A QUEEN UNCROWNED

THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER XIX.

"I'm afraid you've had a rush of insanity to the brain lately, and that reminds me—this is the full of the moon, isn't it? Where's the almanac?" And Lord Austrey started to his feet, the very picture of consternation.

"Pshaw! Austrey, don't be a—I mean, don't talk nonsense."
"Nonsense, man! I never was so serious before in my life. I should hope I had cause. When a man goes and sets his what's-their-names?—heart's best affections, and all that sort of thing, on his friend, and then sees him a fit subject for Bedlam, it is time to be serious, I think. Give up Norma! What the unmentionable-to-ears-polite has inspired you with that notion, most unhappy youth!"

"Austrey, I wish you would be serious for five minutes," said Disbrowe, springing up and pacing up and down. "I really and truly do want to get out of this business, if I possibly can. You are the only friend I can decently consult on the subject, and as you happen to be a relative of mine, I don't mind speaking to you about it."

"A fifth cousin, or something of that sort—ain't it? The first tremendous shock is over, and I have steeled my heart, and nothing can move me more. Hand me that bottle of sal volatile. Now I'm prepared for the worst, so make ready—present—fire!"

"Austrey, will you stop your nonsense, and listen to me," exclaimed Disbrowe in a rage. "Can't you be sensible for once in your life?"

"Well, there—I'm done!" said Austrey, adjusting the pillow more comfortably under his head. "I'll promise to be as sensible as is consistent with the intellectual faculties nature has gifted me with. Now, state the case. You want to get clear of this contract of yours—do you?"

"Yes."
"But why—what's the reason?"

"Well, I'm in no hurry for marrying for half a dozen years yet, for one thing; and Miss Norma Macdonald does not suit me, for another."

"You're engaged to her—are you not?"

"Yes, but it was an engagement of her father and Earncliffe's making."

"One Bottle of Carnol relieved his weakness. Three bottles of Carnol restored him to perfect health. Don't let yourself get run down. When you do, your system is weakened and you are likely to take anything that is going. If you feel tired, depressed, weak, nervous, watch yourself. These are the warnings to you that something serious may follow. It's at a time like this that you need a tonic, something which will tone up your system, purify your blood, quiet your nerves, give you strength. This is the way Mr. Collins felt before he took Carnol. He says, 'I was in a run down condition. For six months, I was very weak and suffered from loss of appetite. I tried all kinds of drugs. I thought might possibly bring relief, but without success. Then I met a friend. After stating to him my condition of health I referred to different drugs I had taken without benefit. Then he advised me to try Carnol immediately. He told me not to spend another cent for useless drugs that would not even bring temporary relief. Then I purchased one bottle of Carnol which relieved me of my weakness. After taking three bottles the blessings of health, which I formerly enjoyed, were again restored to me. As a builder and upholster when weakening conditions exist, there is nothing equal to Carnol. I can boast of my health now. I cannot express or find words to praise Carnol for all the good it has done for me. I have proof of what it can do and advise all suffering under such conditions to give Carnol the first trial. A trial will convince you and if continued will bring permanent relief. It will bring back to you the best health you once enjoyed.'—Mr. R. G. Collins, 150 Richmond Street, Sydney, N.S. 2-24

"So! and the Honorable Alfred Disbrowe and Miss Norma had no vote in the matter?"

"Well, to tell the truth, I made no objection. There is a wide difference between a portionless younger brother and a titled earl, you know; and—"

"And the heiress that would have suited Alfred Disbrowe to a T, doesn't exactly come up to the mark for the Earl of Earncliffe, I see!"

Disbrowe colored slightly.

"It looks rather villainous—doesn't it? But the fact is, I never loved Norma as a man should love the woman he intends to spend his life with, but you know the proverb more expressive than elegant: 'Needs must when the devil drives!' And I was contumaciously hard up, over head and ears in debt to the children of Israel; and, in fact, there was no help for it, then. Now, however, I have money enough; and upon my soul, Austrey, I cannot tell you how repugnant the idea of this marriage is to me."

There was an almost passionate vehemence in his tone. Lord Austrey looked at him, and slightly smiled.

"I say, Earncliffe, you didn't leave your heart behind you in America, I hope?"

Disbrowe turned white for a moment, even to his lips. His friend saw his mistake, and instantly regretted what he had said.

"My dear fellow, I beg your pardon! I only spoke in jest; I had no idea—"

"Enough," said Disbrowe, waving his hand. "Say no more about it. But now that you have heard the case, as you call it, what am I to do? I want to get rid of this engagement without hurting the young lady's feelings."

"I wonder if she cares for you?"

"She used to, I think. Time, though, may have changed her in that particular."

"Ex puls" said Disbrowe, laughing. "And then I will make her Lady Austrey; her father wants to get a title, and I don't see why Austrey is not as good as Earncliffe. To be sure, you are worth a score of thousands a year, and I about enough to buy kid gloves and pale ale; but he has the gilt, and he might as well let me spend it as anybody else."

"A very delightful scheme, my good friend; and therefore, of course, quite impracticable. Old Macdonald has set his heart on marrying me to his daughter; and do you suppose he will coolly stand by and see you win the golden prize? I don't doubt your success with the lady; she has been shut up like a nun all her life, and will be a regular Eastern bride for exclusiveness; and, being of the intensely romantic order, will be ready to forget me and love you at a moment's notice; but ah! her father is another affair!"

"What a bore fathers are!" said the young lord, in a tone of displeased criticism. "I don't see why pretty girls need have such things at all. So Miss Norma's romantic—is she? Her idea of a lover, I suppose, is derived from those charming pictures, where the scenery is all balconies, roses, and curtains out of doors, and where a gentleman in tights and a guitar is urging a lady on his knees to go to sea with him in something that looks like a floating cradle, or a hearse amusing itself with a sail."

Well, so much the better; she will be all the easier managed, and handsome ladies are privileged to be silly. As to the governor, he's very fond of his daughter, isn't he?"

"Passionately—quite dotes on her."

"All right, then! She'll fall in love with me, that's settled. Obdurate parent will insist on her marrying you. Lady weeps, flings herself at his feet, and bathes them with her tears. Obdurate parents melt—calls to poor but strictly honest lover, who is always on hand, places lovely daughter's hand in his, and says: 'Take her, you dog!' Lovers fall at his feet. Obdurate parent stretches out his hands, rolls up his eyes to the ceiling, and apostrophizes the flies: 'Spirit of my sainted Elizabeth, behold my happiness—bless you, my children; may you be happy!' And then the curtain falls, and there it ends."

"No," said Disbrowe, laughing, "then comes the farce, consisting of a henpecked husband and thirteen tow-headed Normans and Georges."

Lord Austrey made a grimace.

"Ugh! don't mention it! Call that a farce?—a tragedy more likely. Well, but really and truly, and soberly, Earncliffe, I don't see why this plan should not work."

"We can try it, but I confess I am skeptical. Will you come with me to town?"

"Certainly! when do you go?"

"We may as well start now, I suppose. It will help to kill time, and that, itself, is no trifling consideration. For though the dolce far niente is pleasant enough for once in a way, yet there is such a possibility as having too much of a good thing. So I will order horses at once."

MISERABLE AND ALWAYS IN PAIN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Dependable Help to Mothers

Port Greville, N.S.—"I took your medicine for a terrible pain in my side and for weakness and headaches. I seemed to float all over, too, and my feet and hands were the worst. I am the mother of four children and I am nursing my baby—the first one of four I could nurse. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before the baby's birth, so you can see how much it helped me. I cannot praise it too highly for what it has done for me. I took all kinds of medicine, but the Vegetable Compound is the only one that has helped me for any length of time. I recommend it to any one who is miserable like mine and you may use my letter for a testimonial."—Mrs. ROBERT MCCULLY, Port Greville, Nova Scotia.

London Letter

(By PANTON HOUSE, for The Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The greatest wizard in all the world has just died in London. This was Mr. Nevil Maskelyne, who, in partnership with his father first and afterwards with his sons, has provided London for over 50 years with one of its most popular entertainments. Thousands of visitors from the Dominions have patronized the wonderful show at St. George's Hall, the "Home of Mystery," where illustrations were presented that far outclassed the mythical "rope trick" of India.

In one of these, a man was placed in a coffin-shaped box, which was raised two or three feet in the air; the door was opened and he was found standing on his head. The box was again lowered, the door again opened, and the occupant discovered right way up. In another trick, a man was strapped in a chair surrounded by a canopy of four poles. His left arm was strapped above his head and a string fastened to his wrist was thrown over the top of the canopy and held by a member of the audience. His right arm was similarly strapped and held, and his legs and body strapped. The curtains of the canopy were then drawn, but in such a way as to permit an uninterrupted view beneath. The man disappeared as the curtains were drawn and the word "go" given. But no movement was felt by those holding the strings attached to his wrists.

Some of the last Maskelyne illustrations had cost their inventor a year's work. His mechanical genius was exercised in several directions, particularly in the development of "wireless" and his cinematographic camera. He is believed to have been the first man to photograph a shell in flight.

TRAINING THE GROCER.

One of the many big trade exhibitions held in London every autumn has been in progress at the Royal Agricultural Hall this week. This is the International Grocery Exhibition, where all the most modern methods of this business are demonstrated for the benefit of the retailer and his assistants. Challenge cups, medals, and diplomas were awarded for window-dressing, bacon-dicing, tea-blending, and coffee-roasting. It was a pity that the general public was not invited, as one can imagine that the bacon-slicing at any rate, would make a popular spectacle. At the word "go," the competitors, armed with long knives and saws, pounced on a number of sides of bacon, which, when cut, had to be priced to bring in a specified rate of profit.

Among the mechanical figures for the shop window was a wax lady, a small one, who is seen to lift her veil, pick up the telephone receiver and order her goods, then up through a trapdoor comes the grocer's boy with the parcels.

BANK OF ENGLAND MOVING.
During rebuilding operations, that are to begin about the end of this year and will run as far as 1926, the Bank of England is to carry on its business in a fine new block of buildings in Fishbury Circus. Some of the departments have already migrated and within the next two months $400,000,000 worth of bullion and coined gold, and $650,000,000 of securities, will be gradually transferred to the temporary premises of "The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street."

Visitors from the Dominions now in London come daily to take a last look at the massive, one-storeyed building which has held the leading bank of the world for 128 years. These blind walls (they are windowless except for a few small openings above the main front) enclose four acres of courts and offices and a very charming little garden, once the courtyard of a city church, St. Christopher-le-Stocks. Some of the inner buildings are older than the fortress wall, dating, indeed, from 174. The Gordon Riots of 1789, when the Bank was attacked by a mob, made it clear that the institution could no longer be lighted from outside; hence the present design. The old walls are to remain, but a loftier structure will arise within them.

The Bank of England was incorporated as long ago as 1694, and was the first joint-stock association in England. It was first lodged in the chapel of Mercers' Hall in Ironmonger Lane, and afterwards (in 1734) in Grocers' Hall, both premises belonging to the important City Companies of which we have written before in these letters.

RELICS OF A QUEEN.
The Agent-General for South Australia has been exploring London for the last two years in search of relics of Queen Adelaide, wife of William IV., who gave her name to the capital of his state. It might have been thought that a Queen of England of only a hundred years ago would have left many portraits and belongings; but even the National Portrait Gallery had no portrait of the Queen wearing her crown, nor could one be produced by Buckingham Palace, Windsor and the Tower of London put together. Finally an old and battered oil painting of the poor lady in her Coronation Robes turned up in a small shop of Covent Garden.

