Children's Christmas Hymn. In Judan's meadows green and bright,

One Christmas long ago,
The shephords watch'd their flocks by night
Beneath the moonbeams' glow: But round them fell a light Divine, Brighter than moonbeams ever shine.

And angels from the holy heaven Came through that golden air, And this the message that was given To those who waited there: "Glory to God, and peace on earth. Good-will to men at Jesus's birth.

An Infant small and weak The King of all, who left the akies, His children here to seek : He to a humble shed hath come, That you might share his heavenly hos

The shepherds rose and left their sheep, To seek that lowly shed, The spot where angels vigil keep Beside the credie-bed: No better place could earth afford To Him whom angels call their Lord,

They worshipp'd Jesus Christ the King, The Infant undefiled; For they had heard the angels sing, And knew the Holy Child: They knew that Baby, weak and small, Was Jesus Christ the Lord of all.

And worship Christ the Lord; For He Himself hath told us so, In His most Holy Word: And He will make your Christmas-days More bright and glad, and full of praise
