BRITAIN SCORES ANOTHER GREAT VICTORY IN NATAL!

THE LOSSES OF THE IMPERIAL FORCES ARE VERY HEAVY

Boers Were Driven Out of their Position at Elandslaagte After a Terrific Fight Which Lasted From 3.30 p.m. to 6.30 p.m. on Saturday--Boer General, Jan Kock, Dies, After Capture, From His Wounds--Two Boer Guns Also Captured.

SATURDAY'S BATTLE ON FOR THREE LONG HOURS

Fighting in Dead Earnest Began at 3.30 P.M. and the Boers Were Driven From Their Position at 6.30 P.M.

General French's Forces Made a Gallant Charge, But Many Men Fell on the Road to Victory--The Colonial Troops Also Fought Bravely.

Full details of the capture of the Boer position at Elandslaagte, announced exclusively in the war extra of the Sunday World, are at hand. It was a great and brilliant battle for the British forces under Major-General French. The real action began at 3.30 p.m. on Saturday when the Boers held a very exceptional position on a rocky hill about a mile and a half southeast of Elandslaagte Station. The Imperial troops took up a position on a ridge 400 yards away from the Boers, who opened fire. After severe fighting at 6.30 p.m. the British infantry carried the Boer position, the enemy standing to the last with great tenacity. The British captured the Boer camp with tents, wagons, horses and also two guns. The British loss is heavy, being roughly estimated at 150 killed and wounded. Among the Boers captured were Gen. Jan Kock, the Boer commander, and Piet Joubert, a nephew of Commandant-General Joubert. Kock died shortly after from his wounds. The Boer losses are very heavy. A fact of especial interest this morning is that Major-General French spent many years in Canada.

GREAT BRITAIN IS NOW ON REVIEW BEFORE THE EYES OF ALL THE WORLD.

It is Not in Vainglorious Boasting Nor in Swaggering Jingoism, But in Calm Confidence of Her Well Tested Strength That She Stands To-day, Says the New York Tribune.

Following is an editorial in the New York Tribune yesterday, under the heading, "An Empire on Review," which will refresh World readers this morning: "The troubles in South Africa are a second time placing the British Empire on review before the world. The first time was just after the Jamestown raid. Great Britain was then at the height of her splendid isolation. There was some unpleasant, not to say menacing, talk upon the Continent. The spectre of hostile intervention began to take form. It was necessary for the usual Athenian to make a demonstration, against not the Transvaal, but the world. The world was given. And in the twinkling of an eye, from every wave made hollow by the British flag, there seemed to start a British battleship, with decks full cleared for action. Never, perhaps, was a more startling exhibition made of a great nation's readiness for whatever emergency might appear. Never was a quicker recognition of the readiness by the potential threaters. As that amazing reserve fleet steamed into view the possible meddles vanished. As 'Oom Paul' put it in his racy speech, 'The Old Lady just sneezed, and then where were they?' For answer, here is what 'The New York Tribune' says: 'There can be no question of the intervention of any European power. No one will rob the British lion of his prey.' 'To-day this second review is of a different character. It is not the navy, but the army, now the British army has been much displayed upon the Continent since the memory of Waterloo began to fade. Its hideous mismanagement in the Crimea discredited its system as much as Balaklava honored its individual valor; and since then has had to deal with none but petty tribes or with remote enemies. Upon the fields of Europe it has been unknown, and Waterloo has been eclipsed by Duple, Sadowa and Sedan. With no conscription, outnumbered by more than ten to one by drabs, and scattered to the four corners of the earth, it has come to be regarded as negligible, if not an outright minus quantity; but now that estimate is reconsidered. With a promptness, a smoothness, and an ease that make the Continental 'captains rob their eyes, a British army is mobilized and sent half way round the globe for action; and it shows a fitness of physical condition, a perfection of equipment and of discipline, and, in brief, an all-round efficiency that excite the amazement and admiration of even the German headquarters staff, and call therefrom a formal but most cordial compliment. True, it is a small army compared with what the great military powers could put into the field, but it is not always counted. It shows in the field a degree of efficiency which a German expert in the Sudan campaign pronounced 'simply incredible. True, also, it has to be summoned from distant parts. But then, too, all the scattered colonies stand ready with their contingents. It is not an army with Great Britain and Ireland alone, but from Greater Britain which includes the Dominion of Canada and the United States of Australia. So the world is made to realize that the British Empire is still a military force on land as well as sea, and on sea as well as land. There has been some talk of Europe's opportunity while British hands are busy in South Africa for making anti-British advances elsewhere in the world. In the first place, it is not to be believed that any power or powers have such a purpose or desire; and, in the second place, it is to be observed that, despite her business in South Africa, Great Britain is just as free as ever to deal with any other foe. The hands with which she has been expected to grapple with Russia or French or German aggression are not tied nor busy. Her feet is not engaged in the Transvaal. Her fleet is not engaged in the Atlantic. The friend of Dewey at Manila--are sufficient for her purpose there. All the most ready on duty, as before, around her coasts, in the Narrow Seas, in the Mediterranean, and wherever there is an interest to guard, or a menace to check. It is not in vainglorious boasting nor in swaggering jingoism, but in the calm confidence of her well-tested and well-learned strength, that the British Empire stands on review to-day, ready at every point, on land and sea, to keep at bay her martial drabs, and to meet her peaceful commerce, and her vast realm intact all around the circumscribed circle of the globe.