Queen Mary, who took great interest in the quest, is presenting Adelaide, South Australia, with a pair of silver candlesticks which belonged to the city's godmother. Less distinguished folk have presented Queen Adelaide's prayerbook and a piece of brocaded silk from her wedding gown.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE'S CLEAR-CUT PRONOUNCEMENT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. Democratic National Headquarters here has received the following statement by John W. Davis, the party's Presidential Nominee, replying to a direct question of whether or not he favors entrance of the United States into the League of Nations. In my speech of acceptance opening the Democratic campaign I expressed my attitude on this question with complete frankness, I said, speaking in the clearest terms in the national interest it was not wise, or prudent, or safe, that fifty-four nations of the world should sit together in conference on world affairs and America be absent. I said that while this nation could not join the League of Nations helpfully, unless and until the common judgment of the American people supported such a step, the time would come in my judgment, when we should see that both interest and duty dictate the step. I do not believe that the League of Nations is perfect. I do not believe that it has assumed its final form. I believe in life and growth and custom and habit. I am not concerned even about the terms on which we shall appear at the Council table of the world. Out of that appearance and out of such conference in God's good time will grow a friendly habit among men, the custom of calm and reasonable discussion and proper yielding, not to a force, not to a superstate, not to a command, but in language, the declaration of independence itself, of a decent respect for the opinion of mankind.

WITH LOCAL CONSENT.

LONDON, Oct. 20. Lloyd George speaking to-day in Shrewsbury Division of Salop, where there is a three cornered contest in progress, took the Labor party to task for opposing Liberalism in this constituency, as well as in other constituencies, where there was little chance of a Labour candidate being elected to Parliament. He said labor was opposing Liberalism because the Liberals were not in favour of the Russian loan, a loan to help revulsion. Liberal headquarters declares that in every case where a Liberal candidate has been withdrawn from the contest the withdrawal has been with local consent and the electors are left to decide whether it is a great inconsistency to vote Labor or Conservative.

WIRELESS ACROSS THE WORLD.

LONDON, Oct. 20. Two amateur wireless experimenters near London succeeded in establishing communication yesterday and to-day with a New Zealand amateur. They exchanged congratulations by Morse signals which were confirmed by cable. Only small power was employed with an eighty metre wave length.

FATALITIES ON SCOUT CRUISER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. Three men were killed in an explosion in the forward twin gun mount of the new scout cruiser, Trenton, during target practice on the southern drill fields off Cape Henry, Virginia, to-day, the Navy Department was informed to-night.

REICHSTAG DISSOLVED.

BERLIN, Oct. 20. President Ebert to-day issued a decree dissolving the Reichstag. The action of President Ebert in dismissing the Reichstag and, thereby paving the way for general election is generally believed to have resulted from the failure of Chancellor Marx to carry out his plan to extend the basis of the present Government by the inclusion in the Cabinet of representatives of parties further to the right and to the left than those already represented.

EPINARD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. Epinard, the famous French thoroughbred, will not race again, and will be retired to stud upon return to France. This was announced to-day by Pierre Wecner, his owner, who said that his decision was prompted by a foot injury, which the horse sustained last Saturday at Laurel, when the horse was defeated for the fourth successive time since his American invasion. He also disclosed that he had rejected an offer of $2,000,000 for Epinard from a prominent American turfman. He said that since he had declined the offer he did not feel at liberty to disclose the name of the man making it.

THE MOVIE HORROR.

ATHENS, Oct. 20. The official casualty list made public to-day of the stampede last night in a movie picture house here, caused by a false alarm of fire, believed to have been raised by pickpockets, shows that 27 children were killed and about 50 other persons, many of them children, injured.

NO REPRIEVE FOR BANDITS.

OTTAWA, Oct. 20. The Supreme Court of Canada this morning dismissed the application of the five Montreal Hochelaga Bank bandits for writs of Habeas Corpus, without hearing Counsel for the Crown. They are sentenced to hang on Friday next.

CLASSIFICATION OF CANDIDATES.

LONDON, Oct. 19. The 1420 candidates nominated for parliament yesterday comprise the following party classification: Conservatives 528, Constitutionalists 7, Liberals 351, Laborites 501, Co-operative 9, Communists 8, Independents 12, Republicans 7, Sinn Fein Nationalists and Prohibitionists one each. Because of the large number of Liberal withdrawals it will be straight fights between Conservatives and Laborites in no less than 247 contests. More-over owing to the last hour party activity in nominating extra candidates chiefly by Labor there will be more triangle fights than was expected.

ed, 227 the distributed as follows: London 28, English Boroughs 71, English counties 104, with the remainder in Wales, Scotland and Ireland. Thus three cornered fights are distributed over the whole kingdom and make the outcome of the elections very difficult to predict. There are 41 women candidates, Labor supplying the majority, 22 are Labor, and the Conservatives have nominated 12, the Liberals 6, and Independents 1. Lady Astor, the Duchess of Atholl, Lady Torrington, and all the women members of the last parliament are seeking re-election. The other women candidates include many well known in the women's movement.

LEAGUE TO MEET AT BRUSSELS.

GENEVA, Oct. 20. Officials of the League of Nations announced to-day that a sufficient number of favorable replies had been received from member nations to warrant the assurance that a special meeting of Council to settle the difference between Great Britain and Turkey over the Iraq Boundary, would be held. This meeting, it was stated, would be held at Brussels on October 27th, instead of at Paris as had been originally intended. To bring about the meeting in the Belgian capital the League took steps to transfer temporarily to Brussels the organization of the Council.

REALISM IN EXTREMIS.

PHOENIX, Oct. 20. William Harborough, 26, movie stunt man, was drowned in Colorado River at Yuma yesterday, during the filming of a "western picture." He was swept down the stream when a flood of water was released by the opening of the Laguna dam to carry out the realism of the production.

THOSE SMALL ANNOYANCES.

Someone, I think it was Stevenson anywhere it will might have been) has said that it is a precious birthright and worth many a mess of pottage to be able to be diverted by little things.

Conversely, it is a most unfortunate birthright and worth many a mess of pottage to get rid of, to be annoyed by all sorts of little things.

I went to drive last spring with a man who has this supersensitiveness to small annoyances. When he started his car it ran for a minute then stalled. By the blackness of his brow you would have thought something really distressing had happened. "I hate a car that's always stalling on you," he growled.

We drove out on the road and presently found ourselves on a winding road behind a car that was going a little more slowly than we wished to go. It wasn't possible to pass it for three or four miles and during that time our driver was evidently much disturbed. "I hate to drive behind someone else," he kept muttering. If he had been in a hurry to get anywhere one could understand, but he wasn't. It was just a pleasure drive, save the mark.

No Fun For Him.

I heard the other day that he had sold his car and given up driving altogether. "No fun in it any more," he said. "Too many machines on the road." There wouldn't be any fun for him. Of course any one deplors the crowdedness of the roads but the average person adjusts himself to it and gets pleasure in spite of it. But to this type of person the annoyance is the biggest thing in the picture.

Perhaps he will be happier when he uses trains and trolleys and taxicabs instead of his automobile. I wonder. I have seen his type growling and fulminating because a trolley didn't come or a train wasn't an express train, so I rather expect that he will not find himself free from annoyances.

He Resents the Weather.

Weather is a continual source of wretchedness to the person who is supersensitive to small annoyances. He hates wind. If a rainstorm lasts more than a few hours it makes him grouchy and depressed. If he is too hot or too cold he is terribly uncomfortable and can't think of anything else. In fact he seldom can think of anything except the minor discomforts that spoil for him the major pleasures of life. Not that he has any more of those minor annoyances than other people. We all have them.

But most of us take a certain amount of them for granted.

To Kick Against the Pricks.

Not to take them for granted, not to be able to see beyond them, is to shut yourself out from much happiness and put a constant strain on your nerve force.

"It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks," was once said to the apostle Paul.

It is true not only of Paul but of all who are constantly kicking against the pricks of daily life.

It is hard for them. And hard for those who live with them.

Business Opportunities at Corner Brook

ADDRESS BY MR. JOHN STADLER.

A large number of members of the Board of Trade, and business men in general, were present at the Board of Trade rooms yesterday afternoon, to hear an address from Mr. John Stadler, General Manager of the Newfoundland Power and Paper Company, on the needs and possibilities of opening general stores at Corner Brook and other places, where this Company is operating.

His Honor Mayor Cook presided, and in a brief speech, introduced Mr. Stadler.

Mr. Stadler expressed himself as being agreeably surprised at the large number who were present, as he had no idea that the Board of Trade was comprised of such numbers. He had made several trips to St. John's before, but only for a brief period, and he got a wrong conception as to the Board of Trade. His present visit to the city was mainly for the purpose of consulting with the Government regarding the labor situation; for their winter operations they are in need of 8,000 men. The story had got abroad that they were importing Canadians, but this is not the case, as they did not want to bring anyone in if the required number can be got here. If this number of men are secured, a large amount of supplies will be necessary, and it was with this in view, that he was addressing the meeting. So far very little attention has been paid to stores wholesale or retail; up to this the general rule with the stores at Corner Brook and other places, is that they have been here today and gone to-morrow; no real reliable firm has started business out there, and apparently they have been hesitant, because they do not know of the conditions.

At the present time Grand Falls produces less than 300 tons of paper per day; when they begin operations they will produce over 400 tons per day and this will mean that there will be at least two and a half million dollars spent in wages, yearly; this fact ought to be an attraction to give some attention to Corner Brook. There was an idea that they would be operating their own stores. When Grand Falls started, they did everything themselves, and when this company began some of the English directors wanted to do the same but he had not been in favor of it. The policy of the company would be solely the manufacture of paper. Anything else, such as supplies for employees would have to be left alone.

This step had to be taken as a result of his experiences in Quebec and other places in Canada where he had been connected with projects of this sort. Here it was found that the people were working for the company, so that there was no satisfaction. It had, therefore, been decided to make Corner Brook a town of the people, not of the company. At present there is a great need of building supplies at Corner Brook. People who are settling there are desirous of building houses and every day the company is receiving requests to sell supplies but they cannot do so. The company has received numerous applications from Canadian wholesale houses for permission to open up stores, but they have not been given any permission, and since Mr. Stadler arrived in the city he has received three telegrams from Canadian people asking him to reconsider the decision, but he has replied that this cannot be done at present. They have, however, given permission to one Canadian firm, who will operate a refrigerating plant. This was thought necessary, as during the summer months there had been a lot of sickness because of the lack of cold storage facilities. This company, however, has not been given sole rights, and any firm opening business out there can use this plant, by obtaining permission of the Newfoundland Power and Paper Company.

Corner Brook will have a minimum population of 7,000 people, and all the buildings are now practically completed and are having the machinery installed.

The Company will require for their operations 180,000 cords of wood per year, and as the season for cutting this is so short in this country, a large number of men will be required than in Canada where the season is longer. For the large number of men there will be required much supplies as well as for horses, that will also be necessary, and an excellent opportunity awaits business men. Representation had been made to the Company that the rates were too high, and acting on this they had materially reduced them. It had been decided, however, that no rights would be given for speculative purposes, and all business must be carried on, on proper lines. It was also decided to give exclusive rights to no one, nor to allow too many people to go in the same line of business.

Mr. Stadler hoped that what he had said would serve as some inducement to some of the reliable business people to take up the matter. Concluding, Mr. Stadler said there had been too much politics connected with his company, and he hoped the day is not far distant when the Humber will be dropped from the political field in the country.

Mr. James S. Ayre was desirous of making a few comments on this subject. In April last, his firm, as well as others, had received a circular letter from the Company, dealing with the subject. At the time he was at their branch store in Curling and he sent the circular; afterwards he proceeded to Corner Brook. After arriving there he saw Mr. Carpenter, who was said to be in charge of this part of the operations out there, and the treatment he received was not what one gentleman would expect from another. Mr. Carpenter gave very little satisfaction as to sites or any other necessary information and told Mr. Ayre to go out and look around for himself; this for an inexperienced man, when things were not in any shape, was a rather disappointing answer.

