DR. WILD'S, IDEAS O ETHE ORIGIN OF SIN AND OF ITS 1 ENISHMENT.

How sin is Accounted to About Ever-lasting Punishment. E's Responsi-bility—When the Judge ht will Take Place—Hell and the Heathen. The Bond street church was unable to hold the crowds that surrounded the doors last evening, a large number being turned away for want of room. The text for the sermon was chosen from the 10th verse of the 5th chap. of 2nd Corinthians: For we must all aprear before the judgment seat of Christ that everyone may receive the things done in his oddy according to that he hath done, whether is be good or bad.

The do stor commenced his discourse by remaring that four distinct reasons have bee a given for the origin of sin in the world : First, that sin is the result of a divine pre-arrangement, the reason of which is found in the elective will and pleasure of the creator. This, however, implicates the divine being by making him find a pleasure. in evil. The second reason is that sin is irresistible-once in existence, forever so. This is an over-statement that does not credit the divine with his own prerogative. A third reason is that sin is the normal and natural state of man. This is also an ex treme statement, and accounts for sin by a defect in creation. The last reason is that sin exists by divine permission, and origin-ated in the creature by reason of his endowments and freedom.

This is the true and consistent one. Sin is made a possibility and a remedy is provided. I prefer to err on mercy's side, if need be; to have a God more loving than a remedy is a consistent one of the prefer to err on mercy's side, if need be; to have a God more loving than the consistency of the prefer to errors. sa age; more good than wise; more merciful than powerful. Through most of the reasons you can see a cowardly spirit. The Calvanist blames God; the Armenian blames the devil, and man himself is spared. Of the two I would rather lay the blame on the devil, although I question if he has anything to de with it.

All acknowledge, though, that sin is wrong and that but they then meekly set aside the verdict and say that God will not punish anybody, while they acknowledge that the courts of earth execute the judgments of the magistrates. Yet they say "there is no hell. Keep quiet. There's a loose court in heaven!" Will you impeach the integrity of heaven! Will you dare, if there are ten thousand hells, to say that God who judges sin is careless in the execution of his judgments? If you do, you say it against everything IT DESERVES PUNISHMENT, If you do, you say it against everything that is true and reasonable. You would not like to see out courts on such a basis. Berate the court of earth if you wish to, but keep stability and fidelity of execution for God and heaven.

guilt by peculiar sacrifices. Two-thirds of the people of the world believe in the trans-migration theory—that a man is advanced for good deeds done and set back a few for good deeds done and set back a few stages for evil performed. The society for the prevention of cruelty to animals was started by a donation of $200,000 from a man who believed that some of his friends might be changed into animals of some kind on account of their evil lives, and consequently he wished that they should be free from cruelty and harm. All believe that wrong should be punished. The Jews said, $4 An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth. In the palace of Nebuchadnezzar a tooth. In the palace of Nebuchadnezzar a tooth. When the trump of the archangel is blown and the dead in Christ shall rise and all are changed in the twinkling of an eye, what a sight! The judgment day will be a solemn occasion, because we are to stand to be judged—to stand with all the world from Adam to the last man. The annual meeting of the Masonic hall trust board was held on Friday night in the reception room of the Toronto street hall. All the lodges were represented except St. John's, Rehoboam and Ionic. The annual report showing the state of finances and the condition of the property of the board was read and adopted. The report shows that the affairs of the trust are managed with economy, that all the furniture in the Blue hall is now in an excellent state of repair, and that the interests of the lodges forming the board are carefully looked after. Officers elected: president, J. THE MAYORALTY QUESTION.

Mr. A. R. Boswell was formally declared mayor of Toronto at Osgoode hall on Saturday morning by Mr. Dalton, Q.C., before whom the recount was held. Counsel on both sides were present to hear the decision, n giving which Mr. Dalton entered at length into the disputed question of allowing ballots marked with single straight lines. He held that there was no substanlines. He held that there was no substantial difference between the Canadian and English acts, and on common sense grounds as well as following the precedent of the highest court in England he decided that these ballots were admissable. This decision added eleven votes to those for Boswell and three to those for Withrow. The ballots with a cross opposite the words "For Mayor" were disallowed on the ground that the marking left it uncertain for which candidate the vote was intended. The votes for Boswell were increased by 16, and those for Withrow by 5. Of the 201 ballots submitted to the judge, 98 have been allowed for Boswell, 48 for Withrow. The result therefore is: 4298 for Boswell, 4286 for Withrow, giving a majority of 12 for for Withrow, giving a majority of 12 for the mayor. The spoiled ballots were not entered into, Mr. Dalton being of opinion that they could not affect the position.

