Mr. Tobey evidently had his eyes open afl the time he was away. "Things are moving pretty lively in Battleford," remarked Mr. Tobey this morning. "People are going in there 600 a week. Wilton Ball is becoming a model farmer and is becoming well. Jack Richardson is in one of the big stores in Battleford. There are between 90 and 100 new towns going up along the line of the C. N. Judge Duff of British Columbia Finds That All Land, Timber and Fishing Leases Issued In That Province Since 1899 Are Not Worth the Paper They Are Written On-A Startling

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 7.—Incidental to an innocent injunction motion in the civil suit of the Capital City Packing Company vs. the Anglo-British Columbia Packing Company, argued before Justice Duff Saturday, the astounding fact became evident that not only are all the salmon trap licenses and leases held on Vancouver Island scarce worth the paper they are written upon, but all land, timber, fishery and other leases issued by the lands department here since 1899 are equally invalid and defective.

Both companies in the suit hold provincial leases for salmon traps at the same location in Renfrew district. The plaintiffs, as first lessees, claimed priority and exclusive rights in the site and fish taken, and are seeking to com-Victoria, B. C., Aug. 7.—Incidental

All Valueness.

This amendment has been ignored, and the chief commissioner has gone on issuing land, timber and other leases, aggregating many, many milions in value, and in which leading capitalists in all parts of Canada. Legal experts declare these leases are valueless, and unless a special session of the Legislature is convened, and the sitistent leases ratified by anactment, chaotic confusion and business panic throughout British Columbia would seem inevitable.

St. Catharines, Aug. 7.—The most daring daylight robbery ever committed in this part of the country took place here Saturday afternoon, and the robbers got away with $1,650 worth of diamond rings. There is no clue to the present whereabouts of the robbers.

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon, while J. S. Smith, the proprietor, was at lunch, and two clerks and an apprentice were left in charge of his jew-cllery store, two strangers sauntered in one asked the girl to show him some clocks. The other asked the other clerk to see some cut glass.

Suspect Foul Play.

St. John's, Que, Aug. 7.—The body of a man was found yesterday on the bank of the River Richelleu, near the canal. The body was without coat, vest or boots. 4 DOORS WEST OF MARKET

MONDAY, AUGUST 7, 1905. STORY WITH A MORAL.

A man who gave his name as White accompanied by his wife, or by a woman purporting to be his wife, struck town recently, says the Walkerton Telescope, and lost no time in getting to work. Their mission there was to supply the people of the town with soap that would remove ink or stains. The soap was offered for sale in little sticks, nicely done up in scented paper. They did a thriving business for a day or two, but were then interviewed by Constable Russell, who had the man brought before the magistrate, on a charge of peddling without a license. He was fined $20 and costs. The woman gave the whole thing away. What they did was to buy a bar of ordinary soap at a grocery store. Taking it into their room, by means of a punch, they manufactured from this one bar, 75 little sticks, to be offered for sale to the public. The next step in the process was to wrap each of these little sticks in a printed label, and then to sprinkle a little highly-scented powder over it It seems that they sold quite a lot of it in Walkerton. This soap fake is an old one. Some years ago, when the late James Rothwell kept store there, he sold a bar of common Sunlight soap to one of these fakirs. When he went home for dinner, he found that his wife had bought three little packages from the fellow, and at three times the price that Mr. Rothwell had charged him for the whole bar. The moral of the incident is that citizens should patronize those who have a business reputation to maintain, and avoid buying from wandering pedlars and irresponsible canvassers. The people who patronize home merchants are the ones who live the cheapest and fare the best; and the merchant who has enough confidence in his wares to advertise them and enough enterprise to place them before the public in this way, is the man who is going to · give his patrons the best service.

Like the mongrel cur that bites the hand that feeds him, the Star last week again turned the vials of its wrath against the West Flamboro DISTRICT Agricultural Society directors. For years the Star fattened at the expense of the fair. Last year, owing to his nastiness, he was cut out of the printing, hence he now attempts to get even by calling the directors grafters, and trying to injure the success of the show.

The Star man also wants to know who the secretary-treasurer is. Well, his name is N. H. Boden. He is, we believe, what the Star man never was and never will be—a gentleman-one whom the directors of the fai have confidence will not "hold-up" them or the public.

in pursuit of material for one of his stories he stayed over night at a cabin, where he siept next to the shingles and went down a ladder to breakfast.

He washed his face in a creek below the house, and dried it on the side of a piece of coffee sacking which hung against the logs for family use. Then he combed his hair with his own comb before a piece of broken glass stuck between the "chinking and daubing" of the cabin.

"chinking and daubing" of the cabin.

As he was making his totte he was closely watched by a boy of the family, who was clothed in a pair of cottonade trousers hitched to a "hickory" skirt, with one suspender fastened by a nail. Shoes and hat were lacking, and his hair had not been combed for six weeks.

