here's a way that makes the winning of the practice hour a sure thing. It is this:

You have a set time for breakfast—for luncheon—for going to school—and for a host of things. Make a hard and fast time for the practice hour too. Having made that time, stick to it through thick and thin. It will be difficult at first till you get into the habit. But you will find it easier and easier; and instead of the practice hour being pushed aside for other things, it will gradually take its proper precedence and assert itself and the lesser concerns will have to wait.

Try this for a while and see how you will gain, both in solid technique and in something even more important—personal character.

Moslem Countries to Be Released

From Foreign Yoke--Bolsheviks and Turks Enter into Agreement--India to be Taken From British--Asquith in Irish Debate Condemns Reprisals--Terrorists Plans to Destroy Manchester Docks, Discovered.

RUSSIAN-TURKISH PACT.

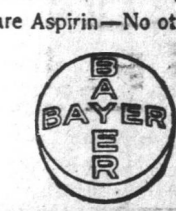

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 24. An agreement entered into by Russian Bolsheviks and the Turkish Nationalist forces of Mustafa Kemal Pasha, according to private information received here to-day, embraces the following points: 1. Assurance of territorial integrity of Turkey and restoration of Turkish administration in regions entirely inhabited by Turks; 2. Turkish control to be established in new states of Arabia and Syria; 3. Facilities to be accorded Russian delegates with view to development of Communism in Turkey; 4. Russia and Turkey agree to liberate Moslem countries such as India, Algeria, Egypt, Morocco and Tunisia from foreign yoke and grant them independence; 5. Russia recognizes the independence of Moslem states in her territory and guarantees their integrity.

ASQUITH ON REPRISALS.

LONDON, Nov. 24. The eagerly awaited debate in the House of Commons on the Irish question was inaugurated this afternoon when former Premier Asquith, leader of the opposition, moved his resolution expressing abhorrence of the recent Dublin assassinations, the condemnation of reprisals and urging the taking of immediate steps to bring about Irish pacification. The motion was a complete resolution combining Independent, Liberal and Labor motions and sponsored by Asquith, Donald Maclean and Arthur Henderson. Asquith amplifying the subjects set forth in the resolution, condemned what he termed the government's policy on reprisals, which he said, had driven moderate Nationalists opinion in Ireland into an attitude of not of sympathy with, at least of supine indifference to anarchic action. The former Premier declared there was only one way for escape and that first step lay with the Government. This, he said, was to dis-

CONDITIONS UNCHANGED IN DOMINION PLANT.

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 24. Officials of the Dominion Steel Plant said that the situation still remained unchanged. Three locomotives have been in operation to-day and it looks as if we will have the same number on the job to-morrow. I know that the men of the Sydney and Lonsdale railway will not interfere between the striking railwaymen at the Steel Plant and the company, was the emphatic statement made this evening by Lachlan Maclean, General Supt. of the Sydney and Lonsdale Railway.

NO AGREEMENT MADE.

LONDON, Nov. 24. Premier Lloyd George speaking in the House of Commons yesterday, said as far as he was aware, no agreement had been made the United States Shipping Board by which United States ships would be permitted to trade on British lines to the far east.

NEWSPAPER SAYS SINN FEIN PLOT DISCOVERED.

LONDON, Nov. 24. Suggestions that it was probable Sinn Fein agents would attack prominent persons and property in London and other cities of England have been current. The Graphic claims a "high authority" had said the secret service had discovered a plot against citizens of London.

DECIDE ON NEW PRESS SERVICE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 24. At a special general meeting of the Canadian press shareholders and members to-day, the principle of a supplementary British Cable News Service was endorsed by thirty-eight to twelve, and the directors were instructed to conclude agreement with Reuters Limited, whereby editors of the Canadian Press will have full access to the complete service of Reuters, which includes news collected by the Press Association of Great Britain and will cover the Old Country and Empire.

ARMENIA'S CAPITAL CAPTURED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 24. It is reported from a Turkish source that Erilan, capital of Armenia has been captured by Turkish Nationalists.

MILITARY BILL AGAINST PALESTINE.

LONDON, Nov. 24. Winston Churchill, Minister for War, announced in the House of Commons that military costs in Palestine for the current year amounted to nine hundred thousand pounds, which was considerably less than had been expected.

GIVING UP THE STRUGGLE.

TOKIO, Nov. 24. General Semenov leader of the anti-Bolshevik forces, is coming to Japan. Assertions are made that his forces are disbanding.

The Weed Next.

John Barleycorn having been "scotched," if not killed outright in every province of the Dominion except Quebec, certain fervid social reformers have dedicated themselves to the purpose of destroying the smoking habit, which is declared to be the greatest evil now confronting the Canadian people.

Poets have raved over the delights of "my lady nicotine." Under the influence of the gentle narcotic, all the cares of life receded to a remote distance; and Sir James Barric has shown, in "My Lady Nicotine," how the "Araudian Mixture" transformed those who were qualified to use it, into exalted and spiritual beings.

The great Spurgeon used to say that he smoked cigars to the glory of God; and orators, statesmen, writers, artists, actors, poets, have all acclaimed the delights of the fragrant weed. It is true that last year, in the United States, the consumption of cigarettes alone reached the tidy sum of $265,000,000. It is true that the annual tobacco bill all over the world reaches fabulous proportions; but the habit is deeply ingrained. There is the cicaftast conviction that the "Divine weed" offers solace and nepenthe; soothes the mind, gives the sense of rest and peace; calms irritability; ministers to domestic placidity; provokes the mind to beautiful things, especially in the case of the illuminati who need the stimulus tobacco offers.

The reformer, on the other hand, insists that all this is only a notion; that the habit is dirty and wasteful; that it ruins the curtains and makes a mess in the house; that so far from stimulating the mind, it produces a certain degree of mental torpidity, and that, in any case, its use makes for a criminal waste of money which could be employed in social uplift.

A good many women insist that they love tobacco smoke, especially a cigar; that the habit of smoking tends to make the head of the house agreeable; that it differentiates the man from the woman in a pleasing manner, as women, like their opposites in the other sex; and that as "feeding the brute" produces pleasing

LONDON, Nov. 24. Winston Churchill, Minister for War, announced in the House of Commons that military costs in Palestine for the current year amounted to nine hundred thousand pounds, which was considerably less than had been expected.

GIVING UP THE STRUGGLE.

TOKIO, Nov. 24. General Semenov leader of the anti-Bolshevik forces, is coming to Japan. Assertions are made that his forces are disbanding.

The Weed Next.

John Barleycorn having been "scotched," if not killed outright in every province of the Dominion except Quebec, certain fervid social reformers have dedicated themselves to the purpose of destroying the smoking habit, which is declared to be the greatest evil now confronting the Canadian people.

Our Scholastic Institutions.

St. Bonaventure's College.

(By our special representative.) Yesterday the Telegram had the pleasure of being shown over St. Bonaventure's College, through the kindness of Rev. Bro. Fennessy. St. Bon's, as it is familiarly known, is the most modern of all the Newfoundland schools, having incorporated in it all the latest improvements. This remark applies especially to the large wing which was added some few years ago.

We were first conducted over the boarding department. On the first floor are the dining hall, a large room having a seating capacity of over 100, the cloakroom, the library, a very large room in which the boarders may have a quiet read. This library also contains the numerous trophies won by the college in inter-collegiate competitions, and there are also quite a number of curios, arranged in glass cases, around the walls. The War Memorial, which is on this floor, is a splendid work of art. It consists of a large square of brass with the head of a caribou engraved on the top, and the names of 274 old boys of the college, many of whom gave their lives for us, are also engraved on the Memorial. On this floor, there are also seven bathrooms, and a number of lavatories, all of which are on the most modern system.

