

MEXICANS UPHOLDING HUERTA
IN OPPOSING U. S. MEDIATION

Big Demonstration of Students and Laborers at the Capital
—Ambassador Lind Arrives and Is Closely Guarded by the Police.

[Canadian Press.]
Mexico City, Aug. 11.—Students and laborers, estimated at 100,000, paraded the streets of the capital yesterday carrying banners as a token of their approval of President Huerta's stand against accepting mediation by the United States.

President Huerta had given his approval to the demonstration and he and the members of the cabinet reviewed the parade from a balcony of the palace. There was no disorder.

TWO ARRESTED.
[Canadian Press.]
Mexico City, Aug. 11.—N. A. Jennings and Marvin Ferris, two American newspaper correspondents, were arrested last night after a long order of the Minister of the Interior. The nature of the charges against them is not made known. Jennings is a representative of the Hearst news papers and Ferris is a correspondent of a Los Angeles newspaper.

LIND HAS ARRIVED.
[Canadian Press.]
Mexico City, Aug. 11.—The arrival of John Lind, the man whose mysterious mission to Mexico was the direct cause of a public manifestation yesterday in support of Gen. Huerta's attitude toward American mediation, has of itself been devoid of any thrills.

When Mr. Lind, as the personal representative of President Wilson, alighted from his train last night after a tedious day's journey from Vera Cruz, there were only a few persons about the station, who seemed at all curious to watch his movements. Numerous newspaper photographers were on hand to subject him to the ordeal of flashlights, and Mr. Lind obligingly posed for many pictures.

Has Nothing to Say.
Mr. Lind persistently maintained that tactfully since he was summoned from his home to undertake his mission to Mexico. Just what he is to do here or just when he will open negotiations for which he has come here, is as great a mystery as before his arrival. He was accompanied to the capital by Mrs. Lind, by William W. Canada, the United States consul at Vera Cruz, and by Mr. William Bayard Hale, acting under instructions of the state department.

The party was received by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, secretary of the United States embassy, who has been acting as charge d'affaires since the departure of Ambassador Wilson. Charles E. Parker, a member of the embassy staff, accompanied the party to the hotel. The police in large numbers guarded the approach to the hotel, but as the party had been made a public spectacle, they had been made a public spectacle and took little interest in the arrivals.

Visited By Commander.
Before leaving Vera Cruz, Mr. Lind was visited by General Gustavo Maas, the military commander there, he being the first official of Mexico to meet him. The visit took place at the hotel where Mr. Lind is staying. General Maas said that he would endeavor to do all in his power to assist the American mission.

Expected Elections.
There is reason to believe that before Mr. Lind's mission to Mexico is ended he will have suggested more than a mere fulfillment of the promise of General Huerta that elections be held. It has been pointed out that the demand would not be wholly consistent, since the promise to hold elections in October has already been made and intimations of bad faith on the part of the provisional administration are regarded as out of taste at the present time. Mr. Lind does not propose to act hastily, though he will lose no time, as it may be that all his work in Mexico will be finished within three weeks and possibly much sooner.

If General Huerta persists in being unwilling to see him, Mr. Lind will transmit his communications through the charge, O'Shaughnessy of the United States Embassy.

A Brief Visit.
Mr. Lind and his wife did not come to Mexico prepared for anything but a brief visit, traveling with little baggage. The departure for Mexico was so hurried that it occurred to neither Mr. or Mrs. Lind that warmer clothing would be wanted in the uplands of Mexico. Last night Mr. Lind was without an overcoat and his wife without wraps in the cold air here.

ACCUSED COL. SAM
OF SQUANDERING
ABOUT $180,000

Bought Land for the King, It
Is Alleged, at Enormous Price.

White Elephant Unloaded on the Country for a Huge Sum.

[Canadian Press.]
Montreal, Aug. 11.—Facts are leaking out which suggest very strongly that $180,000 of the people's money has been wasted, according to a contention made today by the Daily Telegraph in the course of an article under the caption of "How Col. Sam Hughes Buys Land for the King." The article states that Hon. Sam Hughes has had a great white elephant loaded upon the country at a huge price.

Sold to Col. Hughes.
The Telegraph then gives the following details:
"On June 24, 1912, William Thomas Rodden sold to His Majesty King George V., represented by the Hon. Sam Hughes, parts of lots 8 and 9, parish of Lichine, with a combined area of about 150 acres, for $180,000 cash."

"Most of the property lay in the rear of the Forest and Stream Club, fronting on a public road and extending in the rear to the backs of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways. That was a distance of 1,333 yards."

An Enormous Price.
The sale price figured out at exactly $1,200 an acre for vacant land thirteen miles from the Montreal postoffice. The price was enormous for that property. By power of attorney, Col. Roy, at that time district officer commanding this military district acted for Col. Hughes. The King, who sold the land to the old Bel-Air race track for $45,000. Then on June 8, 1912, he bought the adjoining farm from the estate of the late Duncan McIntyre, the two blocks composing the farm that he sold to the county later for $180,000 cash.

Too Far Out.
It was announced that the land had been purchased to enable the militia of Montreal to have a fine rifle range within easy reach of the city. A modern military rifle has a range of at least 2,000 yards. The farm in its longest dimension extends only 1,333 yards, and it is thirteen miles from Montreal.

As one gentleman expressed it today: "Either the railway passengers are to be ridged with lead, or the Forest and Stream Club will be a pretty unhealthy place at which to dine."

The Telegraph, concluding the article, says: "A real estate man spoken to about the deal said Hon. Sam Hughes had been badly taken in on the deal, though he had been warned before the deal was completed that it was parting with too much cash for the property."

ACCUSES WORKINGMEN OF SHAMMING ILLNESS
Doctors Claim Malingering Is Very Prevalent Since Insurance Went in Force.

[Canadian Press.]
London, Aug. 11.—The alleged great prevalence of malingering under the insurance act, which introduced compulsory insurance by workingmen against sickness and old age, created great interest in a paper read by Sir John Collier, at the International Medical Congress today.

Sir John, who is a member of the Government advisory committee on the national insurance act, thought that the accusations brought against workingmen of malingering were exaggerated. He thought it would be unscientific to attempt to form any estimate based merely on the results of three or six months' working of the act. No one, he said, could know which view was correct until sufficient statistics were available.

It might, he thought, be necessary to take special precautions for the prevention of malingering when dealing with 13,000,000 people, nearly half of whom before the passage of the act, had not been insured against sickness. The vast majority of those who gave the impression that they were shamming, said Sir John, were those of poor physique, whose standard of health was at best far below the normal. This was especially true in the case of women.

Thousands of insured women, said Sir John, were absolutely unfit and would be permanent beneficiaries of the benefit funds. On infinitely larger class than the out-and-out malingers, according to the lecturer, would consist of patients of pessimistic temperament and mental cowardice, and the proper supervision of these on the part of the doctors would save many millions of pounds to the nation.

The question of malingering had, concluded Sir John, resolved itself into a battle in which the doctor was mostly triumphant, and X-rays had been often successfully used on the malingers.

Aila Haley To Have
Pasteur Treatment

Bitten by Dog That Caused Death of Boy Through Rabies, Mother of London Girl Has Decided to Take No Chances.

Mrs. Haley, of 69 Maple street, left this morning with her little daughter, Aila, for Ann Arbor, Mich., where the little girl will receive the Pasteur treatment. It is now nearly five weeks since the child was bitten by a dog in Detroit, believed to be the same animal that bit Percy Fuller, a boy who died in that city last week, suffering all the agonies of hydrophobia.

The little Aila girl is in the best of health, and the wound has been healed for over two weeks, but Mrs. Haley decided to take no chances on her child being liable to develop the dread disease. As little Aila was bitten in Detroit, authorities to consult with the local health authorities, that Ann Arbor rather than Toronto would be the proper place for the child to receive the Pasteur treatment.