DUBLIN, Jan. 27 .- Brady, Kelly, Han lon, Dwyer and Kavanagh appeared in court to-day, charged with conspiracy to murder Juror Field. The court room was crowded and carefully guarded. Alice Carroll, aged 17, deposed that on the evening of Nov. 27 she saw a car with passen gers and a driver stop in Hardwicke street. Three men got off, Two were Kelly and Brady. She saw them follow Field, whom Brady stabbed. She saw the glitter of a sword-cane or dagger. The two other men were behind Brady. When Field fell, he was again stabbed by Brady or Kelly. The three men then drove off. Kavanagh was the driver. Witness positively identiwas the driver. Witness positively identified Brady, Kelly and Kavanagh. Witness said an accidental conversation with a policeman caused her examination. She did not inform in consequence of the reward of £500. She saw Brady stab Field in the breast or face. The prisoners smiled at the evidence and joked. The girl refused to go on the witness stand. The next witness also refused. They were examined from a side bench. SANDWICH, Jan. 27-The murder of Wm Maher, the man decoyed to Windsor for the purpose of visiting his escaped convict terday. Facts as they become known show that the two men who plotted the robbery of Maher acted with the most deliberate cunning to extort from him all the money they could possibly obtain, under the plea that they were the friends of his boy. The inquest was begun before Coroner Casgrain at Sandwich yesterday, at which it was developed that Maher was pushed in at the door of the house of a colored man named Williamson near Sandwich. He being in a stupefied condition, Williamson thought him drunk and brought him into gaol on a sled. Here he was cared for as well as possible, but and brought him into gaol on a sled. Here he was cared for as well as possible, but soon died. It is the opinion of Drs. Coventry, Mack and Mignault, who made the post mortem examination, that the liquor given Maher was drugged and that he died from the effects of the drugging. The stomach has accordingly been removed and sent to Toronto for chemical analysis, pending which a verdict will not be reached, though the taking of evidence will be concluded in two or three days. The post mortem examination did not reveal any cause for death, and there is little doubt that the cause will be found in the stomach. At the conclusion of the autopsy the body was delivered up to friends of deceased and taken home to Detroit. Even its immediate consequences cannot be divined. The resignation of the cabinet exhibits a catastrophe which

OUR GOVERNORS-GENERAL. When Lord Beaconsfield appointed the Marquis of Lorne governor-general of Canads, he doubtless thought, besides finding a befitting position for one wedded to royalty, he was conferring a benefit and an honor upon the dominion. Perhaps, too. he had some wild idea of establishing, what the French failed to do in Mexico, throne in Canada. The result has proved disastrous; scarcely so much so as Napo leon's attempt to make Maximilian a king, but still disastrous. It has enabled unprincipled correspondents to scatter lies about our country and our people. In some letters we have seen, we are represented as untutored savages, as barbarians. In others our country is declared unfit to live in, our thermometer ranging away below zero the whole year round. Unfortunately his Moscow was the last great instance of a some extent been the innocent cause of these reports, has also by her actions lent

The World has been charged with being disloyal, with finding, as an Ottawa contemporary puts it, "British connection an intolerable burden." If to be loyal to our country is to be disloyal, then are we most disloyal. We have no enmity toward British connection, but we have no sympathy with a shoddy aristocracy; we have no wish to see a court at Ottawa, or even the pretence of one. We are a plain, blunt, honest people, and we want plain, honest rulers, without veneer. We have confidence in ourselves and in our country's future. We feel and know that no misrepresentations of newspaper writers-even if the dirty bird that tries to foul our nest claims the same birthplace as ourselves-can do us as a nation any permanent harm; but where there is But the actual expense and cost of war is be sent us from across the seas, and with And so tremendous is the expense of modthe additional advantage of knowing what ern war appliances and war methods, that leaves by foolish women and hailed as a Canada desires and requires. We can say Europe's armed peace to-day costs more hero by weak and morbid-minded men ectionn. While we respect that flag that has flaunted so long to the battle and the breeze, we recognize the fact that we have grown up into manhood, that with manhood comes greater responsibilities, and that to properly assume those responsibilities we require greater freedom. Among other things we require a voice in the choice of our own ruler, and the unfettered and ntrammelled control of his expenditures.

A WORD ABOUT LOTTERIES.