We were next shown over the second floor which contains the senior and one of the junior dormitories. The senior dormitory holds 42 beds and the same number of lockers, one for each boy. The junior dormitory has 24 beds. On the third floor is the other junior dormitory which contains 22 beds and lockers. There is also a large room supplied with 54 washbasins. The boarders come up here each morning to wash. There are two lavatories on the stairs leading up to this floor.

We next inspected that part of the building used daily by the whole school, and were first shown the chapel, which is a very fine room, with a seating capacity of over 150 and standing room for 500. This chapel contains a splendid altar, a gift from Father McGrath of Bell Island, and a beautiful silver lamp presented by Old Boys of the college. Mass is said daily in the chapel, and on feast days special services are held. Off the chapel, is the sacristy where the officiating priest robes and prepares for the services. On the second floor are several class rooms. First year Preliminary, Primary, Associate, Intermediate, and the laboratory. The first mentioned contains the ivy, brought from London and which is growing splendidly in its new surroundings. On the wall outside one of the class rooms is a splendid oil painting of the late Archbishop Howley, presented to the college by the Old Boys' Association. The Archbishop was the first pupil of the college.

The laboratory is splendidly fitted up, containing everything necessary for the teaching of experimental chemistry. Amongst other things, it possesses the first X-ray apparatus ever brought to this country. On the first floor are the Kindergarten and 3rd and 4th Standard class rooms. In the Kindergarten are numerous games and toys used in interesting the little fellows in their work. There is also a billiard room, with a full size billiard table, and a music room for the boys' convenience. A few small typewriting rooms are also on this floor.

An inspection of the Aula Maxima, concluded our visit. This hall is quite commodious, and the floor is set with wooden tiles. At one end there is a stage for amateur theatricals, etc. In this hall, also, the teams which carried off all the honours at the Dominion sports, was trained. All over the building, we noticed photographic groups hanging on the walls, depicting the prowess of the St. Bon's teams at athletics. Every part of the building is scrupulously clean, the good brothers sparing no pains in keeping it in the best possible condition. What St. Bon's has done in the scholastic line is too well known to need mention from us. Suffice it to say that it is an institution of which Rev. Brother Ryan and his associates may well feel proud. In conclusion, we would like to express our thanks to Bros. Fennessy and Strapp for the courtesy extended to us during our visit.

Cotton Waste for New Suits.

To provide the tailor with material for two suits of clothes where now he has material for only one, is the seeming promise of a recent announcement from Leeds University, England. The textile department of the university has been experimenting with cotton waste, hoping to make artificial wool of it, and now it appears that the hope is realized, that the new material comes successfully through various severe tests, and although its limitations prevent it from being used in the production of yarn, its short fibre can be successfully employed in the manufacture of cloth. Cloth woven half of artificial and half of natural wool makes a fabric very much like tweed, and Prof. A.

A Leader Wanted.

O, statesmen, guard us, guard us, O, save the one true seed of freedom sown Betwixt a people and their ancient throne.

The above is meant as a clarion call to Cashin, Crosbie and others who can, who have and who must save our country from disaster. No one asks if the present political gang has proved inefficient—everyone knows but a few will not admit it. The writer of these lines, Mr. Editor, is a tailor, influenced by no person or anything but an instinctive "love of country." Who has never received any Government "pop yet through work and industry is kept alive in spite of the F. C. B.

Now I am of a sound opinion that if any person does his honest duty of himself, his country and his God, that individual can never be condemned. In some way any form of Government composed of members who try to add up to part of their promises, will make mistakes, yet strike out boldly to rectify them will be accorded good hearing. Reasonable enough. But has our present Government members half endeavored to grapple problems for our welfare. No, they have not even corrected their glaring mistakes. Let us see.

Act 1.—Increased their own salaries.

Act 2.—Experimented with Fish Regulations— who losses, themselves or the fishermen?

Act 3.—Dabbling in Sugar Market—who pays the extra 15c. on every 16 oz. sugar? beside being inside the laughing stock of other countries?

Act 4.—Keeps the famous restrictions on and prohibits any merchant to import and give poor men cheaper sugar.

But the worst, the unkindest cut of all, is that of crying prosperity, prosperity, when there is no prosperity. No sir, war is bad, but discontent may be worse. There are many things better than peace at any price. Am I right in asserting that the acts of the present Government are a reflection on the characteristics and tactics of the man Coaker?

Fishermen and labourers! You elected Mr. Coaker to power because members were extravagantly paid who ever did beat Mr. Coaker and his gang in grabbing all. Look at their present salaries and new offices created. Who is it that grind from nine to four or five o'clock every day trying to give our children an Elementary Education—the Teachers, the self-sacrificing half-paid teachers.

Yet when they requested consideration of a living wage from the present Government (?) the past spring, they were told to wait—probably till all the Sugar was used and the White Napes shipped to Greece.

And Mr. Fisherman! you elected Mr. Coaker to see that too much revenue was not wasted on political picnics—Now just reckon up what picnics have already been had! Only a ten-months-old Government! Finally you elected Hon. W. F. Coaker to see that you got your rights. Now really is he doing it. Is he not rather driving a stumbling block, standing in the way of others who would.

Inconsistent Coaker is a dangerous man. Coaker-Squire-Moddell. Write these names and study them. Study their past and present connexions, their aversion to one another, and you have one of the marvels of life. Just a few questions, M. Editor, and I shall be finished for the time being—

(1) When is the new Educational apparatus going to start work?

(2) What changes are taking place in Fish Regulations?

(3) How much longer is the F. C. B. to hold office, and

(4) When will the hard and honest people of Nfld. end it all?

SINCERITY, Trinity Bay, Nov. 22, 1920.

The Necessity of Music to the Public Welfare

The immense investments which are visible in the operation of the talking machine makers and the mechanical piano and roll industry, not to mention the concert and opera field, demonstrate beyond a doubt the necessity of music to the public welfare. That the share devoted to musical education is not a larger one must then be due to some other cause than apathy of the public as regards music itself. Pondering upon the millions of dollars annually expended upon these various vehicles through which music is given to the masses solely through their ears, and at a minimum of personal exertion, how commonplace indeed must be the teacher who is content to ascribe it to the matter of laziness, on the assumption that it is from mere choice that the people buy their music ready made instead of making it for themselves. The one hand, and the black passions of the wretches who perpetuated these crimes.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON BEING POSITIVE.

Don't you hate positivness in matters of opinions? Don't you hate it in others and aren't you ashamed of it when you find it in yourself?

Almost always when I've been positive, I have come to regret it afterwards.

I never hear anyone who has not tried a little on Bridg's declare that he prefers Bid Whist, without remembering how positive I was, before I learned that I too could never like Auction as well as Bid. And I promise myself I will never be so positive again.

And then there's Christian Science. How virulently positive I used to be against that! Not that I have become a Scientist, by any means, but I have come to see that there may be more things in Heaven and earth than are dreamed of in my philosophy.

Positiveness Causes a Quiet Smile. Positiveness always defeats its own ends because it never convinces.

We are apt to smile a quiet inward smile at the man or woman who is always positive about things—if we are too polite to smile outside.

Of course it is an splendid thing to know what you know. But that isn't being positive, that's being sure. We like to meet people who are sure about things that they have reason to be sure of. They give you a feeling of dependability. For instance, what a joy is the one-man-in-ten who, when asked the time, will not say, "Well, my watch says thus-and-so, but it may be a few minutes slow, I'm not sure," but will haul out his watch tell you the time, and say that he knows it is right within 30 seconds.

The same man will give a date or a figure with quiet surety—if he knows it. And if he doesn't know it, he will not try to give it. One cannot be sure on matters of Opinion.