He watched the vistor so closely that the writer thought he was making an excellent impression on the young barbarian. As he put on the last touch, the boy unable to contain himself any longer, broke in:

TO TELEPHONE USERS AND THE GENERAL PUBLIC,-

At the opening of the enquiry by the Parliamentary Special Committee on Telephone Systems it was charged that the existing Telephone Companies in Canada had absolutely neglected and discouraged the extension of the Telephone to rural communities. The person who made this charge was either ignorant of the facts, or he made a sweeping misstatement wilfully.

The sworn testimony of the officials of THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA shows that this Company has been giving constant attention to this branch of Telephone development since 1887—that we have been fifteen years in advance of the times in exploiting rural service. The Company has spent thousands of dollars in promoting and constructing rural Telephone Lines, many of which had afterwards to be abandoned for lack of support, and others have been maintained for years at a loss as an educative example. This has been supplemented by frequent and expensive personal canvasses over many districts to induce development of this class of service. Where rural communities have preferred to supply their own Telephone service on the co-operative plan, the Bell Telephone Company has aided and encouraged them by loaning experienced men to s spervise their line construction and installation of inst aments, and afterwards by making further expert inspection and repairs. This Company has then given connection to such lines with its Local and Long Distance Systems where the equipment of the local concern was in condition to give satisfactory service. and where they were not in direct competition with this Company's own business. The Bell Telephone Company has in addition to its own extensive and rapidly extending rural line system, working arrangements and an exchange of service with about forty such local systems.

It is only within the past three years that farmers have come generally to realize the practical advantage to them of Telephone service. Previous to that, farmers regarded the Telephone as a luxury which a few were prepared to pay for for a time, but in most cases soon to be abandoned. Even yet a great many farmers see an advantage only in being connected with their neighbours. But they are commencing to realize the necessity to them as well as to those in towns and cities of being connected with one general system, constructed in such a thorough manner as will insure permanency and a constant and efficient service.

The Bell Telephone Company of Canada has been doing pioneer work in this as in other branches of Telephone development for twenty years, and is to-day in advance of the movement. We have now over two thousand rural Telephone subscribers and nearly eight hundred Toll Offices supplying service to rural communities. As we have pointed out, development of this class of service has only fairly begun. The season of 1905 will add more farmers' Telephones to the Company's system than all the years before, and already hundreds of extensions for 1906 have been approved or are now being exploited.

The policy of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada. declared before the Special Committee, has been, and will continue to be, to develop Telephone service for every interest and every section of Canada in which it operates, and in this respect to keep pace with the public requirements. We may add that we deserve the continued support and confidence of the people by giving an efficient service at CHATHAM BRED HORSE HAS WON A WORLD'S RECORD.

In the Horse Review of July 25th there appears the following: "Col-lege Maid, owned by the Kuster-Erwin Horse Company of Larmie, Wyoming, paced an exhibition half at the recent Denver meeting in 59°3-4 seconds all by herself. The first quarter was in 27°3-4 seconds and the half is the world's record and the half is the world's record for a guideless pacer, the best previous mark being 1.01 3.4 by Cute."

She was bred by D. McLachlan, of the Canada Business College of this city. Before he sold her as a 3-year-old she could show a mile better than 2.15. This mare with two others named Jennie Mac and Attarwere sold to Charles Bunnell, of Winnipeg, and later on Bunnell sold all three to Wm. Fleming, of Portage la Prairie, Man., who owns a stock farm at Elston, Montana, and Fleming sold her to her present ownter than 2.15. This mare with two others named Jennie Mae and Attar were sold to Charles Bunnell, of Winnipeg, and later on Bunnell sold all three to Wm. Fleming, of Portage la Prairie, Man., who owns a stock farm at Elston, Montana, and Fleming sold her to her present owners this spring. Last fall he started her as a guideless pacer and she stepped a mile at the State Fair at Billings, Montana, in 2.09 3-4, and her owness, then claimed that she her owness, then claimed that she had a halter on, and to a man who could have stepped the mile in 2.02 on any good track that day as the track was a very poor one and in no shape for a fast mile.

no shape for a fast mile.

Mr. Fleming raced the other mare, Jennie Mac, by High Noon, a son of Red Wilkes, through the Western Circuit last fall, where she won seven of Red Wilkes, through the Western Circuit last fall, where she won seven straight races, all, or nearly all, of them in straight heats. In twelve races in which she started she was seven times first, three times second, once third and once behind the money, and in many of the places where she raced she won two races at the same meeting. She went into winter quarters with a record of 2.18 1-4 made on a half mile track. Mr. McLachlan is to be congratulated on having bred such extreme speed, and he is still further to be congratulated on having the dam of this mare which is named "Certainly," and also having a full brother and sister. The full brother is the handsome brown stallion "Collegian," that may be seen on our streets any day of the week. He also has a 3-year-old stallion out of the same mare by High Noon, a yearling, full sister to College Maid, and a sucking colt out of the same made by the one time world's champion, Nonbars, 2.11 3-4, as a 3-year-old.

When Governor Simcoe laid the foundation of London, Ontario, one hundred years ago he knew it would grow to be a great city, but had no thought of the Western Fair.

The Western Fair gives the people of this country an excellent opportunity for a pleasant outing at a minimun of cost, and at the same time developes their store of practical and useful knowledge.

