ABUNDANT HARVEST NOW ASSURED

Wet Weather and Late Season Was No Drawback—Potatoes Looking Fine

It takes more than ten weeks incessant rain to put the kibosh on the crops in this part of the landscape or even to damage them to the extent of any seriousness. During May and early June the most optimistic people were compelled to admit that the outlook was blue enough. At July 1 the fields looked as though all vegetation was fully a month behind; but at Aug. 1 we beheld fields promising to deliver the biggest crop in history promptly on time.

Potato fields everywhere are looking fine and have made a vigorous stand. Beetles and blight have been kept down in spite of the high cost and scarcity of Paris green, and continued spraying for three weeks longer will assure a bumper yield. Hills that have been opened show indications that the crop will be fully up to the average.

It seems hardly possible that any sensational high prices can be obtained this season. Whereas last year there was a heavy shortage in Ontario, Quebec and the States reports from these quarters this year bring news of splendid cropping conditions with larger increased acreage everywhere. Still there is no one who can make a safe prediction as to prices.

Oats were adversely affected by the prolonged rain, but where not killed or "scalded" they have made splendid growth and the past few weeks have been ideal for filling the heads.

Wheat is not doing so well as it would in a dryer season, but the late July heat and sunshine has done wonders for it.

Large quantities of turnips will be produced this year.

In spite of the rainy spell that commenced early in May and continued unabated to July 15, farmers never had so good a season for haying—and never in the world so heavy a crop. Many farmers will not harvest all their hay, lacking storing facilities. In such cases the grass is cut to be ploughed under later on, or allowed to rot and enrich the earth.

A Veteran Conductor

Conductor Jerry Holt, who is well known in this city, is now running on the express train between St. Stephen and Edmundston. For many years conductor Holt made his home at Presque Isle, but he now resides at Calais. He is probably the oldest active railway man on the Atlantic Division, having started railroading on the old New Brunswick Railway forty-three years ago. He is still very active and apparently good for many years of service. Conductor Holt is a native of Northumberland county.

CORDIAL INVITATION TO HEAR BISHOP

Rector and Church Officers Extend Welcome to All at This Evening's Service

This (Thursday) evening at 7.30 there will be an interesting religious ceremony in Burt's Hall, when His Lordship the Bishop of Fredericton will confirm into church membership a class of young people and adults. Bishop Richardson will afterwards deliver a sermon particularly addressed to the new members.

The rector, church officers and congregation extend a hearty invitation to people of any other denomination to come and hear His Lordship, who is readily accepted as one of the cleverest preachers in eastern Canada. It will be remembered that on the occasion of his last visit, May 24, 1913, the hall was crowded to overflowing.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 there will be confirmation service at Beaufort, and afterward the ceremony consecrating the new burying ground at Glassville will be held. In the evening there will be confirmation service at Glassville church.

Thriving Settlements in New Brunswick

Before the next meeting of the provincial government, in September, the minister of lands and mines, Hon. E. A. Smith, will visit the colonization settlements which have been in existence in this province for several years. Hazen Settlement and Grimmer Settlement on the line of the International Railway in Restigouche, will receive attention on account of being the most recent settlements organized and because of the advancement which is reported the settlers have made. About 1,200 people now make their homes where there was wilderness before. Hon. Mr. Smith will also visit the Blue Bell Tract, Victoria county, where successful settlements have been made in recent years. While in that section of the province he will visit New Denmark which has a wide reputation on account of the prosperity of its people, all of Danish birth or ancestry.

This year a remarkably large number of applications for settlement land under the labor act have been made. As has been the case for some years the lots applied for are in the northern counties and the great majority of the applicants are Acadians. The minister of lands and mines said today that his deputy minister reported that the territorial revenue was being paid in better than ever before.

Valley Railway Investigation

The revelations made at the Valley Railway enquiry, conducted at St. John last week, show quite clearly that the province would have saved a lot of money had the former government permitted Contractor Gould to have finished his work. Mr. Gould, when he took hold of the Valley Railway enterprise, had to shell out generously to the grafters and hold-up men, but he had got pretty well through the list at the time the government cancelled his contract. The change brought a new crowd of vultures on the scene, more ravenous than those which Gould had to deal with. Commissioner Stevens has already disclosed a lot of well developed rascality in connection with the awarding of the new contracts, and the whole story has not yet been told.—Mail.

