Mrs. E. J. Cannell of Toronto, formerly Miss Mae Thompson of 533 Ottawa avenue, whose sudden death occurred on an Ottawa car at the corner of Hamilton road and Rectory streets a few weeks ago left an estate of $180,000 with substantial charitable bequests and a heavy residuary gift to her only surviving cousin, Mrs. D. M. Soper of 131 Sackville street East London.

Mrs. Cannell bequeathed $5,000 each to the Victoria Home for Incurables and the Protestant Orphans' Home of London and a similar sum to the Dunn avenue Methodist church in Toronto. There were other minor bequests, principally to charities and the remainder said to be approximately $160,000 passes to Mrs. Soper, whose husband is well known locally as an engineer for the public utilities commission and as an officer of local golf clubs and canine associations.

Mrs. Cannell's husband was a native of Dutton who went to the Yukon in the Klondike gold rush of '88 and made a fortune. He passed away some years ago and she has since been a resident of Toronto. She visited here for a time late in the winter and had made a call to the home of an old neighbor Mrs. Richard Winnett of Ottawa avenue and was returning to Mrs. Soper's home on the Ottawa avenue car when she was fatally stricken with a heart attack. She was carried to a nearby store and was identified soon afterward by Mr. Soper, Mr. and Mrs. Soper were notified of the contents of the will today.

MINERS TURN DOWN PROPOSAL

Will Not Accept Cut in Wages or Longer Work Day.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, July 3.—Miners' delegates from all the coal fields in the country, meeting at a private conference of the miners' federation today, decided to resist the mine owners' proposal for lower wages and for extension of the present seven-hour day to an eight-hour day.

SUSPENSION EXPECTED.

Associated Press Despatch.
Scranton, Pa., July 3.—Merchants in the anthracite valleys today finally admitted the likelihood of a suspension at the mines, September 1, as a result both of the new wage demands and the talk growing out of the tri-district scale convention which closed here yesterday.

Some storekeepers figured that the demands of the miners, if granted, mean a total pay increase of perhaps 55 per cent.

Turning from whatever attitude the operators might adopt toward these demands, the merchants singled out the remark yesterday of Andrew Matthey, president of district No. 7, who said in the convention: "A suspension will take place."

Merchants say some of their number have not yet fully recovered from effects of the credit they granted to their miner customers in the strike of 1922. Asserting that in a coal strike "it is the merchant who pays," some of them declared they would make money by shutting up shop the day before any suspension was called.

POLICEMEN TAKE SHOT AT RECKLESS MOTORIST

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, July 3.—Shots fired by policemen at the driver of a motor car which they had chased to the western end of the city early today are believed to have taken effect. The car was pursued after it had raced through the streets, ignoring signals, and the driver jumped out when seeing the policemen overtaking him. The constables fired at him and though he escaped, bloodstains were found on the ground.

VENTURA ROCKED.

Los Angeles, July 3.—Telephone advices from Ventura said a stiff earthquake tremor rocked that town, 25 miles south of Santa Barbara at 8:38 o'clock this morning. No damage was done, the message said.

Sending Band To Strike Zone Puzzles London Laborites

What peculiar grouch is softened by the airs of a military orchestra and why did "C" company of the R. C. E., with headquarters here, take the local band to the Nova Scotia coal strike area where the only government concern is the protection of property?

Delegates to last night's session of the trades and labor council found this question an engrossing one for several minutes. They are still puzzling for an answer that satisfies.

The germ of the dilemma was sprung quite suddenly by Wal-

TWO GIRLS DROWN IN POND ON FARM

Companion.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Unionville, Ont., July 3.—While bathing in a pond on the farm of Col. P. H. Deacon this morning, Mary Martin, aged 22, and a friend, Miss McAlpine, aged 25, were drowned when the former got out of her depth and the other attempted a rescue. The bodies were rescued by Kenneth Deacon.

The girls formed part of a party of four domestic servants from the farm. Miss Martin fell from an old tree into deep water and was immediately in difficulties. Her friend went to her assistance, but failed to bring the girl to the side of the boat, and both were drowned.

Mary Martin arrived in Canada from Ireland last Monday. Miss McAlpine had been employed at the Deacon farm for two years.

NORTHERN LIFE SALE COMPLETED IN TORONTO

Gairdner, Clarke & Co. Dispose of Holdings in London Concern.

Proposed change of control of the former London-owned institution took substantial shape more than a week ago when a group of prominent Londoners made an offer for the majority of stock at that time held by Gairdner, Clarke & Co. of Toronto. The deal was completed yesterday, it is stated, and the purchasers include Arthur T. Little, president of the London and Western Trusts Company; C. R. Somerville, director of the London and Western Trusts Company; John S. Moore, manager of the London and Western Trusts Company; and Ray Lawson, R. G. Ivey, W. E. Robinson, James Granger and J. E. McConnell.

Others May Come In.

Although Gairdner, Clarke & Co. have disposed of their holdings, the complete list of purchasers is not yet revealed. It is believed that in addition to those who have already bought stock or those who have signified their intention of doing so, others outside of London will be included with the owners of the controlling shares.

The board of the Northern Life under Gairdner and Clarke ownership consisted of J. A. Gairdner of Toronto, president; J. A. G. Clarke and W. H. Smith, both of Toronto, vice-presidents; John Jennings, J. H.

ROSS SOMERVILLE LEADS IN ROUND

London Golfer Was Four Up
On Cameron of Ottawa at Eighteenth Hole.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Royal Ottawa Golf Club, Ottawa, July 3.—C. Ross Somerville, of the London Hunt club, was four holes up on Jack A. Cameron, of the Rivermead club, Ottawa, at the end of the first 18 holes of the 35-hole match in the semi-finals of the Canadian amateur golf championship early this afternoon, and Norman N. Scott, of Royal Montreal club, had an advantage of three holes on Don Carlick, of Scarborough, Toronto, at the end of the morning round.