Its educational features have always been carefully fostered by the Directors. This year several important improvements of an instructive nature have been added.

We are told that the County of Kent holds a unique position on the Kent holds a unique position on the continent in producing extreme speed. As the report goes, this county, apart from College Maid's performance, has produced three horses with marks of 2.04 or better, namely: Gallagher, 2.03 1-2; Harold M., 2.03 1-4; Free (Bond, 2.04; and it is said that no other group of five counties anywhere on the continent has produced a like number. TRAGEDIES OF THE ALPS

DEATH ROLL OF MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS IS A LONG ONE.

Glacler Which May Yield Up This Summer the Body of Lord Douglas, Who Perished Forty Years Ago-The Matterhorn, From Which He Fell—How Alpine Climbers Are Roped Together For Safety.

What is called the "death season" in the Alps is now at hand. Every summer there is a heavy loss of life amid Alpine peaks and glaciers. Mountain climbing has a great fascination for Englishmen, and each recurring season finds more of them attempting dangerous feats in the Alps or other mountainous sections. In ten years the Alps have claimed over 300 vice tims. In the single year of 1901 the death list reached 119. All over Switzerland are monuments marking the graves of ill fated adventurers or pointing out where they lost their lives. This year there is special interest in the Matterhorn and the Zmutt glacier at its base, for at some time during the season the glacier is expected to yield up a reminder of a grim tragedy of forty years ago.

With the growth of interest in Alpine exploration scientists began to devote themselves to study of the glaciers, and it was found that the progciers, and it was found that the prog-ress of the ice in a glacier from the heights above to the valley beneath, where it melts and feeds the streams heights above to the valley beneath, where it melts and feeds the streams that flow into the sea, can be accurately measured. In 1820 the ascent of Mont Blanc was attempted by Dr. Hamel, member of the Russian council of state, two Englishmen and tenguides. Three of the guides in the party were overwhelmed by an avalanche and buried under ice and snow. In 1853 Professor Forbes, an English scientist, made observations of the movement of the glacier and predicted that about forty years after their burial the bodies of the guides would appear at a certain spot. Sure enough, forty-one years after the tragedy the corpses were found at the place indicated, about four miles below where the guides had been overtaken by the avalanche. As the bodies had been in the lice during the whole period of forty-one years they were in a perfect state of preservation.

In July, 1865, the first successful attempt to scale the famous Matterhorn was made. The narty was comosed

The party was composed of Lord Francis Douglas, Edward Whymper, the noted mountain climber who afterward ascended to the height of 20,500 feet on Mount Chimborazo, in Ecuador; the Rev. Charles Hudson, Mr. Hadow, a guide named Michael Croz and two other guides named Taugwalder, father and son. The Matterhorn, which is 14,700 feet high, had been scaled, and the party was de-

The rope connecting the different members of the party began to pull on Whymper and the Taugwalders, but they had seen their companions fall and braced themselves for the expected strain. They managed to retain their places, but when the rope pulled taut it snapped in two, and Hadow, Douglas, Croz and Hudson fell from one height to another to the Zmutt glacier, 4,000 feet below. The bodies of three of the men were recovered, but that of Lord Douglas was not found. It is his body which the glacier is expected to yield up this summer. His sister, Lady Florence Dixie, herself famous as an explorer, is still living, and she has published a letter appealing to all Alpine climbers to watch for the appearance of the long buried corpse. She confidently expects to find it in such a state of preservation as to be readily identified.

JAPANESE WHALERS.

The Curious Way They Do Their Work With Nets and Knives.

Whales are captured in nets by the Japanese. The whalers put off from the shore as quietly as possible, and when they come within the proper distance of their objective the boats, which have hitnerto worked in couples, separate and, dropping their nets as they go, work around to the rear and flanks of their expected kill. The nets are made in large squares, each side being about forty feet long. One net is composed of six squares in line, and the squares are fastened to each other lightly. When all is ready the boats which have been worked around to the rear of the whale then commence to drive him gently toward the nets. Moving along lazily at first, the whale soon realizes that something untoward is happening and, hurrying forward, dashes on to one of the nets. This is the critical moment, and when the fisher-men see that the whale is well in the center of one of the squares they raise a great shout and charge in upon him.

When the whale is about spent a man chosen for his strength, activity, pluck, coolness and general fitness for his work then leaps upon his back and with a great triangular shaped knife proceeds to cut two great gashes in his body just back of his head. Through the underlying blubber and these two gashes he passes a rope and, knotting it, makes a loop of it. He then repeats the same operation as far back on his body as he can. When the fight has been completely knocked out of the whale, boats range alongside of him, and by the help of the loops already mentioned the hapless cetacean is slung between them in such a manner as to minimize the danger of his car-

Then the boats form in procession and, making for the shore, there com-mences the most curious part of the whole affair. The whalers, with real fervor and in the most solemn manner possible, begin a chanting prayer for the ease of the departing spirit by calling out "Joraku! Joraku! Joraku!" in low, deep tones. Upon the third day after the kill a memorial service is Millionaire Contractors Who Tossed Timber in Lanark's Limits.