But one cannot be sure over things that are matters of opinion. One can only be positive about them. It doesn't cost any more to present them quietly instead of with violence. After all, it is not an insult for people to differ from you in opinion.

son; you do not need to grow hot under the collar about it. And then when you are sure about anything you will receive a great deal more attention and confidence. Positiveness Versus Sureness. You remember the old Persian proverb, "He who knows not and knows not that he knows not, is a fool, shun him; he who knows not and knows that he knows not is simple, teach him; he who knows and knows not that he knows is asleep, wake him; he who knows and knows that he knows is wise, follow him." At the one end of the scale is the positive man—the fool "who knows not and knows not that he knows not." At the other is the man who is sure, the wise man "who knows and knows that he knows."

"I have a grave suspicion, also, that the positive man will acclaim himself as one who "knows" and the really wise man will pause to wonder if he is ever positive.

Left in the Cold.

Lady Auckland Geddes, who has recently joined her husband, the British Ambassador at Washington, is passionately fond of children—she has five of her own—and has quite a budget of good stories about them.

One that I heard her relate concerned a little boy who (said Lady Geddes) was reading about an explosion in a powder magazine, and asked what a powder magazine was.

"Oh," said his small sister, "don't you know? A powder magazine's the thing ladies tear pages from to rub their faces."

Another that she is fond of telling concerns a little four-year-old boy who had been spanked by his mother for naughtiness. When saying his prayers at bedtime that night he asked a blessing on each member of the family individually, his mother alone being conspicuous by her absence.

Then, rising from his devout posture, the little suppliant fixed a keenly triumphant look upon her face, saying as he turned to climb into bed: "I s'pose you noticed you wasn't in it?"

When Water Strikes.

IT OFTEN DOES TERRIBLE DAMAGE.

The most terrible instance on record of what a single wave can do was during the famous hurricane at Apoa, when H.M.S. Calliope was the only ship that escaped from the harbor. The German warship Adler was struck by a giant wave which lifted her bodily on to a table-like rock, where she crashed down with such force that she "broke her back."

In the Atlantic some years ago a big wave carried away a steamer's bridge, part of her hurricane deck, and the funnel. This was hard hitting, but the famous Eastern once had the whole of the ironwork of both paddle wheels and all the boats on one side carried away.

Some time ago a big sailing ship was struck with terrific force by a big "sea"—as sailors call waves—and when the water had subsided a little it was found that a live shark had been lifted right over the bulwarks into the "waist"—or middle part—of the ship.

During the typhoon which stranded forty-five steamers, thirty-seven steam launches and over one thousand junk at Hong-Kong, in 1906, a lighter was lifted bodily over the sea wall and flung into the middle of a street.

Lightning Shaves!

And Sometimes it Bakes Apples! An extraordinary story comes from America. An apple tree belonging to a Mrs. Byrnes, who lives at South Norwalk, Connecticut, was struck by lightning. The apples left hanging on the tree were found to be baked.

You may laugh and say that this is a tall story, but really there is no reason why it should not be true. Lightning has performed tricks quite as strange in our own country.

Years ago St. Martin's Church, in Trafalgar Square, was struck. The lightning went down through the vane, hit a big stone, and turned it upside down. Then it visited the clock and blackened out the XI. and XII. It magnetised the steel pivots, melted a copper wire, burst open the door of the case, and departed, leaving the clock still ticking!

In July, 1900, a sentry on guard outside barracks in a South Coast town was suddenly surrounded by a glare of light, which was succeeded by a terrific explosion. When he recovered he found his rifle fused and exploded, both his feet scorched, but otherwise he was unharmed.

There are several cases of people being shaved by lightning. A famous one is that of the French doctor, Gaultier, who lived at Clambray. His beard was taken off as cleanly as though he had been shaved. It never grew again.

In the summer of 1914 a young Castleford miner was struck by lightning, and when he recovered consciousness was found to be stone blind. Next evening came a fresh storm, and the man was lying in bed when the house was again struck and he was flung out on to the floor.

THE TOLLERS.

I hired some honest working men (to find such men long leagues I chased) to come around and fix my den, which time and weather had defaced. The carpenter arrived in state, he was attired in raiment g l a d; his touring car was simply great—eight cylinders the blamed thing had. The plasterer, a stalwart man, gave evidence that he was flush, for he rode in a fine sedan upholstered in the richest plush. The painter same, as he'd agreed, a man of rather haughty mien; he used to drive an old bay steed, but now he tools a limousine. The tinsmith came, an able crew, who labors through a six-hour day, and I admired his handsome bus, a Model '21 coupe. And there was one who came to deliver a ditch where concrete would be poured; his wagon was a super-twelve whose powerful engine chugged and roared. They parked their cars around my shack until the street, both ways, was blocked; and of the tollers' burdened back, throughout the day they warmly talked. They spoke of Capital that sat in gilded ease and wore a grin, and on ill gotten gains grew fat, while Honest Toll grew lank and thin. They talked all day of tyeing cans to plutocrats and men of means, then drove away in rich sedans, and touring cars and limousines.

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
C. T. JAMES, Editor
Thursday, November 25, 1920.

FISHERMEN'S OPINIONS.

The Telegram has had the honor of receiving visits from numerous schooner masters and members of crews of Northern vessels now in port, all of whom were desirous of expressing their approval of the manner in which this paper has championed their efforts and aided them in their successful attempt to secure a decent price for their fish.

From the very beginning of the press discussions on the Fish Regulations, the three daily newspapers opposed to the policy of the Government generally and the Fish Regulations in particular, the News, Herald and Telegram have been stigmatized by the subsidized and controlled administration organs as "blue-ruinists."

have left the sellers in debt forever, and instead of eight dollars per quintal, vendors would not have received more than three-quarters of that sum. To buy cheaply and to sell dearly was the desire of the exporters, and the Fish Regulations were framed with no less an object in view.

Coaker Climbs Down.

According to last night's Star Hon. Mr. Coaker promises to abolish the Fish Regulations on certain conditions. So the "Czar" has come to earth again.

More Ships Than Cargoes.

The slump in the shipping business has disappointed the hopes of those who expected full occupation for the world's entire fleet for several years after the war.

Llewellyn Club.

To-night at 8 o'clock the Weekly Men's Meeting under the auspices of the Llewellyn Club will be held in Canon Wood Hall.

Enquiry Continued.

Yesterday afternoon the enquiry into the felony charge preferred against 4 young men of the city was continued before Judge Morris.

Fishermen's Meeting Aroused the North.

Fishermen who lately arrived from Greenspond, state that the greatest interest was taken in the recent fishermen's meeting here, and many thought that a general strike had been called in St. John's, and regrets were expressed that all the fishermen could not participate and strike out for justice.

War Literature.

Mr. James Ayre of the firm of Ayre & Sons, Ltd., has presented a wealth of war literature to the Museum, comprising the issues of well known English journals before, during and after the conflict up to the signing of the Peace Treaties.

C.L.B.C. Officers' Dance a Great Success.

The much advertised dance of the C.L.B. Cadets Officers' Mess was held last night in the C.C.C. Hall. A splendid dance programme had been arranged and was carried out under the able supervision of Lieuts. Reid and L. Hayward.

Their Real Significance.

The Star has never believed that the hoodlumism which has found its expression in the burning of British flags in New York City was representative of an even appreciable proportion of real American sentiment.

Personal.

Mr. Lindsay Crawford left by the one o'clock express to-day after having called on all the newspaper editors in the city and explained his connection with the present Irish Question.

Seaman Injured.

Relatives of Mr. Martin Hickey of Outer Cove received word yesterday that he had met with an accident at Sydney which in all probability would cause him the loss of an arm.

McMurdo's Store News.

THURSDAY, Nov. 25. Alvina is recommended for childrens diseases, in anaemia, in loss of appetite during convalescence and in any case where the system is run down.