Scott played magnificent golf and was at one time five up on the junior champion. After passing the short holes on the way in, however, the Montreal player slumped and Carlick cut the margin to three.

The Somerville-Cameron match produced the best round of the morning, and was a see-saw affair until the fourteenth hole, with first one and then the other in the ascendancy. Somerville was one over par going out and one under coming in, for a par 73.

Poor work on the greens in the last four holes, however, cost Cameron three holes. Both played excellent driving games, getting good distance, although Cameron was a trifle better in the woods. Their approaches were well played, but in some instances their handling of the putter was weak.

NICKLE KEEPS SILENCE ON BANKERS' ACQUITTAL

Will Make Announcement Before
End of Week, He States.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, July 3.—Attorney-General Nickle stated to the Star yesterday that he has no announcement to make regarding an appeal from the acquittal of the Home Bank directors, but will make one "before the week-end."

D. L. McCarthy, K.C., prosecuting counsel for the crown in the Home Bank trials, was closeted with the attorney-general and Edward Bayly, K.C., yesterday morning for a lengthy conference, but no announcement was made after the conference.

Hon. W. F. Nickle states that he has not yet read the judgments of the appellate court.

Somerville Takes Lead.
After Cameron's bad initial tee shot, which took him into a ditch a short distance away, he found it difficult to get going, and finally conceded the hole when he got into further trouble near the green, his ball lying badly in some terrain under repair. Cameron took the second and third, Cameron laying a styler on the latter hole, which Somerville conceded when he failed to negotiate the styler. The fourth and fifth

PLAY PARK MAY SHARE EAST SITE

Use of McMahan Memorial
Fund of $20,000 Favored

MR. POCOCK APPROVES

Chairman of School Board Falls
In With Plan For Hospital Grounds.

Purchase by the public utilities commission for use as a public playground of part of the Ontario hospital site secured yesterday by the board of education for $25,000, is a possibility which is already seriously engaging the attention of commissioners and members of the board.

Commissioner Philip Pocock stated this morning that he believed it would be an excellent move on the part of the utilities commission to acquire whatever portion of the property is not immediately required by the board and to locate there the Archie McMahan memorial playground, for the establishment and equipment of which the commission is holding a bequest of $20,000 from the estate of the late Archie McMahan.

"If the school board will meet us halfway in the matter of price, I would be heartily in favor of purchasing part of this site," Mr. Pocock stated this morning, "on the understanding that it is to be used only as a public playground and park, in which case it would still be available for use by the school board for recreational purposes."

SAINT LAWSON APPROVES.

Chairman S. J. Lawson of the board of education, while advising caution in planning the future disposition of the newly-acquired property, could see no reason why the proposal of Mr. Pocock should not be entertained. In fact the proposal coincides with a suggestion made by the chairman to the meeting yesterday, that the school board might very profitably be laid out as an athletic park which could be used by the school children of the whole city for field sports, athletic meets and the like, for which it is now necessary to secure grounds either from the Western Fair board or Tecumseh park. There is every likelihood, therefore, that the very near future will see negotiations opened between the board and the public utilities commission for the acquisition by the latter of a number of acres on the new site.

Mr. Pocock believes that in many ways the location of the newly-acquired property is ideal for a public playground. The commission has for several years been quietly looking for a suitable site for a playground, and the board's property at large, that if the commission can acquire a portion of the board's property at, say, $10,000, the balance of the bequest could then be used for the erection of stands, playgrounds equipment and the beautifying of the property generally. It would make a lovely beauty spot at the entrance to the city from the east, and at the same time dispose of a site said to be entailed by Ontario hospital officials that the building up of Dundas street would eventually put the institution in the background.

SANTA BARBARA IS SHAKEN AGAIN

Heavy Shocks Felt, But Only Slight Damage Is Reported.

Santa Barbara, Calif., July 3.—Santa Barbara was rocked again by a heavy quake at 8:38 a.m. The quake lasted about six seconds and shook the city rather violently.

The vibration, consisting of two shocks, appeared to be from east to west and swayed the buildings perhaps more severely than any of the shocks following the major disturbance of last Monday morning. So far as reported no damage resulted.

It was later reported that the mansion of C. K. G. Billings, wealthy race-horse man, located on one of the hills just east of the city, was partially demolished in this morning's quake.

Associated Press Despatch.
Santa Barbara, Calif., July 3.—Santa Barbara citizens today went about their work of "digging out from under" the earthquake debris.

Most of the city streets were lighted last night and efforts were to be made today to restore electrical connections and possibly gas in many sections of the city.

The actual damage to the business section is estimated by engineers at approximately $11,000,000. Free distribution of food continues and will be necessary on the present large scale until gas and electric services are restored. The food is practically all being furnished by neighboring California towns.

EARL HAIG COMES TO LONDON JULY 24 ON RETURN TO EAST

Britain's War Chieftain Will Also Visit Sarnia, Report Says.

COMES WITH PARTY

Preparations are already under way for a fitting civic and military tribute to Lord Douglas Haig when he and his party comes to London on July 24. Announcement has come from Ottawa that the war general, accompanied by the delegates to the British Empire Service League, will visit London and Sarnia on their return from the west.

The week-end will be spent in Toronto, the party proceeding to Montreal on Sunday night.

Earl Haig's Canadian tour is of deep national importance, both from a point of furthering the bond of empire union and also to help settle internal troubles of war veterans' organizations. From each of these viewpoints Earl Haig's visit to London is of much interest.

Invited By Mayor.

Earl Haig has changed his itinerary dates somewhat since he arrived in Canada last week-end. Thanks to a suggestion made at the city hall here, the official invitation of the mayor was awaiting Britain's foremost soldier when he reached Ottawa on Sunday. His plans have Returning from the West, Earl Haig will travel by lake steamer from Port Arthur to Sarnia, reaching that city on July 24. He will spend the morning there and make the trip to London at noon, have lunch here and spend the afternoon and then journey to Toronto, where he will spend the week-end.