Lawson Says West

[Canadian Press.]
Winnipeg, Aug. 11.—There never has been any doubt as to the solid worth of prosperity of Western Canada in the mind of the foremost of American financiers, said Thomas W. Lawson, the famous financier of Boston, on his arrival in the city last night. Mr. Lawson intended to go further west, but was recalled on account of the Mexican situation. Lawson pointed out that with such a splendid prosperity as existed in the west at present, there could be no doubt that the country would be tremendously successful. Speaking on the Mexican situation, Mr. Lawson thought the powers would co-operate with the administration of the United States.

FARMERS LOST HEAVILY IN
TERRIFIC ELECTRICAL STORM

Oats Were Flattened All Through the District, Barns Burned
and Cattle Killed—Around Thamesford Hail
Cut the Corn to Pieces.

One of the most destructive storms of the season swept through this district early on Sunday morning, causing damage that will run into thousands, burning many barns, killing cattle and beating down the crops.

LOST HIS CROPS.
[Special to The Advertiser.]
Glanworth, Aug. 10.—During the heavy storm here early today, lightning struck the fine barn of John McPherson, on the 9th concession of Westman, and before anything was done to save it, the structure was a mass of flames. A horse standing near by was also struck and instantly killed. Mr. McPherson lost all his season's hay and some grain.

FIVE PLACES STRUCK.
[Special to The Advertiser.]
Kelley's Siding, Aug. 10.—The worst of this district today. In a short time lightning struck no less than five places, causing damage that fortunately was not serious. At J. Webb's, when a bolt struck the barn, the hay took fire at once. Hard work by neighbors and the family prevented the fire from destroying the barn, and only one side was badly scorched. At Mr. Annet's a barn was struck but no fire resulted. Wm. Wiseman's barn was also struck and a side partly torn out, together with some of the stone work. No fire resulted. At J. BARN WAS BURNED.
[Special to The Advertiser.]
Glanworth, Aug. 10.—Edward Stanley, residing near here, lost his fine barn, together with the season's hay, when lightning struck it early today. HYDRO HIT BY
THE BIG STORM
Supply for the Traction Company Gave Out Several Times
Saturday and Sunday.

PRIVATE HOMES AFFECTED
Taking into consideration the severity of Saturday night's electrical storms local lighting and power systems escaped with practically no loss or interruptions. The storm, rivaling as it did the terrific disturbances of the previous night, was one calculated to do untold damage to power and light wires, but by some trick of fate those in London managed to escape.

Isolated Wires Out.
On the London Electric circuits, while there was some trouble in sections, there was not even a sign of general disturbance either on Saturday or Friday. Scattered services wires tapping the circuits for private home lighting were put out of commission temporarily. That was the extent of the lightning's damage to the private service.

An Hour's Break.
On the Traction Company the interruptions were more frequent and of longer duration. The long wait for an hour's break in the hydro supply between 11 and 12 o'clock Saturday night.

The gun was being taken down to the pier by a party of gunners with Sergt. Hirtle in charge.

Two Trainmen Were Instantly Killed
[Canadian Press.]
Regina, Sask., Aug. 11.—Carelessness in operation accounted for the loss of two more lives on the Grand Trunk Pacific, south of Regina, Friday night. A machinist named McQueen and his assistant Lars Oscar were cut to pieces, and a third man was seriously injured. The men were working under an engine, which for some reason was left unprotected by signals, when another engine bumped into them and the men were cut to pieces.

THREE MARQUETTE CARS
DERAILED NEAR THE PORT
Three Pere Marquette passenger cars heavily loaded, were derailed near Port Stanley today at noon near the spot where the four cars were derailed last Thursday.

As far as can be learned none of the passengers were injured but the line will likely be tied up for some time. As this is a busy holiday season the traffic today between that place and Port Stanley was unusually heavy.

ERNEST MASON WAS DROWNED AT GODERICH

Clung to Boat Upset in Gale Until He Was Almost Safe.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Goderich, Aug. 10.—Thrown into the Maitland River when his boat overturned in a stiff gale, Ernest Mason, of Toronto, was drowned this afternoon.

Mason was here installing a sprinkler system in the Western Canada flour mill. He, with a companion workman named Jennings, had been off the shore in a rowboat, but in returning home a northwest breeze had sprung up, which created a heavy surf at the mouth of the river, and when rounding in the small boat capsized, throwing both men into the water. Each managed to climb on top of the overturned craft, and they were within apparently easy reach of rescuing boats which had put out from shore, when the unfortunate man let go and was washed away, sinking immediately in ten or twelve feet of water.

Jennings was rescued safely, but the body of Mason was not found until an hour later, when it washed ashore close to the scene of the fatal fatality. Medical aid was immediately available, but efforts at resuscitation were of no avail.

Deceased leaves a wife and one child.

Settlement Has Averted Lawsuit

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ingersoll, Aug. 11.—A timely settlement has destroyed the likelihood of litigation between the corporation and Mr. C. C. Morrison, proprietor of the City Flour Mills. For some time the raceway on King street east, leading to the mills has been in an unsatisfactory state, and the question of responsibility has been a debatable one.

Mr. Morrison was looking to the town to recompense him for loss of power through receiving an insufficient water supply, and the corporation on the other hand disputed liability.

After the matter had been drawn out at considerable length, and a lawsuit was imminent, an amicable settlement arrived at, the understanding being that a cement culvert is to be constructed across the street, the cost of which will be met equally by Mr. Morrison and the corporation.

CORRESPONDENCE

Wardsville High School Reunion.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

What man or woman, the world over, has not, at times, a longing to visit the home of their childhood? They must be calloused souls, indeed, who cannot live again those happy days, and feel an impulse to drop everything and take their journey straight "back home."

How Woodworth stirs our memory with his song:

"How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood,
When fond recollection presents them to view;
The orchard, the meadow, the deep-tangled wildwood,
And every loved spot which my in-fancy knew;
The wide-spreading pond, and the mill that stood by it,
The bridge, and the rock, where the cataraet fell;
The cot of my father, the dairy house high it,
And e'en the rude bucket that hung in the well."

Riley tells us how he chased dull care away, when a boy:

"Noon time, June time,
Down along the river,"

And every one of us just revels in Whittier's recollections of rollicking boyhood days:

"Blessings on thee, little man,
Barefoot boy, with cheek of tan!
With thy turned-up pantaloons,
And thy merry whistled tunes;
With thy red lip, redder still,
Kissed by strawberries on the hill;
With the sunshine on thy face,
Through thy torn brim's jaunty grace;
From my heart I give thee joy;
I was once a barefoot boy."

And we, when our daily cares are laid aside, when we are resting quietly in our favorite nook, let our memories wander back as did the poets. In retrospect we see again the chubby boys and girls barefoot, hatless, care-free and happy. Once more we chase the butterfly, and fish and swim and fight; perchance fancy takes us along the river or through the wood. Every shadow is an Indian, to be chased and scalped; every overhanging bank a robber's cave to be explored. Every school teacher was a hobgoblin, who devoured had boys who did not learn the Ten Commandments or multiplication tables, or they administered punishments equal to swallowing us alive.

Girls and boys of Wardsville, what say you? Shall we have a reunion of former high school students? Shall we take a day off, and forgetting the fret of care, romp together once more as we did twenty or thirty years ago? Let's do it! We will be the better for it. How would the first week in September do? Will all former Wards-

vile students who read this write to the secretary of the school board or postmistress, at Wardsville?

JOHN I. HARPER,
Class 1883,
Allentown, Pa.

DRAMATIC POWER.

[Judge.]

"Your brother who waits on the table is much more countrified than you," remarked the summer boarder. "He's a regular rube." "That isn't my brother, replied the farmer's daughter. "Has an actor father hired in the city to kid the guests?"

PARTY CONTRIBUTIONS.
The chief Conservative organ in Ontario has lately been lecturing the people of Canada on corruption in politics, and the evils that result from contributions to campaign funds
by corporations, contractors, promoters and others who have a pecuniary
interest in the success of either party.
It gives expression to some very sound
ideas, and suggests as a partial remedy the plan adopted in Great Britain,
and in the United States at the last presidential election, of requiring the publication of subscription lists.