Searching Schooners.

Every schooner coming from the Southern Shore, Placencia and St. Mary's Bays and ports further West, is being subjected to strict scrutiny and close search by the police, in their hunt for contraband liquor.

From Cape Race.

Special to Evening Telegram. CAPE RACE, To-day. Wind E.N.E. blowing strong; weather dull; nothing sighted. Bar. 29.84; Ther. 57.

A MESSAGE.

One month away— There comes the day You've thought of All the year, And now you Wonder what to give To those you hold So dear.

Personal.

Mr. Lindsay Crawford left by the one o'clock express to-day after having called on all the newspaper editors in the city and explained his connection with the present Irish Question.

GOVERNOR HAS FINDING.

Some time early in October the Royal Commission handed in their findings in the Woodford Affidavit Inquiry to His Excellency the Governor, but so far no public report of that finding has been made.

Fashions and Fads.

The Paris prediction for sleeves is "the longer the better." Coat dresses are embroidered in metal and in colored silks. Velvet frocks show collars and cuffs of pleated white crepe. Monkey hat is still very much in favor, especially for hats.

A GIGANTIC PRICE-REDUCTION

"Taking the Bull by the Horns."

In spite of the fact that there is very little indication of any reduction in the price of different kinds of merchandise, there is no denying that the shopping public is looking for and must have lower prices.

Merchants and Storekeepers must realize the necessity of taking a loss sooner or later.

We feel that now is the time to take our loss rather than postpone the evil day.

We are "taking the bull by the horns" in an effort to reduce our present splendid stocks, so that should there be any slump in prices for next Spring, we will be in a position to take advantage of the same.

Britishers Are Not Pleased

BY ACTION OF OXFORD PROFESSORS.
London (Associated Press).—By reason of the tempest stirred up as the result of overtures by Oxford professors to join them in burying the hatchet and return to previous amicable relations, the text of the appeal is attracting widespread interest. The Times denounced the letter urging resumption of friendly relations between German, Austrian and British educators as "ill-advised and inopportune," and called the Oxford men to account for failing to distinguish between animosities created in England by the sinking of hospital ships and bombing of open cities, on the one hand, and the black passions of the wretches who perpetuated these crimes."

The text of the Oxford letter follows:

"To the Professors of the Arts and Sciences and to members of the Universities and learned societies in Germany and Austria:

"Since there will be many of you who fully share our heartfelt sorrow and regret for the breach that the war has occasioned in our friendly intercourse and since that cannot doubt the sincerity of the feeling which engendered and cherished that old friendship you must, we believe, be sharing our hope for its speedy re-establishment.

"We therefore, the undersigned doctors, heads of houses, professors and other officials and teachers in the University of Oxford, now personally approach you with the desire to dispel the embitterment of animosities that under the impulse of loyal patriotism may have passed between us.

"In the fields where our aims are one, our enthusiasms the same, our rivalry and ambition generous, we can surely look to be reconciled and the fellowship of learning offers a road which may—lead to a wider sympathy and better understanding between our kindred nations.

"While political dissensions are threatening to extinguish the honorable comity of the great European states, we pray that we may help to hasten that amicable reunion which civilization demands. Impetret ration quod dies impetratura est."

Fifty-seven, signatures are appended to the letter, including those of W. G. S. Adams, Professor of Political Theory and Institutions; Sir Hugh Allen, director of the Royal College of Music; Rev. G. A. Cooke, Regius Professor of Hebrew; Sir Arthur Evans, Professor of Prehistoric Archaeology; Rev. A. C. Headlam, Regius Professor of Divinity; J. A. Smith, Professor of Moral and Metaphysical Philosophy, and many other well known college principals.

On With the Dance.

This is going to be a great dancing winter. With the first touch of cold the keen revival of dancing which accompanied the end of the war shows few signs of falling off. If dances are not so uncomfortably crowded as they were, that is rather because the new fashion has now established itself more widely and people are dancing in more places. In London, dinner dances at hotels are tending to supplant subscription dances and even home dances, at which the separate cost of bands, flowers, and so forth often mounts up to a large sum. The hotels lay themselves out for this bright entertainment, and at many the arrangements and decorations are quite charming. In this way dining and dancing can be achieved comfortably under the same roof. The hostess is spared all trouble and the diner who also dances is saved the inconvenience of "going on."—London Daily Mail.

Yet Japan is Suspicious.

The proposed anti-alien legislation in California does not even mention Japan or the Japanese. It is directed primarily against aliens ineligible to citizenship, and secondary against their offspring. It applies as much to Hindus, Chinese, and some others as to the Japanese. It expressly preserves the present treaty rights of all such peoples. It seeks to confiscate none of the lands or other property now legally held by such aliens. Its purpose is merely to prevent the extension of such land holdings, much of which has been gained by subterfuge which has made the present land law practically inoperative. It intends to prevent continuation of such subterfuge. It withholds no privilege or rights from the Japanese which Japan does not withhold from citizens of the United States.—Chicago Tribune.

Objects to Discrimination.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—During my absence from the city a few days ago I understand that a large number of fishermen held a meeting in the city and passed resolutions demanding an increased price for Labrador fish. I want to compliment the fishermen who comprised this gathering, and I want to publically congratulate all who in any way assisted this movement, which has in my opinion "forced the combine" to give the toilers, the protection that they and their dependants are entitled to.

As far back as August I pointed out through your paper how serious conditions were, and how much more serious they would become by the end of the year if fish did not realize an average price of $10.00 per quintal. I went so far as to say that if Mr. Coaker who was in close touch with all our markets, was absolutely certain, that conditions abroad would warrant this price being paid locally, and the exporters refused to pay this figure—that he would be, in my opinion, justified in using the funds of the Treasury to purchase and market our whole catch. No notice was taken of my suggestion; things were allowed to go from bad to worse, and while the opponents and supporters of Mr. Coaker's fish policy were fighting and squabbling about one Ragnoli of Italy and arguing as to whether Messrs. Squires and Hawes automobilized, steamboat or flew to Genoa, the poor deluded fishermen were being compelled to sacrifice for truck in most cases the fruits of their summer's work.

Now in the last week in November, when most all the season's catches in the stores of the merchants gathered in at starvation prices—several hundred fishermen holders of Labrador fish meet here in St. John's and decide to make a fight for what they consider to be their rights, and I hereby publicly endorse their action. The Government, so it is said, comes to the rescue and guarantees an increase of $1.00 per quintal. Bravo men!

But, Mr. Editor, what about the man from Twillingate who had shore fish? What about the thousands of good honest hard working fishermen East, West, North and South who had to accept what the merchant and the Government Inspector wished to give them? What about the underdog who stood by and saw his voyage slaughtered by some incompetent or over officious inspector? What about the poor fisherman who was compelled to remain silent while he saw his good, clean, well cured fish because it may be a little sun cracked, taken in by the exporter under the supervision of an Inspector as West India, and sent out later as good Brazilian fish? I repeat, Mr. Editor, what about these men?

If Government assistance is to be given to fishermen. It must be country wide. The man in Placentia Bay, St. Mary's Bay, Fortune Bay, or any other section of the country has no prior claim on the Treasury of this Dominion, and unless the same privilege is extended, the same protection and assistance given to all fishermen, no government will ever vote one dollar in the House of Assembly while I am sitting there as one of the people's representatives.

Countless thousands of the human race have died fighting lesser evils than this style of class legislation, and men can be found to-day, thank God, who are prepared to fight to the death any attempt to penalize and discriminate against any section of the country and its people by any Government.

Yours truly, W. J. WALSH. 67 Long's Hill, Nov. 23, 1920.

Christian Brothers' Collection.