It is likely that the service clubs of the city and other organizations will be asked to take part in the welcome here.

Dolly, one of the twelve babies of the Ringling herd of 40 elephants, finds great fun in broadcasting. The baby elephants with the "big show" are the shyest of all the performers with the circus coming to London Monday, July 6.

Baby Elephants Delight In Talking Through Radio

Think It Great Fun To Air
Ideas When Carrot Is Reward.

SEAL BEST TALKERS

Did you hear an elephant broadcast?

To watch "Dolly" the 2-year-old baby with the Ringling and Barnum & Bailey circus trumpet before the "mike" is even more fun than listening in. George Denman, boss of the big herd of 40 pachyderms, uses a very simple method. He shows the little shaver a carrot, and then drops the tidbit behind the disc. After which Dolly talks until she gets the carrot.

While the circus was at the old Madison Square Garden in New York this spring a test was made to see which of the animals registered most satisfactorily for the fans. Each of the 48 elephants was led before the microphone. Albert John, Babe and Romeo, all being old and rather sedate, merely grunted and then returned to their bales of hay. But the 12 babies were all willing to air their views on circus life. And rather seemed quite understandable, since being merely youngsters of the jungle they entered into the fun as readily as they play at "London Bridge is Falling Down" in the circus rings.

The seals registered best of all, probably because their voices are most penetrating. "Big Top" was persuaded to play the solo on the electric piano, which he executed as an accompaniment for the companies of high-school horses on the program. "Shag," the giant brute who drives his own automobile in the performance, approached the "mike," gave a couple of loud "sniffs" and honked vigorously. Upon being shown the lofty towers which they scale in the act, Air Loy's police dogs yelped with impatience, and so broadcast in very able fashion.

There will be no broadcasting locally, but all the various sounds that go to make up the circus will be in full swing at the performances here Monday afternoon and night beneath the "big top" pitched at Military Field, London. In the last of six Canadian cities to be visited by the circus this season, after which it enters the States to resume a tour which will take it to the Pacific coast and back before the snow flies.

There will be no street parade; in fact none has been given by this circus in five years, it having reached a size where it was no longer possible to erect its encampment of 30 tents each day and still stage a street parade.

Stouffville, July 2.—George Leffer of Bramford was fined $800 in police court on pleading guilty to having liquor in other than his private dwelling-place. He was caught by the provincial police with 48 bottles of whiskey in a car near Sebastopol on Tuesday night. The car was confiscated, and thereby hangs an interesting tale. The car is owned by a man named Sewell in Detroit, whose wife was on vacation in Paris. She came acquainted with Leffer, and agreed to transport this liquor for him. Hence the confiscation.

PORT STANLEY HAS PACKED PROGRAM

Two Crowded Months of Revelry Planned by Big Picnic Organizations.

Sensational success in pleasing the music lovers of Western Ontario was achieved on Invererie heights at Port Stanley last Sunday afternoon by the new symphony orchestra which made its Port Stanley premiere under the conductorship of Angelo Russo, the well-known leader-violinist.

A program comprising numbers better designed to please the diversified tastes of a summer park audience could scarcely have been devised, according to the unanimous verdict of the enthusiastic audience. Yet Conductor Russo announces a program for next Sunday of which equally great appreciation may be expected.

Mr. MacKay observed that "Mr. Okell's experiences with the Methodist settlement committee had been such that he was not inclined to join the United Church, where the same committee, with the same vicious powers was in effect."

Mr. Okell himself supplemented this by stating that he had found the Methodist church "to be governed from the top down," while the Presbyterian church he believed "to be governed from the bottom up," the government of the Methodist church he held to be "autocratic," and that of the Presbyterian church as "democratic."

Answering a question by Rev. Peter Jamieson, Port Stanley, the lyric creations, little intermezzi, and other who love the very latest, and heroic matches that set the blood a-tingle.

Picnic committees of a number of the large organizations are working under high pressure, each vying with the other to give the people of this part of the country new delights at their annual picnics. Port Stanley is now entering upon the heart of its busy season.

If there is a drop of English blood in you, you are sure to be stirred by the program prepared for the annual English picnic, which is scheduled for July 11. The sons of the old land and the sons of the sons of Britannia have been at work since last autumn and attractions new and appealing are teeming on the bill.

The grocers, who are credited with being about the best hosts the land produces, will stage their picnic for themselves and their patrons, and that includes everybody, on July 15.

Scots Seek Lead.
The Scots too are under way. A few years ago the Scotch picnic had died a natural death. The Scots admit it. But in three years it has come back and if the efforts of the Middlesex and Elgin Caledonian Societies can accomplish it, the event will this year take the leadership from all comers. The assistance of wealthy Caledonian organizations in both London, Eng., and at Invererie has been obtained, and prizes that are altogether beyond the expectations of those on the outside, are drawing competitors for dancing and piping competitions, and the Caledonian games, from all parts of America. A big feature of the day will be a tug-of-war between the "Zorras," the Oxford county challengers, and the combined strength of the Middlesex and Elgin teams.

There are scores of other events on the big program—in fact, Dominion Day gloriously lifted the lid for two packed months of summer revelry.

100 Are Thought Frozen To Death In Storm In Alps
Associated Press Despatch.
Vienna, July 2.—A hundred mountaineers or more were caught in a blizzard on the Styrian-Halesburg Alps last Monday. When a long period elapsed without news of them searching parties set out and have thus far found several of the men frozen to death. It is feared most of the others have been similarly overcome.

CROWS WORSE PEST THAN USUAL THIS YEAR

Crows, always a pest to district fruit growers, are worse than ever this year. Stanley Cornell, one of the big growers of the Lambeth district, reports that the crows stripped his trees of Black Tartarian cherries before they were half ripe and are now gobbling up raspberries.