That sounds very well. The evil complained of undoubtedly exists; its effects are demoralizing, not only on the persons and parties directly concerned, but on the public conscience.
Whether the remedy suggested would be effective may be uncertain, but the need of a remedy is undoubted. Unfortunately the sincerity of the preacher of political purity may be questioned. It was no secret that during the last general election certain powerful interests of the Dominion opened the money-bags to the Conservative party.
Nor, if the reports are true, were the contributors to the party fund confined to Canada. Mr. Whelpley, in his article in the Century Magazine for August, discussing trade relations between the Dominion and the States,
plainly intimates that the same interests that fought reciprocity across the border took a hand in the contest here,
and rather sincerely suggests that our self-respect would not be gratified if we realized how much the defeat of reciprocity was due to help from the other side. Be that as it may, there is not much question as to the source
from which the party funds were replenished, so far as Canadian contributors were concerned. But we did not hear anything about the impropriety
of receiving these subscriptions at that time.

It is not so very long since it came out accidentally that a contractor who had a claim against the Ontario Government paid over $500 to the Provincial Secretary. When it was discovered, and not before, the recipient and the Premier admitted that it was an indiscreet action, but the Government and its supporters showed how they felt by resisting all further inquiry, and by passing a vote of censure on the member who brought the transaction to light. We did not hear a word at that time from the new professor of morals on the immorality of this transaction. Its utterances now are either insincere, or else they indicate a very late repentance.

Admitting that in an election contest the Liberals would be perhaps prompt as the Conservatives to receive contributions without questioning too closely their source—fortunately or unfortunately as one may consider it, the Liberals have not as much to give for the money as their opponents, and therefore do not receive it.

That there is an evil, will be admitted in theory by all; whether in practice there would be a united effort to cure it, is doubtful. The remedy suggested, that of publicity, would be all right if it could be made effective. But it would be evaded to a greater or less degree. It might, however, be tried. If the law required all contributions to an election fund,
either local or general, as well as all direct pecuniary assistance given any candidate, to be published, and severe penalties inflicted for any violation, something would be gained. The only remedy is a higher standard of public and private morals, opposed to political corruption, not only in its direct
form, but even in the most indirect.
We are far from that now, but it is not unattainable.

"SCIENTIFIC GENTS."
Professors and scientists, especially perhaps geologists, are a common mark of the rude humorist. It is good fun to contemplate their bald heads, their spectacles, their abstraction, their often fine-spun or mistaken theories, their manifest eccentricities, the suggestive preoccupation with fossils. Is not the dyer's or the geologist's hand subdued
to what it works in?

But the jesting covers a sort of envy,
too. It is obvious that these students
of nature's volume enjoy themselves.
Their life, laborious though it may be,
and painfully specialized, yields, to them mysterious sources of interest
and joy that to the common uninitiated
are almost magical. They incline their ear to unheard melodies, and to the unvoiced sermons of the stones. So many people weary more or less of life. The human scene affords no pleasure and even the simpler interests of nature lose their savor. But the geologist or the botanist or entomologist pursuing his unlimited material finds no end of study, excitement
and the satisfaction of having anticipation of more. The scientist is always following the gleam which so many people think they have passed

by never to see again.

To the geologist a walk in the country
may not be in a general way entertaining. It depends on what kind of country it is, and he pretty soon knows where to find what he wants. A botanist may start out on a walk with you
and he lights upon some old dead twigs in a brush pile or a scrubby bush with fading leaves. There is a scurf on the bark of those twigs or a blight on the leaves that may amazingly interest
him. He lets you help him gather a few hundred samples and has several evening's amusement ahead, sorting,
microscoping, selecting, smoothing and cataloguing the discovery, and then mailing specimens to distant brothers
in the mystery who receive them with mingled feelings of envy and delight
and later counter upon their friend
with feats of their own.

To the scientist the world is very exciting at all times. Modern education is not even yet doing what it might to stimulate the scientific spirit with its openings upon the enjoyment of life.
Most of us find ourselves shut out from the temple of subtler pleasures that the botanist or geologist knows.

The great men gathered from all lands at Toronto deserve our respect for their joie de vivre hardly less than
for their contributions to human welfare. They may spend long hours over books and papers and chemical tests,
but much of their work must of necessity be done on foot in the open, often in the wilds. Canada offers a glorious field to the visitors. If our human history is slight in comparison with some countries, our geological history is a long one. Northern Ontario, for example, is one of the oldest regions of the world. The mineralogical field is extraordinarily rich and in spite of great labors by Canadian geologists not more than grazed over as yet. The right men have come to visit the right country, and we all hope that they are having the time of their life,
and, to be candid, that we shall make something out of it ourselves.

The Minister of Militia continues to scatter drill halls over a smiling land.

Governor Sulzer of New York has fallen off his pedestal. The man who climbs there with a Tammany ladder
is not likely to stay there.

The dockmen helping Sylvia Pankhurst break London's Sabbath and po-licemen's heads had no doubt other reasons than a zeal for woman suffrage.

President Huerta of Mexico has promised to hold a general election in three months and let the people choose a ruler. But these general election promises may be worth no more, in Mexico than in Canada.

The San Jose scale has been found in unsprayed orchards in this county.
This is not one of the things that can be permitted to "stay in Middlesex."

A delegate to the World's Medical Congress estimates that between 250, 000,000 and 500,000,000 teeth are lost or decayed in Great Britain every year.
This would be more serious if Britain
were a country where they eat corn on the cob.

The city of New York is to experience
another Titanic battle between the forces of good and evil in the civic arena. The enemies of Tammany have sunk party differences and will put up a fusion ticket against the Tiger. The fusion nominee for mayor is John P.
Mitchell, a Democrat, with a clean
municipal record. Charles S. Whitman, the gallant Republican lawyer, who has been fighting for the public in the Rosenthal case, has accepted a renomination as district attorney. He aspired to the mayoralty, but having been beaten by Mitchell in convention, he showed his quality by taking the minor place on the ticket. The Tammany choice for mayor will probably again
fall on Gaynor, who, after a show of virtue and independence early in his term, has thrown himself into the arms
of the Tammany bosses.

MY CONSCIENCE.
[James Whitcomb Riley, in Century.]
Sometimes my Conscience says, says
he,
"Don't you know me?"
And I, says I, sneered through and said,
"Of course I do."
"You air a nice chap ever way,
I'm here to say!"
You make me cry—you make me pray,
And all them good things that away—
That is, at night. Where do you stay Durin' the day?"

And then my Conscience says, on't
more,
"You know me—shore?"
"Oh, yes," says I, a-trimblin' faint,
"You're jes' a saint!"
Your ways is all so holy-right,
I love you better ever night
You come around—tel plum daylight,
When you air out o' sight!"

And then my Conscience sort o' grits
His teeth, and spits
On his two hands and grabs, of course,
Some old remorse,
And beats me with the big butt-end,
O' that thing—tel my closest friend,
"Be hardy know me." "Now," says he,
"Be kerful as you'd orto be
And allus think o' me!"

DRESS REFORM NEEDED.
[Detroit Free Press.]
If the "right people" would only set out to combat this foolish, even wicked
extravagance in dress by refusing to regard a garment as "out of style" because it is three months old, they might do something toward counteracting feminine folly. Because the mass of women do deprecate this casting aside of good garments because they are "out of style," and many of them would brave
fashion if they felt a little encourag-

ment from those whose position, social standing and wealth count in society.
The newly-rich will not do it, because spending money is their chief diversion;
the fashionists cannot; the only hope is in
people of our truly "best" society who will limit their own dress expenditures.

ASSAULT.
[New York Sun.]
Algy—Why do you think she is a window-smashing suffragette?
Cholly—She looked vewy viciously at my monocle.

ACCEPTED.
[Life.]
"Early is in financial difficulties."
"How?"
"Offered his creditors ten cents on the dollar, and they accepted it."

BASEBALL.
[Detroit Free Press.]
"Did your son graduate with honors?"
"I should say he did. He had a batting average of .375."

DIVERSE IMPRESSIONS.
[Washington Star.]
"My new gown," said Mrs. Flingit,
"is a dream."
"It may be a dream for you," replied
her husband, "but it's insomnia for me."