A REMINDER. Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Next Sunday all pupils and other friends of the Christian Brothers will be afforded another opportunity of expressing in a practical way that regard which is due to those devoted teachers. I do not think that any words of mine are necessary to emphasize the value of the teachings of that excellent community of education, the devoted Christian Brothers, for their record is known over all the land, and the good that they are accomplishing great beyond the power of description.

All that I seek to do is to say but a few words of reminder so that none may forget next Sunday and that all will give generously. The Christian Brothers collection never yet lagged behind for whatever other calls or conditions confronted us. We felt that our good friends of Mount St. Francis should not be forgotten, but that rather as time went on so also should our contributions increase to meet their growing expenses.

We have always prided ourselves on making this collection greater from year to year, and if we keep this aim in view again next Sunday, it is confidently hoped that another triumph will be scored. Now boys, young and old, we who spent the happy days in the class rooms of St. Patrick's Hall and Holy Cross, under the tutelage of the masters whom we loved so well, and who yielded up to us their lives devotion in order that we may receive the blessings of education, let us in our turn now show again that we do not forget what the Christian Brothers have done for us. Let us spend the last dollar that we have, so that the collection will be greater than ever, and thus bring joy to ourselves and a slight recompense to our good old teachers, the noble Christian Brothers.

Yours truly, FIRST DESK. Nov. 25, 1920.

For the Benefit of "Insides."

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—I notice by the Royal Gazette of Tuesday that the price of Labrador codfish in Greece has been reduced to 80¢ for all qualities. This, to my mind, is a very suspicious deal, and shows signs of crookedness on the part of the Advisory Board for the protection of one or two members of the Board.

You will remember that the steamer Snelfield was loaded with Straits and Labrador fish and sailed for Malaga. It is common knowledge that this steamer discharged a large quantity of fish at Malaga, and then left for Greece with about 8000 qts. It has also been reported that the quality of the fish which is now in this steamer going to Greece is not of the best, the fish showing signs of turning pink. There are no storage facilities in Greece and naturally the owners of the fish still in the Snelfield are somewhat anxious to sell to arrive.

What is more natural therefore than that those interested—who, by the way, are members of the Advisory Board—should advocate the reducing of the price to 80¢ to try and induce the Greeks to buy. To my mind, this is not a square deal, as according to reports received cargoes of fish have been sold to Greece this season as high as 90¢, and while prices were being maintained why cut them unless to protect some favored ones?

It would be interesting to hear from some member of the Board as to the reason of the cut in price.

What a nice position for American buyers, who had bought any large quantity of fish at 88¢ c.i.f. New York, and given a bond that they would not sell less than the regulation price would be to-day. And this, I understand, was the position the Americans took, that they had no guarantee that the Government would not themselves cut the price and they would then have to shoulder heavy losses, but they were wise enough to stay out and buy the fish elsewhere.

Yours truly, INQUISTIVE. Nov. 25, 1920.

A Strange Situation.

The strident demand of William Jennings Bryan that the President whose regime has been repudiated by the people should resign forthwith and make way for the popular choice, for the sake of world peace, calls attention sharply to one of the wide variations of American Constitution from the principles of direct responsible government.

For four months after a new leader is chosen the old President holds office, with all his powers unimpaired. Until next March the American people will live under an administration in which it has lost confidence and the country will be governed by an authority conspicuously deprived of public favor.

Furthermore, the whole world will be influenced adversely through the fact that the Wilson Administration lacks the Congressional support necessary to enable it to contribute to international stability by entering upon any plan of co-operation with other Governments. Not the voice of the American people, but the voice of a small number of worthy American citizens coming out of the eighteenth century dictates present public policy at Washington.

Nineteen amendments have been made to the Constitution of the United States. The ease with which the prohibition amendment was put through suggests that in due time they will find the process readily applicable to the present anomaly.—Montreal Daily Star.

Belfast, Nov. 25.
David Kelly, manager of a Sinn Fein Bank in Dublin, and brother of Mayor-Edict Kelly of Dublin, was arrested here to-day.

PLANS MADE PUBLIC.

LONDON, Nov. 25.
Alleged plans for blowing up Liverpool Docks and Manchester Power and Water Plants, said to have been captured by the Government, were made public to-night. They called for twenty three officers, twenty seven engineers and seventy five privates, with eight hundred pounds of high explosives for attacking twenty one points. Diversions, suggested in alleged plans, would consist of numerous fires in cotton and other warehouses.

TURNUED THE TABLES.

LONDON, Nov. 24.
An amendment by Col. John Ward converted Asquith's motion into an expression of admiration for the courage and devotion of the crown forces in Ireland. This was adopted by three hundred and three to eighty-three, and the motion as thus amended, was adopted by acclamation, amid ministerial cheers.

MILITARY RAID LIBERTY HALL.

DUBLIN, Nov. 24.
Dublin, long accustomed to tragedy, has settled back with two days of outward calm, which was, however, an indefinite and unhealthy quality, cloaking much behind the scenes, and there is activity in both camps. Military and police raided Liberty Hall, the headquarters of Irish transport workers. The raid, which started at noon, was still continuing this evening. Among those arrested were Thos. Johnson, Secretary of the Irish Labor Party, and Thos. Farron, formerly President of the Trades Union Congress.

THE PREMIER AT QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, Nov. 24.
The steamer Empress of France arrived here to-day with thirteen hundred passengers, among them being Hon. R. A. Squires of Newfoundland.

MORE COAL HANDED.

NOTH SYDNEY, Nov. 25.
There is no change to-day in the strike situation at the Scotia plant. The mines are all working, and the company officials state there was more coal handled on the railway yesterday than on any other day during the year. The strikers are quiet.

MORE CONFERENCES.

PARIS, Nov. 25.
Premier League left this morning for London for a conference with Lloyd George relative to the recent Greek election, the Russian situation and problems of the Near East. Former Premier Venizelos of Greece is said to be planning to participate in the conference, and Giolitti of Italy, may also take part. Premier Rhallis, of Greece, says a representative of the Greek Government, would attend the meeting of Allied Premiers.

NOTHING DOING IN CUBA.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 25.
There is no important change in the fish market in Cuba, according to advices from Havana. The market for all kinds of food stuffs is in bad condition.

Vilna's History.

Vilna, the pleasant little city on the Viltva, where the Poles proclaimed a new government recently, has an interesting history. It was here that long years ago, the Poles kept the sacred fire of paganism burning on the castle hill night and day. The city has lived through some strenuous ages fighting Teutonic knights, Tartars, and other medieval Bolsheviks—not always successfully. With one eye on culture, even in the most gory days, Vilna still keeps the volumes—some 200,000—of her famous suppressed university.

MILNARD'S LINDMENT RELIEVES COLDS, ETC.

Fleeing From Famine.

Passengers who arrived to-day by S.S. Prospero give a gloomy account of conditions now existing in White Bay and in fact all along the French Shore. That people are on the verge of starvation in many places is beyond cavil or denial. At Western Arm, Bear Cove we were informed by a resident that the families have not had a full meal for weeks past, and from one to another a little of this and that has to be borrowed. They have had hardly a barrel of flour amongst 20 or 30 families, and if something is not immediately done there is absolutely nothing for them but death by starvation. The children seem to be the worst sufferers. These people had been working mostly at Davy's Mill which is now closed down. But for a fair supply of potatoes, many deaths would now be reported.

At Jackson's Arm, there is no flour to be had and five or six families are being kept alive only by charitable neighbors. At St. Leonard's the people are also in a bad state and owing to a short fishery they are not in a position either to purchase provisions or leave the place. On this trip of the Prospero whole families left the French Shore and White Bay coming to Lewisporte. About 150 people who could get away were landed by the Prospero, at that place. So many have come to Lewisporte in search of work, that the place is overcrowded and the unfortunate out of work find themselves without money to move elsewhere. In White Bay, when the Prospero left, there was lots of ice formed and every place was covered with snow. The assistance of the Government is urgently needed, and nothing less than the full of the Prospero of foodstuffs will in any way relieve the situation.