Another matter he would like to speak of was the matter of purchasing goods out here. When he was at Curling there were forty salesmen at the place. Of this number twenty-eight were from Canada and the other twelve from St. John's, and he had been told by the native men that there was no use in going to Corner Brook as they would secure no orders, as all the goods were being imported from Canada and he had found that several things had been secured this way at prices that were above what could be got in the city. No firm, Mr. Ayre thought, would start business unless they would get fair play as regards competitive prices.

There was another matter that should be remedied; when soliciting business out there he had been asked by one man what commission would be given for orders, which, he said, was an unsatisfactory way of doing business. He was glad of the opportunity of bringing this matter up before Mr. Stadler, because he felt sure it would not be tolerated.

Mr. Stadler was very pleased to hear these things discussed in so frank a manner. As regards Mr. Carpenter he had been found unfit for the position and had been dispensed with, but he had never before heard that this man had been discourteous, and he sincerely regretted it. Mr. Carpenter had showed that he was not favorably inclined to Newfoundland workmen and this was one of the reasons why he had not been kept on. He was disappointed but not surprised to hear that there had been efforts to introduce graft. His experience had taught him that this was the case whenever new projects were introduced. As regards the purchasing of necessities, instructions had been given that in future preference must be given to Newfoundland business houses. In this connection there had been a little dissatisfaction, in so far as goods were being ordered, at times they had been promised that they would come forward by the next train, etc., and had been counted on as coming, so that when they did not arrive as expected, no little inconvenience had been caused. It is, he said, much better not to make promises to ship until it is certain the goods can come forward. Mr. Stadler promised that in future every courtesy and consideration will be given business people who desire to open up branch stores. He will always be found ready and willing to do anything he can to aid such projects as he hoped that in the near future he would see some of them springing up. The aim, he said, not only to make Corner Brook the second city of the country, but in a very short time, to make it a strong rival of St. John's. Mr. Stadler concluded his address amidst much applause.

Mr. Reuben Horwood proposed a vote of thanks to the speaker for his very able and interesting address.

This was seconded by Mr. James S. Ayre, and on being put forward was carried unanimously.

Why Men Leave Government Employ

It is noted in the newspapers that Dr. Charles Saunders, the man who developed Marquis wheat, and who thereby added hundreds of millions of dollars to Canada's wealth over a term of years has retired from his position in the Department of Agriculture, owing to ill-health, on a pension of $1,100 per year. It is estimated that Dr. Saunders' work adds a value of twenty million dollars per annum to Canada's wheat crop, owing to his discovery that Marquis wheat as he developed it yields more highly than Red Fife or any other wheat heretofore known. And for all this we, as a nation, are generous to the point of giving him a pension of $1,100 per annum, a matter of twenty-one dollars and some odd cents per week; several dollars less per week, by the way, than we pay our garbage collectors. But, of course, there is a great difference. All that Dr. Saunders did was to discover that by marrying the male parent and Hard Red Calcutta the female parent, he could produce a better grain than heretofore known. This he did back in 1903 in an experimental plot at Ottawa, the original Marquis strain being represented by a single grain, which in 1923 had grown to five hundred million bushels.

If Dr. Saunders had done for a private corporation what he did for the public of Canada a pension of fifty thousand a year would not have been thought excessive. And still we are given to wondering why the brainy ones in the employ of the Canadian government seek in due time positions with private corporations.

"The Acquittal"

A WONDERFUL PICTURE.

Big audiences to a big picture was what happened at the popular Star Movie-last evening. Pictures have been shown in which it was claimed that the production would hold you in suspense, amazement and surprise, but with all due respect for all previous efforts the Acquittal will stand for some time as the one picture that held the audience in the closest of attention, heart interest, and sympathy from beginning to end. Beginning with a wedding ceremony and a halt with murder, the large audience sat bewildered throughout the entire performance, and at the conclusion; which showed one of the most wonderful court scenes—even greater than that in Manslaughter—it could be hardly realized that the climax had taken place. A very prominent member of the legal profession remarked at the close of the performance "it is a great pity that we have not many of such pictures, for it is a sermon, an education and a rare treat in many ways." Truly it was a picture that will long be remembered, and no doubt it will again draw another large audience to-night. In this connection we wish to state for the benefit of the clerk who was working at night, that the second performance does not begin till 9.15, therefore affording everyone an opportunity of being present.

Shield and Buckler

Sydney Bulletin: There are hundreds of lucrative industries in which the Dominions, unlike the central European countries, are not in a position to present to commerce with British skill and capital. It would pay us to help keep those industries alive in Britain even at some sacrifice to ourselves. A point that no citizen of Australia or its sister Dominion can afford to overlook is that now, and maybe for generations to come, in proportion as Britain deteriorates in power and strength the Dominions will tend to do the same. The Commonwealth is far less secure than it was ten years ago, because in the interval Britain has exchanged the two-

Eskimoses in Captivity

Winnipeg, Oct. 2.—For the first time since he entered the iron gates of Stony Mountain penitentiary two years ago, Ikalupik, an Eskimo from the frozen wastes of the Arctic Circle, is cheerful at his bench in the "pen" blacksmith shop.

Recently a friend paid him a visit, a friend who spoke his own language and who brought tidings from the northland. He told Ikalupik that he believed the white man would grant him a pardon and send the lonely Eskimo convict back again to his family and his igloo at Coronation Gulf.

Rev. W. A. Geddes, missionary for the past four years at Herschel Island for the Indian and Eskimo Commission of the Missionary Society of the English church was the visitor.

Unable to talk English and more ignorant still of the laws of civilization, Ikalupik was brought from his homeland and sentenced to five years imprisonment for manslaughter. Mr. Geddes believes the climate and confinement will inevitably kill the Eskimo. A second Eskimo prisoner is serving a 10-year term in the same institution. He can speak a few words of English.

Both are from beyond the pale of civilization on Coronation Gulf. The tribes in that district are totally uncivilized, according to Mr. Geddes. The Eskimos on Herschel Island, where contact is made with civilization, understand our laws, there has never been a single native arrested there.

"These two prisoners at Stony Mountain, however, come from 1,000 miles east of Herschel Island and they are not civilized at all. They have had no contact with white people, and I seriously doubt whether they understand the law. There is a vast difference between a civilized and an uncivilized Eskimo," Mr. Geddes declared.

Worn-Out Catch Cries

The old-time catch cry with which the Advocate is attempting to beguile the people, will not work. People today, are not to be tempted or seduced with ancient and worn out slogans, which have been worn threadbare by constant use. Merchant and fisherman, employer and employee have to work in unison for the common good. The fisherman is helpless without the supplier, as equally the merchant cannot make any progress in his business without the fisherman. Both, therefore are not independent of each other but dependent upon each other in the wildest kind of phantasmagoria in such admissions as are contained in the Advocate nightly. With the Coaker Journal, consistency does not count in the least, because all one has to do is to look over the list. Why, even Coaker himself claims the credit of being one of the greatest merchants in the country today. During his four years, he dined in wine, fabled and confabulated, as catered to the merchants. What kind of a game do they think they are playing. No, Mr. Coaker, the people of Bonavista District and all over the country will know that Newfoundland's prosperity depends entirely upon the friendly relations and good will that must prevail between the merchants and the producer, and the fishermen and the laborer. Will likewise look to the merchants in their best interests. The best proof that these assertions are correct, is to review conditions for the past five or six months when the first evidence of prosperity has begun to loom up, following the four and a half years of unemployment, poor relief and paupers' dole, which the abominable rule of Coakerism made possible since 1919. The Monroe banner of prosperity is flying freely over the ship of state today, when fishermen are receiving extraordinarily good prices for their fish, and why should it not be so? It is unlikely that the voters of Bonavista District are willing to revert back to conditions, which prevailed from 1919-23, and it is only reasonable to assume that Premier Monroe, who is already designated "A Man of the People," will, with his team mate, Capt. Billy Winsor, Minister of Marine & Fisheries, be returned with increased majority on the 27th.

Grand Opening of Casino Theatre To-Night

YOUNG-ADAMS COMPANY APPEARING IN "VELLED WOMAN."

To-night's grand re-opening of the Casino Theatre will mark an epoch in theatricals in Newfoundland, for the list of plays and the cast of players brought here by Mr. Young are something to marvel at. As we have already stated, the opening bill is Wm. Devereaux's famous success "The Velled Woman." This play has been specially selected as the initial performance because it is a production that is sure to appeal to our people. Last evening we had the pleasure of listening to a rehearsal of the Young-Adams Jaz Orchestra, and we can safely say that they are going to be a big hit. But wait till you see the Durands, The Dancing Demons on Roller Skates. It's a riot.

Wednesday and Thursday the bill will be Myron C. Fagan's Thrillodrama, "Thumbs Down." The title is taken from the old Roman custom of turning thumbs down upon a victorious gladiator, indicating the peoples' desire to have him slain. Mr. Fagan has shown in this play how the world all too quickly turns its thumbs down upon a woman for a mistake, but lets the guilty one go without censure. There is a great mother there running thru the story that all play-goers will like. Seats are now selling at Huttons for the great Drama, "Thumbs Down."

Says Measles to be Eradicated

TESTS IN PHILADELPHIA SHOW VALUE OF ANTI-MEASLES SERUM.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—Tests at the Philadelphia Hospital for Contagious Diseases of a new serum for the prevention of measles, which have been conducted by the Department of Health the last few months, give every indication that this disease can be made as rare as smallpox. Dr. William Krusen, director of the department, said yesterday in his weekly health talk.

Announcement by Dr. Krusen of the results of the tests here was the first information to be published concerning the new serum, which, he said, was taken from patients who were convalescing from the disease. "We have found, much to our surprise and gratification," Dr. Krusen said, "that of 122 children already immunized against the disease at the Philadelphia Hospital for Contagious Diseases and afterwards directly exposed to measles only six developed it and with these six the disease was of such a mild form as to make its diagnosis difficult."

Monroe and Prosperity, vs. Coaker and Poverty

There is no mistake in the issue this time. The electors will know that Coaker's rule during the past five years, plunged Newfoundland into the worst area of misery and poverty the Colony had ever experienced. Along with this misery and poverty, wholesale squandering of the people's taxes had been the spectacle, known and exposed by the Walker enquiry. No one can deny, it is principally owing to the rule of Coakerism, that misery and poverty covered the land. The facts are as plain as daylight, and the wonder is, so many people are alive at all to-day. In brief, one need only compare the conditions of to-day, with what has gone before. No more bread lines! No more doles! Good primary fish! Trade increased! People satisfied and more contented! People happier! Surely, this is a course of growing prosperity.

Bonavista has already challenged Coaker's rule, and shown its independence, by defeating the three Coaker candidates a few short months ago. Bonavista went further—it elected a Prime Minister, who is already winning fame in the country. Unlike Sir William Coaker, Mr. Monroe has shown his sterling qualities and capabilities, in a manner that the people—Independent of all creeds and classes—are pleased to acclaim. The people of Bonavista are called upon once more to assert their independence, to throw off the shackles of Coaker rule for all time, by registering an increased vote for the Hon. Walter Monroe, Prime Minister; and his colleague, Captain Billy Winsor, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; on Monday, October 27th. The issue is really one for them solely to consider, and in doing so, the eyes of the Colony, in fact, the British world, are upon Bonavista.

No attempt will be made to bluff them with false promises or scare cries. They themselves now will know the fruits borne out by Coaker misrule. They likewise have seen the great strides towards making this country the prosperous one it should be, under Monroe Administration. It is for Bonavista Bay to answer the question, Arise in your might, you men of loyal old blood of Bonavista Bay, and destroy the menace of Coakerism for all time, by voting for Monroe and Captain Winsor.

M.G.C.A. Trophy Night

A general monthly meeting of the M.G.C.A. took place in the Club Rooms last night before a large attendance of members. President Mr. H. J. Wyatt, presided in the chair. Three applicants were received and admitted to membership. The chief business of the meeting was the finalizing of arrangements for the annual Trophy night. As a former meeting it was decided to hold the event on October 29th, but through unforeseen circumstances the meeting decided to defer the date to November 6th. The affair will be held in the Presbyterian Hall. The track, tug-of-war, and football teams, numbering some sixty athletes, will be the guests of honor. The catering will be undertaken by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Association.