Mr. Cornell has shot several crows and hung them up in his berry patch as a warning to the rest, but it has had little effect.

Westmount fruit growers on Springbank hill report similar conditions.

BOYS' WORK SECRETARY.
Rev. J. M. Finlay has been appointed boys' work secretary for Western Ontario. His duties began July 1. This gives the district a leader. In the past there have been one for Ontario. Men in the C. S. E. T. movement believe that with one man for Western Ontario alone the work can be done to advantage.

James Doan of St. Marys was sentenced to a term of from three months to two years in the Ontario reformatory by Magistrate A. H. M.

NEW HOME SOUGHT FOR INCURABLES

Woman's Auxiliary Asks City Aid in Financing Proposed Building.

City aid is sought in the erection of a new $45,000 hospital and home for incurables, to be operated in conjunction with Victoria hospital. A delegation from the women's auxiliary of the Victoria Home for Incurables waited on No. 1 committee of the city council and asked for assistance. Ald. Paul Doig, Ald. Thomas Clift and Mayor Wenig were named as a committee to look into the matter.

Sale of the old home for incurables on Dundas street east is suggested, with the city as a possible purchaser. Members of the committee, particularly Miss McIntosh, stressed strongly the need for increased accommodation.

Aboard Salvage Steamer Spray. July 2.—The treasure hunt expedition in search of the $4,000,000 cargo of the sunken steamship Merida began its salvage work today after four days spent in Norfolk equipping the boats with necessary apparatus for the final stages of the operations. Radio has been installed, and the divers will report every move in their operations direct to the expedition's headquarters in New York. In case of attack by pirates or hijackers help can be quickly summoned from revenue cutters on duty along the coast, only thirty or forty miles away.

Weather conditions may delay operations somewhat during the next fortnight, but Captain O'Hagen, head of the expedition, hopes to have the last of the thirty tons of gold and silver stowed safely aboard the Spray by July 20.

The dynamiting of the strong room will take place, it is hoped, early next week.

ENGINEER URGES ADDED HYDRANTS

St. Thomas Board Told Number Necessary To Meet Standard.

Special to The Advertiser. St. Thomas, July 2.—At the regular meeting of the board of water commissioners, Engineer Miller reported that in his survey of the hydrant question in the city, an additional 50 hydrants would have to be installed at a cost of $125 to $150 per hydrant, to place one at a maximum of 420 feet apart. This question was discussed sometime ago by No. 3 committee, as a means of insuring greater pressure and save fire hose.

At the present time there are 210 hydrants on the system with a charge of approximately $60 a year charged by the water commission for the services. With an additional 50 hydrants the cost of this branch of fire protection will be $15,000 or $16,000 a year, an increase of over $2,500. In reply to Treasurer Perry's question of a fixed charge, Commissioner Roberts stated that the amount of water used was negligible, it was the cost of special equipment necessary to provide service above the 35 pounds domestic pressure that fixed the charge.

YOKES POPULAR FOR FALL FROCKS

Large Felt Hats Are Also To Be Featured in World of Fashion.

By AILEEN LAMONT. Special to The Advertiser. Copyright.

New York, July 2.—Paris now is forecasting a new trend of styles. Recent arrivals from abroad say that great numbers of dresses and even coats are seen in which the fullness of the upper portion is gathered into a yoke. Not only the front parts but the backs are showing pleats and gathers and designers declare this indicates a return to the bloused dress in the near future.

The New Felts.
The approach of the Saratoga race meeting, which always draws a gathering of fashionables, is inducing milliners to turn their attention toward the large felt hats which have been a feature of the European race courses this summer. They are large and drooping at one or both sides and are trimmed with delicate flowers or ostrich plumes or aigrettes of the same tint as the felt.

Skirts Are Wider.
Skirts are as short as ever, but the thing which distinguishes the frocks of the moment from those of the past is the fullness at the hem. This is sometimes produced by letting in a triangular piece of bright embroidery which starts at the hip line and widens sharply to the hem.

Embroidered Hose.
Roses ordinarily do not grow on pipe stems, but embroidered flowers now are making their appearance on stockings covering even the thinnest of legs. The blossoms in some vivid shade are posed usually just below the knee, but not high enough to be hidden by the omnipresent roll.

Wire Wings.
Boudoir caps are both beautiful and utilitarian, but their main purpose is to hold the hair in place during repose. Since few women have any longer much hair to keep in place in back, the latest boudoir caps only extend around the front. They consist for the most part in wired wings, which bend closely around the front and top of the head.

HICKSON V. P. L.
Hickson, July 2.—The regular meeting of the league was held recently, with Wilfred Frenzeback conducting the meeting. After the singing of a couple of hymns Rev. J. W. Stewart led in prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Dorothy Harlow. The topic was ably dealt with by Gordon Murray. Mrs. J. C. King sang a solo. The meeting was dismissed with singing a hymn and prayer.

Dorothy Dix

How to Deal With an Unfaithful Husband—Shall Miss 19 Marry?

Dear Dorothy Dix—Seven years ago I was separated from my husband because of an affair he had with a married woman. My children are grown up, and through their influence we got on friendly terms, and decided to bury the past and start anew. I had, however, been in my new home but a short time before I discovered that my husband was continuing his relationship with the woman.

I am very miserable. What would you advise me to do?

HEARTBROKEN WIFE.

Answer: If your husband and this woman still love each other after seven years, you may accept it as a fact that they have a real and genuine affection for each other that will not change.

That it is a guilty love and that they have no right to love each other, does not alter the matter. Somehow the woman has a charm for your husband that you lack. Somehow your husband has for her an attraction that her own husband has not.

We cannot always control our hearts. We cannot love to order, nor always keep our affections put beside our freights where they belong. So perhaps your husband and the woman who has seduced him, may be the victims of fate in not having found each other until both were bound by ties they should not have broken, but that they have broken in order to be together.