Despatches recently reported the capture of a $3,000,000 contract from the C. P. R., and a $7,000,000 one from the Grand Trunk Pacific, by the Foley Brothers of St. Paul. These brothers are natives of Lanark, having been born in Darling, says The Carleton Place Canadian. There were four—Timothy, Michael, John and Richard. The last Michael, John and Richard. The last is dead. These brothers began life in the humblest manner in the limits of Mr. Mair of Lanark. They were as poor as crows, except in the matter of intellect and energy. They were born with an aptitude to do things on a big scale, James L. Murphy knew them when they were in the chrysalis of the crow state—45 years ago. In a moment of blooming ambition he accepted a position in the camp where they were engaged. He saw Tim and Mike wielding the canthook and the hand-spike. Tim especially was powerful in the art of logrolling; indeed, each tossed timber with skill and alacrity. Mr. Murphy was not enamored of that sort of life, having something safer at home, and left ing something safer at home, and left ing something safer at home, and leaving it in a few days; but his memory repaints the scenes with colors that enrich their tints with age. The brothers hitched their charlot to a star, which dropped in St. Paul, where they which dropped in St. Faul, where they took deep root and began to spread with a rapidity almost sensational. Each is millionairs and each lives in a mansion whose beauty and equipment are beyond the dreams of an Oriental potentate. Mrs. Murphy, when in Superior some time ago called on her husband's youthful friends, accompanied by a sister, who also knew them in those distant days. Timothy Foley married Miss Guthrie of Darling, and she, with her husband, gave the Canadians a royal greeting. T. Foley lives in a home next that of James J. Hill, the noted rallway magnate. THE BIG GAME

The final lacrosse game between Chatham and St. Thomas at London next Wednesday promises to be the best attended game of the season. Many are going to accept this opportunity of visiting the London old boys reunion, and it is quite probable that a number of ladies will take in the trip.

There are at present about 10,000 old boys in London and it is expected that by Friday fully 30,000 will be there. The city has been well billed for the game and there should be a bumper trowd to see it.

As far as the game itself is concerned, Chatham should have no difficulty in winning. Quesnel will be back at point and the home will be considerably strengthened. The boys are now holding afternoon practices at the agrigulcural grounds every day and are getting into the best possible shape.

Already several enquiries have been made to Mr. McCoig for train tickets and there will no doubt be a big contingent from Chatham.

John J. Burns Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

He Had Chronic Inflammation of the Kidneys-Says his Brother Foresters Can Tell All About It.

Darnley, P. E. I., August 7 .- (Spe

Darnley, P. E. I., August 7.—(Special).—John J. Burns, a prominent member of the I. O. F. here, whose cure of Chronic Inflammation of the Loins and Kidneys caused a sensation some time ago, reports that he is still in splendid health. "Yes," says Mr. Burns, "my cure is entirely satisfactory. I have had no trouble since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills. They drove away the diease from which I suffered for eight years. "No, I'll never forget Dodd's Kidney Pills. The doctor could not help me. I got so bad I could scarcely walk, sit or sleep. I was about to give up entirely when an advertisement led me 'to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Now I am in good health. Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life." If any one doubts Mr. Burns' story he simply refers them to his brother Foresters. They all know how he suffered and that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

COWARD ADAM.

Proneness of Man to Lay the Blame Upon Woman.

"Never kiss and tell" is, I believe, an "unwritten law of chivalry." This law, se I understand, Coward Adam does sometimes manage to obey, albeit reluctantly. Because he would like to tell—he would very much like to tell if-if the story of the kiss did not involve himself in the telling! But at this juncture "the unwritten laws of chivalry" step in, and he is saved. And chivalry is the tree up which he climbs, chattering to himself the usual formula, "The woman whom thou gavest to be with me," etc. Alas, poor woman! She has heard him saying this ever since she in an unselfish desire to share her food with him gave him the for bidden apple. No doubt she offered him its rosiest and ripest side! She always does-at first. Not afterward! As soon as he turns traitor and runs up a tree she takes to pelting him, metaphorically speaking, with eccoa-auts. This is quite natural on her part. She had thought him a man—and when he suddenly changes into a monkey she doesn't understand it. To this cause may possibly be attributed some of the ructions which occasionally jar the harmonious estate of matrimony.— From Marie Corelli's "Free Opinions." The Battle of a Week

The battle of a week was the great conflict at Tours, in which Charles Martel overthrew the Saracens, A. D. 732. The members of the Saracen army are variously estimated at from 400,000 to 700,000, and the monkish historians say that 375,000 were killed on the field. It is suspected that these figures are a gross exaggeration, but it is certain that few battles of history have been either so bloody or so de Elephants In Uganda. "Elephants in Uganda have a pecu liar aspect that I have not noticed elsewhere," writes a traveler. "They cover their bodies, as a protection against files, with the bright red volcanic dust contained in the soil. This gives them a remarkable appearance, as, instead of being a slaty gray, as in the Nile valley, their color, when thus covered with dust, resembles that of a chestnut horse."