Degrees of Honesty

Can one man be more honest, or less honest, than another? In other words, has honesty any degrees? The allay, perhaps induced by slipshod grammar, is paraded in a paid advertisement appearing in the London Times. Selfridge and Company, Ltd., one of the largest department stores in London, consider it worth while to take half a column of what we are told is the highest-priced advertising space, for daily editorial comment giving the opinion of the business firm on matters of public interest. On degrees of honesty they say this:

"Honesty, to the sincere, has no degrees of quality. To the sincere there can be no action which is honest, but not quite so honest as another; or an action which, dishonest, is yet more honest than another. It seems to us that an action can always be definitely placed in one class or the other. Either it is entirely honest or it is entirely dishonest; and the motive of that action is the deciding factor."

"There may have been a time when even the sincere considered there could be such things as standards of honesty. When the peddler who weighed out the breadth of his thumb in a yard was nevertheless a fine fellow, or when cloth could, to all intents and purposes at any rate, be termed pure wool. But those days are over, and over for good; no merchant worthy of the name will slide back to that state of mind, however hard circumstances may seem to push him in that direction."

We are offering a line of Ladies' High Laced Vic Kid Boots, in Brown and Black, at One Dollar and Ninety Five Cents pair, less than half the value. Don't miss this bargain. BOWRING'S. oct13.t

Thrills and Suspense in "Red Lights"

GREAT PHOTOPLAY NOW RUNNING AT THE NICKEL.

There are mystery, thrills and suspense in abundance in the new Goldwyn feature photoplay, "Red Lights," which opened at the Nickel Theatre yesterday. It is an adaptation of Edward E. Rose's stage melodrama called "The Rear Car," in which Richard Bennett had such a big success on the Coast and which Taylor Holmes did in the East.

It would be unfair to those who see the picture later to give the plot in detail, but it is a story of a young girl, Ruth Carson, the abducted daughter of a railroad magnate, whose identity is at last discovered. This discovery begins a series of strange and mysterious warnings of imminent death. Her lover, John Blake, calls on his friend, Sheridan Scott, the "crime-deflector," to protect the girl. Passage is engaged to Chicago on the Continental Limited, but the mysterious warnings and strange happenings (including a murder, the baffling appearance of balls of red light in the car) continue to take place. The story comes to a climax when the rear car of the Limited is uncoupled from the train while it is going up a steep grade over the mountains and crashes madly down hill towards the second section of the train. Catastrophe is averted only because the switch is turned and the rear car is switched off on a blind siding. There the mysteries are solved and the villains punished.

Clarence Badger directed the picture and he has kept it a swift, thrilling and baffling tale throughout. There are hair-raising episodes which will "get" the spines of the most blasé. The cast is an extremely capable one and includes Marie Prevost and Raymond Griffith in the leads, and Johnnie Walker, Alice Lake, Dagmar Godowsky, Jean Hersholt, William Dorthington, Frank Elliott, Lionel Belmore and others in lesser roles. "Red Lights" is a picture which must be seen to be appreciated, and everyone who likes to be thrilled and have his emotions played upon will appreciate it.

"The Fool's Awakening"

A STIRRING FILM FEATURE.

Why a thoroughly entertaining, and true-to-life novel makes good picture material can be easily understood by audiences who see "The Fool's Awakening," the Metro premier which opened last night at the Majestic Theatre for a three day engagement, and which is based on William J. Locke's story, "The Tale of Triona." Harold Shaw's direction of an excellent cast in an interesting story, makes this one of the pictures which everybody is certain to enjoy.

Harrison Ford, Enid Bennett and Mary Alden have the leading roles and are ably assisted by the competent cast which includes Alec Francis, Lionel Belmore, Harry Northrup and many others.

Under Another Name. John Briggs, a poor young Englishman, builds up for himself a fictitious past which brings him fame when he publishes a book under another's name. When Olivia Gale, an heiress, marries him, she is in ignorance of his true story, and the shock of discovering his deceit results in her leaving him. The series of thrilling incidents which lead to his impotence, and his attempt at suicide when he believes that his wife cannot forgive his deception, making every read of this photoplay of particular appeal to every type of movie-goer. Keep in mind "Human Wreckage," the greatest story ever screened.

LOUGHRAN HOLDS HARRY GREB TO DRAW AT PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Harry Greb, of Pawtucket, middleweight champion of the world and Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, fought ten rounds to-night to a draw, the decision being given by the referee after the judges had disagreed.

Both men tried hard for a knockout, but they appeared to lack the necessary punching power. Greb's title was not at stake.

Blundering on to Disaster

Yesterday the Advocate refused the plain diet of facts which had been served up to it and wandered around in search of pastures new upon which to ruminate. It found them in Mr. Hickman's ungrammatical Circular, which showed a lamentable ignorance of the practice followed by Ministers in submitting themselves to re-election, and was so lukewarm in tone that it was obvious that the writer did not take kindly to the idea, remote as it was, of having Coaker as a prospective bedmate.

Then the Advocate went back to 1886 by way of a change from the romantic flights which it had recently been taking into the future, and last of all it tried to involve the heads of the Methodist Church in a political conspiracy. We rather imagine that for that faux pas it will not receive the thanks of the majority of that highly respected denomination.

We were fully aware of the articles in the Methodist Monthly Greeting which were prominently featured in yesterday's Advocate, but refrained from commenting on them, because, although the little magazine appeared anxious to become embroiled in politics, we considered its comments unrepresentative of the broad-minded spirit of the church and therefore undeserving of serious notice.

It is a pity that the "Greeting," whose tone was formerly so elevating and the matter contained in it so free of bias, should have consented to lower its standard. It is surprising that its editor should presume to dictate to the Master as to who are and who are not faithful servants, and it is somewhat inconsistent on the part of the Management to accept Government advertisements which are, according to its version, and which have been in the past paid for in part by money obtained by the sale of "Booze."

This last blunder perpetrated by the Advocate is peculiarly Coakeresque. It is in the same category as, but far more damaging to its champion's cause than the display of rowdism that was staged last week in Bonavista. It is but another verse to the long comedy of errors that record his actions since he first figured in political life. During his chequered career he has masqueraded in many disguises. Formerly he undertook to be dictator to the people of the country in matters concerning the fishery. Now he assumes the role of dictator to their consciences! However, the act is all but over, and within a few days he will have said his last goodbye to the public, and retiring into obscurity, will be able to meditate at leisure on what might have been his reward had he but served faithfully, and placed Country before Self.

Britain's Pulp and Paper Supplies

Estimates just published indicate that the output of paper and paper board in Great Britain in 1925 was 1,175,000 tons. This estimate made by the British

Board of Trade and received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its English Information Service, is said to be to some extent speculative, but is thought to be under rather than over the mark. It is thought that production to date in 1924 may have decreased somewhat. Of the 1923 production, 800,000 tons are estimated to have been made from imported materials and the balance from domestic materials.

In 1923, 1,369,000 tons of paper making materials were imported into Great Britain. Of this amount 1,133,000 tons consisted of wood pulp of the two varieties used, chemical and mechanical; 216,000 tons of esparto and other vegetable fibres; 16,000 tons of rags, linen and cotton; and 4,000 tons of other material. These imports exceeded those of the previous record year of 1920. The supplies of linen and cotton rags came chiefly from the continent, especially from the Netherlands, Belgium and France. Esparto came from Spain, Algeria, Tripoli and Tunis, while 901,000 tons of the wood pulp came from the Scandinavian countries, 39,000 tons from other foreign countries, and 193,000 tons from Canada and Newfoundland. Sweden, which supplied 60 per cent. of the chemical pulp in 1911-13, supplied 48 per cent. in 1923; Norway, which supplied 58 per cent. of the mechanical pulp in 1911-13, furnished 51 per cent. thereof in 1923. Canada and Newfoundland supplied no chemical pulp pre-war, but they supplied about 7 per cent. in 1923, and as against 18 per cent. of mechanical pulp furnished pre-war, they supplied 23 per cent. in 1923.

In 1923 Great Britain imported 3,844,000 cwt. of uncoated printing paper and of writing paper in large sheets; 12,000 cwt. were re-exported and 3,832,000 cwt. retained for home consumption; as against 3,537,000 cwt. imported and 3,423,000 cwt. retained pre-war. This importation is largely accounted for by the fact that certain British newspapers with enormous circulations have established their own mills in Scandinavia and Newfoundland, where they manufacture the paper they use. Paper trade experts estimate that from one-quarter to one-half of the total imports of this class of paper by Great Britain comes from British factories established abroad.

A Lucky Schooner

A new schooner, the "Gander Deal," built last spring, was engaged at the fishery the past summer at the Labrador and the Straits of Belle Isle, owned and in charge of Capt. Stanley Harbour. The captain is a hustler and with his hardy crew he managed to secure 1,100 cwt. The "Gander Deal" finished discharging last evening at Mudge's premises, and in a few days will sail for Trinity, her destination.

Firemen Receive Call

The Central and East End Fire Companies were called out yesterday afternoon to the residence of Mrs. Butler, 18 Colonial Street, where a fire was found to be in progress in the kitchen. Several good streams of water were put into play and within five minutes all danger had passed. The fire was caused by the ignition of some curtains that were hanging over the stove to dry.

Fish Prices in St. John's Still Going Up!

Yesterday Labrador fish again took an upward jump to $7.10 in the city, and shore fish in some instances was sold for as high as $8.60.

News received yesterday from abroad stated that the wheat markets had broken six points, which is equivalent in price of about 25 cents. In consequence it looks as if instead of the advance in flour which was predicted that the price will drop.

With regard to the price of flour, Newfoundlanders are at the mercy of the foreign markets, but it is worth noting that the price of fish is not what the merchant in Port Union made it, but what the exporters in St. John's decided was its value.

How is this for evidence against the worn-out slogan so often repeated that the merchant is bleeding the fishermen?

Obituary

WILLIAM FREW.

The passing of Mr. Wm. Frew, one of our most highly esteemed citizens and a conspicuous figure for many years in business circles, in his 82nd year occurred suddenly at 3 o'clock this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Parker, Topsail Road. Mr. Frew was born at Saltoates, Ayrshire, on January 1st, 1843. He came to St. John's in 1860 and entered the dry goods establishment of Baird Bros., and served there for eleven years or until a dissolution of the firm occurred, when he entered the employ of the late James Baird as a buyer. In 1881 he commenced business in his own name as a general dry goods merchant. He was amongst the sufferers in the conflagration of 1893 and lost heavily. As quickly as the debris was cleared away he had a shed erected at the foot of Market House Hill (now the Court House) where he did a large trade until April, 1894, when he removed to the then newly erected Baird Building. He continued a flourishing trade at this stand until about 3 years ago, when he retired and Messrs. Jas. Baird, Ltd. bought out his interests. Mr. Frew's wife, who was a Miss Mary Syme of Irvine, Scotland, predeceased him by only a few months. Two sons and two daughters are left to mourn to whom the Telegram extends sympathy in their bereavement.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

October 20th.—Up betimes on a mighty cold morning and wear my great coat, with great discontent of mind. To my office, where comes Mr. Taylor, and thanks me most profusely for what I did write of his dog in my journal a few days since, being that through it he has found the animal again. Indeed, he says that there seem none who do not read my writings since more than a score of people did ask him concerning the dog. Talking this day with Silas that is but newly come from the Humber, he tells me how the work of construction is well nigh finished, and that great progress has been made in the building of the town at Corner Brook. But Lord, says he, what a vast number of shoppes are on the outskirts of the town, more almost than are in the city, and still more of them springing up each day. Thinking of this, it did come to my mind how Mr. Stadler, the Humber Manager, discourses to-day to the Board of Trade on similar matters, so I to hear him, and what pleasures he mightily is Mr. Ayre, he very outspoken about divers matters which is like to have a good effect on these things for St. John's. My wife pestering me this day for a new coat of fur, albeit she did have one less than a year ago, but the wretch do insist how it is out of style, nor can she get about with her friends if she do not have this new coat. But when I did tell her that my means will not allow me to give it to her, she flies into a great passion, and calls me the meanest man alive. So of experience, I did leave her to her rage and go abroad to the Clubb where I forget my troubles in playing at Bridge.