Inasmuch, then as your husband and the woman have a passion for each other that has lasted as long as Jacob served for Rachel, it seems to me that the wise thing and the right thing for you to do is to tell him just how the matter stands, and that you are going to divorce your husband, and ask him to divorce his wife in order that they may legalize their relationship. That will, at least, keep them from being social outlaws, and give your husband's father a measure of decency in the eyes of his neighbors.

And it will bring you peace to have the matter ended. You can then put your husband out of your thoughts and go about building your life anew on other things. There will be no question of reconciliation, no perpetual debate in your mind as to whether to take him back or not, no jealous wondering whether he is with the woman or not. You suffer at the time. It leaves a hideous scar that often throbs with the pain of old conditions do not poison our lives, and after a while we get well and happy.

And it will give you an added sense of dignity to rid yourself, once and for all, of an unfaithful husband. You will not be squabbling with a married woman for him. You will not be humbling yourself by trying to win back a man who is tired of you. You will not be feeding your heart to one who disdains the gift.

When there are little children who need a father to provide for and educate them, and give them a start in life I think a woman should stand almost anything from her husband, and do her best to keep her home together. But when there are no children, there are no reasons for her to cling to an unfaithful husband and let him make her life miserable.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—We are two girls, each 19 years of age, and each has an offer of marriage. But the young men are not our ideals. They are very handsome, but are not wealthy. Our ideals are men who are handsome and wealthy, and who think a woman should be beautiful and accomplished, and an ennobling influence in their lives, not domestic slaves.

Shall we accept these men or risk meeting our ideals later in life? UNDECIDED ONES.

Answer: My advice to you both is to wait until you have more common sense, and until you find men with whom you are so much in love that you will just go to work and darn, and mend for them and who will look better to you than any sheik, no matter how homely they are.

If you wait for a husband until you find men who are handsome and wealthy, and who expect a wife of their wives but to be beautiful and exquisitely dressed and social leaders, you will wait a long time.

In fact, you will be still waiting at the church when you are 80. For there are no such husbands as girls of 19 picture in their dreams.

DOROTHY DIX.

STARVED HEARTS

By MILDRED BARBOUR.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND THE CHARACTERS

STEPHEN LANE, wealthy, middle-aged, despot, who rules with a tyrant hand.

BARBARA, his young wife, who sold herself into a loveless marriage, opposed his brother's marriage some twenty years before and now resents the guardianship of his beautiful orphaned niece.

MADELOON, whose boy-and-girl affair with EUANE FARLEY, who wishes to marry Madelon.

CHAPTER V.

Dangerous Promise. Madelon had not been mistaken in her belief that Duane Farley would not lightly accept his dismissal at Lane's hands.

But his efforts to see Madelon were nearly foiled by that master antagonist. Even her mail was censored, and no message from her lover found its way to her.

Barbara and Ann Ordway, whom she had met and instantly liked, kept her diverted as much as possible. Lane was not fond of society, so Barbara took little part in the activities of the fashionable world in which her position and her beauty entitled her to leadership. But Ann was a cheery, companion-loving soul. She had great vogue with the younger set, as well as those nearer her own age. Scarcely an afternoon but what a group of young people descended unheralded upon her, rolled up the rugs in her charmingly appointed apartment, and danced until dinner time. She had tea and cakes and a cheery greeting for them all. Sometimes she wasn't even at home when they came, but their welcome was an accepted fact, and they went ahead with their fun just the same.

Madelon, with the spontaneity of youth, found it hard to be unhappy over Farley. She missed his devotion, but when she faced the matter squarely and truthfully, she realized that her resentment at Lane's arbitrary dismissal of his suit was greater than her actual unhappiness at having to put him out of her life.

There came a day when Farley made one last effort. He determined to see Barbara and beg her intervention. It was a vain hope, he felt, but he desired to leave no avenue untried.

Masters admitted him distrustfully. His impassive countenance betrayed a momentary flicker of surprise when Farley handed him his card and requested that it be given to Mrs. Lane.

Barbara did not keep him waiting long. "It is very good of you, Mrs. Lane, to grant me the privilege of an interview," he said after she had greeted him kindly. "It was rather an imposition, my asking if I would see you," she told him gravely.

He looked up eagerly. "Then she has not entirely forgotten me?"

"Hardly," Barbara smiled. He looked so unhappy, so forlorn. "You know about everything?" he asked.

Barbara inclined her head. "You think there isn't any hope?"

"Mr. Lane rarely changes." There was dejection in his pose. Barbara had an absurd desire to reach over and lay her white fingers on his tawny hair. He looked so boyish, so wretched.

"I am sorry," she said quietly. "Perhaps, in time—"

She knew she was holding out a vain hope. "Oh, time," he echoed with the impatience of youth. "I want to marry Madelon now. I don't want to wait until we're both old and gray. I can support her. True, I'm just starting out in my profession, but I've something from a legacy, and I've got a big plan that the chamber of commerce here is considering. It'll go through, I know it will—I say," he looked at her, boyishly appealing, "may I tell you a little about it—and" you can tell Madelon?"

"Please do," smiled Barbara. So Circe may have invited Ulysses.

Down through the ages woman has unlocked man's heart with the key of his confidences.

Farley talked eagerly. Half an hour passed. Barbara was a flattering listener. He found himself divulging his hopes and fears, his plans for the future, basking in her sympathetic silence.

He did not realize—yet—that she was beautiful, that her hair was a dusky halo framing the pallor of her face, that her lips were living crimson and softly curved, and through the lace of her graceful gown gleamed shoulders and flawlessly rounded arms. He only knew that her purple-black eyes were eloquent with sympathy and appreciation, and her silence was invitation to further confidence.

