Rich Underskirts of Silk and Satin

One of the first questions customers ask about an undershirt to-day is: Does it fit closely?

The very name of one of our lines—the KLOSFIT—answers the question satisfactorily.

These skirts make a perfect foundation for wear beneath the fashionable gowns and suits, as they fit smoothly over the hips and are cut on the long, graceful lines of present-day fashions.

The narrow skirts accentuate the need of a smart petticoat. The richness of these silks in material, style and coloring, make them particularly desirable.

A HANDSOME DESIGN is made with a jersey top of finest Milanese silk, very elastic and beautifully lustrous. Is on an elastic band and fastens with patent glove fasteners. Flounce of rich brocade silk, with narrow dark ruffle. Colors apricot, tangerine, navy, grey, black. Some plain colors, some with two-toned flounce. $8.00.

OUTSIDE SKIRTS, for large women; jersey tops, knife-pleated flounce of heavy mesaline; black and amethyst. $9.75.

A JERSEY TOP SKIRT with knife-pleated, satin flounce; in tangerine, rose, sky, old blue, pale pink, tan. $6.00.

ANOTHER JERSEY TOP SKIRT with flounce of mercerized fabric that looks like satin; entire only. $4.75.

EXQUISITE CREPE DE CHINE, for evening wear; sky, white and pink. Striped, narrow flounce consisting of cream, insertion, lace and narrow satin band. $6.25.

SATIN SKIRTS, black and gold shades only, as low as $1.79.

GOOD QUALITY SATIN; navy, brown, amber, tan, red, etc. $3.50.

MESSALINE, corse only. $3.00.

HE PEDDLED PENCILS

REV. CANON RIDLEY TURNED IN TO HELP THE CRIPPLE.

Galt's Popular Clergyman Has a Long Record of Kindly Acts Which Have Endured Him to a Whole Diocese—He is on the Job For All When Vacation Time Is On—Is a Great Friend of the Poor.

If you had been out on the main street of Galt the other day, at a busy hour, you would have witnessed the novel spectacle of a well-built man in clerical garb, "holding down" for a poor, crippled vendor of lead pencils, and creating a run of business on what, as it happened, was proving an off-day of trade for the legless unfortunate. The bunch of pencils in the hands of the cripple's conductor went like hot cakes. As he turned in the proceeds and left his post, mouth full of good cheer to his partner pro tem, you would have heard people remark: "That's just like John Ridley, of Trinity, the man who goes about doing good."

There is, perhaps, no clergyman in the Anglican Diocese of Huron better known or more sincerely esteemed and beloved than the Rev. Canon Ridley, rector of Trinity Church, Galt. For over twenty years he has labored in this community, a true English clergyman, a true Canadian, a broad Catholic in reality, for in acts of service to his fellow-men, whether in sacred or secular spheres, he knows neither creed, communion, race, nor social condition. WILD SHEEP OF NOVA SCOTIA.

As Sure Footed as Antelope and as Vigilant as Chamels.

Was the ordinary domestic sheep the original breed? Was it brought to Nova Scotia by the sailors and the tattered flocks of the ocean? These questions are suggested by a discovery on the east coast of the Province of Nova Scotia.

Here is an archipelago of thousands of islands wooded and rocky, and the waters of the sea have washed the shores of the islands. Four hundred years ago the hardy French voyagers who first settled this part of Canada hailed these pretty islands with delight. They settled there before they would trust themselves upon the mainland, and there they turned out their live stock—Shaggy Breton ponies, hardy little Jersey-like cows and lanky sheep.

The sheep thrived where the cattle and the horses found the problem of existing difficult. Soon they paddled in the shallow waters of the estuary in their desire to catch at the floating oil grass and bulbous help. Then the discovery came that swimming was not beyond their powers, and they need not remain prisoners of the shallow waters of the estuary.

It so came about that they peopled numbers of the islands, and the sheep along the whole coast line became no man's flock, having returned to a primitive state of nature. Some owners drifted inland and after some years the islands were left to their old-time solitudes. The sheep were not reclaimed and were left to their own devices.