MANY OFFICERS KILLED AT FIGHT NEAR GLENCOE

These Brave Men Lost Their Lives Because They Stuck to the British Rule Not to Use Cover.

Thirty-One Non-Commissioned Officers and Men Are Dead, While the Wounded Number 151--General Symons' Wound is Mortal, But He Still Lives.

The War Office has issued a bulletin containing the names of the officers of the Imperial forces killed in the battle with the Boers between Glencoe and Dundee. It is now believed that General Symons' wounds are mortal. Reports of the death of the brave General, however, are incorrect. Thirty-one non-commissioned officers and men were killed, and 151 were wounded in this victorious, but costly, engagement.

IT WAS A COSTLY VICTORY. The British Lost Ten Officers in the Battle With the Boers Near Glencoe.

London, Oct. 21.--The list of officers killed and wounded at the battle between Glencoe and Dundee in Natal shows that although the British victory was complete, it was bought at a heavy price. In addition to Sir William Penn Symons, who, it is feared, is mortally wounded, two colonels, three captains and five lieutenants were killed, and a colonel, three majors, six captains and ten lieutenants were wounded. This heavy loss among the officers was due, as the latest despatches from the front showed, to their valiant but inconsiderate conduct in sticking to the traditions of the British army and refusing to themselves in storming the Boer position on the summit of the kopie. The War Office announces that 31 non-commissioned officers and men were killed and 151 wounded. Among the rank and file the Hussars had 7 wounded; the artillery 1 killed and 3 wounded; the Leicestershire Regiment 4 wounded; the King's Rifles 11 killed and 68 wounded; the Irish Fusiliers 14 killed and 30 wounded; the Dublin Fusiliers 4 killed and 41 wounded, and the Natal Police 2 wounded.

THE CASUALTIES.

