Canada's Forest Wealth.

The North-eastern Lumberman says: "The forests of Canada have supplied more or less the wants of Europe for centuries. From the earliest days of its occupation by the French, the forest wealth of the country washed by the St. Lawrence engaged the attention of the government of France, who saw therein vast resources available for their naval yards. They drew from these forests large numbers of masts and spars, and issued stringent regulations for the preservation of the standing oak. When the country was first ceded to Great Britain, but little attention was paid at first to its vast timber supply, owing to the fact that almost the whole of the Baltic trade was carried on in British bottoms, and that the timber of northern Europe provided an unfailing and convenient return freight for the shipping thus engaged. When, however, the troubles of the Napoleonic era companied and thus engaged. When, however, the troubles of the Napoleonic era commenced, and especially when the Continental blockade was enforced, the timber supplies of the Baltic becoming uncertain and insufficient, attention was directed to the North American colonies, with the result of increasing the quantity of timber which reached Great Britain from 2,600 tons in the year 1800 to 125,300 tons in 1810, and to 308,000 tons in 1820. In 1895 the amount exported to the 1820. In 1895 the amount exported to the United Kingdom showed a total of 1,310,685

Her Theft of a Wheel and Flight to Arcadia.

We discussed it many times after the weary day was over, and the morrow promised but another as weary. We saw before us vacation, and Arcadia. Tommie said you could find it on a wheel; and finally he persuaded me. My persuasion was complete the third day out. To be sure, we had not yet found Arcadia, but we had the flavor of some good health already, and were hopeful when we least expected it we should cross the boundary. The road had gained our spirits. We knew already why gypsies persist in the gypsying; why the most enter-taining pages in Wilheim Meister and in Kenelm Chillingly are those where the her-

I followed his eyes, and saw by our wheels, a bit of sunlight on her face, a most charming young woman, wearing one of thos mirable achievement of the modiste. She was young, I say, and blonde; and she was iling to herself and looking our wheels over. One she raised, and before we even ancied it, vaulted in the saddle as easily as any boy, tearing around a curve and out of

"Well, I'll be hanged," said Tommie. "I hope she'll bring it back," said I. 'Particularly as its my wheel," said Ton But in the road we could see no trace of her; Tommie's wheel likeshe had vanished.

"Get on yours and catch her," said Tom "Oh, she'll bring it back. She wasn't-"Yes she was—"

"Where does this road lead?" "Nowhere," said the rustic. "Don't you live here?" asked Tommie. "Since I was born," said the rustic. "Then where the deuce will this road bring us to?" I asked impatiently. "That depends on where ye'r goin'," remarked the rustic practically.

"Oh, Lord!" said Tommie. "I've a notion to pound this fool." The rustic looked frightened and retreat "We want to go anywhere to find the olen wheel," said I. "This 'ere road goes to Arcadia," said he.

"Who said I wanted her to like me?"

"Your manner—you conceited ass."
"You are the conceited ass, Tommie; for you think you have made an impression." "Well, now that you mention it, I hope I may have." "And that I hadn't?" "Well, yes," Tommie answered honestly.

—In consideration of the valuable services which Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe rendered in bringing about the emancipation of the slaves, it has been proposed that a monument be erected to her memory by the colored people of the United States. This would be in keeping with the wonderful penny subscription given by the "Women of England," rich and poor alike, which brought to the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" a thousand gold guineas on a silver salver. A poor blind woman, whose cottage the collectors were about to pass by, supposing she would know nothing of the book, exclaimed: "I know 'Uncle Tom's Cabin." My son has read it to me, and I have my penny saved. "You think you can by being disagreeselves that moot question, which way will make the more impression on a girl like that-flattery or brutal frankness.' "We may break her heart," said I, resolved that I, not he, should do the breakage.
"She'll look out for that," Tommie said.

"Or she may break ours." I commented.

read it to me, and I have my penny saved for you." If this plan for a monument is carried out there will be many a penny saved in many a cabin for the purpose. "We'll risk that," said Tommie. "We may end by disliking each other," I went on. "Oh, if I lose, I'll hold it against you," "But I may against you," I said. "Such a Tom-boy sort of a girl, too!" said

Have you ever heard of a medicine with such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla? Don't you know that Hood's Sarsaparilla, the One True Blood Purifier, has proved, over and over again, that it has power to cure, even after all other remedies fail? If you have impure blood you may take Hood's Sarsaparilla with the utmost confidence that it will do you good. Hood's Pills assist digestion. 25 cents.