So it came about that in Nova Scotia, especially in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, there is to-day a breed of sheep loaded down with heavy wool of a peculiar growth. They are old, perfectly wild, living on the sea coast. Swift on their feet, they are as alert as their owners, and they are as much at home on the water as on the land.

They are sure-footed as antelope, vigilant as chamels. This, too, despite the fact that they are always rolling in fat.

They are partly carnivorous, these sheep of the sea. At least, as an observant watcher will notice that they come ashore at the soft spots of the beach, and there they will dig up and eat the clams and mussels, and chewed clam shells are commonly to be met with on their pastures. But their regular food is kelp, sea urchins and seaweed.

In the winter they are apt to suffer. The spray drenches into the fleeces, and there is cold weather, all along the high water mark the sea walls of ice form. Many sheep are drowned here while feeding on the seaweed. Were it not for the dangers of the winter season the sheep would be bred quickly and not very many of them fall before the hunters.

New Use for a Church.
With the reopening of a new night school of the Georgetown, Ont., Congregational Church as a municipal recreation room, the problem of a new use for the church building in that town was solved. The fine stone structure was built at a cost of $40,000. The town found it rather difficult to support a new school building, and the idea of using the church building as a library and recreation institution was suggested by the town council.

Of course, we carry a varied stock of shoes for men, women and children. We are pleased to see you. Come in and try on your size.

CONVICTS AS HEROES.

When Danger Threatens They Often Distinguished Themselves.

"They worked nobly, many of them risking their lives, and suffering severe burns in their efforts to save the machinery from complete destruction. More than one man staggered out with his clothes alight in flames, and his hair and eyebrows singed away."

Who were the men?—the owners of the machinery, or workmen employed in the factory who knew that if it were destroyed, they would be left without employment? Not a bit of it. They were convicts, imprisoned in the American convict prison of Sing Sing, which stands on the bank of the Hudson River, above New York.

It was on July 23rd last that this fire broke out in the prison workshops and spread furiously. But for the splendid work of two hundred "trustees" they call the good conduct men—the whole prison might have been destroyed.

It was the chief warden who collected a gang of about thirty trustworthy men, and set them to work with buckets. There is no road just across the road, and they formed a chain and passed the buckets like lightning. "No free men," said an eye-witness, "could have worked harder, and as for those who were on the ladder they never flinched although showers of sparks were heating down upon them and burning holes in their clothes."

They worked so well that they got the flames under, but some were exhausted that they had to be helped back to their cells.

One man named Newbrook fainted, and was taken to the hospital. He was delirious that night and could not leave his bed for more than three weeks.

"Again in February, 1896, the crash-house at Dartmouth, Dartmouth, caught fire, but thanks to the splendid conduct of the prisoners—as the governor wrote in his report—the flames were got under before serious damage was done."

On March 10th, 1891, there fell upon the south of England the worst blizzard of snow ever recorded. On the heights of Dartmouth, the wind whirled furiously for three days, the cold was terrible, the drifts piled up to the roof, and did not melt until the following June.

On the 13th the sheep were driven to the slaughterhouse. Two prisoners asked to see the governor, and volunteered to lead a party to rescue the poor creatures. Some forty convicts joined them, and armed with shovels cut their way through the huge drifts of snow, and succeeded in rescuing nearly all the flock.

Many a convict has risked his life in helping a warden attacked by some prisoner who has suddenly run amok. At Portland, some few years ago, was a man whom we will call Thompson, who was noted and feared for his mad fits of rage.

He had already got into trouble for throwing a bath plug at the governor, and for attempting to assault a warden with his own baton. On the latter occasion it took three wardens to get him down.

One day, one of the principal wardens was quietly going his afternoon rounds, and presently entered the laundry where Thompson was at work. Without the slightest warning, Thompson sprang upon him like a maniac, and hit him over the head with a heavy iron spanner.

The warden dropped like a stone, but Thompson, not satisfied with what he had done, was about to hit him again, when a quiet elderly convict who was working near by rushed at the lunatic, collared him, and threw him down.

Before Thompson could get up, a second convict came to the help of the first, and between them they managed to overpower the kicking, cursing, biting brute.