FOOLING THE POSTOFFICE.
[Philadelphia Ledger.]
"James, my son, did you take that letter to the postoffice and pay postage
on it?"
"Father, I saw a lot of men putting letters in a place, and when no one was looking I slipped yours in for nothing."

TRUTH WILL OUT.
[Boston Transcript.]
She—If I'd known you'd be such a brute
to poor Fido, I'd never have married
you.
He—The anticipated pleasure of kicking that miserable little beast was one of my chief reasons for proposing.

NOT A HERO.
[Saskatoon Phoenix.]
The one thing that marred the visit of the real estate men was the regrettable flag incident. Trifling as it was in reality, the undue importance and prominence given to it by the Star was unfortunate. The little flag, instead of being the "hero," is quite the opposite.
Self-control and obedience are the marks
of a soldier, not meddlesomeness and impertinence.

RIGHT KIND OF CONTRIBUTION.
[Toronto Star.]
The British navy may get its oil from the Athabasca district. This is the kind of Canadian contribution that might well be permanent.

Often breaks at the interesting place.

AROUND THE CITY HALL.
Simple Life Cult Grows.
Since City Clerk Samuel Baker has returned, the city has been enjoying a successful simple-life holiday, there is talk of forming a "simple life" cult around the city clerk's health.

The general improvement in the city clerk's health has been such that the other city officials are en-
vying him now, and a multitude of promises for a simple-life holiday have been made since Mr. Baker again resumed his duties.

trate of London.

Big Funeral For Accident Victim
[Special to The Advertiser.]
Glanworth, Aug. 9.—An immense gathering of friends and relatives assembled at the home of James Fowler, Glanworth, yesterday afternoon, to attend the funeral of his son, Thomas Fowler, who met death by accident in a grave pit last Saturday. A very impressive funeral service was conducted by Rev. T. L. Fowler, of West
London, at the residence of the deceased.

The hymns, "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "Nearer My God to Thee," were rendered by the choir of the Eighteenth Presbyterian Church. After the service the remains were taken to St. Thomas Cemetery, where a large number of friends from the city and surrounding country awaited the cortage. The pallbearers were George and Archie Thomson, Earl and Daniel Fox,
Earl Fowler, Mrs. Lorne, Mrs. J. B.
Doolittle and son, Chatham, and Thomas Crawford, Tillsonburg.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE
Fine Program at the Florence Meeting
Was Much Enjoyed.
[Special to The Advertiser.]
Florence, Aug. 11.—The Women's Institute held its regular monthly meeting for August at the home of Mrs. Lindsay. Mrs. McFarlane gave a very interesting paper on canning
fruits and many good recipes and ideas
were given. Mrs. (Dr.) Unsworth Cragg, of Detroit, rendered a piano solo most acceptably.

A good deal of business was transacted. It was decided that the institute serve lunch on the Florence fair
day, and that the proceeds go in aid
of a new town hall.

The next meeting will be held at the residence of Mrs. E. F. Hall, when the Croton Institute will take full charge of the entire program.

Mrs. Adams, the president, was present, also a good many members,
making the meeting one of splendid interest.

NOT ADVANTAGES OF PARADISE.
[Lebanon Herald.]
All that's the matter with us out here
is that we think we should have smooth
sailing with weather, crops and money
all the time. We have to get rid of it all. The West is just as good as any other country in the world, but it isn't favored with all the advantages of Paradise.

ROCKFELLER'S MONOPOLY.
[Buffalo Courier.]
John D. Rockefeller says he is still only a boy. But if that is true, surely by the time he becomes an old man
nobody else in the country will have a dollar left.

LOOKS LIKE IT.
[Hamilton Times.]
We are afraid that the future chronicler will write down the Minister of Labor as a failure. He has been particularly unfortunate in his attempts to settle the labor disputes that have come before him.

GOOD ROADS.
[Montreal Telegram.]
Good roads do benefit the automobiles. But never let us forget that they make it easier to live in the country,
easier to farm, easier to have neighbors, easier to use church and school.
Let us not forget either that they make it easier for the farmer to market his produce, in short, that they contribute to land values both on the industrial and social sides.

FORCE OF EXAMPLE.
[Punch.]
Old Lady (offering policeman a tract)
"I often think you poor policemen run
a risk of becoming bad, being so constantly mixed up with crime."
Policeman—"You needn't fear, mum.
It's the criminals who run the risk of becom'g misers mixed up with us."

ONE VIEW OF A VEXED QUESTION.
[Punch.]
"I shouldn't mind, myself, if they closed the 'pubs' a couple o' hours sooner than they do. If a man ain't full by 'air-past ten,' he ain't trying."

EARLY GENIUS.
[Penny Pictorial.]
Proud Father—Why, the other boy of mine will be a wonder!
Friend (wearily)—What wonderful
thing has he done now?

Proud Father—Why, the other day he ate all the preserves in the pantry. I overheard him say, as he smeared the cat's face with the stuff: "I'm sorry,
Tom, to do this, but I can't have the old
foks suspect me."

DEMAND FOR GIRLS AT CHILDREN'S AID BEYOND SUPPLY

Very Few of the Lassies Remain
in the Shelter For Long.

But of Boys There Are Four Bright Little Fellows Awaiting Adoption.

Femininity has an allurements and an appeal that every gallant person of the masculine gender is willing to concede. From the Biblical times of Adam, when he followed Eve's pleading, to the present age and generation,
it has been the feminine sex that has appealed to the world at large, more than the "mere man." It is the "female
of the species" that has the inside
track of human feelings.

Home for Little Girls.
Ever might be taken as an example
of that, but it is unnecessary to go back to the creation of the world to find its truth. Right in London at the present time it is being demonstrated in a thousand and one ways.
One of these examples may be found at the Children's Shelter on the Wharfedale road south. Homeless little waifs, deserted children, tots who have been removed from environments
and surroundings detrimental to their moral and physical training, all find a shelter there till foster-homes are found for them by the Children's Aid Society. It is a matter of record that not a little girl, except she be sickly
or otherwise unfit to go out to a foster-home ever remains in the shelter for any length of time.

Supply and Demand.
When the law of supply and demand
is applied to little girls for adoption,
it is found that the supply falls far short of the demand. There are not enough little girls under the care of the Children's Aid Society at any time to supply the demands for girls for adoption. Little boys may remain in the home for some time before desirable homes are found for them, but with the little girls it is a different proposition.

Just why this should be is a social question that has apparently never been settled. It is true of every children's aid society in the country, and not of London alone. One explanation that has been offered is a truly feminine one. It is the woman's voice which rules the home, says this explanation,
and it is the woman's voice that determines just who shall be adopted.

Something to "Fuss" Over.
With true feminine instinct the woman wants something to "fuss over."
There is too much of what some are inclined to call "the devil" in the hearts of the average boy to stand for this "fussing," and it is therefore to the little girls of the Children's Shelter
that the woman who desires a child
for adoption turns. She wants a companion, wants more than that—someone that she can dress, can wash and comb, and "fuss up." She wants a girl.

Boys are all right, but the feminine instinct can hardly be said to be true
out-let in dressing and caring for a boy.
There are no creations to think up for the boys, no little touches, and little furbelows to add to his dress. Half-coming to a boy is torture. To a little girl it is a pleasure and a luxury.

This, then, is the reason why the girls are taken from the home and the boys are left. Not all the latter, of course, remain there, but it is a fact that under 10 years of age there is little or no demand for mere boys. On the other hand, girls of all ages, from the infant to the young woman, are in demand.

At present there are four bright little boys of about 8 years of age
who are in the home waiting for adoption. They are too young to understand the fine points of feminine instinct that keeps them there, while their girl companions come, stay only a short time, and then go away, adopted by someone who wants a girl—any kind of a girl, any age of a girl, as long as it is a girl.