Charles Lamb tells of a man who, passing a lottery office on Ludgate Hill, saw the number of a ticket held by him posted as the winner of £20,000. The man was naturally terribly elated, and in order to calm his feelings took a walk around St Paul's churchyard before presenting his ticket for payment. On his return the number had been changed. The figures had been wrong. The author of Elia and Eliana envies that man's feelings during his short stroll around the churchyard.

It is doubtless pleasant to feel, even for a few minutes, that you are the happy possessor of an independent fortune, and doubtless each of the holders of the hundred thousand tickets in the masonic lottery feels that he has at least a claim to the main capital prize. He forgets that the chances are ninety-nine thousand to one against him as he lovingly handles the little piece of paper that entitles him to a draw from the wheel. What is more, he forgets he is engaging in an illegal transaction.

Now, as a body, we have the greatest respect for the order of freemasons. In their sphere they do an immense amount of good. They minister to the sick, comfort the afflicted, and aid the orphan and the widows. All these things are most laudable, but even they do not warrant an offence against the law. If a thief or swindler were to hand over all his nefarious gains to the starving, few at least would be found to argue that the means justified the end. In a like manner it is illogical to contend that because the masons are a useful and beneficent element in society they are abandoning the expensive fallacy of free warranted in breaking the law of the countrade in railways and adopting a thoroughtry. They are not, and we are sorry to see going system of government control, at least such an eminent body giving their sanction to a lottery. Such things are strictly forbidden, and even at this moment a firm gain immensely by putting a stop to the of tea dealers are being prosecuted in this needless waste of railway war-by cutting city for offering prizes to purchasers of their off the expense of mere fighting, leaving teas. The two members in question, however, have neither party nor principles. By their amendments he opposition have given these self-styled ndependents every opportunity to express themselves, but they have as regularly shirked the divisions. Once Mr. McAllister voted in favor of the crown lands policy of the government ; once Dr. Kincaid voted for the six months' hoist to Mr. Bell's proposal to elect separate school trustees by pallot. West Peterboro' and North Renfrew have been made ridiculous by the nonaction of these so-called representatives. Fortunately neither will come back to the

THE WASIE OF RAILWAY WAR, Leaving aside loss of life, the waste and deodds. In ancient war large tracts of conn. try were laid waste, and populous cities which would not be repeated in any civilized country to-day. "They are indeed Scythians," said Napoleon, speaking of the Russians, when he saw that they had set fire to their beloved city rather than allow it to harbor an invader. But the French would not destroy Pares, nor the English burn London, if in similar straits, In invading army, was neither burnt nor batand civilized fashion ransomed with money. And Alison, the historian, says truly enough that should the contingency ever arise, Loudon with all its wealth would surely surrender to a conquering invader rather than stand a siege. There is not in modern war such destruction of cities as there was so frequently in ancient times. immeasurably greater, on the whole. At the bombardment of Alexandria great guns noney and money's worth than actual war did in the time of Caesar or Alexander. It is not; however, the war of sword and guo, with all its enormous waste, of which we would now speak. In our time, and on this continent, we have what is called railway war; and a very costly kind of war it is too. The cost falls upon the competing compan-

These two posters are at war with each other, and the cost of the war has to come out of the Canadian people at last. The cost of merely building tracks and running trains is legitimate enough; if that were all we had to pay nobody need grumble. But we have to pay in addition what it costs for the sheer, needless waste of war between the two hostile powers. THE Canada Pacific railway we were dian territory, and run for and by Canadians. But what are the facts; why, that first of all the national tariff was knocked down to allow the syndicate to bring in all their supplies free of duty. The effect of this is that the rails are all made in England, and most of the engines and cars in the United States. To the Canadians it is the happy privilege of finding the money to pay therefor. Even the printing is done in New York: the new maps and pamphlets for distribution to emigrants bear the imprint of the American bank-note company, New York. And now the stock is being offered to foreigners; and where the stock is there the control is.

MR. Monk's amerdment to the game bill The waste of war is an old subject, in the legislature having been defeated, there is unfortunately no time before the struction of property and the means of adjournment for the agitation and adoption living caused by war is enormous. Whether of something more practicable and feasible, this be greater in ancient or modern times. What is wanted is not a law imposing a may perhaps be debated; but we should say licence on shootists, but an act prohibiting that it is greater in modern times by all the exportation of game from Canada by persons other than legitimate dealers. THE climax has, been reached in the lenient treatment of Frank James, the notorious outlaw and murderer, in Missouri. INNOCENTS ABROAD. How Mark Twain Came to Write Hi

Book and Make His Fortune. A veteran Washington correspondent writing of 1868 69 says: At that time we all did our work in our rooms, and when one of us got tired we went to the room of one of the others. If the other fellow was working hard he snubbed the visitor, if he was idling he welcomed him. At Twain's room, however, the visitor was always welcome, for by nature Twain is so lazy that he will not work if there is an excuse for loaf-ing. He had a little book room that was a novelty, a museum, a hermit's cave, a den for a wild animal, and the wild animal was there. In this room Clemens wrote his "Innocents Abroad." I wish you could see i te-day, in the light of Mark Twains present reputation and his half million of money. I am rather hardened now, but I remember it shocked me at the time.