CENTREVILLE NEWS

Last week was ideal haying weather and the farmers took advantage of it, putting in a lot of extra good quality hay.

All garden truck is growing finely. New potatoes are fit, as are also peas, beans, carrots, beets and onions. So although beef is scarce good meals can be provided from the gardens.

The results of Normal School entrance examinations came to hand last week. Two out of four candidates for 1st class passed. One of the others passed 2nd class, the fourth third class. One of the number made 95 on one of the papers. There were four applicants for 2nd class. One was successful, another got 3rd and another failed. The fourth applicant does not reside here and the result of her examination is not known.

The result, while not altogether satisfactory, certainly shows the earnest attention given to the pupils by the principal, L. H. Baldwin. We are pleased to know that Mr. Baldwin will continue as principal for another year. Miss Route Long will be primary teacher.

Our Chinaman, Sam Shing, disappeared about two weeks ago leaving some of our moneyed gentlemen to mourn.

won the 2-14 class pacing the 3 heats in 2-13, 2-11 and 2-13. This broke the track record. "Ingolsby, jr.," owned by Frank Higgins, Presque Isle, paced the 2nd heat in 1-03, which is certainly going some. This horse was driven by Claude DeWitt who is well known to many of your readers.

Eczema On Baby's Ear

Mrs. Arthur Hainge, Ashton Farm, Perley, Sask., writes:—My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to do her much good. Hearing of the remarkable cure Dr. Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend this preparation too highly."

Patriotic Event at East Florenceville

Last Saturday evening a very large crowd gathered at East Florenceville to appropriately observe the third anniversary of Britain's entry into the war. The beautiful lawn in front of Hon. B. F. Smith's residence was the scene of the event and the speakers included Mr. Smith, the local clergymen and others, while local talent interspersed the speeches with fitting choruses and other musical numbers. Scores of automobiles brought people from all surrounding villages. The junior and senior Women's Institutes supplied refreshments, the proceeds of the sales going to the Y. M. C. A. fund. Florenceville people showed a fine patriotic spirit, which is all the more conspicuous in that at least one of the more prominent villages of the county made absolutely no public observance of the day appointed for special intercession.

Mr. and Mrs. John Glass of Windsor announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary J., to George Lee Miller of Tracey Mills. Mr. Miller is a graduate in Forestry from the U. N. B. and is now engaged with the Crown Land Survey.

Whooping Cough

Mrs. F. Clark, Belmont. Man-writes:—"Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country, our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble as the cough passed off in two or three days."

Fletcher vs Shaw

An interesting trial took place before Stipendiary Magistrate Cameron, Thursday afternoon, when Harry Fletcher of Mars Hill recovered from Kirby Shaw the amount of seventy-five days wages.

The principle evidence was a bill of time held by Fletcher and the jury, composed of Al Clark, Howard Adams and Arthur Baird, found that the signature to the bill was that of Kirby Shaw.

The court was held up for a time arguing on the jurisdiction of the magistrates, defendant's counsel contended that an order of council had passed the day before whereby the magistrate was removed from office. An agreement was finally reached that if such contention were true the proceedings would be void.

M. L. Hayward appeared for the plaintiff and R. L. Simms for the defendant. The proceedings were lively throughout with a war of wit between counsel in which they were pretty evenly matched.

NOTICE TO LIVE- STOCK BREEDERS

The demand for pure bred stock is so great that it is doubtful if our local breeders can fill the orders that are pouring in to the Livestock Branch of the Department of Agriculture. Some time ago we forwarded a circular letter to each of the breeders in the Province asking him to report the number of stock he had for sale.

Piles

PILES, or hemorrhoids, are the cause of keen distress to thousands who do not yet know Dr. Chase's Ointment.

There are three kinds of piles—itching, bleeding and protruding. The itching, burning sensations usually increase at night, and the misery which many people endure is beyond description. The bleeding is sometimes so profuse as to cause death. Protruding piles are most dreaded because it is commonly believed that a surgical operation is the only means of cure.

If you will read the letters quoted in the daily press there will be little chance for scepticism as to the certainty of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for every form of piles. Or, better still, ask your friends about it, for Dr. Chase's Ointment is recognized among doctors and druggists as well as by the public generally as the only real cure for this wretched ailment.

Care of The Observer
HARTLAND, N. B.