Beautiful Tribute
To Col. Little

Referring to the death of Col. J. W.
Little, the Christian Guardian in its last issue has the following:

It is with sincere regret that we note
the death of Lieut.-Col. J. W. Little,
of London, on July 22, at his country residence, Hazeldean. In his death London has lost one of her most illustrious sons, a large-hearted, public-spirited citizen, and the First Methodist Church
one who has ever been faithful in attendance at divine worship, and who has been a loyal and generous supporter of all the schemes of the church.
Mr. Little had been actively associated with the organization and development
of several great business enterprises,
until he came to be recognized as one of the leading financial figures of the Dominion. He was twice mayor of London, and might have held the portfolio of a cabinet minister had he aspired to a public life. In his death,
too, a home is bereft of an affectionate
husband and a strong yet tender father,
whose pride and confidence in his seven sons will be justified by the fruitage of the coming years. To these mourning ones whose hearts know their own sorrow we would extend our profound sympathy, and pray that divine grace
may comfort and sustain them in these hours when the shadows of a great and unspoken grief gather about them. The funeral service, simple but beautiful,
was in charge of the pastor, Rev. Dr.
Flanders, who was assisted by Rev.
James Kennedy and two former pastors of the deceased, Rev. Dr. Rutledge and Rev. Dr. J. W. Graham.

Case of Pellagra Found in England

[Canadian Press.]
London, Aug. 11.—The publication of a photograph led to the discovery of pellagra in England within the last month. In July the photograph of a boy victim of pellagra under treatment at St. Thomas Hospital appeared in a medical journal, and since then doctors in various parts of the country reported cases of the disease.
Symptoms, which had been very puzzling to them, were explained by the photograph.

Old Home Week Closed at Aylmer

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Aylmer, Aug. 11.—The Old Home
Week, which came to a close on Saturday night, was a great success.
Thousands of people from all over
Canada and the States visited Aylmer
during the week, and all had the best kind of a time.
Several of the shows that were on the midway at the exhibition grounds
owing to lack of business there, moved up town and did good business, as also did several street men.
The Twenty-fifth Regiment Band of St. Thomas furnished abundance of music, and the crowds had a rollicking
evening. Roughness was conspicuous.

Cotton Frocks for All-Winter Wear To Be Fashions In Paris, Writes Maybelle Mortimer

ALSO SHE PROPHESES THAT THE "VANITY BAG" IS ON THE WANE.

Paris, Aug. 8.—There is nothing more omnipresent in the costume of the late summer than the fancy bag, but it looks as if this season will see its final gasp. For we are told that one of the things which Dame Fashion is sure to introduce this fall is the pocket, ON THE SKIRT.

However, there is nothing more coquettish than the universal handbag of lace, silk or embroidery that is being carried now. If you have a "head bag" that has come down to you from great grandmother, be sure to use it, for those old-fashioned bags, over the making of which our ancestors ruined their eyes, is most popular.

The little gown in the picture is one of those stunning frocks which look so simple and cost so much.

It is of white silk voile with a broad band of embroidered cluny lace around the bottom. The kimono waist is made wholly of the embroidered lace. The belt and bag are of green and white striped satin and the hat is of white Panama with white chiffon trimmings and "a green carnation" at the very edge of the brim.

Of the other bags shown the heavy crocheted lace one can be carried with a white tailored suit. The head bag is, of course, to be carried with a visiting or theatre costume, and the little silk one can be made of any color to blend with diaphanous summer frocks.

It looks as though the wash gowns will be worn as long as possible. I find that every year here women are wearing cotton frocks in the house all winter.

Already the wily French manufacturer has arrived at this fact and you find cotton materials that are as expensive as silk, and much more beautiful, being made in France. I am told, too, that the American cotton mills are making higher priced materials.

Out of all this frivolous fashion news the economical girl can get much comfort from the fact that she can wear her summer gowns all through the winter and be in the very latest style!

Servant Problem An Old One

The question as to the advisability of women working, which agitates the public mind from time to time, was a pressing one in Athens 2300 years ago. In the Memorabilia Xenophon tells of a conversation that Socrates had with Aristarchus on the subject.

Aristarchus was complaining that he had no income to support the sisters and nieces and cousins who had come to his house for refuge because of the disturbed condition of the country.

Socrates made the obvious suggestion that the ladies go to work. Accordingly Aristarchus provided the material, and they got busy spinning and weaving, with exceedingly happy results.

Only one source of discord developed. Life proved so easy under the circumstances that Aristarchus did nothing himself and the women complained that he was "the only person in a house that ate the bread of idleness."

Human nature and human problems continue much the same from age to age.

Afternoon Tea

[By B. Merry.]

Madge, Alfred and Elsie were having a lovely picnic on the seashore. A fire was lighted between some bricks, and a kettle of water was boiling merrily. They arranged the cups on the sands, with plates of bread and butter and cake, and the picnic was in full swing. "How much nicer this is than a picnic in the country," said Alfred. "Keep away, Mr. Sea!" cried Madge. "Please, don't come up till we have quite done." "I'll build a bank with my spade," said Alfred, "that Mr. Sea will not be able to get over." But as he spoke one long wave came rolling up so near that they heard it hiss as it rolled back. "Never mind," said Elsie, the eldest, "we have nearly done. There is time for another piece of cake all around, and then the rude sea can be rude." But just then Old Ben, the fisherman, appeared, and hearing Elsie's words, said, with a laugh: "You had the tent put too near the water, miss. Let me shift it farther out for you. It is done in a few minutes. The children helping, and there, beyond the reach of the waves, the happy picnic came at last to an end." "After all," said Elsie, "it has been a very nice day. Mr. Sea has not come an inch farther than he has a right to, while we began our picnic on sand that belonged to him." "Then, Mr. Sea," said Alfred solemnly, "forgive us for being rude, but we have had a lovely picnic all the same."

Convict Hands Gather These Pearls

The sunny flower fields of Southern France and the Valley of Roses in Bulgaria! How sweet, how lovely they must be!

This is the thought which enters madly's head as she dresses for the dance, the dinner party or the theatre, provided, of course, she thinks at all of the source of the lovely scent perfume which she sprinkles judiciously on her hair and handkerchief.

For it is known to all women that the convicts of France in French Guiana. South America, are the real gatherers of attar of roses.

When Sweet Sixteen or Sweet Twenty-two adds a drop of perfume to her so-called little handkerchief she knows not what villainous deed may have been committed by the convict hand that gathered the material which entered into that sweet odor. In the black tropical forests of French Guiana it probably was gathered.

And the hand that brought it from those forests may in the meantime have been cutting in death, for the convicts die off rapidly.

The "Oil of Rosewood" extracted from a unique variety of rosewood tree found only in French Guiana is being produced by seven factories and exported to the United States. At least, back to France, which last year received $100,000 worth of the oil which is used as a substitute for and as an adulterant of attar of roses. It brings about $1.75 a pound, whereas the genuine attar of roses is vastly more expensive.

France has at the present time 8,000 convicts in her South American penal colony. Twice a year the convict ship goes from the mother country with its cargo of prisoners, safely secured in steel cages. The death rate among them is said to be terrific. The French Government formerly sent many prisoners to New Caledonia, but most of them now go to French Guiana. About 2,000 a year are sent, but as many have died the total is not so great as it might be thought.

Many of these prisoners manage to escape through the forests to British and Dutch Guiana, despite the guards constantly on lookout for them. In Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, there are agents of a society formed in France of friends of the convicts, who provide them with money and further their efforts to escape.

As long as the convicts and the rosewood of French Guiana hold out—and there seems to be no immediate prospect that either will be exhausted soon—the users of perfumes.

There is no danger that a failure to harvest the Damascus rose crop in the Valley of Roses will produce a dearth of sweet-scented perfume for midday's toilette.

The convicts of French Guiana are strong-armed men, and they have masters to goad them on, if need be, to tell more rosewood trees in the tropical jungles of South America. To men, even convicts, transferred from the delightful climate of France to the tropical heat of French Guiana, the change must be hard to bear. It is but natural that they die off rapidly.

WHAT WE'LL WEAR.