-THE silver question still continues to ingross the attention of our cousins across the border and the first commercial ripple resulting therefrom which has reached us arrived on Monday last, when the chartered banks of the Maritime Provinces began discounting all American currency five per cent. Such a step is likely to reduce the circulation of American money in this country and probably altogether exclude it from the banks, as no one will care to suffer such a high rate of discount. Merchants, therefore, will not handle it as freely as before, so that parties handle it as freely as before, so that parties up among the leaders of her profession both as a technician and as an interpreter of classical music. Silver is all right, but like fire, it must be kept under control. Make its limit as a legal tender not to exceed ten dollars, as we do here in Canada, and it is good money; but give it free swing and people will at once want to know if the intrinsic value is there before taking it in payment of large amounts.

Candidate Bryan is evidently not afraid to discuss the silver question and seems to be sincere in his belief that the unlimited coinage of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will cause of the metal at the old ratio of 16 to 1 will among the leaders of the profession both as at technician and as an interpreter of class and harderson, says the St. John or he will am Anderson, says the St. John or he lifted the rear part of the hook and ladder the violing in New York and has been for some time having large amounts on hand may exper-

Not so the financiers of our country, however, and the safeguard is already being cautiously applied. A meeting was addressed by Bryan in New York last week, at which he was asked to answer some very cunningly devised questions that appeared to shake the very foundations from under the silver platform. His speech in reply delivered before the gold magnates of the arguments in favor of unlimited coinage. Sad Drowning Accident.

-Atlantic Weekly: The crop reports this year are of a most encouraging kind. None of the returns fall more than a very few points below a full crop. Hay will be more than an average, and so will oats, while the fruit crop is immense, probably the largest on record. This fact, coupled with the possibility of dear fruit in England promises well for our Nova Scotian farmers. With good fisheries, good crops, and a good year in the mines the little province "down by the sea" will enjoy a degree of prosperity which compares more than favourably with countries where wheat sells for forty, barley eleven, and oats ten cents per bushel. The young men of this country who run away with the idea that gold dollars grow on the wheat stalks of the west, should try a season there and then invest in fruit lands in their own province. They would then see where the dollars grew. Nova Scotia is all right.

—Canada is making a great record in the sporting world this year. Within a few weeks the Canadian yacht Glencarin won the international race for half-raters in competition with England, Ireland and Scotland; later the Canadian of the world over England's champion four; and more recently, at Shoeburyness, our artillery team beat the strong est British team in Derry's contest and captured also the Marquits of Londonderry's cup.

There doesn't appear to be anything very wrong with Canada and Canadians along these lines, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Laurier is premier.

—East London is suffering terribly from —East London is suffering terribly from an extremely defective supply of water. There has been a dry spell in England. The sources of supply for London are miserably inadequate—far inferior to the supply for Glasgow, Liverpool, and other cities. Quite likely the present distress will lead to a much needed change of system. London ought to get her supply from the Welsh lakes.

Weymouth, Aug. 16.—Fire started shortly after nine c'clock this evening in the unco-had just finished the purchase of the property from Parker & Eakins, Yarmouth, and was a much needed change of system. London ought to get her supply from the Welsh lakes.

Sales had been made elsewhere, while the expenses on mine were comparatively very low, and indeed all the season through the apples sent to Liverpool in which I was particularly interested met with sales which were very good in comparison with the sales of similar fruit from the United States and the Upper Provinces; also the sales of Nova Scotia fruit in other markets of England.

And now, after having endeavoured to discover the objections which are made to Nova Scotia spples in all the different great markets of England, I believe the problem of how best to have the Nova Scotia fruit quite as popular as that of any other country in any of the markets of England is easy of solution.

There is quite a rivalry between Manches Capt. Joseph Anderson and Mr. George Neaves are home from sea for a short stay. Mrs. Israel Elliott and daughter Mabel, of Everett, Mass., are visiting friends in this There is quite a rivalry between Manchester and Liverpool, and Manchester is bidding hard for the fruit trade. Liverpool now contemplates remitting the dock dues, which amount to nearly five cents per barrel. This will still further reduce the cost of shipping apples via Liverpool. I believe the brokers of this city are in the main a very reliable lot of men, and they seem very anxious that their business should be conducted in the most unquestionable way. Their sales are all attended by the whole fraternity of fruit brokers, and prices checked by the clerks of each as well as by the parties who buy, and the strict manner with which they examine and classify the apples before each sale is bound to do justice to those who pack their apples properly. BARQUENTINE HEREERT FULLER SECURES HER CREW.