WAMPOLES EXTRACT COD LIVER.
 Now that the damp, cold fall weather is commencing, it is absolutely necessary to keep yourself warm, dry and healthy to avoid catching cold. If you are not feeling very fit try a bottle of Wampoles Extract Cod Liver Oil, this will put you in the pink of condition. This preparation has had a wonderful sale, though never advertised, one Drug firm alone sold over 4,000 bottles in Newfoundland last year, this speaks for itself and shows that Wampoles must do the work as the sales are always increasing. Weigh yourself, try a bottle, see the result and you will be convinced. Price $1.20 per Bottle.

The King vs. Alexander Campbell, M.P.

The following special jury was sworn: Michael Grey, Geo. Tucker, Eli Gittleton, Michael O'Reilly, Nath. Andrews, Wm. Carson, John Noseworthy, John W. Marshall, Jas. A. Barnes, Sam Gardiner, Jas. J. Vincombe, Arthur Tilley. The case for the Crown was opened by Mr. Emerson, who briefly outlined the case for the Crown and called Harry Bugden. The witness, being sworn, said he was a taxi driver in April, 1923. He drove Dr. Campbell to several places in St. John's West on the election campaign. He was accompanied by Mr. Joseph Fitzgibbon, candidate for St. John's West, at that time. Witness was paid by cheque for his services. (Cheques for $21 and $51 were put in evidence.) Witness said he presented one of the bills to Mrs. Campbell but received the cheque from the Crown Lands Office. This cheque was taken to Dr. Campbell's house from the Crown Lands Office, signed and given to him.

Cross-examined by Mr. Howley, witness said a friend of his secured work for him with Dr. Campbell. He is now employed by Dr. J. A. Robinson.

Sydney Hart, sworn, examined by Mr. Winter, witness said he is first clerk in the Agriculture and Mines Dept. He was second clerk and accountant in 1923. Witness said all cheques were made out by him. Shows the cheques witness said they were made out on the Pit Prop Account. Witness contended Dr. Campbell before either cheque was drawn, signed and given to him.

Cross-examined by Mr. Howley, witness said that in 1921 relief accounts were burdened on the department and increased enormously until 1923. All sorts of people frequented the Department seeking relief. During all the period Dr. Campbell's house and office were besieged. Witness said that all the officials received a bonus except Dr. Campbell. When the relief works started in 1921 the department had a Ford car. Dr. Campbell was general supervisor of the relief works at that time and used his own motor car quite a lot in this service. He made no claim on the department for the use of the car. About one and a half million dollars, witness said, passed through Dr. Campbell's hands during the period from 1921 to 1923. An audit, witness said, was made prior to laying the charge against Dr. Campbell. He (witness) made out the cheques on instructions from the Minister or Deputy Minister, and about 4,000 of them passed through his hands.

The Crown did not call further witnesses and Mr. Howley called the accused and subjected him to a short examination in relation to his duties whilst Minister of Agriculture and Mines. Accused said he understood that the accounts of his department had been thoroughly audited since he vacated the post. In reference to the Ford car, accused said that he had to use it a good deal on relief work and in 1921 he bought a Chalmers for $2,400 out of his own account and wore it out, and repairs cost him $483, which was also paid out of his own pocket. In the 1923 election campaign he contributed $3,000 to the West End Committee and his total expenses amounted to $4,000, all of which was paid out of his private account. The hiring of Burden was a particular occasion, but witness could not recall signing the two cheques in question. Asked what he had to say to the charge of fraudulently applying the sum of $72 to his own uses, Dr. Campbell said he never had any intention, nor ever had the slightest thought of defrauding the Government. If there were anything irregular in connection with the issuing of the cheques to Bugden it was due to the stress and over-burden of the work which was placed on his shoulders.

Mr. Winter cross-examined accused after which adjournment was taken until 2.30 p.m.

Newfoundlander Killed in Detroit

Rev. R. E. Fairbairn received a message this morning stating that Benjamin Burridge of this city had been run down and killed by a motor car at Detroit, Mich., yesterday, the driver of which is unknown. Burridge was an employee of the Ford Motor Works and leaves a widow residing at No. 10 Brasill's Square, this city.

Magistrate's Court

A man from Horse Cove for causing a disturbance on the train on 18th October Inst. was convicted and fined $5.00.

Two men convicted of interfering with Const. Christopher while in the discharge of his duties were each fined $10 or in default 10 days imprisonment.

Two labourers arrested under warrant were arraigned and charged with attempting to steal from the store of the Furness Whisky Co., Ltd. on the morning of 17th October Inst. After the evidence of several witnesses had been taken there was no proof that the defendants had done any wrong, whereupon the judge dismissed the case.

A further drunk while in charge of a horse was let go with a caution.

A 17-year-old blacksmith charged with being drunk and disorderly was allowed to go under suspended sentence. It was his first appearance in court.

The case against four men charged with attempting to steal from the store of the Furness Whisky Company, goods to the value of $19.00, on 19th Inst. was dismissed for want of evidence.

Death of a Former Feild College Master

MR. WELL KNOWN IN HANCOCK COUNTY PASSED AWAY AT GOODELL.

Mr. Geo. R. Williams sends us the following clipping re the death of Professor J. D. G. Houghton, a former teacher of Bishop Feild College who has died at Goodell, Jama. Mr. Houghton was married twice to two sisters, daughters of the late Mr. John Goodridge who formerly resided at Weston Cottage, near Burton's Pond, Allandale Road.

Old Feildians will all regret his passing and tender their sympathy to his widow and family.

J. D. G. Houghton, well known in Hancock County, died at his home in Goodell on Thursday, Sept. 25, 1924, at sixty-six years of age. Mr. Houghton was well known throughout the county, having been a teacher in the public schools for thirty years. He was employed during summer months for some years as an expert accountant for the Burgett Brothers when they were engaged in drainage and engineering work, and while here acquainted himself with people of the community as a scholar of more than ordinary ability.

Mr. Houghton was born in England in 1858. He received his education in the schools in Lestershire, then entered and completed a course in Oxford university. Coming to America he took up the teaching profession and followed it for many years, first as private tutor for Sir Wm. Whitway's two sons in Newfoundland for seven years and later in Hancock county.

He was always interested in public affairs. At the time of his death he was correspondent for the Yeoman, town clerk, school secretary and justice of the peace. He had been a candidate at different times for a county office but was not successful. He was long a member of the I.O.O.F. Lodge in England and America.

Left to mourn are the wife, six sons and two daughters.

Absent Jurors

There were eleven absent jurors in the panel and an extra full summons in the case of Rex vs. Dr. Alexander Campbell. Amongst those called to the jury box one claimed exemption because the summons was served at an address where he had never lived. His objection was overruled by the court but he was subsequently challenged. Another juror before taking the oath asked if he could not be excused on the grounds that he had served on the Russell trial. The court exempted him.

An Appeal for the Eskimo Children

Mr. Claude Grevor who is doing good work teaching amongst the Eskimos at Battle Harbor and Cape Charles is anxious to have a Christmas Tree for the children. He is appealing through his friends in St. John's for help. Any toys, books or cash will be gratefully received and the monies will be well spent in bringing happiness and comfort to the little folks in the far north.

No Trace of Missing Man

A posse of police are searching the Southside Hills to-day for the man Woodford who disappeared from the Poor House. It was reported that Mr. Woodford was seen on the Southside Road on Friday last, but this could not be verified as the police traced the matter and could find no clue as to his whereabouts.

O'TOOLE SHAPING UP WELL.

Letters received in the city yesterday from Mr. John Bell, Manager of Ron O'Toole, at Halifax, send word that the local champion had three good work-outs over the course up to Friday last, and is getting in fine shape. He states the weather conditions for training out doors is not the very best. The atmosphere at times is very chilly, with occasional rain. Despite this drawback O'Toole is feeling fine and is already beginning to feel confident as to the outcome. He mounted the Arm Hill without any apparent effort, and stated that he did not mind it "one little bit." The Arm Hill referred to is a steep grade, running into the seventh mile. It takes two and a half minutes, roughly, to run over it, and is the same spot where many a good runner fell down. The runner leading the van at the Arm Hill generally wins the race. O'Toole, it might be said, is a regular demon on the upgrade and his change of noosing out the great MacAulay look very promising indeed. O'Toole, again, is mentioned in the Halifax papers as being one of the chief favorites.

TICKETS GOING FAST.

The tickets for the Halifax Marathon are going fast, and it would be a wise plan for those who have not already purchased them to do so at once. The object is to help defray expenses of the team to Halifax. Tickets are on sale in the following stores:—Cash's Tobacco Store, Trainor's, A. Wadden, P. O'Mara, H. Peddigrew, O'Mara's, Rawlins' Cross; Mrs. Foley, Hoyles-town. Only a limited number for sale.

INTER COLLEGIATE FOOTBALL.

Exciting Game Yesterday.

The first game of the second round of the inter-collegiate series was played at St. George's Field yesterday afternoon between St. Bon's and Felldians. The game proved to be a clean and hard fought exhibition, with lots of excitement, and despite the determined attacks of the opposing forwards, the ball failed to enter the desired spot, and the match was declared a draw. Mr. T. Delahanty called the players together at 4 o'clock. There was a slight breeze blowing which gave the team defending the western goal an advantage, but in spite of this, the ball was kept in general play throughout both periods, and the players exerted every effort to score, but without result. Several times they did come within an ace of scoring but the goalies were always on the alert, and successfully defended every attack.

TOMMY BURNS WILL MEET JOE BECKETT.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The famous Tommy Burns, now resident in Newcastle, has created a stir by offering to meet Joe Beckett in a bout of six rounds, each of two minutes duration. He says he knows he is a has-been, but that if Beckett does really want a come-back, he will give him the opportunity. Whether Beckett does make a reappearance or not depends on what temptation promoters can offer him. The Southampton man makes no secret of the fact that boxing is hard work, and that he has to see some money in it should he again enter the ring.

RECORD ROAD WALK.

A fine performance was recently accomplished by F. Holt, of Bradford, G.B., in a road walk from Marcombe to Bradford. This is a distance of 34 miles, the competitors being severely tried owing to the torrid heat in contrast to the wet and cold weather which had previously prevailed. Holt outlasted his rivals, and his time of 11 hours, 5 minutes, 7 seconds, was a big improvement on the record of 11 hours, 41 minutes.

HOPPE ACCEPTS SCHAEFER'S CHALLENGE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Willie Hoppe, the world's balking champion, has accepted the challenge of young Jake Schaefer to a special balking match. Hoppe outlined the conditions and said that he was ready to go to the Coast to meet Schaefer providing there were two matches of 3,200 points each instead of one of 4,000 points, as suggested by Schaefer. Hoppe also informed Schaefer that the only open dates he had on his schedule were the last two weeks in November.

Hoppe plans to leave here on Sunday for Chicago, where he meets Angie Kischkefer, in a 400 points three-cushion match, on Oct. 21, 23, 25, and 24. Following this match Hoppe will go to Detroit to oppose Gus Copoles, the Detroit representative in the three-cushion league, in a special match. In the meantime, if Schaefer accepts the champion's terms, Hoppe will start for the Coast, playing balking exhibitions en route.

BALL PLAYERS HAD A NARROW ESCAPE.