According to the Dry Goods Economies in the early fall lines of dresses the selling numbers are these made of crepe de chine, canton crepe and charmeuse. Among the selections for immediate retailing are many practical dresses in navy, taupe, prune and black. The dress models include terra cotta, Copenhagen and French blue, bisque, beige, Paquin green, reddish purple, bright green, yellow, copper and various shades of red. Very sheer effects appear in the waists. The simple models have the transparent vestee and short undersleeves, as well as the Medici collars of lace or net. The dressier models have practically the whole waist developed in chiffon, tulle, lace or net over a sheer lining. The models now being shipped are mostly of a simple character. They include the pleated Russian blouses, the three-tiered styles, and the simulated apron designs. These are often finished off with surplus bouffant having sleeves, collars and sleeves of net. Plaids are coming into popularity, not only for the trimmings, but also for the Russian blouses, fancy waists and underskirts of dresses.

FLOWERS ON BATH CAPS.

A cap that would make any woman look well in the water is one of the new rubber caps trimmed with flowers. The cap is the most practical sort imaginable, for the flowers are of rubber.

A violet colored cap of rubber, with a rubber frill about the face, and a deeper rubber frill to protect the neck from the sun's burning rays, shows a little bunch of beautiful violets at one side of the head. The flowers are really lovely and look quite like their living prototypes.

A cap of deep red rubber, made in the same fashion as the violet one, is adorned with a bunch of half-open roses and the shape and color of Jacquemont roses.

These caps are sold in little striped bandboxes of dark brown and gold paper. They are worth the price, for they are durable and really delightfully pretty.

LESSON LAUNDRY BILLS.

Crepe paper towels offer one means of lessening the work of the laundress in the summer, or, if the laundry is done out of the house, of lessening the size of the laundry bill. The towels, of substantial thickness, are sold in packages of a hundred for 50 cents.

Granted that they can be used only a few times—sometimes only once—before they are worn out, they are as long as a freshly-laundried huckaback towel, and the price charged in most laundries for washing and ironing a huckaback towel is 24 cents, the price of five paper towels. Moreover, the wear and tear which the huckaback towels would otherwise have is saved.

Nickel holders can be had for holding the towels, but the towels can be easily managed without the holders, as they can be bought neatly folded.

Wherever a true wife comes, the home is always round her. The stars only may be over her head; the glow-worm in the night-cold grass may be the only fire at her foot; but home is wherever she is.—John Ruskin.

A spirit pure as hers
Is always pure, even while it errs;
As Sunshine, broken in the fall,
Though turned astray, is sunshine still.

The Top and the Ball

AS TOLD BY AUNT GERTIE.

Chapter III.

Why he just thought and thought and thought, until he suddenly came to the surprising conclusion that this very ball, mud-spattered, old, worn, ugly-looking, was the same beautiful Miss Bouncing Ball he used to love.

You think he was quite right over to her and tell her of his love?

No, you are wrong.

He just kept his thoughts to himself and waited to see whether she would ever say a kind word about the Twirling Top who used to ask her to marry him in the old happy days.

He waited and waited, hoped and hoped.

She never even mentioned his name.

After a week in the rubbish can, Twirling Top felt a sharp bump on his side of the house. Then he felt, violently, between cabbage and green cobs and carrot tops right up near the top of the can.

Another bump, and out he jumped right onto the backyard paving, near the kitchen door!

"Oh, what joy to feel the air once more," he said to himself. Just as he hit the pavement, someone—it was the little kitchen maid—cried out, gleefully, "Oh, here is the gilt top. I've found the little master's gilt top!"

So Mr. Twirling Top was taken back to the playroom once more. He had a good scrub and then commenced his old work of spinning.

Sometimes the other playthings in the nursery talked about the poor ball, Miss Bouncing Ball, who had been so proud.

They wondered, where she could have gone so mysteriously.

But Twirling Top never said a word!

PROBLEMS OF THE FAIR SEX SOLVED BY CYNTHIA GREY

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letters can be answered privately.]

An Appreciative Reader.

Dear Miss Grey: For some time you have been a constant reader of your very useful and interesting, also humorous column. How skillfully you deal with all questions, finding a balm for all troubles from lovers' quarrels down to the extermination of beetles! Well, some of those lovers whose tangles you have straightened out will marry, and the young wife will want to make a lemon pie for her husband man, and as all recipes in cook books are not reliable, I am sending you one of my own composition that is as nearly perfect as any I have ever used. The directions must be followed exactly, as using the right spoons when measuring ingredients: Great pans of very cold oil of one medium-sized lemon; add juice of same; add half-cup sugar, butter size of a walnut; stir to a cream in a common kitchen cup; put two dessertspoonsful, a little more than level full of cornstarch, add three tablespoonfuls of cold water; mix smooth, add boiling water until the cup is full; add this to the other mixture. Then take one large fresh egg, break yolk into cup, add three tablespoonfuls of cold water, beat with beater until the cup is nearly full; add this to all the other mixture, stirring briskly to prevent curdling; beat white of egg with one dessertspoonful of sugar, flavor and set away in a cool place, while the crust is made as follows: Three heaping tablespoonfuls flour, one heaping tablespoonful of butter, pinch salt, baking powder, that might be lifted on ten-cent piece; stir powder through the flour, rub butter into flour; wet all with three tablespoonfuls of water; pour over; line pie pan with paste, pour filling and bake in well-heated oven. Remove when crust is browned, and spread beaten white over pie. Return to oven, brown evenly and serve very cold. The ingredients make a large-sized pie, one that can be cut into six parts.

Now, dear Miss Grey, please "get me" correctly, and I hope your readers who might try my recipe will follow directions exactly. MARY F.

Would Be a Reciter.

Dear Miss Grey: Can you tell me where I can learn to recite properly? Some girls have started and I do not

KATHERINE LESLIE'S HOME CHAT

The Mother and Her Problems

What an endless source of interest, anxiety, fear, hope and delight is a family of young children to the mothers to whom these young souls have been given that they might be brought up in the way they should go! They come out of the mystery of the unknown with such varied dispositions, such varied tendencies, such strange weaknesses and strength already formidable in them as infants, that the responsible mother considers them with fear and trembling, and feels that only that unseen power that sent them into life is able to guide and direct her in her care, and training of them. One child is so frank and direct, so fearless; another so subtle, so tortuous in all his ways and sayings; still another is so full of sensibility, a fourth seemingly so hard and selfish that the mother may well fall back upon other strength than her own, as she considers diverse dispositions of her little tribe. Her little son of two years old and a half shows in the midst of a difficult disposition an amazing generosity in all his relations with the world about him. It is not an acquired generosity, these young souls—they would not be without one of them! That is the true mother feeling.

dividing it among everyone in sight. If he is going anywhere with his nurse he wants everyone to share his jaunt, and looks back mournfully, and even tearfully, at anyone left behind.

"It is the difficulty of dealing individually with them," said his mother, "that makes mothering so more tedious with one or more severe with the other. For children are so quick to note any sort of difference in discipline. Yet Teddy is of a disposition that requires positive discipline to make him do things. Frank under more persuasion will be anything, do anything. Coercion would ruin him. As for little Bill, that generous, tender-hearted disposition of his, too lovely, but if it is not guided aright into what may it not develop to his own undoing? To put Jimmy upon his honor already works."

He straightens his head and looks such a little man. But with Molly you might talk from morning till night upon the beauty of restraining her curiosity, of respecting others' belongings—her invariable answer is, "I don't want to be a lady. It's too much trouble!" I am sometimes appalled at the problems presented me by all these young souls, yet I would not be without one of them! That is the true mother feeling.

QUARANTINE— ITS IMPORTANCE

Dangerous contagions should be quarantined because—

Every case of contagious disease comes from a pre-existing case.

There are 675,000 contagious diseases so contracted every year in the United States. At least, half of these cases, according to a worthy authority, would have been prevented by an efficient quarantine.

AND, because the infringement of quarantine cost at least five times as many lives as infringements of the law against burglary, as shown by the census statistics.

If a quarantine is to mean anything, if it is really to accomplish the purpose for which it is intended, it must be kept rigidly. On the other hand, if it is kept half-heartedly the result will be that there follow many contagious disease cases in churches, on the streets, in schools and other public places.

The law of health must be like all other laws—KEPT strictly—carried out to the dot.

Why They Prayed.