Prospero's Passengers.

S. S. Prospero arrived at noon to-day with the following passengers in saloon: Messrs. Garland, Oates, Tucker, Maddock, Bussey, Poole, Windsor, Bussey, Barrett, Reid, Morgan, Reid, Healey, Elliott, Warren, Dr. Curtis, Thistle, Cross, Roberts, Rev. Fr. Thibault, Parsons, Rideout, Fancey, Parsons, Blandford, Parsons, Miller, Luscombe, Parsons, Hawkins, Peel, Bonnell, Rev. Manuel; Mesdames Mercer, Elliott, Perry, Gaulton, Bragg, White, Barry, Doughty, Norman, Gibbons; Misses Yetman, Scott, Flynn, Taylor, Bragg, Tiller, Hutchings, Barbour, Brown, Spurrell, Parady, and 40 steerage.

Well Done, Haig!

Field-Marshal Earl Haig, who fought and won the greatest campaign in history; who pulled the British Army through the most appalling straits into which it was ever pushed, with its "back to the wall"; who refused all reward and recognition of his immortal services until justice was done to the claims of his comrades, officers and men; to-day stands as the quiet, invincible exemplar of duty pursued to the end. When he laid aside his arms, spent and weary with labors which few men could have borne and lived, he took no rest, but straightway assumed the cause of all ex-soldiers, to help and to encourage them, and to obtain for them their due. Not a week passes but the Field-Marshal is found pleading, exhorting, directing in peace, with the sagacity and resolution and imperturbable serenity with which he conducted the war—London Morning Post.

Origin of Word Poltroon

The word "poltroon" has a rather interesting origin, having started out in life as police trunions, a Latin phrase, meaning one who had been deprived of his thumb. In the olden days when bows and arrows were the main weapons of the soldier, the thumb was a most essential part of the hand, for without it the archer could not hope to draw the bow with anything like good aim or exert his arm's full strength. To avoid military service many a man chopped off his own thumb or got his wife to perform the act for him. In time the man who did this bit of self-exemption became known as a "poltron," and the last change to its present usage is easily traced.

Supreme Court.

(In Chambers.)

BEFORE MR. JUSTICE KENT.

In the matter of the petition of John J. Rosseter of St. John's, Commission Merchant, alleging that Chas. W. Johnson, Baker is insolvent. Upon the complaint of John J. Rosseter a creditor, four charges under the provisions of 266 of the Judicature Act were laid against the alleged insolvent. Mr. Gibbs, K.C., for the complainant; Higgins, K.C. and T. P. Halley, for the accused. The accused pleaded not guilty. By consent of parties the hearing of the insolvency case was adjourned till Monday next, Nov. 29th, at 10.30 a.m.

Old Feildians to Re-organize.

We understand that a meeting of Old Feildians will be held in the Office of Mess of the C.L.B.C. at 8.15 on December 2nd, when general business will be discussed. It is some years now since the Old Feildians club fell into disuse, and it is hoped that it will be reorganized in the near future.

Paid in Cash.

To-day the office of A. E. Hickman & Co. presented a very busy scene, as crowds of fishermen waited their turn to be paid for their fish. It may be noted that the much-abused Hickman has purchased more fish this season than any one firm and paid cash down, too. Has Coaker paid cash down or have the fishermen to wait till later on?

Shipping Notes.

S. S. Sable I. arrived at North Sydney at 2 a.m. to-day.
Schr. Minnie D. sailed from Wood's Island for Sydney with 535 bris. herring, shipped by R. Boak & Co., and the Harry Nickerson sailed for Gloucester with 1,107 bris. herring and 580 cwt. salt bulk fish, shipped by the Bay of Islands Fisheries Co. Herring plentiful at Wood's Island.
Schr. Frances Louise, molasses laden from Barbados to St. John's, sheltered at Trepassey yesterday.

One Question Answered

In yesterday's Telegram it was asked of the Minister of Shipping, Mr. W. H. Cave, why he had not attended the meeting called by Mr. Coaker. We learn to-day that Mr. Cave was, at the hour of the meeting in question, occupying the Worshipful Master's chair in Learning Loyal Orange Lodge, the incumbent of that office being absent through illness. We make this answer wholly and solely without prejudice, and offer congratulations to Mr. Cave, who placed duty before pleasure.

ard. Once again there was nothing doing. Mitchell decided that he could do just as well by picking up some soft money around Milwaukee, and he was not pressed with Rickard's offer.

Then Willie Jackson was sought. Richard offered K. O. Willie $25,000 to take on Leonard. And in spite of the fact that Jackson has been crying for a match with Leonard, Willie turned down the invitation to climb into the same ring with the champion.

Now it looks as though Joe Welling will be Leonard's next victim. Welling is not going to receive $25,000 or $30,000 for his end. It is understood he has been offered $12,500, but he has agreed to meet the champion. This bout will be held in New York.

According to reports, Leonard has an agreement with Rickard for three bouts in New York, the opponents to be selected by the promoter.

The refusal of Tendler, Mitchell and Jackson to meet Leonard has caused considerable comment among fight followers.

A man well versed in the game in commenting stated to-day: "While it seems peculiar that boxers should turn down such big offers to meet Leonard, it's good judgement."

"Tendler has been crying for a match with Leonard for many years, but it's doubtful if the Philadelphia boy would be able to go the limit with the champion. When Benny wants to hit his opponent generally drops out of the picture."

"The same is true of Mitchell and Jackson. The former might last for five rounds, while the latter would be lucky to last three. They can pick up a lot of soft money against small town boxers. What's the use of taking one of Benny's right-hand shoots on the chin?"

And this is the way other prominent fight men regard the whole affair.

In Baghdad.

Though many travelers to Baghdad have found the city dull and uninteresting, I must confess that I found many places and things in the eastern part of it well worthy of examination. At first the bazaars seemed most unattractive, but as I made the acquaintance of one dealer here and another dealer there, I discovered that the shopkeepers did not put their best things on exhibition. I found that many of the shopkeepers were born collectors, and that they kept their good things hidden, and gloated over them in secret. "All Kurd," or "All the Kurd," as he was called, had a large stock of old Persian and Sassanian antiquities. When we became friends, and he took me to his house, he produced from holes in the walls and from little trap doors in the ground, and from a mysterious sardab, or underground cellar, into which he would not take me, such wonderful Indian and Persian enamelled gold necklaces, collars, armlets, anklets, pectorals, etc., that I was amazed. I had never seen so many or such beautiful things at one time, and in one place in all my life. He had several richly illuminated copies of the Kuran, and a great many MSS. which he described as priceless, and I knew just enough of such things at that time to feel that he was right. He would sell nothing merely for the sake of selling and making a profit, but when once he was convinced his customer understood and properly appreciated the object that he wished to buy, dealing with him was an easy matter.

In a similar manner the silk merchants and the goldworkers produced wonders of their respective crafts out of hidden places, which seemed to contain an inexhaustible supply of beautiful objects. A carpet merchant . . . produced for me some silk prayer carpets, not with a view to selling them, but merely to make one's eyes weep tears of joy and gratitude. . . . He knew the age and pedigree of each, and I have never seen any like them except one. . . . The merchants who had the most tumbledown shops, and wore poorest and raggedest gar-

Funny Nelson Columns.

Thursday, Oct. 21 was "Trafalgar Day," and many thousands of patriotic Londoners paused and glanced upward at the decorated Nelson Column in Trafalgar Square, in silent homage to the memory of Britain's greatest seaman.