The God In the Hurdy Gurdy

By CASPAR JOHNSON

Copyright, 1905, by K. A. Whitehead

It was a narrow alley, running be tween the back yards. It was intended for the convenience of the butcher's boy and the grocer's boy and the ash man. Distinctively it was not intended for men of Pasquale Venetti's stamp Indeed, a sign at either end announced this in no uncertain terms

"Beggars, Peddlers and Street Musicians Keep Out," it read.

But to Pasquale Venetti warning signs in English had no terrors from the simple fact that written English was beyond his ken. Therefore as he came trundling the ancient hurdy gurdy up the street he looked into the alley. saw its possibilities—the ease with which coins could be tossed from the back windows—and, forsaking the asphalt pavements, where, to use his own expression, he could "no getta de biz," he turned into the alley and, unlimbering his musical battery, sent up the quavering strains of "Lindy, Lindy. Yo' Is Ma Ladylove." It is a hard, cold world. Pasquale ground away patiently, and whenever a face appeared at any of the windows he smiled expansively, removed his battered hat and bowed profoundly and even essayed a joyful shuffling of his feet while, he turned the crank. But, despite all these blandishments, to say nothing of the appeal made by a choice assortment of selections, ranging from the classic to ragtime, no oins wrapped in white paper came fingling to his feet. To be sure, one after he had played half through the hurdy gurdy's assortment gave him a penny, and an old gentleman had raised an upper window and, with a thundered "Get out of this!" had flung him a dime. But 11 cents from such a promising alley! Pasquale resented his ill treatment and moved farther up the No better success attended him here.

He whistled, he danced, he sang. He smiled his best and bowed his lowest. He tried the intermezzo and "Ma Filipino Man" with an equal-lack of success. He had his labor for his pains. He moved to the far end of the alley, with a view to quitting it. He made one final stand, however, before the sinking heart he sent up the jerky bars of a march from a popular light opera. The house, like all the others, was unresponsive. Then he shifted to rag-time. He decided to play through his repertory anyway. If it failed, he would go back to the asphalt pavements and try his luck somewhere flowntown before a restaurant or a promising saloon.

Now, it happened that in the big, dim back parlor of the imposing house sat two young people, and a single glance showed that they were not happy.

The man sat very stiff and straight in his chair and bit his lips. The girl was seated on a low divan. Her face was flushed and her eyes glowed an-"It is far too much to forgive this time," she was saying. "I have for-given and forgiven—eternally forgiven -and now I am tired." The man replied coldly.

"Perhaps you are right," he said in "And the sooner it's over the better now," said the girl, choking.

The man started up. Whatever remonstrance he was about to make he "Very well," he said curtly.

The girl pulled a ring from her finger and laid it on the table beside the man. He took it without a word and man. He took it without a word and put it in his pocket.

"I might say"— he began slowly.

"All you could say would make no difference," she said wearily.

The man rose and strode to the win-dow. Pasquale was grinding away assiduously. At the sight of the man in the window he smirked and bowed and shuffled his feet. The man smiled bitterly.

"Lucky, happy devil?" he muttered.
Then he turned to the girl and drew himself up stiffly. "I may as well say goodby," said be,

She made no reply. "Goodby," he said again. "Goodby," she returned evenly.

The man hesitated a moment; then he strode to the door. In the alley Pasquale had come to the last piece in his repertory. It was a poor imtation of portions of Schubert's "Ser-enade." Just as the man reached the door the jingling notes floated in from the alley. The man paused. A look of pain came into his face.

Those jerky notes brought memories with them-memories of a big, dark music room with two little spots of red in the gloom where the candles burned on the piano; of a girl beneath the candles—a girl with white neck and gleaming shoulders, playing the serenade very softly; of a few breath-less words whispered over her shoulder; of a pair of luminous eyes which flashed an answer that set his heart pounding madly. * * * And now a ourdy gurdy playing that sacred serenade in the alley-and this. It was "Lord, I can't stand that," he mutered, and turned to the girl a face drawn and white. "Goodby," he said as if the words choked him.

But the girl's face had whitened She took a step forward. "Robert," she said with wide, fright ened eyes.

In the alley Pasquale ground away opelessly. Suddenly a window wa raised and a coin dropped at his feet. It was a shining, yellow coin. Pas quale Venetti gasped, turned it over in his palm, and then whooped. In a burst of gratitude he began the repertory all over again, and such was his elation that he essayed to heighten the effect by singing in a high, squeaky voice.

The orgy was soon over, however, for a patrolman came down the alley and seized the exuberant musician. The thought of the yellow coin in his pocket enabled Pasquale to bear this ordeal with equanimity.

"Alla right, alla right!" he protested mildly as he was hustled past the warning signs and dumped unceremoniously on the asphalt pavement.

The Ruling Passion. The ruling passion is often very strong in death. A senator from Tennessee discovered this some years ago. Among his constituents was a certain man who came to him regularly twice a year for the purpose of obtaining a pass to Baltimore. The man and his family had served the senator when he was first making his way up the ladder of politics, and as a result of this he always obliged him, and had, moreover, a soft place in his heart for the man. He obtained for him a position in one of the departments at Washington; but this did not seem to be enough, for regularly at the end of each six months he applied for his ticket to Baltimore. One day he sickened and was reported to be dying. The senator, very much grieved, im-mediately called upon him.