A Chicago woman was travelling in the Orient, says the Chicago Tribune. On a trip through a desert, she was carried by four stalwart blacks in a chair suspended on poles. The natives started with great cheer, but as the journey progressed and the sun beat down upon them they began to chant a prayer to Allah. It was melodious, though a bit mournful. Its constant repetition was soothing, and the lady dozed. On awakening the prayer, grown more mournful, almost despairing, was still intoned. Turning to her interpreter, she asked the meaning of the mysterious words. The interpreter pretended not to hear, but being pressed for an answer, finally bowed low and said:

"Madam, since you insist, they pray that the great Allah may make you less fat."

FOR NERVOUS PEOPLE.

A case of "nerves" is like a bad habit—easily acquired and hard to get rid of. Nervousness affects the digestion, dulls the eyes, gives a strained look to the muscles of the face, and, if allowed its course, will even make the hair thin. So the woman who wants to be beautiful must keep an eye on the state of her nerves.

The best cure for nervousness is rest. Resting is an art known to few women.

The only way a woman may repose and relax her body and nerves is by actual will power.

Carrots are prescribed by physicians and beauty doctors alike as a cure for nervous indigestion. You are told to eat them three times a day, either cooked or raw.

Young onions or scallions are excellent eaten with plenty of salt; also lettuce with salt and plenty of olive oil, but no vinegar and red pepper.

Sleeplessness is the greatest menace that tired or overwrought nerves have for beauty and health.

Sleep may be induced by warm milk; slipped slowly, or, if this is ineffective, by long draughts of cool water and a cold bandage around the brow.

YOUTH.

It is by cultivating the art of forgetting that many women find their lives renewed and their beauty enhanced. Small troubles that have cankered have a way of establishing ugly wrinkles on the face and irritating topics of conversation, if persisted in, sour the expression permanently.

What an excellent idea it is to forget birthdays!

The continual bugbear of age makes women grow old before their time. They feel, perhaps, that age must have concessions granted, and so give up those pastimes and enjoyments that were a pleasure simply because "I am over fifty now and too old for childish things."

What a mistake that is! How much more sensible to say, "I enjoy them, and as long as I do I will retain my part in them." The ever young woman is not bound by that bugbear age, and is always looking on the happy side of every day life.

George Gibson's First Error Cost the Pirates the Game

Big London Catcher Makes His First Miscue of the Season on Saturday and Lets in a Run Which Paved Way to Pirate's Defeat.

Pittsburg, Aug. 9.—Catcher George Gibson made his first error of the 1913 season in the seventh inning today, and it cost the locals the game, Boston winning 3 to 2, and breaking Pittsburg's winning streak. Smith sacrificed, Mann tripped to centre, scoring Lord. Whaling hit sharply to Wagner whose throw headed off Mann at the plate. Mann retreated to third and Gibson in throwing to Byrne hit the runner on the head with the ball. Mann scored and Whaling took third. Whaling scored on Tyler's single.

Race Horse News

The mark for the C. of C. is apt to drop below 2:03.

Not a few are looking for Reusens to make a surprising race in the M. and N. for Geers.

If she is carried there is no doubt but Tenara will give the M. and N. a new record.

Cabel is going to be a rather handy passenger for Cox this year, his record of 2:05 1/4 not being his limit.

Grand Marshal, the Detroit trotter, is in the first race on the blue ribbon card, and it looks as though he ought to make a record.

Several horses from the short ship circuit will make their first bow in mile track circles at the blue ribbon meeting.

The Cleveland parties had Dr. Burns, Jun., ready for a killing, but they were at the wrong end of the knife, for Cabel had too much for them.

SERIES OF STORMS SWEEP OVER CITY; WORST IN YEARS

Electrical Disturbances Saturday Night Were Spectacular and Dangerous.

Phones Out of Commission, Trees Sundered, and Barns Near London Destroyed.

London, Aug. 10.—The third attempt of the suffragettes under the command of Sylvia Pankhurst to take Premier Asquith's house in Downing street by storm failed today when the militant leader was captured by a cordon of police thrown across Whitehall after a stiff fight, in which the police used their clubs.

The trouble began after a mass meeting held under the auspices of the free speech defence committee, which was called to demand the unconditional release of George Lansbury, former Nationalist member of the House of Commons, who was sentenced July 30 to three months' imprisonment for making inflammatory speeches, but who was released Aug. 2 under the "cat and mouse" act while on a hunger strike.

Refused Invitation. Miss Pankhurst had refused an invitation to make a speech at this meeting when informed that she would not be permitted to urge her hearers to march upon Downing street. The free speech speakers advised the crowd not to attack the Premier's residence, but at the close of their meeting Miss Pankhurst, true to her promise made last week, mounted the plinth of the Nelson Column and there, in the presence of her sympathizers to follow her.

Her hair bound close to her head, the young militant leader started down Whitehall surrounded by several women carrying the Women's Social and Political flag surmounted by a red liberty cap and preceded by a flying wedge of dockmen and other hussy Trafalgar square allowed the procession to leave the square, and then fell in behind the suffragette sympathizers.

When the found a battle line of police drawn across Whitehall at the Horse Guards, the office of the Inspector-General of the forces.

Used Clubs. The militants attacked this line with such dash and courage that a few of them penetrated the ranks, where the light became fierce that the police used their clubs. Reserves of police rushed up, and five or six women were arrested and taken to the police station in taxicabs.

Dispersed. The mob suitably dispersed. The police, after a short time, cleared the streets with unusual roughness, mounted officers riding down women and children without discrimination.

Miss Cook, who carried a suffragette banner during the fight, said tonight that Miss Pankhurst was badly injured during the melee.

The morning service at Westminster Abbey was interrupted by twenty suffragettes, who repeated the scene enacted in St. Paul's Cathedral last Sunday by chanting "Save Emmeline Pankhurst."

They were ejected with no slight disorder.

Found a Bomb. An intrap police officer with his pocket knife cut the sputtering fuse of a bomb found Saturday, probably saved from destruction the high school at Nottingham, where David Lloyd George was scheduled to make an address.

Black Powder. Suffragettes are suspected of placing the bombs, which contained black powder, and which, according to the police, were not a hoax. An attaché of the school found the bomb and called a policeman to seize the contrivance and cut the fuse.

A PEARL WEDDING. A very pretty pearl wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Young, 222 Ellis street, on Friday, Aug. 9, at 4:00 p.m. on the occasion of their 30th anniversary.

Large number of guests. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. D. Anderson, Silro, Ireland, a brother of Mrs. Young, and Mrs. Young received many handsome presents. The family's gift to their mother was a superb set of pearls and to their father, a signet ring.

Among the many congratulations received were those from Mrs. Wm. Young, Ont.; Detroit, Mich.; and other places.

Mr. and Mrs. Young left at 3:57 a.m. for New York on a trip to points west, after which they will return to their old home.

Geologists Will Meet in Belgium. [Canadian Press.] Toronto, Aug. 11.—Brussels, Belgium, is to have the honor of entertaining the International Geological Congress this year.

Geologists are gathered here for the session of the congress. The Argentine Republic put in a claim for the big gathering, but it was thought that the Americas should not be the place of meeting and reports from various international committees.

The Spondiaroff prize, awarded each congress for the best monograph on geological subject, was given to Emile Argand, of Paris, who dealt with rock formations in the Western Alps.

Returning from their week-end visits to Muskoka and other points of interest, the delegates this morning heard proposals and reports from various international committees.

A HAPPY, LAUGHING
CHILD IN FEW HOURS

If Cross, Irritable, Feverish,
Tongue Coated and Sick,
Give Delicious "Syrup
of Figs."

Your child isn't naturally cross, irritable and peevish. Mother! Examine the tongue. If coated, it means the little one's stomach is disordered. Liver inactive and its thirty feet of bowels clogged with foul, decaying waste.

Every mother realizes after giving delicious "Syrup of Figs" that this is the ideal laxative and physic for children. Nothing else regulates the little one's tender stomach, liver and bowels so effectually, besides they dearly love its delightful taste.