Three of the touring White Sox-Giants ball players narrowly escaped serious injury, when a taxi, in which they were driving, overturned, when rounding a corner on their way to the grounds to play an exhibition match at Quebec. The players in the motor were Bentley and Huntzinger, Giant pitchers, and Mostil, outfielder of the Sox. Bentley had his hip injured slightly and was scratched about the face, while Mostil is nursing an injured elbow. Huntzinger escaped unscratched. On rounding a sharp corner the car suddenly skidded and overturned, throwing the occupants out. Bentley, who was on the outside, acted as a soft landing spot for Huntzinger and Mostil.

S.S. Canadian Sapper sailed for Montreal at eleven o'clock last night. Returning, she leaves Montreal on the 27th inst., and Charlottetown on the 30th, for this port.

S.S. Silvia arrived at Halifax at 10 a.m. yesterday, and left to-day for New York.

S.S. Stella Maris has sailed from Sandy Point for Halifax with 63 casks of codfish, 44 cases lobsters, 969 quintals dry fish, 3 barrels salmon, 559 barrels herring, all consigned to Farquhar & Co.

S.S. Rothholm, which is now in port with a cargo of coal to A. H. Murray & Co., will, after discharging, load codfish for the Mediterranean market, taking about 18,000 quintals.

S.S. Harmony, which is now visiting the Moravian Missions, is expected to return here about the middle of next month. She will then proceed to London to lay up for the winter.

S.S. Skulda has entered at Port Union to load codfish for Alicante.

S.S. Evvia has arrived from Philadelphia, 6-1-2 days, with a cargo of coal consigned to Messrs. A. H. Murray & Company.

S.S. Lisgar County is expected to sail for Quebec and Montreal to-morrow morning. She takes a part cargo of salmon and herring.

S.S. Rosalind reached Halifax at noon to-day.

S.S. Sable I. leaves Halifax to-day for Boston.

Here and There.

GOVT. OFFICIALS ON TOUR.—Manager H. J. Russell and Chief Engineer W. J. Joyce of the Nfld. Govt. Railway were at Port aux Basques yesterday. They will return to the city by Thursday's express.

PRELIMINARY ENQUIRY.—Yesterday afternoon the preliminary enquiry into the charges preferred against Alexander Rooney was continued, when the evidence of F. Wylie, and T. Young was taken. The hearing then adjourned until Thursday next.

THE TRAINS.—Sunday's express made a splendid run across country, arriving at Port aux Basques at 6 o'clock last evening. The local from Carbonear arrived at 12.25. The express for foreign connections went out at 1 p.m. The Humber special which left here yesterday arrived at Humbermouth 6 o'clock this morning.

GROUP PHOTOGRAPHS.—Mr. Reed, the photographer from Windsor, N.S., took a panoramic photograph of the employees of Messrs. Bowring Brothers, yesterday morning on the roof of the fish store. Later in the day, Mr. Reed took a photo of the pupils of St. Patrick's Hall School.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

SCHOONER OVER THE TOP CAPTURED.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 20. The coast guard cutter Tampa to-day captured the three masted schooner "Over the Top" out of St. John, N. B., loaded with alleged whiskey and alcohol and brought the vessel to this port. It was too late in the day to unload the ship at the Custom House. The Tampa's crew to-night is guarding its prize out on the harbor. Eight members of the crew of "Over the Top" probably will be given a hearing before the United States Commissioner Mathewson to-morrow. The ship is a 300 ton vessel.

FINANCIBERS FACE SERIOUS CHARGES.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 20. Charges both of theft and conspiracy were faced by Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, and Aemilius Jarvis Sr., Aemilius Jarvis Jr., and Harry G. Peppall, President, Vice-President and General Manager of the brokerage firm of Aemilius Jarvis & Co. when their trial commenced in the Criminal Assize Court here to-day before the Chief Justice and jury.

RACIAL ANTIMOSITY CAUSES A CLASH IN MANILA.

MANILA, Oct. 20. Race feeling between Filipinos and Chinese here had so subsided to-night that Governor General Wood after a tour of the disturbed districts decided that the police could handle the situation, and said the Constabulary would not be called out unless further rioting occurred. The trouble started Saturday night when a Chinese merchant was killed by a Filipino following a business quarrel. Nearly a thousand Chinese stores were closed to-day fearing further clashes. The closing it was feared, if continued, will work a hardship on the poorer classes of Filipinos who daily buy their supplies in small quantities from the stores. The Chinese transact a large percentage of the business throughout the islands.

FRENCH PUBLISHERS INCREASE PRICE OF NEWSPAPERS.

PARIS, Oct. 20. Because of the increased price of paper and greater general expenses a meeting of French newspaper publishers to-day voted to increase the price of newspapers to twenty centimes on November 1.

LONG-DISTANCE RADIO RECORD.

GREENVILLE, Tex., Oct. 21. David Ablowich, operator of Station 5 DW here yesterday, claimed the long-distance amateur record. He said he communicated for forty miles shortly after midnight last night with a New Zealand station, 4A4. Ablowich declared this better by 400 or 500 miles of the previous record held by station G.B. 8 of Argentine.

HUNDREDS KILLED IN A FIGHT.

SAN SALVADOR, Oct. 21. Reports received here from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, are to effect that six hundred men were killed and many wounded in a battle between the Government and the Revolutionary forces at Ajuetere.

ANOTHER MEXICAN REVOLT.

NEW ORLEANS LA., Oct. 21. According to copies of El Universal, a Mexican City newspaper received here, the state of Sinaloa one of the most powerful northern states of Mexico has refused through its governor and congress to recognize the election of Plutarco Elias Calles as President of Mexico and has flung out the banner of revolt.

WET OR DRY?

TORONTO, Oct. 21. Only two questions appear on the present plebiscite ballot, 2,000,000 of which have been printed and on the answer returned hinge the fate of Ontario Temperance Act introduced by Premier Hearst in 1916 as a war measure and the question of sale of beer and spiritous liquors in sealed packages under Government control. Twenty-four hours only remain for the opposing workers who are feverishly canvassing every city, town and borough to arouse their followers, and as the hour for the test of strength approaches, the numbers of meetings have been increased by both factions. Will Ontario join ranks of western provinces and revolt from its hitherto dry policy? That is the question which can only be definitely answered Thursday evening when ballots are counted.

WOMEN ACTIVELY TAKING PART IN THE CAMPAIGN.

LONDON, Oct. 21. As the British election campaign progresses reports from many parts of the country emphasize the accuracy of one prediction, made at the outset that women would take a bigger part than ever before. Not only are 41 women Parliamentary candidates drawing big audiences, but wives, daughters and sisters of male candidates are taking to the platform in their behalf with great success, while various political organizations are finding it difficult in some cases to employ all the women volunteers anxious to join in the fight. In some populous communities women helpers have been sent out in batches of fifty or more for canvassing tours, calling at every house until the whole

BANDITS SOUND FALSE ALARM
NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Sending in a false fire alarm to draw police from the district four bandits to-day robbed the Hudson Bay Fur Company's Brooklyn store of fur coats valued at $50,000.

While the fire apparatus was clattering nearby on its way to the supposed fire, the bandits smashed the window of the store, and hurriedly loaded 40 of the best fur coats into their automobile. Then the car sped away. The noise of the fire apparatus had drowned out the crash of the window glass.

The World's Big Peat Supply

The quantity of peat available in all the peat bogs of the world is one of the items being investigated this month by the World Power Conference. This, we are told by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate (New York), is a congress of scientists gathered in London to consider what the world will do for a supply of fuel and power when the limited coal supplies now in sight have been exhausted. We read: "According to Mr. G. K. Fletcher, a well-known British engineer, the amount of peat available is enormous, quite comparable with the world's known supplies of coal. The difficulty is that the peat is wet and has to be dried before it will burn. Drying is costly. Furthermore, the dried peat crumbles and is difficult to ship and handle. A fortune awaits the genius who will find a way to dry and burn peat on a commercial scale."

A Novel Appendage
"Now, here," said the schoolmaster, "the word novelette means 'a short tale.' You may now write in your copy-books a sentence containing the word."

A few minutes later he picked up Johnny Brown's effort, and read aloud: "Yesterday I saw a fox-terrier running down our street with a tin can tied to his novelette."

Our Montreal Letter

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
AUTO THEIVING BECOMING A PASTIME.

The stealing of automobiles is becoming a pastime. The craze has affected young boys, young men, and even the sailors in port are beginning to take a hand in the affair. Some days as many as seven are stolen. Two boys of 12 and 10 years stole an auto which was left in front of the Central Y.M.C.A. on Drummond Street, and going up Park Avenue the car struck a parked auto. Immediately an officer of the law saw the youthful driver and arrested him and his companion. In the Juvenile Court the youngster told the judge that a man invited them into the car to have a drive. When the boy of twelve started the car, the man jumped out and left them "to rattle their own canoe." The car was restored to its rightful owner.

In a dark spot on the St. Vincent de Paul road, nearly half a mile beyond the Riviere des Prairies, three armed men at 12:45 in the morning held up a man who was driving into town from the country, robbed him of his auto and a number of bills. The victim was obliged to walk over a mile to report the affair at the nearest police station.

A well known restaurant on Notre Dame Street was returning to his home at Notre Dame de Grace, when five men sprang from an auto, beat him with the butt end of their revolvers, robbed him of $800 worth of money and jewelry, and then threw him in the bushes, where he was picked up some hours later and conveyed to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where he had to spend a couple of days to have his wounds dressed and recover from the shock. The car in which the thugs rode was supposed to be a stolen one, probably the one stolen on the St. Vincent de Paul Rd. Three sailors stole a car from Youville Square, and were proceeding along without lights, when two officers of the Headquarters Station met them. "Turn on your lights," shouted the officers. The seamen attempted to obey the command, but without success, and the policemen approached, and asked to see the driver's registration card. It, however, had been mislaid, and accordingly the trio were brought along to the station.

A few minutes later, Romeo Marier, 1244 City Hall avenue, telephoned the police that his automobile, a Ford touring, had been stolen from Youville Square.

A SAILOR MEETS DEATH AT HIS POST.

When the stop-valve attached to a steam pipe on board of S.S. King Gold-walsh exploded it cost John Fortis, a fireman, his life. As the Coroner's inquest it was impossible to learn what caused the accident.

When the valve was blown off Fortis and three other firemen were stoking the furnaces below the boiler room. The stop-valve where they labored was instantly flooded with blinding steam. Three of them fought their way to safety, but Fortis was overcome and died of scalding and asphyxiation.

The victim was a Portuguese African, aged 37. He had sailed for four years with the vessel in the capacity of fireman.

THE TOLL OF CANCER STILL GROWING.

While the population of the province of Quebec has increased by less than fifty per cent. in the last quarter of a century, the number of vic-times falling before the scourge of cancer has considerably more than doubled, according to figures supplied by the department of health. In Montreal alone in the past two months, ninety-four sufferers died from cancer, a figure approximating closely to the record of the "white plague" in the same period.

In this connection, the department of health sends out a warning to persons who fear that they may have contracted the malady. "See your doctor at once if you have the least suspicion. He may be able to prolong your life many years," is the advice broadcast by the department in an effort to cope with the present alarming situation.

The disease is difficult to diagnose in its earlier stages, but in many cases may be cured if discovered before it has reached malignant proportions. Many forms of cancer of the face and mouth have been arrested and cured by surgical operations, where the disease was attacked before becoming deep-rooted.

"If you suffer from loss of appetite, accompanied by indigestion and pallor of the skin consult your doctor at once," declares the health department. "The disease is not contagious; its causes have not yet been definitely traced by medical authorities. It may be hereditary but may also attack persons in whose family it has not previously made an appearance."

Statistics for the past twenty-six years as follows show the alarming proportions which the malady has reached:

1895-99	2,523 deaths
1900-04	2,952 "
1905-09	3,692 "
1910-14	4,669 "
1915-19	5,551 "
1920-21	2,000 "

IS ONTARIO SICK OF PROHIBITION?