"Joe," he said, leaning over and speaking very softly, "is there anything I can do for you?" The sick man looked up with a flash of recognition, and instantly replied in a whisper: "Yes, senator; please get me a pass to Baltimore."-Harper's Weekly.

Shipshape on Land.

One of the quaintest charitable institutions in the world is the Royal Alfred Home For Aged Seamen, which house 100 English mariners in the outskirts of London. It is supported entirely by voluntary contribution. The main idea as been to make the place as homelike as possible, and to this end an effort has been made to preserve in large measure the environment to which the nmates are accustomed.

The dormitories are cut up into tiny cabins, as on shipboard, and in place of the familiar iron cots these veterans of the sea turn in at night in bunks and stow their clothes and other belongings precisely as they would on board ship. Day and night the hours and half hour are struck on a ship's bell in the main hall, and even in the mess room the atmosphere of the sea is retained as an ald to appetite. The house governor is himself an old sea captain of forty years' experience in commanding men and his rule is entirely along nautical

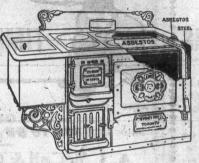

The Land of Horseradish. It almost makes the eyes water to read of the village of Baiersdorf, in Bavaria, which is celebrated for producing the finest horseradish in Europe. On an area of moist ground, in the valley of the river Regnitz, covering 1,335 acres, that titillating plant is practically the only thing raised, and the annual yield amounts to about 6,000,000 pounds. Horseradish requires a great deal of attention from the cultivator, for in midsummer the soil must be removed from the stems and the side roots rubbed off with a soft cloth, after which the stems are buried again. The plants spring up in March from the end roots, left in the soil the previous autumn, when the upper stems are cut off and packed in bar-rels for shipment.

Frenks of Lightning. A noted astronomer and scientist in a recent lecture in Paris gave an account of some of the freaks of light-ning. These freaks, however, he af-firmed, were determined by causes which we have yet to learn. Sometimes it kills, sometimes it merely injures and sometimes it seems to be frolick-ing in a way which gives rise to the hypothesis that "it is a thought which, instead of being attached to a brain, is attached to an electric current." Some-times it plays the physician, as in the instance at Romaines, France, when it struck a man who had not been able to walk without a crutch on account of rheumatism. After the shock the rheumatism disappeared.

Oxford Chancellor Range

The Oxford Chancellor Range is built to stand the wear and tear of years of usage. The body is constructed of heavy patent rolled steel plates, interlined throughout with asbestos millboard. The steel body is closely riveted together with specially clinched rivets, so that no matter how hot the fire the body will not warp and allow the heat to escape. This construction makes the Oxford Chancellor Range perfectly and permanently airtight. No leakage into the flues, stopping the draft and Impairing the oven heat, is possible.

The asbestos interlining insulates the heat of the range the outside of the range never getting overheated.

How the Indian Walks.

tion, his hips swaying an inch or more to the stepping side, and his pace is cor-respondingly long. This hip action may be noticed to an exaggrated degree in the stride of a professional pedestrian, but the latter walks with a heel trian, but the latter wars with a near-and-toe step, whereas an Indian's or sailor's step is more nearly flat-footed. In the latter case the centre of gravity is covered by the whole foot. The poise is as secure as that of a rope walker. The toes are pointed straight walker. The toes are pointed straight forward, or even a trifle inward, so that the inside of the heel, the outside of the ball of the foot, and the smaller toes, all do their share of work and as-sist in balancing. Walking in the woods in this manner, one is not so likely, either, to trip over projected roots, stones, and other traps as he would be if the feet formed hooks by pointing outward. The advantage is obvious in snowshoeing. If the Indian were turned to stone while in the act of stepling the status would probably stand on to stone while in the act of step-ping, the statue would probably stand balanced on one foot. This gait give the limbs great control over his move-ments. He is always poised. If a stick cracks under him it is because of his weight, and not by reason of the impact. He goes silently on, and with great economy of force. His steady balance enables him to put his moving foot down as gently as you would lay an egg on the table.

Blackie and the Magician. Many years ago Anderson, "the wizard of the north," gave some farformances in Edinburgh and Prof. Blacktowas one of the crowd who went to see them. As he was making his way in the felt something at his containing the set of the seed o them. As he was making his way in he felt something at his coat tail, and, putting his hand into his pocket, he found an egg. This he took out and most adroitly transferred it to the pocket of a young man just in front of him, a person as unlike himself as can well be imagined. Arrived in the hall he be imagined. Arrived in the hall, he remarked where this young man placed himself and chose his own seat in a corner as remote as possible. When the time came for "Wizard" Anderson to "trouble" him for the egg he arose and explained that he had nothing of and explained that he had nothing of the sort in his pocket, but that he be-lieved "that gentleman" could produce it, pointing to the astonished young man, whose surprise, however, by no means equalled that of the wizard.

A Day In Bed.