For constipated bowels, sluggish liver, biliousness, or sour, disordered stomach, feverishness, diarrhoea, sore throat, bad breath or to break a cold, give one-half to a teaspoonful of "Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, sour bile, undigested food and constipated matter will gently move on and out of the system without griping or nausea, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With "Syrup of Figs" you are not drugging your children. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicate, genuine, old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

Tumbled Down Bank. — Stuart, the 10-year-old son of William Kennedy, 66 Byron avenue, sustained a fractured arm, a long cut on the forehead and minor scratches and bruises, when he fell headlong down a 25-foot embankment from the Grand Trunk tracks at the Wexley road shortly after eight o'clock Saturday night.

Stuart, with a companion, was playing along the tracks, when he noticed an approaching Grand Trunk express from the west. Both ran to get clear of the bridge, but Kennedy tripped on a rail and fell headlong down the embankment, which is covered with cinders.

When picked up he asked to be taken to Dr. Robert Ferguson's office, and was conveyed there in a cab. The fracture was reduced, and the other injuries were dressed, after which he was removed to his home. He was reported today to be resting easily.

SUNDAY IN THE LONDON PULPITS

MYSTERY SHOWS

RELIGION DIVINE

Element of the Mysterious Is Essential, Says Rev. Dr.
McCrae.

GOD THE REVEALER

Has Shown Man All That Is Well for Him to Know and He Must Live
by Faith.

Rev. Dr. McCrae, pastor of Hamilton Road Presbyterian Church, preached two eloquent and helpful sermons in the First Presbyterian Church on Sunday. His morning sermon was from the text, Matthew viii, 27, "What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey?"

Dr. McCrae pointed out that religion without mystery would cease to be a divine religion. Man must not expect to understand everything. The element of mystery is essential to a true religion.

The Greatest Things.

Electricity is a great power, but so man has seen electricity. So it is with God. Thought is greater than electricity. The greatest thing in man is mind. The power of mind and power of thought is very near the omnipotent power. The greatest thing in mind is love. Love is stronger than hope, stronger than desire, stronger than the sea, and behind life, death, God is love, and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God.

"We love him because he first loved us," said Dr. McCrae. "In love to God we have reached the summit of the pyramid of life. We are in the presence of God."

God the Revealer.

God, through Christ, has revealed many things to man. He has revealed all that is good for man to know. Man must live by faith.

Rev. Dr. McCrae quoted Browning's stanza:

"God stooping shows sufficient light for us
In the dark to see again."

So Christ shows enough light for man to rise to God. Jesus Christ reveals what is behind the wind and the sea. This is a question that has vexed the human mind from the beginning. Behind the wind and the sea, and behind life, is a living God, who holds man in the hollow of his hand, and by him are all things held together. In the temptation, stress and disappointment of life, there is the living, loving presence of the unseen God ready to aid men in every trial. Jesus said: "I am in the Father and the Father in me."

The Lesson of the Flower.

Tennyson was walking in a garden with a friend, who asked him: "What is God to you?" He answered, pointing to a little flower: "What the sun is to that flower, God is to my soul. He is light, life, all."

"Whither is the strain of life tending?" asked Dr. McCrae. "Is it to the Isles of the blest or over a dark Niagara? We understand how the old die, but it is hard to understand why the young die. God said: 'What I do now, ye shall know hereafter.' Christ has brought not only light and life, but immortality."

"There is a great danger of mistaking backwater for the main stream of life,"

place in the lives of people than united prayer. United prayer is most dear to God Almighty, and is more efficacious than individual intercession. When a man has several sons and one of them returns from a journey, the heart of the father is made glad, but when several sons return the joy of the father is beyond measure. The same joy comes to God when we unite our voices to give him praise, homage and adoration. Our prayers in company are a real joy to God.

Sabbath Obligations.

Sunday has its obligations, and one of them is a fervent, powerful spirit of prayer. When people meet together with one spirit and one thought and raise their voices in prayer, it is a real joy to them and to God. The mass is always a powerful prayer to God, and gives riches to those that partake in it. There is nothing that will open the eyes of unbelievers as this silent devotion to the most influential ceremony of the Catholic Church.

Prayer in common was the means of sustaining another in the days of the early Christians. Our neighbors, seeing the spirit of fervor in us, might be persuaded to emulate us. The people that are most fervent in their devotions are those that understand the wonderful presence of God, whether sleeping or waking.

When Peter was cast into prison, a faithful band of his friends, praying day and night for his release, and by a wonderful miracle he was brought back to them to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Let us be grateful to the gift that God has given us; let us conform to the spirit of the church as one man, and then we will have the faith that makes whole.

LAURELS FOR THE UNPRETENTIOUS

Many in Obscure Roles Living Daily for Service of Humanity.

GLORY OF MOTHERHOOD

In All Walks Christians Are Sacrificing Themselves for Christ and Men.

"Unpretentious Living" was the subject of a deeply thoughtful sermon which Rev. Hugh McFarlane, assistant minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, preached Sunday morning from the text, Acts, ix, 36: "And all the widows stood by him weeping and showing the coats and garments which Dorcas made while she was with them."

"Darwinism has not destroyed, but has only taught the necessity of faith," said the speaker. "The old Scottish fathers would have preached a sermon on miracles from this text. The modern Christian dwells on the life of the woman." Unpretentious living in the busy world, in motherhood and in Christian service, was held up by Rev. Mr. McFarlane, as deserving of laurels. It is most un-Christian, he declared, not to place a proper value on the unpretentious life that lives and works beneath the wealth, prosperity and greatness of the modern world. The stoker down in the hold of the steamer, the drudge who scrubs the floors in the hours of midnight, the boy who runs an elevator all day long, their lives are given to the service of humanity.

Motherhood, said the speaker, is the brightest jewel that crowns the brow of womanhood. Close to the gates of death, woman takes up the cross of motherhood and gives her life to her children.

And in all walks of life there are unpretentious Christian heroes, who are sacrificing themselves to the service of Christ and humanity.

GOD CONTROLS THE AFFAIRS OF MEN

Guides the Destinies of World, Working Systematically, Silently, Leisurely.

USING NATURAL LAWS

Powerful Discourse by Rev. Dr. Barthwaite at the New St. James' Church.

"Does God Care?" was the question propounded by Rev. Dr. Barthwaite, of Calgary, at New St. James' Presbyterian Church Sunday evening. He addressed the minds of the faithful guides controls all the affairs of men and nations, and His seeming indifference to some of the happenings of life exists only in our own minds, because of our Pharisaic demand that an outward sign, "a sign from heaven," God works according to natural law, he said, because the laws of nature are His laws: He works systematically, silently and leisurely, but He is nevertheless controlling the destinies of this world.

Prosperity of Unrighteous.

The preacher chose as his text part of the 17th verse of the 2nd chapter of Malachi, "Where is the God of judgment?" The apparent prosperity of the unrighteous, presented to the godly people of Old Testament times, a question which they found it hard to answer. "Where is the God of judgment?" how God allowed them to continue in prosperity, often greater than that of others, when He must have known their wickedness. The question was one which often agitated the minds of people in our day. "If we take, for example, the last Balkan war," said Dr. Barthwaite, "we think of the horrors which have been enacted there, and we say, 'If this is God's world, why are such things allowed to happen?'"

"Does God Care?"

The preacher recounted some of the more common tragedies of life which take place around us every day, and cause people to ask, "Does God care?" The chief plans with his confederates to commit crime, perhaps even murder, and nothing interferes with his plans. God allows him to carry them out successfully, oftentimes, and it frequently happens that he is not brought to justice.

But all the time, although we see no visible sign and hear no spoken word, God is directing all the affairs of life. The thief does not go unpunished, nor the righteous man unrewarded.

"Be sure your sin will find you out," is a saying which has been greatly misinterpreted," said the speaker. "It does not mean that you will be found out in your sin by your friends, but it means that the sin 'will find you out, and the voice of conscience within will be your punishment." It was this internal punishment, the preacher continued, that the unrighteous man suffers, and the freedom of conscience was the reward of the righteous man.

Rev. Dr. Barthwaite will occupy the pulpit of New St. James' morning and evening next Sunday.