Few amongst them, however, could have any conception of how very different the famous square might have looked to-day, if some of the suggestions put forward as an alternative to the well-known column had materialized.

It was at one time seriously proposed, for example, to erect in the centre of the square a gigantic trident, with Nelson seated on top of the centre spike, and Collingwood and Benbow impaled on either side of him.

Another proposal was for a "monster telegraphic fountain," throwing a single jet of water one hundred feet into the air; and which, by means of a mechanical arrangement, should have gone on spelling out over and over again the famous signal, "England expects every man to do his duty," in a series of short and long watery spurts, corresponding to the dots and dashes of the Morse code.

Other suggestions embodied the taking to pieces of Nelson's flagship, Victory, and its re-erection in the square; the building of what have been in effect a forerunner of the Eiffel Tower; a hollow globe of huge dimensions, the interior to contain a museum of Nelson relics; and a bronze lion, four hundred feet long, with its mouth agape towards Whitehall and its tail waving wildly above the facade of the National Gallery.

The Greatest Naval Battle.

(From the London Spectator.)

We trust that the Admiralty will reconsider its surprising and regrettable decision not to publish the official account of the Battle of Jutland, which a committee of naval officers has been compiling. Sir James Craig in the House of Commons recently made the excuse that an account based on British official evidence alone would be one-sided and that a forthcoming volume of Sir Julian Corbett's Naval History of the War would deal with the battle as illustrated by the official evidence. The excuse is wholly unconvincing. Sir Julian Corbett's views will be most interesting, but the country has a right to know what the Admiralty itself thinks about the battle, now that all the available facts are before it. The suggestion that the official account should be withheld in order not to compete with a semi-official publication, for which the Admiralty takes no responsibility, is untenable. If it be true that certain distinguished officers cannot agree as to what happened, they should all be given full opportunity to state their views in appendices to the Admiralty's account. The service will not gain by any attempt to suppress these differences of opinion about the greatest battle in its long history.

Lightweights Not Disposed to Meet Bonny Leonard.

New York—Bonny Leonard will not be forced to defend his title against any contenders at the present.

Lew Tendler of Philadelphia, Ritchie Mitchell of Milwaukee and Willie Jackson of New York are not excited over meeting the champion and have decided to pass up an opportunity to win Leonard's crown.

Lew Tendler was offered $30,000 to meet Leonard in Madison Square Garden by Tex Rickard.

Nothing doing! Tendler demanded $50,000. Of course this is impossible. Rickard could not offer the Quaker such money unless he could get Leonard to turn over his end. So this match went blotto!

Then Ditchie Mitchell of Milwaukee was offered $12,500 to take on Leon-

Where Bolshevism Will Fail.

The extreme left wing in French politics shows no disposition to accept quietly the rebuke summarily administered to it in the elections of last November. Exponents of proletarian revolution continue with undiminished zeal their propaganda in behalf of the Bolshevizing of France. This camp of the Socialists is split into two camps, each miles apart from the other in the orientation of its political views, as disclosed in Socialist deliberations at Strasbourg and elsewhere. A majority of Socialists have gone on record as implacable foes of the spirit of social-revolution. A minority, turbulent and savage, have declared their intention of making common cause with Moscow Communism, and are resolved to do everything in their power to foment revolution in France in particular and throughout the world in general.—Boston Evening Transcript.

MRS. ROOP HARDLY ABLE TO WALK ACROSS ROOM.

St. John Woman Dreadfully Weak And Rundown After Fifteen Years' Trouble—Tanlac Restores Health.

"Some wonderful things happen in this world, and what Tanlac has done for me is one of them," declared Mrs. F. E. Roop, of 151 King St. East, St. John, N.B., in relating her experience with the medicine, recently.

"Before I got Tanlac I suffered for years with indigestion, and everything I ate distressed me terribly. I couldn't eat hot bread and many other things, and gas formed in such quantities that it pressed around my heart until I could hardly get my breath. I also suffered dreadfully from heartburn, and was so weak I could scarcely walk across the room. I had such awful pains in my right side that it kept me in bed for four or five weeks at a time, and I was told that an operation was the only thing that would relieve me.

Anecdotes of Edison.

Pulpitis was one of his Vienna fancies—he was continually building pulpitis. Perhaps this was because he had a little playfellow there whose special delight it was to preach. At any rate, it was always little T. A. who built the pulpitis with the understanding that the other boy would preach. And invariably, by some artful contrivance of the small inventor, the pupil would fall to pieces at a critical point in the fine sermon. In a twinkling the fervent preacher would be in a passion, the eloquence would drop to language of a dreadful nature, little Edison would take to his heels and there would follow two or three days of strained feeling. Then would come reconciliation, fresh pulpitis, fresh contrivances for collapse, more contradictions of preaching and malediction, and more hurried retreats.

Although the great wizard of electricity, both as a small boy and a growing youth, is always described as having few companions and wandering about much by himself, pondering out some problem, there seems no evidence that he was ever lacking in any of a normal boy's enjoyment of fun.

A story is told among his relatives of a practical joke young Edison was fond of playing at a later date in Fort Grand, Mich. One of his relatives kept a store there which like many other stores, had its habitues who came daily and spun yarns by the hour. One of these was an old man who specialized in ghost stories. By some artifice, young Edison succeeded in turning a charge of electricity on the chair occupied by the aged enter-tainer when his story approached the exciting and thrilling point. The trick worked like a charm. The old man, alarmed, declared something was at work with his chair. It had to be examined, sat in by the others, the inventor gravely assisting in the investigation, which, of course, developed nothing. This joke was too fruitful of fun not to be repeated, and the poor old story-teller came in time to fully believe his chair was haunted.

Many are the stories of young Edison's jokes, the most of them, however, with an "electric" twist somewhere in their course. So marked was this bent that his father said concerning him, "T. A. E. never had any boyhood days, his early amusements were steam engines and mechanical forces."

But fun, as we have seen, may be made even from these. Later still, when young Edison was working at telegraphy in Boston, cockroaches became the plague of the office. He rigged up some small strips of tin-foil on the office wall, connected them with a powerful battery, and covered them with appetizing bait. And the office had the sport of watching the insect pests move from one tin-foil to Old Country View of the Big Fight.

London.—The Manchester Guardian says:

Now that the fight is (according to the cablegrams) practically fixed up, we can look forward with interest to the training reports of the great men. These are sure to be at least more readable than the surd, and not quite believable, accounts of mammoth purses which were running into millions (of dollars) before the bottom fell out of the ignoble business.

Is Dempsey the super-man Americans think he is? From his fighting record it would appear that he is. He whipped the gigantic Jess Willard—Jack Johnson's conqueror—easily for the world's championship, reducing his 17st. 12lb. opponent to impotence in three rounds. Carl Morris, another Titan of over seventeen stone, was just as easily beaten, and Dempsey has to his credit—or otherwise, according to one's point of view—victories over such renowned fighting men as Fred Fulton—he knocked out this really first-class boxer in less than fifteen rounds—Bill Brennan, a capable two handed fighter, Gunboat (Smith) who lost his fight with Carpenter on a foul) and Battling Levinsky, whom the French champion recently defeated, as has been said already.

The experts can find no weak spots in Dempsey. He is twenty-five, six feet one and a half, and weight about 200 pounds—"big enough and heavy enough for anything on two legs." His fists are granite, his forearms are tremendously strong, he does not dis-pate, and (adds a writer somewhat gratuitously), "has plenty of punch-resistance."

Dempsey's full neck gives one the idea of immense strength; he has elasticity and swing. His frame, we are told, is "of the texture of whale-bone," and he "has the eye of a rat," which sounds not quite complimentary. Then again—and this must be important—"his fighting brain measures 22 inches," which is three-quarters of an inch larger than that of Carpenter. It would be interesting to know how the fighting brains of Dempsey and Carpenter were measured. Probably by algebraical equations, or possibly trigonometry.