He did not even sense the light footsteps of Madelon passing the drawing-room door on her way to keep an engagement with Ann.

Ann was planning a tea for Madelon.

"Drop in this afternoon and meet some of the youngsters in advance," she invited. "We'll make plans for the big shindig next week-end. A number of girls and young men were gathered in Ann's living-room when Madelon arrived. The rugs were rolled back and the library and hall, and a victrola blared dance music from an unseen corner. Ann called a greeting from behind the tea urn, and introduced everybody with informal carelessness.

It was nearing the end of afternoon when the maid ushered in a late-comer, who was hailed with delight by the entire company. Through the eager circle that immediately closed around him, Madelon caught a glimpse of a good-looking bronzed young man, who towered over the dancing youths beside him.

Ann deftly extricated him from the laughing group and led him up to Madelon.

"This is Julian Barton, Madelon.

Elgin County Free of Debt.

Elgin county is able to announce that it has no debt, the county treasurer having paid $15,000 to mark the maturity of some obligations for road and bridge purposes. The real interpretation probably is that Elgin county has no debt, and that in itself is a real accomplishment. It may be that Elgin borrows from the bank for current outlay against the receipt of taxes, but if so that could hardly be considered a debt because there is the security of taxes to take care of it.

It is well that Elgin should rise up and make that fact known, because there are councils and governments that should hear that it is possible for such a thing to be done. There is a tendency on the part of far too many spending bodies to take it for granted that a debenture debt is as necessary in a municipality as a town hall and a postoffice. They may attempt to run along on the idea that they will issue debentures no faster than existing ones mature, but it is not often this is accomplished, and even if done it does not wipe off the debt.

Wellington county, we believe, has no debenture debt; Perth has very little, and Huron had none prior to the war, but an issue was put out then for war purposes. Middlesex has about $250,000.

Elgin has kept her roads and bridges in good shape, so there must have been a time when the people there paid a fairly heavy tax for these purposes, but they wiped these obligations out and have no longer to meet the yearly payments of interest and sinking fund.

Elgin is justified in making what use it can of this fact. It should announce it loudly so that others can hear and take heed that it can be done.

Hon. Arthur Meighen in London.

Hon. Arthur Meighen delivered a good address when he visited London on Dominion Day. There was a wholesome ring about it, a sort of "we have our troubles, but we're going to get them" feeling running all through it.

Mr. Meighen paid his respects to the group system of parliamentary representation, and in so doing put his finger on the inherent disadvantage that accompanies such an idea—the danger of a group representing only a section of the country, and for that reason not being representative enough to take care of the problems of the whole dominion. Thus, if there is a group representing the west, their business is to consider everything from the standpoint of that section. There is not much chance of their giving much time to worrying about the east or any other place because they know their reelection depends largely on the way in which they carry out the policy favored by those who elected them in the first place.

Nor did Mr. Meighen consider Canada's case hopeless; he admitted the greatness of United States, but held there were possibilities right here for building another great nation. It was good to hear these words from Mr. Meighen. It may have been the pleasant surroundings in which he found himself in London's great downtown city park, the great array of intelligent, well-dressed citizens, or a combination of these events. At any rate he was not the gloomy Mr. Meighen at all. He should have remained longer in London, for if a few hours could work in him such a change it is within the range of possibility that a week or ten days' stay here would have made him a thorough-going optimist.

The Advertiser photographer drew up close to him and secured a picture that showed Mr. Meighen against a background of foliage, well-dressed and happy in appearance. It would have been good business for him to have ordered a thousand or so of these pictures to send to his friends to show what an affable, agreeable citizen he can be when he gets away from Ottawa and mingles with Londoners, and when he speaks the things he thinks should be said rather than those that tickle the ears of his party managers. London was pleased to have Hon. Arthur Meighen here, and we're certain the day's outing was also a fine thing for him.

Petrolia's Widely Distributed People.

Probably no town could have an old boys' reunion that would draw representatives from more distant points than Petrolia. That field has not only produced oil, but experts in the business of drilling, shooting and operating oil wells. The men who learned the business there have a reputation for a thorough knowledge of good operation, and that is the reason why they have been in demand in all the corners of the earth where oil is found. Russia, Austria, Persia, South America—Petrolia oil men are there, and it was a Petrolia man who brought in the first great well in far-off Persia.

It was for that reason that the celebration that has been going on there for some days, but which touched its climax on Dominion Day, was such a unique affair. It was local in the sense that the boys and girls came back to the old home town, and yet it had a cosmopolitan touch that many a city could not have provided.

The fact that Petrolia has been and still is the great training ground in Canada for the oil industry is something that can hardly be overlooked in considering the future of the business. Some of the old-timers no doubt gathered and rehearsed the scenes of the gusher days in Petrolia when oil was so plentiful that it overran the pools and flooded the ground; it is possible that neither California in '49 or the Klondike had times that were any more romantic than the boom days in Petrolia. But those days have gone, and they will not return. The securing of oil now is a more serious business; it is a case of pumping it up and keeping everlastingly at it to secure as much as possible. Otherwise there would not be enough production to meet the charges of operation. There has been in recent years a very material increase in the cost of material used in drilling and operating, and producers claim they cannot operate under a cost of $3 per barrel. The highest price paid during the year ending March 31, 1925, was $2.73 per barrel; the lowest was $2.23; average $2.48. It has been the government bounty that has made up some of the difference, but half of this was removed last year and the balance came off on the first of July, 1925, so the crude oil industry now has neither bounty nor protection.

It is this condition that is causing the producers some uneasiness, and which introduces the element of doubt as to whether Petrolia will continue to be the one real oil center of the dominion, and the training school for men who go all over the world in quest of oil. Petrolia is essentially a good town, supplied with fine homes, but back of it all is the oil industry. The finance department should watch carefully the effect of the removal of the bounty, which was given by the Laurier government years ago in lieu of tariff. It is an important industry in this corner of Western Ontario, and thousands of dollars are sent back to Petrolia every year from all corners of the world to the families of men who are producing oil in far-off countries.