The War Office has issued the following list of casualties in the battle, received in a despatch from the general commanding in Natal, Sir George Stewart White, dated Ladysmith, Oct. 21, 4.20 a.m.: Divisional Staff, General William Penn Symons, mortally wounded in the stomach. Adjutant-General, severely wounded in the right shoulder. Major Frederick Hammersley, Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General, seriously wounded in the leg. Brigade Staff, Colonel John Sheerston, Deputy Staff Officer and Brigade Major, killed. Captain F. L. Adam, A.D.C., seriously wounded in right shoulder. The Brigade, Major W. F. Davidson, wounded. Captain F. H. B. Connor, wounded. Captain J. W. Pike, wounded. Lieutenant C. C. Southey, wounded. Lieutenant H. C. W. Wortham, wounded. Lieutenant M. B. C. Carbery, wounded. Royal Dublin Fusiliers--Captain G. A. Weldon, killed. Captain W. H. Peckell, wounded. Captain A. Dibley, wounded. Captain C. N. Ferran, wounded. Lieutenant C. G. J. Genge, wounded. King's Royal Rifles--Lieutenant Colonel R. H. Ganning, killed. Captain H. K. Peckell, killed. Lieutenant J. Taylor, killed. Lieutenant R. C. Barnett, killed. Lieutenant N. J. Hambro, killed. Major C. A. T. Doullie, wounded. Capt. O. S. W. Nugent, wounded. Captain A. R. M. Stuart-Wortley, wounded. Lieutenant F. M. Crum, wounded. Lieutenant R. Johnston, wounded. Lieutenant G. H. Martin, wounded.

THE SACRIFICE OF LIVES.

As anticipated from the nature of the attack the British losses are heavy--214 killed or wounded; 8 officers killed, besides a mortally wounded general, and 74 wounded. The officers, after the British habit, neglected precautions about taking cover, and risked their own lives while ordering the men not to risk theirs. The Rifles, a famous body of troops, who have on their colors the corps d'élite of the army, had five officers killed and their color-sergeant and many men, including among the formers their lieutenant-colonel, Ganning. He will probably be succeeded by Major Pike, until Campbell, commonly known as 'Jack Campbell.' Last night several of Campbell's friends were anxious to see him, but he hardly dared to look at the list of casualties. In all probability he has, in fact, got promotion, and is a good number. The Boer loss was estimated at midnight as 100 killed or wounded, but nothing is known with precision. The despatches hardly dared to look at the Boer losses, growing in importance, and that the Boers, pursued by the 15th Hussars and artillery, were continuing their retreat east toward Buffalo River. The War Office bulletins executed by the British and some sources of information. I. N. F.

THE WAR OFFICE BESIEGED

By People Who Want the Latest Details of the Victories at Glencoe and Elandslaagte. London, Oct. 22.--Despite the fog the London newspapers to-day found a ready sale for the newspaper extras announcing the continued victories in South Africa. The losses in killed and wounded were the subject of pulp references in all the churches, and especially the Catholic.

Her Majesty the Queen wired Lord Lansdowne, Secretary of State for War, from Balmoral Castle, yesterday; "My heart bleeds for these dreadful losses again to-day. It is a great success, but, I fear, very dearly bought."

The War Office in London was besieged with anxious friends of those engaged in the encounters all day yesterday. Typewritten bulletins were sent out to be read to the assembled crowds. Late despatches from Cape Town state that the Boers are now shelling Dundee and Glencoe, and that heavy firing is in progress.

London, Oct. 22.--At 2 o'clock this morning the War Office posted this from General Sir Archibald Hunter: "Ladysmith, Oct. 21.--(8.45 p.m.)--General White rode toward Elandslaagte at 2.30 p.m. The force under General French left here at 4 a.m. by road and rail to Modder's Bridge. By 2 p.m. it had been gradually strengthened to the following total: Fifth Lancers, a squadron of the Fifth Dragoon Guards, two field batteries, the Natal Field Battery, the Devonshire Regiment, half the Manchester Regiment, half the Gordon Highlanders, the Imperial Light Horse and two squadrons of Natal Volunteers.

Bourassa's Resignation is Believed in Some Quarters to Mean an Early Call of Parliament.

Montreal, Oct. 22.--(Special.)--When some look upon the Bourassa resignation at this point in the election, there see in Mr. Tarte's editorial of yesterday the promise that Parliament will be called together at an early date. The Minister of Public Works writes that, although the Federal Ministers have not yet met, it is necessary to call Parliament together, this will only be delayed for a short time. Some of the Government's upholders here declare that the Ministers would not be in a position to dissolve Parliament just now, as certain defects would stand ready to be pointed out at the next meeting.