Capt. McLaughlin, of the Herbert Fuller, succeeded Friday night in completing his crew, and the vessel is now all ready to proceed on her voyage to Rosario. She was cleared from Halifax on Saturday, and the onlything that now detains her is head winds. A pilot has been secured to take the vessel out and is now on board.

Following is a list of the crew:
First mate—Gundersen, shipped at New York.

Second mate—William Kinney, of Lockeport.

One of the features of the past few weeks on the Atlantic coast has been the abundance of mackerel, particularly in United States waters. Fishermen in these localities are of the opinion that the close season of five years, which was in force previous to June 1, 1894, and which prohibited the taking of mackerel in nets, is responsible for the increased run of fish this year. Experts are of a different opinion and claim in support of their views that if this were true, the season of 1895 should have shown large catches, but as a matter of fact, the catch was very light in all coast waters. The fish are smaller than the average, as many as five or six being re-Second mate—william kinney, or Dode-port.

Steward—John Taylor, of Baltimore.
Seamen—William Hames, Halifax; Wil-liam Neary, Fall River, N. S.; Joseph Peck-ford, Fogo, Nild.; William Cushion, Nfld.; James Albery, England, and John Griffin, Billtown, N. B.

The men all signed articles before the United States consul. the average, as many as five or six being required to weigh a pound, as against one to three pounds each in other years.

London, Aug. 12.—The Chronicle says there is reason to believe that Great Britain and Russia have arrived at or are arriving at an understanding to save the Armenians and Cretans from further outrages by Turks. France, it is said, concurs in the arrangement, which provides that probably the British fleet shall protect Crete, and Russia shall send military residents to the principal towns of Armenia, keeping an army within their call. Celebrating its Fiftieth Anniversary. Celebrating its Fiftieth Anniversary.

The 50th Anniversary Number of the Scientific American, New York, just out, is a really handsome and valuable publication of 72 pages. It reviews the progress of the past 50 years in the various sciences and industrial arts; and the various articles by the best scientific writers of the day are racily written and richly illustrated. The editors have accomplished the difficult task of presenting a compendium of information that shall be at once historical, technical and popular. The interest never flags for a moment, and the stoay of the half century's growth is in itself a veritable compendium of valuable scientific information for future reference. Price, 10 cents per copy. The Canadians won the whole of the prize money, a hundred and fifty-five pounds, in the Corporation of the city of London match at Bisley. This is open only to Indian and Colonial volunteers whose scores in the Queen's (first stage), Martin's cup, Daily Graphic, Graphic, Daily Telegraph, and Alexandria make up the highest totals.

only curing process it undergoes—the un wholesome dark shade turns to a soft squin unshiny day not so very many years ago. Two were fine specimens of genus physeter; the third, however, though of the same species, was lank and scrawny, lolled listlessly odor almost indescribable, like the blending cies, was lank and scrawny, lolled listlessly while its more rotund and sportive comrades slashed about vigorously, and sent the limpid perfume of the violet. in the dark blue surface of the Gulf Stream. waters far above them to fall in refreshing prays. If was a mystery why any whale at | an indispensable article with fine perfumes, this season should have presented an illative enumeration of the condition, as the feeding grounds have been unusually well populated by the go a single day with an empty stomach.

Perhaps if the two well conditioned animals pose, the attar of garden flowers or the pen etrating balsams—these are indispensable Perhaps if the two well conditioned animals had been less frolicsome, and the third more but are not the groundwork. That basis is aroused, they would have been on the alert always one of the four animal odors; that is, aroused, they would have been on the alert for defence. As it was, a long, narrow boat, pointed at both ends, bore down unobserved upon them, and the whalemen sent with unupon them, and the whalemen sent with unerring aim their weapons straight into the beaver, now almost obsolete in the perfume two bulky creatures. The scrawny whale trade. The pure and separate tincture of escaped, though it made no motion to get any one of these odors is too intense and away; but because it was evident there powerful to be tolerated. Like all substan would be but little, if any, oil or spermaceti in the animal, and because the capture of the two splendid specimens had been more than decomposition till the remainder very little volatility. Even then two splendid specimens had been more than was expected, it was left unmolested, still rocking lazily in the sea.