The response of the whole was very good, and to those men who forwarded a statement we have been able to direct a number of purchasers to them. However, the demand for stock is greater than supply and the Department of Agriculture may have to make an importation from one of the other provinces.

The Minister of Agriculture, Hon. J. F. Tweeddale, insists that we exhaust our own local supply before making an importation. This he considers the best way to encourage local breeders.

To those men who have not yet forwarded a statement of their available stock to the Department of Agriculture, we ask you to do so now.

In parenthesis, it might be said that this is not an opportunity to dispose of any cull stock that may have been accumulating. The real purpose is to help the farmers secure genuine breeding stock from New Brunswick breeders. Address all Livestock communications to Thomas Hetherington, Department of Agriculture, Fredericton, N. B.

SHEEP BREEDERS IN NEW BRUNSWICK

New Brunswick farmers are beginning to appreciate the possibilities existing in this Province for sheep breeding. Hundreds of inquiries are being received at the Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture for information on this subject. Very many of these men contemplate making a start this fall and very many of them in starting are laying their foundation with pure bred stock. This is as it should be. Start small but start right. Some may not be able to buy anything but a pure bred ram and some common ewes. This means that the ram must be a good one or else the lambs will suffer. A sturdy, blocky, active, masculine ram means a good bunch of hearty lambs next spring.

To those men who are engaging in this business for the first time, as well as those who are about to go into the business on a larger scale we wish to state that the Department of Agriculture is at your service. We will be pleased to aid you in any way possible. The beginner should start in a small way unless he has had previous experience. Sheep seldom do well in low wet land. Unless you have a dry upland pasture you will have trouble sooner or later. Select the same breed of stock that your neighbor has. Do not select a new breed because you will have to be continually importing rams, but if you have the same breed as your neighbor you can "swap" rams. This is the cheapest way. Our local supply of pure bred rams and ewes is being rapidly exhausted. If you have not already purchased you had better book your order soon. Deal with reliable people and whenever possible make a personal selection. Book your orders early. Address all livestock communications to Thomas Hetherington, Department of Agriculture, Fredericton.

SICK WOMAN HAD CRYING SPELLS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Enbust, Pa.—"I was all run down and weak inwardly. I had female troubles and nervous feelings and my head bothered me. I would often have crying spells and feel as if I was not safe. If I heard anyone coming I would run and lock the door so they would not see me. I tried several doctors and they did not help me so I said to my mother 'I guess I will have to die as there is no help for me.' She got me one of your little books and my husband said I should try one bottle. I stopped the doctor's medicine and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It soon made a change in me and now I am strong and do all my work." Mrs. AUGUSTUS BAUGHMAN, Box 86, Enbust, Pa.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out and drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. THE GIRL

By JENNIE A. STUART

This is a true and detailed account of a certain event which took place in the year of grace, nineteen hundred and—(but figures are changing, reading, why write them?)—twelve the year when the snow came before the potatoes were dug, and apples were lying two deep under the orchard trees. You can reach and all data the story to your own satisfaction. It happened in the prettily but unfenced village of Elmville which had lost itself to the world among a few small hills. The railroads had passed it by—not malice, probable engagement to another—she realized that quite clearly during the remainder of her ride, and during her campaign for pupils that evening and the next day.

Wednesday afternoon, the doctor called to see Mr. Lafferty whose asthma had laid him low for a few days. He was greeted by Mrs. Lafferty. "How do you do, Doctor, come right in. Yes, Joe has been pretty bad—he hasn't been able to go to bed for three nights now, and he only gets a wink or two of sleep sitting on the chair. Maud, you bring Dr. Ames a chair so he can sit by paw. What's that you knocked on the floor now? Pick it up right away. Do you hear me, Maud?"

Maud had by this time escaped to the yard so the doctor stooped and picked up the little piece of white cardboard—in doing so, he caught the name, "Miss Muriel Ramsay."

"Is this some friend of yours, Mrs. Lafferty," he asked.

"Oh, that's a young lady from town who was around wanting me to give the girls music lessons. She says she wants to get enough pupils to make it worth while coming out a day every week. She seemed to be a nice young lady, but unwittingly, thereby providing old Ben Stover with the life occupation of stage-driver. One afternoon he was in the city leaning against a post on a side street waiting for the time to come to start back to Elmville when there appeared on the scene The Girl. Ben was a glib, rascally man, and only once during the interview which followed did he so far forget himself as spit at the knob hole in the board walk.