Mr. Tarte, the despatch says, has been invited to speak at several public meetings on Wednesday afternoon, October 20th, and returning following day.

Thinking of Hats and Dineen's. It is true, there are more serious things to engage public attention these days than Dineen's daily announcements of new fall seasons. But Dineen's announcements of hats sales afford the gratifying evidence that men are never so profoundly absorbed with their business as to forget their heads, or so indifferent toward their heads as to disregard such an important factor of business, politics or war that they would fail to appreciate the hat qualities in all the newest fall shapes at Dineen's at $2.50 and $3.

DIRECT EVIDENCE AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT. Circumstantial evidence points very conclusively to the theory that the Provincial Government has all along had a guilty knowledge of the source of the money that was taken into the different constituencies and used by the machine gang in the prosecution of their criminal work. It is admitted that the money came from without the constituencies and that it was handled by outsiders. No one has yet been able to suggest the name of any outside individual or organization except the Government that was interested in the result of any of the bye-elections. It is admitted that the money was put into a single dollar. The evidence taken at the North Waterloo trial is more than circumstantial. It is direct and positive, and supplies the missing link between the Government and the gang. One of the gang working in this election was a party named Cummings. It was proved that Cummings, who was a deputy returning officer, had designedly counted ballots marked for Lackner as if they had been marked for Breithaupt, the Liberal candidate. The judgment says of the Cummings case: "The like conclusion must be reached in Cummings' case. It is incredible that the miscounting of the ballots was unintentional. There is but one way of accounting for it under all the circumstances detailed in the evidence, and that is that it was wilfully and fraudulently done by him."

There is nothing startling in Cummings' criminality. Scores of other men can be named who committed election frauds equally as serious as that established against Cummings. The point about the Cummings case is this: Cummings was the nominee of Hon. E. J. Davis, a member of the Government. Cummings had been set aside by the returning officer, but the Provincial Secretary intervened in his behalf and had him reappointed. Here, then, we have a member of the Government responsible for the appointment of one of the men who is now being prosecuted for this crime. Furthermore, we have the evidence of Mr. Snider, vice-president of the North Waterloo Reform Association, to the effect that Hon. Messrs. Gibson and Davis promised "to send speakers and organizers into the riding to help the Liberals in the coming election." We know from the evidence that the organizers who were sent into the riding were experts in election criminality. It was these organizers that distributed the money to the local workers, who in turn used it for bribing the electors. Among the organizers sent in as promised were those notorious individuals, viz.: Vance of Toronto, Lewis of London, Brant of Whitby, Carroll of North Toronto and Thompson, an official of the Education Department. Mr. Hardy in his valedictory address to the members of the Government was not personally cognizant of the means that were being employed to win the bye-elections for the Government. In the light of the circumstantial and direct evidence that has been adduced, we must refuse to believe the Premier. The Government was cognizant of the fraud, and all size of the election, and they will be held responsible for it.

But even supposing the Government is not responsible for these election frauds, it certainly cannot escape responsibility for not enforcing the law once the frauds were disclosed. Months have elapsed since the West Elgin crimes were exposed, yet no steps have been taken to bring the individuals to trial. No plea can possibly justify the Government for its neglect to set the law in motion against the criminals of the West Elgin and South Ontario elections. Only the other day the judges in the North Ontario election trial named a score of men for bribery, perjury and other election frauds. No move has been made as yet to have these men apprehended and tried. And yet it is for serious offences against the law that they have been named by the judges. If a charge of larceny were preferred against them they would all be in jail by this time. But on the more serious charge of bribery and perjury they are un molested. From all these facts, can any sane man doubt that the members of the Government are themselves the fountain head of the law in his new position is to order his Attorney-General to have all the criminals arrested at once. If a score or two of these men found themselves in prison and half a dozen smart detectives were poking their noses into their pockets soon they would be out. If the Government is innocent, the new Premier will prosecute; if it is implicated, the law will remain a dead letter.