The Children Know How.

Figures that come from the Penny Bank give an idea of what coppers and five-cent pieces can do. In March London children put away $2,927.75, just a little short of $4,000, and the deposits for the most part ran between 28 and 78 cents for the period.

One lad who has about $50 now has still two or three years to attend public school. His plan has been to collect the coppers that happened to come to the family purse, and it is on the strength of the one-cent currency that his little pile has been staked.

Grown-ups have for the most part given up the habit of saving small amounts and doing it persistently and consistently. It is very easy to get caught up with the idea that in some strange way a fair degree of wealth is going to come; that there will be a regular "killing" made some day and thereafter everything will be fine. But things do not happen that way.

The school children in their Penny Bank business have the right idea, and if they adhere to it after leaving school there is no reason why many of them should not have a snug amount later on. Every little bit added to what you have makes a little bit more—that's a very old phrase, but even the school children can vouch for its truth.

Note and Comment.

Can you imagine anything tougher than trying to stick to a diet through the cherry pie season?

Alex. Calder of the Highland club drove a golf ball 555 yards. Ed. Buchanan is a more canny golfer, and doesn't believe in letting a ball get that far away from him.

On May 21 there was a warrant out for the arrest of a Londoner who left the city in a hurry. When he came back the other day he was arrested. It's nice to have some person keen to see you in the old home town.

London lady sent $30 to the department of finance at Ottawa because some years ago she smuggled in a silk dress, and now every preacher in the city is wondering which particular sermon of his it was that brought such results.

Great Britain sent debt reminders to France, Italy, Greece, Portugal, Rumania and Serbia, and followed it up in a few days with a public statement that no offence was intended. That second move has a kid-glove touch to it that the average collector doesn't often include in his day's work.

Officer stopped a man with a likely-looking bottle under his arm, whereupon it fell to the pavement and crashed. Had the bottle been intact in court it would have cost $50; as it was it resulted in a $5 fine. Auto drivers claim that $45 difference is putting too great a premium on broken glass.

The census books give Strathroy credit for a population of 2,800, but those competent to judge state that on July 1 there were 12,000 participating in a celebration there. To get some idea of what that means, London, to stare a celebration of similar proportions, would have to have an attendance of a quarter of a million. It speaks well for the energy of Strathroy that its people can plan and carry out such an ambitious undertaking.

Fashion letter from New York warns that the feather boa is coming back as the proper neckpiece, and they are very long and "are worn exactly as a side-show snake charmer drapes a boa constrictor about her. They are wound about the shoulders, waist and one arm." This will take a little practice, but it should be mighty effective. Ladies wanting to be ready for the new style should practice in the meantime with twenty feet of lawn hose.

In connection with the old boys' reunion at Petrolia, there is a picture in an illustrated book printed in 1908, and sent to The Advertiser some time ago by the late Dr. C. O. Fairbank. Strange as it may seem, it had nothing to do with the oil industry, but it was a photograph of what was proclaimed at that time to be the champion log of wood, drawn to Petrolia by William Ewing. It contained sixteen cords and was brought in on a sleigh with a special rack, and drawn by a team of heavy horses. That record has never been broken, as far as we are aware.

Savin' the Country

When these old geysers start to spout and wield about a wicked lash, it's time to lock the cellar door and put two hands upon your cash.

The speaker gave a lengthy review of the work he had accomplished, and held that his record was one of which he need not be ashamed.—From the news columns.

We often hear a speech like that when someone has an axe to grind, and when he wants to plant new seed to blossom in the public mind. More often when elections come do men parade the things they've done, and it's a fact as you well know they never skip a single one.

I've listened to such blasts at times all chanted in a merry strain, they come in sticky atmosphere before the east wind blows up rain.

The speaker wipes his specs and coughs, and gulps some water down his throat, then starts upon the task to show how someone else should be the goat. "I am the man who went abroad and busted up the traitor's nest, I choked the life from twenty-six and broke the ribs from all the rest."

"For them who plot to do dark things, and scoop the cash from out the till, who sit up too late at nights to thwart and blast the people's will—it takes a man to deal with such, to look them sternly in the eye, behold in me, my countrymen, a brave and fearless sort of guy."

"I am the friend of those who toil, who hears the worker and his wail, who slams the villain in the jaw and sinks him in the village jail."

"I am the widow's friend, I be, the man whose heart beats with their ache, who weeps when such must eat dry crusts instead of prunes and jelly cake. I grieve for children when denied a pittance from life's fatted horde, whose ribs be stickin' from their hide like slats upon a scrubbin' board."

"We're livin' in strange times just now when evil men plot when and how, that they can seize the widow's but and drive away her brindle cow."

"I am the man the people trust, the youngsters troupe about my path, the poor folks holler unto me to save their pig and yearlin' calf. I knocked the taxes down last year, I built a road and dug a ditch, I'm loved by them what's pure and good and dreaded by the idle rich."

No callous rests upon his fist, no corns or bunions on his feet, the bailliff never comes along and strews his holdin's on the street. Whenever you hear a speech like that you scamper home and chain your sow, and holler at the widow too, to tether up her brindle cow.—ARK.

To the Editor

The Public Will Pay.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—Here are three questions I would like answered, not only for my own benefit but for others who are disgusted with the manner in which some members of the city council are endeavoring to run the affairs of the city.

(1) How much did it cost to tear down and remove the pretty little island park place at Richmond and Central avenue?

(2) How much has it cost to replace it up to date?

(3) Do the aldermen responsible for this foolishness intend to pay for it out of their own pockets? If not, what excuse can they offer?

Yours sincerely,
RATEPAYER.