The little drum stove was full of ashes, running over on the zinc sheet, which was covered all over; the bed seemed to be unuade for a week, the slope, had not been made for a week, the slops had not been carried out for a fortnight, the room was sour with tobeces smoke, the floor, dirty-enough to begin with was littered with newspapers, from which Twain had cut his letters. Then there were hunlreds of pieces of torn manuscripts which had been written and then rejected by the author. A dezen pipes were about the anarthent, on the at present. It has come to this, that our whole railway system is owned or practically controlled by two great companies—the Grand Trunk and the Canada Pacific.

The object of this statement is evidently and then rejected by the author. A upzer have effect. Referring to W. G. George's statement when in this city that he took but little exercise when in preparation for a race, that he did not change his diet and that he did not exercise any closer restrictions than useful in the matter of stimulants, the Turf, Field and Fahm rises to remark: "The members of the athletic clubs here in New York who called upon George at his training quarters will tell every one who asks them that the English annateur did practice abstinence and train for his series of races with Myers. This fact is so well-established that we do not care to waste words upon it. After his return to England George did not attempt to contradict the stat ments of his associates that he had preper d, had trained for his contests with the American champion. Such being the case why should George have tried to convey the impression at Toronto that he vanquished Myers without training? Was it with the object of belittling his opponent, of sneering at his pretentions? After coming back to New York fom Toronto George did not exercise a very close restriction in he matter of stimulants taken," Ind the result of his lack of training and abstinence was humiliating defeat at his favorite distance, ten miles, by a boy of whom the public up to that time had heard but little, Whether he is a believer in a rigid system of true ing or not, three who know George well, at least, acquit him of any desire to belittle Myers or his other opponents. He always accorded them their full measure of praise.

The British Medical Journal says that considerable commotion has been caused in the beer-drinking world by a statement that, owing to the scarcity of hops, such articles as columba root, chamomile, quassia and chiretta are likely to be largely used in producing "the flavor dear to the consumer of bitter beer." The Journal thinks it unnecessary for the great brewers to declare so emphatically that they will use hops only, as there is nothing in the substitutes mentioned that would prove otherwise than beneficial to the beer drinker.

THE CLERICAL LIBEL CASE.

Further Hearing of the Matter Befo

The libel case of Rev. Dr. W. J. Hunter against John W. Campbell and David Edwards came up again on Saturday at the police court. The court room was densely crowded. Mr. N. G. Bigelow, counsel for defendant Edwards, offered to disclose the name of defendant's informant and pay the costs of the court if necessary. To this the plaintiff's counsel, Dr. McMichael, consented upon a full apology being published in the Public Criticism, which is as follows: in the Public Criticism, which is as follows:

In reference to the charges against the Rev. Dr.

W. J. Hunter in issue of paper of 23d instant, we desire to say that (1) we have not made any of the charges as of our own information and are not able of our own knowledge to say that they are true;
(2) the statement of facts were given to us by Mr.
John W. Campbell; (3) assuming at the time the truth of these statements, we made reflections upon Rev. Dr. Hunter which would not otherwise have been made; (4) we made the statements as public journalists and we had no personal feeling in the matter.

The statement has been made that Gen Chanzy's widow will receive from the French government, in addition to a pension, a grand bureau de tabue. Not only is the growth and manufacture of tobacco under state control, but the sale of it is equally so. Only a certain number of the shops for the retail of tobacco are permitted, and they must be sufficiently for anart from and they must be sufficiently far apart from each other to make the proprietorship of one substantially remunerative. The bureaux de tabac in France are bestowed upon servants in reduced circumstances, and more frequently still upon their widows. They are however the cause of much intriguing, and the enemies of the government often dis-cover, or think they discover, a scandal in a tobacco shop. The system usually adopted by those who are so fortunate as to obtain a bureau de tabae in a good situation is to employ others to look after the business, while reserving to themselves the disposal of the profits.