To spend a day in bed when one is not ill seems at first mention rather a waste of time, yet there is profit in it for a tired woman. The large majori ty of women, who must study economy very closely, cannot make a change of climate at will. For them the rest must be secured at home. Every one knows that the sequence of a brief illknows that the sequence of a brief ill-ness is often a great gain in strength. This is because the patient has had the rest afforded by staying for a short pe-riod in bed. Just one day every week or every fortnight thus passed by a tired woman, who is only tired, not really ill, will prove very profitable to her. Try it. Let yourself be waited on and a little missed downstairs.

RADIANT WOMANHOOD.

The glory and satisfaction of beautiful womanhood can be known only to those possessing the unlimited advantages of health. No weak woman can be happy or enjoy half the pleasures of life. Palid cheeks, sunken eyes, exhausted nerves, all tell of a terrible struggle to keep up. What the weak woman needs is Ferrozone; it genews, restores and vitalizes instantly—it's a "woman's remedy,"—that's why.

Ferrozone makes women strong, plump and healthful because it contains lots of nutriment, the kind that forms muscle, sinews, bone and nerve. Vitalizing blood courses through the body, making delightful color, happy spirits, true womanly strength. Fifty cents buys a box of Ferrozone in any drug store.

Borbon Baskets.

Baskets of drawn sugar make an exceedingly dainty ornament, with flaring edges and a long handle. They are woven from strands of variegated color or they are entirely of satiny white strands, with perhaps a ribbon of pink or blue sugar fastened at the top. These baskets are employed to hold bonbons or petit fours, no other receptacles appearing on the table. A host-ess tells the caterer the color scheme for her dining room, and he furnishes the sugar decorations in accordance.

The Oriole and the Bee. Birds, their heads being small, are usually regarded as stupid, but an amateur naturalist has pointed out a proof e oriole at least is very intelligent. Take the oriole's habitat in the summer, he said, and all around it you will find the decapitated bodies of bees. The oriole is fond of honey, and he has discovered somehow that the bee carries honey in a sac. Accordingly he rushes down on the insect, snips off its head, removes its viscera and then swallows the honey that is now laid bare. This shows intelligence on the oriole's part, but I have not yet de-scribed the thing which shows the bird's reasoning power most strongly. It is the stingless male white headed bees that the oriole slays. The sting-ing bee he leaves alone wisely.

Numbering the Hairs.

The number of individual hairs that The number of individual hairs that cover the human scalp is greatly a matter of speculation; but it is supposed to vary according to the thickness and color of the hair. A well-known authority estimates that red-haired people possess the fewest, and places the average number at thirty thousand. Blackhaired persons, on the other hand, are said to run into one hundred thousand; while the fair-haired have the largest number of all—namely, one hundred and fifty thousand. These figures should form a valuable index to those people form a valuable index to those people whose hair is on the down grade. World's Most Ancient Ruins.

The oldest architectural ruins in the world-are believed to be the roclecut temples at Ipsambool, on the left bank of the Nile, in Nubla. The largest of these ancient temples contains four-teen apartments, hewn out of solid stone. The largest single stone used in this work is one which forms a ver-anda-like projection along one side of the main temple. It is fifty-seven feet long, fifty-two broad, and seventeen—one account says nineteen—feet thick. Alexandra's Strange Position.

Alexandra's Strange Position.

The legal position of Queen Alexandra is very curious. So far as her private business is concerned she is not regarded by the laws and customs of England as a married woman at all. She is the only woman in Great Britain who does not come within the scope of the married woman's property act. The idea of the law is that affairs of state consume, all the time of the King and therefore no responsibility for the Queen's private business rests upon him. If the Queen contracted debts in her husband's name he would not be responsible for them as any other husband would. The King cannot be sued for debt, but the Queen can be. Should the King die some authorities hold that the Queen coulg not marry again in case she wished to do so without the special license and commission of the King's successor.

A Wonderful Book. A Wonderful Book.

The most wonderful book in the world is one which is neither written nor printed. Every letter is cut into the leaf, and, as the leaves are alternately blue and while, it is as easily read as the best printing. The labor required in cutting each letter may be imagined. The work is done so perfectly that it seems as though done by machinery, yet every character was made by hand. The book is satisfied "The Passion of Christ." It is a very old volume, and was a curiosity as long, age, as 1640. It belongs to the family of the Frince of Ligne.

Putting food into a diseased stomach is like putting money into a pocket with holes. The money is lost. All its value goes for rothing. IT'S HERE AGAIN.

Vacation time is here at last;
Henceforth the small boy owns the town,
And he will see that time is passed
In ways that add to his renown.
No doubt he has a project vast
To paint the place a deep, rich brown.

No longer will his lessons fret,
No more clean text books will he soil,
And it is very safe to bet
That he will by the rules of Hoyle

All that he learned by patient toil.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 7.—History was made in Oyster Bay Saturday, Russians and Japanese clasped hands and greeted one another with all outward evidence of cordiality, and for the first time since the nations began to have, relations one with another, an executive of a great power received the envoys of two belligerent countries on a mission of peace. The day was ideal. The handsome yacht Mayflower, on which the forms! yacht Mayflower, on which the forms! reception of the plenipotentiaries took place, swung at anchor at the entrance to Oyster Bay. By its side was the despatch boat Dolphin. Two miles out the cruiser Galveston was anchored, in waiting to convoy the vessels bearing the envoys to Portsmouth, N. H.