"Pardon me," said The Girl, "but do you drive this stage to Elmville?" "Yes, miss. I've driven this stage for a matter of forty years now. Why, I remember coming in before this here part of the city was even built or thought of."

"Did you really? How interesting!" exclaimed the girl. "Do you go back and forth every day?"

"Every day and night, why I've seen me get through when the snow was drifted up level with the fence. By gum, you never see the weather now that we had in the old days. But was you wanting to go out to Elmville, ma'am?" asked Ben with a sudden recollection of business.

This was exactly what The Girl wanted to do, and at the end of the next half hour found her sharing with the mail bag the inside of the clumsy vehicle. The stage-driver didn't care to drive twelve miles in silence, neither did he wish to confess total ignorance of his passengers and their affairs when questioned by his cronies at the post office at night, so after addressing himself to the horses, he turned to the human audience.

"Going out to visit some friends?" he ventured.

"No, I have no particular friends in Elmville," was the reply. "I'm a music teacher, and I thought perhaps I could get a class out there. There isn't a teacher around is there?"

"Well, no, I can't say there is. Miss Wells, she used to come around some times, and some of the girls took a few quarter lessons from her, but she was a stuck up piece of goods, and she always wanted the people to have pianos to play on. Now my brother Bill bought his girl a fine new organ, and would you believe it, that Miss Wells objected to that, and said she should have a piano to get the touch. I guess she called it."

"Oh, weren't there very many pianos then?" inquired The Girl.

"Let me see now. Get up there, Min, I'll be cow-kicked if you ain't the laziest horse I ever laid eyes on. The doctor's sister has a fine one. I wonder now—would you know the Doctor?" Dr. Ames.

"Dr. Ames—I believe I do know a Dr. Ames. Is his first name Harry?" "Yes, that's him—Or, Harry Ames," returned Ben. "His sister keeps house for him. The way things is looking though, I calculate she won't have her job very long."

He pulled a pipe waiting for The Girl to ask for an explanation, but as she said nothing he soon went on.

"Yes, things is beginning to look as though the doctor was going to get hooked up. There's a girl about two miles from the village that he goes to see when he has time. Of course a doctor isn't able to go to see a girl real steady like other folks, but he had her to church one Sunday, and I see them out driving together once in a while, and it was just last night I saw his rig tied up outside Martin's gate. And one day in the store, Jack Hudson said, 'Well, Doctor, I hear you're going to be married' and he didn't deny it so there must be something in it. But you was asking about pianos. The Weavers have one, and the Cogroves."

However The Girl's interest in the list had died down. It might be well to explain that six months before she had told Dr. Harry Ames that though she would always be his friend she could never love him—he must forget her. And that same Doctor had declared that he could never love another, and that her decision had doomed him to bachelorhood all his life. It is one thing not to want to marry a man yourself, and quite another to renounce at hearing of his lady too, but I just told her that with paw here sick, and me needing all the help I could get with the work, I didn't see how we could give them any lessons."

"Is she getting many pupils, do you know?" inquired Dr. Ames. "Oh, she's getting quite a lot, I guess. I was talking to Mrs. West—she is staying with Mrs. West because she didn't like to go to the hotel, and she said she thought Miss Ramsay was satisfied, and she said she seemed to think this was a lovely village."

"It is a nice place, isn't it? Well, what about Mr. Lafferty. What have you been giving him to eat—not too much, I hope?"

At nine p. m. of that same day, the village doctor might have been seen at Mrs. West's front gate—need it be said that it was not with professional intent? Miss Ramsay was not in—she had walked down to the old Wilkins place to pick some flowers to take back to her mother—would Dr. Ames come in and wait? The doctor would not wait—he went straight away to the Wilkins place, and among the dewy lilac bushes he found her whom he sought.

"Oh, Harry, you startled me," exclaimed The Girl.

"Sorry, I'm sure, but you oughtn't to be prowling around alone at this time in the evening."

"It is not late, and with houses and people in every direction it is not very much alone, and I am a better judge of what I ought to do than you are, and you have no business to tell me what you think about it anyway."

"I won't, I won't, we won't argue about it just now. Here, let me reach those branches for you—or have you all you want? Don't go—please, Muriel, sit down on this bench and talk to me for a while," the doctor pleaded.

"You may come back to the West's and talk to me there," responded the girl. "You can't have anything to say to me that can't be said there."