The following editorial taken from the Kingston Canadian Freeman on Prohibition, says:

The government is to be congratulated on the clearness of the ballot to be submitted to the people of Ontario at the liquor plebiscite on October 23. The answer ought to settle this vexed problem one way or the other. Every person qualified to vote should do so. A majority decide against Prohibition, the Government can be trusted to give us the same legislation that the people desire; if a majority decide for Prohibition, the Government will be strengthened in its attempt to enforce the law.

In this connection the following editorial from the Catholic Weekly Review, America, is of interest:

We Americans are surely a great people. Few of us will deny it. We have more laws, jails, schools, and criminals, than any country in the world. Some of our laws disregard human rights as well as the physical law, and our public schools disregard the claims of God over His children; but these facts do not affect our greatness. We thank God that we are not like other people, particularly that publican star off on the border, the Dominion of Canada. But it would be well for us were we like Canada, which attests a delirium of Prohibition by law established, is gradually returning to the system of Government control.

In Canada Government control means precisely government control. In the United States, we have a contrast made possible by the Volstead law. It is that of the bootlegger and the Federal officer, fighting by day and by night, by sea and by land, a battle for control of which the outcome is still doubtful.

At present Ontario with the three small Maritime Provinces, are the sole "dry" Provinces in Canada, and in October Ontario will vote to retain or reject Prohibition. The same wholesome mixture of politics and fanaticism, which gave rise to the anti-saloon league in the United States, is active in the Province, yet it seems probable that the citizens of Ontario are veering toward the Quebec plan of Government regulation. Saskatchewan definitely abandoned Prohibition in July. As Mr. J. A. Cameron, of Montreal, pointed out in his articles on the Quebec plan published in America last April, Canadians are beginning to understand that as an aid to temperance Prohibition is a wretched failure.

In an interesting letter to the New York Times, Mr. Hamilton Butler of Regina enumerates a few of the reasons which induced his fellow-citizens to end "the farce" of Prohibition. They discovered that Prohibition should not be made to prohibit; that it violated personal liberties and created a contempt for law; that it did not promote temperance, and, finally, that "it was creating a large and influential class of hypocrites in the body politic."

The Canadians are willing to face the facts and to change their legislation when it is shown to be harmful or defective. How many years of crime and disorder must pass over our heads before we will admit the evils actually fostered by the Volstead law and similar enactments and set ourselves the task of removing them?

London's Automatic Postal Tube Service

The British Post Office Department is preparing to open for business a tube which was completed some years ago, running seventy to eighty feet below the surface of London from Paddington Station under the central portion of London to the East End in the White Chapel district a distance of six and one-half miles. The tunnels between stations are 8 feet in internal diameter and carry two tracks, each of 2 foot gauge for up and down traffic. The stations have been excavated at big junction points up to dimensions of two sections of 25 feet. A station will consist of an island platform arranged in two sections, between which will be placed a control cabin and the elevators and conveyer appliances that have been especially designed to suit the different classes of postal matter which have to be dealt with between the station platforms and the postal buildings above. According to advice received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service, the noteworthy feature of the scheme is the decision to dispense with the services of motormen on the trains and to rely entirely on a system of remote control. This method of operation has been the intention since the inception of the scheme more than ten years ago. In order to test the possibilities of various methods of automatic control, much experimental work was carried out on a specially arranged track at Woolwich. These tests gave valuable information upon which the scheme finally adopted is based. There will be steel cars, 90 in number, which may be used either singly or in trains of two or three cars, each carrying a load of 1120 pounds. The cars will be of the four wheel type, each car having two direct-current series-wound motors connected for permanent parallel operation, each with a resistance permanently in circuit. The armatures and series field coils of the motors will be energized from a conductor rail for each track. The conductor rails will be supplied at two voltages so as to give running speeds of about 8 and 35 miles an hour. The control of the train as it comes to rest at a platform or passes through a station will be such as not to require the continuous attention of the switchman. The position in the tunnels and the destination of each train will be notified to this switchman on an illuminated diagram in the control cabin at the railway stations. The switchman will then arrange to receive the train. On approaching the station, the train, if it be required to stop at the station, will pass to a braking section which is normally dead, then to sections in which the pressure of the conductor rail is reduced to give a speed of about 8 miles an hour, and finally to a dead section within the station, where the brakes will be applied automatically and the train brought to rest. At stations the postal traffic will be dealt with almost entirely by mechanical power. There will be spiral chutes for downward traffic at each station and elevators for upward traffic, and at the big stations the plans for handling traffic include the installation underneath the platform of electrically operated conveyor bands which will deliver the bucket elevators. The line capacity on a basis of a two minute headway is 45 tons an hour of postal matter in each direction. Ample provision has been made not only for present requirements but for future years.

Bobbs Old and New

We think of bobbed hair as something new. As a matter of fact it is not. No less a person than the first Napoleon set the fashion long, long ago. Napoleon liked short hair. He wore his own short, and one fine day he ordered the army to cut its hair, and the women of the court, following the pace set by the marshals of France cut their locks also.

However, the style so far as the women went did not last long, for before the Empire collapsed the French ladies of fashion had reverted to the elaborate head dress, including a great deal of their own hair added to a lot that at one period had belonged to other people. There is at least one thing to the credit of the French Revolution; it did away, banished so to speak, such refinements as long hair and wigs among the men of that country. Women of that day could if they liked wear their hair long, but such styles among men were taboo from the revolutionists' point of view. Long hair smelled of the aristocracy, and being an aristocrat, and much less advertising the fact, was not conducive to longevity in those heroic days. In England, Charles II set the fashion for long hair, the elaborate wigs, while Cromwell, whose characteristic hair cut had a hint of the severe single in it, broke the wig habit along with a lot of heads.

Thanks Gin Pills for excellent health

An ex-alderman of the city of Hamilton tells an interesting story.

"I have been unable to rest at night with pains around my kidneys and through the small of my back, at times so bad that I was unable to rise from bed without assistance. The trouble so affected my kidneys that urination was at times difficult, and at other times so frequent as to cause me great inconvenience. I started on a course of Gin Pills and before I had taken half a box I felt relief. Before I had completed the second box the pains had left my back and I felt quite restored and well again. I attribute my present excellent health entirely to Gin Pills.—J. S. Little, Hamilton, Ont.

This letter surely offers conclusive proof of the efficacy of Gin Pills.

Can you ever fail to bring relief to sufferers with aching and tendered kidneys. If you suffer from kidney trouble—if you have backaches, pain in the back, rheumatism, do not neglect Gin Pills to-day and say good-bye to your troubles.

Mt. Everest to be Attacked Once More

The victory of the world's highest mountain over human braveness will never be not to go unchallenged. The little group of English mountaineers, beaten back last summer for the third time, with the loss of two of their comrades, when within a few hundred feet of triumph, are preparing to try again. Within eighteen months, they predict, an English expedition will finally surmount the highest pyramid in the Roof of the World. Too many men have died in the recent attempts to scale the mountain to permit the acknowledgment of failure, explained General Bruce, one of the leaders of the last expedition, on his arrival the other day in Europe.

An English reporter, who met him at Marseilles on his way back to England, quotes him in this sportsmanlike challenge: "The attempted conquest of Everest has caused us so much trouble and suffering, and we have been too close to final success to abandon this project. We have left too many of our comrades on the heights, beginning with that gallant Dr. Kellas, who was the first victim, and ending with the four who died in the course of this attempt—Irvine, Mallory and two non-commissioned officers, a Gurkha and a Nepalese—to abandon the road marked already by a dozen graves. "The goal has almost been reached."

Recent photographs and diagrams, most of them published in English or French papers, show how very near the climbers came to the attainment of their goal. There is some possibility, according to the reports of the survivors, that Mallory and Irvine reached the summit before they died. At any rate, they were within a few hundred feet of it, and higher than men had ever climbed before, when last seen. Lieut-Col. E. F. Norton and Mr. Odell, fellow members of the expedition, have a good deal to say of their fate in a final summing up, sent out under a New York Times-London Times copyright, by arrangement with the Mt. Everest Committee. This dispatch, written in the shadow of defeat, runs in part, as published in the New York Times:

The expedition leaves the base camp to-morrow bound for a short period of recuperation in the Rongshar Valley, under Gaurisankar, before starting on our homeward march. The fickle weather, which has played so many dirty tricks this year, continues to be brilliantly fine, and there are indications that the monsoon has ceased for the moment, but there is no question of a resumption of hostilities on the mountain. Every one of the surviving climbers has shot his bolt.

I have before me a medical report showing that each of us has a more or less dilated heart, besides various minor disabilities. The trouble will right itself at the lower altitudes, to which we are bound, but would probably be permanent if further high climbing were attempted. This the medico, Major Hingston, definitely forbids.

We leave here with heavy hearts. We failed to establish success, for who will ever know whether the lost climbers reached the summit before the accident which, it may be assured, caused their death? The last point at which they were seen was determined by theodolite as 23,277 feet, less than 800 feet from the top. Together with the height reached by Dr. Somervell and myself which, measured by theodolite, was 23,123 feet, these constitute the world's record for climbing with and without oxygen, respectively. But the price is out of all proportion to the result.

Mr. Odell, another member of the group of expert climbers who led the expedition, tells the story of the final attempt on Everest. His narrative runs, in part:

"Colonel Norton has requested me to relate the events connected with the last climb of Mallory and Irvine, a climb in a good many aspects of which I had the advantage of witnessing during the protracted period of eleven days while setting in support at North Col, 23,000 feet. The duty of being in support from morning readiness to support at noon any exhausted member of the party on the mountain largely transformed itself into cooking and preparing meals for whatever climbers made North Col Camp a place of call. This function kept us fully occupied, particularly as all water had to be obtained by melting snow; snow which at this altitude was of an exceedingly dry and powdered variety.

"On June 6, following an early breakfast of fried sardines, joyfully acclaimed and moderately partaken of, Mallory and Irvine left North Col Camp for Camp Five, 25,000 feet, accompanied by five porters with provisions and reserve oxygen cylinder. Using oxygen, they had already ascended from the camp 2,000 feet below in two and a half hours. They were highly pleased with their performance, which seemed to augur well for the final attempt on the mountain.

"The next day they ascended to Camp Six, 27,000 feet, which had been established by Norton and Somervell in a record climb three days previously. On the same day I ascended to the supporting Camp Five. Hazard, at this time, arrived at North Col to replace me. The porters returning from Mallory that night were bearers of a hopeful message in a note which said that they had only used the minimum oxygen up to 27,000 feet, and that the weather was perfect for the job. The letter I could well appreciate, for, looking out that evening from the little ledge on which the tent was pitched at Camp Five, I saw that the weather indeed seemed most promising for the morrow.

"The situation of the camp was unique and the outlook a commanding one. Westward there was a savage, wild jumble of peaks, culminating in Cho Lya, 26,150 feet, bathed in pinks and yellows of the most exquisite tints. Right opposite were the giant cliffs of Everest, the North peak intercepting a portion of the wide Northern horizon of brilliant opalescence, which threw into prominence the outline of a mighty peak far away in Central Tibet—was it General Perceval, supposed rival to Everest? Eastward, floating in the thin air, the snowy top of Kangchenjunga appeared, and at last, beautifully varied, the outlying Gyangkar Range.

"Sunset and after, at that altitude, was a transcendent experience, never to be forgotten. At early morning of June 8, it was clear and not unduly cold at such an altitude. The two porters I had brought with me to Camp Five complained of sickness and headache, and together I was not unthankful for the excuse to send them down to Camp Four at North Col, for I especially wished to be free during an ascent I was to make for as wide a geological survey of the mountain face between Camps five and six as was possible.