In order that no embarrassing questions of precedence should arise, it was determined that the luncheon should be a buffet luncheon.

Their reception was brief and was as devoid of formality as the nature of the occasion would permit. Baron Komura and Minister Takahira, shook hands cordially with the President.

Baron Komura then presented to the President the twelve members of his suite. The President gave particularly cordial greetings to Commander Takahira, the naval attache of the Japanese legation, addressing him as "comrade," and to Mr. Hanahara, the third secretary of legation, with both of whom he is personally acquainted. The President then introduced the envoys to the army and naval officers present, after which, with Baron Komura and Minister Takahira, he retired to an inner cabin for a brief consultation prior to the arrival of the Russian mission. President Roosevelt shook hands with M. Witte and Baron Rosen, exchanging with them informal but purely personal felicitations. After receiving the members of the suite and presenting all in turn to his personal guests, the President then brought the two sets of envoys together, introducing them formally to one another.

A Notable Scene.

It was a notable scene as the diminutive Baron Komura shook hands with the giant Witte. The greetings of the members of the two special missions were distinctly formal, but not the slightest suggestion of enmity was shown on either side. Neither by word nor setlen did they indicate even by indirection, anything but the utmost cordiality.

Careful to avoid any strain, President Rosevelt, as soon as possible after the introductions, suggested that the party proceed to the main saloon, where luncheon was in waiting. The President himself led the pary followed in order by M. Witte Baron Komura, Ambassador Rosen and Minister Takahira. Although the luncheon was a standup affair, the President escorted the four envoys to chairs in one corner of the saloon, and, in half a minute through tact and delicacy, the whole party was engaged in animated conversation over their dishes. The conversation over their dishes. The conversation generally was in French, as M. Witte speaks very little English. Baron Rosen and Baron Romura chatted as if they had been lifelong friends, and Minister Takahira, at no time particularly communicative, entered into the conversation with zest and interest. R. H. E.

Before the lunchean had proceeded far. President Roosevelt rose from his chair and turning to the assemblage raised his hand for silence. On an instant there was a hush. Saying Geod-Bye.

M. Witte and Baron Komura both cordially thanked him. The President then took cordial leave of the envoys and their suites.

The Japanese envoys and their suites were next to leave. They shook hands with the Russian plenipotentiaries, expressing to them their personal graification with the pleasant meeting they had had. SPLENDID MISSION

African Race.

Dr. A. B. Walker, B. A., LL. B., D. C. L., barrister, of St. Johns, N. B., is in Chatham in connection with Christianization of the African continent. Dr. Walker has the distinction of being the first colored mand admitted to the bar in Canada, and is a graduate of King's College. In an interview with a Planet representative the Doctor explained his mission. Shortly stated, it is to found a British colony in British West Africa, and people it with intelligent and industrious Englishspeaking negroes, whose mission it will be to form the neucleus of an English-speaking negroe race with which, in time, it is proposed to bring the whole African continent within the pale of Anglo-Saxon civilization.

The colony will, probably, be located in British Nigeria. The territory will be granted by the Imperial Government as soon as five thousand negroes have signified their intention of becoming members of the colony by signing a memorial whiels Dr. Walker is officulating. The Docator has been out with this document only about three months and has already obtained over three thousand signatures. These have come in chiefly from the southern states and without solicitation. It is expected that the memorial will be completed this year and the organization of the colony immediately proceeded with. At first the colony will be a Grown colony, under the supervision of the Home Government, but, as the colonists learn to stand by themselves responsible government will be conceeded. British forms of governments will be adhered to and the social ideals of Britain inculcated into the colonists.

It is not every one who wishes who

It is not every one who wishes who

It is not every one who wishes who can become a member of the colony. The promoters are determined to eliminate the shiftless and ignorant from their little principality. Those who are most preferable are skilled cotton and coffee growers. Cotton growing will be the staple industry of the small kingdom. A school, fashioned after the model of Booker fashioned after the model of Booker.

of the Small kingdom. A school, fashioned after the model of Booker T. Washington's Tuskagee-Institute, will be founded, in which will be studied the resources of Africa.

The scheme is not entered into for the purpose of solving the race problem of the Southern States, but, if successful, it will have that effect.

Dr. / Walker is, an intelligent, hard-headed thinker and not a visionary idealist. The scheme he fosters is a gigantic one and The Planet wishes him every success. The problem of Christianizing the African continent is, admittedly, too great for Christian Church to solve. The impetus that will be given the movement by the establishment of this colony and the effect that civilized members of their race will have among the benighted negroes, cannot be over-estimated. Agaim, the solution it offers, of the race problem in America is an admirable one. The annals of empire show that the moral tone of a people increases in proportion with their capacity for self-government.

Dr. Walker will lecture in Campbell A. M. E. Church Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, on "The Destiny of the African Race."