Answer—The city engineer states that $150 will cover the entire cost of ripping up curb, carting away soil, laying new cement work and leveling and seeding the well-known "safety island." Cost of paving the area would have been practically the same, not more than $5 difference one way or another. Removal of earth to Victoria park came out of the works department funds, though the parks department was benefited.

Assuming that this act was rash and foolish, it is not likely that the aldermen responsible will pay for this work out of their own pockets. If excuses are in order, the council is silent.

Painleve Receives Unanimous Vote of Confidence in Approval of Actions.

Paris, July 2.—Premier Painleve's condemnation of the communist agitation with regard to Morocco and his policy in the war against the Rif was approved today by the Senate, which gave the government a unanimous vote of confidence. The premier in repeating to the Senate the declarations he made in the Chamber of Deputies, emphasized his desire for peace which, however, would require "delicate" negotiations. He explained that Abd-el-Krim, the Special to The Advertiser.

Mirage Shows Train In Lake

St. Thomas, July 2.—A train running through a large body of water was seen by citizens of St. Thomas from Sandy Mount Hill on the highway between London and St. Thomas, on Wednesday morning. About 10 o'clock a beautiful mirage gave a perfect reproduction of Lake Erie to observers. A train crossing the Michigan Central bridge completed the phenomenon. The trestle work was blotted out by the mirage, and the train seemed to travel on water.

WHISKEY BRIBES PAID POLICEMEN

Federal Grand Jury in Philadelphia Reveals Officers Aided Liquor Outflow.

Associated Press Despatch.

Philadelphia, July 3.—A special federal grand jury which yesterday completed an investigation of the liquor outflow here, uncovered evidence of huge bribes paid to city policemen who aided in loading trucks and acted as convoy to the liquor-laden vehicles. Simultaneously Director of Public Safety Butler admitted that his crusades against vice, gambling and liquor had failed because the police had been "shadowed."

He announced a new campaign, personally directed, and campaign to "clean up the city."

Regarding the grand jury investigation, assistant district attorney said it had not been the "biggest police scandal in the history of the city." He declined to state the number of officers involved, but said his investigation would lead to the indictment of more than a score of corporations, and forty individuals on charges of bribery, illegal transportation and sale of alcohol and bribery of policemen.

PREMIER KING WILL SWING TRUSTY AXE ON WOODPILE DURING REST FROM LABORS

To Seek Refuge From Worries at Capital in Gatineau Hills.

CABINET TO MEET

Election Date May Be Decided Today, But Will Be Kept Secret.

By E. C. BUCHANAN, Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Ottawa, July 2.—The end of this week will find few of the members of the government in the capital. All but one or two of the ministers are scattering in various directions for a holiday or on business. The cabinet held today what it hoped would be the last meeting for some time, transacting business resulting from the session, but it failed to finish and will meet again tomorrow.

Premier King is going to his summer home at Kingsmere, in the Gatineau foothills, a few miles from Ottawa, for a short rest. While there he will secure relaxation in his favorite exercise of wood-cutting. The prime minister is said to be something of an expert with the axe and buck-saw. Hon. J. A. Robb is going to his home in Valleyfield for a few days. Hon. Chas. Stewart and Hon. W. R. Motherwell are proceeding to the prairies to examine the political situation and attend to personal business. Hon. George P. Graham and other ministers will take brief vacations.

It may be that decision as to an election will be taken before the ministers separate tomorrow but it will not be divulged.

White Canoeist Conquers Rapids

Canadian Press Despatch. Montreal, July 2.—The shooting of the dangerous Lachine Rapids by a single canoeist was accomplished yesterday. It became known today. The venturesome navigator was Art Christie, member of the Lachine Rowing Club. This was the first time the feat had been performed by a white man alone in a light craft. The young Lachine Club member went through the most dangerous currents without incident.

long-deferred step of appointing a Canadian minister to Washington may also be taken this week. It has been anticipated that Hon. George P. Graham would be the government's choice, but there is some doubt as to whether he could be spared from the forthcoming election campaign. Quebec reports that four or five French-Canadian members, including Thomas Vén, Charles Fournier and Lucien Cannon, will not run again, are not credited here. Neither is it thought likely that Lucien Cannon will be appointed to the Senate, as a Quebec despatch suggests. The cabinet tomorrow will have under consideration the suggestions of the Canada-West Indies conference, which has been in progress for some days on the question of improved trade relations.

EDMONTON MINES CLOSED BY STRIKE

Wage Reduction Refused—4,000 Tons For Ontario Affected.

Canadian Press Despatch. Edmonton, July 2.—With the termination of the old agreement between Edmonton mine operators and the district miners' federation at midnight Tuesday, a strike was virtually put into effect by the men's organization as the result of failure of negotiations between the two parties to arrive at a settlement for a new rate on a reduced scale. Tuesday afternoon, on concluding work, the men at work in the four Edmonton mines carried out their tools and there has been no opportunity to negotiate again between the parties since owing to the holiday on July 1. Inquiry at the mines today showed that no men had reported for work, and it was not known just when negotiations would take place again. Operators are in no hurry, as at this time of the year the trade is very slack, and they are firm against continuing the old agreement for one month to meet the Ontario trial shipment, as they state that their particular share is not so very great, being merely 4,000 tons.

TORYISM AT OXFORD TURNS DOWN ASQUITH

Viscount Cane Elected Chancellor—University Asserts Conservatism.

London, July 2.—The Earl of Oxford and Asquith has been defeated in his candidacy for the chancellorship to Oxford University, a post made vacant through the death of Lord Curzon of Kedleston. It appeared that the Liberal leader in the House of Lords, notwithstanding his political leanings would have a walkover. Quite recently, however, to the surprise of the general public, a new candidate appeared in Viscount Cane, lord high chancellor, and in the polling today Lord Cane won the victory with 987 votes against 441 for the Earl of Oxford. Thus the university's traditional Conservatism asserted itself against the weight of respect felt for the great Liberal statesman.