CANADA'S RIGHTS SACRIFICED.

The modus vivendi arrived at by Great Britain and Canada in regard to the boundary is another set-back to Canada's claim. The United States holds, under the modus, all that it claims under the treaty. The United States has nothing to gain by pushing the case to our side. We are not to be allowed to reach any point on the Lynn Canal. We are to have no free port, and are to be denied the privilege of transferring Canadian goods across American territory without payment of duty to the United States. No sacrifice whatever has been made by the United States. If the modus vivendi had been made conditional upon the boundary dispute being referred to arbitration, a little objection could be urged against it. But arbitration, we take it, is now farther off than ever. It looks very much as if the outbreak of war in South Africa had had something to do with the temporary settlement of the dispute. The New York Tribune accepts the settlement as an evidence that Great Britain "hopes—and not, we assume, in vain—to have a goodly measure of moral support and sympathy from the United States."

NOT A QUESTION OF TAXES.

Mr. Tarte defends his anti-British position on the principle of the "modus vivendi" representation. This is the doctrine announced in an article in La Patrie, on Mr. Bourassa's resignation. There is no logic in citing this political axiom in the present case. Canada is not being asked to send a contingent to South Africa. There is no question of taxes whatever. The point at issue is whether Canada shall voluntarily contribute the money necessary to send a contingent to the Transvaal. If Great Britain made a demand on us for a regiment of soldiers, or for money, it would be another question.

MADE OF THE RIGHT STUFF.

An incident at the Armouries on Saturday Showing Just What a Canadian Are. An incident took place at the Armouries on Saturday which not only has a big touch of romance about it but accurately mirrors how keen is the competition among Canadian military men to find a place in the contingent. The men of the 31st Regiment had been drawn up for Col. Otter's inspection. As he ran his experienced eye down its ranks he noticed the well-known figure of Lieut. H. Horke, calling him out, the colonel said: "Horke, I can't take you; you are an officer." "But I go as a private, sir," was the reply, but the colonel only answered: "I can't help that, you must step out, I cannot consider you at all." Lieut. Horke stands 5 feet 10 inches, is 23, a thorough athlete and one of the smartest officers in Canada. He was no made out of the stuff to be cast down at the first rebuff. Stepping out as ordered, he walked out of the Armouries. In a quarter of an hour the 31st ranks were disbanded and Col. Otter was mounting his horse to ride home again. He had one foot in the stirrup when Lieut. Horke walked up and saluted. "I've wired my resignation to my colonel and am now a private," he said; "have I any chance now?" Col. Otter's strong face relaxed into a smile as he remarked: "Young man, I admire your pluck." Then he galloped away. The bystanders broke into a cheer and the plucky lieutenant, in view of the shortage in volunteers, is likely yet to be taken.

DISASTROUS FIRE AT HULL.

Pharand's Departmental Store the Scene—Narrow Escape and Heroic Rescue. Ottawa, Oct. 22.—A fire originated yesterday in Pharand's departmental store in Hull and destroyed property to the extent of $20,000. Pharand's store is situated opposite the City Hall on Ingersoll-street. The tailoring department is a wooden structure adjoining the main building in the rear. Mrs. Pharand and her two children were upstairs when the fire occurred. They came out on the top verandah and one child, Adam, aged 12, jumped to the awning below and was caught by the spectators. Mrs. Pharand fell unconscious because she could not get down. Her husband, for the courage of her eldest son, Joseph, might have been suffocated. Joseph, an upstairs and pulled his mother and brother from the verandah and helped them downstairs. The store and contents were totally destroyed.

LEINSTERS TO LEAVE HALIFAX.