Dempsey, who can boast of Irish, Scotch and American-Indian blood, is said to be a "natural" rather than a scientific fighter. Some of his critics aver that Dempsey is not particularly hard to hit, but "he uses his head in a bobbing up and down sort of way, so that it is not easy to land."

The question which is now intriguing two hemispheres is: Will Car-penter be able to land, and having landed, will he land hard enough to impair the whalebone of the Salt Lake fighter's frame, close his ratty eyes, and overcome his punch-resistance.

Once upon a time certain Jim Flynn got in an early punch in a fight with Dempsey, who was counted out. But the story goes, Dempsey was expecting a handshake and left himself vulnerable. In a second encounter it was Dempsey who landed, and the subsequent proceedings interested Mr. Flynn no more.

String Quartets

BEST WORK FOR YOUNG COM-POSER. The young composer, says W. J. Henderson in the New York Sunday Herald should be urged to eschew the employment of all the opulent apparatus of the modern orchestra until he has ascertained whether he really has anything to say. If a man has something worth communicating to the world he will manage to publish his message. It makes a great difference whether a man has a picture to paint or has to paint a picture. If he has a picture to paint it will paint itself in one way or another in spite of all obstacles, even the want of paint. But when it merely is a case of having to paint a picture the result is often just paint. Youthful composers ought to be compelled to get down to bed rock in some corresponding way. The best thing that could happen to them all would be a compulsory course of string quartet writing. Let them write string quartets till they find out that they have nothing to say. Each one of them would then be in the position of a painter who was made to draw till he found out he had not a single picture in his equipment. He might perhaps then be brought to see that the use of paint would be superfluous. One point more—If young composers were compelled to practise the gentle art of quartet writing they would not find so many other composers to imitate. They would have finally to utter their platitudes in their own way, and this would be extremely good for their immortal souls. If the young musician, who thinks he is a composer, writes string quartets a la Hayden or Brahms (watch them and you will see that they do one or the other), symphonies a la Beethoven or Dvorak, or all sorts and conditions of orchestral turmoils and disruptions a la Stravinsky, Strauss or the French acquarelle school, he is not doing that something different which is required of him. If he will stick to the string quartets and let the orchestra fireworks alone, he will soon find out—at any rate, every one else will—that he has nothing whatever to say, and perhaps, he will then content himself with decorating folk tunes.

The Simple Life.

To study the simple life in perfection one ought to go to Persia, where no furniture is used in the houses. The inside walls are covered with fine white plaster decorated with lovely mouldings, and little arches of white plaster spring up in every direction, and serve as tables and dressers. In the andarium, or women's part, all the windows are of stained glass, through which the sunlight enters and casts charming colored reflections on the snowy interior. No chairs are required, because Orientals sit on the floor, while everywhere the Persian lady goes she takes with her, as part of her luggage a thin mattress stuffed with cotton, on which she can repose either by night or day.

As there is no furniture, sweeping and dusting are unknown in the Persian home. Also the laundry question is not serious, for women wear the same clothes to sleep in as they do when up. These are changed once a month, when the lady attends the public bath, the Hamam, accompanied by a maid, who carries her clean garments on a tray. Here she is scrubbed from head to foot with pumice stone (soap being unknown), her eyes are blackened indigo, and her hair, and also the palms of her hands and the soles of her feet, are dyed red with henna. The hair of the Persian woman is her great beauty, and is usually long enough to sit upon. From early childhood it is closely plaited with white cotton, which is supposed to give it a downward tendency and to make it grow. When a Persian lady goes abroad she wears wide trousers of bright grass-green silk over her scanty indoor clothes, and is closely veiled. No man may look on her, and she might be a jewel in a casket too precious to be worn in public. No wonder some of the better educated women are beginning to rebel against the restrictions which have imprisoned them for centuries in indolence and inertia.—London Mail.

THERE COMES A TIME WHEN WORDS WON'T DO.

There's comes a time when words won't do.
 However fine the thought you say,
 They will not drive the care away
 Or make the gray clouds into blue;
 Then suffering and anguish needs
 Not kindly thoughts, but kindly deeds.

There's no philosophy can soothe
 The aching heart beset by grief,
 Death hurts in spite of our helter
 Speech cannot trouble waters smooth.
 In such an hour all mortals need
 The comfort of a helpful deed.

A word of courage now and then
 Will spur the faltering spirit on,
 Rekindle hope when hope seems gone.

But there are times of trial when
 By real service we must share
 The cares that others have to bear.

True friendship then must step aside
 To prove in some substantial way
 The tender thoughts its lips would say.

Must share the burden and be tried
 Until its friends shall smile again,
 Or otherwise all speech is vain.

However fair the speech may be,
 It cannot lighten real distress
 Nor change man's woe to happiness.

Nor serve a friend's necessity;
 Then true devotion swiftly speeds
 To prove itself by helpful deed.

Wesley Church Sale.

Yesterday afternoon the Wesley Methodist Church ladies' annual sale was opened by R.A. Templeton Esq. in the basement of Wesley Church. In opening the sale, Mr. Templeton made a splendid speech. He hoped that during the sale many others would come along to show their appreciation of the efforts of the ladies. He declared the sale open amid much applause. During the afternoon much purchasing was done, and from 8:30 till the close the tea tables were very much patronized. Splendid high teas were served by the ladies in charge and during the evening many patrons outside of the Wesley congregation were noticed among the gathering. The sale and teas will be continued this afternoon and evening and another opportunity will be given for those who have the welfare of Wesley Church at heart to prove such by their support of such a worthy cause, especially the members of the congregation who worship at the church under whose auspices this sale and tea is held. At 8:30 this evening a concert will be held, when the leading musical talent of Wesley Church and also some from the outside will take part in helping to further the work of the ladies. Great credit is due Mrs. (Rev.) Bugden and her associates for the success which crowned their efforts last night, and an equal share of patronage is anticipated to-night, when the sale will be continued.

Cartwright Mission Circle Concert.

Last night, the annual concert of the Cartwright Mission Circle was held in the Canon Wood Hall, under the able direction of Mrs. H. W. Stirling. The feature of the very enjoyable programme was that all the performers were girls between the ages of 10 and 17.

PROGRAMME.

1. Duet—U. Noel and F. Pitches.
2. Recitation—T. Noseworthy.
3. Song—M. Martin.
4. Recitation—M. Grouchy.
5. Dance—D. and F. Hynes, M. O'Neill and M. Meaney.
6. Song—A. Stirling.
7. Recitation—Gertrude Pacey.
8. Song—F. Pitches.
9. Recitation—M. Brown.
10. Song—D. Stranger.
11. Recitation—L. Noseworthy.
12. Recitation—M. Taylor.
13. Song—G. Oke.
14. Playlet—The Girl.

The playlet, the last item on the programme, was the hit of the evening and showed how by means of a dream a little girl was converted from indifference to enthusiasm in missionary projects. The principal parts were taken by Misses Mina Brown, Maude Oke, and Marion Cooke. A reference to the work of Rev. Henry Gordon in the Cartwright Mission was cleverly interpolated by Miss Mina Brown. En passant, special mention must be made of the very pretty tableau presented at the conclusion of the playlet, which was a very fitting close to such an enjoyable entertainment.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited, Gentlemen,—In July, 1915, I was thrown from a road machine, injuring my hip and back badly and was obliged to use a crutch for 13 months. In Sept., 1915, Mr. Wm. Outridge of Leach's urged me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I did with the most satisfactory results and to-day I am as well as ever in my life. Yours sincerely,
 MATTHEW W. BAINES.