"Don't be too sure of that—"

"Then you have no right to say anything to me that can't be said there," interrupted Muriel.

"No right—what do you mean? You told me that you wouldn't marry me, but you never said I wasn't to ask you any more."

"A man who is going to marry another girl surely doesn't need to re-propose to all his old sweethearts—does he?"

"Marry another girl—who said—"

"Oh, I've heard how you've been chained to the side of one of the girls out here ever since you came."

"People always talk a great deal about things that they know nothing about—I haven't been chained to anybody's side—don't you believe me, Muriel? But then you wouldn't care anyway, would you?"

The Girl's militant air had disappeared. The lilacs dropped to the ground, someone was holding both her hands.

"I didn't intend to have anything to do with you at all while I was teaching here, Harry," she declared.

"Tell me—the youngsters will have to look for another teacher, won't they?"

"Well, I couldn't bear to have you marry another girl so I guess I have to do it myself."

And the moon had one more romantic scene to add to his private picture gallery, and Ben never knew that he had his own gossiping tendencies to blame for losing a regular passenger.

There has been much excitement among local fishermen over the fine catches of salmon in the pools only a step from the village. Quite a large number of small fish and several of good size have been landed, but as yet the really big ones have been shy of the fly, although big fellows frequently disport themselves at the top of the water to tantalize the fisherman. One of the biggest and gamiest of those caught was landed by W. E. Thornton on Tuesday.

POTATO PRODUCTS CO.

Hartland correspondent St. John Globe:

The potato-crop, which is the staple crop of Carleton county, promises to be up to the average though not quite as good as last year. The acreage is about the same as last year. The warm, wet weather which has prevailed for some time is conducive to rust but so far there is no appearance of this. Should this develop it will seriously damage the crop, as all the planters do not the systematic Bordeaux spraying which insures safety. The potato growers have had two good years and a good crop with a good market this year will put all the horny-handed sons of toil of Carleton county in Pierce-Arrows, Cadillacs, etc. and the Chevrolets will be left for their city cousins. But potatoes will have to sell at a good price to produce a profit this year. At the time of the great slump in the market two years ago, when potatoes were sold for 30c. a barrel, they were produced at the cost of 60c. This year on account of the price of seed, fertilizer and labor, it will cost $2 a barrel to grow potatoes. From this it may be seen that the life of a potato grower is not a flowery bed of ease. A market of $1 would mean ruin to many, while the 1914-15 price would stagger the best of them. The latter however is not anticipated.

For even if the market should be as unsatisfactory as stated, then the Carleton county grower would be in a much better condition, owing to the enterprise of Hatfield & Scott, the leading buyers in the county, who have erected and equipped a plant at Woodstock to manufacture potato products. They have there a plant which can now handle 1,000 bushels a day and turn out evaporated potatoes. There is a fairly good demand for this, which this year has increased by the demand from the war zone. They have now a contract for 1,000,000 pounds a month with the Imperial Government. In addition to this they have under the same roof a plant for manufacturing and canning a soup mixture consisting of potatoes, turnips and any ingredient of soup. This product finds a ready and ever increasing market. Last year they took at a good price all the turnips available in the county and did not have enough to supply the demand. The price paid was so attractive that the turnip acreage is very much larger than ever known before.

This summer they have fitted up a starch factory in the basement of their building in which they will use the unmarketable potatoes and if the price should get down to a paying basis potatoes can be turned into starch. The total potato crop of New Brunswick last year was 11,000,000 bushels. This year it will probably be somewhat larger. Yet if the three branches of this plant were to run full capacity it would make an appreciable difference in the amount of potatoes placed on the general market. The plant at present is not running, but will be opened as soon as the crop begins to move, and will employ 100 hands. It is equipped with every labor saving device known to the trade which includes an endless chain-bucket arrangement for lifting the potatoes from the car in the siding to the factory and a gravity shoot for carrying the factory product to the car. The head office of the company is in Hartland, presided over by H. H. Hatfield, a Carleton county boy, and looks after the buying end of the business. Mr. Scott, the other member of the firm, takes charge of the Montreal office and largely attends to the sale department. The Woodstock factory is merely a side line. Handling table and seed potatoes is their main business.

SAYS CORNS LIFT

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn, the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out with the fingers. It is a sticky ether compound which dries the moment it is applied and simply shrivels the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce of freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus. You are further warned that cutting at a corn is a suicidal habit.