They Go to Cork and Will Be Replaced by the Worcesterhire Regiment From West Indies. Halifax, N.S., Oct. 22.—The Leinster Regiment is to leave Halifax. They will embark on Nov. 15 for Cork, Ireland, being relieved by the Worcesterhire Regiment now stationed in the West Indies. When the regiment came to Halifax it was made up mainly of raw recruits, mostly Irish and never been a mile away from home. They have picked up wonderfully since their improvement during the past six months has been very marked, and the indications are that at no distant day the regiment will be classed among the best in the Queen's service.

TRAFALGAR DAY

Was Celebrated Patriotically by Sons of St. George New Resident in New York.

New York, Oct. 22.—Nelson Lodge, No. 64, Order of the Sons of St. George, gave a dinner last night in commemoration of the 94th anniversary of the battle of Trafalgar. More than 100 Englishmen gathered around the tables in the Teutonic assembly room. The walls of the room were covered with English flags, draped with the Stars and Stripes. The toast master was H. C. Hayward, president of the lodge. Among other speeches, none were listened to with keener interest than those given by the speaker, who was greeted with hearty cheers, than the toast, "The Transvaal Crisis," which was delivered by the Rev. St. Marks Cadman.

COLLISION OFF GOODWIN SANDS.

British Steamers Came Together and One Was Sunk. London, Oct. 22.—During a thick fog the British steamer Lariston for Marseilles from Rotterdam was sunk in a collision today off the Goodwin Sands by the British steamer Crimea. The damage to the Crimea is unknown. There were no fatalities.

Military Night at the Princess.

To-night will be military night at the Princess Theatre, to give the 3000 members of the Princess company C. a grand farewell, and to wish them all a safe return, before their departure for the Transvaal. All the officers and soldiers will occupy the boxes, which have been reserved for them. Mr. Harcourt (the) Crane has been retained for to-night only, and it is expected that "Soldiers of the Queen" will be joined by everybody, and create wider enthusiasm than ever. With the special engagement of Mr. Joseph Callahan as a star, and with his thorough knowledge and ability in staging the play, the production will be absolutely perfect from the standpoint of the audience in its grandness and it is asserted that the production will be a surprise to everyone. The scenery is well arranged and represents Mr. Louis Felt's best efforts. The costumes are also new, having been made for this production. The orchestra is made up of hundreds of dollars, and the music is the regular "Faust" music, similar to the opera. The illuminated scene, the famous Broderick scene, the electric duel, will all be vividly staged, and Mr. Harcourt has nothing but commendations for the scenic artists, carpenters and the cast. Mr. Ralph Cummings appears as Valentine, Miss Florence Stone as Marguerite, Mr. Phillips as Faustus, Miss Anderson as Danae, Miss Martha, Miss Nettie, Mrs. Mack and Messrs. Frazier, Shumer and Mack as the students. Miss L. J. Shea has been engaged to sing the Ave Maria in the church scene, to the organ accompaniment of Prof. Bohner.

Did Daniel Take It?

While on York-street Saturday night Detective Davis received word that a young man was trying to sell a Genron wheel for $2. The detective investigated and, after a little talk with the stranger, placed him under arrest. In a short time Mr. C. H. Kieberger, steward of the Ledstranz, called at Police Headquarters and identified the wheel as his property. He said it had been stolen from the front of the Tremont. The prisoner gave his name as Daniel Downs, a telegraph operator, whose home is in New York.

Railway Collision in Belgium.

Brussels, Oct. 22.—The Indian mail train today collided with a freight train near Scherbroek, a suburb of Brussels, three train cars being derailed. Eighteen passengers were injured, but none fatally.

THIS "PLUNGE" MEANT DEATH.

But for the Timely Aid of South American Kidney Cure. A promising young printer and publisher in a northern town, while overhauled from wheeling, took a "plunge" in the lake, inside of a month kidney disease developed, and medical swelling was very apparent. He treated with local doctors, and on their advice he visited a specialist in Toronto, but was told his case was a hopeless one. He quit the doctors, went to taking South American Kidney Cure, and to-day he is the best of health and has been for 12 months.