Next day to the amazement of the whalemen, the animal was seen in almost exactly the same spot, as though inviting death. "Well," called out the captain of the great value to the perfumer, and are the eswhaling fleet, who had been one of the party sential foundation in almost every formula the day before, "If you wish to die, you poor, crazy lubber, you shall," and forthwith mixing three ounces of it with one gallor it, too, was disposed of, the easiest task, the of pure alcohol, and not till after a month men agreed, that they had had in many a is it ready for use. This, however, is only kept for mixing, and is far too strong. Only were found in the emaciated whale. An other and vastly more important discovery was the largest single lot of ambergris ever sold in this country. It was exchanged for a check signed by a well-known drug firm of this city, whose figures rounded close onto by harmonious musical chords on the delicate $60,000. Never had so large a check been | ear, or the perfect blending of colors to the seen till then in the little Cape Cod fishing town where it was divided among the whale men of the fleet as each man on a whaler re ceives a certain percentage of the proceeds of a voyage. It would seem that the animal had sicken ed of a malady caused by the unnatural growth, and such was undoubtedly the case, and, if its sufferings had not been brought to an end by the whalemen, it would have lingered till the disease itself had finally caused death. Such profound mystery has sur rounded this strange subject, and so many Four Most Remarkable Remedies. fallacies have been written in regard to it, that some of the latter encyclopedias have-that some of the latter encyclopedias have-perhaps—left it untouched, or, if treating it at all, have ventured on but the barest generalties, for trustworthy facts relating to this most interesting and singular product are few and far between.

We need touch but lightly on the history of ambergris, though the delusions that were primitively indulged in are extremely fascinating. In the "Arabian Nights" we are told of Eastern beauties whose cheeks were marked with moles like bits of ambergris; and in the story of the sixth voyage of Sindbad the Sailor we read in the description of the place where the voyagers were wrecked: "Here is also a fountain of pitch and bitumen that runs into the sea, which the fishes swallow, and then vomit up again turned into ambergris!" That antique author, Robert Boyle, considered it to be of vegetable production and similar to yellow amber; thus it received its name, amber gris (gray) gray amber. This and other even more plausible theories are but indeed fallacies that puzzled savants have set forth when they were at a transport of the latter using the development of science in recent years gives hope for the curing of many of the worst forms of disease that afflict humanity. It is now ascertained beyond a doubt to be generated by the large-headed sperm whale and is the result of the diseased state of the animal. The victim of this rare malady may possibly in extremely rare cases (but of this we are not convinced by actual knowledge,) throw off the morbific substance, or finally die of the silvent. The disease in the leasted in the cents is the charge for a phial of forty the ailment. The disease is located in the intestinal canal, and some sayants suppose intestinal canal, and some savants suppose it to be caused by a biliary irritation. After a deep study on the subject several modern scientists have agreed that the disorder is akin to the new fashionable human peril, apgreat mammal.

It is known that the ambergris whale feeds upon the cuttlefish. This creature is armed upon its head with a sharp-pointed, curved black horn resembling a bird's beak, much like that of a parrot, only the lower mandible is the largest. This is found—as it is too indestructible to be digested-in many specimens of ambergris, and may oftentimes aid in establishing a seated disease. It may be considered, though, to be but the primary cause of irritation, as much of the finest ambergris is entirely free from the tough little horn. Such is the effect in the whale fied-illness which when established in our own comparatively puny organism causes a attacked by the almost miraculous modern skill of the surgeon's gifted hand. To Sweep a Room.

Hardly one woman in a hundred sweeps room intelligently. It is a needless amount pendicitis, intensified and prolonged in this of work to sweep an apartment more than once a week, if the work is once thoroughly done. A little brushing up every day, using a carpet sweeper, will remove all incidental rubbish and keep things fresh and neat. No room can be well swept with the furniture remaining in it: each movable piece should be dusted and set in an adjoining room where it will be safe until the room is ready for it. Big muslin slips put over the stuffed chairs are in aid. After clearing the room open the windows, brush down the walls. Scatter about a little damp salt and begin sweeping in one corner of the room, taking short strokes and brushing towards the cen of the magnified—and tremendously magniside blinds and wash the windows while th dust is settling. All the highly polished fatal collapse, unless quickly and heroically articles of furniture should be gone over with a piece of soft chamois to brighten them up.

For Clever Fingers.

Such a pretty idea as it was, and so well carried out. It was a bedspread for a girl's room, which was to be done in pink. It was hemstitched hem, edged with fine linen lace. In the centre was embroidered a large wreath of sweet peas in shaded pink Florence filoselle, making a most effective and artistic finish.

Any girl with a happy knack of using he needle can make one of these spreads, with comparatively small expense, when the beauty is considered. For a blue room bachelor's buttons may take the place of the sweet peas, or blue morning glories may be used as a model. For a yellow room, buttercups or goldenrod; for a green room maiden hair fern; for a red room, scarlet poppies. To Drive Flies Out of the Stable.