"After I had started on my task, banks of cloud began to form, which, periodically immersed me in gloom, but the wind remained quite light for such an exposed ridge. Now and then there would be an accompaniment of sleet and light snow. I could see above me frequently during these squalls that there was a glow of light, indicating clearness at a higher altitude, and hoped that Mallory and Irvine were above the mist.

"At 12.50 o'clock, just after I had emerged in a state of jubilation at finding the first definite fossils on Everest, there was a sudden clearing of the atmosphere, and the entire summit of the ridge and the final peak of Everest were unveiled. My eye became fixed on one tiny black spot, silhouetted on a small snowcrest beneath a rockstep in the ridge, and the black spot moved. Another black spot became apparent, and moved up the snow to join the other on the crest. The first then approached the great rockstep and shortly emerged at the top. The second did likewise. Then the whole fascinating vision vanished.

"Enveloped in cloud once more, there was but one explanation. It was Mallory and his companion, moving, as I could see, even at that great distance, with considerable alacrity, realizing, doubtless, that they had none too many hours of daylight to reach the summit from their present position and return to Camp Six at nightfall.

"The place on the ridge mentioned is a prominent rockstep at a very short distance from the base of the final pyramid, and it was remarkable that they were so late in reaching this place. According to Mallory's schedule, they should have reached it several hours earlier if they had started from the high camp as anticipated. That they had encountered bad conditions and snow-covered rocks and other obstacles was likely, however. In my opinion, from the position in which they were last seen, they should have reached the summit at 4 p.m. at the latest, unless some unforeseen and particularly difficult obstacle presented itself.

"On the final pyramid this seemed to be very unlikely, for we had scrutinized the last slope with telescopes and binoculars, and had seen that, technically, climbing was easy. Perhaps the most likely explanations of their failure to return were a fall or inability to reach camp before darkness set in. I rather incline to the latter view, and consider it very probable that they were sheltered in some recess in the rocks, and fell asleep, and a painless death followed, due to excessive cold at these altitudes.

"After a brief glimpse of the party above described, I continued up to Camp Six, which was reached just as a rather severe blizzard started. I whistled and yodelled through the driving sleet to give the returning party the right direction, but soon realized that, in the point of time, it was a worthless task, for they would still be beyond hearing, even if they were returning. Perhaps they were right above the blizzard in the sunshine. Within two hours the storm had blown over and the whole north face was bathed in sunshine. I searched the upper crag for another glimpse of the party, but nothing could be seen.

"In accordance with the earlier arrangements, suggested by Mallory himself, I returned to North Col and, with Hazard, kept watch till late for signs of the returning party. As they had not returned on the morrow, it was assumed that perhaps they were still sleeping at Camp Six, having reached it at a late hour the night before. But we were unable with field-glasses to detect any movement around the distant tent.

"At noon I decided to ascend to Camp Five, stay the night, and proceed to Camp Six the next day to ascertain if they had returned and whether help was needed in consequence of some mishap. After a very cold night I pushed on to Camp Six, this time carrying with me oxygen apparatus, and also provisions for the missing party. I reached the tent of the camp in the afternoon, only to find everything as I had left it two days previously, and as Mallory and Irvine had left it on the morning of their climb. Leaving the tent, I climbed some distance and worked out on a long face in the direction of their route, searching for some clue. "But what hope was there on such a vast mountain face? Weeks of diligent search by a party fully equipped for work at that altitude might not unravel the mystery.

"At length as the day was drawing to a close, I reluctantly gave up the search and signaled down to Hazard at North Col, over 2,000 feet, below, that no trace could be found. Closing up the tent, and leaving it with the last relics of our lost companions, I made my way down the North Ridge, having, now and then, to take shelter behind the rocks from the violent and bitterly cold west wind."

$2,500,000 of Cash Dividends.—
Boston News Bureau Oct. 20th)
BOSTON—The usual quarterly dividend of $3 per share declared Monday directors of the Gillette Safety Razor Company will be the last on the stock which is to be declared three months hence will be payable on 2,000,000 shares of stock which will be outstanding after the stock distribution Dec. 1.

Aug. 1 the demand for cars has progressed so vigorously that despite the greatest production ever attained the company is oversold by a large number of cars.
A healthy aspect in the steadiness of demand all over the country. Even in districts where general business is below normal and in agricultural regions that have been experiencing difficulties for several years, dealers of this company are receiving a large volume of orders.

(From our Boston Correspondent, October 19th, 1924)

MARKET LETTER.

With the subsidence of the business boom early in 1923, a great deal of comment was to the effect that the manufacturing capacity of the country was considerably in excess of requirements. It was pointed out that this excess of manufacturing capacity had been built to take care of a large foreign demand for goods. That demand having been lost, there was supposed to be nothing for our industrial plants to do except to operate on part time. And part time operations are not profitable. The increase in industrial operations which commenced in the latter part of 1923 and continued through the first nine months of the current year, to be followed by a decline in business activity—which was one of the sharpest ever experienced—made the theory seem still more plausible. The belief is now widely held that the prospect for business in this country is not good, on account of manufacturing capacity being in excess of consumptive capacity, and that the rise which has occurred in the stock market may properly be termed a security price inflation. It is impossible to read comment on our business situation without finding constant reference to the ability of the country's plants to produce more goods than can be consumed. It is a relief to find an expert opinion expressing a different view. The Brookline Economic Service does so in a recent bulletin.

That service makes the point that the prevalent opinion, which holds productive capacity to be too high in comparison with consumptive capacity, to allow a period of prosperity, starts with the assumption that the economic condition of the past two years will continue to prevail. But any given set of conditions is never a fixture. Domestic conditions are not the same now as they were in the business upswing which terminated early in 1923. Comparison of per capita consumption of basic materials show that when their production was making new records

The Shape of a Tornado
The tornado that destroyed Lorain, Ohio, was over a mile wide when it struck that city. Its area gradually contracted until, when it passed off, it was only about five hundred feet across. This is explained by C. C. Miller, city engineer of Lorain, in a report made for The Engineering News-Record (New York), as due to the fact that the damaged area represented a cross-section of a gradually rising funnel. The whirling vortex sprang into the air as it swept over Lorain until finally only its narrow tip was engaged in the work of destruction. Says the paper named above:

"The tornado was of the usual funnel shape; it had a breadth of some 6,000 feet at the western limits of the city and only 500 feet at the eastern limits. Uniform contraction of the width occurred, judging from waste done, between the east and west ends of Lorain. Though the magnitude of the tornado can be traced by following the path of destruction, Mr. Miller reports that no structural facts concerning tornado damage are possible, for what was proven in one block was disproven in the next, and that, as most of the buildings destroyed were residential, these were either blown from their foundations by the direct thrust of the wind or 'exploded' because they lay within the vacuum areas of the tornado, or were lifted vertically."

Parts of Mr. Miller's report follow:
"There is no other conceivable shape which would leave a path 6,000 feet wide at the western limits of the city, and 500 feet wide at the eastern limits, which path uniformly contracted between the two points. And there is no way that a funnel-shaped tornado would leave such a path without gradually rising or falling in the direction, respectively, of the smaller or larger area."

"After surveying the types of fall-outs it is found that, in general the exploding buildings lay both along the center line of the storm and along the outer edges. This would seem to indicate a vacuum extending through the center of the whirling mass of air and one immediately outside of the whirling mass."

"The houses in the westerly section of the city were moved practically all in the same direction. This is due to the large diameter of the storm at this point. On the easterly side of the city, where the diameter was small, the 'tail' of the tornado alone was the effective part. Here the buildings were moved in nearly every direction."

"The proof that the storm was a whirling mass of air is shown by the fact that furniture and smaller buildings were first thrown to the north and immediately houses and buildings were demolished by a stronger wind coming from the north. The wind moving in the same direction as when moving in the same direction as the storm, was very much more intense than when the wind traveled in a direction opposite to that of the storm."

CHANDLER MOTOR.
Earned $1 a Share in Third Quarter.—
Boston—Despite its Chandler Motor shares to close to 30 has given rise to rumors that the $3 annual rate put in force at the September directors' meeting was not being currently cashed and that suspension of payments was likely at the December meeting. Neither rumor appears to be a fact. The third quarter Chandler earned better than $1 a share on its 250,000-share capital, or between $275,000 and $300,000 for the period. The dividend in August was more than in previous months and last month's pace is being maintained this far this month.

In the first half-year Chandler earned $3.00 a share, or practically what it paid out in dividends. For the second half-year it expects to repeat its performance, and its disbursements, which it is to do, will be a minimum balance of $1.50, the dividend total. As a percentage of the needed amount, the balance of $1.50, the dividend total, has already been realized, the expectation seems reasonable.

Shipments in September were not far from 1000 cars, and promise to be as large this month. Although this is no particular achievement for Chandler, with a capacity of twice this figure, it is considered satisfactory under present conditions and it is all that had been hoped for.

On Saturday, Mrs. Marcus bought her Sunday's dinner at her butcher's. It was just an ordinary, fat, nice looking, spring chicken, to all appearance just like all the rest. Mrs. Marcus paid $1.23 for her purchase, and on cutting it open got her money back in addition to an extra two cents. "It was such a young one, too. very clear, but what he did was to hide it in the vaults of St. Paul's, Covent Garden.
Meanwhile, as evidence that the Government's orders had been obeyed, he purchased a stock of old metal and made a quantity of knives and forks, which he declared were mounted with bronze taken from the statue of the executed King. It was a fine stroke of business. The Royalists and the Parliamentarians were equally keen bidders for them, the one in order that they might be sacred mementoes, and the other in order to keep them as symbols of triumph.
The imposture was not discovered until the Restoration, when the surrender of the statue was demanded, first by Weston's heir and then by the House of Lords. The wily bragger, however, contended that he had paid for it and that it was his property, and he resolutely refused to give it up. The Sheriff of London was put on his track, but it was not until several years later, after what must have been an obstinate struggle, that Rivett said he was "presenting" the statue to the reigning King.

Le Seour's instruction, when he was casting the horse, was to make it bigger than a great horse by a foot, the rider to be in proportion. It is always regarded as a fine piece of work, and so also is the pedestal on which it stands, the carvings on this being by Grinling Gibbons.
It was erected in 1674 on the spot which it still occupies, and where only a few years earlier the regicides had been beheaded, a spectacle witnessed by Pepys. Here also, until 1647, had stood the old Charing, or Eleanor Cross.

London's Oldest Statue
Remarkable History of the Charles I. Monument.
Which is the oldest statue in London apart from those of historic interest in Westminster Abbey?
Certainly a good claim could be made out for that of Charles I. in Trafalgar Square. For exactly 250 years this regal horseman has been gazing down Whitehall, and it is an anniversary that should be noted by the faithful friends of the Stuart cause who still remain with us, and who annually lay their wreaths around this memorial of the "Martyr King."
The statue itself was forty years old when it was placed in position. It was cast in 1633, in the old Bellinew Close, by Hubert Le-Sueur, a Frenchman, who received £600. Lord Treasurer Weston commissioned it in order that it might adorn his Roehampton Gardens, but it never went there, because Weston's royal master was soon in the thick of his losing battle with his Parliament. In their ruthlessness to destroy every trace of the Stuart regime, the Commonwealth Government sold the monument to a Holborn brasser, a man named Rivett, for a "song." They gave him explicit instructions that it must be broken up. Now, whether Rivett was an ardent loyalist or a cunning rogue may not be

Hams and Bacon

Have advanced a good deal in price the past few weeks in sympathy with the strong PORK MARKET, and we would not be surprised to see still higher quotations ruling while the present "bullish" market continues.

Fortunately we "got in" on our supplies before the recent "jump" in prices, and in order to share the benefits of our lucky "buy" with our customers, we shall continue selling our popular "Berkshire" brand of HAMS and BACON for a limited time at our usual narrow margin of profit.

"BERKSHIRE" HAMS average 12 to 14 lbs. each.

"BERKSHIRE" BACON average 6 to 8 lbs. each.
